Coal, Gas Firms Get Injunctions

U. S. Mediator Here for Talks In Gas Strike

As a federal mediator set a meeting here Monday between Kentucky West Virginia Gas Company officials and representatives of the striking Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers union, a hearing was slated the following day in circuit court here on the injunction issued against the workers last week.

two injunctions against Floyd county mineworkers and others which were granted on petition of the Triple Elkhorn Coal Co., Inc.

Meanwhile, hearings are pending in

In all three cases the companies seek by injunction against interference to keep their operations going.

The gas company restraining order was issued after several shots had been fired last Wednesday night into a compressor station at Maytown. State Police were quoted, however, as saying they had no information to link the shooting incident with the gas strike. Nobody was

At the Maytown compressor station a picket, James A. "Red" Morris, was struck, he claims, by a Kentucky West Virginia truck driven by John D. Webb. He was treated for a bruised arm and released. A warrant alleging assault with an automobile was issued for Webb, who executed $1000 bond for his appearance in Magistrate Kenneth Roberts' court.

Six men were arrested last Wednesday at the non-union coal stockpile of Triple Elkhorn Coal Company, near Water Gap. Charged with throwing a missile into a moving motor vehicle were Henry Prater, Andrew Reed, Jr., Jarvis Moore, Tony Sammons and Barry Stumbo. Each posted $1000 bond to appear Dec. 19

Former Employe Here of State Asks Damages

Claiming she was fired from her state job after she had been granted a medical leave of absence, Mrs. Marybelle Caudill, of this county, last week filed a $100,000 suit against two state officials and the state Personnel Board.

The individuals from whom damages are sought are Personnel Commissioner Cattie Lou Miller and Norman Willard, commissioner of the Bureau of Man-

The suit, which was filed in Franklin circuit court, says Mrs. Caudill was fired in December, 1970 by the Economic Security Department's Prestonsburg office. Later, a hearing examiner upheld her discharge but recommended that she be put on the re-employment list when she received a physician's certificate of fitness to work.

The plaintiff claims she was fired after she had been granted a medical leave for six months without pay and that the firing was illegal. She also claims her dismissal from the job has damaged her reputation and chances of employment in Floyd county.

The suit demands that the Personnel Board reinstate her with back pay and that it, "due to the unusual circumstances," waive any requirement for further job examinations.

Proclaims Energy Savings Day Here

Mayor William O. Goebel, Jr. in a proclamation issued last Friday designated Monday, Dec. 2, as Energy Savings Day in Prestonsburg.

The Mayor's proclamation noted: "If each business and home would set their thermostats two degrees below the normal setting; come to work in a carpool, on a bicycle, or walk; leave off lights that are not absolutely necessary, and eat one cold meal in place of a hot one-this one day of cutting back on our use of precious energy would benefit each of us personally, our community and our nation in money saved."

The proclamation urging conservation of energy locally was issued at the instigation of the Conservation Department of the Prestonsburg Junior Woman's Club.

resides on Salt Lick, was named Monday in a murder warrant issued by Magistrate Kenneth Roberts, of Garrett, and later executed $5,000 appearance bond. The warrant was issued on the affidavit of Vanderpool's father.

The shooting took place at about 9:30 Sunday night. State Police Sgt. Dennie Williamson, who headed the probe into the shooting, said Trooper Boleyn was driving homeward up Salt Lick when he found the road blocked by two cars, near the home of Warnie Conley. According to this version of shooting, the trooper had arrested Neeley, had taken a handgun from him and had put him, or was attempting to place him, in the police cruiser when he was struck from behind. After that, Williamson said testimony showed, the two men beat Boleyn severely and were attempting to gain possession of his revolver when he fired. Commonwealth's Attorney Harold J. Stumbo and County Attorney James R. Allen, who went to the shooting scene Sunday night, said their questioning of witnesses corroborated the state police version of the case. State police denied a report ascribed to the father of Neeley which was to the effect that his son was shot while hand-

Four Charged In Rum Cases

Four persons have been charged with liquor violations in three separate actions by law enforcement officers in Floyd county within the week.

Morgan Joseph and Herbert Bucklan, both of Prestonsburg, were charged with transporting alcoholic beverages after their separate vehicles were stopped by State Police Detectives Rose and Cornett, State Trooper Castle and Prestonsburg Police Sgt. Thornsbury on Little Paint Creek early Friday morning. Fifteen cases of whiskey and 21 cases beer were confiscated by the officers who booked Joseph and Buckland to Magistrate Bill Wells' court.

In a raid Thursday night on the home of Naomi Martin at Stumbo Hollow, near Drift, Sheriff Joe Wheeler Lewis and Deputies Doug Lewis, Green Slone, Linzie Hunt and Don Thornsbury seized 26 half-pints whiskey and charged Mrs. Martin with illegal possession. She was lodged for the night at the county jail where her husband, Clarence Martin, is serving a 160-day sentence after pleading guilty in circuit court to three thirdoffense bootlegging charges. Mrs. Martin executed bond.

ABC Agent Arvil Nelson, and Prestonsburg Policemen Ralph Thornsbury and Keith Lawson arrested John Robert Baldridge, of the Abbott road, last Tuesday morning in Prestonsburg after a search of the car he was driving netted the officers 37 bottles of beer and two alfpints whiskey. Baldridge pleaded guilty to a charge of illegal possession of alcoholic beverages and was fined $50, plus court costs.

Charged with the breaking and entering of the home of Curtis Blackburn on Mare Creek, near Stanville, last Friday was Rodney Damron, of Harold and a juvenile. State Police Detective Gary Rose, who, along with County Detective Sam Hale, carried out the investigation and made the arrests, said approximately $400 worth of merchandise was removed from the Blackburn home. The arrests were made on Mud Creek shortly after the incident and the merchandise was recovered.

Two Claim Damages In Housing Litigation

Mountain Investment, Inc. to void action taken by the city government of the town of Wheelwright to control housing conditions there is now focusing strongly on the Constitutional rights of two men whom the company, owner of most of the physical properties of the community, is seeking to evict from company-owned

The answer and counterclaim filed last week by Jim Hammond, attorney for defendants in the original suit, not only argues that Mountain Investment's complaint be dismissed but asks $25,000 damages for Terry Feathers and Don Daniels, the two whose evictions were asked, alleging they had been libelled and slandered.

This Town . . . That World

CONSERVATIVE, THAT'S US

In last week's Times we did the coalproducers of Eastern Kentucky an injustice with a report of coal production from Jan. 1, this year, to Oct. 26. We're not going to recount all the mistakes we made in those few paragraphs; the one pertaining to our own region will do for the moment. Our story had the coal production of this region at 1,694,000 tons. But Willard Stanley, of the Martin office, Kentucky Department of Mines and Minerals, says the total tonnage for this section of Kentucky from Jan. 1 through Oct. 31 was slightly in excess of 30 million tons and that Pike county alone produced 14,575,371 tons.

Newspapers are accused of making the figures bigger than they really are. They're accused of not being very good newspapers when they shrink 'em as we

OF PLACES AND NAMES

Read a piece recently about those Texas towns, Telephone and Telegraph. The lines into Telephone broke down and for several decades the place had not a telephone. And in Telegraph there was only one 'phone until quite recently and nary a television set. Whatever the statistics, the good burghers are getting tired of the old saying that "you can make a telephone call from Telegraph but you can't send a telegram from Telegraph to Telephone."

Those who like to dawdle with names and such might try getting to the head of

In Five Counties Litigation which began some months Punitive damages of $25,000 also are ago with a circuit court suit filed by sought, and circuit court was asked to enjoin the company from further eviction improvement of facilities of the Big attempts against the two.

Mountain Investment in its action contended that a municipal corporation is an arm or instrumentality of the state and has only those powers granted it by the Legislature, also that the ordinance enacted to govern housing conditions at Wheelwright exceed the expressed or implied powers of a city of the sixth class which Whiselwright is) and so are void. The ordinances in question appointed a building inspector who could determine if a dwelling was "unfit for human habitation" or was injurious to health, safety or morals of occupants or neighbors. The company contended that the ordinance violates the due process clause of both state and federal constitutions because the building inspector was empowered to make his determinations without adequate constitutional guidelines or criteria, and there was afforded no opportunity for a hearing or for just compensation for property condemned.

All this the answer and counterclaim denies. It argues:

Mrs. Smiley and her late husband, V. A. Smiley, raised 16 children, all of whom are college graduates or are now enrolled in college. Two of her sons are in the U.S. armed forces living in Germany, two are civil engineers, four are teachers, and six are now enrolled in college.

Although it gets pretty lonely around Mrs. Smiley's house now, since her husband has been dead five years and her youngest is studying at Texas Christian University, she now has time for volunteer work. She meets once a week at the Methodist Church where she helps piece a quilt. She also does volunteer work for the Meals on Wheels program. She has been an active member of the Prestonsburg Homemakers Club for the past 16 years and a member of First Presbyterian Church here. She loves to meet people and make new friends. She remembers that all their children worked at local businesses with all the boys having served as newsboys for The Floyd County Times. Her husband was a contract carpenter. "We didn't have much money but we always paid for our 24 quarts of milk delivered each morning," Mrs. Smiley recalls.

Knott Co. Clinic Shuns Inflation, Drops Its Rates

The private Knott county clinic headed by Dr. Grady Stumbo, Floyd county native, is flying straight into the face all the rules for inflation.

Dr. Stumbo last week told a special panel studying health care in the state that his clinic started out charging $4 a month as a prepaid charge for any person wanting its services but that the charge now has been cut to $2.25 a month because "the clinic was makig too much

In addition to the monthly charge, patients pay $1.25 per visit to the clinic and an additional charge of 25 cents if they receive medication.

Since the opening of the clinic near Hindman 23 months ago it has received 33,000 persons, 16,000 of whom did not need to see a doctor, Stumbo told the

"You have a model there, there's no doubt about it," State Senator Joe Graves, of Lexington, vice-chairman of the special panel, told Dr. Stumbo. The committee will visit the clinic later. The study group is the Special Medical Care Availability Study Committee created by the 1974 General Assembly. It is comprised of legislators and representatives of various health services.

The Knott county clinic was founded and is operated without benefit of any federal grant.

Plan Farm of '80's For'76 Bicentennial if plans discussed at last week's and blue cars to beer mugs in patriotic meeting of Eastern Kentucky Highlands Vacation Region 11 at May Lodge materialize, Floyd county's contribution to the nation's Bicentennial observance in 1976 will be an attraction for not only a year but one to stand as a permanent reminder of an early era in the development of the nation.

Estill Lee Carter, of Prestonsburg, president of the five-county Region 11, said the plans involve the acquisition of a small tract of land and its restoration to the appearance and functions of a farm of the 1880's.

The idea expressed at the May Lodge meeting is that this county in its Bicentennial observance will seek to avoid the hucksterism that has appeared since the observance was first planned nationally-everything from red, white colors for sale.

The farm of the '80's planned for this county would, hopefully, show the lifestyle of the age in buildings, fences, outbuildings, crops, farm implements and the like.

The tract of land needed for the farm need not be of more than three of four acres, and the Floyd county group is hoping such a "patch of land," located in an up-the-hollow or other comparatively isolated area may be donated for this purpose. The farm would be worked and cared for by a caretaker living on itpossibly, an artist, writer or other person who is looking for a quiet place where he may live and work.

Region 11 is comprised of Floyd, Pike, Johnson, Martin and Magoffin counties.

