4-lane will enhance battlefield

by Janice Shepherd
Managing Editor

Progress will take a curve at Middle Creek to preserve a chunk of Floyd County's Civil War history.

Speaking Tuesday in Frankfort, Johnnie Ross, an environmental coordinator with the state Transportation Cabinet, announced that the site of a Civil War battle at Middle Creek will be protected when the state Transportation Department builds a four-lane highway from Prestonsburg to Clark Elementary.

Ross, Secretary James C. Codell, and three other environmental coordinators, made announcements about four sites throughout the state that will be preserved by the Transportation Cabinet. In addition to Middle Creek, preservation projects include a recreational area at the Land Between the Lakes in Trigg and Marshall counties; realignment of Cemetery Road in and made from native sandstone, will flow from the battlefield site to a bridge near the entrance to West Prestonsburg.

"We decided the guardwall would make the most significant impact visually," Ross said in an interview Thursday. "We (transportation officials) met with the State Historic Preservation Office (SHPO) about the Battle of Middle Creek ... Then we met with the Kentucky Heritage Council, Frankfort Environmental Analysis representatives, two design engineers and the landowner. The engi-

Partiers desecrate cemetery

by Pam Shingler

A visitor needs only to look around and to sniff the air to know what goes on at the Ferguson Cemetery at Harold.

The site is apparently an all-hours, no cover charge nightclub for some people and a no-license, no-limit hunting preserve for others.

The ground is strewn with beer bottles and beer cans, with fast food bags and wrappers, and with evidence that revelers are — on the positive side — practicing safe sex.

A set of truck tires and several vehicle oil bottles have been deposited along the cemetery road.

As if the trash were not enough, last week the carcasses of three deer were left to putrefy, emitting the stench of death throughout.

Florence Lewis, who owns the hillside and a family plot, says a fourth deer had been killed but its body was apparently thrown over the hill.

Lewis, who lives across the road in Fox Bottom, believes the deer were part of a herd that grazed on the cemetery and regularly went across US 23 to the river.

Grand Jury indicts 18, presents report

Times Staff Report

The 1998 Floyd County Grand Jury ended its term of service Monday with a final presentation of indictments to 18 persons.

In his report, Gary D. Johnson, jury foreman, said that since April the group returned 103 indictments against 103 individuals with a total of 256 counts. Jurors also considered around 80 cases that did not result in indictments, the report said.

The jury filed an indictment for second-degree manslaughter against Timothy Mullins, 23, of 3513 Half Mountain Rd., Salyersville. Mullins was reportedly the driver of a coal truck which collided with a car driven by Sybil Coleman Thacker of Abbott Creek on Oct. 26. Thacker died as a result of injuries she suffered in the crash, which occurred on US 23 at the intersection of KY 1428.

Terri Lynn Jarrell, 23, of Harold, was indicted on seven counts of theft by unlawful taking, occurring between Jan. 7 and April 19 and involving $8,771.50 entrusted to her as attorney's fees due Eric Conn.

The indictment says that on Jan. 7, Jarrell received $1,278 payable to Conn from Sally Jones; on March 18, $570 from Ellis Little; on March 25, $1,009 and $1,008 from Betty Music; on March 25, $1,377 from Earl Mullins; and on April 15, $1,819; and April 19, $1,711, both from Joe Johnson.

Two persons were indicted on sexual abuse charges. William Patton Wells, 74, of 1184 KY 466, Weeksbury, was charged with three counts of first-degree sexual abuse, involving a child less than 12 years old. The offenses allegedly occurred between January and May of this year.

Charges on a count of first-degree sexual abuse and a count of first-degree sodomy led to the indictment of Roger D. Henderson, 49, of Bryant Branch at Hi Hat.

Both charges dated January through December of 1996 and involved a child under the age of 12.

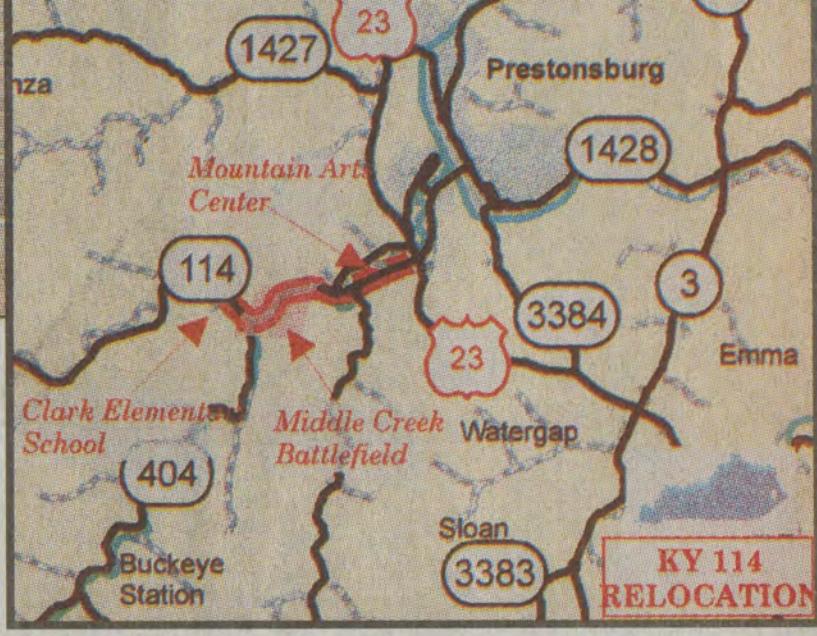

Brian Mulkey, 26, of Wayland was indicted on one count of first-degree assault. He is accused of

Corps agrees to reconsider closing of Dewey roadway

by Pam Shingler
Editor

Some people came to the meeting skeptical and a little testy, but most left somewhat hopeful that KY 302 on the north side of Dewey Lake will not have to close.

The US Army Corps of Engineers invited the public to a forum Monday night to discuss its plan to build an auxiliary spillway for Dewey Dam to empty into the Levisa Fork of the Big Sandy at Auxier.

About 40 residents of Floyd and Johnson counties attended the meeting at the convention center at Jenny Wiley State Resort Park which entwines the dam.

The Dewey Lake Dam Safety Assurance Project, in the works by the Corps for more than a decade, proposes to bring the 50-year-old dam up to modern standards and protect the area from what is termed a "probable maximum flood."

Hydraulic engineer Coy Miller, with the Corps' Huntington district office, emphasized that the dam is safe with regard to the original design.

However, he said, modifications

Un-incorporation is topic at Allen commission meeting

by Willie Elliott
Staff Writer

Amid discussions about rescinding an earlier motion to close a road and how to deal with a dog problem, the Allen City Commission listened to a request Monday evening from a citizen to exclude part of the city from the corporation limits.

At an earlier meeting, the commission had made a motion to close Colliver Road because it had become in disrepair and was being used as a dumping ground. On reconsideration, commission members realized that this road is the only outlet in times of flooding.

A discussion followed about whether to table the matter or rescind the motion. City Clerk Bill Parsons said that tabling the motion would make it impossible to bring the subject up in the future. "We would cripple future generations dealing with this problem," said Parsons.

City attorney Stacy Marshall said the matter could be handled by

Tax penalties are higher

by Pam Shingler
Editor

Putting off paying your property tax bill will cost you more this year than before.

Floyd County Sheriff Paul Hunt Thompson, whose job it is to collect taxes, advises that a new law passed in the last General Assembly aims to speed up tax collections within counties.

Property owners who delay paying tax bills could end up paying almost 30 percent in compounded late charges if they wait until next spring to pay.

Under the previous law, taxpayers faced a two percent penalty if the bill was a month late in being paid, a straight, noncumulative 10 percent penalty after two months and another 10 percent if the bill was turned over to the county attorney.

If you set the bill aside until January, you pay the face value plus a five percent penalty, or $105. If by February you have not paid, you pay a penalty of 10 percent of the bill plus previous penalty, or $115.50.

If you still have not paid in

SURGEON GENERAL'S WARNING: Cigarette smoke contains carbon monoxide.

The slain deer, she said, had been gutted, the good meat taken, and the offal left to decay along with the hide and skeleton.

Last Friday, Lewis and her nephew Thurman Lewis were gathering bottles and papers in piles to bag up and were clearing brush from the hillside where more garbage is hidden. Over the hill, they even found women's underwear to add to the trash piles.

"I had a washtub out here to collect the garbage in," she said, "and somebody dumped it out and put the washtub over the hill." She had spent much of the morning picking up broken pieces of glass beer bottles from where the tub had been emptied onto the cemetery road.

Earlier in the year, Lewis said, she found bloody clothes, still wet, at the cemetery. Frightened, she went home to find someone to come back with her. When she and her friend returned a few hours later, the garments were gone.

Castle Collins, who lives at Betsy Layne and has a family plot in the Ferguson Cemetery, said he picks up three to four bags of garbage a month.

Last week after seeing the deer and the other debris, Collins said he was "so aggravated and torn up, I'm telling you, I didn't sleep any." The 81-year-old, who raised his family in Michigan before retiring and moving back home in 1975, has recovered from a heart attack and a broken back and still keeps several cemetery plots clean.

In July, Collins said he filled a large garbage bag with beer cans and food containers from under a single tree.

"It's disgusting," said Lewis, who worked in Louisville for 20 years before moving back to take care of her parents.

over the county." Hale said the only advice he can give is for cemetery owners to put up a gate to limit access. "Basically, it's a law enforcement problem," he said.

Sheriff Paul Hunt Thompson said, "All we can do is try to patrol (the cemetery)." He advised people who live around a cemetery to call the sheriff's office or the Kentucky State Police if they know "a party is going on" in the cemetery or if they hear gun shots in the case of animal poachers.

Thompson added that ordinary citizens can file a criminal summons against people caught vandalizing or littering or violating other laws.

"Call the congressman," suggested Mayor Fannin, referring to Cong. Hal Rogers, who has been successful in directing federal funds for tourism and development into the area.

"We can consider the project (of keeping the road) as tourism enhancement," added Fred James, the city's director of tourism.

Kessinger responded, "Writing to your congressman is good, and writing to the Corps is a good option. We hear you loud and clear and are willing to work with you."

"The surplus of material is the only reason to close the road?" asked Randy Burchett, a Prestonsburg architect. "This is the most scenic view of the lake."

Project manager Mark Kessinger replied that the "spoil material" — up to 700,000 cubic yards — will be placed along the road so that persons could still walk around the area.

Prestonsburg Councilman Trent Nairn insisted that the road is important to tourism in the area. "People want to drive this road to overlook the lake. You're taking part of the view," Nairn said.

"This will cost us in tourism dollars," said Prestonsburg Mayor Jerry Fannin, who pleaded with the Corps staff to consider alternatives to the road closing.

Two alternatives were broached by the audience. One was to build a bridge over the spillway, which is to be located on the short stretch of KY 3051 leading from KY 321 to the lake road. The spoil material could be dumped somewhere else and KY 302 could be left open.

Corps engineer Miller said a bridge would double the cost of the project, which is estimated at just under $8 million.

Another alternative was to construct a road through the spillway since it will have no water in it, except possibly during the maximum flood when everything would be flooded anyway.

"What we would like," said Prestonsburg Councilman Hansel Cooley, "is for safety and tourism to work hand in hand."

Project Manager Kessinger said he did not believe that the Corps could use the allocated money for anything other than the original project design.

Tax

March when the sheriff turns delinquencies over to the county attorney for legal action, your bill goes up by another 10 percent of the original bill and the added on penalties to become $127.05.

To save money, Thompson urges taxpayers to pay early and avoid penalties.

Despite problems with wrong addresses in sending out the original tax bills, Thompson said his office has already collected more than $5 million, making this November the largest first month collection ever. The figure represents between 65 and 70 percent of total billing.

shooting Michael Slone with a pistol on Sept. 6.

Five counts related to a burglary were charged against Robert Wendell Bishop, 40, of Teaberry. Bishop is charged with unlawfully entering the home of Darrin Howell on Sept. 15, armed with a weapon. The counts include first-degree burglary and four counts of theft by unlawful taking of a shotgun, a rifle, a black powder rifle and four diamond rings, with a total estimated value of $1,150.

Clyde Isaac, 52, of Bypro was indicted on four counts of wanton endangerment in the first-degree. He is charged with shooting a firearm at the residences of Patty Ann Perry, William Chad Perry, Candy Ann Compton, and Shawn Dale Compton, all occurring on March 8 of this year.

Randall L. Mullins, 24, of 284 S. Central Ave., Prestonsburg, is charged with one count of intimidating a witness by allegedly threatening Ronnie E. Slone with physical harm. The charge, dating to Oct. 12, 1996, says Mullins believed Slone would be called as a witness in an official proceeding involving an investigation by Prestonsburg Police.

Indicted on five counts of theft by deception was Ruben Hall, 45, of Hi Hat. The charges relate to the issuing of five checks that the defendant allegedly knew would not be honored to Bill's Fish Farm between April 13 and July 29 of 1995. The checks were in the amounts of $410, $390, $390, $390, and $290.

Shirley Fogle, 43, of McDowell was indicted on three counts, all relating to prescriptions from Wheelwright Clinic on July 10. The defendant is charged with one count of second-degree forgery by altering a prescription; one count of second-degree criminal possession of a forged instrument by possessing an altered prescription; and one count of fraudulently obtaining a controlled substance by altering a prescription.

Also prescription-related and more than two years old, Rhonda J. Blair, 28, and Eddie R. Blair, 30, both of the same postal address in Prestonsburg, were each charged with one count of fraud or false statement in obtaining a controlled substance for attempting to obtain Loracet by forging or altering a prescription on June 3, 1996.

In a similar case, Glen Patrick, 39, of Church Street, Salyersville, was charged with one count of fraud or false statement in obtaining a controlled substance for attempting to obtain Loracet by forging or altering a prescription on Nov. 4.

Also, Chester Risner, 21, of 542 Gunlock Trace in Gunlock, was indicted for allegedly fraudulently obtaining a controlled substance by altering a prescription to obtain Lortab on Oct. 17.

Ronald Frasure Jr., 38, of 892 Abbott Mountain Rd., East Point, was indicted on two counts relating to marijuana. On charges dated June 3, he is accused of trafficking in a controlled substance by manufacturing and/or possessing marijuana with the intent to sell or transfer it and of marijuana cultivation for knowingly and unlawfully planting, cultivating or harvesting five or more marijuana plants for the purpose of sale or transfer.

Billy R. Craft, 28, of Auxier was indicted on one count of marijuana cultivation for knowingly and unlawfully planting and cultivating five or more marijuana plants for the purpose of sale or transfer, in a case dated June 25.

Darrell Craig Baker, 36, of Pine Top received an indictment on one count of operating a motor vehicle while his license was revoked or suspended for driving under the influence. The incident, dated July 30, was allegedly his third offense.

Charged with flagrant nonsupport was Bryan Joe Hall, 40, of 172 Green Hall Branch at Banner.

A 19th indictment was made and then later remanded to District Court after it was determined that the charges were misdemeanors.

An indictment signifies that the grand jury believes sufficient evidence exists to bring a case to trial; it does not establish guilt.

Editorial

Because some humans are irresponsible and uncaring, there will always be too many puppies and kittens and there will always be too many adult dogs and cats that made the mistake of growing up to be big or ugly or fertile.

The Floyd County Animal Shelter does the best it can with not enough resources and way too many critters to take care of. The folks there try — with uneven results — to rectify the cruelty and hard-heartedness of others.

As the spirit of giving overtakes us during the Christmas season, let's not forget the furry babies, the ancestors of which quite likely stood around the babe in the manger halfway across the globe a couple thousand years ago.

The animal shelter workers will do the feeding and the cleaning up if we will be thoughtful enough to buy the food or donate money to buy it with. For less than the cost of many a trinket, a stocking stuffer even, we can sustain a four-legged baby until a big-hearted person chooses to adopt it.

We can all do a lot worse with our money than give it to the animal shelter.

BOOKING

While you've got your wallet out, consider another most worthy project.

Research long ago and recent — as well as common sense — shows that a child who is read to and who reads will do far better in school than the child who does not.

*Bless the

give children we don't know better homes, better parents or better guidance, but we can give them books.

The Storybook Christmas project is sponsored by the Lexington Herald-Leader, International Book Project and WYMT-TV in Hazard to put books in the hands of children in central and eastern Kentucky, including Floyd County. Bookstores in the area co-operate to make the project possible.

Sure, bookstores and newspapers — and even TV stations — have a vested interest in a populace that reads. But so should everyone else. Children who read become better educated adults, and better educated adults become better citizens and better citizens make up progressive, safe, prosperous societies.

You can buy a book for the Storybook Project or make a donation at Read-more Books in Prestonsburg or Pikeville and at Words 'n Stuff in Van Lear or Words II in Paintsville.

911, ANOTHER ILL-CONCEIVED IDEA

When the Floyd County Fiscal Court announced a few weeks ago that the 911 system was "on line," I stated that such a claim would gag a maggot off a gut wagon. After attending the 911 advisory board meeting on December 2, I realize that I made a terrible understatement. The claim would gag every maggot off of every gut wagon east of the Mississippi River. To face the cold stark reality of the situation, we are worse off than we were before the 911 system was ever started.

After about 110 months and hundreds of thousands of dollars spent, the only visible and acknowledged improvement is that we are able to dial an easy-to-remember three-digit number instead of the previous seven-digit number to reach the Pikeville Police Post. Again, this is no more than "call forwarding" which was already available to county telephones, as was pre-set automatic emergency number dialing from a single button on the telephone. Thus the "easy-to-remember" 911 number appears to be like a poorly written book; it is simply not worth the candle.

Nothing else works in the system. Or is even remotely close to working at an acceptable level of efficiency. Or of being at an acceptable standard to go "on-line." The county has not been mapped for the 911 system. The owner of the company performing this task died, and his heirs are apparently closing the company down (i.e. going out of business.) So there is no date certain, not even reasonably certain, when the county 911 maps will be completed, or who will complete them. From memory we have started over six (6) times on the county mapping for the 911. Perhaps the seventh time will be lucky for us. So for another year we are back on square one. When you call the 911 dispatcher, you must tell them who you are, where you live, and give them some prominent landmark so the police or fire department can find you. So look up and down your road or street for well-known landmarks such as funeral homes; churches or Dairy Queens.

Floyd County has 399 square miles of land, thousands of miles of roads and hundreds of un-named creeks, hollers, lanes, and simply roads going up a hillside. Less than one-tenth of one percent of these roads, etc., have 911 road signs. Some houses have been numbered, but the emergency people or police must be able to find your road before they can find your house. The fire department can probably see your fire from the main road. But if your assailant is a robber or rapist, pray that he is a friendly understanding one that will let you send a family member out to the main road to direct the police to your house.

However, the roadsigns probably represent an icon of the true condition of the Floyd County 911 system. A local gas company gave the county used gas pipe for the street and road signs.

About two out of five pagers will respond to a call from the dispatcher. At other times, every pager responds to signals not sent by the dispatcher. Weather and high winds affect their operation. The pagers are considered junk by most of the firemen.

It goes on and on; but most of our people know what is going on. After about 110 months and hundreds of thousands of dollars, virtually nothing has been accomplished.

But perhaps the 911 system may have a deeper symbolic meaning...Perhaps Floyd County is not capable of self-government. At least the present election process does not produce men and women capable of managing the county efficiently and honestly.

The 911 system simply joins a long line of ill-conceived, poorly planned and poorly executed projects such as Thunder Ridge; RND, and the Solid Waste facility. We need to find a better way.

GIFT DOESN'T HAVE TO COST MONEY

Editor:

A young person wrote me: "Christmas is coming up. My mother and father are divorced. She and I live together. I have no brothers or sisters. I would like to get her something really nice. She has a lot of nice things so it would be hard for me to decide on what to get her. I have one other problem. I'm broke. I can't afford to get her anything. I do love her a lot and she loves me. What could I get her that she would really like? It has to be something really low priced. Don't use my name."

I answered: "We live in a very materialistic society where things are important. We wrongly believe we must buy expensive gifts to make someone happy. Not so. When I was thirteen years old I had no money and my mother's birthday was the next day. I didn't know what to do. In desperation I wrote an eight line poem to her. It was about how I love her and need her. I wrote it neatly and gave it to her in an envelope. She kept and cherished that short poem until the day she died, some fifty years later.

