Slatefall, Electrocuting Claim
Howard and Lynch
Wednesday

VANDERPOOL IS ALSO SERIOUSLY INJURED

Both Howard and Lynch are Pronounced Dead After Arrival at Hospitals

As the result of mine accidents at Garrett and Martin this week, two men are dead and a third lies in the Stumbo Memorial hospital, Lackey, with a fractured vertebra and serious internal injuries.

The dead: Beecher Howard, 26, Salt Lick, killed in a slatefall at Central Elkhorn mine No. 6 at Garrett; Irvin Lynch 29, Betsy Layne, electrocuted when he came in contact with a live wire in the Utilities Elkhorn mine, Martin.

Injured: George Vanderpool, 21, Garrett, in a slatefall in the Central Elkhorn mine.

Howard was caught beneath the slatefall while he was loading coal Wednesday morning. After working for ten minutes other workmen removed him from beneath the slate. He was rushed to the hospital but was dead upon arrival.

Lynch, employed as a brakeman on a motor in the Buck's Branch mine, was pronounced dead at the Beaver Valley hospital, Martin, at four o'clock Wednesday afternoon, three hours after his motor backed into the wire. Artificial respiration was administered him for more than two hours at the scene of the accident and he lived until half an hour after his admittance to the hospital.

Injured earlier in the week in the same mine in which Howard was killed, Vanderpool is still confined to the hospital, where it was said today (Thursday) he will probably recover.

Howard, the son of the late Jack Howard, and Mrs. Sarah Howard, is survived by his mother, at Salt Lick; his widow, Mrs. Zella Howard, and five small children. Funeral services will be conducted Friday, with the Revs. Earl Howard and M. C. Wright officiating. Burial will be made in the Garrett cemetery, with the Ryan Funeral Home in charge.

The son of Pid Lynch and Mrs. Bell Lynch, of Betsy Layne, Irvin Lynch lived at Betsy Layne while he worked in the Utilities mine. Besides his parents, he is survived by his widow, Mrs. Garnett Marcum Lynch; two children, Lois and Irvin, Jr., and two brothers, Charles Lynch and Arbut.

NOTICE

For the evil that we do, if any, THE TIMES wants to atone. And this we hope will help.

Henceforth, this newspaper will give each church in Floyd county space in which to announce its regular services. These announcements will be in a column which will be intended as a regular department of the paper, and must, of necessity, be brief.

The weather stays dry, and the dirt used in filling up Third street's unpaved sections has not changed to mud—yet.

JIM HATCHER, 80, DIES AT PIKEVILLE

Prominent Eastern Kentuckian Passes Friday at His Home

James Hatcher, former coal operator and public official, died Friday afternoon at his Pikeville home, adjoining his hotel, the James Hatcher. He was 80 years old.

His death followed years of suffering from rheumatism, and he had been critically ill for weeks.

A native of this county, Mr. Hatcher was the son of the late A. J. and Mrs. Mary Layne Hatcher, of Allen, this county. One of the section's most astute business men, he also was widely recognized for his wit and Democratic customs.

Long a leader in the Democratic party, Mr. Hatcher had served as County Clerk of Pike, and was a former member of the Kentucky Railroad Commission. He was the only Democrat ever to have been elected from this district to the rail commission.

Mr. Hatcher was the owner of almost 10,000 acres of land. Amassing of his fortune began in the timber business, of which he was a pioneer in this section in the days of rafting timber down the Big Sandy river to the Ohio at Catlettsburg. His profits went into real estate, and he owned one 3,700-acre tract of coal land at Big Shoal and vicinity which he operated for years. Much of the 6,000 acres of his remaining holdings was leased to other coal companies.

He entered business at Pikeville at the age of 18, and soon thereafter erected a warehouse which at one time handled practically all merchandise shipped to Pikeville. He was part-owner of "The Mountain Girl," a steamboat designed for Big Sandy navigation. Another early venture was the construction on contract of the Pike county courthouse in 1886.

The James Hatcher Hotel, which he erected a few years ago, was an Eastern Kentucky showplace, its lobby being a veritable museum of Ken-

STEPHENSON NAMED AS SENATE NOMINEE BY APPELLATE COURT

E. D. Stephenson, of Pikeville, won the Democratic Senatorial nomination from the Thirteenth District over E. M. Moore, Hindman, in the August primary, the Court of Appeals ruled Tuesday.

The first count of the primary vote showed Moore winning by a narrow margin. However, after a re-count, Stephenson was declared victor. The high court upheld the Knott Circuit Court in sustaining Stephenson's contention Moore could not in his answer to recount action attempt to set up contest grounds unrelated to the recount.

In another decision the Appellate Court held the Pike Circuit Court erred in directing the acquittal of Ted Ramey, indicted on banding and con-

LOCALE OF FAIR HERE DETERMINED

Gym to House Exhibits;
Special Newspaper Section to Tell Plans

The Floyd county fair will, during October 20, 21 and 22, offer attractions in three distinct sections of Prestonsburg; it was said this week.

The livestock department will be quartered in the Prestonsburg stockyard, near the ball park, it was said.

All other exhibits will be on display in the gymnasium of Prestonsburg high school.

The band concert will be held in one of Prestonsburg's churches.

Interest in the fair continues to mount, County Agent S. L. Isbell, general chairman of the event, said. Farmers, housewives, 4-H club members and Future Farmers of America are being contacted almost daily and are being asked to offer exhibits, and the response has been "most encouraging," it was said.

Next week, THE TIMES, in a four-page Floyd County Fair supplement, will publish the full premium list amounting to approximately $500, together with full details of the three-page program and the advertisements of merchants, business and professional men whose co-operation is making the fair possible.

JOHN GILLESPIE DRAWS 4 YEARS

Is Convicted Here in Slaying of Bert Conn on Arkansas Creek

John Gillespie, former Floyd deputy sheriff, was the last man to be given trial on a murder charge at the September term of the Floyd circuit court, and received a four-year pen term Friday at the hands of a jury which deliberated two hours.