Judge Postpones Sentences for 2

Federal Judge H. David Hermansdorfer earlier this month deferred sentencing of Hillard Akers, Jr., and Edward Wright, Jr., both of this county for violations of the Federal Gun Control Act of 1968. Their cases were heard in U. S. district court at Frankfort.

Akers, 36, of Bevinsville, was convicted for possessing a firearm after having been convicted of a felony. Akers previously was convicted in U.S. District Court at Pikeville for violation of Internal Revenue laws and on May 20, 1974, was involved in a gun fight during which Akers possessed a Smith & Wesson .45caliber revolver.

Wright, 35, of Drift, was convicted for the possession of a sawed-off shotgun which had not been registered to him in the National Firearms Registration & Transfer Record, as required by law for weapons which have been shortened to a certain length.

Wright was arrested by officers of the Floyd county sheriff's office June 8, while they were answering a disturbance call near Stumbo's Hollow at Drift.

More recently, Wright was named in a warrant issued here, charging him as accessory after the fact in the slaying of Crit Butler.

In other federal court cases the results

Monell Williams, of Campton, was convicted on seven counts of an indictment charging her with using the mails in a scheme to defraud. She allegedly furnished false information on a credit application to mail order businesses and ordered merchandise which was received and never paid for. The offenses occurred over a period of months and Williams used several ficticious names. Judge Hermansdorfer sentenced her to five years on each count to be served concurrently. Service of the sentence except for 59 days was suspended and she was placed on probation for five years.

James Dean Bailey, 18, Columbus, Ohio, was convicted of the interstate transportation of a stolen motor vehicle from Columbus, Ohio, to Pike county in April, 1974. Bailey, who is in custody in the state of Missouri, was sentenced by Judge Hermansdorfer to an indefinite sentence under the Youth Corrections Act, and could serve as much as five years in custody of the U.S. Attorney General.

Herbert McCoy, 39, of Bear Branch, Leslie county, was convicted on two charges of violating the Gun Control Act of 1968. Specifically, McCoy was convicted of making and possessing a destructive device consisting of eight sticks of dynamite, a fuse, and a blasting cap. Investigation of the violations began on April 13, 1972, when the residence of Sherman Smallwood off Highway 80 in Leslie county was shaken by an ex-

Judge H. David Hermansdorfer sentenced McCoy to 10 years in prison and fined him a total of $10,000 for his involvement. McCoy earlier this year had been convicted in U.S. District Court at Pikeville for a moonshine liquor violation.

Mrs. Baird Recognized In Outstanding Young Women of America

Mrs. William J. Baird, III, of Pikeville, the former Katheryn Roberts, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. Dick Roberts, of Prestonsburg, has been named for inclusion in the 1974 edition of Outstanding Young Women of America. This volume selects young women from 21 through 35 who have made outstanding contributions to their communities, church, states, and nation. Nominations are made by civic organizations, churches, alumni associations, and military units. Mrs. Baird received the baccalaureate degree from Union College, Barbourville, Ky. and the B. S. in Education from Pikeville College. She was educational assistant at Pikeville United Methodist Church from 1962 to 1965 and Methodist kindergarten teacher and director from 1963 to 1965. From 1966-68 she taught first grade in Clark county. She is presently active in First Presbyterian Church, Pikeville, where she is chairman of the Christian Education Committee, a Sunday School teacher, and a member of the choir. For the past seven years she has been a member of the Pikeville Junior Woman's Club, where she has served as president, vice president, and recording secretary, as well as chairman of the Fine Arts Committee. She is a director of preschool library programs, Brownie Scout leader, member of the Day Care Center Board, the Co-Ed-Y Advisory Board, MATEP Board, and K.E.T. Mini Board. She is also a member of the volunteer parents program at the public school and the Legal Wives Auxiliary and the American Association of University Women.

Her husband, William J. Baird, III, is an attorney, and they have two remarked that without the participation daughters.

Perkins Slates Area Meetings

Congressman Carl D. Perkins announced this week that he will hold meetings in the coal producing areas of his Congressional district "so that older coal miners who are suffering from black lung, but have been denied their rightful benefits, can let the U.S. Labor Department and Social Security Administration know the extent of the injustice those agencies have created."

Rep. Perkins was the original sponsor of the legislation giving benefits to victims of black lung, but a constant battle has had to be fought with the agencies administering the legislation.

"Men who have worked as long as 30 and 40 years in the mines, and who obviously have lung disease, are being denied benefits, and that is just not right," Rep. Perkins said.

"The best thing to do is to hold meetings, as I have in the past, and once again gather evidence showing that people who are eligible for benefits are being denied," he said. "After the meetings I will submit the evidence to the appropriate agency of government, and try as hard as possible to get every rightful application approved."

Perkins has been pushing new legislation which would require that the agencies reprocess every application for black lung benefits which has been denied, and allow the person submitting the application to submit additional

He said if the legislation does not move in the remaining days of this Congress, he will reintroduce it immediately next

The dates of the meetings, and the exact locations have not yet been set, because Congress has not yet determined when it will recess for Christmas, and that is when Rep. Perkins expects to hold the meetings.

He said they will be located so that older miners who should be receiving benefits will be able to attend without travelling long distances.

Body Found Sunday In Knott Identified By Letcher Mother

The body of a man who had been shot, burned and left partially buried in the Hollybush area of Knott county has been identified as that of Kirk Michael Caudill, of Letcher county, The Times learned Tuesday morning.

The body was found Sunday and later taken to a Whitesburg morgue. The identification was made, Deputy Sheriff Doug Lewis, of this county, said, by Caudill's mother who resides at Jackhorn. Lewis, who was at Whitesburg Monday when he accompanied a Floyd county man there to determine if the body was that of the Floyd countian's son, said the woman made identification from a watch worn by the victim. The body was badly decomposed and had apparently been buried three weeks.

A man who was jailed at Whitesburg on suspicion of Caudill's murder was released Tuesday morning. State police have been joined by one or more FBI agents in the investigation of the murder which, they hold, may have been the aftermath of a previous crime involving intimates of Caudill.

Early descriptions of the body said it was that of a white man about 35 years old who had red hair.

Mine Strike Defers Conference at Park

Dr. John Painter, Knoxville regional director of the United Mine Workers Welfare and Retirement Fund, and Richard T. Stai, executive director of Mountain Comprehensive Care Center, Prestonsburg, issued a joint announcement last week, stating that the conference, "The Miner and His Problems," which had been scheduled for December 5 and 6 at Jenny Wiley State Park, is being postponed until a later date because of the unexpected length of the UMWA strike.

Mr. Stai expressed disappointment at the necessity for the postponement and of UMWA members and officials, there could be no authentic input into conference proceedings concerning the nature of the miner's problems. He expressed, also, the hope that the confeence could be rescheduled for some time in the first quarter of '75, possibly early March.

junction against the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers, its Local Union 3-510 and three local union officials also included as defendants "all other persons acting in concert with the above-named organizations and individuals." It alleged that pickets are illegally obstructing entrances to the company's operations and that the defendants, or person acting by, through or in association with them have engaged in the destruction and sabotage of gas wells, pipelines and related facilities.

The temporary injunction limits the number of pickets to two at any given point, forbids obstructing free access to and from such operations, acts of vandalism and threatening of non-union employees and their families.

The first restraining order granted Triple Elkhorn named the United Mine Workers of America and its president, Arnold Miller; nine officials of District 30 and 200 "John Does," unnamed persons. The company claimed "roving pickets" blocked access between US 23 at Water Gap and the company's operation. The restraining order forbids such obstruction and trespassing upon coal company property. The petition for injunction also asked that the company be awarded damages.

The second injunction was granted a day later against the UMWA, its president, District 30 and 75 "John Does." The petition for injunction alleged that on Nov. 13 and 14 "roving bands" numbering about 75 in all congregated in and about Triple Elkhorn's tipple properties at Prater Creek, Sugar Loaf and Allen and so intimidated company employees that they refused to work. The company said the picketing had no relationship to collective bargaining, since no labor dispute exists between the union and the non-union company.

The restraining order provided that all the defendants and others associated with them cease congregating or loitering "in any numbers at all" in, on or about the immediate vicinity of company premises or property and not to threaten, intimidate or terrorize company em-

The gathering line, which has been restored, was described as a major source of gas supply for both Prestoneburg and Paintsville.

A third coal company suit for injunction against the UMWA, District 30 and 14 individuals was filed Nov. 22 by the Diamond Coal Company which has Ivy Creek operations. It alleged that defendants had conspired to damage and destroy plaintiff's business and property and had thrown rocks and fired guns into trucks or at employees of the coal company. The restraining order provides that defendants are not to assemble in groups on the road at the mouth of Ivy Creek so as to obstruct free passage on that road and on nearby US 23 and are not to interfere withcompany agents or

2. That eviction action toward Feathers and Daniels constitute a deprivation of their rights as guaranteed by the First and Fourteenth Amendements Cited is an opinion by Supreme Court Justice Black in the case of the Gulf Shipbuilding Corp., owner of the Alabama town of Chickasaw, which attempted to stop an individual from exercising his First Amendment rights on the streets of the town. The Black opinion is cited in the answer and quotes him as writing: "There is no more reason for depriving these people (residents of companyowned towns) of the liberties guaranteed by the First and Fourteenth Amendments than there is for curtailing these freedoms with respect to any other citizen."

The answer is accompanied by an affidavit signed by three residents of Wheelwright stating that Janice Grigsby, chief resident agent at Wheelwright for Mountain Investment, said, in effect, at a regular meeting of the town's board of trustees that the reason Mountain Investment was seeking the eviction of Feathers and Daniels from the rented housing was solely because Mountain Investment considered troublemakers by virtue of their relationship with the city government

Another exhibit in defendants' answer is a copy of a letter from Mountain Investment and its president, Gordon Brown, serving notice of new sewage and garbage rates and pointing out that inflation and expenses resulting from the "hostile attitude" of the city administration made increases necessary. The letter expressed the belief that the "uncooperative" attitude of the city administration "has been a major factor in the rejection of Wheelwright as a manufacturing site by manufacturing concerns we have invited to come here." It termed the ordinances as "oppressive and confiscatory."

Both Feathers and Daniels were notified last June 25 to vacate the premises which they had rented from the company. They have not vacated. Instead, they say, they have offered pay of rent each month.

Letters to the Editor

Protest TV Commercial

Editor, The Times:

The following is a letter which the undersigned mailed to the advertising manager of Hush Puppy Shoes:

This letter is in reference to one of your Hush Puppy commercials. This particular commercial involves a "hillbilly" boy and his father; the boy says he can go to school only after obtaining a pair of Hush Puppy shoes. We wish to protest this commercial.

We feel that this type of commercial is highly discriminatory and downgrading to the people of the Appalachian area. Such elements of the commercial as the exaggerated dialect, the absolutely sloppy appearance, the implication of laziness, and the fact that the boy can be somebody only if he goes to school and he can go to school only if he wears shoes, all imply that the people in our area are uneducated, living in the past, lazy and unmotivated, and as you would say of your shoes, "plain dumb". We resent this stereotype very much.

We feel that first, you should remove this commercial from the air as it offends many people and also misrepresents our area to the rest of the nation. Believe us, that is not the true Appalachia. Second, we think that in the future, you should be more careful in your advertising department by trying to represent the "real thing" and by being more considerate of the traditions and feelings of different groups of people.

