

PCC Board Would Add 10-a Tract Early Action Seen Toward Acquisition, Dr. Campbell Says

The University of Kentucky and the advisory board of Prestonsburg Community College are ready for final negotiations with the Porter estate heirs for an additional 10 acres of land for an expanded college campus here, it was said last week following a meeting of the board.

The university has employed legal counsel for the negotiations and the handling of the entire transaction, Dr. Henry A. Campbell, Jr., director of the college here, said.

The tract being sought lies between the present campus and the old lane connecting new US 23 with the old highway. One acre donated by the Porter estate to the Episcopal Church will be excluded.

The additional acreage is needed, it was said, for future building and to afford assurance of room for expansion as growth of the college demands.

The advisory board meeting last Thursday at the Plantation Motel was attended by two officials of the UK community college system—Dr. Stanley Wall, vice-president, and Edward Carter, business officer. Dr. Wall traced the development of the system and spoke of plans for its future development.

Others attending the meeting were Dr. Campbell, Marvin Music, Robert Conley, Curtis Clark, John A. Herald, Robert R. Allen, G. A. Cowan, Bob Branham and Dr. Kenneth Blick.

Slone Arrested As Embezzler

Jimmy Ray Slone, who was arrested in this county Sunday by State Troopers Ray and VanHoose, is being held here for Michigan authorities to answer to a charge of embezzlement. Slone is accused of embezzling from the Hudson Oil Co., White Lake Township, Mich., $2,406.10.

The following day, Troopers Rose and Williamson booked Donald Ray Bentley and Danny N. Whitt on the charge of possessing dangerous drugs. It was said they had marijuana in their possession.

Others booked at the county jail, offenses alleged against each and names of arresting officers follow:

Sonny Rister, contributing to juvenile delinquency, by Deputy Sheriff Lawrence Conley; James Lomb, drunk driving, by State Trooper Leeman Bevins; Winfield Moore, Jr., drunk driving, by State Troopers Cantrell and Tucker; Russell Conn, drunk driving, by State Trooper Tucker; Lester White, drunk driving, by Troopers Cantrell and Bevins; Randall Evans, drunk driving, by Trooper Tucker; Woodrow Whitaker, drunk driving and no operator's license, by Trooper Tucker.

Vernon Horn, who was arrested Feb. 5 by Troopers Rose and Tabor, was given trial last Thursday in quarterly court, was fined $38, sentenced to jail 30 days and placed under $500 peace bond upon his conviction on a charge of possessing alcoholic beverages for the purpose of sale. At the time of his arrest he also was booked on a selling charge.

Preston To Serve 12 Months in Jail When Recaptured

Dicky Preston, Magoffin county man who was arrested in the purse-snatching at the rummage sale held here recently by women of the First United Methodist Church, was given trial in absentia last Thursday by Police Judge Earl Blackburn and was given a 12-month jail term.

Preston had not been arrested, Monday. His cousin, Sammy Preston, entered a plea of guilty to the charge of being an accessory after the fact and was fined $50, plus costs.

Water to Roof At Archer Park

Middle Creek waters, held back by the Big Sandy, flooded Archer Park Saturday, leaving only the roof of the Floyd Fair Board building above water.

This Town . . . That World

WELL, WHAT DO YOU KNOW?

This may not be a good start for the column, but I have been jolted with a reminder of how often I pass the time o'day with others in the most asinine way possible. I may have pretty good company in so doing, too. I refer to all those automatic platitudes, such as "Cold, isn't it?", "Nice day," "How're ya doin'," and so, ad absurdum.

The reminder came when Bob Hughes was greeted by an acquaintance with, "Whatta ya know?" and Bob solemnly answered, "I know that Perry Mason won another case last night."

THE MYSTERY SOLVED

A fish biologist, according to the public prints, may have solved something of a mystery. He solemnly assures one and all that fish have their sex lives and that this muddies the water at times. Suggests, he does, that a bass who (which) has got the heave-ho from the girl-friend may have a fit of the sulks and refuse a bite for hours, even days.

This, it strikes me, may explain some of my troubles with these critters. It may just be that I am going fishing when the fish are heaving sighs for lost loves or are so engaged in looking for the nearest piscatorial Dear Abby that they want nothing to do with my line, not to mention hook and sinker.

'Drowned' Abbott Creek Resident Believed Recovering at Hospital

The fact that Albert Spradlin, 60-year-old Abbott Creek man, is alive and making a fight for his life at a Lexington hospital this week was described by those who saw him removed from a wrecked truck last Saturday morning as "almost a return from the dead."

Spradlin, who is plant manager for the Big Sandy Rural Electric Corp., lay in a wrecked truck, approximately two miles from Paintsville, his head submerged in two feet of water for several minutes, and when he was finally pulled from the vehicle he apparently was not breathing, his stomach distended by water and his face turned to a bluish tint.

But mouth-to-mouth resuscitation was administered by Ray Holbrook and Joe Hackworth, passersby who arrived in time

50-Cent Traffic Fines Develop Into Habeas Corpus Action

What began several months ago as two 50-cent tickets for overtime parking wound up Tuesday afternoon in a habeas corpus proceeding to free a well-known Prestonsburg man from jail.

Frank H. Layne was arrested Tuesday on capiases issued by Police Judge Earl Blackburn. No bond was allowed. Layne says he will not pay the two fines on the tickets, which now amount to $17 each.

He claims he has the stubs of the two traffic tickets and that he had these witnessed by reputable persons who stood by and watched him place envelopes containing the two 50-cent fines in the fine box.

"It's a matter of principle," Layne said. "I have been arrested on a capias without notice of trial. I intend to fight this thing as long as it is necessary, and I also plan to file suit in U. S. District Court against Judge Blackburn."

Mother, New Baby Isolated by Flood

One of six calls for help answered by the Floyd County Emergency and Rescue Squad during flood conditions in this vicinity was to Katy Friend where a woman was in childbirth. Members of the squad said they arrived at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Robinson about 20 minutes after the baby, a boy, had been born. Squad members carried Mrs. Robinson and baby approximately 1000 yards to a vehicle which transported them to the Paintsville Hospital. Both are doing well.

Dams Hold Back Water As Flood Threatens Area

Although the danger of flooding was past, at least temporarily, for the Big Sandy River valley, Dewey, Fishtrap and Pound reservoirs continued Monday to hold back a tremendous volume of water as the U. S. Corps of Engineers pondered the effects of heavy rainfall on the Ohio River.

As of Monday morning, the level of Dewey Lake was still being held at 26.25 feet above winter pool. This was approximately 15 feet below the water stage at the lake in the 1957 flood.

Dean Murray, reservoir manager, said he expected a slow discharge of the water to begin, sometime Monday.

Rainfall at Dewey Dam last week-end measured 3.77 inches, Murray said. The river crested here at 11 a.m. Saturday at 35.06 feet. Except at Jenny Wiley State Park, where May Lodge was isolated, the most spectacular flooding was at Archer Park and vicinity where Middle Creek waters, held back by the river, had householders in lowlying areas anxious.

Twenty or More Others from Co. Escape Disaster

The tragedy of West Virginia came near to Floyd county last Saturday when the news came that an unknown number of lives had been lost after a dam at a coal operation in the headwaters of Buffalo Creek in Logan county had burst.

Perhaps 20 of the residents of towns and villages in the path of the avalanche of water moved there from the Mare Creek section of this county, and the hours following the first reports from the stricken area were filled with gnawing anxiety for their relatives and friends who still live in this county.

Among the known dead—60 bodies had been recovered by Monday morning—were Martha, the wife of David Gunnels, former Mare Creek man, and their two children. For a time 14 members of the families of Okie, Elvis and Leonard Gunnels—all former Floyd countians—were believed lost, but they later were found on a mountainside.

Elvis Gunnell was found, crouching with others over a hillside fire, beset by the rain and the cold. His estranged wife, the former Bobbie Walker, was found in a school which had been converted into a hospital. Her condition was poor but she is expected to recover.

The concern of Henry P. Scaif, of Mare Creek, for the safety of his brother, Wallace, a teacher at Man, W. Va., high school, was so great that he sent two of his sons into the devastated area. They found Mr. Scaif and his wife at their home in the village of Riley, W. Va., one of several in the narrow Buffalo Creek valley. Their home and that of their neighbor, wheelchair-ridden Mrs. Berry White, a widow and also a former Floyd countian, were the only buildings standing in Riley after the torrent had subsided.

