

Fitzpatrick Resigns As Member Of The Bank Josephine's Board

By B.A. Heinze

In a terse, one-sentence statement, H. D. Fitzpatrick, Jr., submitted his resignation from the Board of Directors of The Bank Josephine, and although it was dated December 17, many bank employees knew nothing of his resignation as late as December 30.

Mr. Fitzpatrick, in a prepared statement, said of his resignation, "Many months ago, I was removed as president of The Bank Josephine by the present Board of Directors. Even though they could not remove me as a director, since that time I have been unable to influence the management of the bank. For this reason and because of this split in the Board, I felt I should resign as a director, effective immediately."

Fitzpatrick, who served as the bank's president from 1974 until his removal by the board last March in what he then said was "an apparent attempt by the McGuire family to completely dominate the bank, which they have been unable to do with (me) as president." He has continued to serve as a director of the bank.

This was followed in August by the ouster of Earl M. (Mickey) McGuire as chairman of the bank's board, and at the same time, McGuire's aunt, Cleo McGuire, was relieved of her duties as bank auditor. Both, however, remained members of the board. At the same meeting, Dr. J. D. Adams resigned from the board, but his resignation was not accepted. Other board members, at this time, were president of the bank, O. Sam Blankenship, who was named acting chairman, H. D. Fitzpatrick, Jr., William Lee Wells, Ewart Earl McGuire, and his son, Grant McGuire.

Since then, however, E. R. (Mickey) McGuire has once more moved back into the position of chairman of the board, and Grant McGuire is no longer a member. This followed a stockholders meeting last fall, by which time the McGuire family had acquired a substantial bloc of stock giving them an even greater margin as majority stockholders.

Fitzpatrick's resignation from the board marks the first time since the bank's founding in 1891 that no member of the Fitzpatrick family is associated

Four Arrested In Drug Busts

By Tim Sizemore

In two unrelated drug busts December 29, the sheriff's department seized a substantial amount of marijuana, drug money and drug-related paraphernalia.

The first raid took place at 11 a.m. on Colers Creek at the home of William Warner, 36, and Lisa Warner, 41, where officers found more than three pounds of marijuana with an estimated street value of $15,000, $3,000 in cash, four handguns and drug-related paraphernalia. The Warners were charged with drug trafficking and lodged in the Floyd county jail. The raid was conducted by Sheriff Henry C. Hale and deputies Antony Castle, George Hale, Harold Johnson, James Hall, and John Blackburn.

Later in the day around 4:30 p.m., a raid was conducted on the Johnson Fork of Middle Creek where two arrests were made. Tom Hagans, 26, and Heath Brown, 18, were arrested following a

'Old' Council Accepts Bids, Honors Two in Final Meeting

By Kurt Pickering

The outgoing Prestonsburg City Council gave first reading to two cleanup ordinances, approved the fiscal 1987 audit, and again tabled its new alarm system ordinance. The cleanup and alarm issues will now be passed on to the new council, sworn in New Year's Day.

The 'old' council had originally tabled acceptance of the audit in order to allow new council members to "get their feet wet" by reviewing and approving it, but Mayor Ann Latta, who was out of town during that meeting, suggested in the December 28 meeting that the council that operated the city during the budget period, ending in July 1987, should be the group to approve the audit. The approval was unanimous with the exception of outgoing Councilman Thomas Tackett, who abstained. Tackett made the original motion to defer approval to the new council.

The alarm system ordinance, given first reading in November and twice tabled since, has drawn criticism from merchants who object to the licensing fee and the monetary penalties for repeated false alarms. David Allen, of The Alarm Systems Company, who spoke against the ordinance in the last two meetings, said December 14 that merchants were unsure what the ordinance said—and were too busy during the Christmas season to come to that meeting to object. He was given a copy of the ordinance that evening and asked to return December 28 with some of the objecting merchants. He was again alone December 28. While he said he had not had an opportunity to meet with the City Manager Fred James about the Ordinance, he had read it and found he had "objections all through it." In the absence, of other merchants he voiced only two. First, he feels the section calling for the city to bid out the purchase of a new alarm board would give the successful contractor an unfair advantage in later selling alarm systems compatible with its board. Second, he feels the language defining a false alarm is unclear—which he finds objectionable since repeated false alarms would result in monetary penalties against the alarm system owner. Upon agreement that Allen, James and other merchants meet before the next council meeting, the ordinance was again tabled.

The two cleanup ordinances given first reading will both be among the first items taken up by the new council. One provides for declaring junk or abandoned vehicles a nuisance and allowing the city, 30 days after written notice, to fine

Old Year Ends, New Begins With Number of Shootings

By Tim Sizemore

1988 got off with a bang in Floyd county as four persons became shooting victims.

December 19, Mary Caudill, 41, of Wayland, was shot in the left foot. Accused in the shooting is Gary Hall, 26, of Mousie. According to investigating officer, Deputy Antony Castle, the shooting apparently stemmed from an anonymous call Hall thought was made by the victim's husband, Ang Caudill. According to Castle, Hall shot at least three times into the house and pickup truck of Caudill. He is charged with one count of first degree assault and three counts of wanton endangerment.

Another unrelated shooting took place Christmas day, because of a tiff between a former husband and wife. Danny Spurlock, 27, is accused of shooting his ex-wife, Linda. After the shooting, Spurlock drove the victim to the Our Lady of the Way Hospital and dropped her off. Later, Spurlock returned to the hospital and was arrested there by Deputy Sheriff Antony Castle and State Police officer Tina Wermouth. He was charged with first degree assault and lodged in the Floyd county jail.

Another shooting victim was Albert (Buddy) Gibson, 52, of Town Branch, who was wounded, December 28. According to State Police, Gibson was shot once in the leg after a dispute at Water Gap. Gibson was taken to Highlands Regional Medical Center and later transferred to the University of Kentucky Medical Center. No charges have been filed in the case, and the shooting is still being investigated.

On New Year's day, Danny Anderson, 46, of McDowell, was shot four times in the shoulders and head. The shooting, which took place around 6 p.m., arose from a dispute with Tom Poston, 38, of McDowell. Anderson was taken to the Appalachian Regional Hospital, where his condition is reported as satisfactory. Poston turned himself in yesterday to parole officer Paula Johnson and has been charged with first degree assault. The case is still under investigation by State Police Detective James Redrick.

According to the Sheriff's Department, Greta Adkins who was wounded December 16, was shot seven times instead of the three previously reported. Miss Adkins has been released from the hospital.

Board Holds Special Meet To Consider Bond Issuance

The Board of Education met in special session, December 29, to consider the issuance of $750,000 of the Floyd County School District Tax Anticipation Notes in order to provide funds to meet operational expenses of the school district pending receipt of ad valorem property taxes.

The motion to do so was made by James A. Duff and seconded by Fred Newsome, and passed by the board with no dissenting votes.

Car Accident Injures Local Woman

Mrs. Lloyd Hammonds, of the Lake Road, is a patient at UK Medical Center, suffering injuries when her car plunged down the steep floodwall embankment, here, Monday.

By Megan Corcoran

Little did Mrs. Ruby Hammonds know that a routine shopping trip here would end in near-disaster.

Mrs. Hammonds, 44, of Prestonsburg, was traveling on North Arnold Avenue between The First Commonwealth Bank and U.S. 23 when she swerved into the left lane to avoid a collision with another car entering onto the road about 25 feet ahead of her. When she hit the curb and then attempted to get back into the right lane to avoid on-coming traffic, Mrs. Hammonds said she lost control of her car which went over the floodwall and striking a retaining post which kept it from going into the floodgate well.

Mrs. Hammonds was taken to UK Medical Center in Lexington where she is suffering from bruises and a broken vertebra in her neck.

7 From County Charged In Paintsville Robbery

By Tim Sizemore

A burglary in Johnson county at the Shoppers Haven Mall, December 14, has resulted in the arrest of five Floyd county adults and two juveniles and the recovery of much of the stolen merchandise.

Margo Shepherd Conn, 47, Curt McIntosh, 20, Harry Poe, 19, Mark Collins, 19, all of the Middle Creek area, and Ricky Bevins, 25, of Abbot Creek, were all charged in connection with the burglary. Also arrested in connection with the crime were two juveniles.

The Floyd county sheriff's department, following up on a lead, conducted a raid at an abandoned barn on the Middle Creek road where they recovered 19 pairs of boots ranging in price from $250 to $550 and 31 belts valued at $25 or more each. Also recovered was an expensive leather jacket being worn by one of the suspects.

Margo Sheperd Conn was charged with conspiracy to commit burglary, and the others were charged with receiving stolen property.

Most of the items taken have been accounted for although some of them had already been sold, according to Sheriff Henry C. Hale.

Deputy George Hale said that the recovery of the stolen merchandise was the "result of good hard police work."

Three of the suspects are lodged in the Johnson county jail and two others, Margo Conn and Ricky Bevins, are free on $5,000 bond.

Federal Judge Nominees Down To 3 Choices

The list of applicants for the federal judgeship open at Pikeville has been narrowed to three from a list of more than 20 applicants.

According to Robert Turley, chairman of the nine-member Federal Judicial Selection, the following three were judged by the commission to be most qualified for the post:

Karl S. Forester, 47, of Harlan; Joseph M. Hood, 45, of Russell; and Daniel J. Venters, 37, of Somerset. Forester is an attorney, in private practice for 21 years. Hood has been a U.S. Magistrate for 12 years, and Venters is circuit judge of Pulaski and Rockcastle counties.

The nominating commission made its selections after spending more than eight hours Saturday interviewing applicants. It will notify Senator Wendell Ford and Senator Mitch McConnell of its nominations, and the senators, in turn, will send the names to President Reagan, who will make the appointment following background checks by the U.S. Justice Department and subject to approval by the U.S. Senate.

Thus, it could be several months before the new federal judge is appointed. Though the commission is required to be non-partisan in its selection of nominees, it is expected that President Reagan will appoint a Republican to the post which pays almost $90,000 yearly.

Social Security Tax Increased For 1988

New Year's Day brings with it an increase in the Social Security payroll-tax rate making the 13th time it has increased in the past 25 years.

The payroll-tax increase will affect 126 million workers by raising the tax from 7.15 percent to 7.51 percent.

If a worker earned $27,972 in wages in 1987 and paid $2,000 in payroll taxes, he will have a five percent increase on the same earnings in 1988. And for each $10,000 an employer earns, he will have to pay an extra $36 to Social Security.

The taxable income for a worker in 1988 will be $45,000. The cutoff for a worker in 1987 was $43,800.

All self-employed will be hit harder and will pay 13.02 percent in 1988, minus a 2 percent credit which will end after 1989. However, half of their Social Security taxes can be deducted as a business expense beginning in 1990.

Workers with maximum earnings will pay almost eight percent more to Social Security next year. The 7.51 percent tax rate will climb to 7.65 percent after 1989.

When Social Security started in 1937, the payroll tax was one percent on income up to $3,000. The rate remained un-

State Prison Overcrowding: Who Pays?

By Audrey Hudson

The State Corrections Cabinet may be saving money by housing state prisoners in county jails, but who is paying for it?

Floyd county jail officials say at least 20 state prisoners were housed here in 1987. The total cost to the county was $38,874, but the state paid only $22,930 of that.

Floyd County Judge-Executive John M. Stumbo said the state only pays the jail $13.50 a day per prisoner, but the jail's actual cost is $22 a day.

In addition, Stumbo said it would cost the state $28 a day to house one prisoner in a maximum security prison. By this measure, the state saved a total $26,546 in 1987 by housing prisoners in the Floyd county jail.

"We can't house, feed and maintain them (prisoners) for the state reimbursement of $13.50 per day," said Floyd County Attorney David Barber, "and we can't meet the state's requirements for keeping them."

Barber said that in 1987, a new security system on the elevator and more security on the jail floor were established to meet the state's criteria to house these prisoners.

"There is also criteria about outdoor space for a recreation area that we simply can't meet."

As of December 21, 1987, six state prisoners were being held in the Floyd county jail on charges ranging from manslaughter to drug trafficking.

Barber said state prisoners have caused many problems for jail officials. One prisoner's wife tried to sneak a gun to him, he said.

"State prisoners and parole violators who commit serious crimes of violence pose a security threat to jails that handle misdemeanors and drunk violators," Barber said.

Asked if this is creating overcrowding on the local level, Barber said the Floyd county jail always operates at maximum capacity. Non-serious offenders are usually probated, "who actually should not be probated," he said, to create room for more serious violators and state prisoners.

"The state has a philosophy right now," Barber said, "of forcing the counties to maintain state prisoners at a cost they cannot meet. This places a financial burden on county taxpayers."

There are 1,115 state inmates being held in county jails across Kentucky awaiting entry to state facilities, according to Kentucky Corrections Classification Manager Steve Berry.

There are only 10 state prisons, he said, which house nearly 5,000 prisoners.

Barry estimates that at the present rate, a 500-bed prison will have to be built every two years for the next 10 years to eliminate overcrowding.

"The state began sending prisoners to county jails in 1983," he said. "The reason for state prison overcrowding is not because more people are being sent to jail, but because stiffer sentences are keeping them in prison longer."

"In the last four or five years, 24 pieces of legislation have been passed lengthening sentences," Berry said. "The public needs to look at who is locked up."

"Does it make sense to incarcerate someone at Eddyville for $40,000 to $50,000 a year for theft by unlawful taking of $500," he asked.

Jesse Stuart Books Now Being Re-Issued

Jesse Stuart assigned his literary rights to the Jesse Stuart Foundation, a non-profit organization devoted to preserving Stuart's legacy and sharing his good humor and solid values with future generations. According to JSF Chairperson Judy Thomas, the Foundation is currently reprinting many of Stuart's fine out-of-print works, like To Teach, To Love, a book just reissued with the sponsorship assistance of Sam Mansbach, an Ashland businessman who dedicated the new edition to his late father.

In To Teach, To Love, the great Kentucky novelist, short-story writer, poet, and teacher writes about his boyhood, his elementary-school and high-school experiences, and his days at Lincoln Memorial University and Vanderbilt University. He describes the teachers who inspired him, and those who did not, and tells what made the difference. With great warmth and with the wisdom derived from nearly fifty years in the classroom, Jesse Stuart tells of teaching in one-room rural schoolhouses. He recounts his experiences as a country school superintendent and as a high-school principal and describes his stay at the American University in Cairo, Egypt, where he taught creative writing. He explains what classroom methods worked best, and why, and speculates on what has gone wrong in American schools. "We've lost something we've got to get back. Not the one-room schoolhouse, but the spirit of the one-room schoolhouse."

A great teacher because he taught for the sheer love of it, Jesse Stuart thought of teaching as a mission, an idea, a challenge—and only incidentally as a way to make a living. "As a teacher, I have tried to go beyond the textbooks into the character—stressing honesty, goodness, and making each life count for something... No joy runs deeper than the feeling that I have helped a youth stand on his own two feet, to have courage and self-reliance, and to find himself when he did not know who he was or know where he was going."

To Teach, To Love, which was edited for reprinting by a team of scholars headed by JSF Managing Editor Jim Wayne Miller, of Western Kentucky University, continues to be a timely book—"as though it were written for the 1980's," according to Stuart scholar J. R. LeMaster in his new introduction. Jesse Stuart's experiences as a student, and as a teacher and administrator, still speak to us, for they are about the essence of education. Today's teachers and educators, parents and students can learn much from Stuart's philosophy.

Hardback copies of this 315 page book are $20; softbacks are $10. To Teach, To Love and other Jesse Stuart books are available from the Jesse Stuart Foundation, P.O. Box 391, Ashland, Ky. 41114 (606/329-5233).

Death rates from rheumatic heart disease have declined nearly 76 percent since 1950, according to an American Heart Association estimate. In 1950, more than 22,000 Americans died of rheumatic heart disease. Today, rheumatic fever and rheumatic heart disease kill about 6,700 people each year, according to American Heart Association statistics.

Counterfeiting not only costs American firms up to $20 billion a year, but it is a genuine threat to consumers. According to the June Reader's Digest, counterfeit brake shoes allegedly caused a fatal bus crash in England; women who used bogus birth-control pills reported irregular bleeding, and fake Cabbage Patch dolls contained rags that had been sprayed with a toxic substance.

A Holiday Message From The First Lady

At this time of year when the nation's capital is aglow with holiday lights and the season's spirit of love, peace and goodwill, I'm always reminded of another special kind of love. And that is the way in which Foster Grandparents give so generously to children with special needs. These children include those youngsters who are at risk of losing their lives to drugs and alcohol.

For decades, I have supported the Foster Grandparent Program. I have seen hundreds of "grandparents" working with youngsters in schools, hospitals, juvenile detention centers, shelters for neglected children and homes for the mentally retarded. If there is one place where the holiday spirit truly shines all year, it's in the hearts of these senior volunteers and the relationships with their "grandchildren."

Foster Grandparents often reach children who may seem unreachable. They bring hope and light to youngsters who have known only confusion and loneliness. Yet the volunteers will tell you that they benefit as much as the children. Their service brings them the chance to give and learn and grow as well as a wonderful sense of satisfaction. I have never seen another program where the old and the young benefit so much from one another.