November, the Iron Month

By RUFUS M. REED Thoreau called November the "iron month." Iron-fisted, she wields her saber and slashes the woods to tattered grief. She smites the flowers and leaves them in wilted death. She plucks the last summer's leaves from the trees and spirits many away to faraway lands. She drops others on the bosom of rivers; she clogs the stream-beds of the brooks with leaves of faded brown.

She spreads the fallen leaves over the bosom of the earth to make a winter blanket; she piles them in heaps to lie in crumpled death. She rips the outer bark from the sycamores and leaves them to stand along streamsides like sheeted ghosts. She ravishes the tulip poplars, the white ashes and the white oaks of their past summer glory and makes them like ghostly gray columns adorning barren

November is long on promises and short on performance. She gives us a week or so of balmy Indian summer then kills it with a blustery "squaw winter." She brings us elections with all their petty bickering, chicanery and quibbling over out-moded issues. She divides and conquers with political astuteness.

November is the hog-killing month, the turkey-killing month; millions of turkeys will give their last squeal. She is the month in which there are more bellies full of turkey than any other. She is the transition month from balmy autumn to blustery winter. She shortens the days and makes dark shadows to linger long in low valleys, causing nighttime darkness in daytime.

She sprinkles sleeping powders on a zillion tiny creatures and they crawl into crevices to sleep winter away. She freezes to death other zillions of little things, which cannot find safe winter hiding. She kills off the surplus hornets, yellow jackets, bumblebees and bugs, to make room for a new race come next

She calls all men to slow down and take things a bit easier, even as she has slowed the hectic pace of the past growing season and brought growth to a

November is the solemn month, which has led poets like Bryant to write:

"The melancholy days are come, The saddest of the year,

With wailing winds and naked woods And meadows brown and sere."

Indeed November is the iron month, the barren, brown-leaf month, the month of gray and barren hills filled with a somber gloom. And when November is ended, we can say: "Good-bye for now, old girl, you've been good and you've been bad. Good-bye, we welcome Christmas, just around the corner."

R/S Bitter Medicine

Editor, The Times:

To stop inflation:

First: Congress must discipline itself by passing legislation that forbids the appropriation of any money till the taxes are voted to pay the bill.

Second: Begin reducing the national debt by at least 2 percent annually.

Third: Stop helping those nations who do not support us to the limit of their Fourth: Set a good example and cut by 10 percent the salary of all federal employees from the President on down. (This won't cause too many resignations.)

Fifth: Forget about wage and price controls as such, but permit wages to rise in line with increased productivity, and for business enact an excess profits tax that will allow for reasonable growth and with necessary adjustment for those not now earning a fair return on investment. Sixth: Place big labor under the antitrust law (There is no way Congress will do this but a vote would show the country if we have any statesmen left.)

Stopping inflation is bitter medicine but allowing it to continue will be much worse, and future generations will never

According to Bureau of Highways statistics, traffic fatalities on Kentucky's highways have declined for the eighth and ninth months in succession. In August and September, 84 and 66 persons, respectively, were fatally injured, compared with 91 and 110 during those same months in 1973. Overall, statewide fatalities decreased by 33 per cent for the first nine months of 1974 when compared to the same time last year.

Judge Says County To Seek Severance Tax Funds for Work

Although the legislative Advisory Committee for the coal severance funds last week declined to approve use of coal severance monies by Martin and Knox counties for courthouse projects, County Judge Henry Stumbo said Tuesday that Floyd county will file application for use of this county's coal tax funds in the construction of a juvenile detention home a a rat of its courthouse property.

Such a structure is considered a "must" in view of the Appellate Court decision holding that juvenile prisoners must be kept out of sight and sound of adult prisoners.

"The severance tax funds belong to the counties," Judge Stumbo said. "Now, if they refuse us the use of this money on a project of this kind, which is a court requirement, they can keep it and let it draw interest till the next Legislature."

Judge Stumbo said that by using severance tax and revenue sharing funds the detention home can be built without the issuance of bonds.

Members of the Advisory Committee for the Coal Producing County Development Fund expressed fear that the next General Assembly will not renew the severance tax (the so-called Mountain Amendmment) for coal counties if the funds are spent on traditional projects such as roads and public buildings.

Floyd Representative W. J. Reynolds, who heads the Advisory Committee, said legislators from counties which do not produce coal have told him they do not want severance tax funds used for courthouse projects. He warned that these are among the legislators who will vote in 1976 on the continued return of severance funds to the coal counties.

State Senator Kelsey Friend, of Pikeville, another member of the committee, said he hopes the severance money will be used to attract diversified industry to provide jobs in the coal counties after the coal is gone. "If we can't show that we've done something other than the usual thing, then we're in trouble," he added.

Projects such as industrial sites, parks and garbage disposal are favored by the committee. The law enacted at the last session of the General Assembly authorizes the funds to be used for "renovation of publicly owned facilities."

The courthouse question arose in discussion of Martin county's request to use $75,000 of its severance-tax allocation for courthouse and jail renovation.

County Judge Ray Fields said no other funds were available for the renovation.

ROPES Region 11 recently conducted an inservice meeting for teachers of special education, remedial reading and remedial math and speech therapists at Prestonsburg Community College, with teachers and supervisors from Floyd, Pike, Johnson, Martin, Magoffin, Paintsville Independent, and Pikeville Independent school districts participating. Audrey Pratt, Regional Special Education Supervisor, said that this meeting, the first regional special education inservice for school year 1974-'75, was attended by approximately 65

Reo Johns, Region 11 executive director, welcomed the educators to the meeting. He stressed that acceptance for exceptional children is one of the most important things which educators can work toward. He commended teachers and other personnel working with exceptinal children in the region for their enthusiasm, understanding, and for their efforts on behalf of their students.

Consultants included Kay Lucas, former special education teacher from Oklahoma City, Oklahoma, who demonstrated the use of Distar Instructional Programs in language, math and reading; Joyce Ann Conley, special education teacher with Paintsville independent schools, who demonstrated the TALK Program for exceptional children; and Mary Oldfield, special education teacher with Johnson county schools, who demonstrated physical education games for exceptional children.

Participants also reviewed an exhibit of instructional materials, aids, and games prepared by Donna Coleman, student teacher with Paintsville Independent Schools.

Question: Who's Mayor of Louisa of mayor of Louisa.

Dr. A. B. Richards, appointed mayor by the Louisa City Council after Mayor John Hatcher died last January, said last week that his term runs until the 1973 general election and that he will not vacate the office unless ordered to do so Richards was councilman at the time of his appointment.

The dispute over Dr. Richard's stay in office arose when Tom McGee, a Louisa businessman and engineer, received 12 write-in votes for mayor (his attorney said six others were invalidated), although the office wasn't on the ballot.

But David White, attorney for McGee, said McGee, was "sworn in" as mayor last Saturday by a notary public. Asked earlier if it is McGee claiming he was elected mayor, White said he "is the White said McGee will go to court "if necessary" to be able to carry out the mayoral functions.

Lawrence County Court Clerk Gallie Isaac Jr., member of the county board of elections, said the board has decided not to certify McGee's election unless ordered to do so by a court.

Issac said the board's position is based on an opinion by the state attorney general's office dated Nov. 13 and made public yesterday and on an opinion given him by Lawrence County Atty. C. F. See.

The county clerk said See hasn't given him the opinion in writing, but told him he would if the board needs it.

The attorney general's opinion was written by Asst. Deputy Atty. Gen. Walter Herdman, who said, "under the circumstances, the appointee who filled the vacancy following the death of the duly elected mayor in January would continue to service until November, 1975 election . . .'

He said under Section 152 of the Kentucky constitution, all vacancies must be filled in the next "regular election embracing the area in which the vacancy has occurred."

But the assistant deputy attorney general concluded: "There was no regular election within the meaning of said section of the constitution em-

May we love our neighbor as ourself. We ask Thee, Father, to help the sick and

Christ's Holy Name. Amen."

By HELEN PRICE STACY There's nothing quite like a Kentucky country Thanksgiving. Now there are magnificent city Thanksgiving holidays, I'm sure, but, just for old time's sake, let's go back to when the family finally made it to Grandma's for that turkey feast.

Grandma, being the independent lady that she was, wanted to do all the cooking by herself, but she seemed mighty pleased when our car drove up with the food basket roped onto the running

Jumping out of the car, I stopped just long enough to smooth the wrinkles from my stockings where the long underwear bunched at my ankles. Then I made a beeline for the back porch and the big kitchen.

The room was already warm and steamy, smelling of sage and onions. A tin cup hung from a nail on the wall by the oak bucket to satisfy the thirst with water from the well.

In the parlor, Grandpa was sitting in front of a wood fire, his ear bent to a radio in the corner. He jumped when I put my hands over hs eyes. He knew who it was behind him, but he guessed the name of every child on the creek before he got to mine.

Dad brought the basket of food in from the car. Mom and Grandma lifted out dishes and jars, while exclaiming over pumpkin and raisin pies. My mother even thought to bring along some vegetables she'd canned in the summer.

Just then, my uncle came in from the cold outdoors, wearing hunting clothes that smelled of the barn and curing animal hides. He and my brother talked about taking the hounds out for a rabbit hunt after dinner.

While the rest of the family was occupied, I stole away upstairs to dream of pretty clothes and parties. I spent a long time making paper dolls beautiful for any occasion and was startled when I heard a voice calling me from my world of dreams into the world of reality.

The oilcloth had already been wiped clean and placed on the big table. Setting it was my chore. Nine, thick, white plates were arranged with forks on the left, knives and spoons on the right. An extra dozen spoons were in a glass holder on the table and a big cloth napkin lay on each plate.

Grandma basted the turkey and spooned the dressing into a pan to bake along with the bird. After that, she started kneading dough for big, buttery biscuits, streaking her hair and apron in

"Amy," she would say to my mother, "put the potatoes on." Then she would turn to me and tell me to have Grandpa bring the butter and milk from the cellar, along with some apples.

Otuside, a light snow began to fall. A family, crowded in a farm truck, waves as they passed. In the distance, a horse and rider travelled slowly along the muddy, dirty road. Chickens ran squawling to the porch as my uncle brought an armload of stove wood for the kitchen.

As I wiped steam from the windows, I watched the snow put fresh cleanness on the hills, pencil tree limbs and make tiny, lacey caps on the palings of the fence.

The boys came down the path, their breath making spurts of steam in the cold. They stopped at a washpan near the water barrel to dip their hands and splash their faces.

Later, as we sat around the dining room table, Grandpa made us bow our heads as he said, "Our Heavenely Father, we thank Thee for this food and all our bounties. Bless this food to our body's use, forgive us our sins, guide

Appalachian Poor To Get Job Training With Union Aid

WASHINGTON-Nearly 1,500 unemployed poor people in the 12-state Appalachian area will get on-the-job training under a new $1.3 million contract with the AFL-CIO Appalachian Council, Labor Secretary Peter J. Brennan announced.

Under the $1,285,000 contract, local unions in the 12 states will help 1,475 jobless or underemployed persons get jb training opportunities.

The council will subcontract directly with employers for on-the-job training programs in the Appalachian regions of Kentucky, Alabama, Georgia, Maryland, Mississippi, North Carolina, Ohio, Pennsylvania, South Carolina, Tennessee, Virginia and West Virginia.

State employment service offices will provide necessary related services, such as recruitment, testing, counseling, referral to jobs, and the payment of training allowances where required.

The average cost per trainee is $870. Training in various occupations depends on employment demands in each area and type of training required.

