More on fatality

In the fatal accident on KY 114 last Thursday, the victim, Ronnie Cordle, 33, of Prestonsburg was ejected from his vehicle, according to a Kentucky State Police report, which came in on Friday. Cordle apparently pulled onto the highway from his residence at Frasure's Apartments and into the path of a vehicle driven by Donald Whitaker of Lexington. Cordle was pronounced dead at Highlands Regional Medical Center, and Whitaker was treated and released. Troopers Byron Hansford and Mike Thorpe were assisted by members of the Floyd County Rescue Squad, Middle Creek Volunteer Fire Department, Trans-Star Ambulance and University of Kentucky Aero-Med.

Massey idles mines

Some Floyd County miners are affected by the "idling" of several A.T. Massey Coal Co. operations. The company said last week that poor market conditions have caused shutdowns at Road Fork Development's Burnwell mine and a 50 percent cut at Sidney Coal's Pegs Branch mine, both in Pike County. Also affected by the company's curtailment are mines in Nicholas and Wayne counties in West Virginia. Any decision to reactivate the mines is dependent on improvements in coal market conditions, a company spokesman said. One of the reasons cited for the down market is the economic crisis in Asia.

Meeting time changes

The regular meeting date of the Floyd County Board of Elections has been changed to the third Thursday of each month at 4 p.m. in the Law Library of the Floyd County Courthouse. The next scheduled meeting is March 18.

Pike accident claims two

A two-car collision on KY 194 at Kimper in Pike County Sunday afternoon resulted in the deaths of Gary Trivette, 23, and his seven-year-old daughter, Katie, of Phyllis. According to a Kentucky State Police report, a vehicle driven by Margaret Miller was traveling east when it crossed into the westbound lane and struck Trivette's vehicle head-on, causing it to run off the road and into a ditch. He was pronounced dead at the scene by Pike Deputy Coroner Frank Robinson. The young girl was taken to the University of Kentucky Medical Center where she died Monday. KSP Troopers Eddie Crum, Matt Carter and Darren VanHorn were assisted by the Grapevine Fire Department and Phelps Ambulance Service.

In Wheelwright:

It'll cost to go to work

by Willie Elliott
Staff Writer

People who work in Wheelwright will have to ante up $5 a month now since the City Commission had the second reading and approved an occupational tax at its regular meeting last Thursday.

Warden William Wolford from Otter Creek Correctional Center (OCCC) wrote a letter to be read to the commission in which he argued against the occupational tax. "I do have concerns, however, that the proposed tax would place an undue financial burden on all individuals, specifically those employed at Otter Creek.

"Although Corrections Corporation of America (OCCC's parent company) certainly represents an employee-kind company, given today's economic conditions and financial strain that confronts families, the additional tax would prove extremely cumbersome," wrote Wolford.

Commission member Andy Akers said the workers at the prison make more money than many people who work at local stores, service stations and other local businesses. All employees working within the city of Wheelwright will

Council approves MAC loan

After waiting for more than a half-hour for a quorum to gather, the Prestonsburg City Council canceled its noon meeting on Monday, only to reconvene when a sixth member showed up.

Mayor Jerry Fannin explained that two members were out of town and a third was sick with the flu which has been making its rounds among City Hall employees.

On the recommendation of the Personnel Committee, chaired by Robert Allen, the council approved the hiring of two full-time police officers, George Tussey, who has been part-time, and John Dale. Matt Goble was also approved as a part-time member of the city police

Teachers injured breaking up fight

by Willie Elliott
Staff Writer

Student fights at South Floyd High School have resulted in injuries to two teachers and prompted the board to seek expulsion for a student.

Interim Superintendent Arnold Woodrow Carter confirmed that a serious incident occurred at South Floyd on Thursday of last week. One student tried to stab another student with a pair of scissors, he said. The student was subdued, but later attacked again with a pair of lock cutters.

Two teachers, trying to break up the fight, received injuries. One teacher has a knee injury, while the other has a sprain to the back.

Dan Collins, who is the dean of students, missed three days due to injuries received while intervening in the fights, and his son Danny, who teaches technology, has been out since Thursday.

"We're taking this incident very seriously," said Carter. The central office is monitoring the situation, he said.

The incident was investigated by Kentucky State Police, and the stu-

Countywide utility organization created by Pam Shingler

Editor

With the blessing of the county commissioners, Judge-Executive Paul Hunt Thompson took a beginning step toward unifying the county's water and sewer plans during last Friday's Floyd County Fiscal Court meeting.

The fiscal court created the Floyd County Utility Service Advisory Committee "to conduct a study as to the best way to provide water and sewage service throughout Floyd County."

Thompson has made the provision of water and sewer to all sectors of the county one of the top priorities of his administration. He said the new committee will "advise and assist" the fiscal court.

The broad-based committee will include persons already involved in water projects, municipal leaders and other citizens. The resolution passed by the court lists the members as

- the county judge-executive,
- chairmen of the boards and chief operators of all the water districts in the county,

Texas fugitive arrested here

Times Staff Report

When Floyd County Sheriff's deputies pulled over a suspicious vehicle Saturday night, the arrest turned out to be more than routine.

The driver, Harlin Joe Schenck Jr., who was arrested for alleged drug and automobile violations, is apparently wanted by the Texas Department of Criminal Justice.

Schenck was stopped near Highlands Regional Medical Center by the deputies shortly after 8 p.m., according to Sheriff John K. Blackburn.

He was originally accused of operating a vehicle under the influence of drugs, of having no driver's license and no insurance, and of possession of prescription drugs not in original container and drug paraphernalia.

At the jail during the standard search, a bag of marijuana was found on his body, which added the charge of marijuana possession, Blackburn said.

A background check by the officers indicated that Schenck was a fugitive from Texas authorities. He is apparently wanted as a parole violator on charges of burglary and possession of a firearm.

Blackburn said more charges are pending against the Texan, but he said he could not be more specific until later in the week.

Bond on the Floyd County charges was set at $7,500, but Blackburn said Schenck will continue to be held for Texas officials.

The case remains under investigation by Lt. Ricky Thomsberry, Chief Deputy Linzie Hunt, and Deputies Greg Clark, Tim Clark and Clayton Teel.

About 60 area residents gathered at Prestonsburg Elementary School Monday evening to discuss Town Branch Bridge over the Levisa Fork of the Big Sandy at Prestonsburg. The state highway department has plans to replace the closed, dilapidated bridge, but where the new bridge will be built has become an issue. The state held the hearing to get citizen input. Most of those who spoke out seemed to favor tearing down the old bridge and building a new one in its place. (photo by Mike Burke) force. Also recommended and approved was the hiring of Rebecca Rowe part-time with the fire department.

Allen announced that Carrie Johnson and Paul Goble have joined the volunteer squad of the fire department. "I still think we have a ways to go to have a strong volunteer staff," Allen said.

Council members also authorized the Mountain Arts Center to secure a loan from The Bank Josephine to purchase its own video production equipment. Total cost of the equipment, according to MAC director Bob Meyer, is $84,179, but the loan will be for $50,000.

Meyer said $20,110 of the total will come from grants from the Center for Rural Development, and the remainder will be paid from the MAC's surplus capital funds. He said the loan interest rate is 5.75 percent over five years.

The council, on recommendation from the Finance Committee, approved the recent audit by William Bottoms and authorized letting bids for the next audit. Fannin said that the state has recommended that municipalities bid out the audit 90 days before the end of the fiscal year.