"Your gift does not have to be something you buy. Try a poem, from your heart."

WRITER BRINGS MOTHER ON 'BITTERSWEET JOURNEY'

Editor:

Recently, I brought my mother, Georgia Salisbury Davis, home to the hills for the last time. It was a bittersweet journey, one I had long known I would have to make.

Mother was born and raised in Floyd County (as was I), but she had been in Louisville over nine years so that I could keep watch. I was worried that she would be forgotten and that few would find their way to the Nelson-Frazier Funeral Home for the wake and the funeral. Still, it was unthinkable not to bring her home to the land of our people — to Martin.

Her home, high on a hill, looks over the trees across Highway 23 and the railroad tracks at the Nelson-Frazier Funeral Home and onto the valley where family members have lived so long. This is the land she most dearly loved surrounded by her most beloved people.

I can even read the Drudge Report. It has gotten a bad name, but it certainly has some good links.

Ryan gets upset with me. He says, "All this material to choose from on the World Wide Web and Daddy reads Time, Newsweek, and the newspapers."

I also like the idea that the computer tells me that I have misspelled words or written a sentence that no one could possibly

Computations

ble understand, but I really don't need a computer for that — Pam Shingler tells me that all the time.

In fact, the spell checker can cause as much trouble as it prevents. Occasionally, Pam will say, "Willie, the Floyd County School System is overstaffed, not overstuffed" or "The mayor of Martin is Alan Whicker, not Alan Whiskers."

Another time she said, "Willie, PCC is accepting gifts, not fits."

Sometimes I will write a sentence with a misplaced modifier (and I used to be an English teacher) such as "A pen was lost by a man filled with green ink."

There's an upside to this: Pam always gets a laugh out of these Lulu's.

The various computer programs have wizards that do everything for the user. That's the part that scares me. Will it come to the point where we don't have to think for ourselves, and will all reports and publication layouts look almost identical?

The Teachers' Retirement System has already told me that I have to use direct deposit. I know this saves money and lessens the chance of checks being misplaced, but I did enjoy visiting with the people at Guaranty, then Trans Financial, then Star, and soon to be The FirstStar.

(Heck, I looked forward to doing banking for no other reason than to find out what the name was for that month).

Linda told me she liked to see her check and feel it in her hands. I believed her all these years. Turns out she had the check come directly to her, so we would have to go to the bank and, of course, we would have to eat out. One more time she didn't have to cook. She's against direct deposit.

When I do call a bank or other business, I get a recording that goes something like this: If you are asking about IRAs, push number 1; if you are asking about checking account, push number 2, and so forth. Why doesn't it ever get around to "If you are calling from Royal Hollow and have no idea what is going on..."

What gets me upset is when I want to purchase something and I have to wait until I have missed the chance to make a fortune on Final Jeopardy before a company finishes my order. Some impersonal voice keeps saying, "Your call is important. Please continue to hold and forget Jeopardy for tonight."

Translated, that means, "We want your money; so hold on until we get our hands on that lovely Master Card number, and then you can watch Jerry Springer for all we care."

I don't let it bother me. I didn't want them to love me or to consider me important in the first place. All I wanted was to

Jerry's Food Mart loses WIC rights

Times Staff Report

A Grethel store has been disqualified from participating in the Supplemental Food Program for Women, Infants and Children (WIC) for the second time in four years.

Jerry's Food Mart was recently cited by the Department for Public Health for charging for food not received, charging more than the current retail market price for WIC food items and charging for food not authorized for WIC.

The store, which is owned by Jerry Kidd, was previously cited for charging for food not received in 1995, according to Ruthanne Boyles, vendor management section supervisor with Public Health.

Boyles said the department uses undercover investigators to make "compliance buys" to see if store owners are complying with WIC rules.

ment, dated last Friday, said the current disqualification was effective Nov. 13. Since this is the second offense, the store cannot participate in WIC until the year 2000.

Boyles said the department uses undercover investigators to make "compliance buys" to see if store owners are complying with WIC rules.

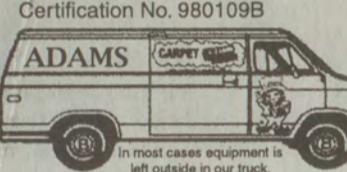

WIC is a federally-funded program that provides nutrition counseling and specific foods high in protein, iron and vitamin C to low income pregnant women, new mothers, infants and children through age 4. With vouchers from local health departments, women can buy food from authorized stores.

withdrawing the motion and stopping any action on the matter. This way, future commissioners would be able to deal with the road problem.

Commissioner Cindy Parsons suggested that since the road was not going to be closed, the city should begin work on cleaning up the garbage and improve the road. The commission agreed to call county officials for help in the matter. At present the commission is not sure who is responsible for upkeep of the road.

Jerome Kinzer asked to speak on the road matter. He said he had property in the area served by the road and suggested the road be left open, repaired, and upgraded.

Kinzer continued the discussion and said the portion of town where he lives, Henton Hollow, "does not receive any services that other residents do." He said he cut the weeds along the road in his area.

Kinzer said some years earlier he obtained the signatures of 90 percent of the citizens of Allen to have the city unincorporated. Since the city was in debt at the time, nothing could be done about the matter.

Bill Parsons reminded Kinzer that city patrolman Virgil Conn patrols that part of town on a regular basis.

Kinzer asked what could be done about removing the corporation status now that the city had no debt obligations.

Both Bill Parsons and Mayor Sharon Woods said the city had made great progress. "It is no accident that the city is debt-free. We have worked hard to get the city debt-free," said Parsons.

Kinzer said he had not paid his taxes the last few years because he learned that 95 percent of the residents do not pay taxes.

Parsons said he is the city clerk and not a tax collector. He said he would accept any money paid and deposit it for the city but would not go out and become a tax collector. Parsons and Woods said they paid their taxes.

Marshall said the city did not have the kind of authority to collect taxes that the county has.

Woods told Kinzer to bring any concerns about the matter before the commission for consideration. Bill Parsons reminded the group that obtaining signatures was the first step in getting the matter on the ballot for voting. Changing the status of the city cannot be accomplished by obtaining signatures, but by ballot.

Unattended dogs have become a problem for the city. Marshall offered a possible solution for this problem. He said a new rule would go into effect at the start of the new year that would require owners to license their dogs. The money would allow the county to hire an animal control officer to deal with such problems.

In the meantime the commission plans to contact county officials to see what can be done about the problem until the first of the year.

The next meeting will be Tuesday, Dec. 15.

Journey

As a courtesy to our friends in Louisville, we had a short wake there before heading to Floyd County. I could hardly wait to get on the road; I was homesick for the hills, for the soft, slow mountain voices of my people, and for the sometimes mournful and beautiful church music of my childhood. I wanted to lie under the trees in the warm, dusty mountain earth to heal my pain.

I wanted to see Floyd County's green hills of late August. I wanted to eat cornbread and soup beans.

I wanted to sit on my mother's porch and talk to her and my grandmother long gone from this world. I wanted to bury my grief and my homesickness in the faces of my hometown.

I was not disappointed. Over 120 people from Martin and Floyd County came to pay their respects to my little mother during the two days that we spent at home. Your presence and the many lovely silk and fragrant, live floral arrangements reinforced my value for my heritage and homeland. My thanks go to all of you who came, sent flowers, and sent written cards. I believe Mother knew you dear and precious people were there for her and for all of us who lost her.

We were especially appreciative of the Sheriff's Department for their escort to the cemetery. Your somber presence saw to it that Mother's last ride was regal. Our thanks extend to the minister and the choir of the Martin Church of Christ as well as to Sandra and others at Nelson-Frazier Funeral Home.

We thank the pallbearers: Steve Allen, Bobby Hicks, Franklin D. "Sambo" Salisbury, Bruce David Salisbury, Jim Bush, and Jamie Bush, her only grandson. You carried your precious cargo straight up the steep ridge at Davidson Memorial Gardens. What a lovely gift each of you gave by carrying my mother. As you lifted her, you lifted me, also.

Yes, technology is wonderful, but every so often I like to talk to a real person or buy something and get back real change in the form of bill and coins. Besides, how can you haggle with a computer or other machines about prices?

Do you read children's books? Well, try some — you'll like them. Linda gave me one the other night entitled You Are Special. A nice little story about wooden people, but the message behind the story is the important thing. Get the book, read it to your children and talk about the message.

POET'S CORNER

Summer's end

by Delia Mays

The summer has passed and autumn is here.
Listen, my friends, and you will hear,
The crunch of the leaves,
As they fall from the trees—
We see them float down, red, yellow and brown
And crunch under our feet as they rest on the ground
The frosty bright morning so crisp, cool and clear
The beautiful fall colors, it's the best time of year.
The squirrels rush around, stocking their nest—
With nuts to last through the long winter's rest.
Soon Jack Frost will be on his way,
He will arrive here most any day.

Thank You!

State Rep.-elect attends seminar

Less than a month after winning his first term as a state representative, Ira Branham joined 25 other newly elected members of the Kentucky General Assembly for a three-day orientation last week.

"Like starting at a new school, there are a lot of new faces to learn," said Rep.-elect Branham, whose 94th Legislative District covers Pike and Floyd counties. "But everyone has been extremely helpful, making the transition much easier."

The orientation—held at the state Capitol and the adjoining Capitol Annex, where legislative meeting rooms and offices are located—is designed to give new legislators an overview of the General Assembly's inner workings. Leaders in both the House and Senate offer their insights, while other officials explain exactly how the legislative branch of government operates.

New members will have only a few weeks to absorb the training before they, and the rest of the General Assembly, convene on Jan.

5, for an organizational session, when leadership is chosen and members are assigned to their committees for the next two years.

Branham already has somewhat of a head start, having previously served as a legislative intern, and having worked for House Majority Floor Leader Greg Stumbo and Gov. Paul Patton while he was Pike County judge-executive.

"I'm really interested in issues relating to tourism, economic development and increased funding for our basic infrastructure," said Branham. "Beyond that, I hope to serve on committees that focus on funding in these areas."

"Ira will be a great addition to the General Assembly," House Speaker Jody Richards said. "He will bring a lot of expertise on consumer and coal-related issues and will be a force for bringing even more progress to the mountains."

"We have a little more than a year before the 2000 Regular Session," Rep.-elect Branham said. "Based on what the past-several days have been like, I'm really looking forward to serving the people of the 94th district."

"A SPECIAL THANKS"

During our wife and mother's illness and passing, many friends and family helped us in numerous ways. Our lives are filled with many good people, but for the last months of mom's life, she was cared for and loved by a very special group of people. We felt a need to publicly express our appreciation, our thanks, and our love for those special people because they loved mom and cared for her as if she were their own. Of all the people that we thank and appreciate during these last months, our sincerest and deepest appreciation we extend to the staff of Riverview Manor Nursing Home. They all are special people and we can never, ever thank them enough for the love that they showed mom. Never during the months that mom was at Riverview, did we ever experience, see, or hear a negative act or word. Every aspect of care there was excellent.

The staff is very well trained, very professional, and most importantly, very caring. Mom loved each and everyone of them, and they loved her. Thank God for such a haven. We wish that we could somehow repay those special friends, but never could we say thank you enough to express the love that we feel for all of them.

We Truly Love You!

Card of Thanks

We send our heartfelt thanks to so many family and friends for all the kindness extended to us and our loved one during her time of sickness and passing. We especially thank all those who sent flowers, food, cards, those who came to be with us, and those who called. We would like to thank each and everyone personally, but there are so many that it would be impossible. We certainly appreciate Dr. Alan Hyden for his excellent medical care, but more importantly for his compassion and concern for mother and us. We thank Nelson-Frazier Funeral Home and their staff for the beautiful and dignified memorial service. We thank Floyd County Deputy, Rick Newsome, and Allen Policeman, Virgil Conn, for their assistance in traffic control. Our love and thanks go to our precious Pastor Dan Heintzelman, his wife, Sylvia, and special friend, Rev. Jim Stephens and his wife, Sharon. We could not have endured this sad time were it not for the prayers of our church family, and we truly appreciate and love them. We want to extend a special thanks for the pallbearers, both active and honorary. There are so many special friends and family that have done so much, and we really do love and appreciate all of you.

Thank You

We, the family of Cosby Bolen, of Hueytown, take time to thank each and every one for the kindness and love displayed during the passing of one of the most precious persons in our life. We thank the friends and neighbors for helping in so many different ways. To those who came by during visitation and services at the funeral home, for the abundance of beautiful flowers, to those who brought food and helped prepare dinner after the services. For the many prayers that were spoken on our behalf. We thank Ondie Wireman, Bill Tussey and Earl Miller for the heartwarming messages. Mom loved you all so much. To the special singers for a beautiful job. To the Floyd County deputy sheriff for escorting us to the cemetery. To Jack Salyers and Hall Funeral Home for being so attentive and understanding and making us feel like family. We hold dear in our hearts, all who remembered us and helped in any way during this sad time.

GOSPEL ACCORDING TO ME

The wall between life and death is thin indeed

I nearly died before I was born. My mother had difficulty delivering me, my parents say.

By the time I'd struggled down the birth canal and finally poked my head into the bright light of this world, my skull was mashed grotesquely.

The first time my dad saw me he wept, thinking I was permanently disfigured.

This took place in Pulaski County in 1956, a place and a time in which no medical specialists were available to negotiate such emergencies.

The small-town doctor who presided over my delivery simply said to my mother, as they regarded my misshapen head, "John Henry had a hard time."

Fortunately I was resilient, as are many newborns. My skull soon righted itself into a more-or-less normal shape.

My brother wasn't as lucky. By 1960, we had moved to another little Kentucky town. Again my mom went into labor, and again the birth proved treacherous.

My mom was unable to deliver this baby at all. The young general practitioner attending her waited too long to perform a Caesarian section.

My brother - his name was Timothy Edward - smothered in our mom's womb. Otherwise, he was a flawless infant, a fat, pretty baby.

In the funeral home, I touched his tiny fingers, and asked my dad why the baby's hand was so cold.

It wouldn't occur to me for decades to ask myself, or God, or the wind, why I'd survived and

Paul Prather

Timothy hadn't.

In my 42 years, I've come close to dying or suffering disabling injuries more than 20 other times that I know of - in car wrecks, in a horseback-riding accident, by violence, in a near-fall from a high bridge, twice by almost drowning, twice by narrowly escaping electrocution.

Through some fluke I'm still here and still standing, and I don't know why, really.

Recently I helped officiate at the funeral of a 37-year-old man, the father of a teenage girl about my son's age. He collapsed one evening at an auto auction. By the next morning he was dead of an aneurysm.

Within days of that tragedy, University of Kentucky football player Jason Watts, 21, was driving two friends down a Pulaski County highway when his pickup veered off the road and flipped, injuring him badly and killing both his buddies.

Watts has been charged with drunken driving and two counts of second-degree manslaughter.

Like many preachers' kids, I embarked on a lengthy rebellion during my high school and college days.

Once, in high school, three friends and I skipped classes and headed for the next county to buy beer.

Then we drove around all afternoon drinking ourselves into oblivion, mostly confining our itinerary to crooked one-lane country roads so we could avoid cops.

The driver, drunk as a lord, started speeding. We popped over a hill and found a cement truck parked horizontally across the road, blocking our path.

We were traveling 60 miles an hour when we hit it.

Our car ricocheted off the truck, careened up an embankment, hurtled across a yard, flew downward over a second embankment and passed through a stand of trees.

We came to rest on the same road we'd been knocked off of around the next curve.

Our car was totaled. All four of us guys walked away unscratched.

I've wondered, Why did we escape?

Front-line soldiers who return home alive from wars often go crazy from asking themselves that same question. It's called "survivors' guilt," I think.

There isn't any clear explanation, for me or anyone else. Some people die early and others live on. That's just how the cosmos works.

Maybe it's predestination. Maybe I've been spared because of the prayers of my long-suffering parents. Maybe it's all plain, dumb luck.

Ask me on five successive days and I'll give you five different answers.

But this much I've learned for sure: There are few guarantees. The wall that separates any of us from the hereafter is thinner than a communion wafer. We each should be prepared to break through it at any moment.

Betsy Layne falls hard to Harrison

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

Coach Mike Reitz and his Harrison County Thoroughbreds did not show any Christmas cheer to Tim Rice and the Betsy Layne Bobcats last Thursday in the opening round of the Johnson Central Invitational.

Harrison County posted a 79-50 win over Betsy Layne to advance to the semifinals of the tournament.

Scott Collins scored 18 points to lead Betsy Layne while Adam Tackett added 11 points. Nathan Courtney led all scorers with 26 points for Harrison County. Joe Daniels netted 17. A 12-2 run to close out the first quarter for Harrison County gave them a 22-11 first quarter lead. The score was tied at 2 before Harrison rolled out to a 6-2 lead. With 4:21 to play in the first, Tackett completed an old-fashioned three-point play to pull the Bobcats to within one, 8-7. But long jumpers by Courtney put the Thoroughbreds up 12-7. Two consecutive treys by Jacob Fowler, who finished with eight points, vaulted Harrison County out to a 18-9 advantage.

A 7-1 run by Harrison County to start the second period resulted in a 29-12 lead that Betsy Layne could not overcome.

The Bobcats trailed 45-32 when the two teams went to the locker room at the half. The Bobcats did cut the margin to 13 points, 36-23, on a layup by Michael Gross.

Greenup edges Prestonsburg in JC Invitational

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

It was a game of comebacks for both the Prestonsburg Blackcats and Greenup County Musketeers last week in the Johnson Central Tip-Off Classic in Paintsville.

It was the Musketeers who made the final comeback that resulted in a 54-53 win over the Blackcats, who suffered their first loss of the season.

Prestonsburg entered the final quarter nursing a precarious 43-40 advantage until Greenup County outscored the Blackcats 14-10 in the fourth period to pull out the one point victory.

Prestonsburg had rallied in the third quarter from a 10-point half time deficit, 34-24, to outscore Greenup County 19-6 in the third period.

Greenup led 15-12 after the first period and went on a 19-12 second quarter spurt that netted them the 10-point halftime lead.

Greenup County had built a 40-30 lead midway of the third period only to see the Blackcats claw their way back into the game. The Musketeers went almost seven minutes in the third period without a score as Prestonsburg ran off 16 unanswered points to take a 46-40 lead on two Kalen Harris free throws.

Junior Nathan Sutton took matters into his own hands and went on a personal 7-2 run as he brought his team back to within one point, 48-

47. His jumper with just under four minutes to play, made it 49-48, again a one-point difference.

The lead kept changing hands in the final four minutes as both clubs battled for the final lead. The Musketeers took a 51-50 lead with just over a minute to play but Prestonsburg's Nathan Leslie missed two free throws that could have given Prestonsburg the lead.

Greenup County went down and scored to lead 53-50 but John Ortega made it a one-point game again by connecting on two charity tosses from the foul line for a 53-52 game with under 40 seconds to play.

Greenup County's Chris Youngman hit the front end of a two-shot foul to extend the lead to 54-52.

Prestonsburg's Leslie was fouled when he pulled down a rebound. He went to the line and hit the front end of the two-shot foul but missed the second with Greenup County coming up with the rebound and a 54-53 lead. Sutton was fouled with 16 seconds to play. Sutton misfired on the bonus attempts with Prestonsburg coming up with the ball and called a time out with just under 10 seconds remaining. Prestonsburg put the ball in the hands of Ortega after coming out of a timeout but Ortega's long

A LOOK AT SPORTS

Sports,
sports,
sports

What a great place to play basketball!

The Pike County Central gymnasium is a beautiful facility and will be an ideal setting for the boys' 15th Region basketball tournament in March.

I took in the Pike Central Lady Hawk Tip Off Classic over the weekend and what a great tournament it was. Coach Tammy Tussey and her staff did a great job of putting the tournament together and they made you feel at home.

Pike Central won their own tournament, beating a good Belfry team in the championship game. What a great two teams it was that played in the finals.