During this holiday season, as we pray for peace and thank God for the gift of love and our precious freedom, let us also open our hearts to children who are threatened by the horrors of substance abuse. At this most appropriate time, I ask every citizen to join in helping our Foster Grandparents touch more young lives at risk. You can help fulfill our dream that in holiday seasons to come, the faces of all America's children will shine with love and laughter, and their lives will be drug and alcohol free.

Point, Counterpoint

I must protest the derogatory statement concerning the city of Martin's integrity by a person who is trying to make "brownie points" for his next district-judge race.

Our constitution assures that a party or person is innocent until judged guilty by a jury of peers.

Mr. Pillersdorf is neither judge nor jury.

Expresses Appreciation For Support

As we come to the close of 1987, I would like to express my appreciation, through your newspaper, for the support and the encouragement God has blessed us with at the Kentucky Sheriffs' Boys and Girls Ranch.

We consider ourselves fortunate, indeed, that we were able to work with and provide recreational and educational activities to more than 940 needy youngsters this past year.

Our special thanks go to many people, among them, the sheriffs and deputies who make it possible for children from their countries to attend by providing the transportation to and from the Ranch in Gilbertsville; the many volunteers who spend several hours assisting us with our work; the corporate donations and grants from such fine organizations as the Gannett Corp., General Electric, The Kentucky Colonel's, Allied Sporting Goods and Winn Dixie, Louisville; Stewart's Flea Market and many others who have had fund-raising events for us. We would especially like to thank our members who send in their annual membership dues. Without all of their support, we would not be able to provide our services to Kentucky's needy children.

To all of these people and to the news media who cover our events, we wish you all a very happy and prosperous new year. May God continue to bless you and your work for the less fortunate people throughout our state.

Students Present Bears

Holly Newsome's sparkle is special, but her delighted reaction to Scrubby Bear is a familiar one at Our Lady of the Way Hospital. Holly is the daughter of Judy and Bill Newsome, of Weeksbury.

Allen Central High School Beta Club members paid for Holly's Scrubby Bear and were on hand to witness the presentation during the seven-month-old Weeksbury youngster's hospitalization in September.

Since then the 70-member Beta Club has sponsored a Halloween dance and sold oranges through the leadership of Beta Club officers Lynn Meade, president; Kim Osborne, vice-president; Kim Cline, secretary; and Tammy Smith, treasurer.

Profits from those fundraising events were sent for the Scrubby Bear program to Our Lady of the Way's Infection Control Coordinator, Judy Hamm. "The Beta Club's donation will buy 38 bears," said Hamm. "We are really grateful for their continued support."

The Beta Club has sent three sizable checks in support of the Scrubby Bear program since it began October 27, 1987. When this newest batch of Scrubby Bears has been distributed, more than 100 children will have received Scrubby Bears and handwashing instructions because of Beta Club contributions.

Every child hospitalized at Our Lady of the Way Hospital receives a Scrubby Bear upon first admission. If the child is readmitted, he or she receives crayons and a special Scrubby Bear coloring book. The purposes of these gifts are to lessen the trauma of hospitalization and to improve infection control in the hospital and community.

All the Scrubby Bear gifts have been donated by Our Lady of the Way employees, community groups like the Beta Club, and interested individuals.

For more information, contact Judy Hamm at 285-5181 or Gwen Hall at 886-9817.

Fireplace Can Add Holiday Charm and Maybe Value

Not every home-remodeling project will add value to a home, but a fireplace can have a positive effect with homebuyers, according to members of the Society of Real Estate Appraisers. In a sampling of professionally designated appraisers from across the nation, locale and the price range of the home emerge as the two key factors to consider when contemplating the addition of a fireplace to enhance a home's resale value.

A hot item with homeowners, a recent survey ranked fireplaces as the fourth most-popular home remodeling project. Another study conducted by Remodeling Contractor magazine estimated that the average cost to install a fireplace is $3,350 and can add $4,600 to the resale value, a 38% gain.

But such figures are contingent upon several considerations. "Cost and value are two totally different things," notes A. Joseph Wolf, SRA, from Louisville, Kentucky. "Rarely will any improvement recoup your total investment. Returns on fireplaces alone can even vary within areas of Louisville. A person shopping in the $40,000 to $45,000 market range may be willing to pay around $500 more for a house with a fireplace, whereas someone else looking for a higher priced home may pay $1,500 more."

Abigail A. Burns, SRA, of Boston, concurs, "Certainly a fireplace can contribute to a home's value, but the amount would depend on the individual's market."

"A fireplace is a market requisite in the upper and middle range homes here in New England," she notes. "But in other markets, such as the South, a fireplace is a feature that may not be expected."

Louie Reese III, SRPA, of Birmingham, agrees that while fireplaces "may be more aesthetic than functional, Southern residents tend to like them just as much as those living in the North." But when it comes to adding value, Reese observes that "if the unit is a non-conventional fireplace—like the prefabricated type—it can be added to a home for around $1,500 new. That type of unit would most likely contribute that much value to the house."

A free copy of the national directory of designated appraisers is available by writing Society of Real Estate Appraisers, 225 N. Michigan Avenue, Chicago, IL 60601-7601.

"HAPPY ANNIVERSARY"
Darrell L. Patton

"No, it's not my wedding anniversary, but a more important date," says Darrell Patton. "It has been a year since I obtained my weight loss goal of 163 lbs." and received a plaque for "Dieter of the year." In March of 1986, I walked into the Diet Center of Prestonsburg at a weight of 397 1/2 lbs., and on December 5th 1986 I made my goal of losing 163 lbs. My weight then and now is 235 lbs! That's right, I have maintained my weight for a year now!

Again, I want to thank Wanda Hall of Diet Center Inc. of Prestonsburg, she helped change my life in so many ways. I guess the most important way is that now I feel good about myself. Only an obese person knows what I am talking about. Also it's such a rewarding feeling when someone walks up to me and says "Darrell, you inspired me, I am now on the program and doing great!"

If you are overweight and miserable as most overweight people are, please take my advice, "Do something now"—don't wait until it's too late! Go to a professional, get help now. I recommend Wanda Hall at the Diet Center of Prestonsburg; she is a true professional and a caring person, and most of all, she was obese too. Again, thanks to Diet Center and Wanda Hall, and thanks to my wife, Jayne, for the encouragement along the way. A kind word of encouragement goes a long way.

with The Bank Josephine. Fitzpatrick's grandfather, H. H. Fitzpatrick, helped to incorporate the bank which was named for his sister-in-law, Josephine Davidson Harkins. His father, H. D. Fitzpatrick, Sr., former state senator and member of the Eastern Kentucky University board of regents, was vice-chairman of the bank at his death in 1957.

Except for military service during World War II and during the Korean Conflict, Fitzpatrick, Jr., has been associated with the bank since 1946.

Although it is enjoying success in wresting complete control of the bank from Fitzpatrick, the McGuire family continues to face problems on other fronts. In addition to the family-owned Grayson Loan Company's bankruptcy, members of the McGuire family have been engaged in litigation over control of assets left by the late E. R. McGuire, who acquired controlling stock in The Bank Josephine from members of the Harkins family in 1973. These legal squabbles have figured in stories in both the Lexington Herald and The Ashland Daily.

The bank, at this time, has issued no formal statement as to Fitzpatrick's resignation, and neither Earl M. McGuire nor O. Sam Blankenship were available for comment when called.

Mr. Fitzpatrick is actively involved in varied business interests which include the Holiday Inn, Riverview Manor and Mountain Manor nursing homes in Prestonsburg, Mountain Manor nursing home in Pikeville as well as real estate holdings.

Bits & Pieces

WHAT'S NEW?

1987 apparently went out with a bang and no doubt some whippers with an unusual number of holiday shootings in this county. As usual, the social security rate has once more advanced. Then, for you who like life in the fast lane, it's now a little faster at 65 mph on most of the state's roadways. When I observed the 55 mph limit, I was passed by every other car on the road, so what's the difference, except maybe in road signs?

U.S. 23 now has a little federal funding with a promise of more, and our county can look forward to a decent water supply and the hope of reduced insurance rates in the future.

It's a mixed bag, but as H. V. Kaltenborn, whom most of you never heard of, used to say, "Ah, yes. There's good news tonight."

A LITTLE LATE, BUT—
HAPPY NEW YEAR!

AN OPTIMISTIC NOTE—
Friend Hansel Cooley says he has a motto for the New Year—
"Things will be great in '88!"

Massie Receives
Posthumous Award

The late Ira E. Massie, University of Kentucky tobacco specialist who was well known by farmers as "Mr. Tobacco" before his death last January at age 67, has been named posthumous recipient of the first annual Kentucky Farm Bureau Public Relations Award.

Given by Kentucky Farm Bureau, the newly established award will recognize annually a Kentuckian who has "contributed significantly to better rural-urban understanding in the state" through news media.

Clarice Massie, widow of the honoree, accepted the $200 cash award and plaque at a December 10 ceremony held during the Kentucky Farm Bureau convention, in session at the Executive West in Louisville.

During a 31-year career with the University of Kentucky extension service, Massie served primarily as a tobacco specialist, traveling the state and speaking out for tobacco farmers in a variety of settings.

In addition to his role as technical advisor to tobacco growers, Massie, a Scott County native, kept an active media schedule. He had his own television show, "Tobacco Talk," on WKYT-TV in Lexington for a number of years. He also did radio and television work for other stations, and he regularly contributed tobacco articles to farm magazines and other publications.

In 1985, two years after his retirement from UK, Massie was named Man of the Year in Kentucky Agriculture by the Agricultural Communicators of Kentucky.

MCDOWELL ARH AUXILIARY CHRISTMAS PARTY-1987
Friday Eve before Christmas, in the town of McDowell Violet Hall, the president was ready to howl. Her home was all shiny with Christmas delights. She was waiting for club members, but, oh, what a fright!

An error in scheduling had been discovered that day. McDowell School's Homecoming was just getting underway. She looked out the window, and in happy surprise, saw the volunteers coming—everyone she surmised.

There was Roberta, Celia, Christine, Anna Sue, Helen, Inzie, Alma, Anna, Ruby and Nannie too. Kathryn and Edith came late, Shirl left early for the game, But how proud she felt that everyone came.

They joined hands 'round the loaded table, she said a simple prayer, Of Thankfulness for Christmas, and for friends everywhere. Roberta lead the games, sometimes with glee, And every one sang Christmas Carols, slightly off-key.

After gifts were exchanged, they got together their gear, The hostess sighed with relief, and whispered in each ear, "Do come back again, maybe next year?"

Citizens' Super CD

The Citizens Bank of Pikeville announces Super CD, the most exciting savings program available in eastern Kentucky!

Your investment of only $500 (more, of course, if you desire) for a minimum of two years* in a Certificate of Deposit with The Citizens Bank of Pikeville gives you a Citizens' Super CD! The Super CD, available only at The Citizens Bank of Pikeville, automatically makes your money earn more interest, never less!

How is this possible? Your Super CD interest rate is guaranteed to be always the same as your starting rate — the rate at the time you invest — and it may be higher! At the first of each quarter, we will automatically adjust your rate to one-half of a percent higher than the six-month U.S. Treasury Bill rate on the first day of that quarter. Your interest earned is always the same or higher than your starting rate!

We are pleased to offer the Citizens' Super CD as yet another way to provide you with the most flexible, financially secure methods of investment available in eastern Kentucky. You may make this transaction at any teller window at any Citizens Bank location. Just say you want a Super CD! For example, let's say you invest in a Citizens Super CD before April 1. On April 1, let's say the six-month U.S. Treasury Bill rate is .25% higher than your starting rate. We will automatically adjust your Super CD rate to .75% higher than your starting rate. Let's say the six-month Treasury Bill rate falls to .75% below your starting rate on July 1. Your Super CD rate stays the same as your starting rate. Your money never earns less than your starting rate, but it may earn more! In the two-year minimum deposit period, your rate will be adjusted seven times — not just once, but seven times — that's seven times that your money may earn higher interest than its starting rate. And we take care of adjusting your rate automatically, without your asking! That's why the Citizens' Super CD is the most exciting savings program now available in eastern Kentucky. "THE 1988 REGULAR SESSION OF THE KENTUCKY GENERAL ASSEMBLY"

On January 5, and continuing until April 15, 1988, the Kentucky General Assembly will be in regular session in Frankfort. During the past months, I have tried to contact each of you, and I'll continue to do this, to ask for your ideas and comments on the issues that we will be considering. I will see to it that your concerns and your ideas are brought to the attention of the legislature and that we address the issues that we need to, to make East Kentucky a better place.

I will seek, in May, 1988, the Democratic Party's nomination for re-election to the state senate from District 29. During the past few weeks, I and others of my campaign staff, have attempted to reach every voter in the District and ask for their support. While we were unable to reach each of you, we will continue to solicit your support. The results of our effort have been fantastic. Over 5000 registered Democratic voters, with a history of frequent voting, have pledged their vote and their support for my campaign. Further, these people have agreed to have their name listed as a supporter on the candidate filing papers which I intend to file in Frankfort with the State Board of Elections. We have supporters in every county, in every precinct and in every community in the District. If we have been unsuccessful in reaching you let me hear from you. I want to invite every single person in the District to join us in this campaign. According to the personnel in the State Board of Elections, these 5000 committed persons represent one of the most, if not the most, signers of a candidate petition in the history of the Commonwealth. I thank the people very much for this show of support.

During the Session, I will be holding meetings on Saturday morning throughout the District. I invite you to share your concerns and ideas with me. KET will broadcast our meetings nightly, if you have a question or an idea that you think we should consider, give me a call on the legislators toll free number, 1-800-372-7181, and share your ideas and comments with me. I have billboards throughout the District which list this number in case you forget. I value your input and I will continue to see to it that your ideas for a better Kentucky are heard in Frankfort. I will keep in touch.

BENNY RAY BAILEY STATE SENATOR

Non-Ag Jobs Up, Farm Jobs Down, As Jobless Rate Rises Slightly

Non-farm jobs in Kentucky reached a record high in November, but those gains were offset by a drop in agricultural employment at the end of the tobacco harvest season, resulting in a one-tenth of a percent increase in Kentucky's unemployment rate.

Unemployment in the state rose from a revised 7.1 percent in October to a preliminary 7.2 percent in November. That was still well below the 8.1 percent rate recorded in November 1986, according to a report issued today by the Cabinet for Human Resources.

Nationally, November's jobless rate was 5.6 percent, down from October's 5.7 percent. Comparable state and national rates are not seasonally adjusted.

Kentucky's chief labor market analyst, Ed Blackwell, said, "The estimated 1,326,800 non-farm jobs the state recorded for November indicates our economy is strong. This is 900 more non-farm jobs than the previous high, recorded in October, and we expect the November figure to be even higher when reports from all employers appear in the revised report about 30 days from now."

The U.S. Department of Labor estimates the total number of Kentuckians with jobs in this state or commuting to jobs in other states fell from October to November by 17,100. The same estimate shows a 1,100 person increase in Kentuckians who were unemployed in November.

The greatest employment growth (+3,800) was in trade. "Most of those jobs represent the opening of tobacco sales," Blackwell said. "But department and clothing stores also hired more staff to handle increased holiday gift buying."

Gains also were recorded in education (600) and transportation, communications and utilities (300).

Blackwell said most of the jobs losses—14,600 in agriculture and 700 in construction—were temporary.

"The demand for farm workers ebbs and flows with the tobacco season. We normally see a drop in agricultural employment when tobacco is ready to market."

"We also see a decline in construction jobs at this time every year because of the anticipated cold temperatures," he said. "But, we expect most workers in both these categories to return to the employment rolls in the spring."

Service jobs decreased by 1,800, mostly in temporary employment agencies, motels and recreation.

Manufacturing jobs were down by 700, but Blackwell said this reflected a strike which idled 1,000 workers at the Henry Vogt Co. in Louisville. "These people are back on the job, which should improve our manufacturing employment picture for December," he said.

The number of Kentuckians who had jobs, as measured by the U.S. Department of Labor's household survey, was 1,556,600 in November, down from 1,573,700 in October and below the November 1986 report of 1,570,600.

The federal estimate that 120,600 Kentuckians were unemployed in November was up from October's report of 119,500, but below the November 1986 figure of 138,100. This includes people receiving unemployment insurance benefits (about 17.5 percent of the total); new and reentrants to the work force; and laid-off workers who either did not work long enough to qualify, were not covered by UI or have exhausted their benefits.

Kentucky's civilian labor force estimate for November was 1,677,200, down from 1,693,200 in October. "We believe this decline reflects seasonal workers temporarily dropping out of the job pool," Blackwell said. In November 1986 the state's labor force estimates was 1,708,700. This figure includes non-military people with jobs and unemployed people who actively are seeking work. It does not include the unemployed who have not looked for a job in four weeks.

Late-Night Lineup On Public Affairs

Beginning in January, extended hours feature a lineup on KET that includes a block of public affairs programs.