Ralph Davis and Gorman Collins Jr. reported that the Cable Committee has written a letter to CableVision asking for a number of items related to service, including a copy of complaint logs and how complaints are resolved. They also asked for a "profit/loss statement" for the local operation and for the company to staff the local office full-time.

The council approved two perfunctory resolutions, relating to agreements with the state Transportation Cabinet and Kentucky Infrastructure Authority. It also agreed to write a letter of support on behalf of a request by citizens at Mays Branch to have a traffic light installed.

Linda May, coordinator for the Kentucky Works Program in Floyd County, asked the council to consider placing clients who must complete work requirements in order to continue receiving cash assistance.

She said aid recipients must work between 25 and 35 hours a week "in some type of countable activity." She asked the council to establish "community service slots," which, she said, would not replace regular positions.

May said the city might have some "pet projects" that council members would like to do but for which there is no money and that her clients could carry out.

"Some have never worked outside the home, some have low skills levels and low educational levels," she said. "This is a way for them to gain skills."

Fannin said he would meet with May to discuss specific possibilities for providing the community service opportunities.

Also in attendance were Trent Nairn and Danny Hamilton.

The next regularly-scheduled meeting is March 8 at 6 p.m.

The board would not release the name of the student.

An incident at Allen Central High School on February 1 resulted in the board's expelling of the 15-year-old student involved in what was deemed an accidental stabbing at the school. The board expelled the student for the remainder of the school year because he had a weapon (knife) at school.

be assessed a flat $5 per month occupational tax.

Commissioner Jimmy Little said the tax will generate some money that can be used to upgrade the city parks. Don Hall and Mayor Marlee Samons voted against the tax.

When the issue of increasing gas prices was raised, Hall said people were already having trouble paying gas bills. Samons said he could understand that, but "something has to be done." The issue was tabled, but Samons reminded the commission to be ready to deal with the matter at the next meeting.

The city buys natural gas at a rate higher than it sells it. Samons said this situation could not continue. City attorney Tim Parker voiced similar concerns. Parker told the commission it could either raise prices or cut services to make up the differences.

The city has some gas wells that generate gas but not nearly enough to supply the city, especially during the winter months.

Several citizens stayed after the regular meeting to see what the commission would do in closed session concerning city policeman Danny Martin, but the commission took no action, and the situation remains as much a mystery as ever.

In a special-called meeting on February 9, the commission discussed Martin under KRS 61.810 (item f) which has to do with open meetings, and item f specifically deals with discussions that lead to appointments, discipline or dismissal. Martin was at the meeting with his lawyer Dan Rowland.

After the executive session, Mayor Samons said no action was taken and the matter was back to the start. Matters in closed sessions cannot be discussed publicly.

In regular session, the commission read a letter from Kentucky Oil Refining Company (KORC) representative Scott Stanley, saying that the company plans to expand the current Cardinal Mart store/gas station located at Wheelwright. "If you have anyone interested in providing jobs to Wheelwright, we would love to see this happen," Stanley wrote to the city.

The commission agreed to sign an inter-local agreement with the Floyd County Fiscal Court. This agreement, which will be drawn up by Parker this week, will allow the county to do work in the city of Wheelwright. As part of the agreement, the city will be asked to assist the county in some projects.

The city agreed to turn the swimming pool over to the county if the county will take it. Last year the city lost over $6,000 operating the pool. The county must own the property before it can expend funds operating it. The contract with the county would stipulate that the county continue to operate the pool.

Clerk Mary Ann Slone read the financial report. At the end of January the city had $8,413.38 in the general fund balance, $6,882.10 in the road aid fund, and $18.60 in the petty cash.

- In other action the commission:
- accepted and approved audit for the city from William Bottoms, PSC;
 - gave $200 to the fire department to help fund the Easter egg hunt;
 - gave $100 to the girls' AAU basketball team at South Floyd; and
 - approved the purchase of a police radio for Danny Martin's cruiser.

All members and the mayor were present at the meeting. The next regularly-scheduled meeting will be March 18.

• mayors of Allen, Martin, Wayland, Wheelwright and Prestonsburg, and

• 10 members appointed by the judge-executive with the approval of the commissioners.

Thompson said Monday that he plans to have maps of the different sectors of the county posted in the fiscal court meeting room in the courthouse, with existing water and sewer lines marked. He said he welcomes citizen input on how to use those existing lines to link and extend services.

Another of Thompson's priorities — cleaning the environment — was addressed by Kathy Guess of the state Division of Waste Management. She said she was traveling throughout the region to discuss individual county solid waste plans and to provide information on clean-ups.

She said that the state has set aside $2,000 for each county to collect old tires during spring clean-up weeks. She also informed of the state's Tire Amnesty Program which encourages counties to set up an area for people to bring in old tires. She said that Bath County recently collected 45,000 tires in three days.

Guess emphasized the need for cleaning up illegal dumps. She advised citizens to report such dumpsites by calling either their local judge-executive's office or the state toll-free number, 1-888-NO DUMPS. Persons caught dumping illegally, she said, are subject to being required to clean up the dumpsite and to pay for garbage collection for two years in advance. She also reminded that it is illegal to have dumps on private property.

Thompson took the opportunity to mention the county's month-long spring clean-up, March 20-April 24. He said during that period there will be no charge for bringing appliances, metal items and other large pieces of trash to the transfer station.

He said that county workers will pick up such items for the elderly and disabled if they call requesting the service. "If you are an able-bodied person, take your own refuse to the transfer station," he added.

The judge said he hopes to have groups "mobilized to clean up," and he encouraged businesses, neighborhoods and other groups to organize clean ups of specific areas.

Bonds

The court also heard from Terrell Ross of Mountain Racing, which operates ThunderRidge Racetrack. He told the commissioners that his organization plans to start paying the principal on its bonding indebtedness on July 1. Heretofore, the corporation has paid only the interest on the bonds secured by the county in 1993 to the tune of $2.7 million.

Ross said the race track's stockholders have been trying to take their debt down. "We had over $2.5 million of other debt that had to be assumed to get the track up and going," he said. "We have worked it all down to begin principal installments."

"Are you making any money?" asked Commissioner Gerald DeRossett.

"Well, no," said Ross. "But, the only reason we are not making money is we are having to reduce debt."

He added, "But I believe the track has been of benefit to the county. When we have a big race, you can't get a hotel room around here."

Ross pointed out that race tracks all over Kentucky "have been having problems." He cited several that have gone out of business.

Also in the area of bonds, the fiscal court authorized payment of $281,174.50 for the Detention Center Series 1994 Mortgage Revenue Bonds and $151,220 for the Solid Waste Series 1994 Revenue Bonds, both to The Bank Josephine.

Thompson said he believes the county can save more than $800,000 by refinancing the bonds, and he will explore the possibility.

The commissioners also authorized payment of $30,000 to the Floyd County Board of Education for the purchase of two properties. The county bought tracts formerly part of schools that have been closed in Garrett and Auxier. Both parcels become part of the county's park system.

Bids

Sealed bids for items advertised by the county were opened and winning bids selected. Water Works Supplies of Auxier won the bid for 50,000 feet of 4" SDR 21 PVC waterline pipe. The company bid of 63.4 cents per foot was the lowest of four bids.

Manning Tractor and Equipment of Sevierville, Tenn., submitted the lowest bid for three John Deere Self-Propelled Hydraulically Driven Highway Mowers. The multiple-use mowers will cost $130,830 each. The only other bid was from Phelps Equipment which priced New Holland vehicles rather than John Deere and at a higher cost.