Mr. Scaif had received a warning of the danger from a telephone caller. He said that when he stepped outside he saw houses crumbling as if built of matchsticks. He carried his helpless neighbor outside, and

Mud Creek Fire Believed Arson; U.S. Probe Seen

John Rosenburg, head of the Appalachian Research and Defense Fund (ARDF) office here, said Monday that state police and the state fire marshal's office have participated in the investigation of the blaze which early last Friday heavily damaged a building maintained by ARDF at Grethel, on Mud Creek.

He confirmed the report that he had called on the Justice Department for an investigation and said he later was told two men were questioned during the week-end. He did not know, however, if the Justice Department is yet involved in the probe.

A representative of the state fire marshal's office agreed Monday with state police investigators that the fire was a case of arson. A spokesman at State Police Post 9, Pikeville, described the fire as "set by gasoline."

School To Be Named Allen Central High

The consolidated school under construction at Eastern will be known as the Allen Central high school, its athletic teams will be called the Rebels, and the school colors will be gray and blue.

The school colors and the name of the athletic teams were decided Tuesday morning by representatives of the schools which will be merged into the Eastern school.

David Hensley, who will be the school principal, presided at the meeting of student-representatives with County Supt. Charles Clark and members of his staff.

Mr. Clark announced Tuesday that he expects a contract to be awarded in April on construction of Phase 2 at the school. This will be a gymnasium-auditorium-music complex.

The students represented the eight grade, the freshmen, sophomore and junior classes at Wayland, Garrett, Maytown and Martin and the eighth grade at the Allen and Lackey elementary schools.

The advisability of adopting a dress code at the new school was discussed at length, but no decision was reached.

Student-representatives at the meeting were:

Lodge Cut Off By Rising Lake

Rising water at Dewey Lake Saturday isolated May Lodge as the road leading to it was cut. Access to the lodge was made afoot, up and around the hill, or by amphibious "duck."

'It's Our Turn To Help . . .'

Floyd Chapter, American Red Cross, this week voiced an appeal for Floyd county help for West Virginia in its flood tragedy.

Miss Ella Noel White, who for 40 years has served the Red Cross chapter as executive secretary, said: "Beginning in 1881, the American Red Cross has given thousands of Floyd countians aid during and after disasters. Much of this money was donated by West Virginians. Due to the flooding which hit West Virginia and killed, maimed and left homeless hundreds, they are in need, and it's our turn to help them."

Checks should be mailed to Floyd County Chapter, American Red Cross, P. O. Box 583, Prestonsburg, Ky. 41653.

The Red Cross has been asked to help stricken West Virginians to the extent of $1,500,000.

Air Pollution Commission Asks $1000-a-Day Fine for Harlan

In an unprecedented move, the Kentucky Air Pollution Control Commission (KAPCC) recently recommended the maximum civil penalty of $1000 a day be levied against the city of Harlan and instructed the Attorney General's Office and KAPCC legal staff to seek action to shut down the Harlan incinerator as soon as possible.

according to Pickard, the new mayor began using it again on February 4. Pickard said Harlan has a landfill which could be used. Pickard alleged that use of the incinerator was a deliberate move not to use the landfill and to use an incinerator closed by the previous mayor.

The KAPCC recommended the maximum penalty be invoked for each day the incinerator was operated since February 4. The KAPCC's action involves Harlan's use of an unapproved incinerator built in the 1930's. Ralph C. Pickard, executive secretary of the KAPCC, called for the swift action because of what he termed the hazardous and flagrant nature of the violation.

David Gravely, director of field investigations for the KAPCC, said the incinerator was hazardous to anyone in the area. A school is located near the incinerator. The incinerator was shut down in 1969 by the previous mayor of Harlan but,

Levied 6 Shillings A Wheel And Floyd Collected No Taxes

West Liberty, Ky.—The first Kentucky General Assembly met in 1792 in a log structure on West Main Street in Lexington. During the 14-day session the commonwealth's first revenue laws set a license fee of three pounds to operate a tavern and 10 pounds for a permit to operate billiard tables.

But, oh, the furor that must have hovered over Main Street when coaches and chariots were taxed at six shillings a wheel.

In comparison with decisions confronting today's legislators, the weighing of issues in that young period of the Commonwealth might seem fundamental but be assured there were constituents taking note of every vote.

The years passed and the problems that must be voted on increased. Some six months after the first session another was held and members favored Frankfort as a permanent capital.

By 1812 it had become necessary to authorize inhabitants of Bowling Green to elect town trustees, to authorize certain services of the militia—such as a "waggon" or pack-horse driver—to be considered as a tour of duty, and authorize advertisements in The Louisville Correspondent and The Western Eagle at Hopkinsville.

For those who might think the life of a legislator is easy, consider some of the work facing these voices of the people 20 years after Kentucky became a state.

Caledonia Academy was established in Caldwell county. Named as trustees were John M. Walker, William Mitchuson, Fidelio Sharp, Josiah Whitnell, William Birdsong, Richard Hays and Samuel Smith.

Before an election precinct could be established in any county or a precinct discontinued, notice had to be posted at the courthouse or wherever county court was being held at least two counts in advance.

David C. Irvine was entitled to two entries of 400 acres each "in the now county of Bourbon" as heir to his father Christopher Irvine who was killed by the Indians in General Logan's campaign of 1786.

One of the acts passed during that session was to amend the law authorizing appropriation of lands acquired by the Treaty of Tellico and decreed that any installment unpaid when due would cause such land to revert to the commonwealth.

Approved Jan. 4, 1813, was an act authorizing James Kirkpatrick to erect buildings on his ground on the public square in Harrodsburg, "agreeable to terms of the original contract, at the time of sale to Lapsly and Trapnall."

Powers were vested in commissioners to superintend a lottery, three years hence, for improvement of navigation of the Kentucky River. Commissioners were John W. Hunt, Lewis Sanders, Abner Legrand, Samuel Maccoun and James Morrison.

In Louisville owners of city lots on Main Street between cross street number three and cross street number six were required to pave in front of their lots as far as the middle of said street.

The following counties were allowed additional justices of the peace: Pulaski one, Casey one, Christian two, Bath two, Greenup two, Clay one, Wayne two, Hopkins one, Logan two, Mason one, Adair one, Union two, Henderson one and Gallatin one.

Trustees were named at newly established Gallatin Academy at Port William and it was enacted that a contract be made with persons to dig a well on the public square in Port William and either install a pump or affix a bucket and chain.

The act of 1806 respecting the establishment of ferries across the Ohio River was amended allowing penalties for violators. Guy Phelps, John M'Dowell, Joseph Hough, Joshua Norvell and James-Burk were appointed commissioners to build by subscription or with private funds a bridge across Floyd's Fork of Salt River.

The agent of the Penitentiary House was authorized to sell at public auction all the Windsor chairs, hoes, nails and cooper's ware that had been on hand for more than two years.

One act revived and amended the law establishing a turnpike on the road leading from Madison and Lincoln counties to the Goose Creek Salt Works.

The General Assembly decided that a dam built by Martin Hawkins across the eastern branch of the Kentucky River at Fishtrap Island was injurious to navigation of the river and ordered Hawkins to remove the dam within nine months.

Washington and Maysville in Mason county were allowed to impose a tax on real property with which to procure fire engines, and since Floyd County had not collected revenue tax in 1807, 1809 and 1811, an act was passed to provide for this collection within nine months.

Certain acts pertained to upkeep of the Turnpike and Wilderness Road and provided penalties for anyone who obstructed said roads or tore down rates of toll "required by law to be kept up at the Turnpike gate."

The book from which this information was gleaned was the property of the late Mrs. Clayton Freeman Young Wells, a native of Woodford county who worked in Frankfort many years. It was donated by her to an antiques auction sponsored by the Morgan county committee to raise funds for the Crippled Children's fund drive in the 1950's.)

The Greatest Drug Problem

The suggestion that the sale of marijuana be legalized brings from the great majority of Americans, and we are among them, strong protest. We do not believe the law should sanction any such business. But while most of us are opposed to this, perhaps the mildest of narcotics, many contend that the sale of intoxicating liquors should be made legal.