Arraigned for the slaying of Bert Conn on Arkansas Creek last year, the former officer contended that he fired only after he had been knocked to the ground by stones thrown by Conn. This testimony claimed that he fired while yet on the ground. Witnesses testified that, following the tragedy, Gillespie's stomach and shoulder were bruised, presumably by Conn's rocks.

Outweighed, Outnumbered, P'burg 'Cats Not Outfought

Powerful Ashland Tomcats Find First-String Crew Necessary to Gain Winning Margin Friday Night; Burchett Gives Lesson in Passing

Although they were out-weighted and out-numbered, the Prestonsburg high school Blackcats were not outfought, as they bowed before the undefeated Ashland Tomcats, 25-0, Friday night at Ashland.

Unable to pierce the Blackcat forward wall with any degree of regularity, Ashland counted three touchdowns on end runs, with the fourth coming in the final quarter on a pass.

Prestonsburg came closest to scoring in the third quarter, when Burchett tossed a pass to Paul Williamson, who was overhauled on the Ashland seven-yard line, after a fifty yard run. However, the play was nullified by a clipping penalty.

Three plays after Prestonsburg kicked off to the Tomcats in the opening quarter Halfback Barber skirted right end for 22 yards and the first Ashland score. The attempted conversion went wide.

A few plays later a blocked Prestonsburg punt gave Ashland the ball again on the 50-yard line. On the next play Barber, Ashland's most consistent ground-gainer, went around left end for another touchdown. Eblen made the extra point on a plunge through the line.

Coach Grone, of the Tomcats, sent in a fresh team for the second and third periods. The Blackcats out-

FLOYD PATRIARCH CALLED BY DEATH

Hiram Conn, Great-Grandfather of 281, Succumbs at Dana

Hiram Conn, Sr., great-grandfather of 281 and great-great-grandfather of 61 persons, died at the age of 89 September 27 at his home at Dana.

His death followed by little more than two months a paralytic stroke.

Mr. Conn, a well-known Prater Creek farmer, was thrice married, all three of his wives preceding him in death. He was first married to Miss Ella Crum, and of this union five sons survive: Dave Conn, of Rush, Ky., Lee, Ike, Frank and James Conn, all of Dana. He next was married to Miss Katherine Howell, four children of this union surviving: Charlie Conn, Mrs. Nicy Rice, Mrs. Myrtle Williams and Henry Conn, all of Dana. His third wife, Mrs. Jennie Atkins Conn, died a year ago. He leaves one brother, Ira Conn, and 122 grandchildren.

Mr. Conn had been a member of the Regular Baptist Church for 45 years and was deeply revered by all who knew him.

ASSISTANCE ASKED FOR WAR-STRICKEN

Red Cross Membership Drive
To Begin Wednesday,
November 1

Faced with a growing demand for Red Cross assistance to the stricken populations of Europe's warring nations and a need for strengthening its domestic operations, the American Red Cross will embark November 1 on the greatest membership campaign since the World War, J. D. Harkins, Jr., Roll Call chairman of Floyd county Red Cross chapter, said this week.

The appeal, he said, will be carried by the 10,000 chapters and branches of the organization located in virtually every community in the country. Starting November 1, Roll Call will extend through November 11.

"Prior to the outbreak of hostilities in Europe," Mr. Harkins said, "the American Red Cross planned to appeal for a million more members in an effort to strengthen its services in this country. War, however, has increased the responsibilities of the Red Cross to the point where even greater membership is needed to meet appeals from abroad.

"The Red Cross is obligated by treaty at Geneva to assist in alleviating the sufferings of war. Our chapters throughout the country already have started the production of garments for the needy civilian population of belligerent countries, while a limited number of chapters are now preparing hundreds of thousands of surgical dressings for use at the front."

The success of Roll Call this year will gauge the amount of assistance the American Red Cross can give the sick and injured of war, and the comfort that can be brought to refugees and other non-combatants fleeing the danger zones, Mr. Harkins said.

"At the same time, the Red Cross must be prepared to continue its battle against human suffering in this country," the local chairman said. "The Red Cross has been constantly increasing its volume of service during the past few years."

TRAVEL BULLETIN
TODAY'S ROADS

Prepared By
Eastern Kentucky Automobile Club

COOPERATION REQUESTED

Published reports that Lee S. Ainslie, Huntington Automobile Club manager, doubted the authenticity of statements recently published by the Eastern Kentucky Automobile Club on the speed trap which exists between Celedo and Huntington, W. Va., were emphatically denied yesterday by Mr. Ainslie himself.

The Huntington manager stated and re-stated his desire to cooperate with the local club, Wayne county officials and several West Virginia organizations in eliminating the situation existing at Westmoreland.

Ainslie admitted that "such reports don't do Huntington business interests any good."

(He had reference to recently published articles warning out-of-state motorists to stay out of West Virginia because of the speed trap).

A recent telephone conversation with F. F. Scaggs, assistant Wayne county prosecuting attorney, resulted in assurances that everything possible will be done in another attempt to eliminate the speed trap which is operated by constables.

Scaggs, in August, issued a statement that fee claims filed by constables for arrests out of their districts, without warrants or for traffic violations if it is proven that they were parked by the roadside awaiting the opportunity, would be refused by county officials.

A published report a short time later revealed that the number of arrests made by constables for traffic violations had decreased 50 per cent but that still 150 arrests were made. A total of 130 of the 150 fee claims filed by the officers were rejected.

There was a brief lull in the operation of the speed trap following the rejection of such large percentages of fees, but last week the trap was placed in full operation again.

Three Eastern Kentucky motorists became the victims of the outrageous conduct of the constables. They were witnesses to the rough handling of women and profane language by constables after arrests had been made.

These victims were fined from $14 to $15 by Justice of the Peace Curtis Ward who, according to the witnesses, threatened contempt of court warrants when they attempted to explain their individual cases.

