

Shoe Firm Is Assured Of Support

Mayor Leads Meet Monday at Lodge; Problems Talked

Prestonsburg Mayor George P. Archer pledged renewed support from all elements of Prestonsburg business at a Monday noon meeting with U. S. Shoe officials at May Lodge, Jenny Wiley State Park.

Mayor Archer assured U. S. Shoe officials that the plant has provided many benefits to Prestonsburg and Floyd county in employment opportunities.

The meeting, attended by 73 Prestonsburg merchants, was called by U. S. Shoe management in response to the recent union election held at the U. S. Shoe plant.

Robert Stix, U. S. Shoe vice-president, indicated that the meeting served as a time to review a brief history of the purposes of his company in coming into Eastern Kentucky and the problems which exist.

The problem described by Stix centered upon the allegation by an U. S. Shoe employee that union activities were openly promoted by Prestonsburg businessmen. Stix defended the right of any businessman to believe as he may desire; however, he said, interjection of opinion hurts when neutrality might be more helpful.

Mayor George Archer called for renewed energy on the part of Prestonsburg businessmen in being thankful for "what we have. We've got to tell the story of U. S. Shoe and become a better U. S. Shoe town," he added.

"We are very thankful for U. S. Shoe, and we need to get out of our complacency," Stix said management turnover has caused a number of internal problems which, he feels, are now resolved with the installation of Milford Jett as plant manager.

Mayor Archer said the U. S. Shoe plant has invested $1 1/2 million in plant hardware, pays $28 thousand weekly payroll and approximately $1 1/2 million annual payroll.

Edward Music, Prestonsburg business man, pointed out that employment is badly needed in Floyd county and Eastern Kentucky. This month, he said, over 600

Democratic Woman's Club To Meet at Plantation

The Floyd County Democratic Woman's Club sponsored a college scholarship fundraising dinner at May Lodge, Jenny Wiley State Park, last Friday evening.

"Dee" Huddleston, Democratic nominee for the United States Senate, was guest speaker. Also attending were the nominees for Judge of the Court of Appeals, 7th Appellate District, along with several local county officials.

The May meeting of the Democratic Woman's Club will be held today, Wednesday, May 10, at 12 noon, at the Plantation Motel. Guest speaker will be Dr. Henry Campbell, director of Prestonsburg Community College. All club members are urged to attend.

Pikeville College Honors Wells As Its Outstanding '72 Alumnus

Dr. Raymond D. Wells, of Inez, and a native of this county, was honored at the annual alumni-commencement banquet of Pikeville College, Saturday night, as the year's outstanding alumnus of the college, and two other Floyd countians were recognized in the honors program.

The banquet preceded Sunday's commencement at which U. S. Senator John Sherman Cooper received an honorary doctor of laws degree, and the Rev. William J. Evans, senior minister of the Abington (Pa.) Presbyterian Church, the honorary doctor of divinity degree.

The 31-year-old Wells, who received the bachelor of arts degree from Pikeville College in 1962, is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Wells, of Prestonsburg.

This Town . . . That World

EGGSBLANATION

I habn't been to the obbice this week because I had a bagset from a bag cobe.

THE MAGIC POTION

Man has, I suppose, from his beginning resorted to strange measures, potions, rites, artifices and so on to ward off the unwanted, including evil spirits, ghosts, disease and death. Some of these buffers against illness are of more recent date. There are those who still carry buckeyes,— "good for your rheumatiz,"—for instance.

Mention influenza, and almost invariably I have a boyhood recollection of the great flu epidemic of World War I days and of one rather desperate measure taken at the time to protect against the lethal germ.

This woman whom I remember so well lived in the head-of-Licking section of Magoffin county, and she rode a horse regularly past our place, flu or no flu, and she apparently suffered never a sniffle.

Her magic potion was a bag of asafoetida tied snugly at her throat. Was that all? The uninitiated may ask. Well, it was enough. Downwind from the lady, you could scent her from as far as 50 yards away. Nearer, you gasped for a bit of fresh air.

There still exists two schools of thought about this woman and her immunity to flu. One holds that any germ in her vicinity either fled for its life or dropped dead. The other argues with equal effect that no sensible flu-bug would have ventured nearer than a mile of the lady and her smelly sachet.

Raiders Make Heavy Inroads On Rum Supply

Seven raids staged last Thursday and Friday by state and county officers resulted in the arrest of five men on charges of possessing intoxicating beverages for the purpose of sale and a sixth on a selling count. Intoxicants confiscated included 1,314 cans of beer, 156 half-pints of whiskey, seven half-pints of vodka, 18 "fifths" and one pint of wine.

The heavier hauls were made Friday in the up-river area by ABC Agent Arvel Nelson and State Troopers Cantrell, Bevins and Maynard. From Joe Hopkins, of the Harold vicinity, they reported 28 cans of beer, 7 half-pints of whiskey, two half-pints of vodka and a pint of wine. In the same section of the county a raid on the premises of Joe Lykins netted 47 half-pints of whiskey, 306 cans of beer, 2 quarts of beer and a half-pint of vodka.

Biggest loser in Friday's raids was Paul Tackett, of the Ivel vicinity, from whom officers confiscated 69 half-pints of whiskey and gin, 473 cans of beer, 4 pints of vodka and 18 "fifths" of wine. The raid on the premises of Walker Newsome, of Mud Creek, resulted in the confiscation of 456 cans of beer and 32 half-pints of whiskey.

ABC Agent Nelson said all intoxicants taken in the four raids were stored at the Pikeville State Police barracks.

Three raids last Thursday by Sheriff Frank Leslie, Deputy Sheriffs Virgil Conn and Sollie Holbrook and Constable Kenneth Roberts resulted in the arrest of two men.

New Kentucky Power Company Building Power Company To Be Host Here May 15 at Its $175,000 Facility

Open house will be held Monday, May 15, at Kentucky Power Company's new Prestonsburg office building, beginning with a brief opening ceremony at 10 a.m. J. M. Wood, manager of the company's Pikeville division, said in making the announcement of the open house:

"City officials and civic leaders have been invited to the official opening at 10 o'clock Monday morning so that we may acquaint them, as well as other customers, with the new facility and the convenience it brings to our customers. We plan an informal open house on Monday from 10 a.m. until 5 p.m. and hope the public will tour our new office and service center."

The new Kentucky Power Company facility on North Lake Drive cost about $175,000. Mr. Wood said that Prestonsburg's strategic location at the terminus of the Mountain Parkway and the city's continuing growth as a trade center prompted the company to expand its service facilities here.

Architect for the building was George Lee Shannon, and the contractor was Goodman and Preston. The building features a drive-in window and after-hours depository for the convenience of customers, an area with garage for the service men and a conference room for use by civic organizations.

"We are especially pleased," Mr. Wood said, "that we will have this meeting room to demonstrate electric appliances and provide a service to the public with its use for meetings in the community interest." The meeting room has a capacity of about 36 persons.

One wall of the meeting room is a display area, furnished with cabinets and appliances to emphasize the theme of "modern electric living." The building is comfort-conditioned by electricity with the use of heat pumps, which both heat and cool, using only electricity and air.

Employees working from the Prestonsburg office include Lida Margaret Howard, cashier-clerk; and Clarence Martin, serviceman. Among other company personnel who will use the building as a base for their activities while in this area will be David Lang, area supervisor; L. C. Tackett, commercial and industrial power sales representative, and Clifford Boyd, heating sales representative.

Following the Monday opening, office hours will be from 8:30 to 11:45 and from 12:30 to 5 p.m., Monday through Friday. When the office is closed, Mr. Wood invited the public to use the after-hours depository which is located next to the drive-in window.

"Although some minor details need to be finished, we want to start serving our customers from the new office on Monday, May 15," Mr. Wood said. "Any customers unable to attend the open house on Monday should feel free to drop in, any time after that, to tour the building."