This, despite the fact that a recent U. S. government report called alcohol abuse the nation's greatest drug problem and blamed it for warping the lives of nine million lives and costing upwards of $15 billion a year.

The report, one of three especially compiled for the Congress, also pointed out that 28,000 deaths occur annually, directly or indirectly, from drinking drivers, and that alcohol results in almost half of the arrests made in the nation. Abusers of alcohol (to continue the report) shorten their lives by 10 to 12 years; their lost work time costs about $10 billion, and another $5 billion cost is laid to health, welfare and property damage costs caused by them.

And yet alcohol is recommended to old and young alike in the most colorful terms. The argument persists that its sale should be legalized in order to raise more tax monies. One of the nation's masterpieces of fiction is that drinking is for "gentlemen of distinction."

Sure, it's true that people will drink anyhow. But it isn't true that for this reason the law should add its blessing. It may be oversimplifying the issue, but people are going to steal and rob, even smoke marijuana, anyhow. The same principle applies.

Presidential Primary Bill Moves Toward Vote in House

A bill that would make Kentucky the nation's 23rd state with a presidential primary election was favorably approved by the house Elections and Constitutional Amendments Committee.

The measure now goes to the full House for passage.

It is a committee substitute for a measure originally introduced by Rep. Carl Nett, D-Louisville. The revision contains an emergency clause that would make it become law upon signature by the governor.

Thus, if passed, it would allow the state's first presidential primary to be held next May 23.

Every candidate on the ballot of two or more presidential primaries before Kentucky's and who won at least 5 per cent of the vote in those primaries, would automatically be placed on the Kentucky ballot.

The bill would have a "winner-take-all" feature insuring the victor would get all the delegate votes from Kentucky for at least three ballots at the national convention.

The winning candidate in Kentucky would be required to name his own slate of delegates to the national convention.

Teachers' Bargaining Bill Approved for Vote by Senate

Frankfort, Ky.—After consideration by two separate committees, an already amended bill guaranteeing school-teachers the right to bargain collectively with local school boards was revised again last Thursday and sent back to the Senate.

The action followed another closed meeting of the Senate Committee on Business Organizations and Professions, to which the controversial Senate Bill 148 was sent earlier by the Senate after the bill had gained a favorable report from the Senate's Education Committee.

In approving a committee substitute of this measure, the committee dismissed SB 276, a more restrictive professional negotiations (PN) bill backed by the Kentucky School Boards Association.

The business organizations committee also met Feb. 22 in closed session to try to reach some accord on the two bills. After Thursday's meeting, Sen. B. E. Billings, D-Stanton, the chairman, said the vote on SB 148 was 6 to 1, with only Sen. Gene Huff, R-London, opposed.

Billings also predicted that the new bill, whose title was changed from one of professional negotiations to "An Act relating to collective bargaining, arbitration and grievance procedures," would pass both houses of the legislature and be signed into law by Gov. Wendell H. Ford.

The bill, which would become effective next Jan. 1, guarantees recognized teacher associations the right to bargain collectively with school boards concerning working conditions, salaries, fringe benefits and personnel transfer policies. Also guaranteed, on the request of either the teacher association or board, would be "good-faith discussions" on curriculum, in-service training and all other personnel policies.

While the bill also would set up fact-finding and mediation procedures in case of deadlocks, final decisions on negotiable matters would rest with the school boards. The bill does not include binding arbitration, strongly opposed by the school boards, but it does require a grievance procedure to settle disputes.

In case of any impasse between the teachers' group and school board, the two groups would agree on a mediator, who would try to resolve the dispute. If no mediator can be agreed on, one would be named by the state superintendent of public instruction. This person would have 15 days in which to seek an agreement.

In no agreement is then reached, the teachers' group and the school board would each name one person to serve on a fact-finding committee, with a third person as committee chairman, selected jointly. In case of disagreement, the local circuit judge would name the chairman.

Open-Meeting Bill Wins Vote By Committee of Lower House

Frankfort, Ky.—The House State Government Committee voted 9-1 last week to recommend House approval of a bill that would require most meetings of city, county and state boards and committees to be open to the public.

The bill, House Bill 351, exempts certain meetings, such as deliberations of the state parole board and meetings involving purchases of real property, hiring and firing of personnel and lawsuits initiated against or by the body concerned.

The only opposition vote was cast by House Majority Leader John Swinford, who contended that the bill does not provide sufficient protection for individuals who might be the subject of discussion by affected boards.

Swinford, a Cynthia Democrat, told the committee that "damage can be done to persons involved and to their families" by a public airing of charges against them discussed by an official board.

Rep. Peter D. Conn, D-Louisville, one of the bill's sponsors, asserted that the bill does provide protection for such individuals, but that he would support an amendment to make the issue clear.

Committee approval for the bill came after passage of an amendment that exempts "meetings between governing bodies and industrial prospects."

The bill provides the "timely" public notice of affected meetings must be given and that no formal action taken by a body that does not comply with the rules of the bill would be valid.

It further requires prompt publication of the minutes of governmental meetings and provides for a penalty of up to a $500 fine or six months' imprisonment for any member of an affected body who attends a meeting at which the provisions of the bill are violated.

The bill covers standing committees of the General Assembly but exempts other committees or commissions of that body. It also exempts closed meetings held in compliance with constitutional and federal requirements.

Conn said the bill represents a combination of two bills drawn up earlier by himself and Rep. Terry W. McBrayer, D-Greenville. He said they are based on acts currently in force in Illinois and Florida.

Engagement Announced

Nine More Bills Signed By Gov. Ford

Gov. Wendell H. Ford signed into law nine more bills passed by the 1972 General Assembly including the landmark consumer fraud bill which he supported.

The measure, which becomes effective in mid-June, outlaws "false, deceptive and misleading" sales practices and give the attorney general enforcement powers.

Other measures signed would:

Reclassify Flemingsburg as a fourth-class city.

Prohibit General Assembly members from serving on the boards of trustees or regents of any state-supported college or university.

Reclassify Wilmore as a fourth-class city.

Pay a state death benefit to widows and children of police officers killed in the line of duty.

Teacher's Article Published in Finland

Miss Louise Rarick has had an article accepted for publication by the journal Neophilologische Mitteilungen in Helsinki, Finland. The article, entitled "Ten-Syllable Lines," shows that the use of the ten-syllable line in English poetry is much older than has previously been thought.

Miss Rarick, who holds degrees from Indiana University and Brandeis University, has previously published two poems and a brief note on ancient Greek philosophy. She has been a member of the faculty of Prestonsburg Community College since the fall of 1969. She is presently on a leave of absence, and is staying with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Keith Rarick, of Route 4 Nashville, Ind., while doing further work at the University of Indiana.

WIND, Howard-Edited Magazine, Receives Grant To Continue Work

WIND, Kentucky's newest literary periodical, published four times a year at RFD 1, Pikeville, and edited by Quentin R. Howard, has been notified by Gail Kong, executive director of the Coordinating Council of Literary Magazines, New York, that it has received a substantial financial grant for the year 1972.

It is the only literary magazine in Kentucky ever to receive this grant.

Coordinating Council of Literary Magazines, is a non-profit organization, incorporated in the District of Columbia. It is supported by grants from the National Endowment for the Arts in Washington, D. C., a federal agency created by Act of Congress in 1965; the New York State Council on the Arts, and private funds. CCLM's purpose is to aid non-commercial literary magazines and, through them, the independent writers of America.

During Volume One year Howard published 23 beginning or little-known writers in all parts of the country in WIND. Along with the beginners he published well-known writers.

During a volume year WIND carries an average of nine Kentucky authors in each issue, and has included Charles Semones, Harrodsburg; Wade Hall, Ursline-Bellarmino College; Bruce B. Brown, Bastian College; Jesse Stuart, Lillie D. Chaffin, Bill Katterjohn; Joy Bale, editor of Approaches; Gary Zeitz, editor of handsel; Ron Seitz, Midred S. Boggs, and many others.

Floyd Jaycees Are Organized;

The Floyd County Area Jaycees held their organizational meeting February 7, with 22 members in attendance and the following roster of officers elected to serve until June 30, 1973:

Jack Wicker, president; Gary Lynn Goble, internal vice-president; Lucien Lafferty, Jr., external vice-president; Jim Schroder, secretary; Thomas Hereford, III, treasurer.