Personnel

In personnel matters, the fiscal court corrected an item from last month's meeting. The wage for Deputy Jailer Sabrina Cooley was corrected to be $8.25 per hour. Her wage was listed as lower, although she had completed a probationary period.

At the request of Jailer Roger Webb, the commissioners also approved Deputy Jailer Rhonda Conn's employment retroactive to July 1, 1998. Webb said she has worked part-time since September of 1996.

The court also approved Thompson's request for the county to create a new administrative position, Economic Development/Special Project Director, at an annual salary of $15,000 with no benefits. Thompson asked Deputy Judge-Executive Chris Waugh and Commissioner Larry Foster Stumbo to take applications for the position.

The commissioners also approved the promotion of Bruce Prater to County Road Crew Leader at a wage of $11.26 an hour. Prater, the resolution stated, has completed a six-week trial period as a crew leader.

Thompson asked the commissioners to approve his appointment to the board of directors of the Big Sandy Juvenile Detention Center for a four-year term, and they agreed. He replaces Turner Campbell who resigned on February 4.

Other business

At the request of the Floyd County Rescue Squad, the fiscal court authorized Thompson to advertise for bids for a 1999 four-wheel drive Crew Cab Chassis Cab. The vehicle is funded by grant money.

The commissioners also approved the second reading providing for the "orderly succession" of the office of judge-executive. In the absence of Thompson, the ordinance provides for Deputy Chris Waugh to assume the responsibilities of judge-executive and, in Waugh's absence, for the duties to fall to a member of the fiscal court.

During the citizen comment period, James Little of the Wheelwright City Commission asked the county to "adopt" the city's pool into the county system. "There is no way we can upgrade and maintain it," Little said. "All of our budget is allocated, and we have none set aside."

Thompson said the fiscal court will discuss the matter at a work session and make a decision at the next meeting.

Prestonsburg High School teacher Carolyn Ford brought her class to the meeting to observe county government in action.

Commissioners Ernal Tackett, Gerald DeRossett and Larry Foster Stumbo were all present at the meeting.

Thompson said he plans to have a work session for the fiscal court within the next couple of weeks. The next regularly-scheduled meeting is March 19.

A step in the right direction

Hip, hip, hooray! for the Floyd County Fiscal Court.

At the suggestion of Judge-Executive Paul Hunt Thompson, the court is setting up a committee to look at the county's water and sewer needs and to explore the possibility of tying efforts together for both savings and expansion.

The needs are obvious to many Floyd Countians already — they don't have to be studied. Less than two-thirds of all the county's residents have access to a public water system. The other third-plus are forced to use wells, cisterns and abandoned coal mines for water which may or may not be safe and tasty.

Less than one in five Floyd Countians has access to an approved, environmentally-safe public sewerage system. Some have less than perfect septic systems, and still more let their waste empty directly into the nearest stream or over the hill into a roadside ditch.

(There are some occasions in which sharing is not desired, thank you.)

We definitely need a unified effort that will assure good water and proper waste disposal for everyone in the county, from Weeksbury to Endicott, from Honaker to Ruff and Tuff.

And we need the task to be accomplished as a planned effort over the entire county, not the piecemeal approach that has been used with mixed results.

United, and armed with a countywide plan, the county has a better chance of garnering grants to provide water and sewer services. It can also promote cooperation among systems within the county, and it can negotiate with surrounding counties on sharing projects on border areas.

Safe water and sewer systems improve the quality of life for everyone. But, they also are important in the county's efforts to attract new business and industry. It's of no less importance in improving our image, as well as the way we feel about ourselves as Floyd Countians, eastern Kentuckians and Appalachians. — Pam Shingler

LOOKING FOR EARLY SETTLER

I am looking for information anyone in Floyd County may have about James Cameron, born 1758, who lived in Floyd County and died there in October 1838. I would like to know where he is buried, or any information about his life. Any information would be greatly appreciated.

IN SUPPORT OF JUDY COMBS' LETTER

Editor:
As a life-long resident of Prestonsburg and a graduate of Prestonsburg Community College, I would like to publicly endorse the Judy Combs letter of February 17. The letter encouraged members of our community to write Dr. Tony Newberry, KCTCS Chancellor, 2670 Research Park Drive, Lexington, Kentucky 40511, and to share our concerns and frustrations with the current state of affairs at Prestonsburg Community College.

The letter stemmed from PCC's latest incident, the reassignment of Dean John Herald and the placement of Brenda Music, director of financial aid, on a leave of absence.

Though my heart goes out to Dean Herald and Brenda Music, I feel that their problems reflect only a small part of the larger picture of frustration and hopelessness felt by many PCC employees. By all accounts the problems began with the now questionable hiring of Deborah Floyd as PCC's president, especially given her history in higher education in Texas.

As you may recall, Floyd has had, and continues to have, on-going conflict with the majority of the teaching faculty at PCC. Last fall, Floyd had a major conflict with Morehead State University, causing MSU to move all of their classes from the PCC campus. Some were moved to the First Baptist Church which I attend. Now, apparently, Floyd is at war with the staff at PCC.

Having spoken with several members of the PCC community, there is a consensus of an environment, concealed from the public (thankfully), laced with incivility and hostility. I truly believe that it is time for a major change at PCC in order to get our college back to the institution of higher education that we expect, a college which we can look upon with pride and respect.

I would like to encourage all PCC alumni and people of our community to speak out and let their opinions be known on this most important of issues.

'IS A TOPLESS MOUNTAIN STILL A MOUNTAIN?'

Will 1999 be the year that mountains go topless? Come to think of it, is a topless mountain still a mountain?

Seriously, who would consider destroying a Kentucky landmark, the peak of Black Mountain, the highest point in the state? You guessed it—a coal company! And if the mountain top is removed, as the coal company describes the operation, and the trees and brush are gone, what's to prevent rainwater from cascading down the mountainside and flooding a large portion of Harlan County?

Is the coal company going to build a dike around Black Mountain to save people and property down its valley? Don't bet on it.

News stories describe the ecological danger to some 50 plant and animal species found in the higher elevations of Black Mountain, the same elevations that Jerichol Mining wants to strip mine.

Looking back on the years Jerichol Mining has been active in Harlan County, one would have to say that the company is best known for its labor troubles, not its effort to preserve the environment. (Remember when they had to haul their miners to work in armored cars?)

This is not something that affects only eastern Kentucky. If private concerns can get away with state landmarks, what will they pick on next?

Mountain Voices

by Willie Elliott
Staff writer

Everything is relative. If you don't believe this is so, read on and then make up your mind.

A small elephant would make a very large mosquito. See what I mean? But that example is too obvious and doesn't really mean much. Let's take examples from our lives where the differences do mean a great deal.

People are always talking about standards of living, class status and things like that. I am going to assume that most people have good food to eat, warm clothes to wear, and a roof over their heads.

I may be assuming too much, but the people I know have these things. It's after we get past the basics that things get relative.

When I was growing up, a family that had a house, one car, and a television (for the lucky few) was indeed "moving on up." Now, the car in most cases was not new and the television was a black and white that got a total of one channel and the screen looked as if the stage were set in a snow storm somewhere near Buffalo, New York.

What would happen if a family had that same set up today? I'll tell you what: Every agency in the country would be assisting that family to bring them into the mainstream.

The family would have to have at least two cars so both husband and wife could work to pay for the two cars and at least a 56 inch big-screen television that would get 300 channels.