To say that the condition existing at Westmoreland is bad would be putting it mildly. It is worse than awful! Men who were elected by the people to enforce the laws of the state and prosecute violators, are operating a racket and persecuting innocent motorists.

Only the combined efforts of the Huntington and Eastern Kentucky Automobile Clubs, Wayne county and state officials can break it up.

It is hard for a Kentucky club to fight a speed trap in West Virginia, especially when it is located only a few miles from another AAA organization.

The Huntington club should take the lead in the fight, but if it doesn't, the Eastern Kentucky Automobile Club will continue, as best it can, to protect Eastern Kentucky motorists by warning them to stay out of West Virginia.

JOBLESS CLAIMS

Special Agents Will Investigate Fraudulent Claims, Says Commission

Frankfort, Ky., Oct. 4—A staff of 14 special agents of the Kentucky Unemployment Compensation Commission are engaged in a state-wide investigation for the purpose of bringing to light any fraudulent claims for job insurance, it has been announced by V. E. Barnes, executive director of the Commission.

Barnes explained that in order for a person to be entitled to benefits he must be totally unemployed, and a claimant receiving benefits while employed is subject to a fine and imprisonment.

"The purpose of this survey," Barnes said, "is three-fold. The special agents are not only to investigate fraudulent claims, but will secure the occupational classification of claimants and conduct an educational campaign designed to acquaint workers with the provisions of the law as it affects the workers."

"Many workers," Barnes continued "have a misconception as to the provision of the law in regard to odd-jobs and subsidiary work. Many claimants believe that if they report odd job earnings this will affect their benefit rights."

"Each claimant has a certain amount of benefits which he is entitled to receive during a 12-month period called his benefit year."

"Although odd-job earnings are partially deductible from a worker's weekly benefit check, they are not deductible from the total amount of benefits he may be eligible to receive."

Bless Their Little Hearts--- But Can You Blame Dan?

New York, Oct. 1.—Dan Cupid went to town last week and the ancient institution of matrimony ("... but who wants to be in an institution? ...") got quite a tossing around.
A 66-year-old Tulsa, Okla., woman, after a month's courtship, married her seventh husband, who had been married three times before. Two sisters and a brother and sister all got marriage licenses the same day in Philadelphia.
On the other hand—
A Los Angeles woman divorced her husband because he kept her awake all night talking about Hitler, another Los Angeles woman divorced her husband because of his over-addiction to toy trains... and a Los Angeles man sued a woman for turning him down after a six-year courtship.
A Quincy, Mass., man got a court order to stop his son from getting married.
But, just to keep the ball rolling—
A San Francisco merchant offered to fly a wedding party to Reno at 9 a. m., provide the ring, taxis, clergyman's fee and wedding breakfast, and get the party back to Frisco by 1 o. m., all for $11.
Dizzy doin's hither and yon—
A conductor stood on the station platform at East Liberty, Penn., and absent-mindedly watched his train go off without him... A New York man who owned a half interest in a cabaret walked in with ten carpenters, chopped the place exactly in half, including a chicken, and took his half away...

The Hoboes' Association tried to oust its president for paying for a train ride... A New York bearded lady turned out to be a man... And in the middle of a golf lesson, a Philadelphia man scored a hole in one...
The Mexican government swept into an agrarian program with such enthusiasm, that it inadvertently appropriated a town's main street, 55 houses and a cemetery... After crashing through the ceiling into a Chicago home, a man stammered "excuse me," and left in a cloud of dust...
Some New York people picketed police headquarters to show their appreciation for the police commissioner... An Orangeburg, S. C., man tried to foil pursuit of a stolen cow by putting shoes on her... A man complained to Pittsburgh police that he had been robbed of $800 at the association for improving the condition of the poor... And—
Some migrating ducks mistook a Sun Valley, Idaho, ice skating rink for an open pond and landed on their ears.

MRS. PAUL R. WICKLIFFE
Just returned from the National Consumers Tax Commission's first annual conference in New York, Mrs. Wickcliffe, NCTC national committee member for Kentucky, will head an intensified drive to establish tax study groups in every Kentucky community to work with the 161 already active here in 146 cities and towns. Long prominent in club and civic work, Mrs. Wickcliffe, of Greenville, is a past president of the Kentucky Federation of Women's clubs and is currently a member of the Kentucky Crippled Children's Commission.

JOBUCK'S JAM

(By JOBUCK JOHNSON)
Powder-puff lecturers and writers had me halfway believing in what one WPA worker called "buth control," which is nothing short of something for a veteran of the gravy class. However, this very membership has its advantages; for while "foderin'" the other day, I came upon a mammy 'possum with an even dozen little ones. Had she been a human in Hitlerland, she probably would have pulled down an extra ounce of butter.

Several bottles along on a ring-tailed snorter, a veteran sot of the community was suddenly stricken violently ill. Coming upon him, one of our Christian ladies advised him to pray. This is his prayer, lock, stock and barrel: "Lord have mercy on God!" A bit raw, it is true, but utterly factual.

I guess this poem orter
Been two lines shorter.

What do you think, Shiky? Guess you think dammit since the election but I did my part.

An old gentleman I know had a rheumatic motorcycle on which he had worked for four and twenty weeks, some years back, preparatory to coaxing a few furlongs out of it. It finally agreed to wheeze off a little batch of revolutions, provided the going was mostly downhill. He had to cross the creek before attaining the main road, and he had almost accomplished this remarkable feat when Her Majesty suddenly swerved into a deep "holler." The motorcycle was doing the riding by now, and when we finally dug the old fellow out, minus all his raiment except a score of threads in the vicinity of the collar button, he still showed his faith in Her Majesty, by saying, "The carbryator must have been flooded!"

I can say "hush money" rather audibly, but I'll bet a nickel I can name a flock of birds who say it better than I do. If you don't know what I'm talking about, you'll probably be fed in the face. Still, it's your face.