Starting January 5, KET offers extended, late-night coverage of the General Assembly in open session. "The 1988 Kentucky General Assembly in Open Session" airs Monday-Friday at 11:30 p.m.

Also in January, KET presents two series of presidential debates. "Iowa Presidential Debates: The Republicans" airs Friday, January 8 at 11:30 p.m. and repeats Saturday, January 9 at 1:30 p.m. on KET.

"Iowa Presidential Debates: The Democrats" airs Friday, January 15 at 11:30 p.m. and repeats Saturday, January 16 at 1:30 p.m. on KET.

James P. Gannon, director of The Des Moines Register, moderates both of these two-hour debates. Candidates scheduled to appear at the Republican debate are George Bush, Robert Dole, Pete du Pont, Alexander Haig, Jack Kemp and Pat Robertson. Candidates expected to appear at the Democratic debate are Bruce Babbitt, Michael Dukakis, Richard Gephardt, Albert Gore, Gary Hart, Jesse Jackson, and Paul Simon.

The format for both debates calls for the candidates to answer questions from Gannon, from each other, and from a "guest questioner." The guest questioner for the Republican debate is Rep. Pat Schroeder (D-CO); Gov. James Thompson (R-III) questions the Democrats.

Next, KET airs "New Hampshire Primary Debates: Republicans," January 16 at 12 midnight, Sunday, January 24, KET airs "New Hampshire Primary Debates: Democrats" also at 12 midnight.

NBC newscaster and political commentator John Chancellor hosts both of these two-hour debates. Republican candidates scheduled to appear include Pat Robertson, Jack Kemp, Alexander Haig, Pete du Pont, Robert Dole, and George Bush. In the second debate, Democratic hopefuls expected to appear include Richard Gephardt, Michael Dukakis, Bruce Babbitt, Albert Gore, Paul Simon and Jesse Jackson.

University of New Hampshire (Durham) political scientist David Moore predicts the format will be "enlightening and entertaining" as it will focus on interaction among the candidates. Chancellor is expected to ask candidates to address recent news events.

"The 1988 Kentucky General Assembly in Open Session" is a KET production.

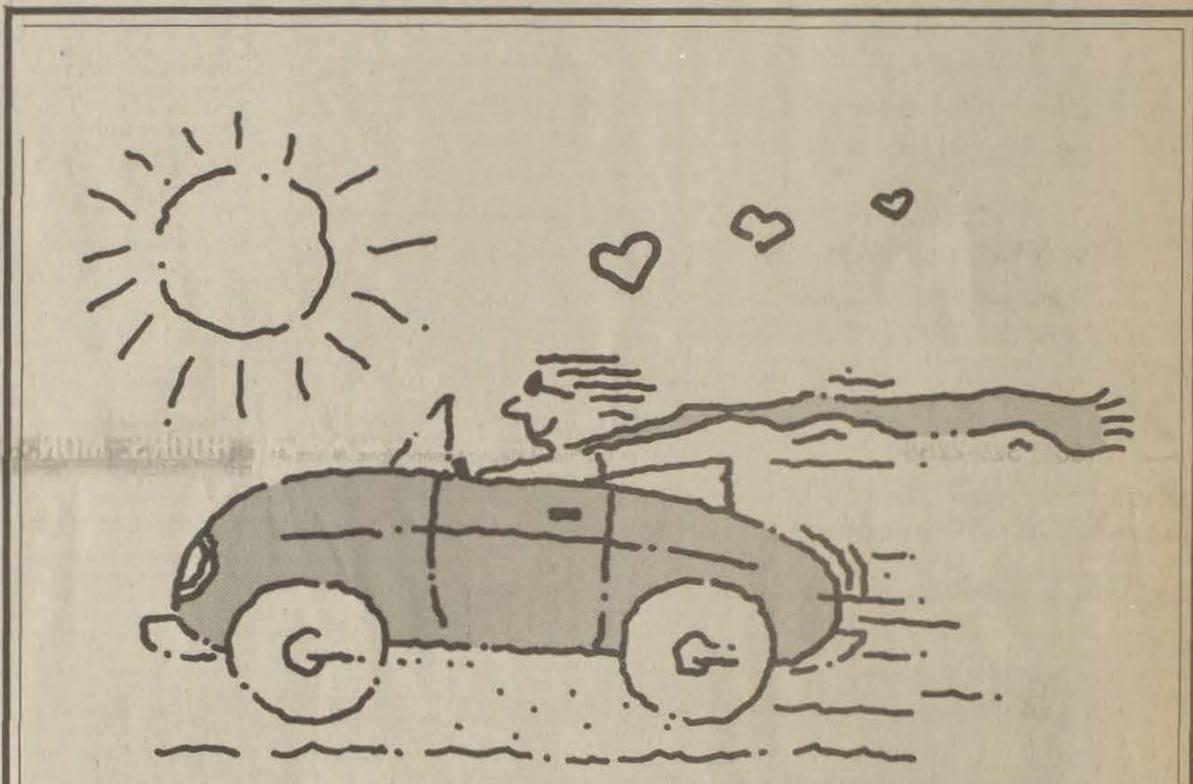

The "Iowa Presidential Debates" are produced by Iowa Public Television. The "New Hampshire Primary Debates" are produced by New Hampshire Public Television.

LITTLE BEN

By WILMAY

This is written because many people ask about my small great-grandson, little Ben Flanery, only child of Kent and Teresa Flanery, formerly of Maytown, now residing in Pike county. He is the grandson of Tommy and Libby Flanery and Clinton and Anna Mae Huff. Inquiries about him continue because he had a brain tumor removed on Jan. 28, 1986, the day the Challenger went down. He had about seven or eight complications, several very serious, for more surgeries that year, was in St. Joseph Hospital a total of three months, has had six cat scans to date, but the wonderful care and attention he received from surgeons, Leon Ravvin and Henry Tutt, there, plus that from pediatricians, James Davis and Tina Slusher, of Pikeville, the nursing staff of St. Jo, TLC from parents and grandparents paid off, as indicated in this picture of him, made last summer. His curls have been cut, since he was three in November.

Ben could have been left a human vegetable. Instead, he is fine, has an amazing vocabulary. He has seven living grandparents, including three great-grandparents, and no difficulty distinguishing among "Mom" for Alva Flanery, "Mommie" for Frances Huff, of Wayland, and Mimaw May for yours truly! One day he was enjoying a new cereal, and his Nana Huff asked if he liked it. Ben replied, "Absolutely!"

While playing on the carpet once he overheard his mother tell someone they must go to Lexington next day for his evaluation. Ben looked up and said, "Ben no want no 'valuation!'"

Each trip they made to the city he invariably recognized city limits and often grew tense, because he knew what was ahead. His granddad Flanery had by-pass heart surgery the fourth of August. Ben accompanied his parents there to be with the family. As they neared the hospital his mother prepared him by explaining that he was not the one to undergo surgery that day. "PaTom will have the surgery today," she remarked. "Shave PaTom's head?" Ben inquired. He was just fourteen months old when that happened to him, and they had never referred to it in his presence.

There is not the slightest indication of an impaired mind or memory, thanks to innumerable persons who have prayed for the toddler. Floyd county and Lexington both have a number of excellent prayer chains. Many times relatives of patients on the critical list call back to this county even at the request hour, if emergencies arise, to request prayer of chains they know. No one could estimate the prayers to the Master Physician for Ben, who was surrounded by praying Christians.

In one Lexington church, Marie Brown, teacher of Women's S.S. class, had special prayer of thanks for Ben and her father who had been patients at the same time. A strange lady, present for the first time, asked if she might speak, and said, "I was little Ben's surgical nurse, and everyone in the operating room was praying." We were told that her name was Donna Preston. Such incidents provided support for his concerned parents.

It's interesting to note how articles about spiritual matters are constantly appearing in secular publications today, to realize that more persons are praying than ever, not just in times of distress, but daily. Prayer leads to the source of the greatest power on earth, the throne of grace. God's switch board is never closed, and calls to it are toll free. One can reach it faster than any missile ever yet devised.

Dealer of The Year

Warren "Bud" Williams, of Harold, owner of B. & B. Heating and Cooling, is shown above displaying the awards he received from Reedy Wholesale for achievement in the heating and cooling business. He was presented an award for being the "No. 1 volume dealer" in eastern Kentucky and the award for being "Heil Dealer of the Year."

These awards were formally presented to him at the Annual Reedy Wholesale Heil dealer meeting and banquet held at Jenny Wiley State Resort Park in November.

Shown with Mr. Williams is John Reedy, Executive Vice President of Reedy Wholesale, Distributor of Heil Heating and Cooling Products in the Eastern Kentucky region.

Tropical Fish Cause Some Food Poisoning

Imported fish has become chic at many American restaurant tables. According to International Wildlife magazine, however, the current rage for exotic fish has exacted a heavy price from some people—food poisoning caused by a rare and mysterious microorganism. International Wildlife is a bimonthly publication of the National Wildlife Federation.

The symptoms of this tropical ailment, called ciguatera poisoning, would prostate even the hardiest sea dog. Several hours after eating tainted fish, victims report vomiting, nausea, and diarrhea. A few hours after the nausea subsides, even worse symptoms appear. These include aching jaws, a feeling of loose teeth, the reversal of hot and cold sensations (a hot shower seems icy while a cool drink seems to burn), and an unbearable itching in the hands, feet, and lips.

Although the disease is rarely fatal, the debilitating and bizarre neurological effects can last anywhere from 2 days to 25 years. From Alexander the Great to Captain Cook, conquerors, explorers, and sea captains have described similar-sounding outbreaks after fish was served.

Until recently, most cases of ciguatera poisoning were confined to the tropics. But in the last few years, the incidence of ciguatera has dramatically increased in temperate parts of the world. The reason is the changing habits of humans who consume fish. "Imported fish is 'in,'" explains Douglas Park of the U.S. Food and Drug Administration's Seafood Toxin Project. "Restaurants in Vermont and Montreal and Missouri now serve grouper and snapper where they used to serve only bluefish and sole." And it is an increasingly common practice for tourists to carry home a cooler of fish as a souvenir from a tropical vacation. "They invite all their friends over for a barbecue and all of a sudden there's a mini-epidemic of ciguatera in the middle of Kansas," says Park.

Although fish pass ciguatera toxin (or ciguatera) to humans, the fish themselves are merely innocent carriers. The real culprits are single-celled plants called dinoflagellates, the same basic type of microorganism that causes deadly "red tides" in temperate waters. Although the poison made by the dinoflagellates is 40,000 times more toxic than cyanide, it appears not to affect the fish that ingest it. And the very potency of ciguatera toxin has helped keep it a mystery; fish carry only a few parts per million—enough to ruin a dinner but not enough for chemists to work with.

Unlike the free-floating dinoflagellates that produce red tides, those responsible for ciguatera attach themselves to algae rooted on the coral reef. Small herbivorous fish eat these plants, swallowing the dinoflagellates and storing the toxins in their fatty tissues.

When these fish are in turn eaten by others, the toxins are passed on, reaching high concentrations in the large predators at the top of the food chain. Scientists used to think that large older fish would be more dangerous than the smaller younger ones, having had more time to accumulate the poison. But recent studies show that even small fish can pack a ciguatera punch. The key factors are where a fish lives and what it eats.

"There's no way to be absolutely safe unless you stick to coldwater fish like cod and flounder, or deepwater fish like tuna," says Park. Large barracudas, groupers, snappers, and jacks are among the worst offenders, but more than 300 fish species have been known to carry ciguatera.

Because these fish are all denizens of the tropics, most of the estimated 50,000 cases of ciguatera poisoning each year occur on islands in the Caribbean and South Pacific. On Tahiti, the disease has struck 80 percent of the population, and in the U.S. Virgin Islands, it has been reported that all families have been poisoned at least once.

Despite its long history and recent More than 350 volunteers serve as mediators in minor disputes between nursing home patients and facility administrators. Kentucky's long-term care ombudsman program also makes referrals to resolve major problems. Call 1-800-372-2991.

spread, however, ciguatera remains a little-known disease. "Most physicians in the United States are unaware of it," Park says. "Patients are typically referred from one specialist to another and none of them knows what is going on." Sometimes the condition is dismissed as "nerves," with the patient ending up on a psychiatrist's couch. Ironically, one group of doctors had their first experience with the disease several years ago when they all got sick during a medical conference in Puerto Rico.

Although there is no known cure or antidote for ciguatera poisoning, preventive medicine may soon get a welcome boost from a new method of identifying ciguatera fish. By taste, smell, or looks, tainted and untainted fish are indistinguishable. Yoshisugi Hokama and co-workers at the University of Hawaii, however, have developed a fast, portable test for the presence of the poison. In a process that takes about 30 minutes, a small bamboo probe is pushed into the flesh of a fish, then dipped in a series of solutions that turn the wood blue if ciguatera is present. The test kit may soon be standard equipment in fishing boats and restaurant kitchens.

Another way to prevent the disease is to avoid catching poisonous fish in the first place. Native fishermen have long known that the fish found near some reefs are more ciguatera-prone than others, although scientists cannot explain why. "There are islands where you can eat all the fish you want from one reef, but you'll get sick if you eat anything at all just a mile away," says Don de Sylva, a marine biologist at the University of Miami.

De Sylva is currently surveying the Caribbean for ciguatera "hot spots." His work will have two benefits: a better understanding of the conditions that favor ciguatera, and identification of safe fishing grounds. "We feel we can relieve a lot of suffering just by knowing statistically which reefs harbor ciguatera fish," he says. Yet the task is a daunting one. For still mysterious reasons, affected fish can show up unexpectedly in previously benign waters, often following hurricanes, earthquakes, dredging, the anchoring of a ship, or other disturbances. "The more we delve into the subject of ciguatera," says Park, "the more we realize how little we know."

State Agency Honors Miss Dingus, Mr. Hall

Two members of the Prestonsburg office, Kentucky Department for the Blind, were honored at the department's Annual Awards Banquet and Presentations held November 12 at the Harley Hotel in Lexington.

Merlene Dingus received the "Secretary of the Year" award for being the best secretary in the state agency, Field Services Division, and Mike Hall, who received the Similar Benefits award for saving the department over $60,000 throughout the year by utilizing other sources of funding in providing services for his clients. He was also recognized for contributing to the rehabilitation of 34 visually impaired individuals, the second highest number in the state and an all-time high for the Prestonsburg office.

Miss Dingus has been a chief secretary for the Department for the Blind since September 1986. She began working with the department when its office was in Paintsville, and according to the announcement of her award, "has brought it up to one of the most productive and efficient offices in the state."

A resident of Martin, she has a Bachelor's degree from Berea College.

Wins Pontiac in Giveaway, Here

Carl Dixon, native Floyd countian, now of Flatwoods, at left, was presented the keys to a new Pontiac Sunbird by Jeff Meek, manager of radio stations WXXZ and WPRT. The car was top prize in a radio giveaway held here, December 18, in which the station gave almost $1,000 in cash donated by downtown merchants.

The luck of the draw was definitely with Dixon, who said he had registered only one time.

"Stretching" Meat— Helping Your Budget and Your Diet

From the American Institute for Cancer Research

If some of your New Year's resolutions have to do with improving your eating and spending habits after the holiday splurge, there's one useful practice that can help you keep both: meat-stretching.

It may sound like a silly term, but it simply means using smaller amounts of meat and making them go further. That's an idea that can do good things for you nutritionally, and can help lower that weekly supermarket bill, since meat continues to be one of the higher priced items on our shopping list.

While meat is an important protein source, the fact is that most of us consume far more protein than we need for sound nutrition. In addition, meat is also a major source of dietary fat which has been closely associated with higher risk for cancer, heart disease and other serious health problems.

Creative cooks use a variety of "stretchers"—including vegetables, whole grains, legumes, tofu and whole grain pasta and stuffing—to produce delicious, low-meat meals. Consider the variety these stretchers can give you in preparing stews, soups, stroganoffs, salads, meat pies, meat loaves, casseroles, hash, and many other dishes.

Here's an absolutely delicious example of how to enjoy meat without consuming too much fat. Although it's quite filling, the many vegetables mean that a relatively small amount of meat is included in each serving.

BEEF FUJI

- 2 tbsp. vegetable oil
- 1 small onion, sliced
- 1 lb. beef steak (round, chuck, blade or flank)
- 1 to 1 1/2" thick, trimmed of all visible fat and cut into thin strips
- 1 pound fresh mushrooms, sliced
- 1/2 cup beef broth
- 1/4 cup soy sauce
- 1 tsp. corn starch in 2 tbsp. water
- 1 8-ounce can bamboo shoots, sliced
- 1 8-ounce can water chestnuts, sliced
- 3 scallions, cut into 1" lengths
- 1 6-ounce package frozen, defrosted pea pods
- 1 1-pound can sliced peaches (extra light syrup packed), drained

Heat the oil in a wok or skillet and stir fry the beef, mushrooms and onion for 4-5 minutes or until just tender. Add the broth, soy sauce and cornstarch mixture. Cook, stirring constantly, until the mixture thickens. Add the vegetables and peaches. Continue cooking until heated through. Serve at once with rice. This recipe yields 6 servings, each containing 312 calories and 13 grams of fat.