The Labor Department's Manpower Administration has approved seven previous contracts with the AFL-CIO Appalachian Council. With more than $7.8 million in federal funds to date, the council has been responsible for the employment of 15,900 disadvantaged persons at an average cost per trainee of

Secretary Brennan said he "points with pride at the outstanding efforts and accomplishments of the council."

Oak Poisoning Reported In Kentucky Cattle

Several cases of "oak poisoning" have been diagnosed in Kentucky cattle recently, according to Duane Miksch, Extension veterinarian at Princeton with the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture.

"The exact material which is responsible has not been determined, but the condition in this area is usually associated with access to an abundant crop of acorns," says Miksch. "Some oak varieties are probably more of a problem than others."

Miksch notes that in range areas of the western United States, the same disease occurs when cattle eat buds and new leaves of oak trees. Last June, a snow storm occurred on the western slope of Colorado after cattle were turned out on the range. The grass was covered with snow and cattle were forced to browse on shrubs and trees. Many died from oak poisoning.

In Kentucky, the problem is more likely to occur in the fall. "Yearlings are most susceptible," says Miksch, "but some nursing calves have also been affected. Cattle may eat acorns or oak buds because of a shortage of other food, or they may like them and search them out. It is only when oak or acorns become a major part of the diet that the animals become sick. Symptoms may not develop until the cattle have eaten acorns for several weeks."

Early symptoms of oak poisoning are poor appetite, increased thirst, rough hair coat, crusty muzzle, tucked-up abdomen, scant dark feces, and frequent urination. Later, a black diarrhea havng a strong odor may develop. Damage to the kidneys may lead to the death of the animal.

For treatment to be effective, it must be started early, says Miksch. After the kidneys are severely damaged, stricken animals are not likely to respond to treatment.

"If you suspect there is oak poisoning in your herd, remove your cattle from the woods and begin feeding them grain, and consult your veterinarian," says Miksch. "If your cattle have access to oak trees and are not showing signs of poisoning, be sure they have adequate feed available. Also, watch for individual animals that may prefer acorns to better feed."

Dinner Honors Grads In Therapy Training

The Department of Respiratory Therapy of the Highlands Regional Medical Center held a dinner at the Plantation Motel in honor of technicians graduating from the newly established respiratory therapy technician training program.

Respiratory Therapy is a para-medical profession employed in the management, supervision and treatment of those patients suffering from acute or chronic respiratory illnesses. Some of the subjects covered during the training period were pharmacology, anatomy, pulmonary pathology, physiology, bacteriology, medical gas administration, aerosol-humidification, pulmonary function testing and arterial blood gas analysis.

Certificates were awarded to four graduates: Joe Arnett, Lois Kazee, Clark Slone, Paul Wells.

Consumer Comments

By ED W. HANCOCK (Attorney General)

Rising food prices, and especially meat prices, are everyone's beef these days. To save money, some consumers are turning to buying beef in bulk. Do they really save money? The answer issometimes. It may be just as inexpensive or even less expensive to buy separate cuts on sale in the supermarket or other stores where you know in advance exactly what you are getting.

But if you do decide to buy meat in bulk for your freezer, you should do the

1. Check for the USDA wholesomeness inspection mark, assuring safe, clean

2. Know the types of meat. "Prime" is the top quality; "Choice" is the next highest grade of meat and is most often found in retail markets. "Good" is the third highest grade of meat, followed by "Standard" and then "Commercial." Names such as "fancy," "Grade A," or "supreme" mean nothing.

3. Learn about yields, which tell you the amount of usable meat on a carcass. Yield 1 is the highest, yielding about 80 per cent edible meat. The higher the yield number, the higher the percentage of waste. Yield 4 should yield from 66 per cent to 70 per cent edible meat.

4. Know how much storage space you have available.

5. Study a meat-cut chart to learn the various cuts and how they are prepared. 6. Consider the different kinds of cuts your family prefers and buy the type of meat that will give you these cuts. For example, a hindquarter of beef will yield more steaks and roasts. The forequarter has more of the less-tender cuts, but also contains the rib roast.

7. Don't be misled by the hanging weight-that means the untrimmed weight. The actual take-home weight will be less. Find out how much less.

8. Inquire if the cutting and wrapping cost is included in the price per pound.

9. Above all, beware of bait and switch tactics. This office has had complaints that such tactics have been used by some Kentucky bulk beef dealers. The bait took the form of an advertisement offering meat at very low prices. A consumer who responded to the ad was shown fat, wasty, unattractive meat. The salesperson tried to discourage the consumer from buying the advertised meat and attempted to switch the consumer to much more expensive meat handing nearby.

If you suspect a company of bait and switch tactics, call the Attorney General's Consumer Protection Division on the Consumer Hotline, 1-800-372-2960, or write to Consumer Proection, The Capitol, Room 34, Frankfort, Kentucy.

Hensley-Osborne Vows Exchanged

Miss Valorie Diane Hensley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James David Hensley became the bride of Mr. Billy Stanton Osborne, son of Mr. and Mrs. Billy J. Osborne, of Eastern, at 7 p.m., September 14 at the Hueysville Church of Christ. The double-ring candlelight ceremony took place before an altar decorated with fireside baskets of pink gladoili, white mums and carnations.

The officiating minister was the Rev. Talmadge Allen, great-uncle of the bride. Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length gown of antique satin with an A-line skirt and long flowing chapel train. Clusters of dainty cotton venise lace flowers trimmed the bodice and the V-shaped neckline. The full sleeves with deep cuffs were trimmed with the same matching lace. She wore a matching cathedral-length mantilla and blusher attached to a small lace headpiece. The bride chose for her bouquet a covered Bible. The streamers were of pink rosebuds entwined in lace ribbon. Miss Janet Lorraine Anderson, of Kennedy, New York, served as maid of honor. She wore a pale pink floor-length, halter-type gown and white picture hat trimmed in matching pink ribbon. Mrs. Diana Pack, of Clarksville, Tennessee, aunt of the bride, served as matron of honor. She wore a gown of darker pink matching that of the maid of honor, and matching picture hat. Miss Betty Jayne Pack, of McDowell and Miss Patricia A. Smith, of Matewan, West Virginia served as bridesmaids. They wore gowns and hats identical to that of the matron of honor. Each carried a lace basket of pink roses and white carnations with long pink and white lace streamers.

Randy Moore, of Garrett, served his friends at Eastern.

cousin as best man. Jackie Pack of Clarksville, Tenn., Ricky Pack, of Eastern, and James A. Tackett, of Drift, served as groomsmen. Little Miss Casandra Slone, of Wayland served as flower girl. She wore a floor-length gown of pink and white trimmed in white lace. Her pink picture hat was trimmed in matching lace. She carried a lace basket filled with pink rose petals. Master Johnny Dale Pack, cousin of the bride, served as ring bearer. Master Freddy Ridener carried the brides cathedral length train.

Nuptial piano music was rendered by Miss Reva Carol Duff, of Hueysville. Miss Becky Stewart, of Langley and Miss Janet Anderson sang "More" and "We've Only Just Begun."

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Hensley chose a floor-length gown of pink nylon knit with matching accessories. Mrs. Osborne chose a floor-length gown of aqua polyester knit with matching silver accessories. Both mothers wore white orchid corsages.

Mrs. Saundra Branham, of Wayland, Kentucky acted as guest book attendant.

The reception following the ceremony was held at the home of the bride's parents. Punch, cake, nuts, and mints were served to the many guests by Mrs. JoAnn Hall, Mrs. Sue C. Pack, Mrs. Judy Roope, Mrs. Geneva Ridener, Miss Sharon Ridener, Mrs. Margaret Harmon, and Mrs. Polly Lou Bentley. Also acting as hostesses from out of town were Miss Mary Jayne Lee, Rochester, New York, Miss Barb Minning, Cincinnati, Ohio, Miss Sharon Isaac, Louisville, Ky., Miss Cindy Emmons, of Fleminsburg, Ky., Miss Mary Lou Matewon, of Xenia, Ohio, and Miss Beth Back, of Whitesburg, Ky.

System Updates ARH Health Care

Lexington, Ky.-Some of the most advanced work in medical data processing anywhere in the world is being performed in Appalachia, long considered one of the most economically depressed sections of the United States.

Appalachian Regional Hospitals, operating a network of 10 hospitals strung out over a 250-mile stretch covering the mountainous, coal mining regions of Kentucky, West Virginia and Virginia, has pioneered many improvements to upgrade rural health care since it was organized ten years ago.

The most recent innovation is a computer-based system to expeditiously handle patient drug requirements yet employing the most stringent safeguards to prevent the possibilities of over or under utilization of drugs, dangerous interaction of drugs, or the prescribing of drugs likely to be hazardous because of patient allergies or disease conditions.

Dr. David K. Heydinger, president of ARH, describes the system as "one of the most far reaching applications of modern technology in the medical field to improve individual health care."

With the new system, pharmacists utilizing computer-stored Patient Medication Profiles (PMP), are able to keep much closer observation of a person's drug history than heretofore. Each time a prescription is received for a patient his medication record is reviewed.

Another benefit of the computerized system is the provision for maintaining records of drugs by manufacturers' lot numbers so that in the event of a recall of a particular drug, patients using that medication can be readily identified.

R. Paul Baumgartner, Jr., ARH Director of Pharmaceutical Services, stated, "What we have achieved with our PMP system is actually an automation of known facts making it much easier for the pharmacist to pinpoint potential problems and provide early warnings to the patient's physician."

The ARH computer, a SPERRY UNIVAC 9480 computer system, is installed in the organization's headquarters in Lexington. In the memory bank of this computer are the medication histories of approximately 40,000 persons living in rural communities throughout Appalachia.

HOMEMAKERS CLUB MEETS

The North Prestonsburg Homemakers Club met Nov. 19 at the First Christian Church annex. The devotion was presented by Christine Spradlin. Glenna Cesco, president, presided over the business meeting.

The club voted to send small decorated fruit baskets to the clients of Meals on Wheels. The lesson for the evening was on candle making and candle holders. Homemade candles of various types were on display for the members to enjoy.

Christine Spradlin, hostess, served refreshments to Jane Combs, Betty Fannin, Dinah Webb, Belinda Herald, Glenna Cesco, Joan Gardner, Mary Hunt, Rhoda Brickley, Lois George, Thelma Wallen, Garnett Fairchild, and Mrs. Jonas Miller.

SENIOR CITIZENS CENTER FEATURES MRS. STOUT; BEGINS YULE SEASON

Mrs. Carolyn Stout, counselor for the Department of Human Resources, gave a program recently at the George P. Archer Senior Citizens Center on the services her agency provides to and for senior citizens. An informative question and answer period followed her presentation.

Two demonstrations in crafts were also given on that day. Mrs. Thelma Autore, of Bevinsville, demonstrated the art of papier mache, showing the step by step procedure for making a candle holder. Mrs. Gertrude Bradbury displayed garlands and decorations made of gift wrap tissue. This is a craft that is quite popular in England.

Among those attending the activities last week were: Mr. and Mrs. Walter King, Darcus Laferty, Amanda Laferty, Mattie Wallen, Fanny Branham, Grace Stanley, Stella Justice, Thelma Autore, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Bradbury, Bess Wells, Audilee Hall, Mr. and Mrs. G. Says State May Reject Legal Severance Tax Plans

FRANKFORT, Ky.—The state cannot reject a county's proposal for spending its share of state severance tax revenue as long as the expenditure is not contrary to law, the attorney general's office has

That is somewhat contrary to one argument used for the plan when the 1974 General Assembly was considering the so-called "MOUNTAIN Amendment" to bring some of the coal tax money back to the coal producing counties. Some backers then said the state finance commissioner would have the final say in how the money was spent in the counties.

