

Island Cr. Sells Floyd Holdings

Tennessee Firm Buys W'wright Coal Property

Several years ago, Wheelwright was well on the way to being labelled a ghost town, its rich coal deposits said to have been "worked out," the town that once was a model mining community sold.

But its coal was not exhausted—there are some 35,000 acres of it yet unmined—and now it is being predicted that the head of Left Beaver Creek, which includes Wheelwright and neighboring Weeksbury, is on the way to becoming the county's prime coal mining center.

This change in the economic outlook for that area is mainly the result of the purchase last week by Inspiration Coal, Inc., Knoxville, Tenn., of Island Creek Coal Company properties there, including its giant preparation plant at nearby Price.

The transaction conveyed to Inspiration Coal 31,000 acres of mineral properties, and an additional 4000 acres under lease. The Wheelwright properties about the Bailey Mining property acquired by Inspiration Coal in January, 1981.

A report to the effect that the Wheelwright purchase involved $4 million could not be confirmed. Nor were plans of the new owners for new mining development disclosed.

Inspiration Coal is jointly owned by the Hudson Bay Mining & Smelting Co., Ltd., and Minerals & Resources Corp., Ltd. (MINORCO). Weldon Luginbyhl, former Prestonsburg accountant, is its vice-president for administration.

In addition to its Floyd county holdings, the company owns Sovereign-Pocahontas mining interests in West Virginia and the Harman mine in Virginia.

Last week's purchase does not include residential and city property at Wheelwright which was purchased a few years ago by the Kentucky Housing Corp. and the Urban Renewal Administration.

Hall Sentenced To Second Term

The troubles of 20-year-old Carlos (Bat-Hair) Hall, Jr., of Grethel, with the courts of two counties continue to mount.

Last Wednesday, in Pike circuit court, he was held guilty of an armed robbery charge and given a 16-year prison term. Less than a month ago, he was convicted in circuit court here on a charge of receiving stolen property, a motorcycle, and was given a two-year sentence.

Two other counts await him in circuit court here—theft by unlawful taking of a shotgun from the cruiser of State Trooper Don Goble and wanton endangerment to State Trooper Joe West.

In circuit court here last week, after a special grand jury had voted a second murder indictment against him, Edward Slone, Jr., of Price, executed bonds totalling $125,000—$12,500 cash, plus real estate surety. Slone was first named in a murder indictment for the slaying at Wheelwright of Terry Johnson. He was released under bond on that charge, but Paul Stanley, the second person allegedly shot by him on the night of Jan. 30, later died in a Lexington hospital and the grand jury was called back to make the second murder indictment against him.

Knott Men Sue School Board

Five Knott countians, including two school principals and three former employees of the school system, have filed in U.S. district court a civil action against the Knott County Board of Education, seeking reinstatement to positions they lost, restitution of wages and benefits lost and damages totalling $20,000 each.

The plaintiffs are Robert Brennan, former principal of the Beaver Creek Elementary School; Dennis Watts, ex-principal of the Jones Fork Elementary School; Arthur Click, former business affairs consultant, who claims to have been demoted to classroom teacher; Ellis N. Hall, former assistant superintendent, now a classroom teacher, and Delmas Inmon. (See Story No. 6, Page 4)

This Town...That World

I'm disappointed in the Weather Service. They've hit it on the nose, two times in a row.

Sunday was a great day. You could sit out on the porch in sunlight, look across a sunny field and from there invite a shiver by looking on farther to a "north side" hillside, deep in snow.

BUSY HANDS

Except for the battles of Middle Creek, Ivy Mountain and Wireman Shoals, none of which amounted to much as military actions go, the Big Sandy region passed through the four years of the Civil War without clashes between the opposing armies. But guerillas, bushwhackers, thieves, pillagers and others of their ilk made life miserable for non-combatants as well as for sympathizers with the North and the South.

The Big Sandy was in the grip of a veritable reign of terror. If you don't think so, consider this statement said to have been made by Col. Bowles, of Pikeville, in a letter to a friend:

"The danger was so great that when I sat down to eat I kept both hands on my sword and the other on my pistol."

The foregoing is recounted by Carol Crowe-Carraco in her THE BIG SANDY, a historical work so interesting (See Story No. 1, Page 4)

Town Seeks Meeting With Feds on Water

Against a backdrop of continued outages, some Martin officials and residents were trying to arrange a meeting with representatives of federal funding agencies this week, in an effort to find a solution to the city's chronic water woes.

At issue is the question of which of two engineering proposals ought to be accepted as the best method of ensuring the city a reliable water supply.

A total of $1.4 million in federal and state funds has been earmarked for the project. Martin's consulting engineers, Haworth, Meyer and Boleyn, Inc., think that the money could be best used in upgrading and increasing the capacity of the Martin water plant. Kenney Engineering, consultants to the Beaver-Elkhorn Water District, recommend that that system be upgraded and given the capacity to supply Martin.

Last September, the city council decided to accept its own engineers' proposal, voting to renovate the city water plant and to negotiate a connection with Beaver-Elkhorn as a backup water source.

Beaver-Elkhorn argued its case before officials of the Farmers' Home Administration, the agency which is putting up most of the funds for the project, offering to tie Martin into the Beaver-Elkhorn system at a cost of $350,000 and to sell water to Martin for 65 cents per thousand gallons.

City officials conceded last November that they could not furnish water at the price quoted by Beaver-

Elkhorn. But some doubted whether Beaver-Elkhorn could either, and said they feared rates might escalate rapidly. Others complained that the water district had given no clear indication of what the city would be getting for its $350,000 tap-on fee.

In a January 21 meeting this year, Beaver-Elkhorn officials pledged that rates for Martin residents would increase at the same rate as for the system's other customers. In addition to the $350,000 quoted earlier, however, $20,000 would be needed to connect the two systems and the city would also have to foot the bill for a master meter, it was said.

Cost of expanding the Beaver-Elkhorn filtration plant to make it capable of supplying Martin was put at $598,000.

Haworth has advised Martin water officials to reject the offer. Beaver-Elkhorn has supplied no proof that they can supply water for the price quoted; no plans have been submitted for the (See Story No. 2, Page 4)

Named Deputy Coroner

Coroner Roger Nelson announced Tuesday the appointment of Glenn Frazier, of Price, to the post of deputy coroner.

Mr. Frazier, who is postmaster at Price, is well-known for his work with the Left Beaver Rescue Squad. No salary was specified and cannot be until a new county budget is adopted, July 1, it was said.

Picketed Mine Site Scene of Shooting; One Man Wounded

One man was slightly wounded and one or more vehicles were hit during a flurry of shooting which broke out early Tuesday morning at a Mud Creek mine site.

Ricky Moore, 21, was struck near his right eye by a buckshot pellet and was released after treatment at the McDowell Regional Hospital.

The firing was from a variety of weapons, a deputy sheriff called to the scene reported. The wounded man said he was not involved in the mine trouble and had taken refuge behind his car when he was hit. No arrests had been made as of Tuesday afternoon. The shooting is being investigated by State Police.

The mine, operated on the John Hall Branch of Mud Creek by Ray-Mac Mining Co., of Pike county, has been picketed because, it was said, it is non-union.

Officers sought the arrest last week of Cisco Neeley, near Hueysville, after he allegedly had wounded his brother, Marvin, with a gunshot wound to the leg, but Neeley escaped into nearby woods, they said.

Local Option Poll Legality May Be Tested

It remained unclear this week whether residents of the county's third magisterial district—which includes Left Beaver Creek and part of Martin—will have an opportunity to vote on whether liquor sales should be permitted in that section.

A petition with nearly 700 signatures calling for a wet-dry election was lodged last week with the county court clerk by Eshmel Caudill, of Abner Fork, one of a 10-member organizing committee. The petition was not officially filed until Tuesday this week, however, following a review of its filing procedure and the legality of the election bid.

County Attorney Arnold Turner, Jr. said this week he has "serious doubts" whether the election would be legal, citing a number of cases where courts have ruled that, once an entire county has voted dry, no part of that county can hold a separate election on the issue, except for cities of the first four classes.

Indeed, an earlier local-option bid here was rebuffed by the courts on that ground. In a 1951 decision, the state Court of Appeals upheld decisions made earlier by Floyd Circuit Judge Edward P. Hill and County Judge Henry Stumbo that a local-option vote could not legally be held in the third magisterial district alone.

Organizers of the present petition point, however, to the recent example in Magoffin county—where a district voted to go wet and the Alcoholic Beverage Commission (ABC) subsequently granted liquor licenses—and to pending local-option elections in sections of Johnson and Pike counties.

County Attorney Turner said this week he would be seeking opinions from ABC attorneys and from the state attorney-general's office on the legality of a wet-vote in the third district.

According to state law, a local-option petition must bear signatures equal to a quarter of those who voted in the last general election—reckoned to be about 400 signatures in this case—and must be filed with the county judge-executive. Signatures must be verified by the Board of Election Commissioners, and the judge-executive must set a date for the election between 60 and 90 days after the filing date.

Work on Bridge Continues After Union Enjoined

Concrete substructure work on the bridge spanning the Big Sandy near Tram has proceeded under protection of a temporary injunction against interference since Feb. 11.

The Floyd circuit court restraining order was asked by M. C. Webb, Inc., subcontractor for the prime contractor, K & K Construction, on Feb. 10 after members of Local Union No. 14581, Pikeville, of the United Steel Workers of America had allegedly made a second appearance at the construction site and threatened an official and employees of the firm.

The alleged threats were described as a part of the union's effort to unionize Webb employees.

The affidavit filed by David Webb, vice-president of the subcontracting firm, in support of the complaint asking a temporary injunction against the local union, the United Steel Workers and Charles Cantrell, of Pikeville, local union president, alleged that:

—On Feb. 3, 50 or more men appeared at the site and a man representing himself as Charles Cantrell told Webb he was there to "shut the job down" and that there would be no more work until a contract with the union was signed.

Move To Change Bill On Redistricting Fails

State Rep. Greg Stumbo had the feeling that he backed a lost cause, but he gave it his best try, anyhow.

He sought to amend in the House last week the Senate redistricting bill which splits Prestonsburg in the apportionment for the 29th and 25th senatorial districts on the basis of the new U.S. Census. Stumbo's amendment would have kept all Prestonsburg precincts in the 29th district now represented by Sen. Benny Ray Bailey, and, to maintain a proportionate population in the 25th represented by Sen. Lowell Hughes, of Ashland, would have shifted six other precincts from the 29th to the 25th but would not have split any city or town.

The House defeated his amendment, 35-21, and later by voice vote rejected a second amendment offered by Stumbo to identify two places in Prestonsburg which the Senate bill left unidentified.

In effect, the House approved the Senate redistricting bill, and the Senate did the same by a 30 to 5 vote for the bill that originated in the House to define new House districts.

Both measures now go to Governor Brown for his signature.