Yes, meat's high. I called for a quarter's worth. The merchant looked pityingly at me, grabbed a butcher knife, rubbed it over a chunk of sow belly, weighed his thumb—sure I got the paper he cleaned the knife on. He's quit selling me bologna. Says a nickel's worth is one-third thinner than his knife.

Well, Shiky, if my column has "mud" in it, just remember that the big flood of last winter got about so many feet over the old Corona. However, I saved on typewriter ribbons for awhile, writing with nothing but new ground soil which came out of "Sweet Beaver's" tributaries and settled on the keys. This may give you room to say something about a dirty column.

By renting the use of a 10-acre rye grass pasture to neighbors for their stack, Carl Fields, of Harlan county, made a fair prove.

JOHNS CREEK DAM
The U. S. War Department notified the district WPA office that construction on the Johns Creek dam would begin on, or about, September 1, 1940. The latter agency, which was building a road in that section, immediately stopped all work on the project—determined, we presume, that the residents can "dig in" until the water gets high enough for them to swim out!

The difference in present-day politicians and those of yesteryear: They used to BELIEVE in what they fought for.

I'm a keen Roosevelt supporter—Keen for Kentucky, Roosevelt for the rest of it.

LOCALLY LOST: One Irish coal operator, two bi-monthly payrolls, and 76 jobs.

I've been tellin' you all along that Martin is the biggest little town on the map. Now, to back my boast, the city fathers have come forward with enough proof to convince even you. They have erected two badly needed traffic lights on the highway here—the only town in the county to have that many pedestrian-savers!

The longer you wait for something, the more you appreciate its final arrival—but, also, the chances of getting it become smaller.

Drift to get badly needed bridge, six-inch pipe line goes in on Mud Creek, Floyd County Fair interest shows increase, Odd Fellows and Rebekahs to meet in Prestonsburg—Yep, prosperity is almost here, folks. It's just around the corner.

To D.A.B.: You bet, and proud of it, too!

OFFICIAL ORGAN FOR FLOYD COUNTY, KY.
$1.50 Per Year Payable In Advance

NORMAN ALLEN Editor

Entered as second class matter June 18, 1927, at the postoffice at Prestonsburg, Ky., under the Act of March 3, 1879.

THE TIMES ENDORSES

1. Floyd county for Floyd countians.
2. Immediate completion of the Left Beaver and Johns Creek road.
3. Completion of all Farm-to-Market roads, by W. P. A. labor if possible, maintenance of these routes by the state rural road fund.
4. A trade-at-home policy followed by merchants and customers alike.
5. Full co-operation with all county and city officials, insisting that lawmakers and enforcement officers themselves obey the law to the letter.
6. Continuance of the Floyd county health department and county agricultural agent work.

A CASE IN POINT

Describing the sufferings from infantile paralysis of little Vertina Stumbo at Gearheart Wednesday, Dr. Marvin Ransdell told of the collapse of the chest muscles, of the abdominal muscles functioning only weakly, of the tot gasping for breath as death seemed only a few hours away.

"There is where an iron lung would have rescued a child," the doctor added.

Yes, there . . . and in scores of other cases over the years, perhaps.

But Floyd county has no iron lung—will have none, if our citizens continue to view this menace to childhood, not to mention adults, with its present mental and spiritual lethargy.

And the iron lung, which furnishes respiration mechanically after natural functions fail, costs only $2,500.

THE TIMES has been reminded, and not without reason, that the matter of location of the mechanism in one Floyd county hospital might create dissension. That is true—it might.

But can't we folks, somehow, draw upon some latent resource of unselfishness, for the nonce, and agree upon one place wherein the iron lung could be placed and used for the help of those who, without its miraculous aid, may die?

If this trivial matter cannot be settled satisfactorily in the presence of death, while helpless children suffer, then those who do die are but escaping a heartless land.

THE DEATH OF CIVILIZATION

Germany, one-time center of culture wherein the great of literature, music and art once dwelt in peace, has made everything but kultur verboten.

This fact, added to those which prove that civilization has tottered since the last World War, augurs ill for what we of 1939 know as civilization.

If Hitler's Germany wins the present conflict—what then? The future can be judged only by the past. And in the past, the not long-ago past, Germany under Hitler wilfully destroyed a large measure of its true culture.

Only recently Sigmund Freud, the man who gave dreams the substance of reality and helped insane men back to sanity through understanding of insanity, died in England—a refugee from Germany. The insanity that Hitler's Germany insanely enjoys drove Sigmund Freud from his native land.

Today, Dr. Thomas Mann, probably the world's greatest literary genius, is living in self-imposed exile, though he is a German to the manner born. His mental processes and those of Der Fuehrer do not coincide, and Thomas Mann, mentally alert as he is, quickly realized that the way for him was—out.

Even Germany's great legendary hero, Siegfried, is in disrepute with the Nazis—for no reason other than that Wagner, a genius of Jewish extraction, immortalized him.

The marvelous literature that is the Bible cannot endure in Hitler-land; even this must be tintinnabulated to the Nazi parrot-mechanism.

The church has been depolled; religion, railed against. Genius, all that is fine in humankind are despicable, unless these qualities are possessed by those whom the Austrian paper-hanger is pleased to recognize as his own. Jesus of Nazareth, living today in Germany, would not be crucified on a Roman cross—he would be condemned to live and rot in a German detention camp or would be shunted into other lands.

Thus is civilization dead in Germany. Thus civilization would die wherever Germany's conquering hand reaches.

A PRICE TOO GREAT

The lines are already drawn, but the winners are yet to be known.

So THE TIMES can, without fear of offending either party or any individual on the two tickets, give this advice which it deems as much to the benefit of Floyd county as to those officials who will be elected by the county's voters, a month hence.

When you take the oath of office, resolve to do one thing—to perform the duties of that office, without fear or favor.

Please remember that other men, as popular as you, have failed by permitting the power of their office to slip beyond their control while they attempted "appeasement" policies—and, in the end, have lost.