Maybe the family that had the small black and white television was luckier. The family just got one channel, but they did have time to watch it. Now we buy so many things that we don't have time to enjoy them. Or worse, we have 300 channels and still can't find anything worth watching.

When I was growing up on Frasure's Creek, we had to use wood and coal for heat because we could not afford gas or electricity. Now we have to use electricity because we can't afford wood and coal.

Such examples make me wonder if we wouldn't be better off with less. Everyone in the family now has his/her own television so we end up speaking to each other in passing — to the bathroom, that is.

Wouldn't it be better if we had just one television so we could watch it together and at least discuss how lousy television has gotten?

The relative part comes in because we base our wants (not our needs) on what the other guy has rather than on what we really want. After a person gets the basic requirements for a comfortable life, from that point on purchases are made in large part for show.

The reaction is something like this, "Look what I have! I don't have time to use it, but I have it to impress — myself, as much as anyone else."

If the electricity goes off these days, people get in a panic and I guess rightly so, but when I was growing up, we went to a room without one BTU of heat and we got under enough covers to bury a sumo wrestler.

We didn't complain, because the kids down the road that had the television and car went to a similar room. We thought that was the way it was supposed to be.

When I was at Alice Lloyd College, the

McDowell alumni organized

Graduates of the former McDowell High School formed the McDowell High School Alumni Association in January.

Elected to head the group were Ruby Akers, honorary president; Joan Chaffins, president; Trish Cieslak, vice president; Clara Johnson, secretary; Maudie Osborne, assistant secretary; Sandra Justice, treasurer; Willie Elliott and Eddie Meade, public relations.

A nominating committee was formed from others present: Melvina Thompson, Donna Allen, Ernie Shelton, Alice Skeans and Mary Anderson.

The officers are in the process of formulating the by-laws of the newly-formed organization.

The primary purpose of the alumni association is to plan the periodic reunion of McDowell graduates. The Drift Woman's Club successfully sponsored reunions in 1997 and 1994. The interest and participation for both reunions was exceptional.

The next reunion will be on the Labor Day weekend in 2000.

Addresses will be compiled at the next meeting, Monday, March 1. The meeting will be at the Viola Bailey Senior Citizens Building in McDowell at 7 p.m.

Assistance from former students is needed. The goal of the Alumni Association is to mail out a letter by May 1 of this year to every graduate. The letter will offer membership in the association and inform graduates of the up-coming reunion.

Committees will be formed once the membership is in place.

Voices

Kentucky Wildcats basketball games were televised maybe four times a year. It was a big deal when they were on. It was indeed a treat and something we looked forward to.

Now they come on so often it's hard to keep up with them, but Linda will argue that I have done a good job keeping tabs on them. It's a case of "watching more but enjoying less."

So, sometime, sit down and think about how your life has improved and quit yearning for things so much. That's what I'm going to do — as soon as I get my 20-inch monitor, digital camera and a few other things that I want but do not particularly need.

I have a couple of additions to the list of songs with the wrong words, courtesy of the Courier Journal.

- David Bowie's "Ground Control to Major Tom," misheard as "Clown Control to Mao Tse-tung."
- Elton John's "Hold me closer, tiny dancer," recast as "Hold me closer, Tony Danza."
- Also, "Candle in the Wind," changed to "It seems to me, you lived your life like a Ken doll in the wind."

Kentucky will soon have a new area code

Most of the western counties in Kentucky will soon be getting a new area code, 270, when the state's latest area code update takes effect on November 1. Coalfields Telephone's customers in eastern Kentucky will not experience the area code change, except in the way they dial friends and family in Kentucky's reassigned areas.

"Kentucky's area code change follows those in other states," said Coalfields Director of Operations James Campbell. "With the increase of the general population and the overwhelming requests for additional lines, a new area code is needed. Technologies like fax machines, modems, cellular phones and second lines for Internet access have reduced the potential telephone number combinations within the 502 area code."

To help residents adjust to the new area code, residents in the effected areas will be able to use both 502 and 270 to make calls in the area beginning May 1. However, beginning November 1, only 270 will be effective in the designated areas.

Campbell adds that customers should update any equipment with preprogrammed calling, speed dialing, cellular phones, pagers, fax machines, business cards, Internet access numbers, notifying family members and business customers of the new area code as well as update personal directories that contain phone numbers in the reassigned counties.

The addition of the 270 area code gives Kentucky three area codes: eastern Kentucky, 606, which is unaffected by the change; the Louisville area, 502; and the rest of the state, 270.

FINANCIAL - PERSONAL INCOME

Saving for retirement with an IRA

Pam Butcher - Assistant Vice President
Citizens National Bank, Paintsville, KY

FACT: Nearly one half of all Americans have less than $10,000 in savings.

One of the biggest single investment tax breaks Congress has ever given to middle-class Americans to save for their retirements is the Individual Retirement Account, or IRA. As little as $2,000 per year invested for 10 to 15 years can accumulate substantial earnings by being compounded in a tax-free-growth Roth IRA or tax-deferred traditional IRA.

Q. What is the primary difference between a traditional IRA and a new Roth IRA?

A. Traditional IRAs let eligible savers deduct up to $2,000 a year in contributions from their taxable income and defer taxes on the account until the funds are withdrawn after age 59 1/2. Roth IRA deposits are not deductible, but earnings are exempt from taxes.

Q. Should I convert my regular IRA to a Roth IRA?

A. The conversion of an ordinary IRA to a Roth IRA will be very beneficial to many people. There are two main categories of people who can benefit from the Roth IRA conversion: (1) anyone over age 59 1/2; (2) anyone else who has funds outside of their IRA with which to pay taxes due upon conversion. The benefit to the larger number of people who have regular IRAs and convert is that they will be able to enjoy more after-tax spendable income for the rest of their lives. If there is money left in their Roth IRA at death, it benefits their heirs.

Q. Can you still make a contribution to a 1998 IRA account?

A. Yes, in most cases, you can make contributions until April 15, 1999. Some people will find it very beneficial to fund the maximum $2,000 amount to their IRA because it is a tax deductible sheltered investment.

If you want to learn more about how you can save and invest in tax-free or tax-deferred IRA accounts, call (606) 789-4001 or see Pam Butcher, Assistant Vice President, at Citizens National Bank, 620 Broadway, Paintsville, KY.

Duff students write about visitors

Last Tuesday, Willie Elliott, Times staff writer, talked with Shelia Ratliff's fourth and fifth grade class at Duff Elementary about newspaper writing and photography. Prior to his visit the class had another guest speaker, Floyd County Deputy Brian Hall, who spoke to the class about drugs.

As an assignment, Elliott asked the students to write a news story about one of the visits. He and Ratliff chose one article from each visit for publication. Below are the news stories written by Duff students. Logan Scott was the photographer for the session.

Deputy Brian Hall Visits

by David Slone

On February 9, Deputy Brian Hall of Drug DARE visited Mrs. Shelia Ratliff's fourth and fifth grades class to talk about drugs.

Hall told us all about what the most addictive drug was. The most addictive drug is called ice. After the first taste, you need it again.

He also told us that if you smoke a whole pack of cigarettes every day for a year that it would be like drinking a cup of tar. He talked about how drugs affect your mind and how you think.

He discussed tobacco and how easy it is to get any sort of cancer.

In just that one day, Deputy Hall changed my mind about taking anything that has to do with drugs.

Mr. Willie Elliott's Visit

by Miranda Collins

Willie Elliott visited Mrs. Shelia Ratliff's class last week. He talked about how he works for the Floyd County Times.