Second Gas Company Warns of Shortage

New businesses expecting to use natural gas for heating or other purposes apparently will have to look elsewhere for fuel, it was indicated this week as a second major supplier served notice that as of May 1 it would approve no further requests for gas from such consumers.

The Kentucky West Virginia Gas Company is the second firm to curtail service in the face of a gas shortage and in order not to jeopardize existing commitments to customers. Columbia Gas of Kentucky had earlier filed with the Public Service Commission for approval of its policy in effect since last September which denied gas to new commercial and industrial consumers.

Fred Meece, of Kentucky West Virginia, explained that his company is trying to protect its residential customers, as far as possible. Kentucky law requires gas companies to provide gas service to residential customers who are within one-half an air mile of a company line or well. New residences beyond that distance will not be served.

The Kentucky West Virginia curtailment will not affect distribution systems to which the company sells gas at wholesale, unless the increase in consumption exceeds 3 per cent per year. Prestonsburg, Allen, Garrett, Wheelwright and possibly seven other communities are served through such a wholesale arrangement.

Meanwhile, the search for a new gas supply—mainly, in deep-lying formations—continues. Geologists say rich gas deposits, yet untapped, await the drill, but deep drilling, to date, has been unproductive. Without a new source the supply of gas will continue to dwindle.

Junior Woman's Club Horse Show Slated Two Days at Archer Park

The Prestonsburg Junior Woman's Club eighth annual horse show will be held Friday and Saturday, May 19-20, at 6 p.m. at Archer City Park. In the event of rain, the show will be held May 21, at 1 p.m.

J. C. Jesse, of Lebanon, Va., will judge the show, and John Brannen, of Maysville, will serve as ringmaster. Announcements will be made by County Court Clerk C. "Ollie" Robinson, and the music program will be supplied by Diana Marshall, Paintsville organist.

A total of $2,125 in cash awards, plus trophies and ribbons, will be offered winners in 23 classes. The classes and awards in each:

1. Lead Line Pony. Rider six years and under. Ribbon and money for each entry.

Youth Critically Hurt As Stolen Car Wrecks

The car theft was one of three occurring last week between Garrett and Wayland.

Squad to Rescue!—Scuba Divers Save Drawdown of Lake

The Floyd County Emergency & Rescue Squad saves money and time, too.

As the Olympic pool in the Stratton Branch area of Jenny Wiley State Park was being prepared for a new season last week, it was discovered that the four-inch water main from Brandy Keg to the pool had been damaged—and that the damage lay deep beneath the water of Dewey Lake.

A request was made for a drawdown of the lake. The water needed lowering at least 10 feet, to winter stage. Then workers could cut the damaged pipe, make a new connection or connections.

But the Rescue Squad was told of the problem, and last Sunday its scuba divers went to work. No drawdown or delay. Or pipefitters to pay. The divers located the trouble spot and eliminated it, without cost to Jenny Wiley State Park or anybody else, except themselves.

The lake drawdown, it was pointed out, would have come at a time when bass were ready to make their spawning nests.

Dean Murray, Dewey Lake reservoir manager for the U. S. Corps of Engineers, pointed out that the training of scuba divers cost the Emergency & Rescue Squad about $3,600 and that the Squad, a non-profit group, must depend upon public contributions for its existence.

"It is my opinion," Mr. Murray said, "that this area is very fortunate to have such a dedicated and well-organized squad as close as your telephone."

New Teachers' Jobs Uncertain, Warning Issued

Considering the possibility of necessary cutbacks, the Floyd County Board of Education last Saturday directed Supt. Charles Clark to notify all first-year teachers in the county school system by May 15 that they may not be re-employed for the coming school term.

Consolidation of Right Beaver Creek high schools also caused the board to authorize the superintendent to notify principals of the four schools which will close with the end of the current term that they will not be re-employed next year in the same posts. The four—Ed Stewart (Maytown), Burnis Gearheart (Garrett), Phillip Dings (Martin) and Johnny Case (Wayland)—will be offered employment as elementary principals.

One change has developed in the coaching picture in the county with the resignation of Robert Stone, basketball coach at Prestonsburg high school the last three years. Mr. Stone is leaving the county to become basketball coach at Trimble County high. His successor here has not been named.

In compliance with the new health code, which has been approved jointly by the State Board of Health and the State Department of Education, and which requires each school system to have a health coordinator, the board at Saturday's meeting employed Mrs. Elemeta Allen, of Langley, to fill that post. Mrs. Allen, wife of George E. Allen, of Langley, is currently

Most Facilities For Co. Schools Held 'Fair-Pass'

The team which made a facilities survey report on the physical plants of Floyd county schools classes only four buildings as good, while all the others range from fair to poor.

The report, made by the State Department of Education, finds inadequate lighting a common weakness in the schools. The only schools in the "good" category are Clark, Harold and Harold elementary. John M. Stumbo at Grethel was classed "a good facility but poorly cared for."

The report said Prestonsburg high school "could be a good facility with just a fair amount of paint and repairs." The elementary school here was termed a poor facility but the new annex was considered good.

Rated poor were Wheelwright, except for its gym, which was considered fair; Martin high and elementary; Garrett high and elementary; Maytown buildings and gym; Betsy Layne high and elementary, but the new gym there was rated excellent; McDowell, Prater Creek, Auxier, Drift and Allen.

Melvin and Lackey were rated "fair." The survey report recommended that Prestonsburg, Allen Central (Eastern) and Betsy Layne be permanent centers for their respective sections of the county, but that Wheelwright and McDowell be interim operations. Eventual consolidation of these two Left Beaver Creek schools in a new school to serve the southern part of the county was recommended.

Permanent elementary centers also should be maintained at Prestonsburg, Clark, J. M. Stumbo, Osborne, Betsy Layne, Harold, Martin and McDowell, it was suggested. Martin was described as "a permanent center much in need of facilities for elementary pupils." Elementary

Petitions Claim Flood Ravages Caused by Mining

Petitions protesting surface mining in flood-ravaged Mud Creek and its tributaries are being circulated and will be forwarded to Governor Ford, Kentucky reclamation officials and members of the Kentucky delegation in Congress, it was announced this week by Homer Hamilton, chairman of the Floyd county chapter of Save the Land and People.

Hamilton and other leaders of the opposition to surface-mining claim strip-mining and what they call "punch-mining" contributed directly to the recent flooding of homes in the Mud Creek valley and the heavy damage to homes, gardens, roads and bridges.

The petitions say, in part: "Approximately 8,000 people cannot stand to lose their homes and property for a few dollars and a few lumps of coal. If Reclamation won't stop this, then we the people will have to do whatever is necessary to protect ourselves and our property. We do not want another Buffalo Creek disaster to happen here."

Poisoning Child's Mind

"Your father is a mean, nasty man. Stay away from him or he will whip you with a great big strap."

Laura, recently divorced, kept drumming this warning into her five-year-old son. She had been given custody of the child at the time of the divorce, and she meant to tighten her grip on him by any and all means.

Actually, her ex-husband was devoted to the boy. When he found out about Laura's tactics, he haled her into court. The judge took the matter so seriously that he changed the custody order, transferring the boy from his mother to his father.

As a general rule, the law condemns efforts by one divorced parent to poison the mind of the child against the other. It condemns "implanting in his tender mind the seeds of hate and the cankerous beginnings of malice toward those whom he should cherish."

Likewise, the law frowns on the use of the child as a pawn in financial bargaining. For example:

A divorcee constantly belittled her ex-husband to their small daughter. But she also let him know that she would stop as soon as he agreed to a large cash settlement.

Again, a court denounced her tactics and switched custody from mother to father. The court said she had no right to use the child as a kind of blackmail weapon for her own benefit.

Of course, in these highly emotional situations, it may be difficult for a court to separate fact from fiction. As a result, judges sometimes fall back on solutions that are admittedly less than perfect.