Although both bills had drawn considerable heat, the two chambers stuck with their traditional agreement not to tamper with the other's redistricting plans.

In his last-ditch plea for a change in the Senate redistricting bill Rep. Stumbo said, "My belief is that we are a new and independent legislature, not bound by the dictates of the past."

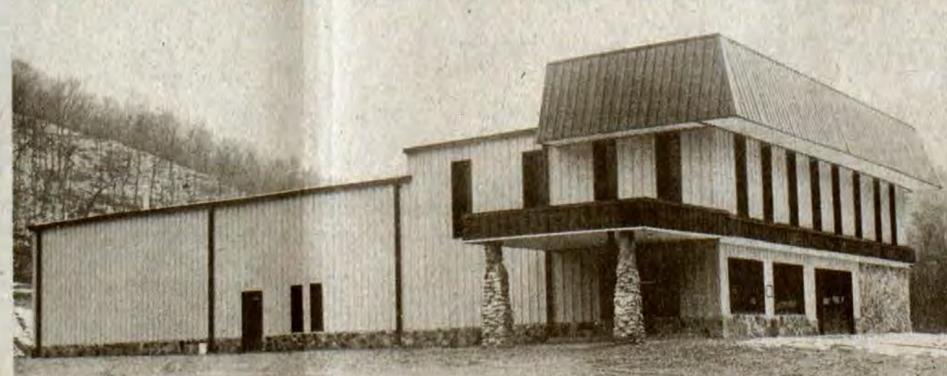

He argued that the division of the six Prestonsburg precincts is such that it will be difficult to determine who votes where.

"We consider this a slap in the face," Stumbo said.

The new Senatorial district boundaries follow the middle of some Prestonsburg streets, throwing residents of the same precinct into separate Senatorial districts.

Stumbo cited two characteristics of Mountain people: 1. They keep their word; 2. They return favors done them. And he later admitted the latter was to tell opponents of his amendment, by implication, that they also repay in kind those who refuse them a favor.

Work Completed on Utilities Building

Operations of the Prestonsburg City Utilities Commission will become more centralized when administrative offices as well as various service and maintenance functions are moved to the new $215,000 utilities building at Lancer in coming weeks.

Completed in mid-December by J. & R. Construction Company, Prestonsburg contractors, actual use of the 60 x 100-ft. metal and masonry structure will await warmer weather when blacktop can be poured for the access road and parking area, according to Bill Harvey Howard, city utilities superintendent.

The building provides 4,200 square feet of office space, including a meeting room for commissioners, an area to house computer equipment, a shop area with office for the assistant superintendent, and a gas meter repair room with precise temperature control for accurate meter checking. In addition, a locker room with showers for employees will be provided along with a vehicle maintenance area complete with grease rack.

Howard said the city utilities building on Riverside Drive here will be retained for added storage space.

By Larry McGhee
Decorating the Family Tree

Nowadays we sneer a little at ourselves and others who buy paper and tags the day after Christmas and squirrel away gifts all year long. We look down our noses at such Wise Men, maybe because common sense is so—well, so “common.”

If it's smart to open Christmas Club accounts in January, it's just as smart to shop year-round.

Most of us don't really want much for Christmas, so whatever we get always seems like more than we expected or deserved. Our greatest gifts are the ones we give others, especially when they are appreciated and unanticipated and made by our own hands. (Okay, there are exceptions. I'm not the first person to buy an electric train and operate it for a one-year-old!)

So, while you're looking, let me give you a tip you can't find in a catalog. What we remember most about Christmases Past are the people, not the gifts. After we are grown and gone, Christmas still evokes shadowy figures of grandparents, parents, old-maid aunts and bachelor uncles; but suddenly, in our middle ages, they disappear, gone before we finally decide what it was we wanted them to give us.

What we wanted them to leave us was our family history, their identification of the skeletons hanging on our bloodlines, their telling of the tales that put flesh on bare bones and make them move. We wanted, in a word, what Alex Haley called “Roots,” and what he found by listening to aunts on the front porch and tracking himself back from there, through Tidewater and on over to Africa.

As each of the Old People dies, we lose another chance to know ourselves. Our folks prepare us to accept their deaths stoically, as one of the inevitable cycles of life—like crops or the seasons. They don't prepare us well at all for the loss of all that information they take with them. You can't take your money with you, but you can take something more valuable—your knowledge; no one knows as much as you know, nor does anyone arrange it in the same order. Each relative's death, as John Donne would say, “diminishes” those left behind. Each such death is equivalent to burning a diary or to ripping out the family page of the family Bible or to having a roll of film fail to develop. Our lives become fuzzy, because the rich details about us and about those before us are gone, and we are left not only grief-stricken, but also guilt-laden and deprived, for having postponed too long our poking around in our relatives' memories. Perhaps we feel their information is private, and we forbid ourselves to pry and trespass. Perhaps, too, we just take access to this knowledge for granted, because we take our kinfolks for granted.

Some people, of course, are interested in genealogy only because they want to prove they are heirs to Howard Hughes or owners of an English castle, or else they need it to get into the UDC or DAR. Some are more interested in the lineages of their horses and dogs than in those of their people. Most, however, are just curious. Their motives are more interior than ulterior.

We want to know who we are, whence we came, and whither we are tending to go. Gail Sheehy, in “Passages,” shows those needs are stronger at some times in our lives than at others—especially upon leaving adolescence, steering through middle age, and entering retirement.

In the absence of family chronicles and family reunions, we have to make what we can from courthouse records, military files, ships' passenger lists, immigration records, deeds, wills, birth and marriage and death certificates, church registries, cemetery ledgers, school transcripts and alumni files, microfilmed newspapers, and census reports.

Like Alex Haley, thousands of us have already discovered with gratitude and delight that the Mormons have been doing our research for us and are willing to share it. A fellow graduate student seated on a bus by me a few years back turned out to be a Mormon, and by luck I found out from him about the extensive genealogy files in Salt Lake City.

As I understand it, the Mormons (actually, the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints) got started on genealogy back in 1841, after Joseph Smith, their founder, told them of a revelation that they should build a temple and store in it records of their dead to present to God. Since their church was new and small in number, they were concerned about all their kin who would be left out. They not only traced their names, but they served as their substitutes for baptism “in absentia.” From there, it was only one short step—and several billion names—to treating all of mankind as members of one big family, a belief common to both the Bible and to the Book of Mormon.

Such religious concern and charity for the rest of us by the Mormons is quite touching—all the more so when we reflect that the research may turn up a few of our ancestors who had hands in making the Mormons very uncomfortable last century. They give meaning to brotherhood through this service.

Getting all those records and checking and storing them is a mammoth endeavor (not an “undertaking,” since they are digging up information rather than burying it). Genealogical societies affiliated with the church and some independent of it have been created to assist, and there are now branches all over the world. (Nearby, I know of offices in Knoxville, Nashville, Louisville, and Memphis, for examples.)

But, let's get back to my point about the common sense of early Christmas shopping. Hunting for genealogy to give at Christmas takes time. The Mormon records can help shorten that time, but what you can uncover firsthand is probably more important, especially if your family has lived in one area for any length of time. That means travel, reading, letterwriting, and lots of false starts.

In the end, however, you'll have a gift loved by both giver and receiver. Our Cousin Pearl, now deceased, had the good sense as a girl, back in 1910, to write down what her father told her about the family. Her kinship to me was very remote, for she was a descendant of my great-great-grandfather by his second wife. Because her son shared those notes, I now have some knowledge, in an uninterrupted line, of my ancestors and their nine centuries in Scotland, two centuries in Virginia, and century and a half in Henry County, Tennessee.

I give this knowledge to our two daughters, in the best of Christmas love, against those dread days fast approaching me, when thoughtless young men, low in morals, mentality, and means, take my name away from my girls by marrying them.

GAMBLING AND THE LAW

Gambling is an offense with which this paper has had little to do for years now. We've shied away from that offense as a matter of news, except in grand jury indictments, because of one incident that is old enough to be forgotten but isn't.

It was the arrest of a group of youngsters caught gambling over the river bank, one afternoon. The officer arrested all six or seven of them, and herded them down Court street to the courthouse, and I dutifully listed the names of all concerned.

There perhaps wasn't as much as $5 in the whole gang. But they were charged with gambling, even if it was penny ante.

A week later, a street carnival came to grace the town with its cultural influences, and I wound up at it with the other yokels. The gambling devices in operation were interesting—roulette, Chuck-a-Luck, wheels within wheels, all going strong.

And standing guard at one of these while various rubes risked their money was the same officer who had arrested that group of boys. The "take" was heavy at the carnival that night and every night for an entire week, but nobody was arrested. Instead, the gambling devices were "protected."

That's when I went out of the business of reporting minor gambling incidents.

It also is why I liked my friend "Bud" Perry's piece in his "Coffee Break" column of The Paintsville Herald last week. It follows:

"You can bet all you want on dogs, horses and jai alai in Florida—but you better watch the penny-ante stuff.

"Undercover agents raided a poker game in a mobile home retirement village at Clearwater recently and seized...hold your breath—$24 in cash, a deck of cards and some chips. The eight culprits engaged in this massive game ranged in age from 63 to 70, and the maximum bet allowed was 40 cents. The general rule, according to one player, was to quit if you lost three bucks.

"Believe it or not, they were found guilty of violating Florida's gambling law, fined $75 in court costs and placed on a month's probation.

"As I recall, this is the same state in which Miami is located, with one of the highest crime rates in the nation, the same state which is a hub of the drug traffic in the United States, and the same state which provides a sunshine haven for some of our best-known gamblers, racketeers and Mafia leaders.

"Those undercover agents may have time to work on some of the other problems, now that they have eliminated this hotbed of crime at Clearwater. All 24 bucks worth of it.

"Ante three matches and deal the cards."

product at a higher price."

Chairman Stumbo defended the board's choice of desks, arguing that the furniture offered by Central School Supply was of much better quality than that offered by the other companies.

"We wanted furniture that would last. Some of the furniture (offered by the unsuccessful bidders) I wouldn't put in an outhouse," he said.

Asked whether he felt the desks the board is buying met bid specifications, Stumbo replied that defining specifications "is just a ballpark thing."

"You can't get into too much detail," he said. "You can only say about what you want."

Stumbo said the board was impressed by the claim that Central School Supply desks had successfully weathered a flood in Pike county and that the desks have previously proven durable in Floyd schools.

water plant expansion, for which Martin is expected to pay more than half the cost; and there is no indication of where Beaver-Elkhorn is to find the money to pay their part of the bill, the city's engineers argue.

Moreover, $100,000 committed under the state Flood Abatement Program can only be used to flood-proof the Martin plant. If the decision is made to upgrade the Beaver-Elkhorn plant instead, that money would be lost, they point out.

In addition to the state funds, a FmHA grant of $564,000 and a $279,000 loan, and a $500,000 grant from the Economic Development Administration have been conditionally approved for the project.