Remember that the rank-and-file of the voters who elected you want an ABSOLUTELY SQUARE DEAL. This sort of treatment, on occasion, may meet with opposition because it displeases one or two or three individuals. But, in the long run, you boys will find that those one, two or three or more are merely parties "disinterested" in the cause of justice—they, by and large, have only their own "rows to hoe" and no interest otherwise.

Remember that, when you act against the dictates of your own conscience, the act by which you commit such offense is in violation to your promise to the people of your district or county and also is marked down against you on the score sheet, from day to day, in the minds of the people.

Above all, remember, you men who are about to be chosen by the people of this county and district, those "friends" who will, in the years to come, approach you for favors—official acts which you know to be wrong but which would "accommodate" these alleged friends—remember that true friends do not ask you to do the wrong thing, the act which is advantageous only to the chosen few while being harmful to the whole. If they were true friends, they would not ask you to do that which would drop you into ill repute among those who have respected and supported you.

The price you pay—you officials who in November are to be elected—for support gained by services to the benefit of the chosen few to the detriment of the many—that price is too great for you to pay.

Points By Other Editors

IT CERTAINLY IS A RESPONSIBILITY

An editorial in the September number of The Kentucky Medical Journal, organ of the Kentucky Medical Association, calls attention to an article on the Responsibility of the Physician in Lunacy Inquests by Dr. J. G. Wilson, director of State Hospitals and Mental Hygiene. Until "antiquated statutes providing for jury trials in lunacy inquests are repealed, The Journal remarks, "the profession can help the situation of over-crowding in the state institutions by exercising care in examining cases they are asked to certify as lunatics or of unsound mind."

How needful this care and how lacking it is may be inferred from the concluding paragraph of the editorial: "They should at least think twice before they label ordinary drunks, bad boys and girls, troublesome and puerulent old persons, fighting husbands and wives and hysterical men and women as feeble-minded or insane."

That is a vigorous indictment of a system by which jurors who seldom see the "defendant" and wouldn't be any better informed if they did deprive Kentuckians of their rights of citizenship and commit them to custody as insane on the affidavit of physicians whom they don't see, whose knowledge of mental illnesses, even, is unknown to them.

For years superintendents and investigators have reported that our mental hospitals are the dumping ground for harmless old people nobody wants. Apparently, the alcoholic ward has been used as a convenience also, and nervous afflictions have been certified as insanity. In the latter cases, no doubt, the patients ultimately justify their commitment retroactively by going crazy.

Dr. Wilson corroborates all that has been said in the past by the statement that, "not only are all our institutions cluttered up with persons who never should have been committed to them, but they also contain recovered or improved patients whom we desire to discharge or parole to make room for new patients in dire need of treatment; but communities from which they come refuse to receive them."

Dr. Wilson submitted with his article exhibits of affidavits and certifications controverted by clinical examinations and case histories. "With the exception of those admitted through the Psychopathic Department of the Louisville City Hospital," he declared, "we have seldom found one that contained a helpful or enlightening statement by the examining physician." In this connection, it is a statistical fact that Louisville's psychopathic ward has lessened the burden on institutions from Jefferson county and the Family Service Organization has been of assistance with out-patients as it has been with federal court paroles, indicating the economy, as well as improved care, that could be effected by a psychopathic hospital and the extension of mental hygiene.

These and a new commitment law await action; but, meanwhile, the law is no excuse for sending to a mental hospital patients whose obvious need is an operation, a blood transfusion or treatment for physical ailment, or for committing to the Institute for Feeble-Minded children with a normal "I. Q."—Courier-Journal.

HATCHER A PIONEER

In the death of James Hatcher of Pikeville Kentucky loses a pioneer, for the upper reaches of Big Sandy valley traversed a frontier country industrially considered when, sixty-eight years ago, Mr. Hatcher, at eighteen began to make his way.

Like the brothers, Asher, Tom and Jack, who operated in Bell and Harlan counties when large tracts of virgin timber invited the exploiter, and when primitive conditions made the exploit difficult, Mr. Hatcher had vigor, imagination, judgment and self-reliance.

A news dispatch refers to his having been part owner of The Mountain Girl, a steamer built for Big Sandy trade.

Big Sandy is not nowadays plied by steamboats. It was never navigable except at high stages, but at times steamboats could deliver cargoes at Pikeville and the stream bore rafted logs down to the Ohio.

Business obligations were geared to the river's rises. Notes sometimes were drawn to fall due "at the time of the next tide."

With steamboat days on Big Sandy behind him, Mr. Hatcher kept abreast of the times and made his mark.

The collection of objects of interest in connection with Eastern Kentucky history will be, presumably, a permanent Pikeville exhibit.

The black walnut coffin which the creator of the museum designed and kept in the lobby now serves its purpose, and Kentucky loses a distinguished citizen.—Louisville Times.

CAPITOL COMMENTS

Senator M. M. Logan, one of Kentucky's greatest statesmen, died of a heart attack early Tuesday morning. He was an individualist, strong in his opinions, and an authority on law.

The appointment of his successor will be made by the Governor.

It is almost a certainty that Governor Chandler will resign, and Keen Johnson, then Governor, will appoint Chandler to the Senate vacancy.

It will be a wise choice

The Republicans opened their campaign last Saturday in Lexington with an overflow crowd.

Bob Lucas, campaign chairman, believes that the Republicans have an excellent chance in November, and is organizing for a strong campaign. Judge Swope makes an impressive speech, and is a good platform personality. He has greatly improved over his last Governor's race.

Thomas N. Mamby, LaGrange, was appointed campaign chairman for the young Republicans.

The Democrats will open their campaign in Mt. Sterling Saturday.

Last week we gave you arguments against repeal of the neutrality bill, and this week we are giving you the other side.

The bill prohibits the sale of munitions to warring nations, but we may sell all the raw products that go to make munitions, which is just as dangerous from the shipping angle as if they were manufactured, for Germany will try to prevent them from reaching England.