If you would like to learn more about the relationship between dietary fat and your health, send for a free copy of "All About Fat and Cancer Risk." To receive a copy send a stamped, self-addressed, business-size envelope to American Institute for Cancer Research, Dept. C1, Washington, D.C. 20069.

Wizard of Wall St. Takes Look at 1988

With the new tax law, the volatile stock market, and an uncertain economy, what are the best decisions for your money in the new year?

The "Wizard of Wall Street" takes an incisive look at what is ahead for the country in 1988, politically, socially, and economically on KET Sunday, January 10 at 4 p.m. for "Louis Rukeysers' 1988 Money Guide."

This hour-long special begins by looking at the major new trends likely to affect life in America in 1988. Guests for this segment will be Ben Wattenberg, author and social commentator; Knight Kiplinger, editor-in-chief of Changing Times; and Hedrick Smith, Washington correspondent for The New York Times Magazine.

Discussion topics include where the best new jobs will be, what industries will be growing—or failing—and how the economy will be affected by the upcoming election.

Taxes and personal finance are the focus of the second part of the special. Financial planner Alexandria Armstrong, George Weinstein of Deloitte Haskins and Sells, and Gerald Padwe of Touche Ross will be on hand to address the often puzzling repercussions of the new tax laws. Important issues such as IRAs, purchasing homes and general investment information in regards to the changes made by the new laws will be considered in this segment.

The final segment of "Louis Rukeysers' 1988 Money Guide" turns to investments—how to make your money grow. Rukeysers talks with three internationally recognized experts: John Templeton of the Templeton Funds; Peter Lynch of the Fidelity Magellan Fund; and Steven Einhorn of Goldman Sachs about specific investment opportunities in 1988, commenting on those likely to be winners and losers.

Tax Seminar Offered Here

H & R Block will conduct a free tax seminar at their office in Richmond Plaza, here, Wednesday and Friday, from 9-5. The seminar will discuss the new tax changes.

Miss Ousley, Mr. Leslie Wed

Miss Melissa Lynn Ousley and Mr. Randall Hall Leslie, II, were united in marriage, August 14, at the Fitzpatrick Baptist Church, of Prestonsburg, by the Rev. John Woods.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Denver Ousley, of Prestonsburg, and the groom is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Rondall H. Leslie, of Prestonsburg. A program of music was presented by David B. Leslie, accompanist; John Goble, Susan Cooley, Randall Wells, soloists, and Tom Blackburn, guitarist. The bride's dress was fashioned of bridal satin combined with silk venise. The traditional high-stocked neckline was enhanced by the brilliance of beading on the V-ee bodice with buttons in back ending at the waist with a large bridal bow. The Juliet sleeves were frosted in jeweled venise lace. The full satin skirt flowed from the basque bodice into a cathedral length train. Pyramids of lace traced the hemline and cascaded over the grand train. Her veil was edged in jeweled venise lace.

The maid of honor was Leigh Ann Patton, and the bridesmaids were Cathy Horn, Susan Cooley, Tiffany Martin, Lara Leslie, sister of groom, and Elizabeth Ousley, sister of bride. Flower girl was Ashley Leslie. The bridesmaids' dresses were violet in a tea-length gown of fantanzia over tafeta with square neckline and short sleeve pleated to a tight fit above the elbow. Gordie Ratliff served as best man, and Marvin Whitt served as head groomsmen. Groomsmen included Larry Leslie, Doug Adams, Richie Schoolcraft, and Jody Hackworth. Brooks Stumbo was ringbearer.

Greeting guests were Elizabeth Howard and Bryan Griffith. Tena Ousley presided at the guest book.

The reception was held at the Holiday Inn immediately following the ceremony. Randall Wells and his band from Morehead provided entertainment. The wedding cake was made by Marie Stephens and Jewell Tussey.

4-H'ers Close Call Leads To Commitment

A close encounter with death and his own remarkable recovery led Delynn Jones to a commitment to help others by working to establish a "wheel chair garden" to help their rehabilitation.

For 17-year-old Delynn Jones, of Harrodsburg, 4-H horticulture projects not only gave him goals and satisfaction of accomplishment, it gave him the will to live in the most critical moment of his life.

And it has now given him an interest in pursuing "horticulture therapy" as a career choice.

Jones' story almost ended Sept. 13, 1986 when he was thrown along with two others from the back of a slow-moving car on a crowded street filled with people, craft tables and fund-raising tables. They knew better than to ride on the outside of the car, but they were only going a few hundred yards to play basketball. A distraction which caused the driver to accidentally accelerate, changed his life.

Doctors told his family after he was rushed to the hospital with massive head injuries and a collapsed lung that he had "maybe" a 15 percent chance to survive.

Two weeks later, he partially awoke from his coma. He remembers that monitors beeped. Lights flickered on sophisticated equipment around his bed. Doctors studied x-rays and installed catheters and tubes in his skull, lungs, stomach and toes. Then he drifted back to sleep.

For long weeks he drifted in and out of a dreamworld between sleep and reality. When he finally awoke, he found he was like "an infant learning to discover the faces and to gently squeeze the hands" of his parents. He slowly learned to sit, stand on wobbly legs and finally to walk.

Recuperating at Cardinal Hill Hospital in Lexington, he finally remembered:

"The day before my accident, I had registered to attend the National Junior Horticulture Association meeting," he said. "Though unable to talk and confined to a wheelchair, suddenly one day I wondered if I had slept through the NJHA meeting."

He added, "I mumbled and gestured my concern to my mother who finally understood. It was a thrill to everyone that I finally was recalling past activities."

With that recollection came the burning desire to "get well" in time to attend the meeting.

"Every day I worked harder and harder as I thought of going to the meeting in Raleigh, N.C.," he said. "From a frail, trembling statue I progressed to an athlete walking a mile a day. It gave me a reason to live. In three weeks I had proved to doctors that I was physically capable of making the trip."

Amazed doctors gave permission for Jones to temporarily leave the hospital to attend the meeting.

"It was an unforgettable experience which gave me the confidence I could recover."

Now, Jones is almost perfectly recovered although he still returns for outpatient speech therapy and periodic brain scans. After his long recovery, he found he wanted to return to his former fellow patients in the head trauma, stroke and spinal cord units and help in their recovery.

"I began to explore the possibility of a wheel chair garden at the rehabilitation hospital," he said. Working with hospital staff and a 4-H advisor with the University of Kentucky, the idea developed into reality.

He raised plants for a 30 by 30 foot garden, using his high school greenhouse to start them early. His 4-H horticulture club and community 4-H club helped provide seed, fertilizer and tools.

"What a delight to see the patients in wheel chairs, rolling up and down the wide rows of vinyl runners that allowed easier movement for chairs," he said.

With hoes, they tilled the soil, scratched weeds, watered...and smiled and laughed. Young and old alike came alive when they rolled out to the garden to work beans, tomatoes and cucumbers.

"This project has led me to a great interest in horticulture therapy as a possible college major," he said. "I can relate to the needs of a handicapped person from my own experience. I know the encouragement one feels from proving he can again be a useful citizen. I feel I have been a help to other patients when they identify with me as a fellow patient also."

Floyd County Board Of Education

Dear Parents:

As educators and parents, it is our responsibility to help our children strive to reach their potential. Furthermore, it is our responsibility to take action when their future is jeopardized.

Unfortunately, we must face the fact that all across our country, the future of our children is being endangered. Drug and alcohol abuse is destroying the lives of children in both elementary and high schools. The national statistics are shocking:

60% of our nation's high school seniors use alcohol, pot, or other drugs two to three times a week; nearly 25% of all students are under the influence of a drug most of the time; 15%-20% of our children will be classified as serious abusers before they leave their teens.

We cannot afford to ignore this problem. The impact of dangerous drug abuse has become so widespread that even our children can be exposed to it. We must educate ourselves so that we can effectively help our children "Say No To Drugs."

That's why I urge you to watch the television film "Drug Free Kids: A Parent's Guide." In addition to discussing the current drug scene, it presents concrete examples of ways to approach your children about drug involvement. During this one-hour workshop, you'll learn more about recognizing drug abuse and getting help, taking preventative measures to keep your children drug-free, and sharpening your communication skills so that you can stay in touch with your children and be involved in their lives.

"Drug Free Kids: A Parent's Guide" will be aired on several networks and dates during January. The schedule includes:

Public TV Stations—January 6 through January 15 (consult your local television listings for the exact time and date).

WGN-TV —Saturday, January 16, 8:00-9:00 pm*

TBS —Monday, January 18, 10:05-11:05 pm*

CBN —Friday, January 29, 11:00 pm - 12:00 midnight*

*Eastern Standard Time

Your children need your support, so please be sure to mark your calendar. Help your children realize their potential. Help them understand that their future depends on alert minds and healthy bodies.

Sincerely,

RAY BRACKETT, Superintendent

Kentucky Jobs and Earnings Reached Record Highs in 1987

1987 has been a good economic year in Kentucky, as jobs and wages reached record highs, according to Ed Blackwell, the state's chief labor market analyst.

October figures placed non-farm employment at an all-time high of 1,325,900, following earlier records in this category during May and September.

"We expect this figure to be even higher when we receive information from more employers," Blackwell said. "Our estimates also show another 66,600 Kentuckians were working full time in October in agricultural jobs and an additional 149,300 were self-employed or working in family businesses."

1987 also saw all-time records set during the year in specific employment categories such as services; state and local education; state and local government; transportation, communications and utilities; and finance, insurance and real estate.

"Reports from some 66,000 employers indicate wages paid to Kentucky workers during 1987 should exceed $21.6 billion, an increase of $1.3 billion over wages paid last year in the state," he said. "Based on an average monthly employment of 1,225,331, these workers would earn an average $1,471 a month in 1987. That doesn't include most income from agricultural jobs or self-employment."

"When this money is circulating in the state's economy, it increases the demand for goods and services, which stimulates job growth."

Blackwell pointed to Kentucky's broad employment base as a stabilizing factor during recessionary periods. "A diversified economy such as ours provides a safeguard during an extended economic downturn when specific industries, like coal mining and manufacturing, are affected the most," he said.

Trade, service and manufacturing continue to dominate Kentucky's employment picture in 1987, accounting for about 63 percent of the state's jobs.

Blackwell said the biggest jump in the past year came in service jobs, which increased by 14,600 between January and October.

"People often think of low-paying jobs when 'services' are mentioned," he said, "but this group of workers includes accountants, attorneys and health care workers, such as doctors, dentists and nurses—people who are in higher income brackets. So service jobs play a major role in boosting our economy."

Manufacturing jobs grew by 5,100 between January and October, mostly in textiles and apparel, food products, petroleum, rubber and plastic products and transportation equipment.

"The increase in these goods-producing jobs is a positive sign," Blackwell said. "U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics figures show Kentucky factory production workers had higher average hourly and weekly earnings during the July-September quarter than the averages in the eight-state southeast region and the nation," Blackwell said.

These Kentucky workers earned an average $10.08 an hour, compared to $8.38 for the region and $9.72 for the nation. Despite a shorter work week (40.3 hours for Kentucky, compared to 41.0 hours for the southeast and 40.7 hours nationally), the state's factory production workers had average weekly earnings of $406.22, compared to $343.58 for the region and $395.60 nationwide.

Wholesale and retail trade still accounts for most of Kentucky's jobs—307,100 in October—but growth in this area lagged behind that recorded in the services and manufacturing sectors.

"More jobs in one category have a ripple effect, creating the need for more workers in other areas," Blackwell said. "When more people working, consumer spending is up, and the trade sector is one of the beneficiaries."

SOAP BEA

Adams quit skateboarding to join 'Ryan's Hope'

By Marie Michaels

Jason Adams, who has been portraying troubled young father John Ryan on "Ryan's Hope" since the summer of 1986, feels that he is a lot like his soap-opera counterpart.

Jason Adams

"I think I got the role in the first place because the character is a hyper-extended version of me," Adams says. "He's basically a good person, but he follows his emotions and doesn't think very often."

"He also has an awful conflict to deal with," he adds. "His father, Frank Ryan (John Sanderford), is very level-headed, while his mother, Delia (Ilene Kristen), does whatever she feels like doing, regardless of the consequences. John is like both of them, and those two sides are always pulling at him. He's struggling to find his own identity."

John is also struggling to win back his true love, Lizzie Ransome (Catherine Larson), who is the mother of his young son, Owen.

"As an actor, it's hard for me to justify John wanting Lizzie back so badly," Adams says. "She abandoned his child, left him at the altar and killed her own father. And now she's living with another guy!"

"I wish John would stop chasing her," he admits. "I'm frustrated playing the same scene over and over again, and it's time to move on to some new conflicts. I'd like to see John establish some middle ground with his father, for instance. And I wish the writers would give John a stronger relationship with his son and let him show how he feels about him."

Before making his television debut on "Ryan's Hope," Adams, a Los Angeles native, supported himself as a professional skateboarder. At one time he also toyed with the idea of becoming a professional surfer. And he recently began studying karate. "For the discipline, the meditation and the self-defense," he says.

Although he says he wants to stay with the New York-based "Ryan's Hope" a while longer, Adams eventually hopes to pursue a movie career. He also plans to move back to Los Angeles.

"I have a lot of things waiting for me there," he says. "L.A. is home. I'm young, and there's so much I want to do with my life and my career. 'Ryan's Hope' is only the beginning for me."

MTV's 'Remote Control' is a gimmick, nothing more

It's OK for game shows to be gimmicky. Think of Monty Hall, who sent costumed housewives digging into their purses for packs of gum at the end of "Let's Make a Deal." Or Richard Dawson's kiss-mother-kiss-daughter antics on "Family Feud." Or the giggling and screeching of contestants as they "come on down" the "Price Is Right" aisle.

Massey, Ober

But MTV's new game show "Remote Control," which airs week nights, is all gimmick, nothing more. It calls itself an "un-game show," and like Showtime's "It's Garry Shandling's Show," tries to parody the very thing it purports to be. Unfortunately, it also tries to be a game show in earnest.

In "Remote Control," three contestants in ghostly colored loungers try to accumulate points by flipping between nine cable "channels" that pose TV-related questions. Yes, Virginia, there is an MTV channel, which offers questions on video clips, as well as "prime-time," "public TV" and "weather" channels. The show's host is Ken Ober, a manic young man who speaks in TV-junkie jargon, saying things such as "We'll be back faster than you can say 'Wink Martindale!'" Hostess Marisol Massey is a tease.

The typical contestant (and the intended audience, no doubt) is college age, and the questions reflect this, drawing heavily on music videos and the '60s and '70s sitcoms that these kids watched in reruns while guzzling strawberry Quik. And the questions aren't very difficult. "Can you sing the theme song from 'The Jeffersons?'" ("We're a-movin' on up ..." - you know the rest.) "On 'Happy Days,' if Joanie Cunningham got pregnant and Chachi wasn't the father, who would you point the finger at?" (Survey said: Potsie, Fonzie, Ralph, Al and Mr. C - in that order.)

Eventually this produces a winner, who is strapped into an adjustable Craftmatic bed in front of the nine TV screens. In a finale that parodies "The $25,000 Pyramid," the contestant is given 30 seconds to identify nine music videos, in order.

"Remote Control" has a lot of sophomoric antics and hype. It's a game-show addict's "Pee-wee's Playhouse." Bob Barker would be appalled.

ASK TONI

Kiley was a stalwart on '50s dramatic anthologies

By Toni Reinhold

Where was Richard Kiley born? - R.E., Mt. Vernon, N.Y.

Richard Kiley

Kiley, who plays Joe Gardner on "A Year in the Life," was born in Chicago, Ill., on March 31, 1922. He is better known for his work on stage ("Man of La Mancha") and in films ("Blackboard Jungle") than for his TV performances. But he was a stalwart on '50s dramatic anthologies such as "Studio One" and "The U.S. Steel Hour," and he won an Emmy for his portrayal of Paddy Cleary in the 1983 miniseries "The Thorn Birds."

Whatever happened to Jack Lord of "Hawaii Five-O"? I haven't heard a thing about him since the show went into syndication a number of years ago. - R.L.J., Worcester, Mass.

Lord, 57, lives in Hawaii, where he is active in civic affairs. He is also an artist of some renown: His work has been exhibited in major museums, including the Metropolitan Museum of Art and the British Museum. A native of New York City, he originally trained as a Merchant Marine officer. He still holds a second mate's license.

When did "Magnum, P.I." premiere? Please give both the day and the year. - T.S., Maben, Mo.

"Magnum," which is now in its eighth and final season, premiered on Dec. 11, 1980, as part of CBS's Thursday-night lineup. It aired between "The Waltons" and "Knots Landing," in the time slot previously filled by "Hawaii Five-O."

I recently watched some reruns of "Family Affair." Whatever became of Sebastian Cabot, who played Mr. French, and Anissa Jones, who played Buffy? - G.H., Louma, La.

Cabot died of a stroke on Aug. 22, 1977, at the age of 59. Jones died of an overdose of quaaludes and liquor on Aug. 29, 1976. She was 18.