He just put a photograph of the American flag in the paper. He also wrote an article about school attendance. I thought that was nice and maybe some kids will start coming to school by what the article said.

He also talked about a byline which I thought was cool because I didn't know what a byline was. I learned a lot from him while he was talking.

UK quartet in concert here

The Leonore String Quartet, the University of Kentucky's string quartet in residence, will perform Friday at the First Presbyterian Church in Prestonsburg as part of the Eastern Kentucky Concert Series.

The performance begins at 7:30 p.m.

The fee for those who do not have a season pass is $6 for adults, $5 for students and $15 for families.

The quartet includes Daniel Mason, violin; Dorothea Vismara Hoffman, viola; Margaret Bashkin-Karp, violin, and Benjamin Karp, cello.

Known for its interpretive authority and dynamic flair, the Leonore Quartet is established as a chamber ensemble of the first rank. During its tenure in residence at the university, it has won wide acclaim for its interpretation of contemporary music.

Mason has concertized widely in the United States and Europe, gaining recognition as both a soloist and as a chamber musician. His activities have included live national radio broadcasts from WFMT in Chicago and frequent appearances on National Public Radio's Performance Today. In his 17th year as professor of violin at UK, he is concertmaster of and frequent soloist with the Lexington Philharmonic Orchestra.

Bashkin-Karp is a graduate of the Indiana University School of Music, where she studied with James Buswell and Yuval Yaron. From 1984 to 1990, she was principal second violin with the Florida Orchestra, with which she appeared as soloist, and of the Sarasota Opera.

Hoffman received her Master of Music degree from the College-Conservatory of Music of the University of Cincinnati where she studied with Masao Kawasaki. She has performed throughout Europe and North and South America. She teaches viola.

Karp studied with Aldo Parisot and Janos Starker and holds degrees from Yale University and Indiana University. Formerly cellist with the New College String Quartet and principal cellist with the Florida West Coast Symphony, Karp is a member of the Cincinnati Chamber Orchestra. He has been heard on NPR's Performance Today and plays in summer music festivals in Maine, North Carolina and New Hampshire. In addition to his role as professor of cello at UK, he is head of the chamber music program and director of the Cello Ensemble.

Court to decide utility dispute

by Tony Fyffe
Paintsville Herald

The Paintsville Utilities Commission wants a judge to decide whether a Floyd County utilities company has exclusive rights to provide gas service to customers in a section of Johnson County.

The commission's attorney, Scott Preston, filed a petition last Friday in Johnson Circuit Court requesting a declaration of rights in a dispute with Mountain Utilities of Prestonsburg.

The petition says that Mountain Utilities provides gas to some customers in the area along new US 460 in which Paintsville Utilities "furnishes water and sewage to an extent and for which sewage is planned in the future." Paintsville Utilities plans to provide gas service in the area, but Mountain Utilities has "claimed in the past that they have an exclusive right to service those customers in that area," the petition says.

"(Paintsville Utilities) has been advised by the Public Service Commission that there is no exclusive territory granted to Mountain Utilities Inc., and that they are subject to competition as any other company would be in any industry," the petition says. "As a result of the controversy between the parties, the Big Sandy Regional Detention Center has requested service from the Paintsville Utility System, and due to the claim by Mountain Utilities, Inc., of its exclusive territory of service, an actual controversy does exist."

The city utilities commission seeks a declaration of rights concerning its right to "provide gas service to any potential customer along its lines whether they be in an area that Mountain Utilities Inc., is presently serving or not, and for any and all other relief to which it may appear entitled."

MY TWIN SISTER

She was so pretty, sweet and humble. How do I know? She was part of me—my twin. Two little girls growing up together. We played, we cried, we loved.

Two kids could never have had so much love, so much protection, so much good advice. No one could tell us apart until we got married. By the way, Dad always said, "if a man married one, he would have to take the other." We shared our toys, good things to eat, and studied our lessons together.

I shall always remember my sweet twin sister and some day in Heaven, we shall meet again. I can just picture us going up Heaven's golden stairs. There, standing in Heaven's doorway, will be our mom and dad and all my sisters and brothers who beat me home. What a glorious and happy moment when we all dance around God's big throne. At last all the children will be where mom and dad call home.

Department for employment services helps more than 13,000 welfare recipients find work

More than 13,000 Kentuckians on welfare found unsubsidized employment in 1998 with the help of the Kentucky Department for Employment Services' 28 local offices.

The department assists welfare recipients who must find jobs to meet the work requirements of the 1996 federal welfare reform legislation. Services include work readiness seminars, job search assistance, on-the-job training and subsidized employment opportunities.

The department is an agency of the Cabinet for Workforce Development.

Employment Services Commissioner Margaret Whittet said one of the most important factors in helping people find employment is the partnership between employers and state government.

"One of the reasons we have been able to help so many people find jobs is that the employer community has really stepped forward," said Whittet. "Kentucky employers have been very receptive to being involved in welfare reform."

Whittet said that the on-the-job training and workplace readiness training were effective services because people get experience in the workplace and learn what is expected on the job.

"During the last two years our local employment services offices have helped more than 1,000 welfare recipients a month find work. We try to teach people how to write a resume, search for a job, do an interview and then how to meet employer expectations so that they will succeed in the job," she said.

The local employment offices have been successful across the state, even in areas considered difficult to find jobs.

"What may surprise people is that 38 percent of the Kentuckians we helped find jobs last year were in the eastern region of the state."

Eastern Kentucky (Ashland, Corbin, Harlan, Hazard, Maysville, Middlesboro, Morehead, Pikeville, Prestonsburg and Somerset employment services offices) had 5,050 welfare recipients who entered employment; central Kentucky (Covington, Danville, Frankfort, Georgetown, Glasgow, Lexington, Louisville and Winchester employment services offices) showed 4,492; and western Kentucky (Bardstow, Bowling Green, Elizabethtown, Henderson, Hopkinsville, Madisonville, Mayfield, Owensboro and Paducah offices); helped 3,741 people find work.

The Prestonsburg office, which serves Floyd, Johnson, Magoffin and Martin counties, placed 718 persons.

According to the Cabinet for Families and Children, the number of Kentucky families on welfare went down from 56,370 in November 1997 to 45,201 in November 1998.

For more information about job search assistance available to welfare recipients or to the general public, contact the Prestonsburg office of the Department for Employment Services, 606/886-2396.

Floyd County Schools receive television monitors

by Willie Elliott
Staff Writer

The Floyd County School system has received 13 computer-ready television monitors from the Appalachian Rural Systemic Initiative (ARSI) Project Neat. South Floyd High School is the original ARSI school that qualified Floyd County to receive these monitors.

The monitors allow any teacher who has a phone line to use the internet with the whole class. The monitor can be used with desktop computer or a laptop.

Last week Stanton Watson from Allen Central Middle School and James Spurlock from South Floyd High demonstrated the use of the monitor and showed teachers various sites that would be helpful in classroom instruction.

The teacher can plug the system into a phone line and use material from the internet to complement class instruction. According to Joyce Watson, District Liaison for ARSI in Mathematics and Science, teachers are especially interested in getting science materials to supplement the instruction in science and math.

ARSI has provided services to the Floyd County system since 1997. These services include the following:

- summer workshops for additional teachers,
- one- and two-day training sessions in mathematics and science content, provided training to principals,
- training for principals: "What to Look for in the Science Classroom,"
- program review for South Floyd High
- assistance in curriculum alignment

• teacher partners' workshop

• payment for teacher travel expenses and provision of material with accompanying training

An example of the type of opportunities offered by ARSI is a collaborative effort for next summer. Plans include a science workshop for teachers in grades 3-7 in physical science.