But the main reason for repeal, and one that is kept in the background, is this—we are not a neutral nation. Our sympathies, our hearts and our future welfare lies in the defeat of Germany, and with the side of England and France, who, with us are the only great democracies left, and who are fighting a battle against dictators and their form of government.

If France and England lose, we are economically doomed, for Germany has already destroyed much of our foreign trade, upon which our country depends, by their barter system of trading, in which they trade manufactured goods for raw material with South American countries.

It is readily admitted by high authorities that our national welfare depends on victory for France and England, and that we cannot afford to have them conquered by dictator nations. The best way to help them is by selling them the equipment and arms to win their fight, instead of joining with them as we did in the last war.

These are the lines of battle. Read last week's column and you can decide for yourself which is the wisest choice.

Rich and poor, great, near-great and small he met with the same equal homespun philosophy which won him the admiration of thousands.

Funeral services, conducted Sunday afternoon, were attended by many officials, including Governor A. B. "Happy" Chandler, intimate friend of Mr. Hatcher. The Governor delivered a tribute to his friend during the rites. Burial was made at Pikeville beside the grave of Mrs. Hatcher, the former Miss Octavia Smith, who died about 50 years ago.

$2447.00 of your tax money—enough money to carry on a modern and efficient fire department and a street cleaning and garbage disposal system—is being paid out annually by your present city council in useless and ridiculous salaries to idle, pampered and sluggish job-holders. ## TO THE PEOPLE OF FLOYD AND KNOTT COUNTIES:

In view of the fact that it is only a few weeks until the election, and that it will be impossible for this candidate to see in person each of the voters, this method is taken to communicate with the people

What every good citizen desires to know about a candidate is:

1. Who he is;
2. His qualifications; and
3. What he stands for.

He was born and reared on Salt Lick Creek of Right Beaver Creek, a distance of about two miles from the Knott county line. He grew to manhood in the same community with the late Judge Bill Williams. He is one of a family of nine children, and a brother of the late Preacher Sage Allen, who was known and loved by the people of both Knott and Floyd counties. He is related by blood or marriage to most of the old time families of both Knott and Floyd counties, and their names are too numerous to mention.

As to his qualifications, he began as a school teacher on Beaver Creek, and in Knott county, and has been Principal of the Floyd County High School at Prestonsburg, and City Superintendent of Schools. A large number of school teachers in Floyd and Knott counties received their preparation for the teaching profession under him while he was head of the Teachers' Training Department of the old Baptist College at Prestonsburg. He educated himself by working his way through college in the state of Indiana where he received his degree, and later worked his way through the State University at Lexington while studying law. He began the practice of law at Prestonsburg in the year 1917. He was elected State Representative from the old legislative district of Letcher, Knott and Floyd. He served as Assistant Attorney General of the state of Kentucky at Frankfort for several years. He has been appointed by the Chief Justice of the Court of Appeals of Kentucky as Special Judge and has held terms of court under such appointment. His law practice which has extended over a period of approximately twenty-two years in the counties of the entire Big Sandy valley and in the Court of Appeals of Kentucky and Federal Courts has well equipped him as to court procedure. He enjoys the friendship and respect of every lawyer at the Bar in both the counties of Floyd and Knott, and it could be stated that each lawyer at each of these Bars would admit, if asked, that it is their judgment that if he is elected Judge they each, as a lawyer and their clients, would receive a square deal at his hands as such Judge.

EDWARD L. ALLEN

CANDIDATE FOR CIRCUIT JUDGE

In the courthouse and elsewhere as a lawyer and school teacher he has at all times stood for the rights of the common citizen. Even those who for selfish reasons, are opposing him in this race, are compelled to admit that if Edward L. Allen is elected Judge that all classes, whether high or low, will receive just and fair treatment at his hands. His past life, his qualifications and the things for which he stands, including churches and schools, entitle him to the wholehearted support of every father and mother, and every other citizen who really loves the children of this district, and desires a square deal in the courthouse. Every right thinking citizen, regardless of politics, should rally to his support to the end that the honor, integrity and dignity of the great office of Circuit Judge should be upheld. Certain known, selfish and entrenched interests are seeking under cover to defeat him, and it is respectfully submitted to the good people that he is in truth and in fact making this fight in behalf of the people. He is in this fight to the finish, and CAN and WILL win, and his election in November will certainly mean that RIGHT always prevails against WRONG.

He pledges, if elected, that every citizen qualified for jury service, regardless of his or her politics, and regardless of where they reside, shall feel at least that he or she have had an opportunity to sit as a juror in the courthouse at Prestonsburg and Hindman.

He is making an appeal to his many friends, to all those who really desire a square deal in the courts, and especially to his many relatives in these counties to stand by him in this fight, and not let up in the least until victory is won in November, which will be in truth a victory for churches, schools, and the mass of the people.

One morning last week she wrote the same word in small letters and asked Paul Francis what it was, whether or not he knew. The child gazed at it a moment, then said: "It must be pup. It's just like dog, but it's little."

The Methodist Ladies' Aid here is doing wonderful work to raise funds to build the church here.

land and, as you perhaps have heard, Billy Greenback makes the mare go.

We read with interest the squawk of the Briar Buck this week to the time (or lack of it) spent on jury service by the Beaver Creekers of old Floyd county.

I perhaps am not very different from any other person you might find hereabouts, but I often wonder why it is that you never see any one from some of the largest towns in Floyd county sitting in the jury box. (Yes, if I am called for jury service, I perhaps would try every possible way to get out of it.) But I do honestly believe that if the idea of Prosecutor Tom Dewey, of New York, were carried out in Floyd county, our crime rate would in a very short time decrease. As you probably know, Mr. Dewey has a habit of selecting what he calls Blue Ribbon juries, that is, he selects men and women who are successful in different walks of life for jury service, and the net result is, not so many criminals go free on technicalities.

Not so long back, Mr. Allen, editor of The Times, advocated federal trial for all murder cases. Before we go to that extreme, let's try a few Blue Ribbon juries and see what we can do about the matter.

So long till next time.