Pending review of the legal questions, Judge-Executive Jerry Lafferty Jr. ordered Tuesday that the wet-dry vote be held April 20.

Caudill, a disabled coal miner, was optimistic this week about chances of the Third District's voting wet and said he has not yet heard of any organized opposition to the proposal. Others predicted, however, that the opposition will be strong.

"It will be better for the county if the vote succeeds," he said, "because the money Floyd residents spend on liquor elsewhere would then remain here."

Only 26 of the state's 120 counties are totally wet, while 12 others are partially wet.

—On Feb. 10, 32 or more men led by Cantrell appeared at the work site and Cantrell told Webb, "I told you there would be no more work done until a union contract is signed." Webb also said Cantrell and another unidentified man "threatened to throw me in the river if I did not stop working." Webb's affidavit quoted Cantrell as saying he didn't care if the company got a restraining order, that they would come back "and put the men and the equipment in the river."

Paul P. Burchett, attorney for Webb, said the company is working only about six men on the project. He added a representative of the local union said he had no objection to the court's restraining order.

former director of buildings and grounds, now on disability retirement after having been offered a teaching position.

Besides asking for full repayment for wages and benefits lost, plaintiffs seek to recover extra expenses incurred in commuting to new places of employment; $10,000 each for emotional turmoil suffered through being deprived of their rights under the First and Fourteenth amendments; $10,000 punitive damages and "reasonable" legal costs.

Listed as defendants are Grant Honeycutt, Dr. Gene Watts, Burnis Mullins, Orville Smith and Coy Combs.

Plaintiffs claim they were discriminated against by the new board because they supported the losing candidates in a school board race.

The suit also charges that free speech and association rights of the plaintiffs were not protected by these actions. It said the defendant's actions were "malicious."

The suit maintained that the changes in salaries and responsibilities of the plaintiffs were not recommended by the superintendent prior to board approval and, therefore, violated state law.

School board attorney Alva Hollan, Jr., filed an answer to the suit on January 28 which stated that the defendants acted in good faith within the established procedures required by law and without malice.

The response stated that the board and superintendent exercised their lawful duty to manage the affairs of the Knott school system on a sound financial basis pursuant to the advice of the state Board of Education concerning reduction of a budget deficit in the Knott school system.

EXTINGUISHER IMPROVED

A home fire extinguisher sold in Kentucky under the trade name American Safety Products has received the national Factory Mutual label, announced the state fire marshal's office.

The state fire marshal's office recently alerted the public about distribution of unsafe extinguishers in Louisville, Lexington, Catlettsburg and Morehead. American Safety Products was included in this warning but the company is now marketing a new improved extinguisher which bears the Factory Mutual label.

"Shooting from Solid" Rules Said Most Lenient in Country

Of the 14 states in which underground coal mines operate, Kentucky has the most lenient rules pertaining to "shooting from the solid," according to a draft report issued recently by the Center for Law and Social Policy, in Washington, D.C.

"In essence," say the authors of the report, "the Kentucky provision...is a mere formality."

"Shooting from the solid," a mining method in which explosives are used to blast coal from a solid face, has been implicated in the fatal explosions which occurred recently in mines on Mink Branch and at Topmost.

According to the Center report, the controversial method is used to any extent in only three states. About 300 mines are said to use it in Kentucky, 50-100 mines in Virginia, and 25-30 in West Virginia. Two other states have severely limited the practice—three or four mines are said to employ it in Tennessee and two in Alabama—while the remaining states have banned the technique.

Meanwhile, the investigation into the cause of the Mink Branch mine blast continued last Wednesday with a hearing by the state Department of Mines and Minerals at Martin.

According to investigators, the mine was inadequately rock-dusted, meaning that excessive quantities of highly volatile coal dust were present...the miners were using explosives to dislodge coal from several locations simultaneously; they were apparently shooting more than the 20 holes allowed by law; and the charges were not

"stemmed" in the manner specified by law.

Phillip Stevens, of the Elkhorn Coal Co., which owns the mineral rights held under lease by the RFH mine, testified Wednesday that he was in the mine the day before the accident and that it was in reasonably good shape. He acknowledged, however, that it was not thoroughly rock-dusted.

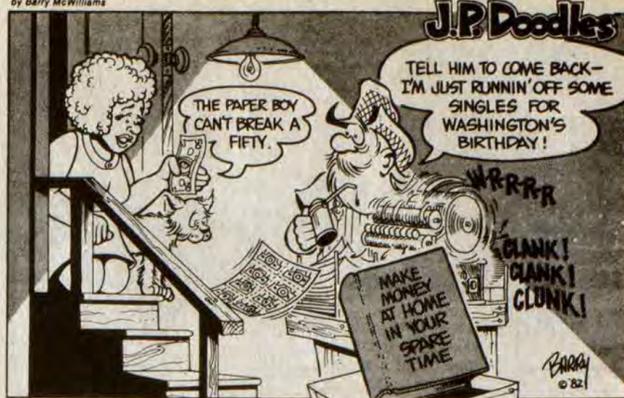

Arnold Turner, Jr., who has represented the mine owners, said that early accounts of the number of faces being worked simultaneously were misleading. At one time, the miners there dislodged coal in an adjacent area owned by Turner Elkhorn Mining Co. Although the dislodged coal was still lying there, the miners were working in another section of the mine at the time of the explosion, he said.

Court Members Liable?

I read with interest Lee Mueller's article in the February 5 issue of the Lexington Herald on the Floyd County Fiscal Court overspending mess. The article pointed out that criminal action is unlikely because two of the magistrates would have to vote to prosecute themselves. At any rate the penalties are not much of a deterrent. However, there may be a more effective way of stopping this problem, which I believe is widespread, at least in eastern Kentucky. The former judge and magistrates may be held personally liable under a 1964 Ky. Court of Appeals decision, Fannin v. Davis, and KRS 68.100, for unlawful disbursement of funds. That would seem to be particularly appropriate in this case as the former judge appears to be wellheeled, and two of the magistrates are still drawing the $20,000 salary. Garnishing the magistrates' salary would insure Floyd County gets some use out of the $20,000 it pays them. It also seems appropriate in view of the one magistrate cursing at the finance officer who was only doing what that magistrate is overpaid to do.

BILL PENICK,
Hazard

(Editor's note: County Attorney Arnold Turner, Jr. says he will turn the matter over to the state Attorney General's department if an audit suggests illegal activity on the part of the last fiscal court.)

Protests TV Service

Since the Floyd County TV Commission was dissolved, our television cable service has been very poor. I live two miles above the Wayland post office in Floyd county.

The TV cable in this area is owned by TV Service, Inc., of Hindman, Kentucky. I have repeatedly called the cable system service department since October, 1981, to report the poor quality of the service that we are receiving. The people at the office will say, "We will check it out," and that is the end of it. Several other people served by this system have also called and been told the same thing.

It would seem to me that there should be some type of agency to control people that own television cable systems and take people's money for nothing.

Ain't It Pitiful

Drive for miles on pot holed two-lane roads, make it to Garrett, get on the new four-lane road to go to Martin. Drive about two miles to see, lying beside the road, a dead German shepherd. This is happening on Feb. 5. Again, on Feb. 10, I'm going to Martin. The dog is still there. It's possible that, being an animal lover, this hurts me worse, but isn't anybody responsible? Seems to me we need better care taken of one of the better roads in the hills. Or, are the sides of our four-lanes the burial ground for our animals?

I mean, Ain't it pitiful?

School Principal's Assailant Pleads Guilty, Is Probated

A McDowell man was fined and given a probated jail sentence in district court here last Thursday after pleading guilty of assaulting a grade school principal.

George Hall was charged with third-degree assault last September 1 after allegedly punching Estill Hall, who was filling in as principal at McDowell Elementary School in the regular principal's absence.

After his guilty plea, Hall was fined $250 and sentenced to 60 days in jail by District Judge Harold Stumbo. The jail sentence was probated for one year on condition that the defendant stay away from the principal and the school, except for school functions at night.

The assault charge reportedly stemmed from a school lunchroom incident the previous day, when the principal is said to have reprimanded Hall's son. The father reportedly accosted the teacher before classes the following day, punching him several times in the face.

County Attorney Arnold Turner, Jr. said both the teacher and Schools' Superintendent Pete Grigsby, Jr. agreed to accept Hall's guilty plea.

To Fans And Players

I would like the following remarks considered as an "open letter" to all Floyd County basketball fans and players. Although, I know what I am about to say doesn't apply to all fans and players, I think this is something that needs to be addressed.

When you purchase a ticket to attend a basketball game, either at home or away, it entitles you to attend the event as an interested party. It does not entitle you to the privilege of embarrassing those around you by using vulgar, obscene language or throwing objects on the playing floor. This type of childish behavior should be punished by having the offender removed from the event.

Freedom of speech is one of our greatest freedoms, but to abuse it by using foul language is not so great. It is your right to disagree with an official's call on the court but not be disagreeable.

High school and elementary basketball games are usually attended by many families; grandparents, parents, brothers and sisters of the players, coaches and faculty members. Since many of these come from other states and other counties, such offensive conduct certainly gives our school and community a bad name.

Surely, these students are not learning this kind of language and behavior from their teachers here in Floyd County. I know I do not condone this kind of action. I think some constraint should be used at all of our basketball games to make them rewarding instead of revolting.

I urge you to insure courteous, sportsmanlike conduct during our district, regional and state basketball tournaments as well as all season contests.

Houses-If You Can Pay

I would like to inform the public of what is going on—not that people don't already know. There are houses for people to rent, buy, sell. There are places for everyone if you can make the house or trailer payment, which is far more than your payday, not to mention the bills.

They have places well equipped for drunks to stay in, free. If you are a drunk, you've got it made. Even the police can't bother you. Drunks have first priority at the housing project, SSI payments, any other free thing that the government is handing out. Working people are outcasts and looked upon as freaks.

To me, drink is not a disease or a handicap. It is plain sin.

Boy Missing 4 Days In Knott Is Object Of Widespread Hunt

The search for a six-year-old boy who disappeared at Larkslane on Jones Fork, Knott county, during last Friday night's snowstorm, continued Monday, without success.

The missing child, Kelly Holland, was last seen in a neighbor's yard late Friday. He had been watching television at the neighbor's home, which is about 200 yards distant from his own home.

Troopers from the Hazard State Police post, members of the Knott County Rescue Squad and neighbors have searched neighborhood wells and other possible concealment spots without result. The family moved to Larkslane from Breathitt county, and searchers were said to be considering the possibility that he may have been picked up and taken by car to that county. A search there was possible this week.

The child has a speech defect and has a large scar on the left side of his mouth, State Police said. Persons having helpful information are being asked to contact the State Police Post at Hazard, the Knott county sheriff's office at Hindman or the Knott County Rescue Squad.

JONES NAMED AS ADDINGTON V.P.

Alvin Gene Jones is promoted to vice president-operations of Addington Brothers Mining, Inc. (ABMI), reporting to Paul F. Goad, Jr., senior vice president-operations of Ashland Coal, Inc. and president of ABMI.