In another case, at the time of the divorce, custody of a child had been divided between husband and wife. Later, in a court hearing, each accused the other of "poisoning the child's mind against me."

After due deliberation, the court decided to leave custody just as it was—divided. Even though this meant exposing the child to parental crossfire, the court said at least it gave each parent "equal time" to defend his character.

Kentucky listed in Nader suit to obtain meat inspection data

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — An attorney associated with Ralph Nader filed suit Saturday to gain access to government records on state meat-inspection programs in six states.

The suit, filed in U.S. District Court here, seeks the records from the U.S. Department of Agriculture, under provisions of the Freedom of Information Act. It seeks access to records in Missouri, Nebraska, Massachusetts, Kentucky, Ohio and Texas.

It was filed by Peter H. Schuck of the Center for Study of Responsive Law, a research group associated with Nader.

Schuck said the reports sought are the basis on which USDA determines whether state meat-inspection programs are at least equal to federal standards and thus in compliance with the wholesome meat act.

"The public has a right to know about the quality of state meat inspection without having to rely upon the self-serving assurance of state and federal officials who are afraid of embarrassment," Schuck said.

"Only these inspection reports can provide the public with the information it needs to make its own judgment."

Schuck said he has sought access to the documents since October 1971.

Former Floyd Man Confesses Part in Yablonski Slayings

Silous Huddleston, former Wheelwright man, last week entered a plea of guilty to the charge of murder in the Yablonski murder case and indicated the payoff for the slayings came from the UMWA treasury.

The confession of the 63-year-old Huddleston, as read in the Washington, Pa. courtroom, said two UMW officials, one of whom was a member of the union's international policy-making board, arranged and paid for the murders of Joseph Yablonski, his wife and daughter.

As revealing and explosive as the confession was, the real bombshell came after the hearing in Washington county court when state prosecutor Richard A. Sprague met with newsmen and linked the $15,000 murder payoff with the union treasury.

Sprague said the research committee was set up in 1969 as the result of a conference between District 19 secretary-treasurer, and International Board member, Albert Pass of Middlesboro and UMW president Boyle—who at the time was in a heated election race with Yablonski.

He said the committee was financed with two payments of $10,000 each taken from the union treasury at the UMW-controlled National Bank of Washington. Sprague would not identify the person who authorized transfer of the money to the research committee account.

But, he added, checks were drawn on the committee account and paid to 23 union men from District 19 who comprised the membership. He said the men cashed the checks and returned the money to a person he did not identify.

Sprague would say no more about the Boyle-Pass meeting, but he said the committee financing "possibly" could be considered "a murder fund." He said the investigation by the Justice Department continues and that he expects "the case will not end with Mr. Pass."

The Huddleston statement brought out into the open some new aspects of the rapidly widening investigation by the Justice Department.

Huddleston identified Pass and William J. Prater, a District 19 field representative, as the architects of the murders, which actually began as a plan to kill an unnamed Tennessee man, but was switched to Yablonski after he became an anti-Boyle candidate in May 1969.

Pass was indicted last week by a federal grand jury in connection with the murders and arrested in Middlesboro. Similar action was taken against Prater two weeks ago, just before Mrs. Gilly changed her plea to guilty and made a confession.

In his confession, Huddleston said he "never asked Bill Prater or Albert Pass how they raised the money for the murder. I believe, however, that the miners who received checks from Bill Prater from the research and information fund kicked back all the money to Prater. I believe that this is where the money came from to pay for the murder."

Since 1970, federal investigators have focused on the activities of the Research and Information Committee, which Boyle said in 1970 was formed for the purpose of organizing nonunion mines in District 19 of Southeast Kentucky and Tennessee.

In their investigation, agents found that about $19,000 in undocumented expenditures had been rolled up by the committee. Each man was paid an equal amount for his "expenses" and, contrary to usual union policy, each received two payments covering a period of months.

Huddleston said that after the government in March 1970 began its investigation of the Boyle-Yablonski election, won by Boyle, Prater visited some of the committee members and ordered them to give the investigators an alibi about their expenses.

"Bill told each man that the Labor Department was conducting an investigation and federal agents would probably be out to ask them about the union checks they had received," Huddleston said.

"He told them that if the federal agents asked what type of work they had done to earn the money, they should say they had been doing organizing work. Prater also told each of them to say they had spent the money, if asked. Sometime before the murder, Dave Brandenburg (a committee member) had told me Prater gave him a union check which he cashed, but he had to give all the money back to Bill Prater."

More explicit than his daughter's confession, Huddleston's statement gave a detailed account of a systematic off-again, on-again scheme to kill Yablonski by whatever means possible.

He said the plot began in the spring of 1969 when Pass asked him to find some gunmen to kill a man in Tennessee. Huddleston made arrangements with his son-in-law, Paul Gilly of Cleveland, and Gilly was promised $5,000.

But after Yablonski became a reform candidate on May 29, vowing to reshape the union and put "dictator" Boyle behind bars, Huddleston said Pass changed the plan.

"He said that the man he now wanted killed was Joseph Yablonski. He said they could get the other man any time, but Yablonski was very important and he wanted him out of the way," Huddleston said.

Huddleston claimed that Pass promised "so help me, before God and man, we'll back you up to a million dollars" if Huddleston got caught. "I haven't seen a nickel of it yet," the aging miner said later in the confession.

Pollution Solution

Man is the only creature that will "foul his own nest" or pollute his own habitat. We hear continually how we are endangering the continued existence of our nation by polluting the air, polluting the rivers, polluting our environment and polluting our food supply. This is a real danger.

But by far the greatest danger to our nation is the moral pollution that destroys the ideals and character of our people.—The "X" rated movies on the screen and on television with their filthy language, low morals and sub-Christian conduct.

—Sex perversion openly advocated and bidding for social acceptance.

—Pornographic literature and smut magazines flooding the news stands since the "Warren Court" made convictions impossible.

—Drinking of alcoholic beverages is fast turning our people into a nation of drunkards and alcoholics.

—Gambling is legalized in many forms and promoted for tax and charitable purposes.

—Abortion (pre-natal murder) is legal in many states and strongly advocated in others.

—Drug abuse and drug addiction is increasing, while many in high places are advocating the removal of all restrictions.

—Crime of all types is on the increase, with law enforcement hampered and nullified by silly and unrealistic court decisions.

—Subversion and anti-Americanism is condoned and promoted by many elected officials.

These are just some of the symptoms of moral pollution and spiritual degeneration in our nation.

No nation in history has so revelled in sin and wallowed in pollution as has our nation. We are inviting the wrath of a just God upon our defiantly sinful conduct. The Bible says, "Who knowing the judgment of God, that they which commit such things are worthy of death, not only do the same, but have pleasure in them that do them." Romans 1:32.

We can repent and be forgiven. Then as a Christian we can refuse to condone or participate in these things. Are you a part of the problem or a part of the solution? Rev. W. M. Pope in the Lamp-lighter Bulletin of Methodist Church, Prestonsburg.

Chevelle and Impala. We've packed them for your vacation.

Chevelle Malibu Sport Coupe and Impala Sport Sedan.

There are certain things no family should start out on vacation without.

Things that will help make your trip more enjoyable and less worrisome. We've packed many such things into our Chevelles and Impalas, the two most popular cars in their fields.

Chevelle: The most popular intermediate.

Impala: The most popular full-size car year after year.

"Talking" seat belts. Traveling around, getting in and out of the car a lot, it's easy to forget about buckling up.

Consequently, every new Impala and Chevelle has a front seat belt reminder system that speaks up if you try to start out before buckling.

A buzzer buzzes and a light flashes to make sure you get the message. And that's just one of many protective features now being built into these cars.

Feel their muscles. Out on the road, it's reassuring to realize you're riding in a car that's well built.