Floyd Countian, Ashley Melvin, who plays the point for Pike Central, had a very strong game with 21 points. She played against another transplanted Floyd County player, Ramanda Music. Both were teammates on the AAU team that went to the national tournament this past summer.

Coach Johnny Ray Turner has his Johnson Central Eagles flying high and they are off to a 3-0 start after capturing their own Invitational tournament. The Eagles scored 120 points in game one and put 102 on the scoreboard in game two. They won over a good Greenup County team, who beat Harrison County (semifinals), in the championship game.

The Eagles may have something to say about who wins the 57th District this year. That is going to be one tough district again. All four teams are strong — Magoffin, Paintsville, and Sheldon Clark.

Coach Anthony Moore's Allen Central Lady Rebels are playing much better, in spite of losing to a very, very good Perry Central team in the semifinals of the Lady Commodore Classic Friday night. Too much talent here for this team not to play well. Remember last season and the slow start they had that picked up steam and rolled all the way to the regional finals.

Word out of Phelps is that Chris Hurley, big center for the Hornets, has quit the team. If that is true, then mark it down as a big loss for the Hornets team. Hurley will play football at the next level.

After Feds Creek knocked off South Floyd in the Johnson Central Invitational, it caused some coaches to stop and re-evaluate the Vikings. They will be no pushover.

Coach Bill Mike Runyon and the Paintsville Tigers haven't lost a step since the season ended last year. The Tigers are still one of the top, if not the top team, in the region. Fans need to start giving credit to Runyon and admit that he is an excellent coach and doesn't always need the blue chip players to win with.

Until Friday, good sports and be good sports.

Great Game...

Parsons pumps in 20 in 82-53 loss to Belfry

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

For one full quarter, the Betsy Layne Lady Cats played tough Belfry very close. For one full eight minute quarter, the Lady Cats were in it. But as it turned out, the youth corps of coach Cassandra Akers could not stay with the more experienced Lady Pirates in dropping an 82-53 decision. The two teams met in the opening round of the Lady Hawks' Tip-Off Classic at Pike Central on Friday night.

Sophomore Jenny Parsons scored 20 points, a career high, and Sheena Akers added 11 for the Lady Cats.

Hackney led the Lady Pirates with 20 points, hitting three three-point baskets. McCoy netted 17 points.

Belfry led 16-10 after the first quarter with the score tied at 6 before they took a 7-6 lead and never trailed. Betsy Layne committed five turnovers in the first quarter and had 19 for the game.

Down by six, the Lady Cats came unglued in the second quarter as they failed to take care of the basketball. They had 10 second period turnovers that allowed

Johnson Central takes title against Greenup

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

Tommy McKenzie scored 22 points and Jason Shepherd added 21 to lead coach Johnny Ray Turner's Johnson Central Golden Eagles to a 74-54 win over a tough Greenup County Musketeer team in the finals of the Clarence D. Rice Tip-Off Tournament at Johnson Central Saturday evening.

The Eagles hit 30 of 38 free throws en route to the title. Shepherd attempted 14, hitting 13 with McKenzie hitting eight of 11.

The Eagles remained unbeaten in the young season at 4-0.

"We played well," said Coach Turner of his ballclub's performance. "We beat a good team in Greenup County."

Greenup County placed three players in double figures led by Adam Tackett's 15 points.

Shepherd and McKenzie provided all the fire power in the first quarter, but it was Greenup County holding a 16-13 lead at the first stop.

An 18-10 run in the second period gave the Eagles a 31-26 lead at the half. But it was Shepherd's free throw shooting in the quarter that kept the Eagles in front as he hit nine of nine free throws in scoring 11 points.

In the third, it was all Johnson Central as they began to put some distance between them and Greenup County. Jimmy Burchett drained a three-pointer and Brett Butcher hit a trey as Greenup County could only score eight points in the period being outscored 21-8 with Central in front 52-34 after three quarters.

McKenzie scored eight points in the fourth quarter with Johnson Central pulling out the 20-point win and the tournament championship.

JOHNSON CENTRAL VERSUS FEDS CREEK

Johnson Central advanced to the championship game by scoring 102 points, their second 100-plus game of the tournament, in a 102-77 win over a good Feds Creek team. Mitchell Coleman tossed in 21 points to lead five players in double figures. McKenzie added 15 in the game with Shepherd, Rick O'Bryan, and Dock Johnson scoring 11 points apiece.

Carl Sizemore scored 23 to lead Feds Creek with Josh Varney netting 13 points. Gene Justice finished with 18 points.

GREENUP COUNTY VERSUS HARRISON COUNTY

Greenup County reached the title game with a 51-44 edging of Harrison County in a semifinal game.

Adam Tackett scored 22 points to lead the Musketeers scoring. Nathan Sutton tossed in 14.

Jacob Fowler led the Thoroughbreds with 18 points, including four three-point baskets, and Nathan Courtney was held to just 11. Billy Custard netted 12 points with a three-point basket.

Greathouse

Erica Roberts hit the back-end of a two-shot foul that gave Leslie County a four-point, 52-48 lead with 11 seconds to play. Prestonsburg found Greathouse open on the right side of the key and fed her the ball where she lofted a three-point attempt that found the bottom of the net, but she was fouled on the play. Coming out of a timeout, Greathouse sank the free throw, completing the three-point play that tied the game at 52 with five seconds to play, and sent the contest into overtime.

Leslie County had the first possession in the extra period as they controlled the ball on the jump ball situation. Wilson scored first to give Leslie County the lead at 54-52, but Stephanie Adams found an open lane and drove the middle to tie the game at 54. After a Roberts' free throw gave Leslie the lead at 55-54, Prestonsburg went in front on a layup by senior Kimi Nunnery, who opened up her offense in the overtime. Consecutive turnovers and four of five free throws shot by Greathouse and Nunnery gave Prestonsburg a 60-55 lead.

Prestonsburg had to overcome some sloppy ball handling in the game to pull out the win. The Lady Blackcats turned the ball over 31 times in the game to Leslie County's 20 miscues.

The Lady Blackcats missed some uncontested close in shots, but that didn't seem to bother the Prestonsburg coach.

"We did. We missed a lot of shots we should have made. But I thought our defense really set the pace for the game," said Coach Crisp.

The game plan was to stop Leslie County's Miss Basketball candidate, Jodi Sizemore, and she was held to just 16 points before she fouled out with 2:12 to play in the fourth quarter. Coach Crisp credited his assistant coach, Bobby Hamilton for coming up with the defense on Sizemore.

"We shut Sizemore down and that is what we really wanted to do," said Coach Crisp. "Coach Hamilton came to me the other day in practice and said, 'Coach, let's look at this defense. It was a triangle and it looked good in practice and we thought we would try it. It did a great job. I have to give a lot of credit to him for that.'

The Prestonsburg bench played a big part in the victory, especially the younger players.

"Stephanie Adams came in and did a good job for us. Ashley Ousley came off the bench and gave a good minute or two," said Crisp. "Brooke Coleman (sophomore) did an excellent job of blocking out and rebounding. She is our reverse player we get the ball back to and she kind of kept the tempo to the way we wanted it because we didn't really want to run with this team early because we were afraid that Sizemore would get out and burn us."

The Prestonsburg coach said the team's three-point shooting needed to pick up.

"Shelly is shooting the ball well from there, but we need others to pick up their shots also," he said. "With the exception of the turnovers, I was well pleased with the way we played."

Prestonsburg lost their center, Amelia Conley, Coleman and Brandi Wells to fouls, but still Prestonsburg played hard.

"We didn't want anyone to quit after those three fouled out," said the Prestonsburg three-point attempt at the horn fell short and the Cats fell to the Musketeers 54-53.

Ortega led Prestonsburg with 14 points while Campbell tossed in 11 points and Jason Keathley finished with 10. Leslie netted seven. Russ Music totaled six points and Harris finished with five.

In a stat that doesn't seem to match with the game, Greenup

County only attempted five free throws in the contest, hitting on two. Prestonsburg on the other hand, connected on 11 of 21 tries.

Prestonsburg hit four three point baskets with Ortega connecting twice from the 19' 9" circle. Harris and Music had one apiece.

Prestonsburg falls to 1-1 on the season and visits at Magoffin County Saturday night.

SPORTS IN KENTUCKY

Penn State and Kentucky. A football natural on New Year's Day. Nittany Lions and Big Blue. JoPa and the new kid. Old school tough defense against broadway offense.

Best part? Penn State's old tradition fans versus UK crazies. Thousands and thousands of them will travel I-75 to Tampa. They've earned it.

The matchup is football perfect and the Outback Bowl people wanting Kentucky over Georgia was a no-brainer. Tim Couch, in Hal Mumme's offense, makes a circus and bowl people know the music Nittany Lions will be favored naturally. But what delicious possibilities.

The news is all good for Kentucky. A bowl game squarely in the middle of New Year's Day's traffic television jam to keep football in the headlines. Extra practice reps deep into winter for younger Wildcats. And action in the pipeline. Recruiting coordinator Claude Bassett has the best kind of ammunition to lob into living room conversations with prospects about upwardly mobile Kentucky football. BT. Honest to heavens New Year's Day bowl talk.

SEGREGATION U. TO MODEL CITIZEN

From a reputation of Segregation U. in the 1950s and '60s, to Cheater U. in the 1970s-80s, on to a toughened discipline policy for athletes, and alcohol use by student-athletes and elimination of alcohol advertising, the University of Kentucky revenue sports have evolved into NCAA Model Citizen U. as we near the millennium.

Certainly UK has two no-nonsense coaches who are making Kentucky worthy of a new report to balance Sports Illustrated's 1992 Kentucky Shame cover.

Feisty and worthy of imitation, pencil in Hal Mumme and Tubby Smith. Applying discipline (this time to Jonas Liening), Mumme shunned alibis and demonstrated clarity and even-handedness at the football house. That is, be fair and reasonable to a point, but step over the line and you're out. No ifs, ands or buts.

Also, Mumme's pragmatic views on Tim Couch's staying or going pro was clear. "If you look at it as a 15-year deal, he will make a lot of money no matter how you cut it," the coach said at a press conference. "It isn't so much about money as what will be his legacy and what will be the best way to leave a legacy."

Couch might one day run for high office (see Scotty Baesler, Jim Bunning, Jack Kemp, J.C. Watts).

Meanwhile, Tubby Smith was just as tough-love practical last week with pouty Myron Anthony and chip-on-his-shoulder Jamaal Magloire. By week's end Anthony was gone and Smith wasted no time getting in Magloire's face when the moody center reacted childishly after being removed from the Kansas game. Smith pointed out that NBA scouts are watching Magloire's attitude as much as his play.

POINTS OF VIEW DEPT

Tim Couch, leaving for the NFL or staying at UK for his senior year? We have heard from NFL ratings experts and media analysts and Wildcats coach Hal Mumme. Here are two random views from Tennessee fans who got to enjoy Peyton Manning for an extra season?

Arnold Tarpley, Cleveland, Tenn. (RockyVol58@aol.com): "Peyton's staying was a great thing. Forsaking the instant gratification of money for another go round was something that should speak volumes to young athletes. It showed that the fun factor should not be ignored, (an emphasis on) how to enjoy the moment. Plus he earned the everlasting gratitude of all Tennessee faithful for coming back and giving us a tremendous season to enjoy. And a springboard to where we are now."

"As far as Couch going or staying it's a matter of — is he happy (weighed against) concern about injury. (Obviously) Kentucky would benefit from his staying, and he would benefit from the (added) experience (of another year in college)."

Craig Rubright, Smyrna Tenn. (Rubright69@aol.com): "Personally I would stay in school for the extra year. It would give (Couch) another year of experience before pro ball, not to mention completing (his) education. All it takes is one wrong hit or move and the whole football career could be finished forever. So it would be good to have the education to fall back on."

"But when you look at how Peyton was treated at some point in the season by some sports writers, and the Heisman situation, you have to wonder if staying is a bad idea. I think Tim should play another year. But with the way the world of sports is (today) it may not be beneficial to him in the national spotlight."

HEISMAN BALLOT

Sentiment aside, the man from Texas has earned the Heisman Trophy. As he demonstrated against Nebraska and Texas A&M, Williams has been college football's best in 1998, and a laudable role model as well. Let's hope money and NFL braggadocio don't ruin the young man.

My ballot was in the mail last week. 1. Ricky Williams, Texas; 2. Tim Couch, Kentucky; Michael Bishop, Kansas State.

Couch is the best football player the Commonwealth has ever produced. All things considered, the package. But 1999 should be Tim Couch's coming out year. Meanwhile, Bishop was the clear leader marching his team to an unbeaten regular season and No. 1 ranking barely five years after K-State was branded as the worst college football team in America.

COUCH & REX CHAPMAN
Gauging Tim Couch's impact on football in Kentucky, indeed the magnetism of his personality on our state, one's thoughts go back to Rex Chapman.

From the time Owensboro native and Apollo graduate signed with Kentucky, he became a teen idol. Chapman lived up to the hype too. Fans in the state became so smitten with his basketball skills, instincts, on-court presence, hearts were broken when Chapman turned his back on Kentucky after two years.

"I tried to talk Rex out of jumping to the pros," Dan Issel told Jamie Vaught in Cats Up Close. "I told him even after playing 15 years of professional basketball, my four favorite of basketball are the four years that I spent at UK. I tried to talk him into staying, but the money is too big now."

Now Tim Couch arrives at the same crossroads.

To those of us on the outside, certainly with no financial stake, it is infinitely easier to be sentimental and speak of loyalty and "he needs another year." But these are the '90s, an era when big money speaks loudest.

'CATS UP CLOSE' IS CHRISTMAS GIFT IDEA

If you or a friend is a UK basketball fan then Cats Up Close (McClanahan Publishing), Jamie Vaught's latest work, is worth your consideration. A nice collection of interviews with former UK players, including Dan Issel, Jack Givens, Mark Pope, Travis Ford and Tony Delk. Vaught also offers chapters on Deron & father Allen Feldhaus, Cameron & father Terry Mills, and Derek Anderson & uncle George Williams. Too, there are chapters on coach Tubby Smith and Florida's Billy Donovan, and broadcaster Tom Hammond.

If UK basketball is your thing, Vaught's book is a good read. More information, check your local bookstore or telephone McClanahan Publishing 1-800-544-6959.

BITS 'N PEOPLE

✓ Tribute to coaching: With the heavyweight usual suspects at the top of Kentucky's coaching lists (Highlands, Danville, Mayfield and Louisville Male), AP's Kentucky coach of the year is Caldwell County's Pat Gates.

✓ KHSAA Hall of Fame basketball coach Delmas Gish died last week at 90. Gish coached Central City to 407 victories and six trips to the Sweet 16 from 1942-58 including a runner-up finish to Ralph Beard-led Male High in the State Tournament in 1945. "Mr. Gish was a great motivator," Richard Deavers, sports editor of the Times-Argus says, recalling a time in 1945 when Harlan's Wah Jones told reporters, the only way Central City could defeat the Green Dragons was if they played "...in that little crackerbox gym of theirs." Gish kept the news clip and showed it to his players before Central City played Harlan in the State Tournament semi-finals. The Golden Tide defeated Harlan 34-30.

Footnote: Central City had two players on the all-state tournament team W.C. Mobberly and Bobby Watkins.

PARTING SHOT

Former UK star Rex Chapman said a mouthful last week when commenting on the NBA lockout. "This league could go on without me. It'd go on without Michael Jordan. And this life will go on without NBA basketball."

And so it goes.

Carter adds second team

It may be that the best bet to make your race team competitive in Winston Cup racing is by adding a second team to your operation. This past week another single car owner bought into that line of thought and announced that he would be fielding a second team for the 1999 season.

Travis Carter, who is the owner of the Team Winston Ford driven by Jimmy Spencer, announced he will be joining forces with former Winston Cup owner Carl Haas to form a second team to compete on the circuit next season. Carter had been rumored all season to be looking to add a second team for next season, but had problems in securing sponsorship for a second team.

By teaming with Haas, Carter will enjoy a lucrative sponsorship package from Kmart. Haas is co-owner of the Newman-Hass Indy car team in the CART FedEx Championship Series. He has been associated with Kmart for more than a decade in that series.

Haas formerly was partners with Michael Kranefuss as owners of the team that fielded Ford's for driver Jeremy Mayfield. Their Fords were sponsored by Kmart, but when Hass sold his interest prior to the start of the season to Roger Penske, Kmart's role with the team fell from primary sponsor to that of an associate sponsor.

Three-time NASCAR Winston Cup Series champion, Darrell Waltrip, will drive the car which will carry the number 66 and the name of the hood will actually read "Big Kmart." The number will be as foreign to Waltrip as will the make of car itself. Waltrip's remarkable career can always be traced back to Chevrolet and the bulk of that time the number on the side of the car was 17.

The three-year deal puts Waltrip in the seat of the Haas-Carter Motorsports Ford through the year 2,000, when it is anticipated he will stage a "farewell tour." The team will be housed adjacent to Travis Carter Enterprises' Team Winston Operation in Statesville, N.C.

The deal on paper looks to be one that could very easily benefit all the parties involved. For Carter it's the opportunity to add the second team that he feels deeply may be the last piece of the puzzle that he needs to put together to make his driver, Jimmy Spencer a threat at any track.

Carter wants to win as much as any owner on the circuit and it is sometimes overlooked that he has plenty of experience in a Winston Cup victory lane. After beginning his Winston Cup career as a "gopher" for L.G. DeWitt in 1971 by doing everything from mopping floors to fabrication, he moved up the ladder to crew chief.

In 1973 DeWitt named him crew chief for his young driver, Benny Parsons. All this two did was to go on and claim the '73 Winston Cup championship by 67 points over Cale Yarborough. Five years later, Carter joined with Yarborough and owner Junior Johnson and keyed that team's NASCAR Winston Cup title run.

He also worked with Bobby Allison, Harry Gant, and Rick Mast before becoming an owner on the series for the first time in 1990. During that time he posted 31 career Winston Cup victories as crew chief and 41 poles.

His first stint as an owner only lasted a little over two years and was constantly being haunted by a lack of sponsorship dollars. He returned to the sport in 1994 after forming the Smokin' Joe's Racing team and celebrated his first victory, at the Winston Open in 1996.

Carter has quietly put together a team that is close to breaking through to one of those teams that has to be considered a threat anytime the green flag drops to start a race. Despite missing two races due to injuries, Spencer finished a respectable 14th in the standings in 1998. The Winston team has had one of the top restrictor-plate programs in the series in recent years, and posted an 8.25 average finish at Daytona and Talladega this season.

The Kmart team will be built completely new from the ground up. The new team will use equipment and a race shop bought from David Blair, who hasn't fielded a team in the series since 1996. Blair did work with Robert Yates to field a car for Kenny Irwin in 1997. The two provided Irwin with a ride in order to gain some seat time as he prepared for his run at the rookie of the year honors this past season.

Winston Cup is a sport that offers very few guarantees to its participants, but the feeling is that while Waltrip may not visit victory lane again before he retires, this new team is one of the very few first-year teams that could help decide the outcome of a race or two.

Belfry to race out to a 44-18 lead at the half.

Betsy Layne turned the ball over on their first five possessions of the second period as Belfry began to pull away, building a 29-10 lead with 13 unanswered points.

Betsy Layne put together a spurt of their own with just over three minutes to play in the period. A rebound basket four of six free throw shooting pulled the Lady Cats to within 13 of the Lady Pirates but that was as close as they could get.

Betsy Layne took better care of the basketball in the second half but the shots would not fall as Belfry widened their lead and slowly put distance between them and the Lady Cats. Belfry led 61-33 after three quarters.

Amanda Hall finished with eight points for Betsy Layne. Heather Hamilton and Leslie Hopkins tossed in four points each. Susan Maynard, Devon Reynolds and Amber Roberts scored two points each.

Magoffin County edges Betsy Layne as season opens

Tackett scores 21 in 74-70 setback

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

Last year, one thing you would not see was the Betsy Layne Bobcats' basketball team pressing the opposing team. But that all changed this year when coach Tim Rice found out that his bench just got longer and he could substitute more often.

"I have confidence in the players we have back this season," said the Betsy Layne coach. "I'm not afraid to put them in the game."