Jones, who joined the company in 1978, is now responsible for the day-to-day supervision and management of all mining production and related activities for ABMI in Eastern Kentucky.

Named operations manager of ABMI in September 1979, Jones joined the company as superintendent of drilling and blasting and later the same year was promoted to operating superintendent of ABMI's Job 6. He was promoted to general superintendent of ABMI in April 1979 and served in that capacity until his promotion later the same year to operations manager.

Prior to joining ABMI, Jones was general mine foreman of Cordero Mining Company's Gillitte, Wyoming mine. Previously, he served as a superintendent of E & I, Inc. with responsibility for two West Virginia surface mines and a tippie. He is a graduate of the Dupont Blasting Safety School, Virginia State Mining School and Wyoming Foreman School.

Jones, who served in the U.S. Navy from 1949 to 1953, and his wife, Briggett, make their home in Paintsville.

Former Floyd Woman On State Parole Board

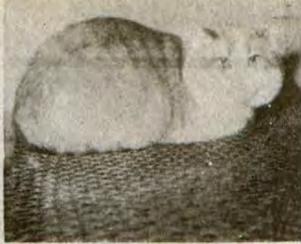

Helen Howard Hughes, of Lexington, formerly of Floyd county, has been named to the state Parole Board to replace Glenn Wade of Hopkinsville who has resigned. She will serve the remainder of the term ending in March 1985.

Mrs. Hughes, the second woman to serve on the Parole Board since it became full-time, assumes the new post Tuesday. She is executive director of the Kentucky Occupational Safety and Health Review Commission and was executive director of the Commission on Women from 1977 to 1981.

Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Allie Howard, now of Florida, are former residents of Allen.

SIMILAR NAMES CAUSE CONFUSION

The John Marsillett listed in the February 10 issue of The Times among those indicted is not John W. Marsillett, who resides on Cow Creek. The similarity of names has once again caused confusion and some embarrassment.

FORD ESCORT

FORD EXP

Both Escort and EXP now have Ford Care Coverage.

Our best-selling Escort and our sporty two-seater EXP now both come with Ford Care Coverage.

Ford Care Coverage is more than a commitment to quality, it's the closest thing to cost-free driving.

Because for two years or 24,000 miles, virtually all you pay for is gas.

Ford Care Coverage:

Two years cost-free maintenance.

For two years or 24,000 miles—whichever comes first—all scheduled maintenance on your new Escort or EXP is free. That includes all parts, all labor.

You Don't Pay a Cent.

Take delivery of a 1982 Escort or EXP by April 3 and you'll also get a 5% cash bonus off the base vehicle sticker price, direct from Ford.

This cash is yours to keep, or may be used against down payment. And it can amount to hundreds of dollars: $370 on EXP, up to $375 on the Escort GLX wagon.

(Ford Care Coverage and cash offers good on new 1982 vehicles delivered from your Ford Dealer between February 2 and April 3, 1982. Cash portion limited to one per customer.)

Whitaker Exhibit at Library Here

You can see an exhibition of watercolors by well-known Magoffin county artist Tom J. Whitaker at the Floyd County Library this week and, if you are lucky enough to win the door prize being offered, you may even take one home with you.

Pageant Area Includes Seven Eastern Counties

The Miss Pike County Scholarship Pageant, which will be held March 20 at Faith Chapel, Pikeville College, is open to contestants from Floyd, Johnson, Magoffin, Martin, Perry and Letcher counties, as well as from Pike county.

Patricia Thomas, pageant general chairman, asks civic and social organizations in the area to sponsor candidates, and she called for individual young women to submit their own names as entries.

Further information can be obtained by calling Mrs. Thomas at 606-437-9409 after 5 p.m.

To qualify, a young woman must be between the ages of 17 and 26 on the Labor Day holiday, must be a high school graduate by Labor Day and must never have been married. Talent will be considered in the judging and each contestant should possess some quality of talent, either trained or potential. In discussing the talent qualifications, Thomas stressed that the range is varied and that no young woman must be necessarily trained in any specific field.

She pointed out that many entrants in previous pageants did not realize they possessed a quality of talent until they considered entering the contest.

She also pointed out that in almost every national Miss America Pageant conducted at Atlantic City, N.J., there have been state queens.

Personality, poise, beauty, and talent are the major requirements. Each contestant will be judged in private interview, in evening gown, in swimsuit, and in the talent presentation.

The winner of the Pike County Pageant will compete with other area winners for the title of Miss Kentucky and Miss Kentucky will later enter the Miss America Pageant.

The family of Wade Bryan Hamilton would express thanks to all who helped during the passing of their loved one. BUDGET BRIEFING...Members of the Senate Committee on Appropriations and Revenue have spent many hours behind these hearing-room desks with the objective of squeezing out all they can for necessary state services and programs. A cross-section of the state is represented by these three committee members—left to right—Lowell Hughes, D-Ashland, Joe Wright, D-Harned, and John Doug Hays, D-Pikeville. Because of the recent revenue shortfalls, the lawmakers are taking an even closer-than-usual look at the state's proposed biennial budget.

Workshop To Aid High School Grads Who Want To Be Doctors, Dentists

Fifty 1982 high school graduates who live in certain Kentucky counties and who want to become doctors or dentists will get a free start toward their goals next summer at the University of Kentucky or the University of Louisville.

The students will be chosen to attend a five or six-week college preparatory workshop at one of the universities from applicants who live in Kentucky counties or areas of some counties that the federal government says have too few doctors or dentists.

Graduating high school seniors who live in Floyd county are among those eligible to apply.

The workshops are part of the state's Professional Education Preparation Program, which was designed to help increase the number of students from Kentucky's doctor- or dentist-shortage counties who attend medical or dental school.

Students attending the workshops will meet and work with medical and dental students and get instruction in reading, writing, study-skills improvement, and problem solving.

They will also have classes in biology, chemistry, and other sciences to improve their chances of doing well in their premedical or pre-dental college studies.

Room and board and all workshop instruction will be provided free of charge. Each student will also be given a "modest" allowance for personal expenses.

The workshops will be the first in a series of activities that will be provided to participants. Additional programs and services designed to help them succeed in becoming doctors or dentists will be provided throughout their undergraduate and medical or dental school studies.

Interested high school seniors can get further information and application forms from their high school counselors or by writing to the Professional Education Preparation Program, Kentucky Council on Higher Education, West Frankfort Office Complex, Frankfort, Ky. 40601.

The deadline for applying is April 2, 1982.

Ends Basic Training

Airman Jerry W. Hopson, son of Ruth Hopson, of Allen, has been assigned to Chanute Air Force Base, Ill., after completing Air Force basic training. He will now receive specialized instruction in the vehicle maintenance field.

Some 450 volunteer 4-H leaders across the Kentucky are expected to attend a state forum aimed at sharpening their leadership skills and improving the quality of their local 4-H programs. The forum will be March 5-6 at Holiday Inn South in Louisville.

The forum marks the first time such an event has been held on the state level; it has involved more than a year and a half of planning by the Kentucky 4-H Leaders Council.

Leaders attending the forum will participate in workshops conducted by University of Kentucky Extension specialists. These programs will deal with such topics as survival skills for new 4-H leaders, using computers to teach 4-H'ers, the commodity marketing 4-H project and 4-H for handicapped youth, as well as programs on clothing, food and livestock projects.

The leaders also will exchange ideas and discuss successful 4-H programs in sessions conducted by fellow volunteers. A variety of educational exhibits displaying 4-H projects, programs and materials will be featured throughout the forum.

A pre-conference tour of Philip Morris Inc. and Paramount Foods Inc. is scheduled. Other forum highlights include an informal poolside buffet and a luncheon featuring humorist Charley Willey.

The spring thaw is still several cold weeks away, but soils specialists at the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture hope farmers start now to think about taking soil samples for testing in the Lexington lab.

The number of soil samples tested last fall was down considerably from previous years. That probably means the volume will be high this spring, and that could pose a dilemma for the lab.

We're concerned that the lab won't be able to handle all the samples in a timely manner if everyone waits until the last minute to send in samples.

Farmers should take samples as soon as fields dry out, possibly at the end of February or in early March. Samples submitted early can be processed within 10 days to two weeks, but a later rush could mean a three week delay.

Last fall's drop in sampling is attributed to low crop prices. That left farmers in no mood to look ahead to 1982 fertilizer recommendations. With the increases in fertilizer prices, growers need accurate information on soils and nutrients to make sure their fertilizer dollars are well spent.

County Extension agents for agriculture have soil sample boxes and information forms for farmers who want to have samples analyzed by the UK College of Agriculture. After following agent instructions, farmers should return samples to their agents who will mail them to the soil testing lab. A fee payable to the county Extension office covers postage and analysis.

Hays' Senate Resolution Asks Governors' Parley On Coal Severance Tax

The Kentucky Senate last week approved a resolution sponsored by Sen. John Doug Hays, D-Pikeville, that urges the governor to meet with the executives of other Appalachian states to discuss coal severance taxes. Hays, obviously distressed by what he believes to be a move to increase Kentucky's tax, urged his colleagues to approach the matter "logically."

"We simply cannot enact any change in the tax that will do harm to one of the most important industries in this state," he said.

Under the resolution, Brown is asked to meet with governors of other coal-producing states to discuss setting equitable tax rates.

For those who have been waiting for their first and possibly only chance!

Washington: "A Figure Upon the State"

By David M. Maxfield
Smithsonian News Service

"No American," one modern biography begins, "is more completely misunderstood than George Washington."

A sweeping statement, yes, but one most historians would quickly second. Over the years, they concur, layers of legend and myth have obscured Washington "the man," leaving little today but a blurry likeness of the nation's first president.

The cherry trees, the ice on the Delaware, the bitter winter at Valley Forge, the portraits, the image on the dollar bill—all have played a part in forming an oversimplified popular conception of Washington as steadfast military leader, Founding Father and benevolent president—an icon, in effect, that didactic 19th-century writers and, some believe, Washington himself helped create.

"All through his adult life Washington was to be closely concerned with his reputation," the eminent Washington biographer, Marcus Cunliffe, has written. "In part this was simply an aspect of his canniness—a matter of taking care that there was a written record of what was done to him as well as by him." Beyond this, Cunliffe, the author of George Washington, Man and Monument, contends, "Washington needed the solace of public approval."

Today's scholars are determined to discover a George less perfect and monumental than we know him, a man more "real" and interesting in character. Washington himself often serves as their guide. It was, after all, the future president who wrote after his Revolutionary War achievements that he found "agricultural pursuits and rural amusements most congenial to my temper." At Mount Vernon, as his guests often noted, Washington seemed the happiest—tending to his gardening and landscaping and planning additions to home.