What you get with an Impala or Chevelle is a body that's an all-welded steel superstructure, painstakingly put together. In other words, a Body by Fisher.

You get a sturdy steel guard beam in every door for added protection in case of side impact.

You get a steel cargo guard that walls off the passenger compartment from the trunk and helps keep everything in its place.

You get double steel panels in the doors, in the hood, in the deck lid. Up inside the fenders: inner fenders to protect against corrosion and kicked-up stones.

What you get, in both of these popular cars, is a lot of built-in strength and durability.

Good things to have along as you travel.

Let's talk comfort. Another reason why Chevelle and Impala are the top cars in their fields is their comfort.

Impala is one of the roomiest cars around.

And Chevelle, though slightly smaller, gives you room for six. Plus plenty of baggage.

But comfort is more than just room. So at all four wheels we've put big coil springs to gentle up your ride.

And between the body and the frame we've placed a network of little rubber cushions to help keep things quiet inside.

There's even more.

Here are a few more items you'll be taking along this summer if you travel in a new Impala or Chevelle:

A tough acrylic lacquer finish.

A battery with its terminals on the side so corrosion can't build up.

An engine that operates efficiently on no-lead, low-lead, or regular fuel.

Why, on Impala, you even get power steering, power disc brakes and Turbo Hydra-matic transmission—all standard.

A beautiful choice.

We suggest you stop by your Chevrolet dealer's soon, to take a close look at the 1972 Chevelle or Impala.

It's nice to know that whichever way you go, you'll be getting a whole lot of car.

Have a good trip.

Chevrolet. Building a better way to see the U.S.A.

Whatsoever Things

One of two fellows were talking about a rich man who lived in their community who had just died. Everyone around knew the man who had died was very wealthy, having spent his entire life in the pursuit of the dollar. One fellow turned to the other and asked a question nearly everyone was asking: "I wonder how much he left?"

It is a question that is asked often. Someone dies, comes to the end of the road, and leaves a large sum of money and others are curious as to the amount he left. Too often the question is asked in an envious way, as if the one asking the question was wishing that he could lay claim to the estate.

Now this brings us around to one of the most important aspects of life—the proper attitude of one toward money. We don't have to look far in this crazy world in which we live to see that it is needed—this proper attitude toward money—sometimes desperately needed. For a large percentage of our world's problems are caused by our attitudes toward the green stuff. Men have—and continue to do so—killed, robbed, beaten, cheated, lied, and stolen for less than a dollar.

We have to have money to live. That is a hard fact of life. The difficulty comes when some think they have to have more than others, and that the world owes them something.

There is nothing wrong with money, despite what we have been led to believe. For in itself, money is neither moral nor immoral. Money is what the person who has it makes it. It can be used for good, constructive purposes—or it can be used to destroy, cripple, and kill. It depends upon the user.

The Galilean gave us the secret here. Money, He taught, is to be used for the good of mankind. He never condemned the making, honestly, of a large sum of money. He only condemned the misuse of it. He was well aware of the fact that too many people misuse money, become selfish and stingy in their concept of the use of money.

There are a few people who gain from this Carpenter the proper concept toward the use of their money. And they aren't always folks with large sums of wealth. Often they are common people who place what they have into His care and seek to build a better world with it.

We see so many people who are stingy. They hoard and keep nearly everything they get. And if they part with much of it, it is usually spent on themselves. Unfortunately we have reached a social opinion in our country that only rich folks can be stingy. But some of the most stingy people around are those who have very little. You don't have to be rich to be stingy. You only have to have a poor heart. And this is caused by a selfish conception of what money is for.

I mentioned the fact that one fellow asked the other how much the wealthy man left when he died. The second fellow turned to him and answered: "He left all he had." I guess, when it is all over, that's how much each of us will leave.

Property Sale Back in Courts; 2nd Hearing Set

The sale by the master commissioner of the Floyd circuit court of the business property here of Arvie "Peewee" Burchett, and his sister, Mrs. Elizabeth Schell, was the subject of a court hearing here last Friday after the case had been returned to the lower court by the Court of Appeals. Final settlement may be some distance away.

Mr. Burchett attacked the sale of the property to Charles Bradley for $40,000 on the grounds that the appraisal set by two court-appointed appraisers did not reflect the true value of the property. They appraised it at $40,000.

Two witnesses, Joe D. Weddington and Ivan Childers, testified the property is worth around $100,000.

Circuit Judge Hollie Conley indicated that they might be right and that Mr. Burchett might have a year in which to redeem his interest in the property.

But Mrs. Schell failed to appeal, along with her brother, and now arises the problem of permitting half the property to be redeemed while the sale of the other half stands.

Another hearing will be held, Judge Conley said this week.

If the sale to Bradley is invalidated, he would be reimbursed for the cost of improvements he has made to the property, it was indicated.

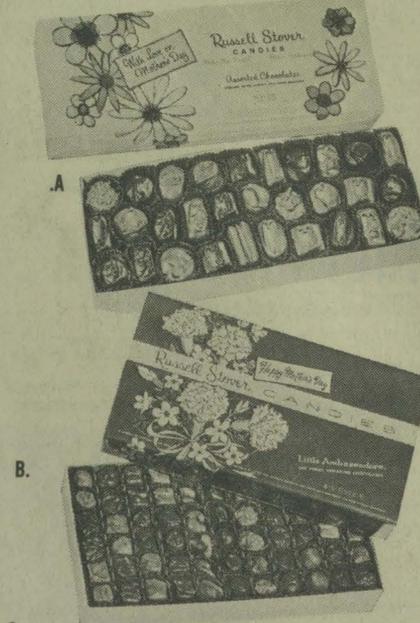

Atty. Gen. Ed Hancock says employees of the Kentucky Program Development Office do not have merit system protection since that agency is organized within the governor's office, which is exempted from the system. The merit system is designed to protect state employees from capricious firing or discrimination.

State Will Not Lease To Private Interests

By SY RAMSEY
Associated Press

FRANKFORT, Ky. — The Parks Department will not lease campsites to private interests in the foreseeable future, Commissioner Ewart Johnson said yesterday.

"It's been done successfully in some states... but in Kentucky I just don't think we're ready for it," he said. "It's my suggestion to Gov. (Wendell) Ford that we remain as we are."

Johnson, an official in a Democratic administration, thereby took a view opposite to that of former Republican Gov. Louie B. Nunn, who had endorsed leasing of such sites to developers.

In fact, one site at Kentucky Village State Park was leased a few days before the GOP regime ended last fall.

"I don't think it's wise to get outside the control of the parks system," Johnson said. "We might lease it to (someone) down the road who is not running it (right) ... and we get the black eye ... because people say 'that's part of the Parks Department...'"

The commissioner acknowledged there have been some complaints from private camping grounds owners, "But our intention is to help them, not put them out of business."

Johnson recalled that private industry became upset long ago when the first state park was established and now realizes that without the state-operated system tourism would not have reached its current peak.

Later change possible

He added the department does not plan to compete with or undermine private business.

"We're not going to rent our campgrounds at a cut-rate price," he said. "If we have a hookup for water and electricity at the site, you're going to have to pay more money for it."

As to how long the public campgrounds policy would continue, Johnson commented during a television interview: "Who knows what's going to happen two years from now? It may be a complete change of attitude."

He disclosed that one of the boat docks at a state park which had been leased by the GOP administration has reverted to state control because the operators "just didn't pay their bills."

Another operator who Johnson said acquired his dock in the regime's closing days simply asked the state to take it back.

Overpromising claimed

Johnson estimated the park system contains about 1,900 camping sites with widely varying accommodations. He said it is too late to build new sites for the coming summer.

The commissioner implied that the previous administration had over-promoted or overpromised facilities for at least two parks: Big Bone Lick in Northern Kentucky and E. P. Sawyer Park in Jefferson County.

"It's a terrible thing for me to sit here and say that not much exists (at Big Bone Lick) now," he said. "It has one of the least occupancy rates of any campground — I think 18 per cent."