But Asst. Atty. Gen. Charles Runyan said in an opinion that the finance commissioner must approve a fiscal court's plan for spending the money if it were not unlawful. If the proposal is lawful, Runyan said, the commissioner could do no more than ask a fiscal court to reconsider it.

If the fiscal court resubmits the same proposal after such a reconsideration, Runyan said, the commissioner must approve it as long as:

-It is among the type of public improvement listed in the 1974 law involved, or of the same kind or class as those

-It does not violate some other state

-The fiscal court complies with any proper regulations which the Finance Department adopts under the act.

"We believe the burden would be upon the commissioner, if he rejects a proposal, to point out, if he relies upon this condition, specifically wherein the state law would be violated," Runyan added.

Runyan said the department must adopt regulations governing the spending of the funds and establish guidelines to assure their proper use.

He said decisions of an advisory committee of legislators established in the law to review proposals for spending the money are advisory only, not binding.

He said it would also eliminate some headaches and foulups that have occurred during the initial phase of the computerization, in which many people never were mailed their permanent licenses and had to reapply.

The change is also tied into a new state law that goes into effect Jan. 1 in which a person's color photograph can be put on his driver's license. The clerks will also be able to handle that because the pictures will be taken with instant developing poloroid cameras.

Up The Big Sandy On Sunday

By JESSE STUART

Instead of going to church on this Sunday morning we decided to go for a ride in an area of Appalachia dear to us, especially to me, for it is the valley of my early ancestors, with relatives still living from the source to the headwaters of the Big Sandy River and its tributaries. We knew we would have a long day, so we left home very early. Beginning at Catlettsburg we took U.S. 23 up the fabled Big Sandy River. After leaving the home plant of the Ashland Oil and Refining Company, the green hills, covered with hardwood, oaks, weighted with a heavy crop of prolific leaves, the narrow gauged valley widened slightly. Our U.S. 23 could have been traversed in places by the pioneers who came this way on horse and mule back, on foot, pouring down this valley through Pound Gap from Virginia and North Carolina. They came by the hundreds driving their cattle, cows, sheep, hogs-even geeseeverything that could be driven into a new world where they planned to settle. Animals and people died on the way. Many were bitten in spring, summer and early autumn by copperheads and rattlers. These mountains were filled with snakes, wolves and bears when they first marched this way.

way down the Big Sandy from Pikeville to Catlettsburg, where the Big Sandy confluenced with the Ohio, small steam packet boats were used to navigate this river, to haul passengers and supplies. They went by packet as far up river as Pikeville. They went up the Big Sandy, then up its Levisa Fork. There were a half dozen shoals where men got off, waded and helped shove the boat up and over. These had to be small boats.

I wonder here where the first road ran, who walked this way, men, women, and where they settled and where they sleep in unmarked graves, mostly in hilltop cemeteries. They were the people who pioneered this rugged land-my landthrough generations of people, eating foods fed from the sustenance of this stubborn soil that grows the tough-butted white oaks, the hardwoods, yellow poplars and the pines. It grew a rugged

Our U. S. 23 is deeply embedded in channels cut through these hills now-we don't go up and over and around on mule and horseback and on foot. We can travel on a light breakfast or no breakfast. Our ancestors used to carry their grain like the Roman soldiers. They carried a small grinder like an old coffee mill in which they ground the corn into meal. They stirred and mixed, used bear grease and baked it on a board over outdoor fires. I think people here, instead of getting softer, would like to do this again instead of being enslaved to all the modern conveniences. This is a matter of choice.

The tops of high hills seem to shake their heads in a hazy mist. Somewhere over there is the Levisa Fork. No little steam packets now. These hills seem to move, to roll, to speak. They want to tell me something. I want to hear it. These Big Sandy hills are my hills. All the way up and out among hilltops, slopes, valleys, where my dead lie unnamed, unkown and forgotten. They went back to this earth that made them-from before 1800 until now. Cars, cars, cars, now speeding by on this Sabbath! Curves, curves, curves! Road embedded in channels cut through stone, down, down,

Big Sandy couldn't hold all of us now. For one, two and three centuries where have the people gone? They have spread out and over a North American world! The valley narrows. Hills are closing in more and more. Where and how did our pioneer ancestors come this way in the first two decades of their continuous migrations? I see little corn patches now, high upon the mountainside. Not many of these anymore but they're still here. Some people are really industrious. Someone can climb and use a hoe up there on those steeps.

Naomi is driving the car and I am writing this in the car. I'm getting firsthand observations. Over there to our left is Paintsville, one of the most, if not the most, attractive towns or cities on the Big Sandy and its long Levisa Fork. My grandfather Nathan Hylton, my mother's father, was born here October 29, 1851. Cynthia Mead, my father's mother, was born in or near Paintsville in 1841. And here is the old Preston cemetery where Later, after people had settled all the my ancestors, the Prestons, lie buried. I'm direct lineal sixth generation descendent of Nathan Preston, Revolutionary War hero. So here is the land of my heritage! How many of the families now returned to dust had, and many of the living here have, the same blood in our veins?

"There's nothing I can do. I'm just one person."

If you feel one person is too insignificant to help make the world a better place, then work together with others at your local church or synagogue. Example: in Montana, one congregation was disturbed by the lack of adequate housing for senior citizens in the area. Through its perseverance, a non-profit building with 111 homes is now a reality. There are lots of things you can do, too. The God we worship expects more from us than sympathy and good intentions.

Start treating your brothers and sisters like brothers and sisters.

New State Overtime Rate May Be Costly To Hospitals

FRANKFORT, Ky.-Hospital employes are among those who must be paid an overtime rate of one-and-one-half the regular wage hour rate for all hours worked over 40 in any consecutive sevenday period, the state attorney general's office said in an opinion released Mon-

The opinion was sought by John C. Darsie Jr., special counsel for the University of Legal Counsel. He said a letter requesting the opinion that if the University of Kentucky hospital had to pay employes under the state instead of under federal law procedures, its "cost of operation will probably be increased in excess of $100,000."

THANKSGIVING DINNER HELD AT ARCHER SENIOR CENTER

A Thanksgiving Dinner was held November 13, at the George P. Archer Senior Citizens Center. A wide variety of food was offered, ranging from chicken and dumplings to cakes of every

Among those senior citizens attending were: Vita Stewart, Willie Warrens, Grace Stanley, Dora Mitchell, Mr. and Mrs. G. R. On November 20, Mrs. Thelma Autore, of Bevinsville, will present a demonstration on paper mache. Also, a representative of the local office of the Kentucky Employment Service will be there to answer questions on their programs.

ENJOY CRAFT DEMONSTRATION

Mrs. Thelma Autore, of Bevinsville, presented a demonstration on paper mache at the weekly meeting of senior citizens in the Wheelwright-Weeksbury area. The meetings are sponsored by the George P. Archer Senior Citizen Center. Mrs. Stella Hicks, of Wheelwright, served as hostess for the occasion, providing a delicious prune cake for Those attending were: Lora McKnight, Osalene Triplett, Marie Hall, Margaret Jones, Caroline Jones, Lucy Kitchen, Verna Hall, Elsie Collins, Causby Branham, Ida Burke, Mary Belle Little, Lola Johnson, Hazel Crisp.

The meetings are held every Thursday in a room in the Big Sandy Health Care Offices. To arrange for transportation, contact Glenda Hall at 886-8386 in Prestonsburg.

"We are presently trying to adjust our work schedules to try and keep down to a minumum the overtime," said Don Boyanowski, a financial administrator at the UK Hospital.

Currently the hospital pays overtime for the personnel for more than eight hours a day or more than 80 hours worked in a two-week span. "We're a seven-day-per-week operation, and there's a big difference," Boyanowski

In his response, Deputy Atty. Gen. Martin Glazer said hospital employes must be paid under procedures set forth by House Bill 477 which went into effect in June rather than under the Federal Fair Labor Standards Act.

The new state law requires that overtime be paid to all employes working longer than 40 hours in a consecutive seven-day period with the exception of certain agricultural, retail, restaurant hotel or motel employes; professional or administrative workers, government employes and salesmen.

Glazer said under this exemption hospital employes who work in executive, administrative, supervisory or professional capacity under definition of the law would be exempt.

Presumably, this would exempt registered nurses but not practical

Glazer also said the state law is "more restrictive and more beneficial to the employe" because the federal law states "that no provision of this chapter or any order thereunder shall excuse compliance with any federal law or municipal ordinance establishing a minimum wage higher than the minimum wage established under this chapter of a maximum work week lower than the maximum workweek established under this chapter . . ."

The new law applies to all hospitals in

Consumer Comments

Hagewood, Prestonsburg; James A.

By Atty. Gen. Ed W. Hancock

Benjamin Franklin once said he wished that the bald eagle had not been chosen as the official United States bird. "The turkey," he said, "is a much more respectable bird." Mr. Franklin did not get his way, as you know, and the turkey is most at home on the Thanksgiving

Let's talk turkey, as they say. There are two things to look for when you buy turkey: grade, or quality, and class, or age. The highest quality birds are U.S. Grade A. This means that the turkey is fully fleshed and meaty, well-finished and attractive in appearance, with few defects such as bruises, tears or pinfeathers. Grade B birds may be less attractive and not as meaty.

But the grade of the turkey does not indicate how tender the bird is. For tenderness, check the class, or age, of the turkey. Young, tender meat is the most suitable for barbecuing, frying, broiling, steaming or roasting. Young turkeys may be labeled "young turkey," "fryerroasting," "young hen" or "young tom." The mature, less tender meat classes would be preferable for stewing, baking or in soups and salads. Mature turkeys may be labeled "mature," "yearling" or "old turkey."

A turkey is perishable and should be hard-frozen until time to thaw. Cook promptly after thawing and cook completely at one time. Never partially cook then store and finish cooking at a later date. Whole turkeys may be safely stored up to twelve months.

If you have a consumer problem or consumer question, call the Attorney General's Consumer Protection Division. Kentucky residents may use the toll-free hotline by dialing 1-800-372-2960. Club Notes

The regular meeting of the Prestonsburg Junior Woman's Club was held November 21 at the Floyd County Library with Janice Allen, president, presiding.

Mrs. James R. Allen, program chairman, presented Mrs. Olin Prather, of Prestonsburg, as guest-speaker of the evening. Mrs. Prather shared with clubwomen her ideas regarding her hobby of arts and crafts. Many items were on display, and Mrs. Prather gave explanations regarding the making of each item.