"He is a never ending source of interest," says historian Margaret Klapthor, curator of a major Smithsonian exhibition at the National Museum of American History commemorating the 250th anniversary of Washington's birth. "We are still learning things about him. He is still full of surprises for the researcher and is endlessly fascinating. He is multi-faceted."

To begin, there is his appearance. Today, the popular image conveyed by late-life portraits is of a rather stern, short, white-haired gentleman, a father figure. But in 1758, when he was 26, Washington was described by a fellow officer as "straight as an Indian, measuring six feet two inches, his frame padded with well-developed muscles, indicating great strength."

Why do we recall one look and not another? "The image and character of Washington has taken various forms," according to Klapthor, with each era favoring an appearance related to its own values.

As for his demeanor, Abigail Adams once remarked, "He is polite with dignity, affable without familiarity, distant without haughtiness, grave without austerity, modest, wise and good."

Strong Sense of Duty

From an early age on, like many of his 18-century peers, the future president saw himself as a "figure upon the stage" playing a role in the "scenes of life," Klapthor and her Smithsonian colleague, Howard Morrison, point out in their catalog related to the exhibition.

Washington was ever alert to styles and appearances—the props and costumes, so to speak, needed for his roles. These concerns, coupled with his sense of duty to self, family and community, continued throughout his life—in the Army, on the frontier, at his farm, during the Revolution and as president.

"He was always ambitious, but not in the negative sense of the word," says Christine Meadows, curator at Washington's home, Mount Vernon. "He wanted to do the right thing at the right time and was keen—as he put it—on acquiring things that were 'neat and fashionable.'" After his marriage, for example, the young squire ordered many luxuries from England, always of the latest style—furniture, rugs, art, china, glass, silver, fabrics and even a parrot for the children.

During his presidency, Washington came to feel that the way he personally presented himself would help the young nation become legitimate in the view of other nations, Klapthor points out. "Washington realized that the respect he attained as an individual would overflow to the nation as a whole."

MARSHALL DAVIDSON, Master Commissioner, Floyd Circuit Court

"A Figure Upon the State"

But there would be a price to pay for Washington's concern—some historians call it obsession—for duty, form and the recognition he always sought. It was exacted in the 19th century and is still paid today. Washington "has become entombed in his own myth," Cunliffe concludes. "Surely no one else has been so thoroughly venerated and frozen in legend."

The consequences can be viewed at the Smithsonian exhibition, where hundreds of objects in the museum's collections and on loan from 75 sources, show how Americans—foreigners, too—have placed Washington on a pedestal and monumentalized the leader.

Washington has been used to promote Temperance ("We agree to abstain...") stated one declaration, ignoring the fact that Washington enjoyed a glass of wine or two), a brewery (a more realistic subject), soap, coffee, insurance, a country music station, presidential candidates, the ERA, a 1980 Washington for Jesus rally. His image has ornamented everything from whales' teeth to a tattooed lady's chest, and his name is immortalized in street names, sculptures in bronze and marble and a 555-foot monument in the nation's capital—itsself named for him.

Though valuable in demonstrating how Washington has been used as a symbol, all this tells little about the man himself. "We started out," Klapthor says, "to see why Washington has become a monument, then we turned to what he was as a man. This is the next natural step in the examination of Washington—it certainly is not another glorification."

Formative Years

As a boy, the Smithsonian curators say, George Washington unconsciously absorbed many of the notions and values of the local Virginia gentry, which modeled itself after the English upper class and struggled somewhat clumsily to achieve its aspirations in a provincial wilderness. Even as a child, he was concerned with how he was considered and perceived, copying down in his school books such rules of civility as, "Bedew no mans face with your Spittle, by approaching too near when you speak."

As Washington grew older and observed his family and their friends, he seemed to have recognized the importance of fulfilling his class-designated role, actively modeling himself into the kind of person who would achieve not only the respect of his peers, but also a personal sense of self-esteem.

Washington's half-brother, Lawrence, became a model for George when their father died in 1743. George was then 11, but even as a young child he had been spellbound by Lawrence's glamour, urbanity and charm—not to mention his red British officer's uniform, a symbol that may have sparked George's interest in the glory and adventure of a military career.

Lawrence's Mount Vernon neighbors, the Fairfaxes, one of Virginia's ruling families, "provided quite a heady entree to the aristocratic life for a gangly teenager," Klapthor and Morrison note. "He was fascinated, indeed enchanted by their elegance and leisure, by their witty and cosmopolitan conversation, by their extensive circle of powerful and engaging friends."

George also was aware of the value of land, which was essential to the economic well-being of the gentry, and a knowledge of topography offered surveyors many important social and political advantages in Virginia society.

George was fascinated with surveying because he had a mathematical and methodical mind. At 16 he drew his first survey, a plat of Lawrence's turnip patch. A year later, through his Fairfax connection, he secured his first job—assisting a surveyor in plotting the town of Alexandria, Va., in 1749.

Yet he also felt that military service would bring rewards beyond those offered by surveying. In 1752, he applied for the position of adjutant for the Virginia colony, and the following year he was picked to lead an expedition west of the Blue Ridge Mountains to order the French off British lands. This and other ventures won Washington the rank of colonel in the newly organized Virginia regiment.

What he hungered for, though, was the glamour, prestige and self-esteem associated with the rank of a regular British officer. But his efforts to secure a royal commission were continually rebuffed, in part a reflection of the second-rate status given the American colonies by the crown.

"He did everything feasible to win preferment" in the military, Cunliffe writes, but "there is something unlikeable about the George Washington of the 1753-58 period. He seems a trifle raw and strident, too much on his dignity, too ready to complain, too nakedly concerned with self-promotion."

In 1758, he resigned from the Virginia Regiment and returned to his estates for the next 14 years, playing the role of the gentleman farmer.

Leadership Role

By the end of his career as Virginia Colonel, change had begun to come over the future leader. "His responsibilities for protecting the frontier had made real for him the gentry's notion of being responsible for one's community," and "in the process," Klapthor and Morrison maintain, "his interest in command—matured and reinforced by a sense of responsibility to a people—was transmuted; it became a concern with leadership. Washington took up this role with his family, his peers, his slaves and his community."

But history beckoned. When the Second Continental Congress, meeting in Philadelphia in 1775, voted to establish the American Continental Army, Washington already had a reputation for military leadership that crossed colonial borders, and his "appearance as the only military man at the Congress combined with his personal demeanor and self-control, his social confidence and political experience made a powerful impression on the delegates," according to the curators. He was unanimously elected commander.

Although Washington never won an out-and-out victory during the Revolution, he won renown and respect as a successful military leader, history records. The reason, it now seems clear, is that Washington reconciled himself to the truth that "on our side the war should be defensive."

The war over, Washington returned to Mount Vernon in 1784 and for six years enjoyed a "freedom from public cares." He did not want to return to center stage, he said. He agreed with Martha who wrote that she knew "too much of the vanity of human affairs to expect felicity from the splendid scenes of life." He wanted to remain a farmer at Mount Vernon, the place he loved most, and in fact, whenever he was away, he kept close tabs on every detail about the estate.

Early in his life, Klapthor and Morrison conclude, Washington had learned that a gentleman had certain duties to fulfill. His belief in duty, his hunger for esteem and his sense of leadership then came to overwhelm "his preference for comfortable privacy."

NOTE The Smithsonian exhibition celebrating the 250th anniversary of George Washington's birth opens Feb. 23, and continues through next Dec. 31 at the National Museum of American History in Washington, D.C.

Pharmacy Footnotes

By HAROLD COOLEY

There is no denying that infectious mononucleosis is a serious illness. However, in most cases, it passes fairly rapidly and leaves no after effects. The rate of recovery depends on the patient's psychological outlook as well as diet and sleeping patterns. The cause of "mono" is not exactly known. As a result, the cure and method of transmission of the disease are difficult to specify. You may be able to get it from kissing or from sharing the same utensils as someone who either has the disease or is a carrier.

If you or someone you know is suffering from infectious mononucleosis, remember that plenty of rest and a good diet are important to recovery. At COOLEY APOTHECARY INC. our Registered Pharmacist is your physicians' consultant and source of information. We offer the most complete and professional prescription service in the area. Miss Edna Ritchie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Ritchie, of Wayland, and Mr. Gary E. Johnson, son of Harve Johnson, and the late Betty See Johnson, were married January 30 at the home of her parents by the Rev. Harve Johnson.

The maid of honor was Rita Johnson, of Pikeville, and best man was Raymond Douglas Hall, of Ligon. The ringbearer was Thomas M. Thornsberry.

AFTER THE SNOW MELTS, streets in mountain towns seem to be dirtier than ever. Prestonsburg street-sweeping equipment, rarely seen during daylight hours, was in use this week to minimize the problem. City employees were also at work cleaning back streets in town following the melting of weekend snow.

FLOYD COUNTY HEALTH NEWS

By JANE BOND Health Educator

Cervical cancer kills 11,000 women in the United States each year. These are needless deaths since cervical cancer can be one of the most curable of all cancers, if it is detected in time. The Pap test is a simple painless test which takes only a few minutes of a woman's time and can detect cervical cancer when it is in its most curable state.

The Floyd County Health Department is having Pap clinics at the Wheelwright branch of the health department on Tuesday, February 23, and at the health department in Prestonsburg on Wednesday, February 24. The hours at both clinics are from 8:30 until 11:30 and from 1 until 2. These clinics are free services of the health department and any woman who has not had a Pap test in the past year is urged to take advantage of this service.

Glaucoma is the second leading cause of blindness among adults. This disease usually strikes without any symptoms, and for this reason persons over age 35 are urged to be checked regularly for the disease. Early detection of glaucoma means that treatment can begin and save persons from needless blindness.

The Floyd County Health Department is having a glaucoma clinic Monday, February 22. This clinic is also a free service of the health department and persons over age 35 are especially urged to take advantage of this service since this is the high risk age for glaucoma.

Magisterial Dist.

Bill Near Passage

Passed by the House, 83 to 7, and apparently headed for the same reception in the Senate is House Bill 59 which would require the redefining of magisterial district boundaries.

The law, if it passes the Senate hurdle, will require that magisterial redistricting be done before the end of the current year and that the districts be reapportioned so that they are approximately equal on the basis of new census figures. It would provide, also, that such redistricting be done with each new federal census every 10 years.

Each fiscal court would be required to name a redistricting commission to prepare a reapportionment plan and submit it to the fiscal court for approval.

Redistricting of county educational districts is not included in the bill. Under current law (KRS 150.210) such redistricting is made only if 100 or more petitioners file with the State Superintendent of Public Instruction a petition asking such redefining of boundaries.

Unemployment increased during December in 106 Kentucky counties, according to statistics released last week by the Department for Human Resources. Ninety-six counties had unemployment rates higher than the national average of 8.3 percent.

Of those counties above the national average, 65 had rates 10.0 percent or more and eight counties had rates 20.0 percent or higher.

With a labor force of 14,245 Floyd county had 13,099 employed, leaving 1146 idle for a rate of 8 percent.