Woman, 86, Knows No Kin; Warily Asks, 'Who Am I?'

Hillsboro, O.—The mystery of the identity of the real name of Mrs. Sarah Dorney Stroup remains as clouded today as it did more than 80 years ago when she was left abandoned, a 4-year-old waif in a railroad station here.

For more than 80 years Mrs. Stroup has sought the answer to this question, "Who am I?"

The aged woman may never know her true identity, but at the age of 86 she is still seeking to pierce the mystery that veils her abandonment here.

She has spent many years in a diligent search for a clue to her real name. Mrs. Stroup knows that she was brought from England by a woman, named Ellen Dorney, who represented herself as Sarah's mother, but who undoubtedly was her nurse.

Ellen Dorney brought with her to this country also another child, a little boy, who greatly resembled her, and who, she said, was her son.

The Englishwoman had come to America following her husband's death, so the story goes, to visit her sisters, Mary and Margaret. It was learned later that a brother-in-law, William Park Dorney, had sent her the money for the voyage.

When Mrs. Dorney reached Hillsboro, where Margaret lived, she learned her sister had become a widow and had taken her three children and joined Mary in Indiana.

Upon learning of this fact, the nurse returned to the rail depot to take a train to that state.

At the station little Sarah balked and cried out that she did not want to go with her. The woman, according to the conductor, a Mr. Clarke, turned and shouted:

"Whoever wants this child can have her! I don't want to be bothered any more."

Pushing the child from her, the woman boarded the train with her son and vanished from the little girl's life.

The abandoned child soon won the hearts of Hillsboro's residents and four women came forward to see to the waif's upbringing. They paid a motherly widow, a Mrs. Harper, to care for Sarah Dorney, as she came to be called.

Mrs. Harper moved from here to find work. Sarah followed. Sarah then returned here when 10 years old and took work on the farm of James Stroup near here. She married her employer's son, John, and lived happily for 37 years. Upon his death she returned to Hillsboro.

She said she had talked with Ellen Dorney's sisters, Mary and Margaret, "but they refused to tell me anything, except that Ellen had remarried and moved to some place in Missouri. Then I lost all trace of them."

Prof. Isaac Sams, a noted educator of his day, who came from Bath, England, and settled in Hillsboro, interested himself in Sarah's case, at his own expense, but failed to trace her identity. He was sure, he said, that she had an English father and a Scotch-Irish mother and that she was descended from nobility.

In those days when a girl stood in line for an inheritance, she often was spirited away to make way for an over-ambitious male relative in the family. Sarah's scheming relative, Prof. Sams thought, had had Ellen Dorney bring the child to America and lose her when the chance presented itself.

symbol of good housekeeping. "A new broom sweeps clean." Not to know how to sweep properly has branded many a girl who would otherwise make a model wife. No man whom I ever knew is handy with a broom, except in sweeping up trash that is big enough to stumble over. Older writers called woman the user of the distaff, an earlier form of the spindle; in our times it would be more appropriate to call one's mother's side of the house the "broom-side."

NEW BERE A PREXY TO BE HONOR GUEST

Dr. FRANCIS S. HUTCHINS

Berea, Ky., Oct. 7.—Dr. Francis S. Hutchins, Berea College's new president, will be guest of honor at a meeting of alumni and former students of Berea College at the Brand Hotel, Hazard, Friday evening, October 6, at 6:30.

Alumni from Perry, Knott, Letcher and Leslie counties are sponsoring the meeting. Berea alumni from other nearby counties are welcome. The committee in charge is composed of I. A. Bowles, chairman; Vernon Wilder, Walter Combs and Chas. Hudson, all of Hazard. Dinner reservations should be sent to the chairman.

The visit of Dr. Hutchins to Eastern Kentucky closes a 10-day tour of the territory served by Berea College. Accompanying Dr. Hutchins is Chas. T. Morgan, alumni secretary of Berea College.

SECOND TICKET FILES IN LOUISIA COUNCIL

Louisa—Despite a statement from the Kentucky Attorney General's office that it is not certain another ticket for city council can be filed after July 6, six Louisa men Saturday filed as candidates on an independent ticket to oppose the Citizens' ticket composed mostly of the present women members of Louisa's city council. Candidates composing the Independent ticket are: Ike Lockwood, K. F. Wooten, Dr. L. C. Wray, Walter Plummer, Charles T. Britton and W. S. Justice.

Only one ticket, composed mostly of members of the present woman council, filed before the deadline of July 6 as provided in an amendment to section 1456 of the state statutes which stipulates that candidates filing by petition with the county clerk 30 days prior to the first Saturday in August (which is primary election day) instead of 15 days before the final election in November as had been observed heretofore. Councilmanic tickets are not nominated in party primaries in towns of Louisa's class, but must be nominated by petition. Thus, it was believed the amendment to section 1456 applied to this case, and Guy H. Herdman, assistant Attorney General, told County Clerk Wm. W. Moore here that the point had never been tested and that his office was not certain another ticket for council can file before the November 7 election.

STUDY SHOWS FARM COSTS ON INCREASE

How farm expenses have increased in recent years is revealed in a study which the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture made of farms in Union county. On 10 farms where records were kept, expenses more than doubled from 1934 to 1938.

George B. Byers, who directed the study for the farm economics department of the College, said the increase in farm costs during the five-year period was caused largely by increasing labor and machinery expenditures.

Expenses on the Union county farms studied increased from $1,281 in 1934 to $2,718 in 1937, dropping to $2,564 in 1938. Net earnings averaged $2,385 per farm in 1934, and $1,215 in 1938. Most of this decrease in earnings was due to higher cost.

Since Union county is in a good corn growing region, livestock furnishes the major part of the farm income. For the past five years hogs have furnished more income than all other kinds of livestock combined, except in 1934. Beef cattle ranked second as a source of farm receipts. Wheat furnished the largest income of any single crop, except in 1934.