Physics professors from the University of Kentucky will be offering this training for the region at Allen Central High School.

58th District to tip for the 67th time

Betsy Layne tops the county with most district titles

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

This past Tuesday night the officials threw the basketball up to tip off the 58th District tournament for the 67th time as four schools began the road to the coveted championship title.

To be crowned district champions has lost some of the luster that it once carried. To be the 58th District tournament champions was a dream of the nine county teams that took part in the early years.

Today, it seems the lone reason for winning the championship is for a good draw in the 15th Region basketball tournament.

I remember the days when parades were held in towns when their team brought home a district championship. Schools held pep rallies where the players were heroes and the coaches were someone very special.

Those were the good old days. Those days are gone.

In Floyd County, there were nine schools and you had to earn your way into the championship game. You had to beat out a Wayland, Martin, Maytown, Prestonsburg, Betsy Layne, Auxier, Wheelwright, Garrett, or a McDowell squad in order to make the title game. Today, if you are the number one seed, you are almost, barring any first round upsets, an automatic opponent in the championship game, which ensures you of a trip to the

The lowest championship score was 17-5 when Maytown edged Betsy Layne in the title game. The highest scoring game came in 1970 when Frankie Francis' team ran up the score on Betsy Layne, 116-66.

With the start of the 1998-99 district tournament, Betsy Layne holds the most district championships than any of the other county schools past or present. The Bobcats won six of those under Coach Junior Newsome from 1976 until 1992, the last time the Bobcats have won the tournament.

Newsome won his first championship in his first year at Betsy Layne as head coach and that was in the 1975-76 season when he beat out Coach David Turner's McDowell Daredevils.

Prestonsburg has the second most district titles but three of those came in the more modern era under current coach Jack Pack. The Lady Blackcats want winning season to continue

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

The second night of the boys and girls 58th District basketball tournament tips off tonight at South Floyd High School's Raider Arena and tonight's first game could be the best first-round game of the tournament, and it includes two girls teams.

During the regular season, Prestonsburg edged the Betsy Layne Lady Cats in their two regular season meetings, but Betsy Layne coach Cassandra Akers believes that the third time may be a charm for her Lady Cats.

"We lost to them, but both games were close," said the first year Lady Cat coach. "We had the lead but let it get away from us. We believe we have improved since then and are capable of beating them."

Prestonsburg brings its best record in recent years into tonight's game after finishing 18-10 on the regular season. The Lady Blackcats are the tournament's number two seed finishing 4-2 in the Floyd County Conference race.

Betsy Layne, under Coach Akers, is a very young basketball team and showed tremendous improvement through the regular season. The Lady Cats finished 9-13 overall and bring a 3-3 conference record to the tournament. The Lady Cats is the only county team to own a victory over number one seed Allen Central.

Prestonsburg is a finesse type of team and can beat a team many ways. Coach Jackie Day Crisp drills the fundamentals of the game and expects his team to play accordingly.

Rebs avenge earlier loss to Phelps 83-80

Hall's treys give Allen Central new life

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

It took overtime, but the Allen Central Rebels avenged an earlier loss to the Phelps Hornets this past Thursday night as the Rebel fans said goodbye to four seniors on Senior Night at the J.E. Campbell Arena.

But it took the heroics of senior Jesse Hall and his long range shooting to give the Rebels new hope in an 83-80 overtime win. Hall finished the game with 18 points but his two treys late in the game proved to be big baskets for Allen Central.

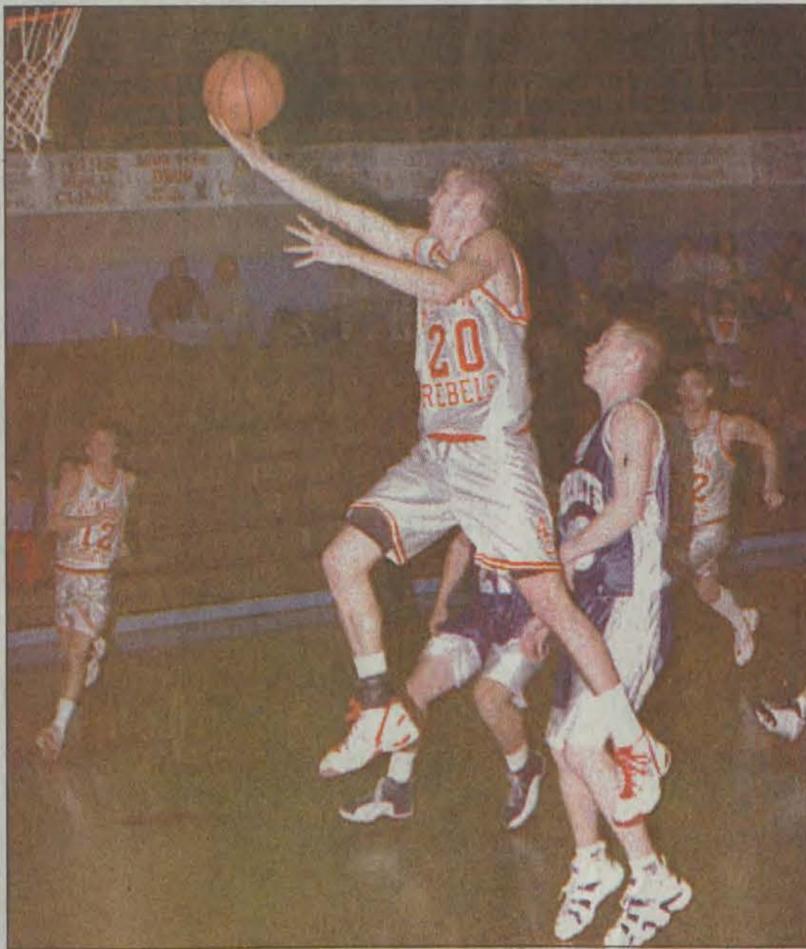

Gary Hunter led the Rebels' scoring with 20 points, Brian Jones netted 15 while Nick Samons overcame some early shooting woes and poured in 14 points. Sophomore Larry Mullins scored 10. Ryan Owens had four and Rodney Scott two.

The win improved the Rebels to 21-6 on the season as they closed out their regular season schedule. Phelps fell to 14-8 on the year.

Allen Central, as the team has done so many times this season, had to overcome a deficit in order to pull out the regional win. Down 10 points, 66-56, with less than five minutes to play, the Rebels turned up their defense, smothering the basketball and forcing the Hornets into some poor shot selection.

Allen Central chipped away at the lead and

Allen Central not looking past Bobcats

Samons key for the Rebels as each team enters 0-0

by Ed Taylor
sports Editor

Take a long look at the just completed Betsy Layne season. It was a disappointing one at that since when the season began the Bobcats and coaching staff were hopeful to have a winning year with the younger players and build on that for the future.

Things don't always turn out the way they're planned, but for Betsy Layne, if you believe in moral-victories, the season was full of them. Yet, they still added up to losses.

The Bobcats finished the season at 8-15 and had hoped that would have been reversed in '98-'99. But the Cats were hardly blown out of any game and played all the regional powers close, not being able to get the big basket they needed.

Allen Central brings the best overall record to the Classic, finishing 22-6 on the season. The Rebels are the number one seed in the tournament.

Tonight, coach Tim Rice will put his team on the floor at Raider Arena on top of Mount Raider and he is hoping his Cats will have a mountain top experience when they face top seed Allen Central in the second game of the boys' 58th District tournament, set to tip off at 8 p.m.