Magoffin County, a team that likes to press but doesn't like to be pressed, found the Bobcats' pressure defense annoying at times, but it would be Hornets, on their home court, pulling away with a 74-70 win over the visiting Bobcats Tuesday night as the two teams officially opened their high school season.

"We had a chance to tie the game in the final seconds but missed, having the ball stripped away under the basket," Rice said.

The play found the Bobcats down 71-70 and with the ball as the clock was clicking down. Tackett was spotted under the basket all alone. When the pass entered the pair area, a Magoffin County defender circled in front of Tackett for the steal.

"We had to foul them and they beat us four points," said Rice. "We played a good game. We should have won but overall we played well."

Tackett scored 21 points to lead the Bobcats in their season opener. He also pulled down 12 rebounds. Scott Collins added 15 points and had eight caroms. Anthony Tackett scored five points but pulled in six rebounds. Michael Gross netted 13 points.

Magoffin County, known for their tedious defense, was led by Eric Robbins with 28 points. Wes Bailey finished with 12 points.

Gross and Anthony Tackett hit three-point baskets in the first quarter as the Bobcats trailed 15-10 at the first stop. Robbins had the hot hand as he pumped in 13 points in the opening period for the Hornets.

The Bobcats dug themselves a deeper hole as they were outscored 24-19 in the second period and trailed 39-29 at the half. More players got involved in the offense for Betsy Layne with Tackett scoring five points while Collins and Gross had four each.

It appeared that Tackett was camping out on the free throw line as he connected on 11 of 13 for the game and hit six straight in the fourth period.

"Our bench played real well for us," said Rice. "We just couldn't score at the end."

Hall scores 19 in 53-41 loss to Rosehill

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

The Piarist School Knights may be winless early in the basketball season but they have one of the top guards in the region in George Hall, who had to miss two games because of an injury.

But Hall has returned and scored 19 points in his last two games, the latest being Saturday evening against Rosehill. In the previous games, Hall had 19 points against Allen Central. His 19 against Rosehill was not enough as the Knights dropped a 53-41 decision to fall to 0-7 on the year. Matt Goeing and Robert Hall each scored seven points.

Titus Franz led Rosehill with 16 points with Phillip Harris netting 13 and Josh Griffith 10.

The Knights had to play without Brett Hall, who is injured.

John Keeton scored all four of his points in the first quarter to keep the Knights close at 12-8 after the first quarter. Franz scored six points for Rosehill to start the game.

In the second period, Goeing drilled a three-point basket, including a three-pointer but the Knights trailed Rosehill 25-17 at the half.

George Hall hit a three-point basket and scored seven points in the third period for all seven of the Piarist School's points in the stanza. It was 33-24 after three periods.

Rosehill attempted 18 free throws in the fourth quarter and connected on 10 as they widened the margin to the final 12 points.

JOHNSON CENTRAL PREVIEW

by Jason Blanton
Contributing Writer

This basketball season could be fun at Johnson Central.

Johnny Ray Turner enters his sixth year at the Johnson County High School and the veteran coach is looking forward to the season.

"I'm excited about this year. This is the best group athletically that I've had since I been here," he said. "This bunch loves to play the game. They get along well together, and I think they'll be very fun to watch."

The Golden Eagles return a pair of starters from last year's 15-12 squad. Leading the way is guard Tommy McKenzie, a 5-foot-11 junior, who played both guard spots last season. This season he will play the 2-guard.

"He makes everyone better," Turner said of McKenzie. "He can shoot, pass, rebound, and play defense. He does it all."

"I think he's one of the better guards in the region and will continue to get better."

Mckenzie averaged 12 points per game last season. The other starter coming back is senior Jason Shepherd, who will open the season at point.

Turner says Shepherd is an excellent one-on-one player and is becoming a good team player.

At one forward will be Mitchell Coleman. According to the coach, the 6-1 junior "surprises coaches almost every day in practice" with his play.

Jimmy Burchett (6-3, junior) the "most-improved player" will start at the other forward. Seniors Donnie Chandler (6-1) and Rick O'Bryan (6-3) are battling for the center spot.

Chandler may have the early edge as O'Bryan didn't get on the practice floor until after football season ended.

Juniors Clint Hackney, Brett Butcher, Marvin Fannin, Dustin Ellis and Joey Blanton will all battle for playing time coming off the bench.

Turner sees his team's unselfishness as one of their strengths. "We have some very good players, but no superstars," he said. "This bunch is a very tight group and they like playing with each other."

Ballhandling, shooting and their quickness may also be keys for the Golden Eagles.

"We plan to get it up-and-down the floor," Turner said. "We also hope to put a lot of pressure on the other team."

Heading into the season, Turner knows a couple of areas that his club needs to improve on. "We need to

Johnson, Hall lead Osborne past McDowell

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

Ryan Johnson scored 12 points and Burnett Little pulled in 18 rebounds to lead the Osborne Eagles to a 54-22 win over McDowell in sixth grade basketball play last Thursday at Wheelwright. Steven Stanley scored 11 points and Little had seven for the Eagles. Wesley Hall netted nine points with Dana McCowan scoring eight for the game. Jordan Johnson totaled five and Anthony Osborne had two.

Scott Allen and John Mullins scored seven points apiece for the Daredevils. Wes Tackett added four with Famer Halbert and Joshua Hall scoring two points each.

Osborne held a 10-9 first quarter lead with Allen scoring seven of the nine in the first quarter. Tackett had the other two. Hall, Johnson, Stanley, Little and McCowan had two points each for Osborne in the opening period.

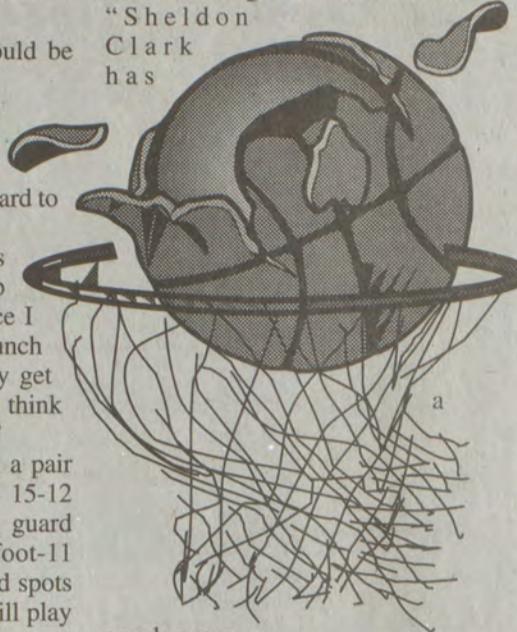

Osborne outscored McDowell 15-2 in the second period to open up a 25-11 lead at the half. Hall buried a trey and had five points in the period. Ryan Johnson scored five points as well.

Basketball Report

get better rebounding and in our half-court defense," he said. "I think one goes with the other, and we are going to work extremely hard to get better."

For the first time in recent memory, the 57th District race should be wide open. "If we continue to work hard, we should be right in the middle of things," Turner said.

Sheldon Clark has good group coming back. Losing (J.R.) VanHoose and (Todd) Tackett will have to have an effect on Paintsville's level of play while Magoffin County lost a lot, but they'll always be ready for tournament time."

In the region, Turner likes Pikeville, Prestonsburg, Belfry at the top along with Sheldon Clark and his team. "There's a lot of good teams in the region. For once, it's not a given which team will win. It may be which team improves and gets hot during the tournaments."

Along with the key regular season matchups with Paintsville, Pikeville, Sheldon Clark and Belfry, the Golden Eagles will also play in three tournaments. Its own Clarence Rice Tip-Off Classic (Dec. 2-5) will start the season.

Turner thinks this will be the best field for the Classic since it started. Besides the host team, a first-round game between Greenup County and Prestonsburg will highlight the event.

Johnson Central will be involved in the Greenup County Tournament (Dec. 21-22) and the WYMT-TV Mountain Classic (Jan. 13-16).

"It's not an easy schedule," Turner said. "We are going to have to be ready to play each night out."

PAINTSVILLE PREVIEW

The rumor that some area high school basketball coaches attended last year's Paintsville graduation to make sure that J.R. VanHoose and Todd Tackett went through the line may be a little far-fetched. But nobody would have blamed the coaches had they done that, the way VanHoose, Tackett and company tormented them the past four years.

Their numbers were astounding:

- Four straight regional titles - only the second team in 15th Region history to do that.
- Three consecutive State Tournament final fours.
- A 1996 state title and a four-year record of 116-27.

but, yes, they are gone," said Tiger coach Bill Mike Runyon.

VanHoose, named Kentucky's Mr. Basketball, now plays for Marshall, and Tackett is part of a stellar freshman group at the University of Kentucky.

Runyon knew the senior duo had a lot of fans outside of the Paintsville area rooting for them during their prep careers. "J.R., Todd and the rest of that bunch were very special and it will be hard to keep up that tradition," Runyon admitted. "I think most people loved J.R. and Todd because they weren't only good players, but they were well-mannered young men."

Runyon said he wouldn't let the pressure of trying to continue that kind of success bother him or his team. "As a coach, you can't let the pressure bug you," he said. "If the kids see you have pressure, then they feel it. I'm just happy that we have a program here at Paintsville that is respected not only in the region and state, but nationally."

Runyon lost 10 players from last year's 30-7 squad. Eight graduated.

Senior Ethan Blackburn broke his arm during a panorama game and is out for awhile. Another senior, Danny Scott, a reserve guard from last year, decided not to play.

That leaves Runyon with an all-junior lineup, but a group that went 18-0 as freshmen.

At forwards are 6-foot-4 Ben Trimble and Jeremy Hall (6-2), while Kyle Meade will be at center. Trimble is the leading scorer (2.8 ppg.) and rebounder (2.2 rpg.) returning. Mitchell Grim (6-1) and Dustin Ratliff, who did not play last year, could combine for a talented backcourt. "With this bunch, there is no go-to-guy," Runyon said. "It will probably be a different player each game. They really play well together. This is an unselfish team. They are very coachable, willing to learn and understand that a lot is expected out of them and this program."

Juniors Tyler Cvitkovic and Brent Morris along with sophomores Ben Hale, Brian Hale, Brad Austin, Matt Brown, Matt Ward and Nick Baldridge are waiting in the wings and should give the Tigers some much-needed depth.

"If there is a weakness, it is varsity experience," Runyon said. "Even though a lot of the players have played in the state tournament, they don't have that (varsity) playing time." Despite the youth and inexperience, Runyon kept the schedule very challenging, to say the least.

Paintsville will take part in national tournaments such as the Wilt Chamberlain Classic in Boca Raton, Fla., and the Tournament of Champions in Springfield, Mo.

"I'm going to play in two big tournaments a year and play the best in the state and the area," Runyon said. "A team won't get better unless you challenge the players. I could schedule a 20-win season, but it wouldn't help the players or the program."

Besides the tournaments, Paintsville will host Louisville Manual (Dec. 22) and Pikeville (Jan. 12) and will travel to Ashland (Jan. 14), Russell (Feb. 5) and finish the season at Hazard (Feb. 19).

Beginning his 17th year, the veteran coach likes his team's chances for a fifth consecutive regional crown. Runyon also thinks Prestonsburg, Pikeville, Belfry, Allen Central, Sheldon Clark and Johnson Central all have a shot.

"This is the most balanced that I've ever seen this region," Runyon said. "Right now, any of those six or seven schools could win it, but four

Kentucky Arts council

To inform the public of the importance of the arts to the Kentucky economy, the Kentucky Arts Council has published a user-friendly summary of "Arts and the Kentucky Economy." The economic impact study produced earlier in the year by the University of Kentucky, Center for Business and Economic Research.

The "Economic Impact Statement" gives a concise picture of the Arts Council and its partnership role with the NEA for the public investment in the arts. It gives hard numbers to how much Kentuckians value the arts, employment and earnings for those involved in the arts. It also outlines the importance of arts education in building a better workforce, and the role the performing arts centers play in delivering the arts and producing arts dollars for the benefit to the economy of the state. The statement clarifies the impact of arts and cultural events to the tourism and retail industries as well.

Russell (6-0, sophomore) and seniors John Russell and Derrick Howard all are vying for playing time.

Entering his 25th year of coaching overall, and 17th at Magoffin County, Adams knows that it will be a tough season. "As a staff, this season will be a challenge. We're not very physically a big team and we don't have a lot of back experience-wise. "We're basically 6-1 or 6-2 and we'll have to go back to the fundamental style of basketball, which is a lot more enjoyable for me and this staff to teach."

Adams is a coach who asks a lot from his players, but rebuilding this year he has learned to look for the good. "The kids have been working really hard," Adams said. "That is something as a staff ... we really demand a lot effort-wise. If they do that, give you that effort everyday, then the team will improve," he said.

The Hornets' schedule will include the Elkhorn City Holiday Classic and the Pikeville Invitational, plus regular season games with Perry Central, Paintsville, Prestonsburg, Pikeville and Sheldon Clark. "We know it may start slow. We have some top teams in the region scheduled in the first month."

SHELDON CLARK PREVIEW

Entering his fourth year, Sheldon Clark basketball coach Ronnie Evans feels a little more comfortable being back home in Martin County. "At this point, the kids know what to expect of me and my staff," Evans said. "Our system is in place and this season expectations are high.

"We have some experienced players returning and experience is the best teacher." Two years ago, Evans led his alma mater into the 15th Regional tournament. Last year, however, was a disappointment with an 11-16 record and an opening-round district loss to Magoffin County. Due to the success of the football team, making it to the state AAA semifinals before losing to Highlands, Evans and his staff didn't get much practice time with a full roster of players. "I'm very proud of the football team," Evans said. "The kids did something that Sheldon Clark football had never been able to do before.

We may start a little slow, but we should be okay." Sheldon Clark returns three players who started at least some games last year.

Leading the list is senior Ronnie Sweeney. The 6-foot-5 guard averaged 15 points and five rebounds per game as a junior and played every position on the floor. "Ronnie's strong point is he is so versatile," Evans said. "He's got some Division I schools sending him letters and looking at him."

Sweeney's importance might have been felt in the loss in the district. "He hurt his ankle on Feb. 12 at Paintsville and didn't get to practice until the Tuesday before the district. "All he was able to do was shoot, because of the injury. Ronnie still had 18 against Magoffin County." Right before the ankle injury, Sweeney went through a stretch of five games where he averaged 20 points and 15 rebounds.

Also expected to return is Harley Hammond. The senior guard led the football team from his quarterback position and is one of the region's better 3-point shooters. "Harley had a very good summer. He won the 3-point contest at the B.C. Camp he attended."

Evans says he thinks that Sweeney and Hammond, along with Prestonsburg's John Ortega, are the top three athletes in the region. Three other seniors - Justin Dials (6-0, guard), Tommy Maynard (6-3, forward) and Ron Parsley (6-2, center) - should round out the Cardinals' starters. Stuart Blankenship, a 5-11 junior, is expected to open the year as the sixth man, but could move into the lineup.

Transportation cabinet vs. old man winter

It's time again for the annual winter season showdown. For the 1998-99 match, we have Mother Nature, poised to deliver numerous blows of snow, ice and freezing temperatures. In the other corner, we have the Kentucky Transportation Cabinet armed with the very latest in high-tech equipment, prepared to defend motorists throughout the Commonwealth.

This year, the cabinet has added 20 contract trucks, more drivers, 27 variable message boards to advise motorists of conditions, a more detailed Road Condition Report now available in all rest areas, a weather forecasting service, and new salt domes.

The state has 200,000 tons of salt, 849 state trucks with 1,625 available drivers, and 168 contract trucks to cover the physical aspects of the battle. On the technical side, there are six Road Weather Information System (RWIS) units that continuously relay information such as air temperature, wind direction and speed, pavement temperature, precipitation type and amount. This information is received in the cabinet's central office "War Room" in Frankfort, where all activities are coordinated.

There is an automated anti-icing spray unit on the southbound I-75 bridge over U.S. 25 at Corbin. It is one of only three in use in the nation. A combination of calcium and magnesium chloride is sprayed on the pavement prior to a storm and prevents the ice from bonding. Ten of the 12 highway districts throughout the state will also be taking this preventive action, with the units attached to their trucks.

"We are continuously looking for new and better ways to make Kentucky's roads as safe as possible during the winter months," says Secretary James Codell. "We have added equipment, manpower and supplies to further our efforts toward a responsibility we take very seriously."

There are also several methods to fight the snow and ice that are being tried on an experimental basis. In Fayette and Jefferson counties, salt brine (liquid salt) will be used for anti-icing and as a pre-wet for dry salt. This pre-wet helps to keep the salt on the road better and enables it to begin activating immediately. The cabinet has added 100 additional pre-wetting units to salt trucks. A weather forecasting service is being used in three of the highway districts to enhance preparation efforts.

The Road Condition Report the cabinet puts out will now be more detailed and available at all the state's rest areas as well as through the standard avenues of Internet. (www.Kytc.state.Ky.us), phone (1-800-4KY-ROAD) and fax (812-941-7422).

BRIEFS

Two-for-one exercises sneak in fitness

One of the easiest ways to sneak fitness into your life is by combining exercise with another activity.

The American Heart Association recommends that a person work in 30 to 60 minutes of vigorous activity at least three times a week. Cleaning, watching television, spending time with the children and shopping can be great ways to sneak extra minutes of physical activity into your lifestyle.

Here's a few suggestions for a healthier lifestyle:

- Go for a walk with your children instead of watching television.
- Walk at least once around the mall before making a purchase.
- Bicycle to the grocery store on those trips to pick up odds and ends.
- Use a treadmill or exercise bike while watching television.

May House Pictorial History Book

The Floyd County Historical Society and the Friends of the Samuel May House are now taking orders for the Floyd County Pictorial History Book. This hard-bound, coffee-table-size book will feature hundreds of never-before-published photos of Floyd County people and places. Deadline for orders is December 15. Orders should be sent to Floyd County Pictorial History, P.O. Box 982, Prestonsburg, KY 41653.

If you have any photographs which you would like to contribute to the book, contact Robert Perry at 606-886-3863, ext. 290, or Jim Daniels at 606-886-2865.

Poem search

Kentucky Arts Council urges Kentuckians to participate in the "Favorite Poem Project."

The Favorite Poem Project, Robert Pinsky's main undertaking as Poet Laureate of the United States, is seeking people to take part in the creation of a national audio and video archive, consisting of approximately 1000 Americans, each saying aloud the words of a favorite poem, along with a few sentences about the particular poem's importance to the individual who reads it.

To volunteer to read a poem for the favorite poem project, send the title of the poem, the author and a few sentences about the poem's importance to you, along with your name, phone number and address, to:

U.S. Marine Corps' 223rd birthday

by Frances P. Brackett
John Graham Chapter
DAR representative

Cassie Allen, a Prestonsburg attorney, cut the Marine birthday cake that depicted the marine symbol and slogan "Semper Fidelis" (Always Faithful).

"The Marines have landed" became reality November 9, at Jenny Wiley State Resort Park near Prestonsburg when the East Kentucky Detachment 617 composed of marines from Martin, Johnson, Floyd, Lawrence, and Pike counties, met for a dinner to celebrate the 223rd birthday of the marine corps, which fell on November 10, 1998.

Through the march of history, few military organizations have been held in such high esteem as the U.S. Marine Corps who first arrived in the form of English colonists in 1740 commanded by Alexander Spotswood, governor of the colony of Virginia. During the American Revolution, the Maritime Committee headed by John Adams met at Tun Tavern, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, resulted in a resolution passed by Congress, November 10, 1775, creating a marine detachment. When the Treaty of Paris was signed, November 30, 1783, ending the Revolutionary War, the navy and marines were disbanded. It was not until March, 1794 that congress authorized six frigates, all of which were to have marine detachments. And it fell to President Thomas Jefferson to help select the permanent site for the marine barracks.

In 1815, Lt. Presley O'Banion led 200 marines and raised the flag of the USA for the first time on foreign soil when Tripoli leaders declared war on the USA. This war led to the adoption of the marine hymn "From the Hall of Montezuma to the shores of Tripoli." Lt. O'Banion later

Missing downtown

There's just something unnatural about being able to stand at one end of Main Street at 2 o'clock on a Saturday afternoon, two weeks before Christmas, and shooting a shotgun all the way to the other end without fear of harming a single soul. Even the town dog is not visible.