"We've learned this much: Campers won't stay in any area (if) there's nothing there to attract them. That's exactly what happened to Big Bone."

He said his agency is proposing a swimming pool and display of prehistoric animals. But as for the projected display of bones, "I'm told most of these bones are in Nebraska."

A planned boat marina at Big Bone Lick will be dropped because it is too difficult to construct and probably would not pay its way, he said.

For the new Jefferson park, Johnson said: "We're talking about spending a million dollars like someone's talking about buying a necktie" in reference to previous designs.

The Parks Department halted construction there — "It was no trouble to halt, nothing was being done," Johnson said — and is expected shortly to announce its revised program.

By Rufus M. Reed

BIRDS

THE OVENBIRD. A few years ago, the ovenbirds were on a decline, due mainly to the widespread use of heavy pesticides; these birds are insect-eaters and many succumbed. Since dangerous pesticides, such as DDT have been sharply curtailed, as well as some others equally as dangerous, the ovenbirds have made a remarkable comeback. I have heard more of them this spring than I have for years.

The ovenbird is called "the loudest of the warblers," and sends forth a loud-ringing call that goes like, TEACHER, TEACHER-TEACH! The emphasis is on the last syllable of the song, which rings far through the leafy woods of spring. This is a sparrow-size bird, olive-brown on back, a prominent eyering, an orange red patch on the crown and black streaks on a white belly; the legs are pink and the bird walks about primly, on the leaves or on a log, giving it the appearance of a polite schoolgirl walking in a promenade. The nest is built on the ground in the form of an outdoors oven; it is arched over and has a side entrance.

THE BLUEBIRD. This bird has also made a remarkable come-back from near extinction. Its decline of a few years ago alarmed the lovers of this beautiful member of the thrushes; scouts, 4-H Clubs, Conservations Clubs and many others got busy, marking out bluebird trails and lining these with boxes for them. Although the bluebirds are by no means plentiful now, a few may be seen in most every community. The other day a lady asked me what to do about the bluebirds taking over her martin compartment and refusing to let the martins build in it. They must have been hard put to find a nesting box, as they usually do not build in a box that is placed over 7 feet above the ground. The bluebird was once a victim of pesticides and of starlings, which fought them away and took over their nesting places. Now the starlings are in a sharp decline in some regions, as people have been waging war on them. Yet they have their good points as well as the bad ones.

THE TURKEY VULTURE. This big fowl of the air has always been "buzzard" to most ruralists, but it is a vulture, as indicated by its scientific name: Cathartes, which suggests cathartic, something that cleans up one's system. Turkey vultures were made by nature to keep the earth clean of dead bodies, which they can spot from the air with a telescopic eye.

The Turkey vulture has a strange power, which is known in humans as "mental telepathy." Let one of these carrion-eaters find a dead body and it sends out signals over the air waves to summon all the others from miles around. If one watches, he will soon see the vultures gathering from all directions, settling down around a dead body; they soon clean it up and even leave the bones white and clean.

A few years ago, I often scanned the summer sky to watch for the "buzzards", but I could scarcely see more than two or three in any season. The last two years, I have seen a great many sailing the blue sky, rocking and tilting in the wind but never once flapping the huge wings. Although the buzzard appears repulsive on the ground, in the air it is one of the most magnificent flyers known and can sail lazily about for hours on end, with its wings held in the form of a dihedral. Last year, I located a famous "buzzard's roost" on Rock Castle (Middle Fork, near Davella, Ky.) It is located on the farm of the late Julia Delong and is a large, low cavern in a cliff on a ridge. It has been used as a nesting site by buzzards for hundreds of years. Last spring, I parked at the road, where I could have a fair view of the nesting site. As soon as the sun rose in the sky, seventeen buzzards emerged from the cave and began sailing about overhead.

The young vultures are downy white and look like goslings. If you should ever find one about the nest, don't dare molest it, lest you get sprayed from the air with a spray that won't smell like sweet perfume. The turkey buzzards are making a remarkable come-back after nearly going the way of the California condors. One reason for their decline in the past; they were accused of spreading hog cholera and many were shot. But people failed to realize their value as scavengers, so they are now protected by law.

SOME BIRDS IN SHARP DECLINE. One of these is the whippoorwill. This strange bird of the shadowed night woods used to swoop down about most every farm house, and about dusk, it often bowed and sang its lonesome song in the chimney corner. Today the whippoorwills have been gradually driven back to the remote regions of the hills, far from modern industrial expansion, with its noise. Logging the mountains and stripmining the coal have also contributed to the scarcity of the whippoorwill; this bird loves quiet woods, where it can rear its brood without fear of human interference. I often have to drive far back in the hills in order to hear a whippoorwill. The disturbance of our mountains by blasting and the noise of heavy machinery have made the whippoorwills exceedingly scarce.

THE WOOD THRUSH. This great songster has become quite scarce in many regions. One reason is, the wood thrush cast off its role as "the dark hollow bird" and for the past several years its range has been about suburbs and the premises of man; sometimes one may be seen on the lawn, searching for insects. No doubt, many of these thrushes have been destroyed by poisonous pesticides. Also the removal of timber from the mountains has contributed to their scarcity. The wood thrush has always been a much loved bird; oldtimers called it "the chay-dee-ling," from the ringing notes of its song and they usually waited to hear this song before planting their corn.

Kentucky Is Now In Peak Rabies Season

FRANKFORT, Ky.—The commonwealth is now in the peak rabies season of late winter and early spring and as of the middle of March, according to state Health Department figures, already has had 87 confirmed cases of rabies for 1972.

Kentucky is frequently among those states with the highest incidence of rabies, says John Riley, of the Health Department's Office of Communicable Disease, partly because the environment is ideal for the fox, the wild animal in which rabies occurs most often.

In 1969, foxes, skunks (the second most frequent rabies carrier), cows, horses, dogs, cats, bats, mules, one raccoon and one mink were found with rabies, for a total of 188 cases. Of those 96 were foxes.

In 1970, when 141 cases of rabies were confirmed, an epizootic (the animal equivalent of an epidemic) of rabies occurred among skunks. In 1969, out of 1678 animals examined for rabies, Kentucky found 211 cases, the highest number in the nation that year.

While direct action against the wild animal reservoirs of rabies in fraught with difficulties, "immunizing pets at least provides a buffer between humans and wild animals," Riley said.

He added that if a county has an especially bad rabies problem local officials and the state department of Health and Fish and Wildlife may organize, for example, a fox hunt.

Any domestic or wild animal that acts unusually aggressive or agitated or attacks without provocation should be reported promptly to the county health department and confined in isolation for 14 days for observation, Riley noted.

If such an animal cannot be captured or confined, it should be killed without damaging the head, he added. The head should be submitted to the Division of Laboratory Services for analysis.

An Open Letter To Dewey Reservoir Users

The organizations listed below are all vitally concerned with making 1972 the safest year in history on Dewey Reservoir. In 1971 there were no fatalities on the Reservoir and no serious injuries. There was no serious property damage from improper operation of recreational vehicles. Only one hunter became lost.

This is an enviable record for any recreation area, but if everyone will use caution, sound judgement, and carry out proper maintenance on their equipment, 1972 can be an even better year in safety for Dewey Reservoir.

Keep these tips in mind:

1. Never swim alone or in unsupervised areas.
2. Use "Coast Guard Approved" equipment.
3. Maintain your equipment.
4. Don't overload or overpower your boat.
5. Never use alcoholic beverages while engaged in outdoor activities.
6. Never hike or hunt alone in unfamiliar territory.
7. Always leave word of what general area you will be using.
8. If you do become lost, sit down and wait for help to arrive.
9. Properly supervise the activities of your small children.
10. THINK SAFE!