Allen Central the smaller of the four county teams, height-wise, has played hard all season and won on pure determination. The Rebels are tournament ready having won two tournaments and making the semi-finals of the state Class "A" earlier in the year.

Senior guard Nick Samons has to return to the old form that placed him as one of the top players in the 15th Region. But in all fairness to Samons, the injury he suffered to his wrist in the second round of the state tournament is still a nagging injury.

Samons has shown signs of regaining his touch from the outside but has been inconsistent.

Battling the "big boys" from Betsy Layne in the paint area will be Gary Hunter, Brian Jones and Jesse Hall, all seniors. But that is nothing new for this trio as they have had to do each time they take to the court, because everyone else is taller than they are.

Hunter is a slasher to the basket but is capable of hitting the treys. He is the team's second leading scorer and he will be hard pressed around the basket. He needs to look for his shot outside.

Jones is the "Intimidator"

Madness begins in February

A Look At Sports

March Madness. You have to love it if you're a basketball fan. If not, then it will be a boring time for you.

The district tournaments, regional and state tournaments will be just a drop of what is to take place in the next 30 days. Throw in a little SEC tournament play, then the NCAA, and you have some of the best basketball going.

It all started this week with all four district tournaments underway. Two teams from each district (boys and girls) will advance to the 15th Regional tournament with one of the 16 teams headed for Rupp Arena for the Sweet Sixteen.

The Southeastern Conference basketball tournament runs from March 4-7. The Kentucky Wildcats have become the Tame Kittens after losing three of four conference games, something that is not acceptable around here.

The Cats are still trying to get the second seed in the tournament but have to win over Vanderbilt tonight and hope they can better Tennessee in Knoxville next Sunday. The Cats and Vols, if they each win their next games, will meet for the championship in their division. The Vols won at Kentucky earlier in the year and should be favored to repeat at home.

The NCAA Tournament is the highlight of the basketball season and it will have to go a long way to top last year's classic. Close games and upsets made the tournament field of 64 teams very exciting, plus the fact UK won it all.

Don't look for the Cats to stay around long in this one. They will probably be a three seed in the tournament, depending on how they fare in the upcoming SEC tournament.

This UK team has no senior leadership at all, and the question is why? Padgett, Evans and Turner have been through the battles before and seem to be lost on the hardwood. Here is a team that owns victories over Maryland, Kansas, Indiana and others but has been beaten by teams they should Blackcats have won the last three titles and will be shooting for an unprecedented fourth such championship this season.

District

Prestonsburg's first title came at the end of the 1940-41 season when, under coach Joe Hyden, they beat Bill Mayo's Garrett Blackdevils in a real barnburner, 31-28.

In the preceding years, Garrett would become the dominant team in the 58th District, winning three consecutive titles in '38, '39 and '40 before being unseated by Prestonsburg.

After that period, there was no real dominating team until the beginning of the '60's when Don Wallen won three consecutive championships at Wheelwright ('60, '61, '62).

With such coaching names as Lawrence Price, Joe Hyden, Wiley Jones and Bill Mayo moving off the scene, the '50s saw such notable names as Denzil "Hoss" Halbert, John D. Campbell, Don Wallen, Tommy Boyd, Jack Frost Wells emerge as fierce competitors who packed the smaller gymnasiums in the county. Each night fans had to stand in long lines at the door of the "cracker box" gyms in hopes of getting a place sit. In the '50's, John D. Campbell won three titles, although not consecutively. Ray Heinisch guided a good Maytown team to a title in '57, while Halbert gave Martin its first title since 1949 by winning the 1958 championship.

New names moved on to the coaching scene in the '60's while the elders of the coaching ranks remained. One of those was Gene Frasure. Who can forget the great teams he had at Maytown, led by the talented Tallent boys (Bob, Pat, and Mike)?

As a new decade came in with the '70's, former Floyd County players were returning home to their roots and taking the helm of county teams. Junior Newsome, Frankie Francis, Pete Grigsby Jr. and David Turner were among those new head coaches. Grigsby quickly established himself as one of the promising young coaches in the county by winning three championships in the '70's, but it was Newsome introducing a more up-tempo type of game that made the Betsy Layne Bobcats a regional and state force.

Consolidation was evident as the board of education began to close the smaller schools and build larger arenas. Wayland, Garrett, Maytown and Martin soon became Allen Central. With consolidation, fans saw fierce rivalries become history. Consolidation soon affected the fans as they began to stay home.

Radio and television began to air and beam the games into homes as a new way to enjoy the sport, especially for those who had to work and couldn't attend the games.

The only school that never won a district championship was the small school of Auxier, and the closest they came to winning was in 1933 when they became runners-up after losing 17-25.

The game is more competitive today with taller and quicker players. The advent of the three-point basket has brought on the demand for three-man officiating crews, although that is somewhere in the future.

There are a lot of memories of the 58th District basketball tournament that has seen some great players come through the gyms of smelly socks, stained ligaments and sore muscles. Several went on to the next level and became stars and even household names.

(In Friday's issue, a look at some of those former stars)

Betsy Layne

The Lady Blackcats is a balanced team which can score inside or outside. They perhaps are the best defensive team in the tournament and have size on the inside in Amelia Conley, Kimi Nunnery and Brooks Coleman.

Shelly Greathouse is the point guard for Prestonsburg and a senior. Nunnery is also a senior, as well as Crystal Stone. The three must show the leadership on the court they have shown all season. Coleman is a sophomore and a good one. A solid outside scorer, Coleman is overlooked in two other game parts — rebounding and assists. She is a balanced player.

Layne is quick, very quick. Shoots the short jumper well but likes to take the ball to the basket.

Greathouse will burn you from the outside as well. Slowed some by an injury that took her out of last year's district tournament, Greathouse is "chomping at the bit" to play once again.

Conley, a sophomore, gives the Lady Blackcats a balanced inside attack. She can score inside as well as stepping out 10-12 feet from the basket and scoring. She will be the key for Prestonsburg on the inside.

Nunnery is just a hard-nosed player who quietly gets things done. No fanfare here, just hard work and knowing what needs to be done. Off the Prestonsburg bench, Megan Hyden, one of the district's top freshmen, gives Prestonsburg more firepower outside. An excellent ball handler and free throw shooter.

Ashleigh Ousley and Brandy Wells also will see a lot of playing time for the Lady Blackcats.

If there is a team in the district that can match up with Prestonsburg in height it will be Betsy Layne. The Lady Cats will counter Conley with senior Leslie Hopkins, who is having her best season as a Lady Cat. But there is more.

Sophomore Jenny Parsons also is a hard worker inside and leads the Lady Cats in rebounding as well as scoring. If Prestonsburg is to avoid a first round upset, they must contain the inside presence of both Hopkins and Parsons.

But the size gets bigger in Sheena Akers, another force in the paint area. Now you can see why the Lady Cats like to pound the ball in the middle.

Outside for the Lady Cats will be senior Amanda Hall. Hall is the three-point shooter for Betsy Layne and has had an excellent last four weeks of the season.

At the point will be Heather Hamilton, the team's assist leader. Hamilton doesn't look to score that much, but has a nice short jumper around the basket.

Off the pines comes freshman Devon Reynolds, another of the many good freshmen players we have. Reynolds is a three-point threat and likes to take it to the basket as well. Leslie Hamilton, Susan Maynard and Amber Roberts provide a long bench for the Lady Cats.