Well, I don't know where the dog is, but I'm afraid all the people have gone to the mall. Oh sure, I enjoy shopping the malls myself...sometimes. But malls, at least as far as I'm concerned, are really better suited for browsing than they are for serious shopping. And that's why, especially at this time of the year, I miss our small-town downtowns.

Not that it makes me feel any better saying it, but it's like this all up and down the big Sandy:

Paintsville, Prestonsburg, Louisa... it's all the same. I think it's really a shame that our young people will never know the feeling of popping in and out of one little hometown store after another, or visiting the massive five and ten where a bagful of striped candy or a box of chocolate covered cherries could run you as high as 39 cents.

I know, I know. Here we go again on one of those silly journeys back to the good ole days when everybody had to walk five miles to school in the snow... barefooted... uphill... both ways.

Well, perhaps it doesn't go back quite that far, but this is the 35th Christmas that Wilma and I have been together as Mr. and Mrs. Santa Claus (only to each other, of course), and special memories of holiday shopping downtown are still very vivid. Before the bulldozers of progress expanded the city limits and monsters called "anchor stores" inhabited our part of the world, folks who waited on you in downtown stores were the same folks who waited on you last Christmas and the Christmas before that. They knew your sizes, your favorite color, and even her preferred fragrance.

Downtown shopping then was even fraught with a bit of conspiracy. For instance, the pretty sweater I thought I'd picked out to surprise Wilma was in fact no surprise at all, because she herself had selected it a day or two earlier, leaving instructions to "show it to him when he comes in and tell him how much you think I'd like it."

I wonder if she ever considered such Yuletide chicanery as a two-way street and really thought that she actually picked out my ties?

She did have one up on me, though. When it came to gift wrapping, she could look at a package and tell from which store it came. She would, on her frequent visits, memorize the wrapping paper. Not only that, many times she could even tell which clerk had made the bow.

I miss those days of, as the song says, "city sidewalks, busy sidewalks, dressed in holiday style." Now, though, instead of "in the air there's a feeling of Christmas," it's "let's hurry and get out of this place while there's a checkout open."

While I'm not proclaiming that Christmas time downtown was another Bedford Falls, it did seem that in many ways, we lived a wonderful life.

Ten Years Ago-Wednesday, December 14, 1988

The Floyd County Board of Education received a double dose of bad medicine in the form of two reports: a much-lauded curriculum audit found the district has virtually no curriculum coordination or planning; in addition, the district may face a deficit of $325,000 at the end of the current fiscal year ... When Allen Fire Department firefighters arrived at the home of James "Jimmy" Settles at Ivel just before 7 a.m. Tuesday, they found two rooms at the back of the house ablaze, with flames shooting out of the downstairs windows ... Residents of the Wheelwright area had running water in their homes by last Thursday, a privilege they had missed for over a week ... About two dozen persons crowded into the tiny hearing room of the Kentucky Department of Surface Mining here Thursday to witness the charges brought against local miner and developer Gary Branham ... A family outing turned into a tragedy for a Grethel family when Roy L. Adams, 43, was killed in a head-on collision that injured seven people ... The news is good in Prestonsburg these days: the city is fiscally sound, the police department is doing well, the fire department has little business, several streets have been repaved and Archer Park is undergoing a continuing facelift ... There died: Roy L. Adams, 43, of Grethel, December 10 at Harold; William Scott Brown, 12, of Langley, December 8, at Our Lady of the Way Hospital; Bill Calhoun, 55, of Watergap, November 29 at his residence; Maxine Hamilton 44, of Teaberry, December 9 at the Methodist Hospital; Grace Helton George, 70, of Martin, December 7, at Highlands Regional Medical Center; Girlie Moore, 93, of Minnie, December 7, at McDowell Appalachian Regional Hospital in McDowell; Chadwick Salisbury, infant son of Danny and Joetta Slone Salisbury, December 12, at Cabel Huntington Hospital; and Charles Homer Stanley, 62, of Melvin, December 8 at St. Joseph Hospital.

Lost and found

My husband has never lost anything in all the years since we've been married. He's never considered that any personal item might have been stolen or used up sooner than expected. He has never given anything away only to forget about it or suspected that his children might have "borrowed" something in his absence, assuring anyone within earshot that, "Daddy won't mind."

But almost every time he reaches for something and draws a blank, he knows exactly what happened to it. I've either misplaced it or thrown it away. It can be anything ranging from his car keys, billfold, the new fishing lure he bought and "laid right here," the bolts some friend brought for him to repair a trailer-hitch or a tie that remotely matches whatever he's wearing.

He always comes directly to me and asks, "What did you do with it?"

Once when he'd returned from some errand, he parked his car and locked the doors. He was all set to go somewhere else the following morning, and I noticed he kept walking from room to room. Finally, he came and interrupted a long distance phone call to ask, "What did you do with my car keys?"

I told my brother in California I'd call him back. I had to help my husband find his keys.

First, I asked him to backtrack himself, to check whatever he'd been wearing and try to remember what rooms he had gone to. I looked with him in all the corners of the house, under the edge of the bed and by the computer where he plays ## solitaire.

From time to time he would repeat, "You must have picked them up for I always put them right here." Then he would add a little lecture like, "I know how you are. You straighten up the house by poking things in drawers to get them out of sight."

I searched through cabinet drawers, in cups and on shelves. I emptied my purse and combed its contents. We walked through the grass and fallen leaves between the house and carport. I even reminded him of something Rhonda would say as a child. I'd give her a piece of gum and in ten minutes, she'd be back wanting another. When I'd ask what she did with what I gave her, she'd say, "I swallowed it."

"Maybe you swallowed your keys," I said. He wasn't amused. Finally, we gave up and called the car dealership and, in a reasonable time, they had a new set for him. His world was turned right side up again.

by Aileen Hall

It was about a week before he came in from the store and laid his keys beside some groceries on the kitchen bar. "That looks like your original set of keys," I said. "Where did you find them?"

He grinned when he told me. "They were in the pocket of some jeans I'd forgotten about wearing."

I don't know how he forgets these little outcomes so quickly, but he does. A few days ago he said he had a few bills to pay so, while I was making a cake, he would be in the next room writing some checks.

I was busy with my cake ingredients, and he was very quiet. Then I had to turn the mixer off to understand his question, "What have you done with my checkbook?"

Holiday cacti brighten season

ed; in the Christmas cactus, the segments are smaller and have rounded lobes. The Thanksgiving cactus tends to grow more upright, while the Christmas cactus tends to be more drooping.

Both species originated in Brazil, where they grow in plant debris trapped among tree branches or in decaying humus on the ground. Therefore, plants grown in the home do best in a light, humusy or peat-based potting soil and containers with holes for drainage. Avoid potting in heavy mineral-type soils, where over-watering will quickly lead to root rot and plant death.

Holiday cacti bloom in response to short days and/or cool temperatures. To cause flower buds, begin to expose the cacti to nine hours of light and 15 hours of darkness each day, starting in September. For example, each day place the plant in a light-free closet or under a box at 5:00 p.m. each evening and return it to a sunny window at 8:00 a.m.

Holding temperatures between 50 and 59 degrees F. will stimulate flowering despite day length. Kentucky gardeners that reflower their holiday cactus each year, simply leave the plants outdoors through September and protect the plants from frost if necessary. When the plants are brought indoors in early October, flower buds are set and the plants will flower around Thanksgiving.

Temperatures above 75 degrees F., sudden changes in temperature or light levels, and over watering plants that are potted in heavy soil will cause unopened flower buds to fall off.

For more information on caring for holiday plants, contact Pat Spicer at the Extension office at 886-2668 or stop by 921 South Lake Drive, Prestonsburg.

grumble about my health, or I can rejoice that I am alive. Today, I can lament over all that my parents didn't give me when I was growing up, or I can feel grateful that they allowed me to be born.

Today, I can cry because roses have thorns, or I can celebrate that thorns have roses. Today, I can mourn my lack of friends, or I can excitedly embark upon a quest to discover new relationships. Today, I can whine because I have to go to work, or I can shout for joy because I have a job to do. Today, I can complain because I have to go to school or eagerly open my mind and fill it with rich new tidbits of knowledge. Today, I can murmur dejectedly because I have to do housework, or I can feel honored because the Lord has provided shelter for my mind, body and soul.

Today, I can feel sad that I don't have more money, or I can be glad that my finances encourage me to plan my purchases wisely and guide me away from waste. Today, I can Today stretches ahead of me, waiting to be shaped. And here I am, the sculptor who gets to do the shaping. What today will be like is up to me. I get to choose what kind of day I will have!

Have a Great Day!

Give life! Be an organ donor. Talk to your family and tell them you want to give or extend someone's life—a life you may or may never know, but someone who will be carrying part of your life with them.

Today is the first day of the rest of your life. Yes, gossip kills, so don't be a murderer. Put a smile on your face. Today is the day you worried about yesterday.

The author of "Today is a Great Day to Be Alive" is unknown to me. I wanted to share it with you during the holiday season. It's something we should not just hang on the refrigerator door but place it in our heart and mind.

"You'd better like the color!"

I'll try with this article to get automobiles out of my system. I wrote some time back about the bright halogen headlights. Well, I got to thinking a little more about automobiles. When I was growing up not too many years ago and on into my adulthood, cars that could reach a mileage of 50,000 miles were ready to be traded in for a new auto. If you could brag that your car had 75,000 miles on the mileage indicator, it was ready to be pushed to the junk yard. The metal remained good and was made of melted steel and not the cold rolled steel of today's cars. You can find '50 model cars today that have been outside since 1956 with only a few pitted places on their fenders.

I guess I should not try to compare the metal of yesterday's cars with today's cars, because most new cars are plastic. Today's cars have rubber bumpers, instead of those beautiful chrome front and back bumpers with the large guards on them.

I guess the bumper guards were used more for pushing a friend's car that was broken down and protecting your car at the same time. Oh yes, and the cars of that bygone era had metal chrome grills instead of the plastic grills of new cars. There was usually a wide band of shiny chrome that went from the rear fender to the front fender. The car had a trunk lid with a fine chrome handle that was curved to fit your hand. The tail lights had just enough chrome around them to glisten around the red brake and tail lights. The hood was out of this world. On the front was a large decorative highly polished chrome Indian Chief, a flying bird, or a sleek fast flying rocket. I can't forget all the chrome hubcaps with their unique designs, not plastic as on today's cars.

The seats were of real leather or a heavy grade cloth that couldn't be worn out. The dash board was of painted metal to match the decor of the interior and outside paint color.

I am not a mechanic. I can only recognize cars and their year of manufacturing of the 50s era, and I am beginning to lose that memory. I could identify cars after dark, headlights on, going in opposite directions.

Those days are long gone now I must get my magnifying glasses and try to locate the name. In the old days, the name of the car was written on the front, back and side of the cars and were without the dealer's name. The only thing that you can read without the aid of glasses on today's cars is the dealer's name that is conveniently placed on all the new cars.

Owners purchase a $20,000 car and the dealerships place a large 4'x10' 50-cent dealer decal name on their expensive purchase. You would think they would at least lower the price by $50 for the free advertisement they display on our automobiles.

We will advertise by driving the car with their decal all over the country. They, I am sure, take a tax deduction for the cost of advertisement, the expense of the decal and, of course, for someone placing it on the car.

Well, I have gotten off the point of the short life of older cars and the longevity out of the newer cars. I'll borrow a story from a friend to illustrate. Seems my friend was coming out of the hills where he had been surveying, and came upon a long ago acquaintance who couldn't read sitting. The acquaintance was sitting by the surveyor's auto. The friend asked how many miles "has she got on her"? (I don't know why everyone refers to cars like ships as the female gender). The older man said "four-something, I don't know." The friend said, 4,000 miles and the man answered "No."

My friend should have known to guess more than he said for it was 1982 model. He said 40,000 miles, another guess, and the old man said "No." Does it have 400,000 miles?" The old man answered yes.

"Yes, that's the number, one of my children said it was."

My friend asked "What kind is it and how do you like it."

The old man said "It's a Toyota and you had better like the color when you buy them, because they will last for 15 years or more!"

Well that example sort of tells the story of all new cars and trucks of all makes today. They are made to last longer without major breakdowns and costly repairs. It's nothing to get 300,000 miles of service from a car today. The engines, if not abused, can get 375,000 miles of service. So, as the old man said, "You better like the color" when you buy a new auto. Incidentally, that must be the reason cars and trucks cost 20-25 thousand dollars—the cost of a new home in the '50s or a double-wide mobile home today. I think I am going for the 375,000 miles; I have less than 75,000 miles to go.

I get to thinking about all I said about steel and chrome cars of long ago versus today's plastic cars and you would think today's cars would be much cheaper due to the aluminum, plastic and rubber materials they are made from.

THINGS TO PONDER

by Mable Rowe Lineberger, Ph.D.

"Ho! ho!" is not around!

Well, the Monday-after-Thanksgiving began with a husband's version of how his wife always tries to pin on him the "Holiday Depression" label that he resents. He felt her depression of many years standing was the problem and not his. "Her family was so poor in her childhood that she only got a pair of (basic wearing essentials) under the tree." Even though many people have seasonal "blues," the potential sources of holiday depression can be identified, coped with more effectively, possibly decreased, and/or possibly avoided.

Some likely factors for these not-so-jolly blues are increased stress and fatigue, unrealistic expectations, over-commercialization, and/or the inability to be with one's family. How about a fear that "things" will not go as planned or be bad this year as last? It seems that higher expectations of time, energy, and money pop-up around every corner at the holidays. Some folks have increased stress from trying to fit it all in—parties, shopping, family reunions, and trying to keep everyone happy! People, who do not become depressed can develop other stress reactions during the holidays, such as headaches, problems related to excessive drinking and over-eating, and difficulty sleeping. For many years, one son-in-law in the family was usually sick after Christmas from "over eating." In addition, many people become depressed after the festive occasions due to the "let down" feeling that occurs once the so-waited-for-days have passed. This post-holiday depression and anxiety after New Year's can be reflecting emotional disappointments experienced over the preceding months, plus the physical reactions created by excess fatigue, extreme indulgences, and stress.

Similar to other things in life, folks can learn ways to avoid or cope better with the seasonal "blues." Prevention is easier than living through the ordeal. So look at your track record over the past holiday seasons; identify what worked and didn't work and what else you might want to do. You may want to make arrangements ahead of time. Make a list and prioritize the most important activities. Be for real about what you can and want to do. Don't prepare for just one day—think about how you can spread your goodies, large and small ones, over several weeks or days and with different people. Or, heaven forbid, you just might want to spend some time alone. Don't focus only on others. However, you can do something for someone else, which is an old remedy that helps. Have you ever volunteered during the holidays? It's a great way to demonstrate to children what the meaning of the holidays is for spiritual groups.

Of course, everyone knows the significant negative impact of losses and the wanting "to be just like the good old days" often has on some people's feelings during the holidays. Let go of the past! Life brings changes. Rejoice in each holiday season in its own way. Look forward to the future. Who knows, today and the future can also be great. Enjoy spending time with people who are supportive and care for you. But whether alone or not, try something new or make new friends. There are free activities, such as driving around looking at decorations, window shopping, and looking up some people you have lost touch with. Whatever you do, do in moderation. Beware of overdrinking. Excessive drinking will only make you more depressed. In our region, many episodes of violence and crime within families are in combination with alcohol. Also watch your spending and plan a budget ahead of time. What would be worse than paying for last year's Christmas gifts during the heat of July, when you would like a vacation?

I guess the bumper guards were used more for pushing a friend's car that was broken down and protecting your car at the same time. Oh yes, and the cars of that bygone era had metal chrome grills instead of the plastic grills of new cars. There was usually a wide band of shiny chrome that went from the rear fender to the front fender. The car had a trunk lid with a fine chrome handle that was curved to fit your hand. The tail lights had just enough chrome around them to glisten around the red brake and tail lights. The hood was out of this world. On the front was a large decorative highly polished chrome Indian Chief, a flying bird, or a sleek fast flying rocket. I can't forget all the chrome hubcaps with their unique designs, not plastic as on today's cars.

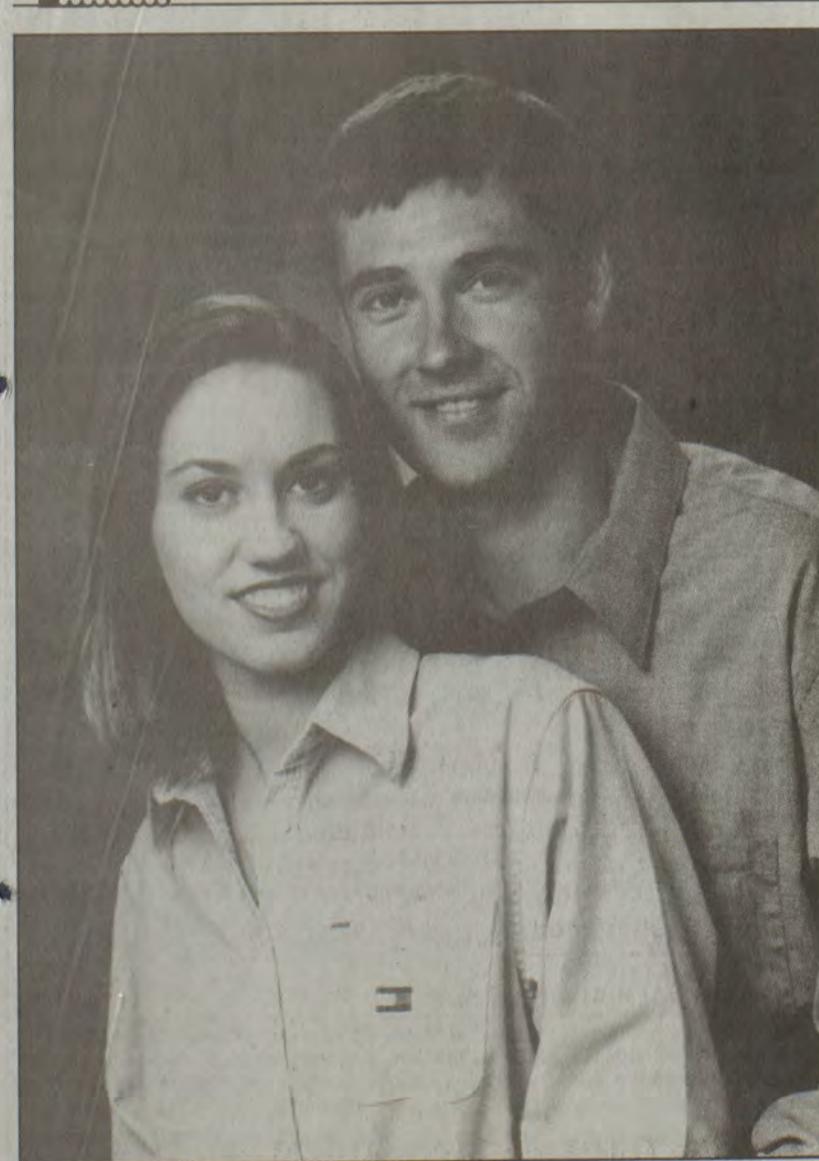

We will advertise by driving the car with their decal all over the country.

They, I am sure, take a tax deduction for the cost of advertisement, the expense of the decal and, of course, for someone placing it on the car.

Well, I have gotten off the point of the short life of older cars and the longevity out of the newer cars. I'll borrow a story from a friend to illustrate. Seems my friend was coming out of the hills where he had been surveying, and came upon a long ago acquaintance who couldn't read sitting.

The acquaintance was sitting by

MSU has new HR director

Roger D. Barker

Roger D. Barker, who has 15 years experience in progressing levels of administrative management, has been named director of human resources at Morehead State University.

Barker, who assumed his new post on Nov. 1, was selected after a national search, according to Porter Dailey, MSU vice president for administration and fiscal services, who commended "the search committee for doing a thorough job of screening the applicants for this important position."