In the business session, Earlene Spears, recording secretary, read a leave-of-absence request from Kay Cooley. Martha Johnson, third vicepresident, reported that a total of 5731/2 hours had been accumulated to date on only six club projects-Peppermint Park, Old-Fashioned Days, International Visitor, Horse Show, Membership Tea and Bike-a-thon. In the president's report, Mrs. Allen told of activities at the district meeting which six members attended and at which the club won the District Membership Award presented by the governor, Mrs. Forrest Frazier. Mrs. Lillian Wheeler, of the Paintsville Junior Woman's Club, was elected junior director. The Seventh district junior project is a $250 scholarship to which the clubs in the district will contribute $50 each. She also gave a membership report of 50 actives and 5 leave-of-absence members. Mrs. Allen told of the excellent work of Becki Radjunas, immediate past corresponding secretary, who had just left the Executive Board and the club because of her residential move to Ashland, Mrs. Paul Clark Combs was chosen by the executive board to fill the vacancy of corresponding secretary, a position she assumed Thursday evening. On department reports, Conservation

Chairman Helena Johnson, reported on fund-raising activities for the past month which included a booth at Red-White-and Blue Day, a 21/2-day rummage sale, and candles and memoboards sales. Service activities included planting of crocus bulbs at Prestonsburg High School traffic islands, purchasing of two bike racksone for parking lot downtown and for Prestonsburg Elementary; purchasing of park benches-two for the courthouse lawn and one for the parking lot downtown; purchasing of two dogwood trees for Courthouse lawn, donation of clothes to the Clothes Closet at Prestonsburg Elementary and Child Welfare, signing of proclamation by Mayor Goebel for Energy Savings Day on December 2 and an aluminum collection drive for Floyd County Schools in January. Education Chairman Thelma Laferty reported fund-raising activity of the booth at Red-White and Blue Day and the up-coming "Breakfast with Santa" on Dec. 14 at the Prestonsburg Elementary cafeteria from 9-12 a.m. Service activities included presentation of a $119 check to Prestonsburg Elementary for workbooks and supplies for indigent firstgraders, serving of sweets and coffee to faculty at Prestonsburg Elementary during American Education Week, October 26-November 1 and the present construction of a clothes closet at Prestonsburg Elementary.

Home Life Chairman Lora Hamilton reported on the spaghetti supper, the department's fund-raising activity of month. Service activities included a special program by Bobby Chaffin and Terry Hobans on drug and alcohol programs being offered to Floyd county schools, participated in the heart clinic at Floyd County Health Department on November 12-13, sponsored the third annual March of Dimes Walk-a-thon on November 2 and presented awards to three walkers on November 18.

The Arts chairman, Nancy Spradlin, reported on the Style Show held at Jenny Wiley, November 7. She also told of department activities for the month of December which include float for Christmas parade, securing judges for Christmas pageant and the Christmas reading for children to be held at the Floyd County Library.

New Year's Eve dance report by Martha Johnson reminded clubwomen of new regulations for dance. Bike-a-thon Chairman Geraldine Hall told of more than $1400 collected thus far, and she presented a carriage throw to Barbara Robinson for collecting the most money for the Bike-a-thon.

It was approved by the membership to purchase a tape-recorder-player for the Floyd County Emergency and Rescue Squad, to assist the Jenny Wiley Drama Association in its fund-raising activities, to check into facts relating to the establishment of an Arts and Crafts museum in Prestonsburg, to purchase a full-coverage insurance policy for a three-year period, and to collect canned food from membership for a Christmas basket. Nell Lawson and Leah Harris volunteered as co-chairman of the telephone committee and it was reported that Marty Hicks, rebate chairman, had sold 12 carriage throws made for KFWC by Churchill Weavers of Berea.

Clubwomen brought the following items to the meeting: textbooks for the International Book Project, towels for the Best for Vets Project, and recent magazines to be distributed to local nursing homes and hospitals.

It was announced that on December 2 an orientation for new members will be held; on December 12, the showing of a Cataract film at the Floyd County Library. The regular December meeting of the club will be a Christmas party at the home of Nancy Spradlin.

The Jamestown (Ky.) Christian Stutzenberger, nephews of the bride, Church was the scene at 7:30 p.m. on Saturday, October 26 of the wedding of Miss Margaret King Pruitt, daughter of Mrs. Henry Edward Pruitt, of Jamestown, and the late Mr. Pruitt, and Mr. Jerry Allen Fultz, son of Mrs. Ada Mosley, Wayland, Kentucky. H. B. Popplewell officiated at the double-ring ceremony before an altar decorated with garlands of fall leaves, bronze, yellow, and gold miniature chrysanthemums. and lighted cathedral candles in branched candelabra.

A program of pre-wedding music was presented by Mrs. Linda P. Stutzenberger, organist, and sister of the bride, and Mr. David R. Stutzenberger, soloist. Mr. Johnny King read "The Desiderata" and Miss Diana Rogers, a bridesmaid, sang "The Wedding Prayer".

The bride, given in marriage by her brother-in-law, Mr. Scott Edward Hamm, Jr., wore an ivory gown of polyester satapeau. The high collar rose from a bodice of cotton venise lace. Small satin ribbons entwined with the lace on the bodice and defined the empire waist. The A-line skirt fell to a hem flounce of lace and ribbon. A row of satin buttons and a large satin bow at the high waist accented the back of the gown. A chapellength illusion veil trimmed in matching venise lace complemented the traditional bridal gown. On the high collar she wore an antique cameo pin, a family heirloom, and carried an arm bouquet of ivory dried flowers with a detachable gardenia

Miss Kay Bernard, Russell Springs, Ky., maid of honor, wore a polyester dress of autumn red. Ecru clung lace trimmed the bodice in a bib effect and formed a high Victorian collar. The ecru cluny lace also accented the long sleeve at the wrist. A band of fall flowers encircled the natural waist and the wrist. She carried an arm bouquet of dried fall

The bridesmaids were Mrs. Fred Hensley, Morehead, Ky., and Miss Diana Rogers, Jamestown. Junior bridesmaid was Miss Laura Kathryn Hamm, niece of the bride. They wore costumes and carried flowers identical to the honor attendant's. Elizabeth and Darlene Fultz, of Wayland, nieces of the groom, were flower girls. They wore long ivory dresses and carried baskets of fall flower

Mr. Clabe Mosley, step-father of the groom, served as best man. Ushers were Mr. Dick Hughes and Mr. Johnny King, both of Mount Olivet, Ky., Mr. David Wiggins, nephew of the groom, Linden, Alabama, and Mr. Rodger Fultz, of Wayland, brother of the groom. Scott Edward Hamm, III and Daniel Pruitt-

College Education Help Plan Offered To Military Enlistees

A new program designed to provide college-level educational opportunities for military enlistees was revealed last week to approximately 70 high school guidance counselors from Fayette county, Eastern Kentucky, Southern Ohio and West Virginia.

Called Project AHEAD (Army Help for Education and Development), the new program offers young men and women admission to participating colleges or universities at the same time the individuals are accepted for enlistment into the Army or any other branch of military service.

Captain Jerry Wallace, commander of the Lexington Zone, Louisville District Army Recruiting Command, introduced Project AHEAD during the special educators' conference held at Bluegrass Army Depot in Lexington.

"Project AHEAD ties existing educational programs together under a single plan which appeals to educators, parents and the educationally motivated young man or woman," Captain Wallace stated

"It offers the opportunity for the military volunteer to enter a "home" college and the military at the same time. The participating college opens and maintains an active record file on the individual and assigns a counselor to the person while he or she is in the Army or other service," the captain explained.

"The college counselor helps plan the student soldier's course of study and advises him on which courses to pursue among those offered on or near his assigned duty station or military post. All college credits so earned by the soldier are subsequently accepted by the "home" college, as are credits earned for successful completion of Army schools. After discharge from the service, the participating college may enroll the veteran on a fulltime basis, or, transfer all credits to another institution of his choice," he continued.

Under the program, individuals who enter the Army for three years can reportedly expect to complete up to two years of college and to learn a technical skill at the journeyman level of proficiency.

CARD OF THANKS

The family of the late Allen W. Akers acknowledges with deep appreciation the kindness of so many friends who stood by them during the illness and upon the death of their loved one; especially, the ministers for their comforting words, the doctors, nurses and staff of Highlands Medical Center, all who brought food and sent floral offerings, and the Hall Brothers Funeral Home for its kind and efficient services.

College Seeks $1.3 Million

Pikeville, Ky.—A $1.3 million fundraising campaign for Pikeville College has been announced by John Waddell, college provost. In making the announcement, Waddell said the $1.3 million was the minimum goal set by college officials.

According to Waddell the long-range fund-raising program has been established at $3.5 million; however, he emphasized the $1.3 million goal as the immediate need for the 85-year-old school. "We adopted the first priority goal to ease an over-burdened operating budget, to eliminate existing financial obligations.

"Despite the great gains that have been made during the past several years," said Waddell, "Pikeville College today confronts the greatest challenge in its history—a challenge that has been created in part by the very success of its program."

Nearly half of the 2.4 million increase in the labor force between March 1973 and March 1974 consisted of single persons, according to the U. S. Labor Department's Bureau of Labor Statistics.

By C. "OLLIE" ROBINSON Prestonsburg, McDowell and Wheelwright all recorded wins Friday

McDowell picked up its fourth straight win by defeating Sheldon Clark, 79 to 71, as Rick Roberts and Terry Tuttle combined for a total of 45 points. Roberts pumped in 25 points and 16 rebounds and Tuttle connected for 20 points. Sheldon Clark is now 1-1.

The Prestonsburg Blackcats rolled to their third straight win by defeating Millard at Millard, 71 to 58. Robbie Herrick paced the Blackcats with 26 points. The Cats trailed at the end of the first quarter but took a 29 to 27 lead at halftime as Dennis Walker connected on 15-foot jumper at the sound of the buzzer. In the second half Prestonsburg played a tighter defense and a spread offense and pulled away in the secondhalf. Gormie Collins was a victim of the scorekeeper. When he drew his fourth foul, Coach Setser removed him fron the lineup. Later on returning to the game, he was startled as the official scorekeeper ruled that he had five personal fouls. At that, he had a good night, scoring 13 points and 13 rebounds. It was discovered later the foul should have been charged to Number 54 of Millard. Kippy McNally also fouled out scored 15 points.

The Betsy Layne Bobcats were a victim as the result of a call with 1:30 remaining in the game against Mullins. Mullins had six men on the floor while play was going on, but Betsy Layne did not get the technical shot, only the ball out of bounds, and the Bobcats lost to Mullins, 72 to 71. Ricky Joe Roberts led all scorers with 33 points.

The Wheelwright Trojans opened their season by winning over Salyersville, 82 to 59. Wheelwright led at halftime 34 to 32, but broke open the close game in the second half by outscoring Salyersville 23-16 in the third quarter and 25-11 in the fourthquarter. Leading a four-player contingent in double figures for Wheelwright was Jeff Riley with 20, followed by Gary Isaacs with 18. Dale Howard placed Salyersville with 15

Saturday night, the Allen Central Rebels gained their third win of the season as they downed Salyersville, 63 to 55. Rick Pack took scoring honors with 26 points and 16 rebounds, followed by Mike Howard with 11 and Brent Patton with 10. Salyersville was led in scoring by Dale Minix with 25 points.

The McDowell Daredevils rolled to their fifth win without a loss in downing Feds Creek, 76 to 53. The Betsy Layne Bobcats suffered their second straight setback in a thriller, losing to Powell County, one of the top teams in the 14th region by a score of 81 to 76.

12 Parks To Serve Dinner on Holiday

Twelve Kentucky state resort parks have set out to free housewives from the hours of stuffing and basting that go into their annual battle with the Thanksgiving The dining rooms at Jenny Wiley, Kentucky Dam Village, Lake Barkley, Rough River Dam, Barren River Lake, Cumberland Falls, General Butler, Lake Cumberland, Carter Caves, Greenbo Lake, Natural Bridge and Pine Mountain State Resort Parks will be, in the words of one park chef, the 'hiding place" from the kitchen for housewives this Thanksgiving.