Consumer Division Is Planning Action

Frankfort, Ky.—The state Consumer Protection Division is considering action against several questionable business practices when new consumer statutes become effective in mid-June.

Asst. Atty. Gen. Robert Bullock, who heads the division within the attorney general's office, cited certain types of door-to-door selling in which "free" merchandise is offered, and the making of claims that unproved appliances will help or cure health problems.

He also said action may be taken against some "get-rich-quick" promotional schemes, but declined to give details.

Bullock's division was granted new powers by the 1972 General Assembly, which passed new laws to prevent fraud and deception of consumers.

Now that his office "has the opportunity to do what we've wanted to for a long time, we will enforce with vigor and responsibility," Bullock said.

Recent legislation strengthening the state Council on Public Higher Education has been described as "close to being in keeping with the ideal" by the council's director, Ted Gilbert. Basically, those measures strengthened the council's role as a coordinating body, while retaining the autonomy of the state's individual colleges.

Observes 100th Birthday

Mrs. Mollie Miller, Abbott Creek native, celebrated her 100th birthday April 22 at the home of her granddaughter, Mrs. Gilbert Ray, near Wellston, O.

Born near here April 22, 1872, Mrs. Miller and her husband, the late Miah Miller, moved to Ohio about 35 years ago. Following Mr. Miller's death at age 92, she has made her home with several of her children.

She and her husband were the parents of nine children, seven of whom survive. They are Mrs. Lizzie Miller, R. 2, Wellston, Jack Miller, R. 1, Jackson, O., Ben Miller, of Venedocia, O., Mrs. Nannie Grosenbarger, of Huron, O., Clifford Miller, of R. 1, Jackson, Aldo Miller, of R. 2 Wellston and Mrs. Maggie Shepherd, in Florida. With such a large family, she says she has given up counting how many grandchildren and great-grandchildren she has. In addition, she has several great-great-grandchildren.

In fairly good health until a few years ago, Mrs. Miller's sight is failing and her left arm was removed several months ago because of a tumor. She is able to walk about and until a few weeks ago greatly enjoyed smoking a pipe, favoring Sir Walter Raleigh tobacco.

The Jackson (Ohio) Chamber of Commerce presented her with a large bouquet of roses in recognition of her birthday. She is the aunt of Mrs. Elizabeth Ray, of the Abbott road.

Writers Travel Lincoln Trail

By SHANNA COLUMBUS

Frankfort, Ky.—Something over 150 years ago, young Abraham Lincoln trod Kentucky's countryside near Hodgenville, where he was born, and on the Knob Creek farm where he grew to a boy of seven.

Recently, Lincoln's paths were retraced, not only at points in Kentucky associated with him but along the Lincoln Heritage Trail through two other states.

Travel writers from across the country spent a week traveling the 2200-mile circular route which follows the Lincoln story through Kentucky, Indiana and Illinois.

The tour was sponsored for the third year by the Lincoln Heritage Trail Foundation in conjunction with the three states involved.

The writers, whose publications represent a circulation of some six million, spent two days in each state.

Proceeding from Illinois, where the tour began, through Indiana into the Bluegrass State, the tour visited such sites as Lincoln's residence and his tomb in Springfield, Ill., and New Salem State Park, reconstructed as it was when Lincoln spent his early 20's there.

Included on the tour through Indiana were the Lincoln National Memorial State Park at Lincoln City, which was Lincoln's home for 14 years and is the site of his mother's grave; and the Grouseland and Stout Print Shop, Vincennes, where Lincoln visited before crossing into Illinois and where he saw his first printing press.

Once in Kentucky, the writers were guests of the Kentucky Department of Public Information, the Louisville and Jefferson County Visitors and Convention Commission, and various hosts along the way. They visited Lincoln's birthplace near Hodgenville, now a national historic site, and the Lincoln Boyhood Home at Knob Creek.

Also included was a tour of Lincoln Homestead State Park near Springfield, where Thomas and Nancy Hanks Lincoln, the President's parents, lived, and Old Fort Harrod State Park, Harrodsburg, where the cabin in which they were married has been preserved.

Additionally, the Kentucky trip took the writers on a visit to Bardstown and My Old Kentucky Home State Park, as well as a tour of Louisville's tourist attractions.

Writers participating in the tour were Maralee Battiatto, Cornhusker AAA Magazine, Omaha, Nebr.; Mrs. Bernard Cooper, free-lance writer, Baltimore, Md.; Michael Connelly, Odyssey Magazine, Chicago, Ill.; June Goodwin, The Christian Science Monitor, Boston, Mass.; Bill Roberts, Indianapolis News, Indianapolis, Ind.; Ann Springhorn, Better Camping Magazine, Highland Park, Ill.; and Bob Tonsing, Wichita Eagle & Beacon, Wichita, Kans.

Governor Ford announced State Troopers soon will begin getting their annual physical examinations from Army Reserve physicians. The program will amount to a $70,000 saving for Kentucky taxpayers. The 5010 U. S. Army Hospital will conduct the trooper physicals as part of its regular training program.

Program To Enlist Child Welfare Aid Begun in County

A program to enlist every citizen in Floyd county who loves his neighbor is under way by the Department of Child Welfare, Mrs. Martha M. Hicks, volunteer coordinator, said this week.

Since all paid staff positions are filled, the only way to go in order to deliver services to more children and families is through the involvement of volunteers, the department has decided. After they are selected, volunteers will be assigned to work under the guidance of fulltime department staff members.

The main emphasis will be on tutors to help children who are having difficulty with school work. "We feel that if these children could be given that 'something extra' during the summer, it would not only help the child but also our teachers and school system," Mrs. Hicks said.

"We also need volunteers who will transport our children to medical facilities, recreational programs, training programs, and other places where they cannot go due to lack of transportation," she added.

To be considered for a challenging volunteer position, call the Department of Child Welfare at the Ford-Ranier Building, Prestonsburg, Phone 886-6876.

Senate, House Agree on New Black Lung Benefits Legislation

Congressman Carl D. Perkins, chairman of the Committee on Education and Labor, announced last week that the conference between the House and Senate on the Black Lung Benefits Act of 1972 had reached final agreement.

Perkins said that thousands of miners, widows of deceased miners and surviving descendants of miners will, for the first time, become eligible for benefits under the federal law first enacted in 1969.

H. R. 9212 was originally introduced by Perkins in June, 1971. As agreed to by the House and Senate conferees it is expected to extend benefits to more than 2,000 orphans of deceased miners who had been totally disabled from pneumoconiosis or Black Lung disease. The provision expanding and liberalizing the definition of "disability", the new procedures for establishing the presence of the disease are expected to extend eligibility to thousands of miners, their widows, and their dependents in Kentucky not now eligible.

lung disorder was attributable to pneumoconiosis if the miner making claim for benefits could establish at least a 15-year employment in an underground coal mine.

3. The liberalized determination as to what constitutes total disability reflecting the ability of the disabled miner to engage in work in the mine or comparable work outside of the mine that might be available in his community; and

4. The extension of benefits to "double orphans" that is dependent children of a deceased miner where there was no surviving spouse, the dependent parents, brothers, and sisters of deceased miner.

Perkins was chairman of the conference between the House and the Senate.

One of the principle differences between the House and Senate passed bill was the extension of time for federal responsibility for payment of miners' claims.

Under the House-passed version of the bill, this federal responsibility would have continued for life-time claims through 1973 and in 1974 it would have been shared between the Federal Government and the states under state workmen's compensation laws. Under the Senate version of the bill federal responsibility would have been extended only through 1972 with partial federal responsibility during 1973. The bill agreed upon in conference today extends the full federal responsibility through June 30, 1973, and carries partial federal responsibility for the latter 6 months of that year.

In the absence of the bill approved in conference today full federal responsibility terminated with claims filed after December 31, 1971, and only partial federal responsibility existed, with respect to claims filed in 1972.