Since coming to MSU in 1995, Barker has been directly involved in personnel issues including the implementation, management and enforcement of personnel policies and procedures in his position as grants administrator in the Office of Research, Grants and Contracts.

While serving as assistant director of epidemiology and health promotion for the West Virginia Bureau for Public Health, from 1991 and 1995, he was administrative manager of nine statewide health promotion/disease prevention programs.

By pursuing federal and private foundation grants, he was instrumental in achieving a 300 percent expansion of the unit, including the American Stop Smoking Intervention Study (ASSIST) for Cancer Prevention.

He also developed the training manual, conducted training sessions and automated all administrative and operational procedures for the division.

Among his business ventures, he was an owner/distributor of a wholesale marketing operation, owner of a software and systems design company and manager of a financial corporation with a $3 million budget.

Active in various community organizations, Barker is a two-time graduate of MSU where he earned a bachelor of business administration degree in 1985, and MBA degree in 1995.

A Carter County native and US Navy veteran, Barker and his wife, Jeanette, are the parents of five children: Phillip, Melonie, Pamela, Jarrod and Amanda.

C-21 realtors win "Most Pizzaz" award

Two Century 21 American Way Realtors, Debbie Allen and Sheila Setser, brought home the prestigious "Most Pizzaz" award from Floyd Wickman's "Sweatshogs."

Floyd Wickman's STAR Development Program, "Sweatshogs," an intensive 70-day sales course, is the No. 1 real estate training company in North America.

Allen and Setser have completed eight weeks of the course, and anticipate graduating with honors.

"I strongly believe that education is the key to success in real estate," Allen remarked.

"The more knowledge and skill I have, the better we can serve the needs of our clients," Setser added.

According to Century 21 American Way Broker Dorothy Harris, Allen and Setser have quickly established themselves as area top producers.

"With a wealth of knowledge, there's nothing these agents can't achieve," she said.

IT'S EVERYBODY'S BUSINESS

Popular inspirational scenes target of parody

The walls of offices across the country have been adorned in recent years with nearly framed inspirational scenes of nature or athletes. These scenes, which contain motivational messages designed to inspire the corporate troops, are now the subject of some dead-on parody.

New anti-inspirations are popping up in the corporate subculture like toadstools after a spring rain. They're being shared by office workers via e-mail and

Salyersville coal augering company wins state award

Carl Campbell, commissioner of the Department for Surface Mining Reclamation and Enforcement, presented the 1998 Commissioners Award for Excellence in Reclamation to Smith Patrick Trucking of Salyersville, for the company's outstanding reclamation work on the MB & S Coal Augering Company bond forfeiture site.

The company, on a very limited construction budget, was able to reclaim this severely unstable eight-acre site, located in Magoffin County, very quickly.

This project was nominated by the Prestonsburg Regional Office and selected by the commissioner, because the company's outstanding reclamation work on a site that was in such poor condition that it represented a hazard to the environment.

The contractor's goal was to backfill and eliminate several hundred feet of dangerous highwall, eliminate a hazardous water-filled pit, regrade the bare and eroding mine bench and establish a good ground cover over the entire permit area. As a result of the contractor's remarkable efforts, the environmental hazards have been eliminated and the property has been returned to a useable condition, according to a DSMRE spokesman.

The Excellence Award was presented to Smith Patrick Trucking on November 24, at the DSMRE Regional Office in Prestonsburg. Commissioner Campbell expressed his sincere appreciation to the company for their outstanding reclamation efforts.

Study shows university small business programs make significant contributions to the economy

An independent report on the economic impact of the Small Business Development Centers (SBDC), hosted by UK and several other universities and colleges has been released and the results are most impressive. For every dollar invested in the 14 small business programs statewide, a return of $3.09 was generated in tax revenues from SBDC clients. This amounted to $7.3 million in additional tax revenues, of which approximately $3.3 million went to the federal government and $4.0 million went to the state of Kentucky. According to Janet Steele Holloway, statewide SBDC director, "this study demonstrates that the SBDC program is a good investment of public dollars for Kentucky and the U.S."

The study also shows that SBDC clients increased their sales an average of $178,413. This was larger than the increase experienced by the average Kentucky business. Overall, long-term clients of the SBDC generated a $76.3 million in incremental sales. Moreover, small businesses utilizing SBDC counseling services created 1,633 new jobs in 1996. Firms served by the printing them on posters, calendars, stationery, T-shirts and other clothing items, as well.

Perhaps it was just a matter of time before someone with a Dilbert-like sense of corporate culture developed the inspirational message's alter ego. But what a wicked opposing view it is:

• As if to counter such scenes as the lone mountain climber above the message: "All things are possible for those who believe," there's the parody photo of a demoralized ballplayer alone on the bench. The message: "Losing: If at first you don't succeed, failure may be your style."

• Countering the standard belief that we will learn from our mistakes, another scene depicts a ship sinking beneath the waves above the legend: "Mistakes: It could be that the purpose of your life is only to serve as a warning to others."

• Another depicts the crumpled face of a boxer the instant after he's been hit by his opponent. This one's message states: "Agony: Not all pain is gain."

• Above the title "Defeat" is the photo of a group of athletes running at a track meet. The message: "For every winner, there are dozens of losers. Odds are you're one of them."

• A shot of a thunderstorm carries the heading: "Pessimism: Every dark cloud has a silver lining, but lightning kills hundreds of people each year who are trying to find it."

There are more, but you get the picture. This is parody on the cutting edge of mean spiritedness. And yet, workers viewing these demotivationalals for the first time usually burst into fits of laughter that bring tears to their eyes.

Is their positive reaction to something so blatantly negative a warning sign that Americans are becoming cold and heartless on the eve of the millennium? I don't think it's anything that drastic nor a sign of the times. The street urchins characterized in century-old Dickens novels were not depicted as heartless, though they found humor at the sight of a pompous businessman slipping on the ice.

America's work force shouldn't be criticized for taking a little pleasure at the sight of someone sticking a pin in the balloon of corporate culture now and then. Perhaps the inspirational scenes parodied by their negative knock-offs have served their purpose and it's time to move on to other positive methods of motivation.

Just as the yellow smiley face and the phrase "have a nice day" were long ago found guilty of banality and sentenced to the cultural scrap heap, time will tell whether the demotivationalals herald a similar fate for that which they parody.

Basketball Mania

Allen Central not to be taken lightly

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

Last year coach Johnny Martin and the Allen Central Rebels caught some teams by surprise as they were figured to be a team in a reloading year.

However, the Rebels pulled off several upsets and just missed on others. This year the Rebels will be missing that one ingredient that had made them one of the 15th Regions premier teams — a solid and consistent scorer. When you lose a player who is averaging over 24 points per game and hitting treys like it was the last year for the shot, like Todd Howard did last year, you have to figure on someone stepping up and filling the void.

Allen Central has had the marquee players in the past eight years in a Jeremy Hall, Thomas Jenkins, Kevin Stumbo, Rady Martin, Phillip Parsons and the list could go on and on. But this year that marquee player will be missing and it must be a total team effort when the 1998-99 season tips off in December.

But before you start shedding tears for the Rebels, fans need to look at the main ingredient of this year's Allen Central team — coach Johnny Martin. While the ballclub has enjoyed some great players consistently, still it takes a mentor that can mesh all that talent together and make winners out of them.

Ask the normal fan (if there is one) on the street and he will tell you never to count the Rebels out of anything. The reason? Coach Johnny Martin. The veteran coach has a way of getting the most out of a mediocre player and produces a very competitive basketball team. Although Howard is gone and so is Edmund Slone, Allen Central appears to be poised for a banner season this year with several veteran players returning. If there was a knock of last year's team it was the lack of playing time some received. But the talent is there and the coach knows how to bring it all together.

Returning will be the second leading scorer for Allen Central last season, Gary Hunter (12.3 ppg, 6.0 rpg, 2.1 assists). Hunter had played under the shadow of the Jenkins and Howard during his freshman and sophomore seasons and emerged last year to turn in a stellar junior season averaging just under 13 points per game. He pulled in six rebounds per contest last year, but the area that Hunter showed improvement was his defense. He works hard on the boards as well as defense. Hunter will be at the power forward slot this season.

"He is a two-year starter for us," said Coach Martin. "He is probably the most athletic of any Rebel. He has speed, good quickness and jumping ability. He is a true athlete."

It is said that he had a great summer and was drilling the lights out of three-pointers and with that Nick Samons will fill the two-guard slot for Allen Central. He showed his ability to hit from the 19-feet, 9-inches circle last year, especially during the district and regional tournaments. Samons is quick, agile and rebounds surprisingly well for his 6'0" frame. A solid defensive player in the Rebels' pressing tactics.

Samons averaged 10 points per game last season and dished off just over three assists per game.

"He looks to fill either the point guard position again this year or the two-guard position," said the Allen Central coach. "He is one of the best passers that I have ever coached. He is an outstanding hustler and rebounds well for his size."

Allen Central may not have a true center, but if there is one it will fall to sophomore Rodney Scott. Scott showed signs of getting his game together last year and was a starter before the season was over.

His ability to block out on the boards gives him an edge plus the quickness of getting the ball out on the break. Much is expected of Scott this basketball season and with the love for the game, look for him to meet all the expectations of everyone.

"Rodney is the best inside threat on the team," said Coach Martin. "He has a good vertical leap and should contribute greatly as either a four or five player."

The small forward position will be filled by veteran player, Jesse Hall. Hall, who also can play the middle, has an unusual ability to hit the three's. He averaged just under nine points per game last year, but fans expect that to go up with the departure of Howard. If there is a key to this ballclub, it has to be the consistent play of Hall. He must perform well each night out. Hall averaged five rebounds per contest last season.

"Jesse is another excellent athlete," said the Allen Central coach. "He excels in several sports. He is a rugged rebounder and can score inside as well as step out and hit the three."

Allen Central will have one of the best sixth men starting this year in Brian Jones (5.2 ppg, 4.0 rpg). He works hard and may be just a little too aggressive at times in the game. He can score, rebound and play defense, everything you want in a player. But he does have a flaw and that is in the excessive foul department. He often finds himself watching from the bench because of his aggressive play. He averaged just over five points last year, but he a terror on the boards.

"Brian is probably the most improved Rebel player," said Coach Martin. "He is a

Lady Rebels hope to win the big one

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

For a long, long time the Allen Central Lady Rebels have been a dynasty in girls high school basketball. Under coaches such as Judy Eversole and Bonita Compton, Allen Central has ranked right up there with the best in the 15th Region and in the state.

But it was not until last year the Lady

Rebels made an appearance in the girls regional finals for the first time since Coach Eversole took her team to the state Sweet 16 in the early '80s. Last year, it was first-year coach Anthony Moore, who guided the Lady Rebels to the regional championship game at South Floyd High School, site of the regional finals. It was against the Lady Hawks of Pike Central that the Lady Rebels fell.

But Coach Moore returns for his second season at the helm of the Allen Central girls program, but it will be a different looking team. Gone are leading scorers, Misty Scott and Crystal Martin, as well as mega-talent Ramanda Music, who started for Allen Central last year as an eighth grader. Scott and Martin graduated and Music chose to play at Belfry this season.

Moore has gone through some controversy during the off months but he survives to guide the Lady Rebels once more. Allen Central will have two starters back from last year's team but one did not get much playing time during the final two months of the season. Junior Natalie Cooley suffered an injured knee during last year's Class "A" State Tournament and had to sit out the rest of the year. But, if the Lady Rebels are to make any noise in the district and region this year, then Cooley will have to show that she is fully recovered and shoulder some awesome responsibility in guiding this year's team. Cooley will have to play multiple positions on the court for Allen Central but is best suited for the power forward position.

"Natalie is a very athletic player," said Coach Moore. She is good with or without the basketball. She has extended her shooting range and is a good defensive player, especially when pressing."

Also returning will be true marksman Jennifer Hopkins who was the hero of the 58th District and 15th Regional tournaments last season. If there a positive that came out Cooley's injury, it would be the contribution that Hopkins made last year.

Reserved to watch from the bench, Hopkins played the sub role early last season, but the injury to Cooley gave Hopkins a starting job and she responded with big numbers. Hopkins is a solid three-point shooter and averaged over 14 points per game after breaking the starting line up.

However, while Hopkins is known as a scorer from the outside, she is better known and is an excellent passer who can score."

With the lineup set with Cooley, Martin, Hopkins, Howell and Combs, there is plenty of talent on the sidelines for Allen Central. The Lady Rebels have two of the top sophomores coming into this season in Jennifer Risner and Shannon Sizemore. Both are scorers but in different ways. Risner can pop the three-pointers and drive the lanes, while Sizemore works underneath. Sizemore gives the Lady Rebels good size on the boards.

"Jennifer has shown a lot of improvement as a ball handler," said Coach Moore. "Her ball handling has gotten better. She can score from the outside and plays a good defense."

If there was a Miss Hustle award presented, according to Moore, it would have to go to Sizemore.

"She really gets after it," he said. "She just needs to become more consistent."

"Susan is a very dedicated basketball player," said Coach Moore. "She plays with a lot of heart and is an intelligent player."

Barbara Prater is a versatile player that every team needs.

"She can play anywhere on the floor," said Moore. "She has good quickness and rebounds well."

Kari Osborne is one of the top reserves who will see a lot of playing time for the Lady Rebels.

"Kari plays bigger than she is," said Coach Moore. "She is a good rebounder and a hard worker."

Stephanie Sloane will be playing her first year in high school basketball.

"Stephanie is a strong girl and takes the ball to the basket well," said Moore.

Another player to see playing time at point guard will be Angela Green.

"She handles the ball real well for us," said Coach Moore. "She is also a good shooter for her size."

Three freshmen to watch include Tonya Howard, Jackie Brown and Leslie Martin.

"They all three are going to be good ones for us," said Moore.

The Lady Rebels are the defending 58th District champions and the favorite to repeat this season.

Bobcats looking for return to glory

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

It wasn't all that long ago you could look at all the preseason hype in high school basketball and see the Betsy Layne Bobcats ranked right up there with the top five teams in the 15th Region. And it was a justified preseason ranking as they were one of high school basketball's elite teams.

But the past seasons have seen the program come on hard times while struggling with young players, aspiring to become even a good .500 club.

Coach Tim Rice, in his third year as the head coach of the Cats, hopes this could be the start of the Bobcats returning as one of the elite in the 15th Region. Even one preseason publication had Betsy Layne ranked fourth in the region for the 1998-99 season.

"That is our goal, to get back to where we used to be as one of the top teams in the 15th Region," said Coach Rice. "We feel we have good young players coming into the system to where we can be a contender again."

Betsy Layne will return 12 of the 15 players that dotted the roster last year and those returning include four of the starting five. Gone is the hot-shooting hand of Craig Johnson who landed at Alice Lloyd College this year. Coach Rice said things are pointing to the return.

"We have a good attitude this year," he said of his ballclub. "Our expectations are high. We think we can compete."

Rice said his team just needs to go out and "beat somebody."

"We need to beat somebody to prove to ourselves we can win," he said. "We need to get the fans behind us like it used to be."

The decibel level at the D.W. Howard Fieldhouse was deafening at times during the glory days of Betsy Layne. Rice said he would like to see that return.

Like most teams in the 15th Region, the Bobcats are not going to be all that big and Coach Rice feels that could hurt a young team.

"Overall, our height is going to hurt us this year," he said. "We are not going to be very big, especially with Jay Arnett being out too."

Arnett sprained an ankle but is expected to return by the time the season opens.

But unlike most regional teams, Betsy Layne will return an experienced ballclub.

"That is going to be our strong point," said Coach Rice. "We do have some experienced players returning but still we are a young team. We have several players who played a lot last year."

The Cats will return three starters and one who was at the sixth spot through last season.

The returning players will be led by junior Adam Tackett (6'3", 235) who showed signs of brilliance toward the end of last season when he performed so well in the final four weeks of the season. Tackett takes up a lot of room around the basket with his frame and is a strong rebounder. The success of the Bobcats this year will center around the play of Tackett.

"I am just looking for Adam's maturity to show up this year," said Coach Rice. "He struggles at the free throw line but he has been working very hard to be a better free throw shooter. He is going to be a big key for us this year."

"He needs to work on his positioning. He gets out of position sometimes."

Bradley Brooks (6'1", 225) will fill the power forward slot and is another work horse on the boards.

"He is an excellent rebounder.

He is not very tall but blocks out real well under the basket," said the Betsy Layne coach. "Brooks is aggressive in there and, hopefully, a year of maturity will help him a lot."

The small forward will be filled by junior Scott Collins (6'2", 180) who was the second leading scorer last year for the Bobcats.

"Scott is an excellent leaper," Rice said. "He is one of the quickest jumpers I have seen. He plays outside, inside, wherever we have to have him at. I expect him to get six to eight rebounds per game."

Justin Bartley (5'8", 155) will run the ballclub at the point guard and he gives the Cats some outside shooting as well.

"I was pleasantly pleased with Justin last year at point guard," Rice said. "He only averaged two turnovers a game and he averaged eight to 10 points per game for us. Last year he took some pressure off Craig because he shot the ball real well. What I am looking for in Justin is a take-charge attitude...to go out and run the team and tell people where they are supposed to be."

Loyalty to the program will pay off for Michael Gross (5'11", 185) this season as he will start at

Akers returns in hopes Cats can adapt

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

It has been six years since Betsy Layne girls' head basketball coach put the whistle around her neck and went through practice drills as a head coach for a high school team.

But as the 1998-'99 season is about to unfold, she replaces one of the more successful coaches this season after coach Bill Newsome decided not to come back.

Akers spent two seasons as head coach at McDowell before leaving the game. Now she returns to her alma mater and her get tough practices are starting to show on the returning players.

Betsy Layne (15-18) will return only three seniors this season but will be looking to a very young kiddie corps to contribute this season. But the new coach is hoping this year's team will have matured some when it comes district tournament time.

"We will just have to take the schedule before us and use that to work toward the district tournament," said Coach Akers.

The game has not changed much in the past six seasons since Coach Akers left the game. Her style of play is different from the previous coach, but she feels the players are starting to adapt to her coaching philosophy.

"The attitude and effort of this team has been wonderful," she said. "We started with 20 girls and we still have 18 and I am impressed with that because I am strong on conditioning."

Coach Akers said the strength of this year's team has been surprising.

"This is a strong bunch of girls," she said. "They are a lot stronger physically than any team I've had before."

But the returning coach spotted some bad habits and weaknesses of the team.

"They do have the little fundamental weaknesses," she recognized. "They do not block very well under the basket. But they have good size and they don't necessarily have to block out. But that is something they are going to have to learn to do."

Returning seniors include Samantha Maynard, Amanda Hall and Leslie Hopkins.

her at the three or four position."

Hall is being called on by the new coach to learn, not only the two-guard position, but other positions as well.

"I told her I was going to depend on her a lot this season," said Akers. "Amanda is a good positive influence on the other players. She knows she will have to play a multitude of positions. She is a very versatile player is going to be fouled a lot."

Amber Biliter and Denise Jones will be designated three-point shooters as well.

"They both can come in and knock a three-pointer down when you need one," said Coach Akers. "Denise is probably a little bit ahead of Amber on the defensive side."

Amber Roberts (5'9") will give the Lady Cats some good size inside. The sophomore forward has been one of the pleasant surprises in camp this season.

"Amber has been doing real good lately," said Coach Akers. "She is going to help us a lot."

Seeing playing time off the bench will be Tiffany Bentley, who like Roberts, has the ability to sink the treys.

"She is a little weak right now," said Coach Akers, "but her and Amber can hit the outside shot. Both are just a little timid right now."

Much will be expected of junior Courtney Hall (5'10") and Coach Akers likes the way she has been handling herself in practice.

"Courtney has really worked hard," she said. "She has really improved on offense. Her defense has come along real well."

Six freshmen will dot the Betsy Layne roster and Coach Akers said that some could see varsity play this year and maybe crack the lineup.

"Right now I feel we can go nine or ten deep off the bench," she said. "We have some very good freshmen who could see some playing time. Devon Reynolds may see some playing time at the point guard position. Tabitha Mitchell and Kim Tackett are very good basketball players. These girls will be playing an 18-game freshman schedule."