Who was the female star of the movie "North to Alaska," playing opposite John Wayne and Stewart Granger? - R.C., Sturgis, S.D.

French model and actress Capucine played the prospectors' companion in this 1960 film, which also starred Ernie Kovacs and Fabian.

IN THIS WEEK

Jackee is still committed to Sandra and '227'

By Wendy Wallace

"Sandra is brassy, sassy and classy, and I like those facets of her," says Jackee of voluptuous vamp Sandra Clark, her character on NBC's Saturday-night series "227." "They let me go for broke, so I shoot from the hip."

Jackee

This week Jackee stars in "Crash Course," an NBC movie airing Sunday, Jan. 10. As tough driving instructor Edna Savage, she sees that her driver's education class learns to respect the "three-ton killing machine."

Since "227" premiered in 1985, Jackee has redefined the saying "If you've got it, flaunt it" as one of the funniest, sexiest women on television. But she says the whole cast deserves credit for the show's popularity.

"It's not just my show," she says. "A lot of people think so, but it's not. I'm part of a great cast, and the chemistry comes from the combination of characters we have."

"And Marla (Gibbs, who stars as Mary Jenkins) is loved from her years on 'The Jeffersons,'" she adds. "You can see it in the feedback we get."

It has been an eventful year for Jackee. Last summer, she joined Cher and Madonna in the ranks of single-name stars when she dropped her last name, Harry. And in September, as a first-time nominee, she won an Emmy Award as Outstanding Supporting Actress in a Comedy.

"I got in just under the wire," she says of her Emmy win. "I had just gotten to my seat, so when they called me, I didn't hear it. It was that quick."

A native of Winston-Salem, N.C., Jackee grew up in New York City and on Long Island. She studied opera, taught school and appeared in nightclubs, films and stage shows, including "Eubie" and "One Mo' Time" on Broadway.

Until recently she did double duty on TV, starring as prostitute Lily Mason on the New York-based soap "Another World" while filming "227" in Los Angeles. And she starred in the NBC movie "The Incredible Ida Early," playing an unorthodox housekeeper who won the hearts of a motherless family with her tall tales and magic.

"I'm willing to take steps to finally get to where I really will be dynamite and not just a caricature," Jackee says. "I'd like to do something to let folks know I'm not a comedic actress as opposed to a dramatic actress. That's my next step. Maybe in a little while I'll let them know that I can do it. But for now I'm committed to '227.'"

UK Research Helps Miners Survive In Emergencies

A new training procedure developed by University of Kentucky researchers, and now required by a federal safety agency, may help miners survive underground explosions and fires.

The new procedure is aimed at helping miners do a better job of learning how to use their self-contained, self-rescuers (SCSRs). These devices provide an emergency supply of oxygen in an unbreathable atmosphere.

The SCSR's are effective when used properly. But recent UK studies, funded by a U.S. Bureau of Mines grant, have cast doubt on whether miners know how to use the devices in emergency situations, says Henry Cole, a UK education professor who led the research to develop a better training method.

"We found that most miners would have died in an actual fire emergency, even those that had been recently trained on the self-rescuers," Cole said. "In many cases, the SCSR's are the only means of survival."

A key part of the problem, he said, is the complex procedure required to properly don the SCSR's. Some of the existing training procedures required as many as 14 individual steps, and failed to put the most critical steps first.

In one test, miners who were trained on an old method took an average of 85 seconds to perform the critical steps necessary to isolate their lungs from a poisonous atmosphere. It is estimated that in an emergency a miner would have to complete these steps within 45 seconds to have a reasonable chance of survival.

At the same mine, those who received the new UK-developed training averaged just 23 seconds to complete the critical tasks.

"There are about 200,000 self-rescuers in use now. It's not practical to redesign the equipment at this point, so we have tried to redesign the instruction," said Cole.

The new training method breaks the SCSR donning method into three critical and three secondary steps. The "3+3" sequence is designed to be easy to remember, with the most important steps first.

The miner is instructed to first kneel down, lay his SCSR on the floor and place his miner's cap on the ground with the lamp illuminating the SCSR. Then the three critical steps: turn on the oxygen valve; insert the mouthpiece; and put on the noseclip. With his lungs now safely isolated, the miner can perform the three secondary steps: put on the goggles; adjust the SCSR straps; and replace his cap.

Cole notes that the new procedure works with any of the four different types of SCSR's now in use in the U.S. Field testing of the "3+3" method has involved about 400 miners in several states.

The researchers also examined the training strategies used at mine sites. In the past, many mines have relied entirely on audiovisual programs or demonstrations by an instructor, and as a result the majority of miners never received hands-on experience with the SCSR's.

Experiments with several groups showed that miners whose training included actual practice with the SCSR's did a better job of learning.

Research continues on how often miners should receive SCSR training and refresher courses.

"Proper use of the self rescuer is one of those tasks that are done infrequently, but are critical to survival. It's important that miners retain proficiency between training sessions," Cole said.

The mining industry has been quick to adopt the research findings. During 1987, the Mine Safety and Health Administration required use of the new hands-on "3+3" training method at all underground mines where SCSR's are in use.

The research was conducted by UK's BRASH group, an acronym for Behavioral Research Aspects of Safety and Health. This interdisciplinary group, part of UK's Institute for Mining and Minerals Research, brings together researchers in fields such as education, psychology, medicine and mining engineering to study the human aspects of safety and health in the workplace.

Other BRASH projects have included research into the relationship between diet and mine-related respiratory illnesses, development of simulation exercises to teach miners how to respond to underground emergencies, and studies of lifting capabilities and movement with ergonomic recommendations for job design.

Although children are the most vulnerable to tap water burns, the handicapped and elderly are also at risk.

Hot water can produce serious burns in 1 second at 155°; in 5 seconds at 140°; in 30 seconds at 130°; in 5 minutes at 120°.

Robert and Irene Harris, of Melvin, will be honored on their 50th wedding anniversary, Sunday, January 10. The reception will be held from 1-3 p.m. at the Joppa Regular Baptist Church cafeteria at Melvin.

Their children, who are hosting the event, request that no gifts be brought.

Senate Approves UK Trade Center

The Senate recently passed legislation to create an International Trade Development Center for agriculture at the University of Kentucky. U.S. Senators Wendell H. Ford and Mitch McConnell said in a joint announcement.

The proposed trade center will develop programs to promote exports of farm and farm-related products from the Ohio Valley, the Appalachian region and southeastern states.

If the proposal becomes law, the center will be created under the National Agricultural Research, Extension and Teaching Policy Act. Such centers already have been established in North Dakota and Iowa, and a $5 million center is proposed in Kansas.

In July the Kentucky Department for Social Insurance began its education and training program requiring food stamp clients to enter job search, literacy or GED classes. So far 3,994 food stamp recipients have enrolled in the project.

Education Is The Key To Kentucky Continued Economic Growth In 1988

Education is Kentucky's primary tool to continue building on the state's sound economic foundation of 1987, says Ed Blackwell, the state's chief labor market analyst.

"We are riding the crest of record-setting non-farm employment and earnings in 1987," he said. "If this trend is to continue and our economic development efforts are to be successful, we must maintain the focus on improved education."

Blackwell pointed out that Kentucky's greatest economic growth recently has been in areas of the state where residents have more years of education. "We've recorded consistently higher jobless rates in those counties where a high percentage of adults lack a high school diploma," he said.

"For example, Carter County, where 38 percent of the adults are high school graduates, had the highest annual average jobless rate in 1986 (22.4 percent). McCreary County recorded a 1986 average unemployment rate of 20.8 percent with fewer than a third of its adult residents (28.8 percent) high school grads.

"On the other hand, Boone County, with 65.3 percent of its adult population holding high school diplomas, had an average monthly unemployment rate for 1986 of 5.8 percent. Likewise, Bourbon County's 1986 average jobless rate was an even eight percent with slightly more than half (53.6 percent) of its adult population having completed high school."

Blackwell called educated workers "magnets" attracting new business and industry. "Parents need to encourage their children to at least complete high school. And in some cases, the parents themselves need additional education," he said.

While more manufacturing jobs may push Kentucky's 1987 factory employment to the highest level since 1981, workers in this sector from January through October still number 39,680 below the record 297,200 in 1979.

"We expect continued growth in this category in 1988 and beyond," Blackwell said. "But the newer jobs will be more technologically advanced and will require better math and reading skills. At the same time, people who have been laid off from manufacturing jobs must be retrained for new careers."

"Coal mining is another area where we've lost jobs and laid-off workers need retraining," he said. Mining employment has dropped from 49,209 in 1979 to an average of 34,800 for the first 10 months of 1987. Blackwell doesn't foresee appreciable gains in mining employment in 1988 because of the depressed coal market and automation allowing more coal production with fewer workers.

"Miners who have managed to remain on the job continue to earn high wages on an hourly basis," he said. According to the latest figures, Kentucky coal miners earn an average of $16.75 an hour on a 29 hour work week compared to a nationwide average of $15.72 during a 41.6 hour week.

"Unless and until many laid-off miners get more education and training, their prospects are bleak for finding work at that income level," he added.

Blackwell said the area where Kentuckians can expect to see the most new job openings in 1988 is services, where the biggest increases also occurred in 1986 and 1987. "This trend is projected to continue through the year 2000. Service jobs, incidentally, are the only ones in which we have had sustained growth since 1939, the first year we began keeping records," he said.

He predicted that continued emphasis on tourism will generate new jobs in services and trade, and that the construction industry will continue to grow due to commercial building for new industry.

"Strong economic development efforts must continue in order to ensure jobs for better educated and more highly skilled workers," Blackwell concluded.

WHERE THERE'S SMOKE...

Cigarette smokers do not absorb certain medications in the same way that non-smokers do. Nicotine acts to speed up the metabolism of the smoker so that the body uses up and eliminates various drugs faster than normal. As a result, smokers may need a larger or more frequent dose of medication in order that it may have its desired effect. For instance, studies show that diabetics who smoke require a dose of insulin that is up to twenty percent greater than that of a non-smoking diabetic. It makes sense, then, that a patient who smokes should make this information available to his doctor. The physician will need to know this fact when he prescribes medicine dosages and evaluates effectiveness.

Here at COOLEY APOTHECARY we aim to offer you the finest professional service available anywhere. We're in the business of helping you stay healthy and are always available to answer any of your questions about your medications. We look forward to being of service to you in the near future here at #2 Town Center Bldg., 886-8106. MasterCard and Visa honored plus we welcome all third party payments. Open: Mon.-Fri. 9-5:30, Sat. 9-4.

Celebrate Birthdays

The three sons of Mr. and Mrs. John Graham Stephens celebrated birthdays in late November.

Jared is 7 and a first grade student at Clark Elementary. The twins, Joshua and Justin are 5.

They are the grandsons of Mrs. Caroline Stephens, of Prestonsburg, and Mr. and Mrs. Denver Osborne, of Price.

Early Burley Fields, Good Dry Fall Delays Stripping

The December estimate for 1987 pegs the burley crop at 308 million pounds, down 2 percent from last month's forecast, but 7 percent above the 1986 crop. The estimated production is close to the basic quota of 310 million pounds and to the effective quota of nearly 326 million pounds.

"Individual growers can market up to 103 percent of their effective quota," said Agriculture Commissioner David E. Boswell. The Commissioner added that many Kentucky producers had some carryover tobacco from the 1986 season, which they are now marketing on their 1987 marketing cards.

Early fields of burley were generally good, but the dry summer weather reduced yields in fields set later on. As dry weather continued through the fall, burley did not go in and out of case. Therefore, stripping had to be delayed and the burley color is lighter than usual.

Most of the burley going to market has been very low in moisture, Boswell said that naturally buyers like the idea of "not buying water," but they are concerned with condition and lack of color in the 1987 burley.

The rain and higher humidity of recent weeks has been helpful in preparing burley for market.

Food Prices Hit A 17-Month Low

Kentucky's retail food prices dropped in November to their lowest level in 17 months, pushed downward by sharply lower pork and dairy product costs, according to Kentucky Farm Bureau's marketbasket survey.

A selected group of 40 food items cost shoppers an average $59.86, nearly 3 percent below the October level of $61.57. Food prices in the state have dropped 5 percent in the past two months and nearly 9 percent since the year's high was recorded in June.

Pork prices plunged 6.7 percent during November, as retail markets began to catch up with the steep price declines recorded for live hogs since mid-summer. Dairy products dropped 5 percent from their October marks, with milk, cheese, butter and ice cream at relative bargain levels.

In other food groups, beef cuts dropped .6 of 1 percent in November, and grain-based items were 4.4 percent lower. Two categories showed increases — poultry/eggs and fruits/vegetables each registered slightly more than a 1 percent gain.

There were virtual across-the-board price declines for the various pork and dairy items. Chops, bacon and sausage were from 15 to 22 cents-a-pound under October marks. The popular 2 percent milk dropped 12 cents to $1.74 a gallon, while butter and ice cream were marked down 17 cents, selling at $2.14 a pound and $1.65 a half-gallon respectively.

Even staple items, such as corn meal and flour, joined the price plunge trend. A 5-pound bag of meal was 15 cents lower, selling for $1.12, and the same amount of flour was 12 cents cheaper, at 90 cents.

Two meat cuts joined some fresh produce as the survey's only significant price gainers. T-bone steaks jumped 26 cents, selling for $4.50 a pound, and chicken breasts were 16 cents higher, at $1.69.

Lettuce and tomatoes were more expensive for salad buffs in November. Tomatoes edged nearer the dollar mark, rising a dime to average 98 cents a pound. Iceberg lettuce jumped 23 cents to 96 cents a head. That higher trend has accelerated since the survey period, reaching close to $2 a head as supplies from California and Arizona have shown the effects of wet weather, disease and an insect outbreak there.

ANALYSIS

Livestock producers are generally earning less on their sales than they were one, two or even six months ago, according to USDA.

Cattle prices are down moderately from earlier peaks, while hog prices are off by one-fourth or more since mid-summer. The sharp drop in super-market pork prices during November represents some overdue "catching up" as retailers slowly react to the marked downtrend.

Larger supplies of chicken in the market pipeline are also helping keep a damper on the competing red meats. As is often the case, those larger poultry supplies brought down the cost of whole fryers, but didn't prevent an increase in the price of chicken breasts, poultry's top-of-the-line item.

Current price and quality problems with iceberg lettuce partially showed up in the November survey, and will almost certainly be more pronounced when December's results are recorded.

Warmer, wetter weather in growing areas in California and Arizona, problems with leaf burn and a heavy white-fly infestation have caused a major reduction in supplies and a marked quality decline in the lettuce that has been salvaged.

Greenup had the lowest local market-basket average on the November survey while Hazard claimed the highest cost. Overall, volunteers working through Kentucky Farm Bureau Women canvassed food prices in 23 Kentucky communities.

Those local figures were: Greenup, 55.42; Scottsville, 57.88; Henderson, 58.79; Morehead, 59.65; Hopkinsville, 60.21; Glasgow, 60.90; Salyersville, 60.94; Campbellsville, 61.21; Greensburg, 61.29; Whitesburg, 61.72.

Lexington, 62.79; Grayson, 62.83; Somerset, 62.91; Georgetown, 63.04; London, 63.77; Shelbyville, 64.39; Danville, 64.65; Elizabethtown, 64.81; Louisville, 64.87; Dry Ridge, 65.01; Tompkinsville, 65.53; Maysville, 66.01; and Hazard, 66.82.

Dairy products, which showed substantial price decline in the November survey, are nonetheless at an all-time high in terms of consumer expenditures, says USDA.

Preliminary figures show that Americans spent $52 billion on milk and associated foods in 1986, up 38 percent since 1980.

But dairy spending has declined as a percentage of the cost of all foods. Dairy dollars in '86 were 11.9 percent of total food spending, compared to 12.5 percent in 1980.

Using another measure, Americans worked 6.9 minutes, on average, to earn the wage equivalent of a half-gallon of milk in 1986. In 1980, that worker had put in 8.7 minutes on the job to buy the half-gallon carton.

WKU Offers Break To Out-Of-Staters

Western Kentucky University's Board of Regents Wednesday approved an alumni grant policy to allow out-of-state students whose parents or grandparents are WKU alumni to attend the university and pay in-state registration fees.

The policy, which becomes effective next fall, will offer grants equal to the difference between in-state and out-of-state fees to high school graduates posting an ACT score of 18 or higher or a high school grade-point-average of at least 2.5 (4.0 scale).

The program will be available to both undergraduate and graduate students. WKU President Kern Alexander elaborated on the recent announcement that WKU would establish a campus in Glasgow.

“The important point is that WKU has the authority, according to Council on Higher Education policy to offer degrees off-campus,” he said.

For the past two years Western has been pursuing off-campus opportunities at the direction of the Board of Regents, Alexander said.

“We have had centers in Owensboro, Russellville, Fort Knox and Glasgow in recent years,” Alexander continued. “Glasgow came to the forefront in this period because Western has more than 700 students enrolled in that area.”

Board Chairman Joseph Iracane said that the WKU governing body is “an advocate for education. Bringing quality education to the people of the Commonwealth is our top priority.”