The number of jobless persons in the Lexington metropolitan area rose by 1,439 from November to December. This increase caused the area's unemployment to rise to 5.9 percent for the month.

The Louisville area's unemployment rate increased from 12.2 percent in November to 13.6 percent in December. This 1.4 percent increase was the result of 53,361 unemployed persons in the area.

The December unemployment rate for Eastern Kentucky was 10.1 percent, up 0.6 percentage points from the area's November rate.

Within the Eastern Kentucky area, 17 counties had unemployment rates greater than 10.0 percent and two counties had rates higher than 20.0 percent. Menifee County had the area's and the state's highest unemployment rate, 33.0 percent. Martin county had the area's lowest rate, 5.3 percent.

Three Days In One At School

Clark School pupils demonstrate "eruption" of volcano.

Valentine week-end was of unusual interest to children at the Clark School last Friday as special activities relating to reading were conducted the entire day. Besides Valentine's Day, it was RIF Day and I-Love-To-Read Day.

The day began with the student body and all staff members witnessing a demonstration by a group of students of the "eruption" of a volcano. Special reading activities, book talks and illustrations followed. During the day each child selected a book to keep as his or her own. Of more than 1200 books on display, a total of 646 were selected.

It was the second RIF Day at the school this year, and another is planned before the school term ends. Project RIF is a national program which permits local agencies to purchase books for children at a dollar cost of 3 to 1. I-Love-To-Read Day is sponsored by the Kentucky Department of Education, and all schools of the state are asked to observe the day with special reading activities.

Poor Get 30 Days Before Heat Cut

Gov. John Y. Brown Jr. last week signed an emergency regulation for the Public Service Commission that will give low-income people an extra 30 days to pay heating bills before service can be cut off.

The regulation requires the customer to receive certification from the state Department for Human Resources' Bureau for Social Insurance that he or she is in need of assistance.

The utility, when it sends a 10-day notice that service will be discontinued, will have to give the phone number and address of the nearest office of the Bureau for Social Insurance. During that 10 days, the customer will seek certification from the Human Resources agency. Either the agency or the customer must then give the certification to the utility. The extra 30 days begins when the 10-day notice period is up.

The regulation states that to qualify for the extra 30 days a customer must be eligible for energy assistance under the Bureau for Social Insurance's guidelines or certified as being in genuine financial need. To be so certified, a person must be a "current recipient of Aid to Families with Dependent Children, Medicaid, food stamps, or with gross income at or below 130 percent of the poverty level."

During the 30-day period, the customer and the utility will negotiate a partial payment plan. The utility must accept the plan when the customer shows a good-faith effort to pay all of his or her heating bills before the next Oct. 15.

The regulation is the result of hearings the commission held in January on whether utilities should be banned from cutting off service in winter for non-payment.

The emergency regulation is in effect the rest of this winter. The commission will soon file the regulation with the Legislative Research Commission. If approved by the Legislature's Administrative Regulations Review Subcommittee, the regulation will become permanent.

CARD OF THANKS

The family of James W. Gibson would like to express thanks to all who helped during the passing of their loved one. Thanks to all who sent food, flowers, prayers, and words of comfort, thanks to the Samaria Regular Baptist Church at Teaberry, to the Regular Baptist ministers for their words of comfort, and to the Hall Funeral Home for its kind and courteous service.

Betsy Layne Annexes 20th Win

By C. "OLLIE" ROBINSON and TOMMIE L. MAY

The Betsy Layne Bobcats became the first Floyd county team to win 20 games this season last Friday night at the D. W. Howard Fieldhouse at Betsy Layne. The Bobcats defeated the Elkhorn City Cougars, 77 to 64, in a homecoming affair. The 1961 and 1971 graduating classes were honored at halftime when Miss Tiffany Coleman was crowned as Homecoming Basketball Queen for 1981-'82.

The Bobcats were leading at halftime, 35 to 29, and in the second half pulled away and were never threatened, to the delight of the homecoming crowd. The Bobcats were led in scoring by James Hall and Johnny Little, each with 18 points, Dwayne Lykins had 13 and Marty Meade 11. Elkhorn City was led by Goose Belcher with 20 points. Betsy Layne's record is now 20 and 4. The other team in the 15th region with 20 wins or more is Virgie, winner over Sheldon Clark last Saturday night at Virgie, 86 to 70. Virgie's record is now 21 and 2. Sheldon Clark's is 4 and 16.

Several games were postponed last week due to bad roads and high waters. Last Wednesday night, Allen Central defeated the Wheelwright Trojans, 80 to 43. Bruce Mullins led the assault with 31 points and 21 rebounds, Tony Jones had 15, sophomore Tim Lawson connected for 13 and Rick Conn had 10. For the Trojans, David Tackett and Terry Conley had 10 each and Eddie Johnson had 9. The Rebels are now 13 and 9.

The McDowell Daredevils were defeated by the Virgie Eagles Wednesday night, 83 to 60. Roger Moore fired in 23 points for the Daredevils and Frank Johnson had 12. The Eagles were led by Todd May with 39. McDowell's record is now 17 and 10.

Girls' basketball play last week was also light due to weather conditions. Last Wednesday night, the Allen Central Rebelettes defeated the Wheelwright Lady Trojans, 54 to 28. Kim Shepherd led the Rebelettes with 13 points, while Mia Jones led the Lady Trojans with 14.

Thursday night, the McDowell Daredevilles traveled to Whitesburg and were defeated, 90 to 13. Also on Thursday night, the Allen Central Rebelettes defeated Knott County Central, 43 to 37. Kim Shepherd led the Rebelettes with 15, Bucky Hall had 10, and Kathy Howard 9 points.

District Net Tourney Schedule Announced

The county's annual basketball showdown, the 58th district tournament for both boys' and girls' teams, will begin at the Allen Central High School gym Wednesday night, March 3, and continue through the next three evenings. McDowell High is the host school for the tourney.

Winners and runnersup will move the next week into the 15th regional meet, which will name regional champions in both divisions of play to compete in the state tournament.

Betsy Layne, McDowell and Allen Central may be favored by oddsmakers, on the basis of season play, but the standings do not always stand under tournament pressure.

All boys' games will be played at 8:30 p.m.; girls' games, at 7 p.m.

In boys' play McDowell and Prestonsburg will open the tournament Wednesday evening, March 3. The winner of that game will meet Betsy Layne, which drew a bye, Friday evening. You were sent from God, a special gift, to bless our home and lives for twenty-two years.

We don't want to question God. We know He always knows best.

We just want to thank Him for giving you to us for the years He did. We are thankful for the joy and happiness you brought us in such a short time.

Now you have left us two beautiful grandchildren and through them you will continue to live and enrich our lives.

Now we know He has called you home. Even though it's hard to accept, we know you are at peace and rest.

ALLEN WOMAN'S CLUB

The Allen Woman's Club held its February meeting at the home of Diana Reed with vice president Ferne Ankrum presiding. The meeting began with the pledge to the Flag and a devotion entitled "Daily Valentine" was read by Carolyn Branham.

Goldie Short, of Allen, was special guest for the evening, teaching members how to needlepoint crosses for table favors. These table favors are to be used at the upcoming KFWC meeting in Lexington.

A business meeting followed with the minutes from the last meeting read by club secretary Diana Reed. The treasurer's report was read by Jo Ann Adams.

Co-Chairmen for the annual Allen Volunteer Fire Dept. Letter campaign announced that all letters are ready for mailing. As in the past, the club wishes to acknowledge the support the Allen area residents have given their Fire Dept. If anyone does not receive a letter from the club and would like to make a donation, you may do so by sending your check to the Allen Fire Dept. or to the Allen Woman's Club.

A motion was made and passed to give the Allen Brownie Troop and Allen Jr. Scout Troop a donation of $50 each. Also a donation of $25 is to be mailed to the Ky. Society to Prevent Blindness.

The club's annual installation dinner is to be held at the April meeting. A nominating committee to select the 1982 club year officers was appointed. Members were asked to select students from the Allen area to represent them in the student competition at the 7th district meeting to be held in Hazard. Categories of competition are art, crafts, sewing, piano and vocal. Any high school student who is interested in representing the club may contact Mary Hinchman at 874-2821, or any club member.

Plans are being made for the annual Little Miss Floyd County Pageant to be held at the Betsy Layne High School gym on April 24. More details of the pageant will be announced at a later date.

The club presented Diana Reed with a gift from the members on the recent birth of her new baby boy.

As refreshments were being served by hostesses Bonita Porter and Pat Derossett, the members were shown slides on "Focus on Federation." Members present were Belle Conn, Hollie Blanton, Diana Reed, Ferne Ankrum, Carolyn Branham, Jo Ann Adams and Mary Hinchman. The club would also like to welcome Diane Stacey as a new member.

The next meeting is to be held March 2 at the home of Jo Ann Adams.

SEEK HELP FOR WILDLIFE

A person can give by donating part of his or her state income tax refund or by donating directly to the Kentucky Nature Preserves Trust Fund or the state Fish and Wildlife Resources Department. Contributions are tax deductible.

The money will be used by the Nature Preserves Commission to buy and maintain natural areas and by the department to support its non-game wildlife preservation programs. Donations are these programs only source of revenue.

The Nature Preserves Commission has established eight nature preserves in Kentucky and is inventorying the state for remaining natural areas.

If you would like more information about the commission or want a free "Do Something Wild" poster, contact the Nature Preserves Commission by writing 407 Broadway, Frankfort, Ky. or telephone (502) 564-2886.

The "Do Something Wild" slogan was born out legislation passed by the 1980 Kentucky General Assembly which made it possible for Kentuckians to donate part of their state tax refunds.

Ranier's No. 28 Wins Pole 4th Year in Row at Daytona

When Sunday's Daytona 500 took the green flag, it was the fourth year in a row that Harry Hale Ranier's No. 28 held the pole position.

Benny Parsons, driver for Ranier, won the No. 1 spot last Sunday with an average speed of 196.317 mph at the Daytona International Speedway that broke the Daytona stock car qualifying record set last year for Ranier by Buddy Baker.

The 40-year-old Parsons drove a Pontiac LeMans in Sunday's record-setting race. The aerodynamic car is similar to the machine that NASCAR legislated off the Grand National circuit a year ago. Parsons took over as driver of the Ranier entry from Bobby Allison, who won the pole position last year. Baker drove a Ranier car in 1979 and 1980 to finish in the pole position.

Harry Gant in a Buick Regal was second in the qualifying race, with Richard Petty, a seven-time Daytona 500 winner and the defending champion, third.

Ranier, a former Prestonsburg resident and Floyd county coal operator, now resides near Lexington.

Commenting on his record run Sunday, Parson said, "The car was so smooth and good out there that I was really concerned whether it was really that fast. It was really a sensational feeling. I only hope the car can run just that smooth and easy the whole race."