The chapter's name was chosen, Mr. Wicker explained, to encompass the entire Floyd county area, including upper Johnson and Magoffin counties, and present membership includes Jaycees from Maytown, Martin, Betsy Layne, Prestonsburg, Cliff and Auxier.

"Our chapter", Wicker said, "is open to all young men interested in public service, between the ages of 21 and 35, and plans are currently under way to lower the age group to 18 on a national level."

Any young man interested in the organization may contact Jack Wicker at 886-2324.

Projects currently under way include a depository for used clothing (and other items) for distribution to the needy; a summer "SAY YES" (Youth Employment Service) for students 16 and under, and organizational assistance in the establishing of volunteer fire departments for outlying communities in Floyd county.

Nature Trails

By Rufus M. Reed

Nature's Songs of Praise

In the very last verse of Psalms David wrote: "Let everything that hath breath praise the Lord."

This would include all life on earth, animals, insects, birds as well as man. In a previous chapter, David admonished both the animate and inanimate things to sing the praises of the Creator: "The mountains and all hills, the fruit trees, the cedars, the beasts and all cattle, the creeping things and flying fowl."

It seems that when men, the acme of God's creation, fail to praise their Divine Creator, there are many creatures of nature with sublime songs that praise His Holy Name. Many animals have songs that praise their Creator; there are birds with special songs far above any that man might sing, and these seem to have special gifts of music. There are many birds that sing songs which human beings cannot hear at all, no matter how close they may be to the singer. Some songs of birds are too high-pitched, on a too-fast vibration, for man's ears to hear. Some animals are more psychic than man and perhaps they can see deeper into the spiritual realm than humans can. Take the account of Balaam and his ass, as told in the Book of Numbers. The ass could see the angel with the sword standing in the way, because he could see deeper into the psychic realm. Balaam couldn't see why the ass turned aside, and beat him cruelly with his staff.

Christ Himself spoke of the inanimate things of the earth praising God, in case of man's neglect of this duty. When making his triumphal entry into Jerusalem, riding on the colt, the people along the way began to shout loudly and sing the praises of God; the noise was too much for the fault-finding Pharisees, who asked Christ to silence his noisy disciples. His reply is one of the most famous verses of the New Testament: "If these (his disciples) should hold their peace, the stones would immediately cry out."

Insofar as man knows, the inanimate things of nature sing praises to God; it has been reported that the planet earth hums at all times, like a plucked banjo string. The stars sing and the heavens declare the glory of God. Our knowledge of these cosmic matters is so small, we scarcely know anything about what lies beyond the ken of our mortal senses.

Let us take the hermit thrush, the most sublime singer that was ever known on this earth. This is a bird that refuses to sing for man or any human audience. It is so shy and retiring, if it should become aware of any human listening it will immediately fly away and hide in some dense undergrowth. Perhaps not one person out of ten thousand has ever heard the heavenly music of the hermit thrush. Even the great ornithologists, Alexander Wilson and John J. Audubon, were never privileged to hear this bird sing and could not describe its song. It is said by those privileged few who have heard the hermit thrush's song that "this is a bird that sings to God alone." It sings away out in the wild, remote regions of its range and yet its song is no doubt the most sublime, the most beautiful of any heard in nature. It has been called "the American nightingale," but its song is rated in all its purity and sweetness of tone as being far superior to that of this famous English bird.

John Burroughs was one of the few great naturalists who had the rare honor of hearing the song of the hermit thrush, and he called it "the most serene religious beauty" ever heard in the great world of nature. Its song cannot be described; it cannot be recorded by any musical instrument. It has some of the musical quality of the flute, the piccolo, the violin, and yet it is superior to the tone and musical quality of all of these instruments. It is at once a mystery and a miracle; its song, heard on a quiet evening in the solitude of deep woods, is equal to a choir of heavenly singers filling the earth with the finest melodies known to man. It is said that the song starts out with a soft, mellow, drawn-out introduction, and from this the bird breaks out with music that goes up and down the scale and finally goes higher than any other bird's note ever heard. Once John Burroughs heard this thrush singing late in the evening, just as the moon was coming over the horizon, filling the earth with a soft mellow light. Of the song, Mr. Burroughs said: "The hermit thrush commenced his song a few rods away from me; listening to this hymn on the lone mountain, with the full moon just rounded over the horizon, it seemed the pomp and pride of our civilization seemed trivial and cheap by comparison."

He says the whole mountain seemed to be filled with the glory and beauty of the Divine Creator.

How does one account for a bird with such a rare musical genius—one that is called "swamp angel," and "darling of the gods," and refuses to sing to a human audience? The hermit thrush sometimes comes to the Tri-State region to winter. I have seen it a few times. It is a bird of somewhat drab colors—a reddish tail, a russet-brown back, a white breast with irregular spots; I have watched it around the lawn and prayed to hear it sing just once. But, of course, it never sings while here in winter. Most gaudy birds like the Bohemian waxwings and cedar waxwings cannot sing one musical note; the hermit thrush makes up for its plain garb by singing "the purest natural melody of nature." It is a master of the sturred note and the change of pitch from a lower to a higher, or vice-versa.

It is my belief that the Creator of all life, who loves beauty and music, created a musical genius like the hermit thrush, which sings out in the wilds of nature—where only God can hear.

In Memoriam

In memory of Sallie Marsillett. Sadly missed by all her children.

Beautiful memories of a mother dear Who sacrificed in love and tears And now moved on to her eternal home On streets of gold to forever roam. Beautiful memories of the life she lived, The work and prayers she was willing to give,

The times she shared others' sorrows, Now she is happy in God's Big Tomorrow. Yes, beautiful are the memories of a mother dear, But many times sadly missed by her loved ones here.

But we know she cannot come back And we must keep following the happy tracks.

In God, we must put all our trust, For we know she can't come back to us, But we can go to her and be happy and free

As the years roll by, for all eternity. We miss you, Mother, more than we can ever tell,

But you are perfectly safe with God, For He does all things well. We know it won't be forever that you will be away,

For so very soon there's a Homecoming Day. It.

TIDBITS OF KENTUCKY FOLKLORE By GORDON WILSON, Ph.D.

Sir Roger de Coverley, in one of my favorite sketches in all literature, said that his method of dressing, which had not changed since he was jilted by the widow, had been in and out of style twelve times. If one could live a few hundred years, he might find that styles in things to eat play just such pranks. Years ago it was supposed to be plebeian to eat greens, or wild sallet: to mention such a dish in polite society was thought to smack of ill breeding. The clock has gone round a few hours, and now greens, whether tame or wild, are just the thing. They contain vitamins, we are told, very necessary items in the daily food of any well-regulated home. The most fashionable private residences and the ultra-fashionable restaurants exhale an odor of cooking greens. My taste always plebeian so far as food is concerned, rejoices now at the exaltation of greens and the recrudescence—to use a big word—of my old friend potlicker.

But even in the days when turnip greens or mustard or other greens were under the ban, there was another near relative that suffered more from supercilious judges of good things to eat. I refer to wild greens or sallet. Somehow the springs seem truncated or otherwise choppy now, for I fail to see or hear of wild greens. It was otherwise in the consulship of Grover Cleveland, for my Scotch-Irish father celebrated the passing of our winter by a feast of wild greens. No ancient Druid was more punctilious in his celebration of the return of winter than was my father in his annual spring festival. Bucket and knife in hand, I wandered along protecting fence-rows and cut the juicy young plants, a veritable herbarium. Poke and narrowleaved dock formed the basis of this collection. Local tradition said that wide-leaved dock was poisonous, but I delighted in breaking local traditions, even in a matter quite so settled as wild sallet. After a mess of wild greens, chiefly of the wide-leaved dock, no fatal times resulted; thereafter, much to my delight, for the wide-leaved species was far more plentiful than the other kinds, the taboo on this plant was lifted. Lamb's quarter, all too plentiful in gardens and around piles of manure, was another plant allowed, but the directions handed down by my parents said that the proportions of this plant to the mass must be small. Then there was speckled jack, whatever that is, and wild lettuce, and even young, tender blackberry briars. Some others I know there were, but I have forgotten them; anyway, we eked out what I had cut with mustard from the tobacco plantbeds and even radish tops, if such were to be had.