Jessica Slone, Amy Keathley and Nikki Keathley are freshmen who will be looked at during the season. All are expected to contribute.

Coach Akers said ball handling continues to be a problem for the Lady Cats, but individual work has shown some improvement in the area.

"In our individual practices, our guards work on passing the ball and handling it," said Akers. "It is just the little things they need to learn, like bouncing the ball away from the defense, little things like that."

Akers said her team is not expected to be an up-tempo team early in the season but she would like to be a pressing team.

"I have a lineup that can press and I have one that can not," she said. "But we can press if we have to."

Akers confesses her lack of knowledge of the county and regional teams after her absence from the game. She said she is looking forward to the panoramas just to see other teams play.

"People ask me how I think we will do, and I have to tell them I don't know," said Akers. "I haven't seen the other teams play."

Akers said right now she would have to pick Allen Central as the team to beat in the county.

"I heard Prestonsburg has some good players coming back," she said. "Hopefully by the time we get around to them in the schedule we will be competitive. It is going to take us awhile."

Coach Akers has spotted some timidity in Hopkins and is working hard to get her more aggressive on the offensive side of the basketball.

"She has been timid in the past," said Akers. "We have some individual practices and she seems to be improving her offense."

Akers said each player goes through individual practice times and Hopkins has worked hard around the basket.

"In our intrasquad games, she has really improved offensively," Akers said. "Her free throw shooting has been a little inconsistent. But Leslie has been here and worked every day and has only missed one practice. She has shown a lot of improvement in rebounding. I feel the only thing we need to do is improve her offense."

The point guard position is the big question mark for the Lady Cats, according to the new Betsy Layne coach. Amanda Hall controlled the position the last three seasons but that will change this year, said Akers.

"Amanda is the captain of the team and she has been everything. We will move from the point guard to the two guard," said Akers. "But she also will be playing at other slots as well. We may need and she can go inside and outside."

While Hall will play different positions, Coach Akers is looking for more consistency from the talented guard.

With Hall moving from the point, a couple of Hamilton's will compete for the point guard slot. Heather and Leslie Hamilton are being counted on to fill the void left with the moving of Hall.

"We have no idea who our point guard will be," said Akers. "Both Leslie and Heather are our point guard right now. That position is rough, especially in this system I run. I depend on the point guard so much. In our system we do so many changes and the point guard needs to learn them all."

"I told Heather and Leslie that they will have to learn their position and everyone else's. They both have a tendency to go headlong into something when they need to calm down," said Akers.

Returning for the Lady Cats will be junior Sheena Akers, who will roam the paint area and will be a good one. Akers is expected to contribute more to the scoring column this year.

"We have been trying to improve her free throw shooting," said Coach Akers. "I told her she is going to get fouled so she is going to have to score from the line. She is another player who has been working very hard in practice."

"All of the players have bad habits they need to break and one of Sheena's is wanting to slap on defense instead of playing straight up defense. They all do that but Sheena seems to be the worse."

Jenny Parsons brings a reputation to the camp of a three-point threat and is a solid offensive player. According to Akers, she will be counted on to score.

"We will need to look to Jenny for some points," said Akers. "She has a multitude of talent but she also has a multitude of bad habits. She doesn't square up when she shoots. She is another one who is working hard on her free throw shooting because she

Knights to compete for district title

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

The Piarist School Knights basketball team could be the smallest team in the 58th District this year. That's right, the 58th District. For the first time in school history, the Knights will be competing for a district title, and they know the road will be long and rough as the veteran teams know what it takes to win.

Last year the school competed in the Three Rivers Conference and had a good first year in basketball. But when the season was about to unfold this school year, they lost their leading scorer in 6'3" Adam Hutchinson. Second leading scorer George Hall returns but has been injured.

Jason Holbrook is the tallest of the Knights as he stands 6'3" and is a junior from Salyersville. Coach Canier Hall likes the hard play of Holbrook.

"Jason works hard on rebounding and playing defense," said Hall. "He will rotate at one forward spot and play some center for us. He is a hard worker."

George Hall, a 5'11", junior is from Prestonsburg and leads the team in scoring.

"He is our team leader," said Coach Hall. "He leads in about every department and is an excellent free throw shooter."

Hall will play the point for the Knights and may move under the basket at a forward position.

He could carry the title of Mr. Consistent because that is the way Coach Hall described Matt Goeing, from Wheelwright.

"He is a fine basketball player and consistent scorer," said Hall. "He plays good defense and will be at the two-guard position."

When it comes to rebounding, that will fall to Brett Hall, from Wayland.

"He more than likely will be our leading rebounder," said Coach Hall. "He runs the floor very well and is an outstanding defensive player. He will play the middle for us."

James Hall stands 6'3" and hails from Pikeville and will share time at both the forward and guard slots.

"A very fine basketball player," said Hall. "Again, one of our good defensive players."

Freshman Robert Hall is only 5'9" but the Prestonsburg player does so many things well.

"He runs the floor well and can shoot the three-pointer," said Coach Hall. "He is very reliable player and shoots free throws well. He will play the point or two-guard."

From Betsy Layne comes Robert Rose, 5'8", a freshman who will give the Knights some outside shooting power.

"He is another one of those good free throw shooters we have," said Hall. "He handles the ball well and runs the court good. He is the type of player who will hustle all the time. A very good basketball player."

Brian Yates is from Pikeville and stands at 5'9".

"He plays hard and shoots the ball well," said Coach Hall. "He will play some guard for us and we like the way he plays."

The lack of numbers on the bench will be a problem for the Knights because they will find it difficult to press the opposition and depend more on the half court game.

The Knights will make their first appearance in the All "A" Classic in Pikeville later in January.

This is the second year for basketball at The Piarist School and they play their home games at the Mountain Christian Academy gym in Martin.

Second season could be difficult

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

Almost. Almost and very close, a second season of girls basketball at the Piarist School seemed to be a dead issue and there would be no team this season, but a team did develop.

"I can breathe a sigh of relief now that we are able to have a girls basketball team," said head coach Darnella Bradley. "Almost a week into conditioning, the prospect of even having enough bodies to complete a roster for a girls' team was bleak."

With the twisting or arms, according to the coach, and the pleas falling of concerned ears, the Lady Knights' roster was decked with nine dedicated girls.

"With only one player returning from last year, Tai England, a coach might quite possibly be pessimistic about the upcoming season," said Bradley. "But I was not. These young ladies put forth 110 percent in their every day practices.

"They hustle and are very dedicated to improving the skills they are acquiring."

Coach Bradley said she felt it an honor to coach them the fundamentals of the game.

"Teaching young women that the spirit of competition is healthy and through sports they can improve not only physically but mentally and socially," said Bradley. "Sporting events offers young women a chance to meet new and interesting people. Coaching provides me the opportunity to 'coach' them not only on the hardwood but in life. It is about teaching them how one can learn and improve from successes or defeats."

Coach Bradley agrees that the second season will prove to be a difficult one. One area that concerns Coach Bradley is at the point guard position.

"I am hoping to initiate additional ball handling drills to help this situation," she said. "In addition our ball handling woes, our passing needs work also. I attribute this to the inexperience we have as a young team."

The second year coach said that she has seen improvement in her team in this area.

"They are dedicated young ladies and dedicated to the team concept and they all enjoy the game of basketball," said Bradley.

With England the lone returnee from last year's team, she was chosen as the team captain this year.

"She is a solid player," said Bradley. "She recognizes defenses and helps in initiating the offense. Tai has shown a great improvement from last year. She is a key rebounder for us under the basket and she demonstrates leadership and is a motivator to her teammates."

The rest of the team consists of first year players and one of those will be Chasity Ison, from Paintsville.

"This is her first year of organized basketball," said Bradley. "She works very hard in practice and always has a positive attitude. I just hope we can keep her healthy (knee problems) because she is a defensive and offensive threat on the court."

Clarissa Mulliken is from Pikeville and a junior. She will play a dual role for the Lady Knights this season.

"She will be playing some at forward and guard," Bradley said. "She has the ability to drive the lanes and is a very dedicated young lady. If she is to fill the point guard spot, Clarissa must work on protecting the ball and using her left hand."

The McDonald girls, Natalie and Amanda, have been appropriately named the "harassers." Natalie stands only 5'3" but is all over the court.

"She is a very aggressive basketball player on defense," said Bradley. "She is still learning our offensive plays and has adapted well to the pace of high school basketball."

Amanda McDonald, 5'3", likes to face her opponent.

"Extremely aggressive," said Bradley. "Her speed and quickness will be an asset to the team. She will be sharing the responsibility at point guard. She puts forth a great effort in learning her position."

Emily Meyer will run the point for the Lady Knights this season.

"We are feeling the impact of Emily at the point guard position," said Bradley. "Her ability to read the defense and more importantly protect the ball is affecting the offense."

Meyer has been out of the Lady Knights' lineup and will return to her position on the floor at the end of the semester.

Morgan Caldwell from Prestonsburg, is one of the taller players the Lady Knights have. It is her first season of organized basketball.

"Her height and rebounding ability is an asset to the team," said Coach Bradley. "She is very aggressive on the boards and has a quick put-back. I am looking forward to watching this young lady mature on the court as she learns more about the game."

Amber Hutchinson, a 5'3" guard from Martin, is being asked to learn a new role for the Lady Knights at point guard.

"She possesses a top of the key shot which we feel will start to fall with practice," said Bradley. "She has demonstrated tremendous work ethic. Amber has already improved her ball handling skills this season."

The Lady Knights got a good player in Kari Ross, Prestonsburg. Ross stands at 5'10" and is a freshman. Coach Bradley said the next four years will be good ones with Ross in camp.

"She is an athlete," said Bradley. "She works hard in practice and puts forth 110 percent on the court. She is going to play a vital part in our offense. Kari goes to the basket strong and is a good rebounder. Some day I look for her to lead the Three Rivers Conference in blocked shots."

The Lady Knights are young but the future in girls' basketball looks bright with all the talent that has made the roster for the Piarist School. It will take time and patience before a winner emerges.

Fourth district title goal for Blackcats

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

No team has dominated the 58th District like the last four Prestonsburg Blackcat teams under coach Jackie Pack. Coach Pack brought recognition to the Prestonsburg program when he arrived at the school to begin the '94-95 season.

The last time the Blackcat program found any prominence was in 1989 when they made the trip to the Sweet Sixteen under then-coach Gordon Parido.

Under Pack, the program has claimed three conference titles and shared another with Allen Central.

As the 1998-99 season unfolds, the Cats will attempt to do something that no other district school has done and that is to win a fourth consecutive district title.

Prestonsburg will be without the service of All-District, All-Regional center, Andy Jarvis as well as floor leader Wes Samons. The Blackcats fell in the opening round of the 15th District tournament last year to a good Pikeville team.

But that was last year and this is a new season. Prestonsburg is considered one of the top three teams in the region this year a favorite to capture a fourth straight district championship.

There is reason for optimism as Coach Pack will return three starters from last year's regional team. Experience will be in place as well as a team that is set on winning it all again.

Returning for the Blackcats will be mega star, senior John Ortega, whose many talents have labeled him as perhaps the best athlete in Kentucky.

His ability to play three major sports, and play them well, gives the Blackcats a steady performer and floor leader.

Ortega held down the point guard slot the past three seasons and will be back at the familiar place this season. He averaged just over 14 points per game last year, but everyone agreed, it could have been much higher had he been called on to score. With Jarvis (25 ppg) and Samons (18 ppg) on the floor, Ortega did not need to look to score. He ran the ballclub from his position and was heralded as one of the best.

Also returning will be dependable Joe Campbell (6'4", junior). Campbell is the type of player who just goes about his business and you never know he is scoring until you look at the book and see where he pumped in 18 or 24 points. He is an excellent shooter from the three-point arc. He works hard, runs the floor well and a very strong rebounder. He is a team player and maybe a little too unselfish.

Size? The Blackcats have in 6'6" center Nathan Leslie, who did not get back on the basketball court until his junior year, concentrating mostly on football, when he was a standout. Leslie cracked the starting lineup last year about midway of the season and has been a fixture ever since.

He is a bruiser around the basket and known to put a few of the opposition on the floor. A very strong rebounder and he averaged close to 12 points per game last season.

Unlike most big men who like to hang around the paint area, Leslie can step outside the area and drain a three or hit the short jumper. He is a strong inside player and plays very strong on defense. He has good quickness for his size.

With Ortega, Campbell and Leslie back, Coach Pack had to look for someone to fill the other vacated spots. Jason Keathley, who started at the beginning of last season, will fill the power forward slot. Keathley is very underrated among regional players. He is the garbage player on the Cats team and gets the garbage baskets. A solid rebounder and plays hard on defense.

Keathley needs to pick up some of the scoring drop off created with the loss of Jarvis and Samons. He averaged just over 10 ppg last year.

Kalen Harris or Russ Music will run at the two-guard slot and both are capable of draining the three-point basket from beyond the arc.

Harris is quick and a "bumper" under the basket. A solid defensive player who is not afraid to mix in with the taller timber in the middle. Harris may be a step slower on defense than Music, but he gives the team that someone who can fill the void left by Samons.

Music, like Harris, is a good outside threat for

Crisp hopes Lady Blackcats heal

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

As the 1998-99 girls high school basketball season unfolds, second year coach Jackie Day Crisp is hoping that the wounds from last year and this past summer have all healed as all three of his returning seniors have suffered early setbacks.

Leading-scorer Shelly Greathouse had to undergo knee surgery and hasn't been able to go full strength until two weeks ago. Kimi Nunnery had surgery over the summer and Crystal Slone broke a finger playing, of all things, powder puff football.

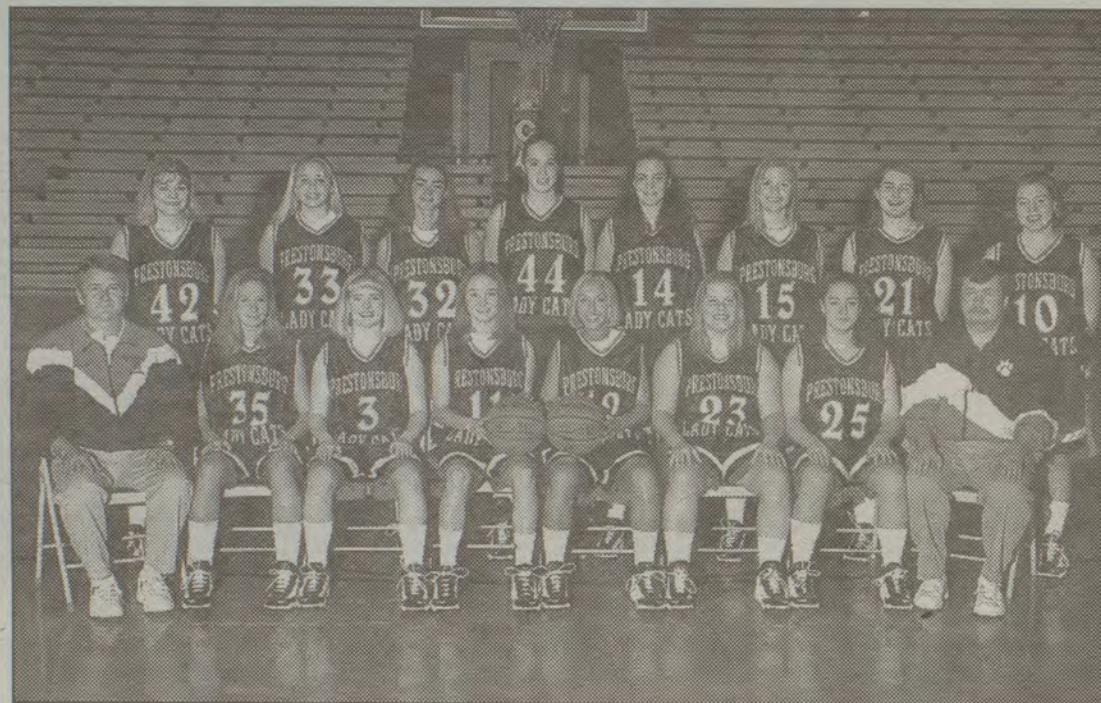

"We are not looking for a whole lot out of Shelly until January," said Crisp. "Crystal is off to a slow start and got in practice late. She is now starting to run some offense for us. Kimi is just getting back."

"So those three girls have played a lot of basketball for four years and I am expecting a whole lot out of them this year. They are all three good athletes and they are going to come along. You will not find a greater athlete than Crystal Slone in the county. Shelly is a great shooter and Kimi gives you everything she's got. She is solid offensively and defensively."

"You need that senior leadership because after that we drop down to a junior and then down to sophomores. You have to have those seniors to lead you. I expect we will get off to a slow start, but after that we will be all right."

History has shown the Lady Blackcats to struggle from the free throw line and it proved true last year. The Prestonsburg coach is hopeful those woes will not be around this season.

"We haven't worked that much on it since practice started, trying to get our offensive plays down," he said, "but we are going to work real hard at being a better free throw shooting team."

"If we are to go beyond the first game of the regional tournament, then we have to become a better free throw shooting team."

Freshman Megan Hyden will run the team at point guard when the season begins.

"I know that I am putting a lot pressure on her but by the time mid January rolls around, she is going to be seasoned. I thought she was an excellent grade school player. She fits into our style of ball. She pushes the ball up court and handles the ball real well. Megan sees the floor better than anyone I have had here last year or this year."

Greathouse will be the two-guard for Prestonsburg after running at the point the last four seasons, but, according to Coach Crisp, will not be there until she is in shape.

"She probably will not be there early in the season," he said. "When she gets back in shape, she will be the two-guard."

Crystal Slone will fill the two-guard spot until Greathouse can return.

"Crystal will start there but will probably end up playing the three position when Shelly returns," he said.

The Lady Blackcats have one of the top post players in the 15th Region in sophomore Amelia Conley. Coach Crisp said that much was expected of the center.

"I took her aside and told her as far as this team's success goes, much will fall on her shoulders," he said. "She is the biggest player we have and she is a good athlete. She shoots the ball well but she needs to get concerned about her work ethic. It has gotten better. She is just a happy-go-lucky girl."

Conley can pump in the 10-12 foot jumper as well as playing inside. Coach Crisp said she has been working hard on her shot outside.

"We cannot pound the ball inside all the time," he said. "We need to open the lanes for the other girls and by bringing Amelia out, we can do that."

The power forward slot will be filled by Nunnery, who is one of the team's top rebounders.

"She gets a lot of weak side rebounds," said Crisp. "She gets a lot of put-backs and has a nose for the ball. We have been working on her three-point shooting."

"Kimi got into a bad habit, wanting to take every thing to the basket. She is a good outside shooter."

Miss Versatile, Brooke Coleman, will be playing everywhere on the court, according to Crisp.

"She is my do-everything," said Crisp. "She can play the point guard, she is playing the four right now. She is probably the smartest player I have on the floor right now by knowing what we are trying to do. I expect a lot out of her this season."

Crisp said he expects much out of his sophomores this season.

"They played a lot for me this summer. I didn't take a senior with me to summer camps. They all had jobs," he said. "Brooke has developed a good three-point shot. She is inside and outside and that is good. We can use her at the high post or the low post."

Brandi Wells, junior, will lead the bench area and will see a lot of playing time for the Lady Blackcats.

"We have been working with Brandi," Crisp said. "I always tell my players to shoot the ball but Brandi is one of those who wonders if she should shoot or not. She is going to help us."

Ashley Ousley is going to be a good one and it appears that she will be the backup for Conley in the middle.

"She is going to be a good player for us," he said. "She will have to come in and relieve Amelia if she gets into foul trouble. She is the second biggest girl I have."

Brittany Hites is an excellent outside shooter. "She struggled some this season. I have no doubt that she will be developing her shot and helping out later in the season. She hustles and gives you everything she's got," Crisp said.

Stephanie Adams is expected to contribute as a sophomore. "She has a nose for the ball. She has to play a three or four for us. She blocks out well and is always around the ball when it comes off the boards. She gets a lot of put-backs and she has a nice outside shot as well."

There are other good sophomores and Lauren Majakey is one of those.