Perkins said that since the entire nation has benefited from the production of coal it was grossly unfair to place the entire burden of compensating black lung disabled miners on the coal-producing states alone. The bill agreed upon by the House and Senate conferees would continue the major sharing of the cost for compensating miners who already have the disease on the federal government until June 30, 1973, when the state compensation laws would govern claims filed after that date. By that time, Perkins said, the coal dust levels in coal mines would have been reduced so that employment in the mines would no longer pose the hazard of pneumoconiosis.

Major features of the bill are:
 1. The elimination of the practice of the Social Security Administration of reducing social security disability benefits on account of Black Lung payments;
 2. The establishment of a rebuttable presumption that a disabling pulmonary or

Kentuckians Urged To Redeem Pledges Made During Telethon

Approximately 550 Kentuckians who made pledges to the Easter Seal Telethon for crippled children broadcast over WSAZ-TV, (Huntington, W. Va.) on March 25 have not sent in money or checks to redeem their pledges. The announcement was made by Gorman Collins, Prestonsburg, Telethon chairman for Floyd county.

He urged everyone making pledges to honor them soon by making their check payable to Easter Seals and mailing to: Easter Seal Telethon, c/o Huntington Trust & Savings Bank, P. O. Box 2087, Huntington, W. Va. 25721.

The unpaid pledges to the telethon from these Kentuckians amount to more than $2,700.

"Every dollar given will mean more services for more crippled children," Collins said. Last year, the Kentucky Easter Seal Society provided care and treatment to more than 5000 handicapped Kentuckians.

The pledges were made by individuals and business firms in Floyd, Pike, Boyd, Greenup, Lawrence, Carter, Rowan and Mason counties and other counties in the WSAZ-TV viewing area, he stated.

Floyd Included As Help Sought In Disaster Area

Floyd and 34 other Kentucky counties were declared by Gov. Wendell H. Ford last week a disaster area as a result of recent flooding, and he directed several state agencies to provide disaster assistance in certain specified areas.

In this county, as of this week, the only immediate assistance offered was by the American Red Cross. As of last Friday, 44 applications for help had been filed with the Red Cross. Miss Ella Noel C. White, executive director of Floyd Red Cross Chapter, said Thursday, May 4, will be the deadline for registering for Red Cross relief.

In addition to this county, Knott, Pike, Elliott and Lawrence counties in Eastern Kentucky were listed by the governor for help.

County Judge Henry Stumbo and the Floyd fiscal court estimated the flood damage in this county at $88,600. The damage in the 35 counties listed by Governor Ford was placed at $5 million.

Last week, representatives of the U. S. Bureau of Roads were in the county making a survey of flood damages to roads and to individuals, Judge Stumbo said.

Civil Engineering Students at Work

Civil engineering technology students at Prestonsburg Community College recently completed a preliminary analysis of an acute drainage problem which occurs during heavy rainstorms and has recently threatened to overflow into the Pike Technology Building on campus.

Within the last two months, heavy rain has caused an accumulation of rain water to back up behind a culvert and to overflow into the Pike Building. In both instances, emergency pumping apparatus had to be utilized to protect valuable equipment.

G. A. Cowan, business manager at the college, consulted with Frank Collopy, civil engineering instructor, to see if it was feasible to have the students study this problem and come up with recommendations. This decision was left up to the students and they accepted the challenge. The study, because of the minimum time available, will serve as a preliminary study in order to determine future decisions. This study indicates a need for redesign of the existing culvert and points out other corrective measures to be made in order to prevent future flooding problems.

The students involved in the project were Ron Blair, Bobby Lawson, Jeff Howard, Bill Hall, Ben Prater, and Greg Bailey.

East Kentucky Computer-Aid Program One of South's Best

A program originating in Eastern Kentucky, to help school children with computer assisted instruction and providing local districts with educational management systems has been selected as one of the South's outstanding projects.

The Eastern Kentucky project, called "Educational Management Research Information Systems" (EMRI), with headquarters at Ashland, was chosen as one of a half-dozen for demonstration and explanation at the Southern States Work Conference June 11-14 at Daytona Beach, Florida.

The Kentucky project, involving 32 local public and non-public school districts in 20 counties, including Floyd, is operated by the non-profit Eastern Kentucky Educational Development Corp., with the Paintsville Board of Education the official board of record. Edwin R. Jones is project director.

The state office handling the program is a unit of the Kentucky Department of Education, which administers ESEA Title III programs in the Commonwealth with Supt. of Public Instruction, Lyman V. Ginger, responsible as chief state school officer. Under the law, he receives recommendations from an Advisory Council broadly representative of the state's resources, culture and public.

This school year, the Computer Assisted Instruction program in math had 43 teletypewriters in 29 schools, with 53 projected for next year, to involve 3,831 students, up from 3,231. The CAI reading program had 15 teletypes with 31 planned to increase from 519 to 779 the number of students. The remedial reading program was added this year.

In addition to the terminals in public and parochial schools, CAI-linked teletypes also are operating at the Federal Youth Center near Ashland, the Kentucky School for the Deaf, Danville, in Cabell County, West Virginia, and a Federal Correctional Center, Milan, Michigan.

Last Spring, after two and one-half months' operation, evaluations showed that 2,460 Eastern Kentucky school children on the average were aided in learning math, showing gains of five months in half that time. Data yet is to be compiled at the close of this year for comparison with pre-tests of last fall and "control" groups.

The Region VII project reported 79 percent of the students over-all grades improved when CAI instruction was added, 15.7 percent declined and 5.3 percent showed no change. A survey showed 96 percent said "I like to practice math on the computer" while 76 percent commented "school is more fun than it used to be."

Briefly, in a CAI math class, the specially trained teacher determines each student's performance level. This information is stored in the computer with the student's name and identification number.

The instructor teaches the math concept as normally. Then each student goes to a teletypewriter in his school, linked with the computer located in Ashland, to drill on the concept.

The computer starts the lesson by having the teletype print out, asking the student to type his first name and number. The computer responds by typing the last name.

Problems then are typed out with the student responding by typing answers. If correct, more difficult problems follow. If 10 seconds elapse without a response, the machine types, "time is up" and gives the answer. If incorrect, the student is asked to "try again." If still wrong, the machine provides the correct answer, and the student may be dropped to an easier problem.

Each concept block consists of a pre-test, five daily drills and a post test. Print-outs of results are provided the student and teacher daily.

The student advances at his own rate of achievement. His relationship with the computer is always on a personal "give-and-take" basis.

A summary of each student's progress is mailed to the teacher every week. By having daily and weekly reports on students, without the necessity of grading papers, the teacher has more time to provide individual help to pupils.

Under EMRI, scheduling was done for 16 schools and 14,002 students this year, with 45 schools and 32,500 students due to be included next year; grade reporting for seven schools with 5,082 students is expected to increase to 18 and 12,500, respectively, and payroll handling is expected to increase from two to 10 school districts, with staffers covered going from 406 to about 2,000.

In all, the terminals are expected to increase from 58 to 84; the students involved, from 32,834 to 73,939; teachers involved, from 465 to 1,033; the number of districts involved in one or more services, from 31 to 47, and the number of schools so involved, from 50 to 112.

Dr. Lawrence R. Mudd, former director of Central State Hospital in Louisville, has been named head of the Department of Mental Health's new program to help mentally ill criminals.

Study To Show Where Trout Are At Lake Cumberland This Summer

Frankfort, Ky., May 2—The guesswork is gone from Lake Cumberland trout fishing. A recently completed study on rainbow trout in the big lake has turned up some important information for Kentucky anglers.

The purpose of the study, according to Jim Axon, principal biologist on the project, was to determine the vertical distribution of rainbow trout and threadfin shad in Cumberland during periods of thermal stratification. To a fisherman that means "where the trout are."