Time Running Out For Draft Sign-Up

The grace period for late registration for the draft expires Feb. 28, Brig. Gen. Taylor Davidson warned today. Young men who fail to meet the deadline will be prosecuted, added Davidson, state director of Selective Service.

Recently, President Reagan announced his decision to continue peacetime Selective Service registration, Davidson noted. The requirement to register applies to U.S. citizens, and to aliens residing in the United States, born on or after Jan. 1, 1960.

Men born in 1960 and 1961 were scheduled to register during July 1980; men born in 1962 were scheduled to register in January 1981; those born in 1963 were scheduled to be registered throughout 1981; those born in 1963 were scheduled to be registered throughout 1981 as they reached age 18. Men born in 1964 should register within 30 days of their 18th birthday. They may register with Selective Service at any U.S. post office.

After Feb. 28, and after identifying the names of those persons who registered during the grace period, Selective Service will carry out a program of full compliance with the registration law. The Department of Justice, in coordination with the Selective Service System, will initiate appropriate enforcement action.

As one of several means of calling attention to the registration requirement, the Selective Service System is continuing to make available for public inspection, lists of registrants and their tentative local board assignments. This is keeping with the intent of Selective Service that its procedures be open to the public. Most lists will be posted at county courthouses and city halls.

The lists cover registrations processed through Sept. 30, 1981 and include men born in 1960, 1961, 1962, and 1963. Local board assignments are arranged by zip code based upon the registrant's permanent address.

Dinner parties are great but sometimes cleaning up after the event becomes a chore. Food spills on tablecloths or napkins can cause permanent stains if you do not care for them promptly.

What should you do when gravy is spilled on your tablecloth? First, remove any excess gravy from the fabric with a spoon or knife. Then soak the stained area in cool water until you have time to remove the stain. Cool water will prevent the stain from setting.

Gravy is a difficult stain to remove because it has both greasy and non-greasy properties. After the stain has soaked in cool water, allow the fabric to dry out at room temperature. Then apply a dry-cleaning solvent, available at grocery and drug stores, from the wrong side of the fabric. It is important to work from the opposite side of the fabric so that the stain is lifted off the surface, not forced through the fabric.

After the solvent evaporates from the fabric, wash as usual with detergent. Some prewash sprays contain a high percentage of solvent that removes greasy stains. Be sure to read the label to see if the product is recommended for greasy stains before using the spray.

Remove cheese sauce, cocoa, salad dressing and cake frosting with these same procedures.

Soak fruit and fruit juice stains for 15 minutes in a solution of 1 quart warm water with 1/2 teaspoon liquid detergent and 1 tablespoon of vinegar. Then rinse with water and sponge with alcohol. Place the stained area over a pad of absorbent material, stained side down. Sponge the stain lightly from the center toward the edges. The stain is less likely to form rings this way.

Change the absorbent material under the stain as soon as any stain transfers to it. When no more stain is removed, wash with warm water and detergent. If the stain remains, soak in an enzyme solution and wash again.

Remove coffee (without cream), jam, soft drinks, mixed drinks, beer and wine with this technique, too.

Scrape candle wax from fabric with a dull knife. Remove as much wax as possible, then place the stain between two sheets of blotting paper or folded paper towels. Iron at a low temperature, replacing the papers frequently. Continue changing the papers and ironing until no more wax melts. Then sponge with dry-cleaning solvent until you have removed all the wax. If any stain is left, use chlorine bleach in the washing process.

Removing stains is not difficult if you act promptly. But waiting several days before trying these cleaning techniques results in a permanent stain, ruining the material.

There's a better way to predict your next electric bill.

You don't need a crystal ball. You need the Equal Payment Plan. A Plan that smooths out the ups and downs of your monthly electric bills. Your bills fluctuate with the seasons. Up in winter. Up in summer. Down in spring and fall.

With the Plan, you'll pay a fixed amount each month, based on your average annual electric usage. It means you can defer part of each winter's heating and summer's cooling electric bills to spring and fall.

The Plan gives you a better, easier way to put together a household budget. Without surprises. Your account will be reviewed every six months to see that your budget payment is still as close as possible to your average use. And, at the end of the twelfth month, you'll receive a settle-up bill or a credit.

Now your electric bills can be very predictable. With the Equal Payment Plan. Just send in this coupon for more information.

PUBLIC NOTICE TO OWNERS OF RENTAL HOUSING

The Floyd County Housing Authority is administering a Section 8 Moderate Rehabilitation Program in Floyd County using funds provided by the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

Under this program, owners will rehabilitate rental units which are now substandard or have major building systems or components requiring repair or replacement. The cost of this work, which must total at least $1000 per unit, may be financed by a local lending institution, by the owner, or by any other source available to the owner. The agency does not make rehabilitation loans or grants, but will assist owners to obtain financing.

After required rehabilitation work has been completed, the agency and the owner will execute a contract which establishes a rent for the unit(s) that will cover rehabilitation costs, meet monthly operating expenses, and allow a reasonable profit on the owner's investment. For a fifteen year period, the owner will rent the rehabilitated unit(s) to eligible lower income tenants, who will pay approximately 25 percent of their income toward the rent, the agency will pay the remainder of the rent directly to the owner. The initial occupant of a rehabilitated unit may be the owner's present eligible tenant.

After rehabilitation the rent (including utilities) cannot exceed the following Maximum Rents:

BEDROOM SIZE
1	2	3	4
206	244	282	319

The agency's current funds will allow rehabilitation of 35 units of rental housing as follows:

1 BR	2 BR	3 BR	4 BR
8	18	7	2

No unit will be assisted which results in the permanent displacement of a current tenant. Proposals from owners will be received by the Housing Authority until further notice.

Carr-Isaac Vows Exchanged

Family members and friends of Miss Debra L. Carr and Mr. Robert D. Isaac traveled through snow and ice on January 16 to witness their wedding at the Arkansas Church of God. The setting of this church is of special significance to the bride because it is the home church of her maternal grandparents.

The bride is the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lum Carr, of Martin, and the groom is the youngest son of Mrs. Alice Isaac, of Hebron, Ky., and the late Virnes Isaac.

Pre-nuptial music was presented by Anna Crum, Thelma Samons, and Sola Frasure, aunts of the bride, and Ilene Crum, the bride's cousin. Selections rendered to guitar accompaniment by Anna Crum were, "He's All I Need," "He Was There All The Time," and "We Are One."

Miss Carr and Mr. Isaac exchanged vows at 2 p.m. Saturday, before an altar banked with lavender and white silk flowers and lighted tapers in arched candelabra. The ceremony was solemnized by the Rev. Woodrow Crum, who is a cousin of the bride.

The bride, escorted by her father, wore a gown of white polyester lace and silk organza. The Queen Anne neckline and full bishop sleeves were accented with seed pearls and chantilly lace appliques. A front panel of accordian pleated silk organza fell from the natural waistline, and the skirt of polyester lace flowed back forming a chapel-length train. The triple veil of illusion fell from a lace caplet and was trimmed with chantilly lace and pearls matching the trim of the gown.

White, lavender, and purple silk blossoms nestled in greenery fashioned the bride's bouquet. Fulfilling the age old tradition of "something old, something new, something borrowed, something blue", the bride's garter, a gift from the best man, Nathan Reffitt, was both old and blue, bridal attire was new, and pearls belonging to Mrs. Carolyn Worrix and shoes on loan from Mrs. Janet Webb were borrowed.

Attending the bride as maid of honor, was her only sister, Libby, attired in a gown of white organza flounced at the neckline and hem and splashed with floral bouquets in pastel shades of pink, blue, lavender and green. She carried a nosegay of silk flowers matching those of the bridal bouquet.

Three flower girls, April Michelle Samons and Regina Dawn Frasure, cousins of the bride and Michelle Ann Isaac, neice of the groom, covered the aisle before the bride with a pathway of pink rose petals. Their identical gowns were of lavender leno trimmed with ruffles and lace and tied at the waist with purple ribbon sashes to match the purple ribbons holding their curls.

Nathan Reffitt served as Mr. Isaac's best man and taper lighter. Presiding over the bride's guest register was Diane Sexton.

Mrs. Joann Carr, mother of the bride, wore a street-length dress of magenta panne velvet. Mrs. Alice Isaac, mother of the groom, chose a street-length dress of aquamarine quiana. Both mothers completed their dress with corsages of white carnations.

The decorations of the Martin Elementary School reception hall were white and purple continuing the wedding color scheme. The three-tiered cake surrounded by four smaller cakes was embellished with dainty lavender flowers and green leaves. Underneath the cake was leatherleaf and baby's breath sprayed with lavender. Attending the cake and punch serving were Libby Carr, Connie Hicks, and Joann Carr.

The bridal couple left immediately following the reception for Gatlinburg, Tennessee and nearby points of interest. They are now at home on Wilson Creek at Maytown. Mr. Isaac is a geologist with Ky. W. Va. Gas Co. and Mrs. Isaac is a stenographer with Ky. Hydrocarbon Co.

Among the wedding guests were maternal grandparents of the bride, Mr. and Mrs. Arvil Crum, and paternal grandmother of the groom, Mrs. Annie Isaac. Out-of-town guests include Mr. and Mrs. Larry Isaac, son, Gary, and daughter, Michelle, of Hebron, Ky.; Mr. and Mrs. Bill Gentry and daughters, Stacie and Amanda, of Erlanger, Ky.; Mrs. Viola Parsons and son, Greg; Mr. and Mrs. Deon Hurley and son, Benji, all of Dexter, Michigan.

Highway Program Said "Headed for Collapse"

Kentucky's highway program "is headed for eventual collapse, unless additional highway financing is provided," according to Jack Fish, president of Kentuckians for Better Transportation (KBT).

Fish said, state and local governments are spending "significantly less" than what is needed to provide an adequate highway program. A KBT policy paper, released today, declares the situation "critical."

"We feel it is absolutely essential to Kentucky's future that the General Assembly act to preserve and improve the state's highway system," said Fish. "Without substantial additional revenue, deterioration of our highways will be accelerated, and business and industry productivity in many places will continue to be seriously impaired because of inadequate roads."

KBT's recommendations to bolster the state's road fund, include increases in the gasoline tax and the automobile and truck registration fees, and possible help from the General Fund, if a gross receipts tax were enacted.

KBT, through the work of its Task Force on Highway Funding, has suggested that any substantial increase in highway revenue must come from either an increase in the motor fuels tax, or the elimination of the five percent sales tax exemption on motor fuels.

One method of increasing the motor fuels tax, according to KBT, would be to increase the present $1 floor of the variable tax.

Under the present law, if the wholesale average price of gasoline were to drop below $1, the nine percent tax would be determined at the floor of $1, and not the actual wholesale average. Since the passage of the variable fuels tax in 1980, the computed gasoline tax has risen to 10.4-cents per gallon. However, this summer, the tax dropped to 10.3 cents. And, according to the Department of Revenue, the latest computation of average wholesale prices brings the tax down to 10-cents per gallon, for this quarter.