The Board also established a Distinguished Service Professorship and a University Distinguished Professorship.

The Distinguished Service Professorship will be awarded to a WKU faculty member who has “made outstanding contributions to the instructional program and service to the constituency of the University.” A maximum of four awards will be made.

University Distinguished Professor rank will be bestowed on WKU faculty “whose scholarly attainments have attracted national and/or international recognition” and is reserved for no more than one percent of the full-time faculty. The position will also be used to “attract scholars of the greatest academic achievement, prestige and eminence to WKU.”

In other action, the Board: *authored a testimonial resolution in honor of William E. Bivin, University attorney, who died on September 27, and reestablished the University's forensics program as the William Bivin Forensics Society;

*approved the proposal for new bachelor's degrees in dental hygiene and general studies;

*reviewed the Council on Higher Education's recommended 1988-90 biennial budget request for WKU;

*heard plans for the establishment of an Asian Studies Center which will have responsibility for oversight of Western's increasing involvement with universities and programs in the Far East;

*approved appointments of Dr. Randall Capps as head of the department of communication and broadcasting; Dr. William Leonard as head of the department of theatre and dance; and Dr. Charles Ray as head of the department of administrative office systems;

*approved the 1986-87 audited annual financial report;

*Re-elected Iracane chairman of the board and Ronald W. Clark, of Franklin, as vice chairman.

Prestonsburg Defeats Melvin To Claim Grade School Title

Prestonsburg Grade School will be recognized as the champion of Floyd county basketball until at least December. They earned the title last month with a 49-44 win over Melvin and will carry the title at least until the next championship tournament.

Prestonsburg, on their flight to the championship, had to survive two overtime games to reach the final game, and after leading by only two points going in to the final quarter, had to hold Melvin off to earn the title.

After beating Auxier, 63-36 in the sectional tournament, Prestonsburg was taken into two overtimes before handing Allen a 56-52 defeat in the section four finals.

John Clark and Jody Wallen, who led Prestonsburg with 20 and 17 points against Auxier, scored a total of 46 points as Prestonsburg advanced to the tournament's final four at Wayland Grade School.

Prestonsburg, in the first game, defeated Betsy Layne 43-35. Clark, a 5-foot-7 guard, once again led Prestonsburg in scoring, tossing in a total of 22 points. Betsy Layne's Compton scored 22 points.

Clark, an eighth grader, averaged 23 points per game in the county tournament and over 20 points in the sectional tournament.

Prestonsburg, in the semi-final round, once again found themselves in overtime, this time with Martin Grade School.

After taking a three-point lead into the final quarter, Prestonsburg was outscored, 16-13, to force an extra period.

Jody Wallen, a starting forward, scored four of his eight points in the overtime period, giving Prestonsburg a 51-49 win and an appearance in the championship round. John Clark scored 23 points in the victory over Martin, and Mike Hackworth added 12.

Martin was led in scoring by Hopkins who tossed in 26 points. In the tournament's final round, John Clark once again shined offensively, scoring a game high 23 points as Prestonsburg captured a title with the five-point win over Melvin.

Clark scored 12 of his game points in the first quarter as Prestonsburg bolted out to a 19-8 lead.

By the end of the third quarter Melvin had trimmed what had once been an 11-point lead to only two. Going into the fourth quarter, Prestonsburg led, 38-36, and outscored Melvin by three in the final frame to set the margin for victory.

Jody Wallen scored 13 points for Prestonsburg while Aaron Tucker chipped in with six points. Alan Akers added three points to the winning effort, and Mike Puckett and James Derossett scored two points each.

Johnson led Melvin's offensive attack with 20 points and Newsome added 13.

Prestonsburg, who finished the season with a 19-4 record, shot 50 percent from the floor, hitting on 22 of 44 attempts. Clark, who scored 104 points in the sectional and final tournaments, hit 11 of 21 shots and Wallen drilled six of his 12 attempts.

Jody Wallen led the team in rebounding throughout the tournament, hauling down an average of just over eight per game. His high game was his highest number of rebounds against Allen when he hauled down 15 rebounds.

Mike Hackworth, who claimed 14 boards against Allen, finished the three-game tournament with a total of 24 rebounds.

Prestonsburg, in the five tournament games, scored a total of 262 points, averaging 52.4 per outing. They surrounded only 43 points per game.

To reach the finals, Melvin, winners of the section two tournament, defeated Wayland, Monday, and came back Thursday to upend section three winner Prater.

Prestonsburg, despite getting off to a late start, enjoyed a season that took them to three tournament titles and a final record that was 15 games over the .500 mark.

"Other schools were able to start practicing on August 1, because they switched football to spring," Prestonsburg Grade School coach John "Wimpy" Clark said, explaining the late start his team had. "Prestonsburg played football this fall and most of my players played football so we couldn't even have a full practice until that was over."

Having to wait may have been the only thing to slow Prestonsburg this season. After getting off to what Clark termed a slow start, Prestonsburg enjoyed one of its best seasons of the 80s and they will wear the Floyd County Grade School crown for at least one year.

Another team wearing a crown is Martin Grade School. And they are no strangers to it. Martin won another girls' title, capturing the championship last month and winning their fourth tournament in as many years.

Junior Pro Tourney Continues Tonight

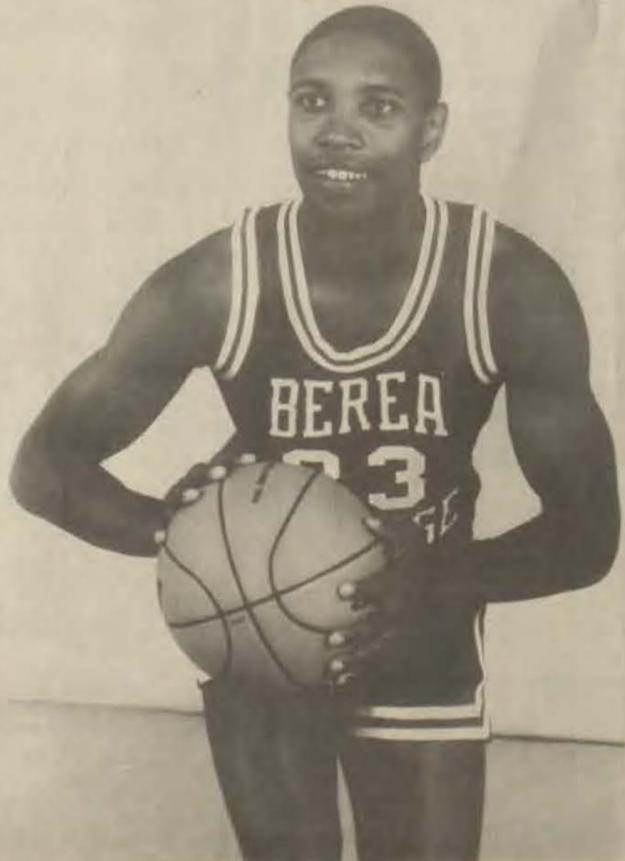

The final tournament of the Martin Junior Pro will continue tonight with three games scheduled and conclude Saturday afternoon with another triple-header.

Tonight's first game will tip off at 6 and be followed by two more games that are scheduled to begin at 7 and 8.

Three games are also scheduled for Thursday night, beginning at 6. The tournament's final round will be held Saturday afternoon with the first contest starting at 1.

A trophy presentation is scheduled for 4:30, following the day's final contest.

The Martin Junior Pro features a total of 18 teams taking part in three separate leagues. Over 300 young people from all across Floyd county are currently taking part in the Martin organization.

NOW A MOUNTAINEER: Tony Hutton, former guard for the Wheelwright Trojans, is in his first year at Berea College. Hutton suffered a broken finger that has cut into his playing time, but he has seen action on the junior varsity squad.

Shannon Provides Scoring Spark For McDowell's Bright Beginning

Last season, McDowell basketball fans were more interested in talking about future possibilities than present realities. One prospect they enjoyed discussing was Dickie Joe Shannon.

Daredevil fans, stuck in the middle of another disappointing season, preferred to lose themselves in the projection and prediction of how good Shannon could become, rather than face the present facts.

Well, the future is now and those same fans aren't asking themselves how good Shannon will someday be. Their favorite thoughts dwell upon how good he is today.

The future has finally arrived for McDowell basketball, as it has for Shannon, and they both appear to be enjoying it together.

Shannon, after averaging about 15 points and five rebounds per game his sophomore season, has exploded in full force offensively this year, and

McDowell at 7-3 has enjoyed success as a team.

Going into last night's game, Shannon was averaging 21.5 points per game to go along with five rebounds and two assists per outing. The six-foot guard has had three games where he has scored over 30 points, and recorded a season high of 36 against Prestonsburg.

Shannon is currently the leading scorer in the 58th district, but his coach, Johnny Ray Turner, says he is more than just offensive threat.

"He plays pretty good defense, and he is a good rebounder," Turner said. "He gets the ball out on the break for us, and he does a good job in finding the open man."

But as impressive as his numbers are now, Turner thinks the future will only be brighter.

"If he keeps working hard, there's no telling how good he can be. He shoots the ball real well. He's a good leaper, and he can go inside and post up against most people," Turner said.

Shannon teams with another junior, Henry Webb, to give McDowell one of the best backcourt combinations in the 15th region. Webb, a six-foot-one guard, is currently tied for third place on the 58th district's list of leading scorers.

Webb didn't see much playing time until late last season, but after becoming a starter this year, the junior guard has averaged 15 points and six rebounds per game. His offensive output might have been higher had he not suffered from foul trouble in an earlier game with Mullins, when he scored only two points.

Freddie McCoy, Prestonsburg High School's sharpshooting senior, is currently the district's second leading scorer, posting an 18.4 average after seven games. McCoy, a transfer from Mullins, also dishes out an average of three and one-half assists per game.

The 6'1" guard has led Prestonsburg offensively in all but two of their season games, leadership Gordon Parido says his young Blackcat team needs.

"He's an experienced player and that's what this team needs," Parido said. "We're playing good people tough, but we're not winning any games. We've been inconsistent so far and that can be attributed to our inexperience."

McCoy is the only senior the 2-5 Blackcats have. He shoots 48 percent from the field and hits 80 percent of his free throw attempts. McCoy also hauls down four rebounds per game.

The Prestonsburg guard has reached double figure scoring in six of his seven games, with only Betsy Layne holding him under the double digit level.

The Bobcats, themselves, boast two of the county's top five scorers, sophomore center Sam Stewart and junior guard Duran Newsome.

Stewart, a six-foot-five inside player, scores at a 15-point per game clip, good enough to tie McDowell's Henry Webb for the third slot on the district's high scorer list.

The improving sophomore also hauls down seven rebounds per outing while giving Betsy Layne an imposing defensive threat inside the point.

Stewart serves as one of the Bobcats' strengths inside while guard Duran Newsome picks up the scoring role from the outside.

A strong shooter from the three-point range, Newsome has combined his outside jumper with a strong ability to battle on the offensive boards and built a 13-point per game scoring average.

Newsome is currently the 58th district's fifth leading scorer. Four other players finish nearly even in the race for sixth place, all averaging close to 12 points per outing.

Tommy Jones, a senior guard for Wheelwright, tosses in a total of 12.3 points a game while teammate Craig Martin checks in at 12 points even.

Lenny Hall, McDowell's senior forward, averages 12.1, and Allen Central's sophomore center Joey Conn scores 12 points a contest.

Note: All stats are according to records kept by the schools and do not include last night's games.

SHORT SPORTS

The University of Kentucky Wildcats return to Rupp Arena with hopes of keeping their undefeated season alive and continuing on their strong Southeastern Conference beginning.

The Wildcats, 9-0 on the season, takes on SEC foe Mississippi State, Wednesday, at 7:30.

Kentucky, leading the conference, improved to 2-0 in the SEC Saturday night when they dumped Georgia, 84-77, on the road.

Kentucky, trailing by two points at halftime, outscored the Bulldogs, 41-32, in the second half to post the seven-point victory.

Rex Chapman led the Wildcats with 24 points, 16 of those coming in the first half, and Ed Davender added 22. Winston Bennett tossed in a total of 19 points.

The win was number 401 in the career of Eddie Sutton. He is currently in a tie with Georgia's Hugh Duram as both continue to climb the all-time list.

Tonight, Kentucky is expected to build on their perfect start, taking on a weak Mississippi State team. The Bulldogs finished with a 7-21 record last season, and in a rebuilding year, they aren't expected to be much better this season.

Mississippi State is without their top two scorers and rebounders this year.

The 'Cats will remain in Rupp Arena for a contest Saturday night with Auburn. The Tigers, along with Florida and Georgia, are among the teams expected to challenge favored Kentucky in the SEC race.

Steve Walsh threw two touchdown passes and Greg Cox kicked a 56-yard field goal to power the Miami Hurricanes to a 20-14 Orange Bowl victory over Oklahoma, Friday night.

With the win also came college football's national title.

Coming into the game, Miami was undefeated and ranked second. Oklahoma was undefeated and ranked first.

The Sooners were averaging 42.7 points per game while giving up only seven, but Walsh and company proved too tough for the nation's top ranked team.

Walsh, a sophomore quarterback, threw a 23-yard touchdown pass to Michael Ervin to put Miami up 17-7. Walsh had earlier thrown a TD pass of 30 yards to fullback Melvin Bratton.

Oklahoma, the nation's top offensive team, was held to less than of their usual yardage output and their ground game was shut down.

Averaging 428 yards per game rushing, the Sooners could manage only 152 yards on the ground and their biggest offensive play came from a run by an offensive lineman.

The Hurricanes finished as the only Division I team possessing a perfect record. Syracuse, perfect until New Year's Day, was tied by Auburn in the Sugar Bowl.

Miami, 12-0, was number one in all the major season ending polls.

The rise and fall of turbulent season came to an end. The first leg of the second season has been concluded, and all NFL eyes are focused on the second week of the professional football playoffs, which takes place this weekend.

The Minnesota Vikings became the first team to advance in the playoffs by upsetting New Orleans, 44-10, Sunday afternoon.

The Vikings, losers of their final three regular season games, backed into the playoffs when St. Louis lost to Dallas on the season's final game. But Sunday, the Vikings apparently found their early season magic and crushed New Orleans.

After the Saints scored on a Bobby Hebert pass to Eric Martin early in the first quarter, Minnesota rolled off 31 unanswered points to take a 31-7 half-time advantage, scoring on the first half's final play.

New Orleans never found the offensive or defensive success that led them to (Continued on Next Page)

The Sporting Times

They paraded up and down the track, their heads held proudly and their lean but muscular bodies echoing all the ingredients of raw speed.

The public address announcer said, "Six minutes to post time," provoking a stir through the huge crowd.

A cool breeze blew in from a perfectly manicured infield, circulated through the grandstand, and punctuated the 80-degree evening.

"Two minutes to post time," the PA man announced. Once again a ripple of conversation and movement bounced through the crowd.

Again the principles strolled up the track, giving the other interested participants a final opportunity to make an assessment before committing themselves financially.

Track personnel had loaded the starting gates, fans and interested participants had completed their business transactions, and the mechanical pacesetter had begun its final tour of the track.

"Here comes Hollywood," the announcer's voice broke the near silence, and in an explosion of speed, engulfed in a flood of shouts and cheers, the Hollywood Dog Track had opened another season of Greyhound racing in the South Florida area.

In just over half a minute of racing, fans and betters (more betters than merely fans) created 30-plus seconds of racing ecstasy. But as fast as it began, it ended. And for most it ended in a disappointing way.

Most of those who packed the grandstand and the betting area came not because they loved to watch Greyhounds chase a scented rabbit around a three-eighth mile track, but because they wanted to bet on which Greyhound could make it in the fastest time.

For a first time visitor the scene is brilliant, enough so to hold your interest and need for entertainment.

The experience of the first couple of races is repayment enough for the price of admission. But that is only 50 cents, and the initial high soon disappears, replaced with the need to wager.

Winning a bet isn't necessarily the sole reason to join in. But for two dollars you can buy an added interest in the race and all of a sudden cheering has a reason. And for the same reason, the races become all the more exciting.

Dog racing isn't exactly one of America's favorite sports. In fact it takes place in only a few states, but in South Florida, Greyhounds are considered fantastic athletes and dog racing is one of the area's major attractions.

The comfortable climate and natural beauty attract most visitors to South Florida, but after they arrive, the dog tracks sooner or later attract many of them into the fast paced, low rolling Greyhound world.

It is those people that keep the tracks hot and the stands filled.

And it is those people that could easily become immediately hooked, forced to satisfy a long term habit in only one night.

Poof, there goes the vacation money. It is exciting to bet on the canine runners, so much so that losing doesn't ring a bell. Actually, betters do not really concern themselves with winning.

It's a good thing too. The odds against winning are staggering, and even if you do, the payoff isn't that great. Of course, the more money bet and the greater the odds against winning, the greater the payoff is.

But then again the more the money bet the bigger the loss, and the shorter the vacation.