Labor Department evaluations indicate that the Public Employment Program designed to provide transitional jobs and needed public services during an economic slowdown, has had an impact both in reducing unemployment and in expanding useful local public services.

Funeral services were conducted Thursday at 10 a.m. at the United Baptist Church at Banner with the Revs. Johnny King, Buel Ferguson, and Luther Conn officiating. Burial was made in the Davidson Memorial Gardens at Ivel under the direction of Hall Brothers Funeral Home.

At a pre-summit meeting on inflation in Washington, D. C. last month, Dr. Harold V. Webb, National School Boards Association executive, told high education officials that "cutting the federal education budget will not substantially reduce inflation." He went on to explain that "schools are placed at the end of the business cycle and absorb inflation without adding to it . . . because as a consumer of goods and services, education promotes economic productivity without passing inflation to other consumers."

'Facility of Year' Award to Mt. Manor

The Kentucky Association of Health Care Facilities held its annual convention at Stouffer's Inn, Louisville, November 21-22. Mountain Manor Nursing Home, Prestonsburg Kentucky was represented by Eleanor Robinson, administrator, Rita Rambler, director of nursing, and Eunice Hall, assistant director.

During the convention recognition was given to outstanding homes and individuals. Mountain Manor Nursing Home, Prestonsburg, Ky. was honored by receiving "The Facility of the Year Award." The president of KAHCF will be visiting this facility soon to make a formal presentation of the award.

IN APPRECIATION

We, the family of Earl Webb, wish to thank everyone who helped in any way during the illness and upon the death of our loved one. Our deepest thanks go to Dr. Lowell Martin and the nursing staff at Our Lady of the Way Hospital and to all who sent flowers and called at the funeral home to share our sorrow. Our special thanks to Rev. Lawrence Baldridge and the choir from the First Baptist Church for the beautiful evening service, also our deepest gratitude to Rev. Berton Howard, Rev. Woodrow Pack and Irlan Duff for their consoling words and beautiful singing. Our thanks to the Hall Brothers for their kindness and consideration at a time when we needed it most.

In the early 1800s, many Eastern Kentucky families traveled in groups to settle in Sangamon county, Illinois; other colonies traveled to Southeast Missouri.

Kentucky has been selected a first place winner in the category "Outstanding Example of Multiple Use of Highway Right-of-Way in Urbanand Rural Areas" in the U.S. Department of Transportation's seventh annual The Highway and Its Environment contest. The recognition was for the preservation, improvement or enhancement of the environment adjacent to highways.

Frontier Christmas Weekend To Revive Old Christmas Customs

"Frontier Christmas," a week-end celebration to be held December 7-8 in Washington, Ky., will feature Yuletide customs of the 1790's, traditional Christmas dining and Kentucky crafts demonstrations.

Sponsored by Old Washington, Inc., the eighth annual festival is centered around a walking tour of restored homes, inns and churches of the Mason county community.

The open house hours are from 11:00 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Saturday and 12 noon to 4:30 Sunday. Visitors may browse among the restored buildings, such as Paxton Inn, an overnight carriage stop built in 1810, restored by the Limestone Chapter

American Standard Expected To Take December 'Vacation'

Rumors that American Standard Co. will be leaving Paintsville are unfounded, according to the plant manager, but the company may shut down operations temporarily in December.

Jim Hulsman said the housing industry has cut down on its "starts" by about 50 per cent over last year, and this has a direct influence on the operation of American Standard.

Starts are defined as housing projects which are under way to the point of needing basic building materials, including plumbing fixtures such as the ones produced by American Standard. Hulsman said the company plans to make an announcement this week concerning the possibility of shutting down operations completely in December.

He said the company does expect to be manufacturing plumbing fixtures in January and to continue operations at the plant.

of the Daughters of the American Revolution and furnished in antiques of the period. Homemade bread and hot apple cider will be available at the inn.

Washington Hall, a restored hotel built in 1800, will feature an art exhibit. Cookies, candies, pies and hot chocolate will be offered for sale to visitors. The nearby Harbeson Restaurant, built in 1800 and restored by the Mason County Historical Society, has on its menu for the Frontier Christmas week-end such traditional Christmas dishes as transparent pie and old ham. The Cane Brake, an antique shop and museum devoted to frontier scout Simon Kenton, has antique kettles, coin silver spoons and early Kentucky furniture.

At Mefford's Fort, a restored log cabin built in 1795 from timbers of a flatboat. there will be a beeswax candle-dipping display. There will also be exhibitions of craft-making in the Methodist Museum and Presbyterian church-weaving quilting, and broom-making.

Kidney Foundation Candy Sale Drive Over Goal

The Kidney Foundation of Central Kentucky candy sale recently concluded in Floyd County was a success, a total of 288 Tootsie Roll banks sold in the county

The candy sale is the major source of funds for the Foundation and its programs. The Kidney Foundation of Central Kentucky has provided four kidney machines to the home dialysis unit to be used by patients who may not be able to acquire their own machine. The Foundation has helped to purchase a perfusion machine which will preserve a kidney for 24 hours before transplantation. The organization also provides identification tags to patients so they can be identified as people who need special attention in the event of an accident. A portion of the money goes to support research to find the cause and prevention of kidney diseases.

Mrs. Bruce Spradlin, Floyd county chairman, said that in Kentucky about 75 persons are waiting for transplants. The average wait is nearly a year.

Inmate Receives Jaycee Award

By HERB BROCK FRANKFORT, Ky.-A Kentucky inmate has been named the first recipient of a newly created national Jaycee award recognizing outstanding contributions to the organization's alcohol education campaign.

George Maggard of Louisville, an officer of the inmate Jaycee chapter at the Kentucky State Reformatory near LaGrange, recently was awarded the "Operation Threshhold" Award for leading a campaign (by the sane name) seeking to rehabilitate and reform alcoholics and problem drinkers.

said his "scrapes with the law," which included a conviction on an armed robbery charge, stemmed at least in part from bouts with the liquor bottle. Thievery was needed, he said, to finance a growing dependency on alcohol. "Most alcoholics-whether they're inmates or free men-refuse to admit they have a problem. And it wasn't until I came to prison that I had time, and plenty of it, to look at myself and my problem honestly," Maggard added.

Maggard, in a telephone interview,

In dual roles as chairman of the reformatory's Alcholics Anonymous chapter and leader of the Operation Threshhold campaign, Maggard has spent much of his time counseling in-

According to Steve Smith, associate superintendent for treatment, participation in either of Maggard's programs frequently boosts an inmate's chances for parole. Conversely, the parole board often denies parole, stipulation that an inmate first get involved in such programs.

"Parole or no parole, participation (which, unless prescribed by the parole board, is voluntary) helps alcoholics cope with the outside world filled with liquor stores and the same crowd pressuring, tempting," said Al Linder, treatment coordinator for the Bureau of Corrections.

According to Maggard, 75 per cent of the men in Alcoholics Anonymous and the Operation Threshhold campaign have gone on to become counselors in alcohol or drug-related education programs upon their release from prison.

Green Thumbers Offer Talent, Experience and Winning Hands

BRIDGING THE GAP--Judge Otis Caldwell and three area youths cross the swinging bridge over Christy Creek in Rowan County. The bridge was erected through Green Thumb, Inc., federally funded program under Title IV of the Older Americans Act by men 65 years and over recruited by the Department for Human Resources' Bureau for Manpower Services.

By R. G. ROLLINS

productivity for minimum cost . . . that's the dream of every enterprising businessman. And that's what Rowan county is getting from Green Thumb, Inc., a federally funded program that employs men 65 years and older, recruited by the Department for Human Resources (DHR), Bureau for Manpower

"Where in all the world can you get this accumulated experience and dedication, and for only two dollars an hour?" asks County Judge Otis Caldwell.

Funded under Title IX of the Older Americans Act, Green Thumb, Inc. employs men to restore and reclaim natural resources. They assist in community improvement projects and are ready to offer their talents and experience in any instance where an estabished service is not available.

Since its beginning in Rowan county, the 13 members employed in the program have built 24 bridges, cleared and erected a picnic area on a 10-acre site near Farmers, Ky. and cut out more than 100 miles of roadside brush.

One particular project is viewed with special pride by the Green Thumbers. Spanning Christy Creek is a new 276-foot suspension bridge. When word reached MOREHEAD, Ky.-The greatest the County Judge's office that the habitants on the far side of the creek were having difficulty fording it in icy weather and were cut off when spring floods poured down the valley, he promptly called on Green Thumb for a solution.

> "I had some reservations," says Judge Caldwell, "but it wasn't long before I began to see the importance of this Judge Caldwell relates how the men reported for work each morning in fair and inclement weather and how they went about their tasks with all the enthusiasm of men years younger than they. "They're not clock watchers," he says. "Many a time we had to go out there and remind them that it was time for them to knock off.'

"I'll tell you this," he says. "This county couldn't afford to hire these people and pay them what they're Hershal Moore, superintendent of the crew, sums up the attitude of the men. "We've grown up in Rowan county, and the land and the people have been good to us. Now that we've got leisure time we can repay them by making the county a more attractive place for the younger generation."

"WE CAN WALK WHERE HE DID"

I came to this community 27 years ago. I was a complete stranger to the people I later got to know. Their labor and friendliness made this community glow. There was one man, you all know his name. He was solid as a rock high on the mountain above, meek as a lamb in the valleys below. Respect for his neighbors did abound. A lot of people in my life I have known; not one could measure up to him, surely not I, and I'm not sure about you. Because he was ready for any task, daylight or after darkness falls. That was just some of the many other things that made this man so sound.

He was sick a while before he took his bed. I would go and see him, he would try to talk, but it was low. I would shake his hand, but he was too weak to raise his head. As he lay there, life slowly slipping away. But his weakening heart would not let him stay. So the Great Master called him away to a home to stay. He was a builder here below. But the mansion he is going to is like a drop of rain in the sea. Nothing on this earth there can be, as he shall see.

Though his little wife never left his side, her life will be empty, now he is gone. His and her children have done their best, they can take pride with ease that he is at rest.

So this man I came to know showed me what a natural man is supposed to be. His name is Allen Wince Akers-but still "Uncle Allen" to me.

> MONT GIBSON, JR. Dana, Ky.

The wife of Daniel Morgan, Revolutionary War general (Morgan County was named for him), lived in Kentucky 10 years after her husband's death and is buried in Logan county.

Pike Truckers Ask Court For Road Damage Fund

More than 200 truckers asked Pike Circuit Court this week to establish a $50 million trust fund for possible use in repairing road damages in Pike county. The request was in the form of an answer to a state suit seeking $3 million from the coal operators and truck drivers for allegedly damaging and destroying highways through overloaded vehicles.

The answer contended approximatly $50 million had been wrongfully diverted by the state Transportation Department from highway use during the decade from fiscal 1963 to fiscal 1974.

The truckers asserted the state had failed to expend any money on roads in Pike county and the $50 million was the accumulation representing what could have been spent in the area.

"Such diversion of funds constitutes a fraud on the answering defendants, others of their class and the citizens of Pike county," thr truckers' answer said.

It asked the court to set up a trust fund and compel the state Transportation Department to spend what's necessary to build, improve and restore the damaged

It contended the state's alleged refusal to expend money has been part of a policy not to do so on roads where coal is hauled.

The answer also asked the Pike court to dismiss the state's suit which seeks not only 33 million damages, but also an injunction against all overweight truck

The state's suit was filed against more than 500 persons and firms. One estimate is that 240 replied in court with the latest action.