If the floor were raised, the tax would be based on that floor, even if the average wholesale price of gasoline continues to drop. Fish noted that the two-year $1.50 ceiling imposed by the legislation anticipated that the tax should now be at the 13.5-cent ceiling rather than just 10 cents.

KBT said, imposing the five percent sales tax on gasoline would generate more than $100 million each year for the Road Fund. KBT's position paper recognizes that the motor fuels tax "cannot realistically be much greater than surrounding states."

In Indiana, with 4 percent retail sales tax included, the total tax on gasoline at $1.40 per gallon is 15.5 cents. In Illinois, with sales tax included, the total tax per gallon at $1.40 is 14.1 cents. Ohio's motor fuel tax is 10.3 cents; West Virginia, 10.5 cents; Virginia, 11 cents; and Tennessee's gasoline tax is 10 cents and diesel is 13 cents. While Missouri's motor fuels tax is only 7 cents, the state is not accessible to large Kentucky population centers.

KBT's other recommendations include:

1. If there are new substantial General Fund taxes, some $45 million in sales tax paid annually on automotive parts and tires, and $25 million in state property tax revenue collected on motor vehicles should be removed from the General Fund and included in the Road Fund.

2. The registration fees for automobiles and trucks should be raised to the average of the states adjacent to Kentucky. According to the state transportation department, the average registration fee in surrounding states is $29.50. Kentucky's registration fee for automobiles is $11.50.

3. The present two percent surtax on motor fuels, levied on trucks with three or more axles, should be converted to an equivalent truck registration fee and added to three-axle truck registration fees.

The removal of limited registration for trucks would bring in about $4 million. The raising of truck registration fees would generate another $15 million.

4. There should be greater use of coal severance tax revenue for coal road and highway maintenance in counties affected by coal transportation.

KBT, which is made up of representatives of all modes of transportation as well as government and industry officials, also urged that there be more stringent enforcement of automobile and truck licensing laws, and that truck weight scales be open more often.

Police To Enforce Water Safety Laws

Marion D. Campbell, commissioner of the Kentucky State Police, was announced that as a result of reorganization additional training will be administered to special enforcement officers to ensure adequate enforcement on Kentucky's waterways this summer.

Because of budgetary constraints, the state police agency was forced Jan. 31, to lay off 27 water safety officers. On Feb. 1, the 22 officers remaining were combined with the vehicle enforcement section of the state police. The new section will be titled vehicle and water enforcement as a part of the special enforcement division.

Presently the remaining water safety officers are being trained in vehicle enforcement procedures which deal with commercial truck violations. After training, they will enforce commercial truck laws during the winter months and water safety laws during the summer months.

Also 34 vehicle enforcement officers will be trained in water safety laws and techniques, which they will be called upon to enforce during the summer months as needed.

Commissioner Campbell points out this will represent a net gain of seven officers capable of enforcing safety laws and regulations on Kentucky's rivers and lakes this summer. As of April 1, there will be 56 officers trained and equipped for patrolling Kentucky's waterways.

Commissioner Campbell emphasized that by combining vehicle enforcement and water safety the state police will be able to heighten efforts of both water and enforcement officers, thus giving the citizens of the commonwealth an adequate level of service and protection.

Census Workers Interview Here

Local representatives of the Bureau of the Census will conduct a survey of employment in this area during the work week of February 16-20, Joseph S. Harris, Director of the Bureau's Regional Office in Charlotte, announced today.

The survey is conducted for the U.S. Department of Labor in a scientifically designed sample of approximately 71,000 households throughout the United States. Employment and unemployment statistics based on results of this survey are used to provide a continuing measure of the economic health of the nation.

For example, in December the survey indicated that of the 106.7 million men and women in the civilian labor force, 97.2 million were employed. The jobless rate was approximately 8.9 percent, up from 8.4 percent in November.

Information supplied by people participating in the survey is kept strictly confidential by law and results are used only to compile statistical totals.

STORING AND USING CHEESE

Kentuckians will share 430,000 pounds of surplus processed American cheese from USDA warehouses. The cheese, a nutritious addition to family meals, can be used in a variety of ways to enhance the appeal of your meals. So families receiving the cheese should store it properly to prevent spoilage.

Unopened, refrigerated processed American cheese will keep six months according to the USDA. Once the original package is opened, it will keep its quality three to four weeks, if properly stored. If, upon opening the cheese, you find mold, contact the distribution center; you may be able to exchange your block.

After you open the original package, overwrap the cheese with a moisture-vapor proof, plastic wrap, such as Saran, to keep it from drying out or spoiling. If mold develops on the surface of the refrigerated cheese, the USDA advises you to cut off the moldy part; if the mold does not extend into the block, the remaining cheese is still good.

For longer storage, freeze the cheese for up to six months. Although after freezing, its texture can become somewhat crumbly. When freezing processed cheese, cut the block into meal-size portions, 1 pound or less, package in freezer wrap and freeze at 0 degrees F.

If you plan to use the cheese in grilled sandwiches or on hamburgers, slice the cheese before freezing and put plastic wrap between the slices for easier separation after thawing. Frozen cheese should be thawed in the refrigerator.

USES

Processed cheese is ideal in cooked dishes. It doesn't separate, get stringy, or tough as readily as some natural cheeses. Processed cheese, shredded or cut up into small pieces, may be added to family recipes for meat loaf, casseroles, pizza, sauces, soups and even biscuits.

CHEESE BAKE

10 slices bread
1-1/2 cups cut-up cheese
3 eggs
1-1/2 cups milk
1 teaspoon prepared mustard
1 teaspoon salt
Cut bread in small pieces. Mix bread and cheese in a baking pan. Set aside. Beat eggs. Add milk, mustard and salt and mix well. Pour over bread and cheese in pan. Bake at 350 degrees F. (moderate oven) for 25 minutes. Serve at once. Makes 6 servings, 3/4 cup each.

TASTY MACARONI BAKE

3 cups cooked macaroni
1 can (10-3/4 oz.) condensed tomato soup
1/3 cup water
2 cups processed American cheese, shredded
1 tablespoon onion, finely chopped
Preheat oven to 350 degrees F. In 1-1/2 quart casserole, combine cooked macaroni, soup, water, 1-1/2 cups cheese and onion. Top with the remaining 1/2 cup of cheese. Bake at 350 degrees F for 30 minutes or until hot. Makes 6 servings.

CARROT CASSEROLE

3 cups carrots, sliced, cooked
1 can (10-1/2 oz.) condensed cream of celery soup
1 cup or 4 oz. processed cheese, shredded
1/4 cup bread crumbs, fine dry
1 tablespoon margarine, melted
Preheat oven to 350 degrees F. Mix carrots, soup and cheese together in baking dish. Mix bread crumbs and fat. Sprinkle on top of carrot mixture. Bake about 20 minutes or until crumbs are brown. Makes 6 servings.

CHEESE SAUCE

2 tablespoons margarine
1/4 cup flour
1/2 teaspoon salt
2 cups milk
1/2 teaspoon prepared mustard
1-1/2 cups cut-up cheese
Melt fat in a pan. Mix in flour and salt. Add milk slowly, stirring until smooth. Cook and stir until sauce thickens. Add mustard and cheese. Stir over low heat until cheese melts. Makes 2-2/3 cups sauce. Note: Use cheese sauce to pour over cooked vegetables or to mix with cooked potatoes, rice, macaroni, noodles or hominy.

MACARONI AND CHEESE

Make cheese sauce recipe above. Mix with 3 cups drained, cooked macaroni. Heat and serve. Makes 6 servings.

Growing Child

SHOULD MY BABY HAVE A WALKER

Human babies follow a certain developmental pattern. Head control, for instance, leads to sitting balance, and sitting alone prepares the child for creeping. Learning to creep then prepares the child for walking.

Left to his own efforts, a child will progress to walking when his body is ready to walk, says Growing Child, the monthly child development newsletter. A number of factors contribute to this walking readiness.

First of all, a baby's back muscles must be strong enough to keep him upright and balanced over his legs and feet. He must have developed certain balancing and protective responses which will protect him from serious injury during the many falls he will experience as he learns to walk.

Through creeping, a baby learns to use his arms and legs rhythmically and alternately while holding his head up to see where he is going. The many small bones of Baby's feet are not hard like adult bones but are cartilage, which is firm but flexible—like hard rubber. The muscles which support the bones and which eventually hold the arches in place must be strong enough to hold the bones in good alignment when the baby stands on his feet.

Left to himself, a baby will creep and pull to a standing position. During the period he just stands with his feet fairly wide apart and turned out for better balance. Later, he will begin to sidestep while holding onto a support.

A baby needs lots of practice in all of the activities—creeping, balancing, standing—which strengthen his muscles, improve his balance, and lead to strong standing and walking positions.

In a walker, a baby gets no stable standing practice. Any random leg movements push the walker from place to place. Rhythmic patterns of leg movement are not established, and coordinated arm and leg movements fail to develop as they should.

A child who can move in a walker before he has proper balance—and judgement—endangers himself. Once in motion, he may not be able to stop, back up, or control the direction of the walker. Pediatricians report that injuries from a tumble downstairs in a walker are common.

Simply stated, then, a baby will walk when he is ready. A fat, placid baby usually walks later than an active, wiry baby. Some children walk at 9 or 10 months. Others do not walk until 12-14 months.

But one thing you can be sure of—given plenty of opportunity to creep, pull to a standing position and cruise along supporting furniture, a baby will walk when his body and nervous system are developmentally ready. Babies enjoy walkers, but walkers take important time away from those developmental activities that produce real walking readiness.

The Growing Child newsletter follows a child's development month-by-month. For more information on the social and physical development of children from birth to six years old, write to Growing Child, PO Box 620N, Lafayette, IN 47902. Include child's birthdate when writing. A year's subscription to the newsletter costs $11.95.

Announce Wedding

Wedding vows will be exchanged between Glenda Faye Tackett and Erlin Randall Crum, March 6, at 2 p.m. at the Church of God of Prophecy, Hi Hat.

Mrs. Tackett is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Caudill, of Price. She will graduate from McDowell High School this year.

Mr. Crum is the son of Mrs. Elizabeth Crum, of Allen and the late Merlin Crum. He is a graduate of Allen Central High School and is presently employed at Prestonsburg Community College.

Friends and relatives are invited. There will be a reception immediately following the wedding. The couple will reside at Allen.

When George Washington took the oath as first president of the United States, he added this four-word prayer of his own: "So help me God." These words are still used in official oaths by Americans taking public office, in courts of justice, and in other legal proceedings. A courageous leader who strongly believed that "religion and morality are indispensable supports" of political prosperity, Washington gave us this advice in his famous Farewell Address: "I hold the maxim no less applicable to public than to private affairs, that honesty is always the best policy."

As of December, 1981, the Veterans Administration has 101 Vet Centers, operating nationwide, aiding Vietnam-era veterans who may be having problems readjusting to civilian life. Services include psychological and social counseling.