Properly cooked, with hog's jowl or side bacon, this collection of wild plants furnished a dish worthy to be included in the list of Olympian foods. It is said on good authority that my great-grandfather once remarked that if the King of England should come as a visitor and find wild greens, cornbread, and hog's jowl the only things served for supper, he could eat these things or go hungry. I have often wondered what the King would have done or said on this embarrassing occasion, especially since this same ruler was the redoubtable George III. My liking for wild greens, then, is, like so many other things, hereditary. And after years of respectful silence in the presence of those who set the style in eating I can now speak out and praise the merits of greens in general and wild greens in particular.

LETTERS To the Editor

More and more young women from Prestonsburg come to Louisville every year to seek employment, to further their education and training, or to visit. Many need secure, comfortable and reasonable living quarters.

The Louisville YWCA offers such accommodations downtown at 604 S. Third, near all major transportation lines and within a few steps of shops, restaurants, business schools and the Jefferson Community College.

Any young woman over 17 years of age needing housing in the Jefferson County area may contact the YWCA for information about our rates which are modest and attractive to those on a budget. In addition, our residence accommodations offer security, YWCA programs and the personal contacts so welcome to those away from home for the first time.

For many years, I have wanted to tell you how much I enjoy your newspaper. But your personal column is my greatest interest. I love to read it.

Needless to say, I am a native Floyd countian, having moved to Lima at the age of 12. My family and I drove through Prestonsburg last Saturday and stayed overnight in a Garrett motel. Such an outstanding difference in people is unbelievable! Kentuckians are so outgoing and friendly. The neighbors, that I have lived nearby for 19 years are practically strangers. These people shun your friendship, do not visit one another, and vanish if you should walk past their home.

My family wanted to stay in Kentucky forever. Being God's will, and with some effort of our own, we will be residents of your state by the time you are in "full swing of summer fishing."

Whatsoever Things

By DONALD E. WILDMON

Life can be mighty frustrating at times. There are frustrations at home such as never enough time, hard to fix a meal which each member of the family likes, parents don't understand teenagers and teenagers are inconsiderate to parents.

Too, there are financial frustrations. Too often it seems like there is too much month left at the end of the money. And job frustrations. Employee is lazy, boss is too demanding, or the job is too confining.

Life is full of frustrations. It doesn't take much ink to get you to agree to that. But, if we are to remain sane in this world, we must learn how to handle frustrations. We must be able to face frustrations without becoming frustrated.

Let us say that we cannot handle frustrations by becoming like those people and situations which cause frustrations. If we do, we will add to the problem rather than help in the solution.

It helps tremendously if we can learn to accept frustration as a normal part of living. Once we do this, then we are in a position to learn from our frustrations, get something from them, and make them pay us their dividends.

Sometimes there are simple solutions to our frustrations. If we are short on time, perhaps we are trying to do too much. If there isn't enough money for all our wants, perhaps we need to trim our wants a little and get them in line with our money. If we are habitually late, maybe we need to begin a little earlier. God has some simple answers for us if we will but pay attention to them.

When frustrations come, cool down and think things over. A period where you can just be alone for a few minutes and talk it over with God helps. Remember, also, that not everything is wrong. Most things are still right. Think on the things which are still right. Remember that God is still the same God, still present willing and wanting to help.

We should not merely accept frustrations. No, we should attack them and put them on the defensive. We must not let them control us, we must always be in control of them. By doing this we keep from letting our frustrations frustrate us.

Frustrations can be frustrated. We are told that God is able "to do exceeding abundantly above all that we ask or think." Take Him up on that and He will help you frustrate even the most frustrating frustrations.

In the Old Testament book, Hosea, we read: "I will make the dale of trouble into hope! God is saying that He can actually frustrate frustrations.

Let us not give up when faced with frustrations. Let us do with them what it was intended that we do with them—make them constructive, useful situations. Keep in mind that we can, with the help of God, turn trouble into hope and frustrations into fruit.

The state Division of Forestry announced it will place seven million tree seedlings, both pine and hardwood, on sale late in February for reforestation of idle acres in Kentucky. Officials say about one million idle and eroding acres should be planted to trees.

In an effort to illustrate the legislative process to the average citizen, Kentucky Education Television is video taping all hearings, committee action and other legislative activity surrounding Governor Ford's proposed 1972-74 state budget. The tape will be edited into two programs, one for students and another for adult viewers.

Off-stricken Martin had its uneasy hours, but Beaver Creek caused little or no damage there. Neither of the Beaver Creeks was a problem Saturday, but the road at McDowell was cut by Left Beaver Creek last Thursday and school was interrupted.

Earth slides in several spots contributed to traffic problems, beginning with last Thursday's initial rainfall.

The river crested at Pikeville at 28.29 feet at 10 a.m., Thursday. The Paintsville crest was reached at 3 p.m. Saturday with 37.24 feet and at Louisa, the same afternoon, at 46.52 feet.

WHEELWRIGHT LODGE

Wheelwright Masonic Lodge No. 889 will have third-degree work March 4. The lodge will open at 6 p.m. The Van Lear degree team has been invited to do the degree work. All Master Masons are invited.

Child Patient

Tammy Nelson, 10-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Nelson, who is a patient at St. Joseph's Hospital in Lexington suffering third degree burns over 85 per cent of her body. Her condition is serious and skin grafts and other medical care is of prime importance to her recovery. School children here have raised approximately $300 for this purpose, and a committee, Friends of Tammy Nelson, has been organized here to solicit funds for her care.

The three of them watched from the mountainside the scene of horror before them.

The David Gunnell family lived in a mobile home at Robinette, a village which was described as "completely obliterated." One report said the husband, wife and their two young daughters were swept downstream a quarter of a mile where they jumped from the trailer onto a strip of dry land. Then, just when they thought they had reached safety, a wall of water swept Mrs. Gunnells and the two children away. Gunnells fell on a live wire and was severely burned on his chest and hand.

He later was reported in serious condition at the hospital at Man, W. Va.

Another report says the family was trapped inside the trailer. David Gunnells' father, Leonard, were among those found safe at or near Lundale.

A former Pike county woman Mrs. Goldie Marie Sipples, 37, was the first reported victim of the Logan flood disaster.

Miss Sipples, reportedly was drowned Saturday while trying to drive a pickup truck up a hollow at Lorado to escape the flood waters.

The bodies of 60 persons were counted Sunday after day-long recovery and rescue missions in a dozen Logan county coal mining communities devastated by the water.

More than 400 people were still missing Sunday night and the powerful torrent of water had left an estimated 4,000 residents homeless, Gov. Arch A. Moore Jr. said Sunday after touring the valley along Buffalo Creek from Lorado to Man.

"I believe we've got the majority of visible bodies," said State Police Cpl. Walter Garrett. "In the morning, we'll start bringing in the heavy equipment to begin working on the wreckage."

The dam had been built about 15 years ago across the mouth of a hollow by the Buffalo Mining Company. The materials came from a nearby coal cleaning plant. The impoundment of thick, black, silt-laden cleaning plant wash water formed a lake 1,000 feet wide and one and one-half to two miles long. The impoundment was described as 50 feet deep at the foot of the dam.

The U. S. Geological Survey estimated some 25 "earthen banks" at coal mines in Logan and Mingo counties alone serve as dams but "generally lack adequate spillways."

The survey also said another 75 banks mainly in Eastern Kentucky, Southwestern West Virginia and Virginia are inadequately protected.

Lorado, Lundale, Braehome, Robinette, Riley, Amberstale—these were among the villages and towns which suffered most.

Those who have been on the scene speak of the utter desolation, the debris, twisted rails, the pall of gloom that pervades landscape and survivors alike.

The rented building had been in use only a week, primarily as a center for community meetings and as an office for field staff members of the ARDF.

Mr. Rosenberg said the fire followed soon after the distribution last week of leaflets announcing that a health department nurse would be at the building Monday.

Nick Frasure, of Grethel, who serves the ARDF as field coordinator, said the fire was the second of a mysterious nature to destroy a building housing a federal program in that section of the county in the last three years. He said the Appalachian Volunteers' field office there was burned in 1969. Although arson was suspected, he said nobody was ever accused.