Local track goers say it's an economical way to enjoy yourself in this vacation hot spot. It doesn't cost much to get through the gate and unless you fall into that age old trap of gambling greediness, a couple or three bets won't break you. Especially if you compare it to the cost of other entertainment spots in South Florida.

The athletes don't complain about contract arbitration or playing time. None take drugs themselves and they rarely strike.

The dogs are beautiful animals, well conditioned and certainly built for the sport they participate in.

Dog racing is relaxed entertainment filled with fast-paced excitement. It provides an avenue to escape yet it throws you into streamlined intensity.

Visitors to the area hold a trip to the track high on their list of vacation objectives. That's why the track opened in late December and will run through the prime vacation period.

The local partisans help to make it a near capacity crowd every night. Betting is the reason why. In many states, Kentucky included, it is illegal to bet on such events. Horse racing takes the money here.

A favorite promotional piece for dog track owners reads, "Dog racing is exciting. You can bet on it."

And betting is what the natives love to do. They bet on dogs; they bet on people; and they bet on horses. "Gator wrestling may be next."

They have dog racing, South Florida people, that is. They have a nice winter climate but it doesn't come close to replacing the obvious voids they suffer through.

Oh sure, the number one college football team is there, but those poor pitiful souls don't have hills. Another thing not available in South Florida is college basketball.

Take the beaches and take the Hurricanes. Throw in the dog races and keep the sunshine. We'll take UK basketball, and call things even.

Hutton's First Season At Berea Slowed By Injuries

At Wheelwright High School little proved capable of slowing Tony Hutton's fast-paced playing style. Opponents on the hardwood rarely did.

Blessed with quickness, Hutton proved to be a near perfect example of a true point guard. Not known as a major scoring threat, Hutton gave Wheelwright a solid floor leader, good ball handler, and a strong defensive player.

His eight-point-per-game scoring average wasn't exactly eye popping, but Hutton helped Wheelwright in other important areas, such as assists where he averaged nine per game, and in steals, where he came up with about five a game.

"Nobody pressed us last year," Wheelwright coach Monroe Jones said. "They couldn't. If they tried to, Tony would take it up the court for us."

Hutton, a three-year starter at Wheelwright, enjoyed a successful high school career, but his first season at Berea College hasn't been as fast paced or successful.

Slowed by a broken finger, the 5'10" point guard hasn't had an opportunity to excel on the court and as a result finds himself behind in his collegiate progress.

"I think he is still behind because of his injury. It has slowed his progress considerably, and I still think he is behind the other kids as far as his development is concerned," Roland Wierwille, Berea head basketball coach, said.

Hutton suffered his injury near the beginning of the season while playing in a pickup game at Wheelwright. Although he has returned to action, the injury continues to hamper the Mountaineer freshman.

"The injury has really affected his shooting and ball handling," Wierwille said. "Because of that and because of his missing a lot of playing time, I really haven't had an opportunity to assess his ability."

Hutton is currently a member of Berea's junior varsity squad, serving as a point guard, and trying to build himself into a varsity performer.

The Mountaineers have four players, who were considered near even in preseason, that play the point guard position. One is a senior and three are juniors. Hutton may have to wait his turn, but it is expected to come in the future.

Hutton has the natural ability to develop into a solid point guard performer. He is quick, a good ball handler, and a strong defensive player.

But an outside jumpshot wouldn't hurt. "His quickness is his biggest asset, plus being a good person and a good student," Wierwille said. "His biggest minus is probably his ball handling, which has been hampered by the injury, and his perimeter shooting."

Although Hutton didn't post impressive offensive numbers during his high school career, he did enjoy several 20-plus point performances, especially when the situation demanded he score.

"Tony wasn't a big scorer for us, but he did have some big games," Monroe Jones said. "He can score when he wants to; he just needs some more confidence in his outside shot."

Jones is one who knows Tony Hutton's talents, and Jones is one who has confidence in the success Hutton will have at Berea.

"He needs a year or so of experience," Jones said. "He's got the quickness and athletic ability that you just can't coach, so I think he'll be alright."

Hutton displayed his athletic ability on the basketball court and on the football field. As a halfback for the football Trojans, he ran for nearly 1000 yards and was voted to the Eastern Kentucky Mountain Conference's all-conference squad.

The 160-pound athlete has now traded his shoulder pads in for a permanent round on the hardwood. Berea College has earned a rich tradition in small college basketball and is a legitimate yearly candidate to challenge for a Kentucky Intercollegiate Athletic Conference title. Hutton is expected to be a possible contributor to the Mountaineers' future basketball success.

Throw 'em Some Peanuts!

If you'd like to give the local birds (and squirrels) a bit of variety in their diet, go to the local super market and buy a bag of peanuts. There's no need to provide gourmet food here. The basic roasted in the shell peanut will do for starters. Peanuts are a treat for many wildlife species. Offer them and you'll be treated to exceptional performances as your birds and squirrels encounter and partake of this new food.

Left in the shell, ground and tree squirrels, chipmunks, jays, magpies and many woodpeckers will make off with all you can offer. Picture a diminutive chipmunk trying to stuff a three nut unshelled goober into his cheek pouch. Jays hide the peanuts in strange places. Next spring, you can go on a treasure hunt, the course charted by the birds.

Hang a batch of unshelled peanuts in an onion bag, suspended well out of the reach of squirrels (if you succeed in doing this, let me know) and you'll create a nifty feeder for small woodpeckers and titmice. How a downy woodpecker knows that it should land on plastic netting and, with nearly surgical precision, extract a peanut kernel from the shell, I'll probably never know. I never lose interest in watching the process however and perhaps someday I'll come up with an explanation.

For weaker billed birds, shelled peanuts are the bill of fare. Buyer beware however. The seed mix or bulk seller of bird seed that tries to convince you that the little bitter peanut hearts are the peanut food of choice is either trying to dupe you or more likely, just doesn't know what tastes good to the birds you wish to attract.

Dr. Al Geis, who headed the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service's excellent research program on songbird feeding preferences, found that pieces of peanut kernels were the favorite food of bluejays, tufted titmice and white-throated sparrows. The hearts however, the peanut product most commonly found for sale in bird feeding specialty stores, were highly attractive only to starlings, a species many find unwelcome at the feeder.

Chopped peanut kernels are terrific sources of protein and fats for some birds that infrequently visit feeders. Thrashers, thrushes, creepers, wrens, some warblers and some of the smaller sparrows will search diligently for small bits of peanut at your feeders or on the ground.

I continually ask my bird seed supplier for peanut kernels but to no avail. I've thought of labelling their peanut hearts barrel with a glossy photo of a starling with the caption, "Feed me my favorite" but have decided on the soft sell instead. I'll bet that there is a "not for human consumption grade" peanut out there just waiting to feed a hungry titmouse. In the meantime, try adding peanuts to your feeding menu. Wildlife will appreciate the occasional special snack and I can guarantee that you'll be entertained by their visits.

Roberts Finishes Second In New Year's Day 5K Run

On Friday, January 1st, the Third Annual Druther's New Year's Race was held at 1:00 p.m. in Paintsville. The 3.1 mile race started and finished on Madison Avenue after passing through the residential sections of Paintsville.

Phil Lucas, of Beattyville, came back to Paintsville to attempt a third title and found the going rough through the first part of the race. For three quarters of a mile the Wright brothers, Jeff and Robert took the lead, before Rick Roberts, of Allen, took command from the one to the two mile mark. At the two, Lucas pulled alongside Roberts and the two ran together for the next half mile. Lucas built a 30 yard lead with 150 yards left in the race, when Roberts kicked and took the lead.

With one turn and a fifty yard straightaway to the finish, a car pulled onto the course forcing a tight turn. Roberts fell on the inside turn and watched as Lucas passed on to victory in 16:55. Roberts was second in 17:00.

In the women's race, Kim Muncy, of Flatwoods, and Robin VanHoose were running close in the early stages, but Muncy stretched the lead to win in 23:08, to VanHoose's 23:51. VanHoose and Roberts both won their age groups.

 their first playoff appearance ever, and suffered a 34-point loss.

The Vikings will play Saturday at San Francisco against the Western division champion 49ers. Game time is 3:30.

The other National Conference matchup, scheduled for Sunday at 12:30, will feature Washington taking on the Bears in Chicago.

The Houston Oilers also survived the opening round of the playoffs, upsetting favored Seattle, 23-20, in overtime.

Tony Zendejas, Houston's kicker, missed a 29-yard field goal with less than two minutes left in the game, giving Seattle a chance to draw even.

Zendejas had earlier hit field goals of 47 and 49 yards but missed a shorter effort that could have put Houston in front by 10 points.

The Sea Hawks drove 80 yards downfield, and Dave Kreigh hit Steve Largent with a 12-yard touchdown pass that allowed Seattle to kick the extra point and tie the score with 26 seconds left.

In overtime, though, Zendejas was given another chance, and he made good on that try, nailing a 42-yard field goal that gave Houston the win.

The Oilers, 10-6, play the Denver Broncos, Sunday at 3:30, in the Mile High city.

Indianapolis, winner of the Eastern Division, plays at Cleveland Saturday in the AFC's other playoff contest.

When Do You Ask For Help?

COPYRIGHT 1987 KVMA

Kentucky Veterinary Medical Association
 Much is said about taking your pet to the veterinarian before an illness is critical. This is important, because the earlier all illness or injury is treated, the better the chances of complete recovery and the less the expense.

But what do you look for in the pet as symptoms of something gone wrong or about to go wrong?

There are several conditions for which to look, but probably the most important single thing you can do is to spend some time each day with your pet, handling it, grooming it, being generally observant, so you will be aware when a change occurs.

Be alert for your pet drinking excessive amounts of water, for frequent urination and urination accidents by a housebroken pet and, in cats, unusual behavior in the litter box.

Any unusual lumps should be examined promptly, and a persistent cough or abnormal breathing can indicate serious illness.

Unusual weight loss or gain may be cause for alarm, as may be any hard-to-explain change in behavior or a change in the animal's general odor.

Be observant for abnormal conditions of the teeth and gums. Animals do get dental problems and bad breath can be a symptom of problems with teeth.

Hair loss in excess of normal shedding, as well as excessive scratching may signal potentially dangerous conditions.

You should inquire about loss of appetite or lethargy which persists for more than 24 hours, as well as diarrhea or vomiting which lasts more than a day.

A change in walking or running could indicate an injury or disease condition, as can scooting the rear end along the ground or an unusual discharge from a body orifice.

Any of these changes in your pet could indicate a problem, but it may not be a serious problem, at least in the early stages.

There may be no reason to pack up your pet and haul it to the veterinarian's office immediately, but that is a decision that should be made by the veterinarian after you've phoned the office and discussed the symptoms you've observed. It may be as simple as fleas or worms, and those are no big deal.

It may also be the beginning of something serious, and if it is your chances are better with early treatment. In either event, the more correct information you have gathered the better your veterinarian's diagnosis can be.

Your veterinarian will be able to guide you, once you discuss the situation with him. Don't be afraid to make a call that may work out as unnecessary. Your veterinarian would rather you call with something simple than wait until it's too late with something serious.

IN MEMORIAM
In loving memory of Wootson and Lula Howard Gearheart.
Treasured thoughts of ones so dear,
Often bring a silent tear.
Thoughts return to scenes long past,
Years roll on but memories last,
Sadly missed by family and friends,
It.

IN MEMORY
In loving memory of our family members: Mark, Josie, Riley Crabtree and Willie Crabtree Pitman.
Memories of the ones we love
Still cast their gentle glow,
To grace our days and light our path
Wherever we may go.
God saw the road was getting rough
The hills so hard to climb
So He gently closed their eyes
And whispered, "Peace Be Thine."
We never really knew
How much we loved them,
Until we stood alone one day
Beside their vacant chairs.
To those who have a family
Treat them with loving care,
You will never know their value
Until you see their vacant chairs.
Sadly missed by family and friends.
It.

Info Center Formed For Waste Reduction

The Natural Resources and Environmental Protection Cabinet has contracted with the University of Louisville's Speed Scientific School to set up an information center to help Kentucky industries reduce waste, Secretary Mary Helen Miller recently announced.

Miller said the six-month contract is the first step in establishing a full-fledged program of technical assistance to reduce pollution from industrial waste by-products. "For years, regulators have been asking the wrong question," said Miller. "We have concentrated on how we can treat the waste to prevent pollution of the air, land and water, when we should have been asking how to reduce the waste created in the first place. Fortunately, some large industrial innovators have recognized the need to change their emphasis and are finding ways to cut waste."

The cabinet began its efforts to develop a waste reduction program in 1986 by appointing a broadly representative advisory committee to study what other states are doing and recommend a structure for Kentucky. The committee examined all the existing state programs, concentrating particularly on North Carolina's program, Pollution Prevention Pays.

According to Miller, 12 other states have pollution prevention-waste reduction programs, and Kentucky is drawing upon their experience in establishing its program.

Miller said the information center at U of L would be available to all industries in the state, but its outreach program will target industries that could reap the greatest benefits from a waste reduction program. "While we know that virtually every industry could further reduce wastes, our advisory committee has recommended that we seek first to help those industries where technology for waste reduction has already been developed," Miller said. "Our first focus will be on taking information from those industries that have already implemented waste reduction techniques and getting it to those that haven't."

Under the terms of the contract, the University of Louisville will provide an interim director, Dr. Marvin Fleischman, Professor of Chemical Engineering, and space for the information center. The cabinet will reimburse the university for other costs, up to $33,000 the first six months. The cabinet will establish a board of directors representing industry, legislators, universities, trade organizations, environmentalists, government officials, labor and business groups. The board will guide the development of the permanent pollution prevention-waste reduction program which, when fully established, will provide on-site technical assistance to industries, financial incentives for adopting waste reduction measures, and research into new waste reduction techniques.

Dean Earl Gerhard, Speed Scientific School, said the university welcomes the opportunity afforded his school by this contract. "To participate in successful efforts to reduce the pollutants that are going into Kentucky's environment at a rate of more than 10 million pounds a day is a challenge worthy of any university," Gerhard said.

State Parkways Change to 65

On most Kentucky parkways, the new speed limit is 65 miles an hour. Minutes after President Reagan signed the new law authorizing the change, Gov. Wallace Wilkinson ordered the increase on almost 700 miles of Kentucky highways.

According to interstate standards, a road must have four lanes of divided highway with limited access in order to accommodate a 65 mile an hour speed limit safely.

The Kentucky parkways which have been changed to 65 mph includes the Bert T. Combs Mountain Parkway between Winchester and Campton. Where the road narrows east of Campton, the speed limit will remain at 55 mph in the two-lane stretches.

Other parkways are: The Blue Grass Parkway between Elizabethtown and Versailles; The Cumberland Parkway between Somerset and Interstate 65 near Glasgow; The Audubon Parkway between Owensboro and Henderson; The Green River Parkway between Owensboro and Bowling Green; The Purchase Parkway between Fulton and Interstate 24 near Kentucky Lake; The Pennyrite Parkway between Henderson and Hopkinsville; The Western Kentucky Parkway between Elizabethtown and Eddyville.

On the Daniel Boone Parkway where there are only two and three lanes between Hazard and London, the speed limit will remain at 55 mph.

The Kentucky Department of Highways workers have begun changing the speed limit signs.

On Interstate 24, 64, 65, 71 and 75, the speed limit was changed to 65 mph in June after Congress authorized individual states to increase speed limits on rural stretches of interstate highways.

This change applied to interstate highways leaving Kentucky and raising speed limits on parkways was not authorized until December 22.

Kentucky State Police objected to the speed limit increase in June.

Pike College Receives E. Ky. Beverage Grant

Pikeville College will receive a $1,000 gift from Pepsi-Cola USA, thanks to the award-winning efforts of East Kentucky Beverage Co. Inc. in the area of community service.

East Kentucky Beverage earned this grant, known as the John Reese Award, because of its generous contributions of time, services and financial support to Pikeville College.

"We consider community involvement to be one of the most important aspects of our business," said East Kentucky Beverage President, Jack DuPuy. "We are a local business. Our success comes from loyal support from Pikeville area consumers. Community action is the best way to say thank you and tell our customers that we care."

The John Reese Awards Program was to recognize and support the public service initiatives of Pepsi-Cola bottlers around the country. Grants of $1,000 are awarded to non-profit organizations through the local bottler. Qualifying organizations include charities, the arts, civic affairs, educational programs or assistance programs to which the local bottler has committed both volunteer time and financial resources.

HEAP Crisis Phase To Begin Jan. 11

Low-income Kentucky families who are without heat or facing a heat loss are in line for $9.6 million in additional funds for winter heating assistance thanks to the recent federal budget approval, Gov. Wallace G. Wilkinson and the Department for Social Insurance have announced.

Jan. 11 has been scheduled as the opening date to accept applications for the HEAP crisis phase.

The state's total allotment of $21 million for the Home Energy Assistance Program (HEAP) also included $5 million in assistance approved during the program's first phase for households with elderly and disabled members, said Social Insurance Commissioner Mike Robinson.

"Families from the elderly and disabled segment who have received partial benefits will receive a check for the remainder as soon as the federal funds are made available to us," said Robinson. "The department cannot pay the remaining portion until the funds are deposited in the state treasury."