In the past, locating trout in Lake Cumberland during the summer meant long waits and a lot of luck. But, starting May 8, the angler's task should be greatly simplified. That's when the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources will include a special Lake Cumberland trout report as part of its regular fishing information feature. The report will tell fishermen how deep the trout are feeding and how successful other anglers have been in capturing them. The new trout report will also let fishermen know what sections of the lake are most productive.

Axon notes that trout fishermen will probably have their best success fishing between four in the afternoon and midnight. Test netting operations conducted last summer showed that trout were most active during this late afternoon and evening period, when they were foraging on threadfin shad.

Drift fishing with live nightcrawlers is one of the most popular and effective trout angling methods on Lake Cumberland. Axon points out that knowledgeable fishermen use lanterns or sealed beam lamps at night to attract shad, which then lure in the trout. The daily and possession limit of rainbow trout in Kentucky is eight fish. And all trout anglers must have a $2.25 trout stamp in addition to a regular valid fishing license.

A second phase of the vertical distribution study will be conducted this summer to determine still more about trout habits and habitat in Cumberland. Future management plans for the big impoundment call for increased stocking of eight-inch fish in February. As many as 100,000 rainbows will be available for stocking next February.

Axon predicts that the anglers' harvest should show marked increases with the aid of the new trout report. With more trout and less guesswork, Lake Cumberland looks like the place to be for Kentucky trout fishermen this summer.

Red Cross Study Set for May 18

Red Cross volunteer and staff leadership in the Paintsville-Prestonsburg area will meet at 10 a.m., Thursday, May 18, at the Plantation Motel, near here, to discuss the formation of the new Kentucky Division. Slated for activation on July 1, the Kentucky Division will include the entire state, except for a few border counties. It also embraces four Indiana counties adjacent to Louisville. The new decision will be the tenth to be established in the Red Cross 10-state Southeastern Area.

Chairing the meeting will be Robert Spangler, manager of the Louisville Area chapter, which will be headquarters for the division, and Leslie R. Boyd of Atlanta, management representative from the Southeastern Area, who has specific administrative responsibility for Red Cross activities in Kentucky. They will be accompanied by J. Ben Falmien, Red Cross National Representative, for 28 chapters. The division concept has been adopted by the Red Cross throughout the country to strengthen and unify Red Cross services through mutual assistance of all the chapters' volunteers and staff and through the administrative, technical and professional guidance of the division headquarters chapter manager.

"We feel that the new Kentucky Division will not only increase the traditional services which the Commonwealth has come to expect from the Red Cross, but will also enable us to move ahead in expanding innovative programs in keeping with the rapidly-changing picture of the 1970's," Boyd said.

Similar two-hour meetings are also scheduled in Louisville, Gilbertsville, Bowling Green, Somerset and Lexington.

The Story of Johnny Ring

You probably never heard of Johnny Ring. At least, not of the Johnny Ring of whom I'm speaking. For Johnny isn't very famous. He did very little which our world considers worthy of fame. Nevertheless, the story of Johnny Ring needs to be passed on.

Johnny lived during the War Between the States. When a company of soldiers was being organized in the area in which Johnny lived, Johnny asked to be a part of it. However, the captain who was organizing the company had other thoughts. In his thinking Johnny was too young and too little. The captain refused to take the boy into his group.

But Johnny was persistent. If he couldn't be a soldier, he could be a soldier's helper. He asked to go along as the servant of the captain. Following some discussion, the captain agreed to take the boy along as his servant. He liked the boy's desire—"You will be a better soldier if I can help take care of some of your things," Johnny said.

Johnny was a good servant. He kept the captain's boots polished, his tent neat, and his sword shining. But while Johnny was a good servant, he had his differences with his captain. Johnny had promised his mother before she died that he would read the Bible every night. This did not set well with the captain, for he was an avowed atheist. Johnny would read his Bible in the captain's tent each night before he went to bed. One night the captain ordered Johnny never to read the Bible in his tent again. Johnny continued to read, often reading while the captain was not in the tent.

The troops under the command of the captain were surprised by the enemy one day and forced to retreat across a bridge. In order to keep them from counter-attacking, the Confederate forces set the bridge on fire. Suddenly, in the midst of battle, Johnny Ring was seen running across the burning bridge. Soldiers on both sides held their fire. Very shortly, the bridge engulfed in flames, they watched as Johnny Ring ran back across—carrying the prized sword of his captain in his hands. As Johnny reached the side where the captain was, he fell to the ground with clothes on fire. Some of the soldiers managed to get the fire out, but it wasn't long before Johnny Ring was dead.

After Johnny was buried, the captain began to think seriously about Johnny Ring and his Christian faith. Maybe the faith that Johnny had would help him be like Johnny. It wasn't long till the captain embraced the faith of Johnny and claimed the Carpenter of Galilee as his Master. Nearly fifteen years later he became a Baptist minister. During his ministry, he founded Temple University, the Temple University Medical Center, and all told raised eleven million dollars for Christian causes. More than once, when questioned about his long hours of work, he would say, "I have to live two lives—mine and Johnny Ring's. Johnny died for me."

Like we said, you probably never heard of Johnny Ring. Maybe you have heard of Johnny's captain—Russell Conwell.

There isn't any carburetor.
Instead, our fuel-injected engine uses a little computer to measure out only the gas you absolutely need. (About 1 gallon for every 26 miles.)
What you won't have any trouble finding are the front disc brakes.
They're up front as standard equipment on every single Type 3 we make.
And there's no problem finding the gears.
Since our stick shift is synchromesh, you can go through speeds 1,2,3, and 4 as easy as 1,2,3.

Estimated 300 Visit Garth Center On School's Annual Visitors' Day

An estimated 300 persons attended the Garth Vocational School's annual Visitors Day, April 21.

Frank B. Sammons, coordinator, welcomed high school principals, representatives of business, teachers, guidance counselors, parents, prospective students, and others interested in the school.

Among those especially interested were members of the Woodmen of the World which presented a $100 scholarship to a worthy student for continuance of his education at Mayo Vocational School. Representing the Floyd County Board of Education were Blanche Dingus and Anna Sue Stumbo, supervisors. Mayo Vocational School was represented by Harold Rice and principals of the extension centers.

Visitors viewed the work in the various shops, and the students explained the projects that they had undertaken. Door prizes, made by students for the occasion, received compliments from visitors. Especially intrigued by the display-crafts were prospective students, those who were curious and undecided as to whether to take vocational training in the future, attend college or be a "dropout."

Danny Adams, of Brainard, received first prize, a stereo-set made by students in the electricity and carpentry class under the direction of their instructors, Ezra Mitchell, electricity, and George Barker, carpentry.

Second prize, intricately designed candle-holders, went to Debby Scott. Third and fourth prize were hammers. The hammers, and candle-holders were made by the machine shop under the direction of Clifford VanHoose, instructor. Winston Gunnel, of Martin, won the large hammer; Henry McKenzie, of Prestonsburg, the small hammer. Visitors, especially the women, were impressed with the prizes that were given away.

Other door prizes made by the carpentry class were nut bowls received by Neil Moore, McDowell, Hubert Prater, Hueysville, and Roy Gibson, Blue River.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. George Barker, Mrs. James Montgomery, Mrs. Ezra Mitchell and Mrs. Violet Hall, secretary at the school.

Among those impressed by the display-crafts of the students, also the machinery and facilities of the Garth Vocational School, were Mr. and Mrs. Bert Hall, of Hunter. They spoke proudly of their son, Bobby Hall, now living at Winchester, Kentucky. Bobby graduated from the Garth Vocational School in machine shop, taught at the time by Frank B. Sammons. This was the hinge that swung open the employment door to a good job at the Rockwell Manufacturing Co. at Winchester. He is now receiving wages of $11,000-$12,000 annually.

Additional classrooms to be built for the Garth Extension Center will make it possible for students of the Floyd county area to receive training for a larger variety of skills, such as welding, health occupations and business-office training.