Mr. Rosenberg said the ARDF presumably will try to find new quarters in that section of the county. He indicated any attempt by him to ascribe a motive for the fire would be in the area of conjecture.

CHAFFINS-MARTIN

Miss Hazel Chaffins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Chaffins, of Wayland, and Mr. Darrell Martin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Allie James Martin, of Garrett, were married Tuesday, Feb. 22, at Clintwood, Virginia. Following the ceremony, the couple left on a wedding trip to Mansfield, Ohio.

It was back in what Watt Hale calls the Roarin' 30's when Lenna was still in the hardware business. He was driving in the vicinity of Allen when he saw an elderly citizen waving an educated thumb. Back then, you weren't afraid to take aboard even a stranger, and Lenna drew alongside, popped open the door and invited the man to help himself to a ride.

While they were bowling along toward Prestonsburg the passenger persisted in eyeing the driver. Finally, he asked, "Would your name be Moore?"

Lenna, the soul of truth, assured him he was not Moore. Moreover, he said, "You're the fifth man in the last month to mistake me for that fellow."

The old man lapsed into silence and they drove on some distance while Moore mulled over an idea or so, then reopened the conversation.

"You know," he said, "your mention of this fellow Moore seems to ring a bell with me. Would he be the one that works for Morell Hardware?"

"That's him," was the reply. Lenna then told the old fellow he wasn't sure that he liked being mistaken for this man Moore. "They tell me," he added, that he's just about the biggest scallawag that ever hit these parts."

The old man nodded. "Mister, if you ever heard the truth, that's it. He's the biggest!"

AN OLD DEBT PAID

The late Sam Music last operated his dairy on Little Paint in 1945. This week, 27 years later, came a letter addressed to Mr. Music's grandson, Marvin E. Music, Jr., of Prestonsburg, and with it a $10 bill. The letter said:

"Payment of a long delayed, overdue milk bill—with interest. I don't remember the amount, but around $5 to $7. At the time I had a sick husband to take care of and a baby to raise. In other words, I wasn't being honest."

I would say that anybody who can remember a small debt 27 years and then after all that time pay it is very honest.

Mr. Music had no accounts to credit, but he completed the transaction by taking the $10 to his grandmother.

EPITAPH FOR THE DEAD

Ben Tudor is general superintendent of the Buffalo Mining Co., the firm which is said to have built the slag-heap dam which broke last Saturday with terrible loss of life in West Virginia. The newspapers and radio have quoted him as making a statement which—if, indeed, he did make it—adds a touch of heartlessness to the grim picture. This is what he reportedly said, and we leave the reader to take it from there:

"The state is too afraid we're going to kill some trout downstream. We knew the people or the trout had to go, and now both are gone."

If memorial is erected, perhaps these words should be engraved on it.

Five Indictments Returned In Death at Boys' Camp

West Liberty, Ky.—A Morgan county grand jury indicted three juveniles last Thursday on charges of willful murder in connection with the Jan. 14 death of Dennis Buttry, 17, at the Woodsbend Boy's Camp, near here.

The panel also charged George Page, superintendent of the state-operated camp, and Walter B. Chapleau, a camp counselor, with being accessories before and after the fact of murder.

Named in the murder indictments were Charles Anthony Corum, 15, Louisville; Cornelious Hale, 15, Lexington, and William N. Dillman, 17, Harlan.

All five, along with two other juveniles—Timothy Wayne Summers, 14, Campbellsville, and Steve Thomas Thompson, 16, Dayton, Ohio—had been named Wednesday in warrants issued by Morgan County Judge Eugene Allen, charging them with voluntary manslaughter.

Summers and Thompson, who had already been released from woodsbend when the manslaughter warrants were issued, had not been arrested on that charge by the time the grand jury recessed yesterday.

Under Kentucky statutes, juveniles' cases cannot be considered by a grand jury unless the juveniles involved have been arrested and referred to the panel by a juvenile court judge. Judge Allen hears juvenile cases in Morgan County.

Kentucky law also stipulates that juveniles cannot be tried in an adult court unless either rape or murder is involved. Once adult proceedings have begun, however, the murder charges can be amended to lesser charges.

None of the five indicted was arraigned immediately. Circuit Judge William C. Kibbey set arraignment for Monday at 9:30 a.m., and said the case will be slated for trial during his court's next term in Morgan county, which begins May 15.

Buttry, whose home was Berea, was fatally injured at the camp and a pathologist said the cause of death was a blow to the forehead. Three days later, a Morgan county coroner's jury ruled that the death was "not intentional or premeditated." Contrary to some news reports, the jury did not rule Buttry's death "accidental."

Page and other camp officials said at the time that Buttry had fallen to the pavement in a camp parking lot while taking part in an impromptu group therapy session with five other boys.

But authorities who examined Buttry's body after his death had discovered more than 40 large bruises on his head, neck and shoulders. State Police Detective Alonzo Hensley conducted an investigation and presented his findings to the grand jury.

Three weeks after Buttry's death, the Kentucky Association of Professional Psychology (KAPP) asked Gov. Wendell Ford to order an investigation of the incident.

Company Seizure Order Modified

Franklin County Circuit Judge Henry Meigs modified an order allowing the state to seize three Louisville insurance companies and permitted company officials to return to their offices.

Governor Ford obtained the order against Teachers National Life Insurance Co., American Businessman's Life Insurance Co. and Western Pioneer Life Insurance Co. All are controlled by American Pyramid Companies, Inc. of Louisville.

The firms were charged with "certain irregularities and alleged violations of Kentucky statutes."

Under the seizure order state Insurance Commissioner Harold McGuffey, appointed as "rehabilitator" for the companies, had installed appointees to run the firms.

However an attorney for the three firms argued that, while seizure without a hearing is legal, appointment of a rehabilitator without a hearing is not.

Meigs then issued a new order which in effect will allow company officials to again operate the three firms with McGuffey monitoring their actions.

Catfish Esteemed by Many Sportsmen

Frankfort, Ky.—That bewhiskered rascal, the catfish, any one of the many species that inhabit Kentucky's waters, is held in disdain by some fishermen. But it also has legions of friends whose finest days are when this bottom-feeding fellow is on the prowl for live bait cast his way by fishermen.

Indeed, there are a great many fishermen who pride themselves on their ability to catch the catfish and well they might. Though the species has a yen for hitting hard and almost hanging itself by its exuberance, it takes skill and much knowledge of the lake or river to be an adept catfish fisherman.

There are several species fairly common in Kentucky's plentiful waters, but the one most sought after by sports fishermen is the channel cat. Other species, such as the flathead, the blue and the bullhead families along with a few scattered white catfish in western Kentucky, have their followers too.

The flathead and the blue, because of their size, are a couple of prime objectives of the commercial fisherman, but they surely do not frown on the channel catfish, either.

The bullhead family was probably designed for the beginner fisherman, and few are the boys who have not confounded their parents with a string of these tasty but pestiferous fish after a day at a nearby farm pond or on the creek. They are found in the larger lakes, but are shunned by most fishermen because of their small size. And they are probably the most adept of all catfish at ramming their "horns," or poison-tipped spines on the dorsal and pectoral fins, into the hands of the catcher. Other catfish have these weapons also, but their impending wounds are easier to ward off than those of the small, squirming bullhead.

The channel, which is first choice of sports cat fishermen, may be found in most of the major lakes and all running waters of the state. When hooked, the channel cat gives with a battle that is comparable to that of the fighting black bass, except that it does not clear the water's surface in its wild gyrations. However, it can do in the water with equal skill the tricks for which the black bass is noted and the still fisherman or the bait caster will attest to this.

The channel is not opposed to taking a casting lure. This is not the accepted manner of fishing for them, but they frequently are caught on fairly deep runners.

Perhaps the best bait, however, is the live minnow, usually a fairly large one, dropped in the right spot (this is important because the channel is not one for coming after bait). The conventional nightcrawler also will work wonders, and the channel is not averse to taking a hunk of cutbait either.

The best strings of this fish will be caught in the next couple of months from swift waters below locks and dams. Kentucky Lake's tailwaters, in the Tennessee River, is a prime spot. (From these waters came the record-breaking bluecat, a monster that weighed exactly 100 pounds a few years ago.)