The grant also includes a $2.1 million transfer for a Social Services block grant to provide home care for the elderly and $2.8 million for the Department for Employment Services weatherization program.

"The crisis segment will allow Kentucky families without heat, needing emergency heating system repairs or facing the loss of their heating source within five days to apply for emergency assistance to alleviate the situation," Robinson explained.

"On Jan. 11, 85 percent of the funds reserved for crisis assistance is being made available to the state's 23 community action agencies, which will administer this segment of HEAP. However, assistance cannot be provided until the money is there to pay for it."

The assistance may be in the form of blankets, space heaters, payments for fuel, utility payments and emergency heating system repairs. The crisis portion of HEAP will last until April 30 or until allocated federal funding runs out.

Robinson said that, like last year, a 15 percent reserve fund—about $1.4 million—will be held to cover any emergencies that might occur after the initial money has run out.

"The reserve fund enables us to help families who may experience heating difficulties during the late winter-heating spring time period," said the commissioner. "It also allows us to distribute the funds to areas where it is most needed."

To find out the application site in each county, contact the local community action agency office or call toll-free 1-800-221-2907.

Games People Play— Monopoly and Scrabble, For Instance

By Ink Mendelsohn
Smithsonian News Service

Congratulations! "You have just won second prize in a beauty contest." For more than 50 years, children, women and men all over the world have been receiving this welcome news. Not at all insulted at not winning first prize, they gleefully collect the $10 that will bring them that much closer to bankrupting their rivals.

"In the 1930s when Monopoly came on the American scene with its goal of amassing money and property," historian Ellen Roney Hughes says, "it reflected the personal aspirations and materialistic impulses in American society." At the Smithsonian's National Museum of American History in Washington, D.C., and at other museums, Hughes and her colleagues are collecting games Americans played.

Game boxes, boards, tokens and spinners or rollers of chance are instructive, artistic and often fantastic bits and pieces of the archaeology of play that recount historical events, recall social concerns and reveal individual idiosyncrasies. "More and more, we are coming to realize the importance of studying leisure activities like game playing," Hughes says.

It's not only what is in the box that interests historians about games. "The lithographs on the box covers reflect our culture more than any collectable you can think of," Lee Dennis says. Dennis, who has an extensive antique game collection that is open to the public at The Game Preserve, her museum in Peterborough, N.H., points out that there are hundreds of game collectors around the country. Many of them belong to the American Game Collectors Association, which is dedicated to unearthing historical and cultural associations of American games.

There is evidence that human beings almost everywhere have been playing board games for about 5,000 years. The royal graves of the First Dynasty of Ur (c. 2560), in what is today Iraq, yielded a Backgammon-type board, and the tomb of Egyptian King Tutankhamen (who reigned from 1361 to 1352 B.C.) revealed game boards, men and short sticks and annual knuckle bones used like dice to determine moves.

At times, similar board games seem to have appeared independently in different cultures. European colonists introduced draughts or checkers—which the philosopher Plato called a "favorite diversion in every corner of the earth"—to North American Indians. Before European contact, however, the Zuni people in New Mexico were playing Awitlaknakme, a game that, like checkers, depends on the strategy of capture and immobilization of an opponent's men.

Most often, board games have spread from one culture to another. In one ancient game, the "men" were real women. Pachisi has been played in India for about 1,200 years. Akbar the Great, a Mogul emperor who ruled from 1556 to 1605, and his friends often enjoyed this game using slaves from his harem wearing brightly colored dresses as playing pieces on a giant marble board. According to the 1870 catalog of Selchow & Righter in New York, its newly acquired game, Parcheesi—once the game of emperors—"had a larger sale than any other game on the market in the same space of time."

Some of America's very first board games were announced in the New York Advertiser on Dec. 25, 1823: "HOLIDAY PRESENTS... Juvenile Pastimes all of which are calculated to improve as well as amuse the Youthful mind, viz: GEOGRAPHICAL GAMES The Travellers Tour through the United States."

In 1843, the W. & S.B. Ives Co. of Salem, Mass., issued The Mansion of Happiness, created by Anne W. Abbott, a clergyman's daughter. Players spun a top called a teetotum—dice were the "instruments of the devil"—that directed their fateful journey through Passion and Prudence, Immodesty and Industry right up to the Summit of Dissipation before reaching The Mansion of Happiness.

On the eve of the Civil War, in 1860, Milton Bradley published his invention, The Checkered Game of Life. Bradley intended that his game inculcate moral values, as players attempted to reach "Happy Old Age" and avoid "Poverty, Disgrace and Ruin."

At the end of the long and bloody conflict, a war-weary nation turned away from moral lessons. The industrialization and new technology spurred on by the necessities of war brought new manufacturing capabilities. Improvements in printing with chromolithography, the cheaper manufacture of paper and more leisure time for middle-class Americans made game playing a profitable business and a national pastime.

"Initially, the fun of games was used to teach children moral lessons, history, geography, science and mathematics," Judy Emerson says. Emerson, the curator of recreational artifacts at Rochester's Margaret Woodbury Strong Museum, points out that "by the late Victorian era, for both children and adults, fun was for fun."

Playing parlor games was fun for young George Parker, but he was also a child of the Gilded Age when Rockefellers, Carnegies and Vanderbilts floated on clouds of high finance. So in 1883, 16-year-old George invented a game called Banking, in which players could draw money from the bank at 10 percent interest for speculative investments with the object of amassing the most wealth. Eventually, game inventor George was joined in the burgeoning business by his brothers Charles and Edward.

Parker Brothers, Milton Bradley, Selchow & Righter and other companies followed hard on the heels of the news, fads, fashions and famous people of the day with their games. The Spanish-American War in 1898 inspired The Siege of Havana, Admiral Dewey, War in Cuba, The Battle of Manila and The Philippine War. In 1901's The Motor Carriage Game, the new-fangled thing always broke down and had flat tires.

World War I even had its own games. Soldiers of the Advance Guard, The Great War and War Games all came out in 1915. And Lindbergh's 1927 solo flight across the Atlantic was honored with Lindy, The Flight to Paris and Ski-Hi.

The Radio Game, Polly Pickles, Queen of the Movies and The Moving Picture Game announced America's fascination with its new entertainments.

The stock market crash couldn't depress a game-loving people. The great game show was inexpensive fun at home when money was scarce. And out of the Great Depression, two game giants came onto the playing field—Monopoly and Scrabble.

An unemployed New York architect, Alfred Butts, experimented in the 1930s with a game in which words were made from individual letters printed on squares of cardboard. In 1948, his friend James Brunot started making the game, sold it to Macy's and other stores and in 1953, Selchow & Righter, who had initially refused it, bought the rights. Scrabble became one of the most successful word games in the 20th century.

When Charles Darrow, an unemployed heating engineer from Pennsylvania brought Monopoly to Parker Brothers in 1934, they rejected it, declaring in a letter to Darrow, "Your game has 52 fundamental errors." Darrow produced the game himself, and the 5,000 sets he sold to Wanamakers in Philadelphia were the hit of the 1935 Christmas season. Parker Brothers had a change of heart, and Monopoly carried the company through the Depression. But George Parker was still not convinced.

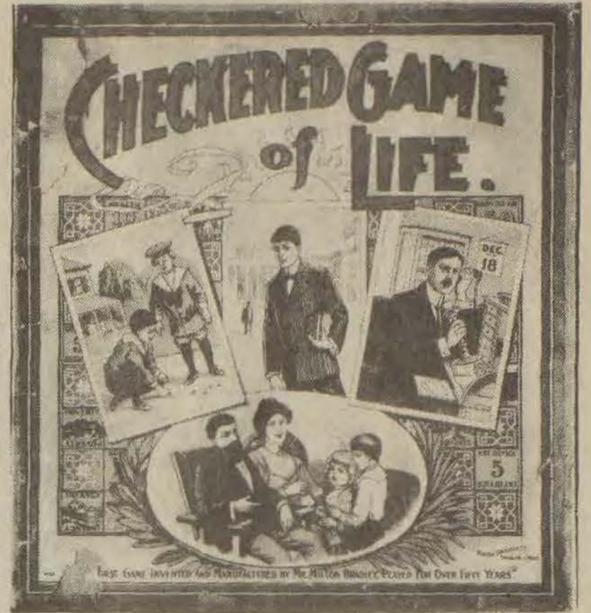

Just before Christmas in 1936, he sent a memo: "We will stop making any Monopoly against the possibility of an early slump." Happily, Parker didn't make that move, for Monopoly became the best-selling American board game in history. It is printed in 19 languages and published in 29 countries. The capitalistic game continues to be banned in the Soviet Union, although, Parker spokeswoman Pat McGovern says, "we understand that it's played underground." It has also been played underwater, in a shopping mall, on a dormitory ceiling and in a moving elevator for 148 hours straight—up and down.

Like Monopoly, Scrabble is a classic, and according to Selchow & Righter spokeswoman Barbara Wruck, "Scrabble is still at the top." Which is not to say that there haven't continued to be plenty of topical games. In the '70s and '80s, Guru, Watergate, Women's Lib, The Credit Card Game and Ulcer were on the shelves.

In the early 80s, video games hurt board game sales. But ever since 1984 and Trivial Pursuit, non-electronic games have become ever more popular. In 1986, Americans spent close to a half billion dollars on games according to Jodi Levin, spokeswoman for the Toy Manufacturers of America.

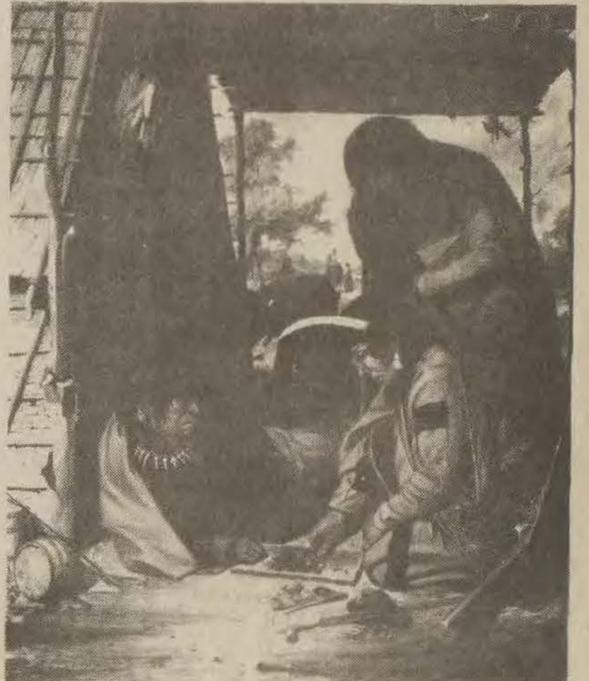

Leaving the classics aside, what's new? Mark Morris, spokesman for Milton Bradley—birthplace of The Checkered Game of Life and its moral dilemmas—says: "Our best seller is A Question of Scruples. It's an adult conversation game in which ethical questions are presented to a player and his or her answers are discussed."

Now, just in case you don't want to discuss ethics when playing games, go home and get out the Monopoly. If you're lucky, you'll find that "your Xmas fund matures."

Milton Bradley's first game, the "Checked Game of Life," debuted in 1860. Bradley intended that his game inculcate moral values, as players attempted to reach "Happy Old Age" and avoid "Poverty, Disgrace and Ruin."

European colonists introduced some of their board games to North American Indians. Seth Eastman's 1848 oil painting depicts "Chippewa Indians Playing Checkers."

Christmas has always been the traditional game-buying season. The "Game of the Visit of Santa Claus," ©1899, was one of a number of games produced having a Christmas theme.

"Radio Game," created in the late 1920s, broadcast the American fascination with a new form of communication and entertainment.

Premature Parenthood: Who Pays When Teens Have Babies

Part 4: Cutting Costs and Saving Lives

Accessible day care. Community involvement. Early prenatal care. Improved job opportunities. Teen pregnancy prevention. Well child check-ups. Parent and teen education. These are some of the ways Kentuckians are addressing the human and monetary costs of teen pregnancy and parenting.

As with most societal problems, the solution does not come wrapped in one neat package that can be delivered to community after community. In fact, each location must bring together many groups to find individual answers.

"Each community has its own problems and attitudes that contribute to teen pregnancy and all of its associated problems," said Health Commissioner Carlos Hernandez, M.D. "This department has tried to promote the idea that solutions require broad-based community involvement from parents, schools, churches, businesses and private and public health professionals."

A near perfect example of community involvement is being carried out in Hopkinsville. In the spring of 1986, school officials identified at least 68 teen pregnancies in Christian County schools the year before. This discovery prompted a meeting of school, housing and state and local health officials, ministers, physicians and representatives of the League of Women Voters.

Through this cooperation, in August 1986 the Christian County Board of Education in conjunction with the East Pennyrile District Health Department opened an alternative school for pregnant girls with space donated by Housing and Urban Development.

The students take regular high school courses plus parenting classes. They get comprehensive prenatal care and well child care for their babies at the school from district health department staff. The local hospital and physicians provide pre-labor hospital tours and education for the girls.

"We marshaled many community groups and state, local and federal money to get this thing off the ground," said Bob Fritz, East Pennyrile district family planning and maternal health coordinator.

"We believe it will keep these girls in school, and they'll graduate with their classes," he said. "We started with nine girls in August of 1986 and by February, we were at our capacity of 40."

The community is now working on a project to incorporate elderly women as day care aides to implement an on-site day care program for the teen parents, he said. News of the Hopkinsville program prompted interest from Madisonville, where an alternative school was started this school year, again with assistance from the East Pennyrile District Health Department.

Prevention is an important part of a comprehensive approach to teen pregnancy problems, according to Ted Hanekamp, Department for Health Services maternal and family planning services branch manager.

The department has funded many special health department projects aimed at preventing teen pregnancy through education of students and of their parents, he said. A total of $600,000 in state and $156,000 in federal funds was granted to health departments in the past two years for local pregnancy prevention efforts of an educational nature.

These efforts take different forms, he said, from parent and community education in the Big Sandy Area Development District to teaching students self-esteem and decision making in Bowling Green and Henry County to individual student counseling in Hardin County.

Family planning programs also play an important role in preventing teen pregnancy, Hanekamp said. "Most of the adolescents who come into health department family planning clinics have already had sex without any kind of birth control," he said. "Many come in the first time for a pregnancy test because they've had a scare."

Besides prevention, communities have to tackle problems that Hopkinsville recognized—the ones that surface after teens get pregnant, he said. Good, accessible prenatal and well child care are essential for healthy mothers and babies.

Experts say that accessible day care is an important factor in keeping teen parents in school. The Department for Social Services can provide day care funds to teen parents trying to finish high school or vocational school and having no other means of caring for their children. AFDC recipients through the Department for Social Insurance can receive day care funds if they're enrolled in high school, college, vocational school or other education programs.

The Department for Employment Services has waived the family income eligibility standards for pregnant and parenting teens seeking job training under the Job Training Partnership Act. Counting only the teens' income increases their chances of participating in this program. This was done because these teens are considered to be among youth at highest risk for not having the training to enter the job market.

"Teen pregnancy issues involve more than the question of health," Hernandez said, "and that's why broad-based community involvement is important. We're talking about education issues, the job market...the future of our children."

QUESTION: I quit smoking for New Years and did very well for two months. Then I was out having a few drinks with friends who were smoking and I started again. I am so discouraged. It seems like I can stop without too much trouble but I just can't seem to stay quit. Do you have any suggestions that can help me stay off cigarettes?

ANSWER: Don't stop trying; it often takes a number of attempts before a person becomes a nonsmoker. You can make it if you keep trying and think of your relapse as a setback, not as a failure. Learn from this setback. The most important lesson is to know that you can't test yourself from time to time by having a cigarette.

Start by thinking about what caused you to smoke when you were out with your friends. Ask yourself if those cigarettes were really as good as you expected and if having them was worth starting all over again. Then think about how you will react the next time you are in the same situation.

Here are some suggestions to help prevent a relapse:

—Make a list of the reasons you don't want to smoke and put them on a small card that you can carry with you. When you get the urge to smoke no matter where you are, take out the list and read it before you take the cigarette.

—Use an easy reminder called the 5-D's: Delay, Deep breathe, Drink water, Do something else, Don't do it.

—Prepare yourself for the triggers that make you want a cigarette by learning some new coping skills. The key is to learn how to deal with the urges without giving into them. Try putting something else in your mouth when you are out, such as carrot or celery sticks or a swizzle stick.

—Cut down on alcohol. Alcohol stimulates the urge to smoke and weakens the resolve not to smoke. Try having a tall glass of juice, soda or mineral water with lots of ice and celery stick to nibble on.

—Use positive thoughts—tell yourself how well you are doing and that you do not smoke, and you are not going to now.

—If you should slip, it doesn't mean you have become a smoker again. Get back in your nonsmoking frame of mind immediately. Stop smoking again right away. One or more cigarettes doesn't mean you have failed. It does mean you need to be aware of the cause of the slip and decide how to cope with it the next time.