A highway marker in Daviess county states that Robert Triplett built the first railway in Kentucky in 1826 and was the first to get coal substituted for wood as fuel on river boats below Louisville.

The Arab oil embargo increased your electric bill.

Here's why!

The Arab oil embargo had a political purpose. It also had some international side effects, which America did not escape.

It spurred our inflation from a trot to a gallop. It focused the spotlight on our energy problems.

As oil became short the demand for coal grew. Which should be no problem because we're sitting on about one half the world's supply of coal.

But that's the trouble. We're sitting on it. This country isn't mining any more coal today than it did in 1920.

Result?

The demand for coal is greater than the amount being mined. Couple that with across the board inflation and the price of coal skyrockets.

That's critical.

Because, today, fuel is the biggest single part of your electric bill.

The cost of a ton of coal has jumped over 600%.

So, your electric bill shows a big "Fuel Cost Adjustment" and you pay more. Together we can do something about that.

Let's let those who represent us in government know that we want all the action and legislation necessary to make it practical and possible to mine and use more coal.

America has the coal. If we dig enough, the price will come down.

If we can save on the cost of a ton of coal, you'll save on your electric bill.

Because the "Fuel Cost Adjustment" works both ways you know.

Directors of ALCOR Elect Rosenberg

John Rosenberg, of Prestonsburg, was elected chairman of the board of directors of Appalachian Leadership and Community Outreach, Inc. at the fall board meeting, succeeding William S. Hayes, president of Alice Lloyd College.

Mr. Rosenberg is presently director of the Appalachian Research & Defense Fund in Prestonsburg, an organization that provides free legal services to people in need. He has an A. B. in chemistry from Duke University and the L. L. B. from the University of North Carolina School of Law. In 1965 he received the Attorney General's Sustained Superior Performance Award. He, his wife Jean, and their son, Michael, have lived in Prestonsburg since February, 1970.

Appalachian Leadership and Community Outreach is a program of rural uplift which works through six eastern Kentucky colleges to reach and to serve the people of Appalachia. ALCOR provides a link between specialized service agencies and the people whom they serve.

Several hundred college students spend their summers living and working with people in the 20-county service area of eastern Kentucky. They implement programs of recreation, education, health, nutrition and community development. The students do their work in 62 community centers where they reach from 12,000 to 16,000 people each yer. ALCOR is funded by private contributions and is dedicated to providing community services to people in isolated

The board of directors of ALCOR, Inc. includes William S. Hayes, president of Alice Lloyd College, Pippa Passes; James Hotchkiss, president of James Hotchkiss Associates, Chicago; John Leslie, executive director of the National Area Development Institute, Lexington; James Boswell, president of Cumberland College, Williamsburg; Troy Eslinger, president of Lees Junior College, Jackson: Bruce Wilson, director of Southeast Community College, Cumberland; Mahlon Miller, president of Union College, Barbourville; Stephen Pollak, attorney, Washington, D.C.; Marvin Jolly, director of Hazard Community College, and Mr. Rosenberg.

(UK College of Agriculture) Autumn time is apple time and probably no other fruit grown in America or anywhere else is surrounded by such a wealth of sentimental recollection or folklore. The fruit is celebrated in ancient Greek, Roman, Hebrew, and Scandinavian literature and, in the still existing memorabilia of these peoples, goddesses contended for them, dragons were set to watch over them and only heroes were worthy of plucking them from the tree.

tempted with an apple and Solomon sang of this fruit in his beautiful cantos: "Stay me with flagons, comfort me with ap-

According to prose Edda, an age-old collection of Scandinavian stories, the gods kept a box of apples handy. When they felt old age approaching, they had only to eat one to become young again. In an oblique sort of way, this may account for the saying, "An apple a day keeps the doctor away." And attesting otherwise to the greatness of this fruit, the person one holds dearest is referred to as "the apple of his eye."

Opinions From Office Of Attorney General

Foster L. Haunz, city attorney for Windy Hills, reported the operating of a motorcycle or trailbike within city limits by a child under the age of 16. He asked if the parent of the juvenile could be charged with authorizing or knowingly permitting a motor vehicle owned or controlled by him to be driven by a person having no legal right to do so. Since an operator's license is required in the driving of a motorcycle or trailbike, it is the opinion of the Attorney General's Office that any person who knowingly provides a minor with a motor vehicle to operate on public streets can be properly charged for such an offense.

James H. Jackson, of Middlesboro, recently asked if a city employee can be fired by the mayor immediately after the city council has hired him by a threefourths majority. Jackson also requested an opinion on the number of readings and votes required to rescind a repeal of an ordinance just voted upon. In view of the first question, it is the opinion of the Attorney General's Office that the mayor's authority is limited by statute. He has no authority to fire an employee, for this is left specifically to the authority of the common council. With respect to the passage of motions, ordinances and resolutions by the city council, it is the opinion of the Attorney General's Office that a simple majority vote is all that is

James G. Cecil, mayor-elect of Minor Lane Heights, has asked a question concerning the eligiblity of a person to be seated on the city council while being involved in a traffic citation case which was brought to court. It is the opinion of the Attorney General's Office that a duly elected or appointed member of a city council may retain his seat since the traffic violation would in no way hinder his abilities in that post. Only being convicted of a felony would disqualify a councilman from holding office.

It is believed by some that Eve was

The apple was first introduced to North America by English colonials but today, according to Carl E. Chaplin, associate professor of horticulture at UK, most of the varieties we enjoy were developed right here in this good land. One of the first new varieties, perhaps, was the delightful Rhode Island Greening, long known to Kentucky mountain folk as "Razor Green." Following was the North Carolina Buff, known to the same people as the "Brickle Apple." Who devloped the Buff is not known, but William

Blanton, a Massachusetts preacher, who moved from Beacon Hill to a farm in Rhode Island in 1635, is given credit for

As the legendary Johnny Appleseed proved in his 40 years of planting apple seed across the midsection of the United States, excellent apples can sometimes come from seedlings. Varieties, though, must be vegetatively reproduced by grafting superior scions onto seedlings or Horticultural authorities say that at one time there were probably more than a thousand different American apple varieties; most of which have now all but disappeared. Included in this group are the winderful red and striped Milams, the juicy and late-hanging Fallawaters, the rosy-cheeked Maiden Blushes, the magnificent Bellflowers, the Benhams, the rusty-coated Gennets that could be holed in the ground like potatoes and kept all winter, and the Rambo, said to be the favorite of Johnny Appleseed.

Most of these old varieties, the mere mention of which often brings back happy recollections of younger times, succumbed to neglect and the concomitant ravages of insects and disease. Some were cut down or left to die out because they had rusty coats or unusual colors that caused customers to pass them by at the marketplace. Some did not keep or store well and, as a consequence of all this, passed from the scene to make room for the wonderful apples like the Cortland, McIntosh, Jonathan, and dozens of others found in modern orchards.

This may come as sort of a shock, but some nutritionists say that apples posses few calories and thus are low in nutritional value. They are, however, rich in rare minerals and some vitamins so vital to the health. In this respect, eating an apple is always a treat, and it could be a fine treatment.

Since the very beginning of this nation, the records show that the apple has always been by far the favorite domestic fruit. Its juice in the form of vinegar and cider helped sustain soldiers of the Revolution and protect them against scurvy. Fried pies of dried apples from the sutler wagon brought cheers from warriors of the Civil War, and in other forms, both raw and cooked, the apple has sweetened the meals of generations.

Power Line Crossing Of River in Plans

Kentucky Power Company has applied for a permit under Section 10 of the River and Harbor Act of 1899 to construct a 12,000-volt power line across the Levisa Fork above the mouth Beaver Creek at Allen.

The low point of the conductors will be approximately 88 feet above the water level. The span crossing the river will be approximately 440 feet long with the poles placed approximately 130 and 160 feet, respectively, from the water's edge.

A preliminary determination based upon an inspection of the site and an environmental assessment indicates that preparation of an Environmental Impact Statement will not be necessary.

Interested parties are invited to state any objections they may have to the proposed work. Written statements received in the Huntington District office of the Corps of Engineers, P.O. Box 2127, on or before December 4 will become a part of the record and will be considered in the final determination.

A record in the Floyd county courthouse declares the "road from Widow Crisp's to Cumberland Mountains now 'fit for use'."

Fall Is Time To Check Cows for Pregnancy

Fall is the time to check your beef cows for pregnancy if you follow a summer breeding program. That reminder comes from Donald E. LaBore, Extension veterinarian at the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture. LaBore notes that the only purpose of a beef cow is to produce a calf. He points out that feeding a cow through the winter that will not produce a calf is a waste of money. He adds that testing cows for pregnancy is relatively simple and can be performed by your local veterinarian.

Floyd County Health Notes

By DONNA J. GRIFFITH (Health Educator)

The Floyd County Health Department will be closed Thursday and Friday, November 28 and 29, in observance of the Thanksgiving holiday. Regular business hours will resume Monday, December 2,

A public health nurse will hold an outpost clinic Monday, Dec. 2 at Dr. Claude Allen's office in Martin. Clinic hours will be from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Services available will be TB skin tests, immunizations, diabetes screening, blood pressures and pap smears. These services are free and open to the public.

Heart disease is the leading cause of death in Kentucky and in Floyd county. It is important that everyone become familiar with the following early warning signs of heart attacks:

1. Prolonged pain or unusual discomfort in the center of the chest.

2. Pain spreading to the neck, arm or jaw, accompanied by sweating, nausea, vomiting and sometimes shortness of

To reduce your chances of becoming a heart attack victim, you should see your doctor for a check-up at least once a year. Other rules you should follow are watching your weight, getting regular exercise, minimizing your smoking and trying to avoid worry.

Kentucky

Kentucky's gun deer hunters have had an extra month to get ready this year, but now the Dec. 7 through Dec. 11 season is almost upon us. Are you ready for opening day? Look over this check list

Dept. of Fish and Wildlife and see if you've forgotten anything. First, do you have your hunting license and deer tag? If so, do you have the tag. which is too big for your wallet, in a place where you're certain you won't forget it? In the excitement of last minute preparations, hunters have been known to leave their tags at home, and it takes a lot of explaining and usually a trip to the courthouse to get things straightened out if you're caught in the woods without a

Second, do you have a vest, cap, hat, coat or coveralls consisting entirely of hunter orange color? Last year's regulations called for only "some visible article" of hunter orange, so that brown jacket with orange shoulder patched won't do this year. Don't throw it away, however. Just buy a hunter orange cap to go along with it, since wearing any of the specified items complies with the regulation. Third, have you checked your rifle or shotgun to make sure that it's in good shape and that it's sighted in properly. A few practice rounds will allow you both to check the firearm and to sharpen your marksmanship.

Fourth, do you have all the accessories you need for a deer hunt-a short length of rope, a few plastic bags, and a sturdy and sharp knife for field dressing? It's also a good idea to carry some basic survival equipment into the woods with you. A lightweight first-aid kit, waterproof matches, a compass and map of the hunting area should be considered essential.

Finally, do you know where your deer will be on opening day? If you're an experienced hunter, chances are you do, for you've scouted the area where you'll be hunting, have located deer trails, buck scrapes and other signs and have pretty much decided where to take your stand. This pre-season scouting is often what separates the successful hunter from the one who comes home tired, cold and deerless. It's still not too late for a scouting trip, and every serious deer hunter should add this important item to his list of things to do before opening day.