But the channel will also be found in the Cumberland River below Wolf Creek Dam and in the tailwaters of just about every dam in Kentucky, including those in the small rivers.

The best time for harvesting the fish, however, is during its spawning period which occurs in the major lakes just after the white bass run, in May and June. A sandy bottom or the rip-rapped slopes around a dam or near bridges are ideal spots. They'll be found lolling around fallen treetops too, and also beneath jutting rock formations. And they'll be caught mostly on live minnows, worms or cutbait.

The channel catfish in Kentucky usually runs around two or three pounds, but they do grow to 10 or 15 pounds, although that size is rare. It's a fine, fighting fish to catch and many are the persons who think the meat of the channel catfish is beyond anything else in the fish line.

So. States Official Says Farm Future Better for 1972

Things should be better in 1972 for the American farmer—he should see an improvement in his net farm income, which may hit $16½ billion, for the third highest year on record.

This forecast was reported by J. H. Buchholz, of Richmond, Va., the association's director of wholesale services, to a regional meeting of local board members in this area held here, February 24-24.

Buchholz headed a three-man team of cooperative officials at the session. Other team members were: R. W. Bryan, director of member and institutional relations, and H. B. Manuel, manager of retail sales.

According to agricultural economists, Buchholz said, economic predictions indicate that beef prices will average $30 (choice Omaha) or above for every month of the year; hog prices will be stronger; dairy profits will continue to rise, and egg prices will rise slightly. The picture may not be so rosy for turkeys and broilers.

Referring to Southern States Cooperative's operations for the first six months of the 1971-72 fiscal year, Mr. Buchholz reported that dollar volume for the period totaled $61,239,000, down 3.1 per cent as compared to the same period last year. Lower feed volume accounted for most of the decline. Net savings for the period was $1,433,000, down $157,000 from the previous year.

Following the operations report, the cop's management team joined with regional manager Ken Burgess, of Huntington, and director Hayward B. Hill, of South Charleston, in a panel discussion. Hill also presided at the meeting.

Attending the session from this area were Kenneth Meade manager of the Prestonsburg Farm and Home Store, local Southern States retail outlet, and board member Jesse Wallen.

South Central Bell Warns of Slowdown

South Central Bell Telephone Co. told the state Public Service Commission slower phone repairs and installations will result unless it is granted an immediate "emergency" rate increase. South Central Bell has applied for a $25.5 million rate increase with a clause which would make it effective immediately. Any such increase granted would be subject to refund if the commission later approved a lower rate level.

Two Die As Car Plunges into Tug

Inez, Ky.—The Tug River claimed two lives Sunday when a car slid off mud-coated U. S. 52 near Kermit, W. Va.

Mrs. Lou Workman Parsley, 61, of Inez, and her son, William, 25, drowned at 4:30 p.m. when their car was carried into the river by the nearly six-inch deep mud left behind by the flooding Tug. Another son, Walter, who was driving the car, escaped unharmed.

'72 Nova is Motor Trend's "Compact Car of the Year"

Available at a compact price.

After testing over a hundred '72 automobiles of all types, the editors of Motor Trend magazine selected the Rally Nova V8 as "Compact Car of the Year." The deciding factors were Nova's handling, performance and honest value.

Here are just a few more reasons to buy the '72 Nova. Check Nova's dependability. Last year, a survey of independent mechanics conducted by Motor Service and Service Station Management magazines rated Nova the car with the least mechanical problems. And the easiest to service.

My Dearest Friend

This past Dec. 7, my precious mother, Lonie Griffith Laferty, went away. Here on God's footstool, I shall never see her smile or feel her support in anything I attempted to do. Right or wrong, Mom was on my side—if only to correct me. She was my dearest friend; always concerned for my health and my daily needs.

In her last four years on earth, confined mostly to her bed, otherwise in a wheelchair; both legs amputated, she brushed the Golden Gates many times and then returned to us for a few days longer.

Then it happened. Jesus was waiting and Mom found eternal peace, leaving behind her faithful and loving husband feeling so alone without her. If I should stay here a hundred years or more, I will never stop missing her, for something inside of me has gone with her. She wrote a note and left behind the home she has gone to and the way to go. Here are some of her words: "The valley of death is the only way home. I will praise Him forever and ever. I am homesick to go."

Her loving daughter.

Molasses and Sulphur . . . Onion Poultice—Ugh!

West Liberty, Ky.—Science is wonderful, but when it finds something wrong with sassafras tea that's going a bit too far.

Next thing you know someone will make headlines with a paper stating that tea made from ginseng root will not cure the baby's colic.

Any mountain woman worth her salt knows that when she feels faint all over and is apt to come down with the vapors she makes some methigum and sips it every now and then. (She made it herself by fermenting two pounds of honey in a gallon of water.) Hill women from Bell to Pike once kept a big jar of methigum on a shelf in the kitchen to combat these spells of wackness.

Martin Hi Reunion Slated Here Friday During Tournament

The last Martin high school reunion will be a feature of the 58th district basketball tournament here this week, it was announced at Martin last Friday.

The reunion will be held between games Friday night when a special program will be presented. All Martin high alumni are being urged to attend.

At 10 p.m. Friday open house will be held at May Lodge, Jenny Wiley State Park.

Revenue officials advised a joint legislative committee on appropriations and revenue that a severance tax on coal must be uniform no matter how the coal is mined. Industry representatives have complained that a flat tax rate would discriminate against deep mining because of its higher expenses. Revenue officials said subclassification of the tax would raise questions concerning its constitutionality.

If a mountain man was suffering bouts of rheumatism, he carried a buckeye in his pocket. You'd be surprised how that brown buckeye, smooth and polished, helped ward off the rheumatiz! Of course, some people put no faith at all in buckeyes, but instead carried a big round onion.

An onion, they knew, was good to eat when they were hungry but also fought a cold. If a man had a bout with flu and couldn't get over the wheezes he—or more likely she—would make an onion poultice to place over the chest at night to relieve congestion.

Folk medicine has done for old-timers in years past what modern science could not do, simply because the people believed in the remedies. When their skin began to take on a yellowish tinge they diagnosed their ailment as jaundice and set about making a tea of wild cherry, yellow poplar and red dogwood bark.

This is not to say that doctors today could not heal an old-timer, but given a pill from a store together with a cup of homemaker tea you'll see which gets credit for the cure.

They made sure back in those days that their children did not come down with disease by putting some dried asafoetida in a little cloth tobacco sack and hanging a sack around the neck of each child. And if the child wearing the asafoetida necklace also wore a peculiar odor, that was part of the secret. It kept people including those with colds, whooping cough and chickenpox several feet away—far enough that the disease germs couldn't attack.

If you at some time or other have not been handed a cup of hot ginger tea to cure a deep cold or the cramps, then your mother has. It was part of the "college" of experience in yesteryears to learn various medicinal plants that grew wild in woodlands and on the hills. Part of the deep-rooted culture was knowledge that heartleaf—a leaf shaped like a heart—was useful in medicines for heart trouble.

The ancient Chinese knew this. They dug valuable ginseng root and let it dry before grinding it into a medicinal powder. The root was more valuable than jewels in some dynasties because it meant curative powers for the entire body.

But China had a lot of Chinamen needing ginseng, so it was necessary for them to buy ginseng from the hills of Kentucky and West Virginia. You might not find too many hill people using ginseng today but many of them spend hours in the woods digging "sang" to sell to a market that ends up in China.

Another colic remedy can be made by boiling leaves of wintergreen in sweetened water.

If the baby has the thrash—or thrush as it is sometimes called—most people today would immediately call in a doctor. But there was a time when the remedy consisted of fetching to the house someone who had never seen his father (originally someone illegitimate) and have him blow in the baby's mouth. Strangely, folks claim it worked.

In case of fever, another tea made of white ashes of hickory or maple seemed to help.

If a pregnant woman felt nauseated, she was given a tea made from peach tree bark and leaves. This tea also was slightly sedative.

If an eye developed a sty or the eye was injured resulting in swelling and pain, a raw Irish potato was scraped and the scrapings placed on a clean cloth which was tied over the eye and around the head. This poultice will effect a cure almost overnight.

An herb doctor of the hills was a learned man. He knew medicinal qualities of blood root, yellow root, mints, mayapple, beech drops, tree roots, barks and flowers. His was a valid practice, for doctors might have been many horseback miles away.