"She is a hard-nosed player. You tell her what you want her to do and that is what she does," said the Prestonsburg mentor. "She is a hard-hustling type player. She is going to play JV ball this year and by next season, she is going to give us a lot of help."

Charity Shepherd, a freshman, is expected to become a solid inside player for the Cats.

"She is a good inside shot and a good defensive player," said Crisp. "She has developed her shot and it is coming along good. She can hit the 15-footer as well as anyone we have."

Angela Howell will be the back point guard behind Megan, but Crisp said that she could start there as well.

"It's not a done thing," he said. "Right now she is my back-up point guard. She will be vying for that position with Megan this year. She did a good job for us this summer and she is shooting the ball real good. Angela has developed her three-point shot."

OTHER PLAYERS TO WATCH

- Rachel Mitchell has a lot of speed and is developing a good shot as well.
- Vicki Bowling has shown a lot of improvement, according to Crisp, and worked hard this past summer. "She has come leaps and bounds since she started playing with us this summer," he said.
- Rachael Hall plays hard-nosed basketball and the Prestonsburg coach likes her determination.
- Judy Bailey is in her first season of organized basketball but, according to Coach Crisp, practices very hard.

"My freshmen class is a good one and I am excited about them," said Crisp. "But our future lies in our sophomore class."

Overall, the Prestonsburg coach expects his team to get off to a slow start but be a solid contender when it comes tournament time.

Shannon, Paige to lead Raiders

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

High on Raider Mountain sits South Floyd High School and Raider Drive, which leads to the facility that has been traveled by a lot of good basketball teams that have come into the gym and left with a victory.

But that could all change this basketball season and victories for the visiting team could be scarce as second-year coach Henry Webb has his philosophy in place and the Raiders are responding. South Floyd fans are expecting a banner season this year, and so is Webb.

"I would like to think that by the end of the year we are going to be competitive to where we can compete with anybody anywhere," said Webb. "That is our goal and that is all that I am going to settle for."

The Raiders will be a team that will have a good mixture. By that it is meant the veterans mix with some very promising sophomores and freshmen.

Justin Paige and Ryan Shannon will be the floor leaders for the Raiders and both would like to be pivotal players for a program that finished third in the conference last year after several years in the basement.

The move to a third place finish was just the first rung on the ladder to the top for Webb and the Raiders. But if South Floyd is to move up one or two more rungs, then Shannon and Paige will have to carry the majority of the load.

Coach Webb thinks Paige has a wealth of talent and could play at the next level, but he needs to step up his game.

"I had a very serious conversation with Justin," said Coach Webb. "He is just as much athletic ability as anyone in this region. He is loaded with talent. He has good jumping ability, a nice stroke and shoots the ball well."

Where lies the problem?

"He had a tendency not to play hard," Webb said. "I am going to get it out of him one way or another. The kid has tons of potential. For us to have a successful season, I told him, he is going to have to step up and be a leader. He is going to have to step up and work hard."

Paige (6'3", senior) is quick and jumps well for his size. He is strong in the middle and can drain the three-pointer as well. Paige will be playing at the small forward slot.

Shannon will be the floor general for the Raiders at the point guard position. He is one of the purest shooters to play for the Raiders since the school came into existence five seasons ago.

"We are very pleased with Ryan. We have worked hard with him on some fundamental ball handling skills. He is going to have a solid year for us," said the South Floyd mentor. "Ryan is what I call, a gamer. A gamer is a person who loves to win and is very competitive in everything he does. He is quick and handles the ball well. He does have a tendency to keep his head down some. He is going to have to have a super season in order for us to be successful this season."

A pair of soft hands and a soft shooting touch around the basket makes Jimmy Stumbo (6'5", senior) a solid post-up player.

Stumbo will play the middle for the Raiders but look for him to do damage outside also. He gives Coach Webb some good size around the basket.

"I have seen several teams in the summer and we are going to be as big as anybody. Jimmy is 6'5", has great hands around the basket and is a very aggressive player."

Webb said that Stumbo did not have the experienced as some of the other players but is working hard.

"He has a tendency to get a little bit ahead of himself," said Webb. "I call him my 'lunch time' player. He is very patient, but when he gets to lunch, he dominates. Jimmy has to come along for us."

At the power forward position will be junior Byron Hall (6'4") and when you mention the name of Byron Hall, Coach Webb's eyes light up.

"He is a work horse. You cannot find anyone who works harder than Byron," said the South Floyd coach. "He is a good clean player, yet he is aggressive. He is a strong kid."

Hall is the type of player who may not be known for a lot of points, but when you look at the rebound chart, his name will be among the leaders.

"Don't be surprised if he is not one of the better rebounders in this district if not in the region," Webb said. "He is just a flat out work horse and we are impressed with Byron. He can step out and shoot the three as well."

The two-guard slot could be filled by Kyle Tackett, who Coach Webb said he expects big things from.

"I am looking for big things from Kyle this year," he said. "He is a versatile player and he can shoot the threes. He is very athletic and jumps well, shoots well and is just an excellent basketball player."

Webb said that Tackett had to learn to play under control and not get into foul trouble. "He is a great defensive player," Webb said.

Unlike previous seasons when after the fifth starter, the talent level dropped off, it's just the opposite this season. The Raiders will feature a long bench and will lose very little when Coach Webb goes to it.

Off the bench will be P.J.

Hall (6'6") who will give South Floyd some added height under the basket. Hall is a garbage type of player and will score off some missed shots.

"He is a football player and still a little rusty," said Webb. "He had a good summer for us and we need a good season out of P.J."

Webb said that Hall had a long reach and will help in rebounding for the Raiders.

"If he gets in position he can score also," he said.

While there are seniors and juniors, there are also sophomores and freshmen who, according to Coach Webb, will see playing time regardless of the grade they are in.

"If you work hard here, you are going to play and we don't care what grade you are in," said Webb.

The bench received some help from a Columbus, Ohio transfer, Shawn Dyson. Dyson brings quickness and speed to the Raider lineup.

"He is a small kid but he is fundamentally sound," said Webb. "He doesn't have blazing speed, but he is quick. If he is open he can knock down the treys. He is the type of player who can come and give us some positive minutes."

John Meade is expected to see playing time for the Raiders as he adds to the long bench.

"John has looked good in preseason," said Webb. "He still has a way to go but we look for him to contribute. He has stepped up on his ball handling skills."

Ryan Manns, Zack Lane, Josh Moore, James Slone, P.J. Cox and Josh Newman make up the long South Floyd bench.

"We have some solid young players," said Webb. "We are very pleased with our freshmen group. We have an eighth grader in Michael Hall and we are expecting a lot of good things out of him. The kids got a lot of talent. We have some other talented freshmen in Rusty Tackett, Joe Skeans and Jason Spriggs."

Webb is a disciplinarian and feels that is the key to any good team.

"It is the key to every team. You have to play defense," he said. "I love the up and down tempo game. We are going to push the basketball and we are going to press with every opportunity. There are some teams we can press and there are teams we can not press."

Coach Webb is convinced that Prestonsburg is the team that bears watching in the district.

"Prestonsburg has been blessed with great talent," he said. They have a good coach in Coach (Jack) Pack. They have to be a favorite coming into the season.

"With players like John Ortega, Joe Campbell and Nathan Leslie returning they have to be strong. I really like the (Jason) Keathley kid. He is a great player."

Webb feels that it will be harder for the Blackcats to repeat after losing players like Wes Samons and Andy Jarvis.

"It makes them more beatable," said Webb. "Jarvis caused a lot of havoc on the offensive boards. I thought Samons was the motor and you could not press them because of him. They are going to have a super team."

Webb feels that Allen Central will be in the thick of things even without the departed Todd Howard.

"I heard people say they lost a lot when they lost Howard," said Webb. "I give Coach (Johnny) Martin a lot respect for the way he brought his team along last year. "The key against Allen Central, I feel, is size wise. We can match up with them and that will be the key."

"Betsy Layne has some good strong players. Tim (Rice) does a good job over there. I look for Betsy Layne to be strong this year. They return five of their top seven players."

Lady Raiders should show depth

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

Ever play musical chairs? When the music stops, you try to find a chair to sit in. The object is to be the last one to find the final seat.

As the 1998-99 high school basketball season tips off this weekend, the South Floyd Lady Raiders are hoping that the game of "musical coaches" is finally over so the team can get on with building a program that has been the doormat of the 58th District for the past four seasons.

Ronnie Patton will be the new head coach at South Floyd and the third one in less than a year. Patton takes over the program when it has started to make strides into being a very competitive basketball team.

Patton will be in his first season as a varsity high school coach after having successful seasons at Duff Elementary where he won two county championships. He succeeds Henry Webb and John Martin who split the season last year.

Patton said there wasn't that much difference in moving up the ladder to the high school level.

"Fundamental basketball is still fundamental basketball," said Patton, "no matter what level you play on. These girls are no different than the grade school girls, except here it is more intense."

Patton is of the old school where he believes that fundamentals of the game are still the best way to win games.

"You have to work on your fundamentals," he said. "You have to get your fundamentals down. If you have a fundamental team and solid all the way around, then you are going to win games."

South Floyd returns some veteran players but they will be very young coming off the bench. The Lady Raiders will be a much improved defensive team, and Coach Patton would not have it any other way.

"Our defense right now is not very strong," confessed Patton. "We are giving up more wide open shots. Maybe in a game situation it might change some."

While Patton is a defensive-minded coach and is not that concerned over his team being a good defensive club early in the season.

"We are about halfway through our practice season right now," said Patton.

"We are going to work hard on our defense. I preach this to the girls every time I come into the gym: Defense makes offense."

Patton said the Lady Raiders will go after each team they played and with a very aggressive pressing defense.

"We are going to try and make the other teams make mistakes," he said. "We will do some half-court pressing and trapping. I haven't changed my philosophy about defense."

Patton said this year's Lady Raider team will have a different makeup and the fans will see that difference.

"We may have two or three different teams this year," he said. "We may have a pressing team or we may have a half-court team. As far as defense goes, it will be there. It will just take a little time to work on it."

South Floyd will return a pretty impressive roster this year with some strong senior leadership. Olivia Stewart returns for her final year and will be counted on to be the floor leader for the Lady Raiders.

"She is a fine basketball player," said the new South Floyd coach. "She has a lot of speed and is a good shot."

But Coach Patton said that Stewart is human.

"She has one weakness and that is in her ball handling. But she makes up for it in her hustle and on defense," he said. "We don't expect Olivia to handle the ball that much in bringing up the court. We will try and get the ball to her as much as we can."

Coach Patton said that the team's overall defense will help Stewart.

"Our defense is going to make Olivia look a lot better probably when we go into these pressing situations, full court and half court defense. She needs some work but she is getting there."

Another returning senior will be Misty Berger, who has as much talent as anyone in the 15th District. But this year, Berger will find herself playing a different role.

"I'm changing Misty," said Patton. "When I first came here back in the summer, Misty was outside shooting. We would run through some offense and stuff and seems she wanted to be around that three-point line. In my opinion, Misty is a better inside player than she is an outside player."

Patton said that is where he wants her to play this year, inside.

"She does have a decent shot from the outside," he said. "We have looked at some different offense that will put her on the inside and some that will put her on the outside. Misty has set a personal goal of being a good inside player. She is going to be a hard one to handle if I can keep her in the game without fouling out."

With all the injuries of the past years now memories, Shanna Hall is expected to step up her game and make a major contribution for Coach Patton this year.

"She is going to be a surprise," said Patton. "She is one of the tallest girls we have. She is quick and handles the ball well. She is a good inside player and has some excellent moves and runs the floor well."

Taking care of the basketball has always been part of the history of the South Floyd Lady Raiders team, but one person who could help South Floyd will be Jamie Slone.

"I know that she works hard in practice every day," said Patton. "She still has a few problems with handling the basketball. She needs to work on her shot some but, when it comes to playing heart, Jamie has a lot of heart."

Brooks Hamilton will carry an unusual nickname into the season as she has been dubbed the "mouth of the Lady Raiders."

"She keeps everyone going," said Patton. She has developed a better outside shot. She is still a little slow and we are working on her quickness. She has good judgment and is a smart ball player."

Sharpshooting Martha Crawford will return and could be the best outside shooter on the team. But it could be her confidence level that helps her.

"I am tickled to death with Martha," said Patton. "Over the last few weeks, she has shot the eyes out of it. She is playing with a lot of confidence right now; something she did not have when I first got here. She is slow and needs to work on her speed, but she has a good head on her shoulders and uses her head. She has developed a good inside game."

The ball handling skills may have to lie in Margaret Morgan, a junior. Morgan is one of the more experienced players returning and may see some time at point guard.

"An excellent ball handler — an excellent ball handler," Patton said. "She will be one of the key ball handlers in the game for us."

Patton said that Morgan needs to see the floor well.

"We work hard every day to get her head up and to see the floor," he said.

"She has one of the prettiest shots, as far a jump shot, on the team. She is going to have to be a team leader this year."

Off the bench, which will be long for the Lady Raiders, will be a solid player in Lindsey Hall. Patton said he likes the play of Hall in a half-court game.

"She is smart and knows how to cut to the basket," he said. "Even though she does not have a lot of size, she knows how to post up inside. She needs to work on her shot some. She handles the ball well. She is going to be a big part of this team."

Size? The Lady Raiders have it in Angie Tackett. Tackett is a different looking ball player this year, according to Patton.

"I've had people tell me that they had never seen Angie move like she has this year," said Patton. "She is working hard on her inside game and her defense. She is excellent on hustling. She is really trying hard. Angie is up and down the floor first and gets rewarded by shooting a layup. She is a strong rebounder."

Coach Patton said he sees a lot of potential in Minnie Tackett.

"I have a lot of high hopes for Minnie," he said. "She has a lot of good fundamentals. She has good speed and a real good shot. She is going to play a big part on this team."

Seeing a lot of playing time this season will be some young players like Jessica Paige, a freshman.

"She is going to be an excellent basketball player," said the South Floyd mentor. "She is quick and is just now learning to keep her head up. She wants to dribble a little too much with her head down."

Patton said that he has seen a lot of young players come and go but Candice Mitchell could top that list.

"I have had a lot of grade school players, but I have never seen a girl with the ability to shoot with her left hand. She has some great moves around the basket. She knows how to move the ball but she is a little weak in some areas on her fundamentals."

Monica Newsome and Sarah Johnson are two other freshmen to see playing time for South Floyd.

"Monica and Minnie played at McDowell together and they know how to work together. Monica is a floor leader. I like the way Monica acts. She penetrates and knows how to move the ball."

"Sarah needs to pick up some weight. She needs to develop some speed but she works hard and she listens," said Patton.

The Allen Central team may carry the favorite's role this year in the 58th District, and Coach Patton believes they are still the team to beat this season.

"At this point and time, you can't really tap anyone to be a favorite," said Patton. "Allen Central has always been a favorite in the district. They have always had a good feeder school. I probably know Allen Central better than anyone knows them. Most of the girls played for me any way. Betsy Layne is returning a good bunch of girls. Prestonsburg, they are going to be tough."

Patton said that by midway of the season, he wouldn't count out his Lady Raiders, either.

"If I can get these girls to learn our defense, learn how to run the floor and get their heads up, I wouldn't count us out either," he said.

the two-guard slot.

"Right now, he will start there," Coach Rice said. "He has earned the opportunity to play there. He is an excellent shooter. He just needs to have confidence. He needs a game where he can hit his first two or three shots."

In grade school, Tommy Taulbee was one of the top players in the county, but he chose to forsake the game of basketball after his freshman season. But this year, Taulbee returns as a senior and is expected to contribute early.

"He is going to get a lot of playing time," Rice said of the returning player. "He is a little rusty right now but he plays hard as anybody we have on the team. He is a good defensive player and he can run the point and rest Justin. He will play the two-guard or go inside and play."

Much Like Anthony Tackett who is a versatile player. He penetrates well and takes the ball to the basket. He is an excellent rebounder for his size. Probably the best defensive player we have on the team."

Allen Central

good ball handler and passer. He is an ultimate team player and defender."

Sophomore Larry Mullins (3 ppg, 1.0 rpg, 1.7 assists) will spend time at the point guard position. As a freshman, Mullins saw a lot of playing time and is capable of taking over the role so Samons can be moved to the two-guard. Mullins is an assist person and getting the assists is just like scoring to him.

"He is already a two-year varsity player," said Martin. "He is a very effective player on the press and possesses speed and quickness."

The Rebels have a pure shooter in junior Josh Howell. Howell has all the tools to be a good for the Rebels this season.

"He will play the two spot for us this year," said Martin. "He is a good shooter with good speed and defensive quickness."

Coach Rice has a very good crop of sophomores, led by Brad Daugherty, who has been playing a lot at the varsity level.

"Brad is real quick. He has quick hands and deflects a lot of passes," said Rice.

Another sophomore is Brock Keathley, who may see some time at the point.

"Brock is an excellent jumper, has a good shot and can play the point or two-guard," said the Betsy Layne mentor.

Adam Collins stands only six-feet tall, but according to Coach Rice, he plays a lot bigger.

"He just gets such good positioning under the basket," he said. "He will get some playing time this season."

Coach Rice is just waiting for Jay Arnett (6'3", 190) to heal up. Arnett suffered the ankle injury and he said, "I can't wait to play."

"Jay will start when he is able to come back," Rice said. "He was injured in our Blue/White game and was hurt on the first play of the game. He is going to get a lot of minutes."

This is the first year for Barrett Brooks and he has some things to learn, according to Coach Rice.

He has a big body and is an excellent rebounder," said Coach Rice. "He is hard to move under the basket. He is just learning organized basketball."

Others who the Betsy Layne coach said will contribute this season include Robert Rose, Barrett Blankenship, David Johnson, and Robbie Johnson, along with Eddie Tibbs and sophomore Anthony Tackett.

Coach Rice said his ballclub will be a more pressing team this year.

"We will also try and run the ball a little more than we did last year," he said. "We really need to find someone to replace Craig (who averaged 22 points per game). He will be hard to replace but, hopefully, we can get each player to step up their game five or six points more."

The Betsy Layne coach said there several things that have to happen for the Bobcats to have a good season and one of those is shooting the ball.

"We have to shoot the ball well in order to play well," said Coach Rice. "We have to shoot around 50 percent each game. We will run up and down the floor and we will be a little quicker."

Coach Rice wondered if defending champion, Prestonsburg, can come back after the loss of Andy Jarvis and Wes Samons.

"That was two major losses for them," he said. "When they lost Jarvis they lost 25 points per game. In Wes, they lost a lot of team leadership. I don't know if they replace that or not."

"Jack will put together a pretty good team. They still have that size inside. They have a prime-time player in John Ortega and I think he is the best athlete in the state of Kentucky."

Coach Rice looks at Allen Central the way he always has, a definite threat.

"They lost Todd Howard from last year, in fact, all of us lost our top scorer from last year," he said. "But Allen Central plays that hectic fast pace game and they are hard to beat. You have to be prepared when you play them."

The South Floyd Raiders rank high on Coach Rice's list.

"The best team I have seen this preseason," he said. "I've watched them all and if the regional tournament started now, the way they are playing, South Floyd would win it. They have surprised me. Henry (Webb) has them playing exceptionally well."

on the Prestonsburg team. His 6'1" frame also allows him to grab a few rebounds.

Coach Pack will be looking to Eric Price, Ricky Powers, Dustin Music to come off the bench.

Allen Central seems to once again be the thorn in the flesh of the Blackcats as the two teams have built up a rivalry over the years. The Rebels have finished second to Prestonsburg the past four seasons.

If the Cats are to make it four in a row, then this team must find that floor leadership left void by the loss of Samons. Overall, they are a solid defensive unit that will come after you at the half court, three-quarters and full court.

The Blackcats are a solid pick to replace Paintsville as the top team in the 15th Region. They will play in the prestigious Holiday Classic in Lexington later in December. The tournament trail will also lead them to the WYMT Classic in Hindman in January. Their home schedule includes 14th Region power Perry Central on January 8.

The Cats will only play eight games at home this season and will be a well traveled team with games also at Bryan Station and Harrison County.