TIDBITS OF KENTUCKY FOLKLORE

HOME-MADE BROOMS

It is so easy to buy brooms today that few of my acquaintances know the art of making them at home. I must confess that my training in household arts did not include broom-making, but I have looked in on the art as practiced by others. Just as I marvel at basketry, so I marvel at the skillful art of making brooms.

For raking yards in the fall or spring a fair broom can be made from huckleberry bushes. They grow tough, and have hosts of short, crooked limbs, making a pretty fair rake or broom naturally. By tying a bunch of them together, you can have a broom that will prevent your using a more expensive one.

Broom corn does not seem a farm necessity now. Once every farm had its patch, planted at some distance from the sorghum, with which it would mix and produce a sort of cane that is unfit for use as brooms or for stock food. The long heads have a tendency to bend into queer shapes after the seeds get ripe, hence it is wise to bend the stalks down at a certain stage of their growth. The straws thus grow straight, and, I am told, the lasting quality of the head is increased by this partial separation from the stalk. The heads are cut at the right time, which I must confess I have forgotten, though I raised the corn for several years. The seeds are removed by holding a flat stick on the head end and drawing the straw between it and a board. Then the heads are dried until they become light; they are then ready for broom-making.

Broom-makers of the ordinary type made round brooms, arranging the heads around a stick and wrapping them properly with a kind of wire made especially for this purpose. Then the body of the broom was sewed with some bright-colored carpet warp. This broom, though not very artistic, would last a long time and was usually strong and stubby.

More artistic broom-makers could create a flat broom almost exactly like the ones we could buy at the general store. These artists were very rare, however, in our part of the world.

Brooms were and are useful inventions. When a new household was being started, or when the members of the church gave a donation party, a broom was sure to be a present from some well-wisher. I find in my old diary that I contributed a broom to the Methodist preacher when I attended the one donation party of my life.

The broom became and remains the to state assembly delegates was made by Mrs. Mary D. Allen. Mrs. Pearl Roddy, state Rebekah president, gave the response.

Music at the opening session was rendered by Mrs. Chalmers Frazier and Mrs. Edith Fitzpatrick James and her Plainsong Chanters. Principal address of the session was delivered by George I. Breiel, Newport, Ky. Circuit Judge John W. Caudill presided as master of ceremonies.

Also included in the opening day program was a sight-seeing tour, followed by the secretaries' dinner at the Valley Inn. Closing event of the day was a dance at the Club Rustique.

Tuesday began with the Rebekah Past Presidents' breakfast at the Auxier hotel at 7 a. m. The grand lodge session was held in the circuit courtroom, the Rebekah assembly in Odd Fellows' hall. At noon the Grand Lodge and past officers' luncheon was held. A joint memorial was held at the Irene Cole Memorial Baptist Church at 4 p. m., and at 6 Odd Fellows and Rebekahs enjoyed a joint banquet at the Auxier hotel. Mountain music was furnished by the Happy Hollow Hot-Shots. Conferring of Rebekah degree on several candidates took place at Odd Fellows' hall at 8 p. m.

Following the Assembly officers' breakfast at the Valley Inn at 7:30 o'clock Wednesday morning, business sessions of both Odd Fellows and Rebekahs were held.

GREETES THE CHILDREN

Most impressive thing we saw during the Odd Fellows' meeting was gray-haired, old Wm. Davies, grand secretary, greeting three little girls whom he remembered as his former "children" at the Odd Fellows' Home.

"BY ANY OTHER NAME . . ."

Speakin' of thin's sounding the same but with different meanings, sometimes things sound entirely different while meaning the same. In other words, a frankfurter by any other name would still be bologna.

Tother Sunday—was in Cincinnati spending the morning in a feeble attempt to keep from underneath the pigeons flying over Fountain Square; the afternoon, out at Crosley Field, for the final Red-Pirate game of the season.

After the fracas, and also after rolling out the barrel, he dropped into a restaurant, looked over the menu, and finally decided on the lowly hot dog. "A Coney Island?" the prop quizzically informed him. "Naw," insisted our hero, "I'll take a hot dog."

Senator Logan Dies

M. Robsion, Republican, for U. S. Senator in 1931 and was re-elected in 1937 after a bitter primary fight in which Governor Chandler's administration supported J. C. W. Beckham.

The "sage of Capitol Hill" was the way Washington newspapermen often referred to Senator Logan.

Logan's ready wit, his knowledge of current events and his readiness to express his opinion on almost any subject on which he was informed, coupled with his independence of thought, made him one of the most quoted Senators of the Roosevelt administration. Informal, courteous and friendly, he kept his office open at all hours and was one of the few Senators to keep "office hours" even during recesses of Congress.

Although he never hesitated to express a difference of opinion on New Deal matters, Logan was one of the most ardent supporters of President Roosevelt's program and championed the bill introduced in 1933 to enlarge the supreme court.

A special railway car left Washington Wednesday night and brought the body to a resting place near his Kentucky birthplace. Congress recessed for the funeral and a delegation of nine Senators and nine Representatives accompanied the body to Bowling Green, where funeral rites were conducted Thursday afternoon in the Baptist Church, where he taught a Sunday School class for many years. Burial will be in the family cemetery near Brownsville on the farm where he was born. The I. O. O. F., of which he served as international head in 1929, will officiate at the burial, and the state I. He is survived by his wife, three sons and a daughter.

In Washington and Frankfort little doubt exists that Governor A. B. Chandler will succeed Senator Logan as Kentucky's Junior Senator. Governor Chandler and administration officials conferred Tuesday at the executive mansion in Frankfort, but the Governor declined to comment on the situation until after the funeral. The plan held likeliest would be for Chandler to resign, allowing Lieutenant-Governor Keen Johnson, who is the nominee for Governor at the November election, to succeed him as Governor immediately. Johnson then would appoint Chandler to serve in the Senate until the general election in 1940. The appointee can serve only until a new Senator is elected in November, 1940. At that time Senator Logan's successor must be elected at the polls to serve the remainder of his term, expiring in 1942.