He knew that spring fever was an annual malady to be cured only by doses of molasses mixed with sulphur. You had to hold your nose to swallow that one. He also knew what the Indians knew before him, that another remedy for spring fever was sassafras tea. Now, science has reported that a cancer causative might be an ingredient of sassafras oil.

Sassafras is as much of a household product in hill homes in the spring as a cup of coffee for breakfast. It makes you wonder if coffee has oil, or potatoes or cornbread. It's got so you just don't know what to eat and drink.

One thing sure, if you've been a victim of flu and can't seem the shake the ague, see your doctor first. His remedies will probably be all you need.

Only after you've tried everything else, is it recommended that you resort to molasses, sulphur, ginseng, dogwood bark or asafoetida sack.

Lexington Company Opens Store Here

OPENINGS IN SPECIAL FIELDS

Despite a dramatic decline in openings for teachers the past two years Dean George Denmark, UK College of Education, said there still are openings in Kentucky for teachers in special fields. He noted needs for teachers in library science and special education. Denmark said the teacher surplus affecting some states has not been as severe in Kentucky because the state's economy "is not bound to a single industry."

Leads Drive To Let Parties Know Sentiments of People

Mrs. Manda Sutton, well-known Maytown woman, has sparked a drive to persuade individuals and groups of all kinds to voice their feelings in regard to the platforms of both political parties, by sending letters and petitions to the respective party headquarters, Washington, D. C. by March. Petitions and letters should be drawn up locally and express the desires of citizens who are concerned over the downward trends in the U. S. Mrs. Sutton herself, is mailing letters to newspapers across the country, protesting the proposed amnesty for draft dodgers who are returning from other countries, and asking that others do likewise, particularly Gold Star families. She also suggests that individuals and organizations, institutions, send letters and petitions to public officials, state and national, particularly the President and members of the U. S. Senate and House of Representatives, insisting upon changes that would help end the current deterioration in government and national morals.

Among items opposed by Maytown groups taking part are: Subsidies to large farmers, tax loopholes for the wealthy, foreign aid to enemy nations, forced school busing, guaranteed minimum family incomes, unbalanced federal budget, increased salaries and fringe benefits for public officials.

The founder of this campaign was the 1971 Maytown Homecoming Queen. She is the mother of the late Col. Wm. Ed Sutton, of World War II. Her late husband, Ed Sutton, was a veteran of World War I.

HARRY GORDON ALLEN
PROPERTY VALUATION ADMINISTRATOR
(Tax Commissioner)

I request that the taxpayers who have either BOUGHT, SOLD or BUILT to come in immediately and have your listings corrected for the year of 1972. The assessment period is from January 1, 1972 through February 28, 1972.

Also, those people who have not reported their MOBILE HOMES MUST DO SO. Failure to report these will result in possibly being penalized the 20 percent penalty; it is also possible to go back five (5) years on all property.

Also, business firms that have not reported their inventories, business furniture and fixtures, accounts receivables and other taxable information, please do so before March 1, 1972.

Keeping the tax rolls up to date is very difficult without your cooperation.

Respectfully yours,
HARRY GORDON ALLEN

Congratulations. You just saved $5 by doing your own income tax. And all it cost you was three long, sleepless nights. And a slight case of heartburn.

If you had gone to H & R Block, on the other hand, you could have relaxed while someone else figured out your return. Quickly and confidentially. Probably unlike any way you've ever done it before.

And, when you figure your own, you may be entitled to deductions you're not taking and taking deductions you're not entitled to. For instance, do you know all about deductions for child care or casualty losses? Or, that if your income increased over the last few years, you may save tax dollars by "income averaging?" And even if you did, would you know how to go about "income averaging" to begin with? Probably not. And there's no reason why you should. After all, you're an amateur when it comes to doing income tax.

You see, when it comes to income taxes, amateurs should depend on H & R Block. We have over 6,000 conveniently located offices manned by thousands of specially trained personnel. They're warm and friendly people who are anxious to help you. They'll sit you down over a free cup of coffee and show you some things about your income tax that you might never have known existed.

Furthermore, if your return is audited we will accompany you, at no extra cost, to the Internal Revenue Service and explain how your return was prepared, even though we will not act as your legal representative.

This means that H & R Block is ready to offer you year 'round tax service for just one low fee a year, with no extra charge for audits and estimates. H & R Block's charges start at $5 and the average cost was under $12.50 for the 7 million families we served last year. Which is somewhat less than what you paid.

Not to mention the fact that aggravation isn't tax deductible. And we are.

DON'T LET AN AMATEUR DO H&R BLOCK'S JOB. H&R Block. The income tax people.

Stripmine Foes File New Suit At Frankfort

Their attempt to get permits of 30 or more Eastern Kentucky surface mining firms revoked, strip-mining opponents Monday turned to the Franklin circuit court with a new suit.

In this latest action the plaintiffs, the Citizens' League To Protect the Surface Rights, asked not only that the companies' permits be revoked but also called on Circuit Judge Meigs to enjoin the Kentucky Division of Strip-mining and Reclamation from issuing any permits in the future to the companies named defendants.

The suit contends that each of the companies has repeatedly violated state strip-mine laws and is therefore not entitled to its permits to continue strip and auger mining.

Monday's suit is the latest move in the tangled legal battle against the 30 companies that began months ago in Meigs' court when attorneys for the federally financed Appalachian Research and Defense Fund attempted to prosecute a suit against Vols Coal, Inc., a company that since has said it no longer will strip-mine in Kentucky.

At that time Judge Meigs said he would not hear the action until all administrative remedies had been exhausted. With that, the defense fund filed a massive petition against the companies, charging repeated violation of state law and regulations governing surface mining. That petition represented the most comprehensive legal attack ever directed at the industry.

Last month the state Reclamation Commission dismissed the petition, saying that it did not in any case show that any company failed to take the ordered remedial measures, following a citation for violation of a law or regulation.

J. T. Begley, of Lexington, one of five attorneys filing this week's suit, said the action was taken to follow up the exhaustion of administrative remedies in the matter.

Meigs said later that he had not yet set a hearing date on the matter.

The suit contends that permits have continued to be issued to the companies "despite the evidence of repeated violations."

If Bill Passes, All Ky. Voters Must Re-Register Next Year

If a bill which already has passed the Kentucky Senate by a 37-0 vote is approved by the House, as expected, Floyd county voters and all others in the state will be required to re-register before the 1973 general election.

The bill has, among other things, the aim of clearing an unknown number of ineligible voters from the registration lists. (Purgation boards have failed to reduce the number of voters in the counties, despite annual sessions.)

Supervision of all election laws, including a computerized registration system, would be placed by the bill in the hands of the state Board of Elections. Beginning with the 1973 election, the state would provide a computer print-out list of voters for each precinct. As amended, it also would require that a voter's name could not be purged from the registration list until after the fourth year of failing to vote.

Change from 25 to 21 the age requirement for serving on the state or a county Board of Elections.

Exemption Pleas Fall Short Here Of Expectations

As of Tuesday morning, with only a few hours remaining before the March 1 deadline for filing was reached, 1150 property-owners 65 years old or older had filed for the $6,500 assessment exemption under the Homestead Act, the office of Tax Commissioner Harry Gordon Allen reported.

Although the deadline for filing has been advertised through all local media, and the tax commissioner has mailed out notices to several thousand individual taxpayers, the total number of requests for the exemption is less than half the number expected. Mr. Allen had expected the total to be around 3,000 by this time.

City Manager Curtis Clark said the number filing for the exemption here stands at about 100. This, too, is below the number expected.

County and city tax officials, however, are not expected to stick to the March 1 deadline. Mr. Clark said taxpayers will have an additional two or three weeks, depending upon when the work of making up the tax bills is begun. Tax Commissioner Allen is continuing to advertise the importance of filing for exemptions, and he is expected to continue receiving exemption applications till March 15.

The loss in revenues to the city will be compensated, at least in part, by a new assessment which is seeking a true assessment picture on new properties and on improved areas.

CANBERRA, Australia—President Suharto of Indonesia arrived yesterday for a four-day visit to Australia. Gov. Gen. Sir Paul Hasluck, Prime Minister William McMahon and about 300 other persons, greeted him at the airport.