Prestonsburg must control the inside game of Betsy Layne plus find a way to offset the scoring of Hall. Likewise, Betsy Layne must keep the Lady Blackcats off the offensive boards, not allowing the second and third attempts.

This promises to be a good one and it tips off at 6 tonight.

around the basket area and has a tendency to "lose it at times." Jones is a garbage type of player who finds the loose ball and scores. A strong worker on the board and he will have to hit the boards hard against the taller Bobcats.

The unsung hero of this team is Jesse Hall. Hall has won some big games for the Rebels this season or tied the games to go into overtime, giving Allen Central a chance to win. Hall may have to keep that magic for one more time when his team goes against the Bobcats.

Larry Mullins, a sophomore, runs the point for the Rebels. He gives Allen Central, along with the other four starters, a fifth three-point shooter. He is quick and not afraid to work the middle of the lane. Mullins surprises the opposition with his rebounding ability.

Rodney Scott, Nathan Tackett, Jeremy Hayes are quick to come off the bench in the pressing up-tempo game the Rebels like to play. Scott is instant offense off the pines. A strong worker inside, he works the boards well.

Tackett, you guess it, is another three-point threat and the Rebels don't lose much when he enters. A little slow on defense but he can shoot the basketball. Hayes is just a hard worker and gets it done in a very quiet way. Strong on the boards.

Betsy Layne will need some point production from Scott Collins if the Bobcats hope to pull off the upset. Collins has been inconsistent of late but seems to play his best against Allen Central. He is a strong rebounder, a solid outside threat and shoots well from the free throw line. Needs to keep his "cool" and play his game.

Adam Tackett has been the most consistent Bobcat this season. If Tackett gets behind the Allen Central press he could put some points on the board in a hurry.

Bradley Brooks has really bloomed as a basketball player after getting his legs back from football. A very strong rebounder, Bradley will have several offensive put-backs.

Tommy Taulbee runs at the two guard slot but doesn't look for his shot that often. He can score and is a "big guard" that gives Betsy Layne added height around the basket.

Justin Bartley guides the team at the point and he, like Brooks, has found the stroke from the outside. Bartley is one of those players, you wonder if he can get it up from the arc, and soon the doubts are gone after he buries three straight. A good basketball player.

Mr. Three-pointer could be Michael Gross, who has been on a tear of late, coming off the Betsy Layne bench. When in the groove from the three-point arc, he can bury a team in a hurry. Gross has to hit from the outside to open up the middle for the Cats.

Anthony Tackett can do many things with the basketball and he will have to use all the talent he has against the Rebels. Tackett is quick, good foot speed and a good outside shooter. He will be a key in this game.

have blown out.

No, don't be looking for a coaching change. C.M. is leaving soon, he will leave that to someone else.

We all are still wanting "Pitino-ball."

• Speaking of Rick, he and Antoine are not on the best of relations according to reports. Seems Walker feels he can scold the rest of the team while he plays badly.

• Dennis Rodman and the Los Angeles Lakers are close to an agreement. The former Chicago Bulls player hasn't played this year, and here's hoping he retires and goes back to wrestling.

• The Allen Central Baseball Boosters Club will be holding their annual AAU basketball tournament February 27 for both boys and girls. Anyone interested in entering a team should contact Kevin Spurlock at 285-5124 or 358-9217. You may also call Ronnie Patton at 358-9143 or 358-0110.

Entry into the tournament is on a first-come, first-serve basis. All entries must be in by 1 p.m. Thursday.

ATTENTION BASEBALL, SOFTBALL COACHES

I need your baseball and softball schedules as soon as possible. We are planning a special section and I need to

CHEERLEADING: ARE THE MOUNTS DANGEROUS?

At the Phelps/Allen Central game Thursday night, the Allen Central cheerleaders were getting into their mount, something they have done many times this basketball season.

I focused my camera on them and was ready to snap the routine when one of the cheerleaders lost her balance and went tumbling down.

I hold my breath when I see that happen. Sure, there is someone down below to break the fall, but what if they had something against you? Well, anyway, I have seen them fall to the floor with a thump! I just get concerned about them.

TRIVIA QUESTION

Oscar Robertson and Jerry West were named to the All-American High School team as seniors in high school. What one player was rated above them? Answer in Friday's pages. Or call me if you know.

Until Friday, good sports, everyone, and be good sports! Get out and support your favorite high school team this week.

Deadline to register for tourney Thursday

The Allen Central Baseball Boosters Club will hold their annual AAU basketball tournament on Saturday, February 27, at the J.E. Campbell Arena at Allen Central. But the deadline for registering for the tournament is Thursday at 1 p.m.

The tournament is for boys and girls 13-under and 11-under. Entries for the tournament will be on a first-come, first-serve basis.

Any coach interested in entering a team should contact Kevin Spurlock at 285-5124 or 358-9217. You also may call Ronnie Patton at 358-9143 or 358-0110.

Angie Brewer has local ties

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

When you talk to Willard Ousley of Prestonsburg, one of the things he will share with you is the success that his granddaughter, Angie Brewer, has found in the coaching ranks at Sesser Valier Elementary in Illinois. Brewer's middle school team captured the Illinois state championship recently.

"I thought what she accomplished in the short time of coaching was worthy of recognition," said Ousley. "We are very proud of her."

Brewer's ties to Willard Ousley and his wife, Cathlene, come by his daughter, Barbara, who married John Brewer after the two met while attending Prestonsburg Community College in 1971. John joined the Air Force and later the couple were married.

Later they moved to Ina, Illinois. Angie Brewer was a standout in athletics and entered the coaching ranks at Sesser Valier Elementary. Her team proved to worthy contenders for the Class M state championship and won a thriller over Nashville, 34-31. One of the things Brewer stressed to her team was defense.

"We did a great job of covering their top scorers," said Brewer of the win over Nashville. Our transition game was very good on defense."

With the win over Nashville, the Lady Red Devils were jittery as they faced Salem-Selma in the championship game at Rend Lake College. The Lady Red Devils pulled out a 27-26 squeaker to capture the state championship. Sesser-Valier opened the tournament with a 34-30 win over Christopher, their first win over the school in four tries this season.

According to Willard, two colleges are pursuing Angie as a possible assistant at their school.

"One of those is Southern Illinois," said Ousley. "She has applied for the job."

For Willard and Cathlene Ousley, they have every reason to be proud of Angie Brewer, who one day could be a head college coach.

Rebs

cut the margin to four points, 66-62, on two free throws by Jones.

Leading 68-63, Phelps missed from the free throw line twice and Allen Central hung around at 68-66 on a basket by Mullins with 2:36 to play. With less than two minutes to play, Steve Blankenship gave Phelps a 70-66 lead on a rebound basket. But Hall kept the Allen Central hopes alive with a long three-point basket off the right side of the arc that pulled the Rebels to within one point, 70-69.

Lane's lay up gave the three-point lead to Phelps before Hall drained his second three-point basket that tied the score at 72-72 with 1:18 to play.

With 58 seconds showing on the clock, Phelps threw the ball out of bounds on a mental mistake and Allen Central took a 74-72 lead with 37 seconds to play on a basket by Jones under the basket. But someone forgot to pick up Shawn Clusky and he popped in a short jumper with 21 seconds that tied the game at 74-74.

Allen Central's Hunter drove the middle, leaned to the left of the basket and tried a circus shot that missed the mark with the Allen Central bench hollering foul as the ball went out of bounds. Phelps had to come the length of the court with two seconds left and failed to connect as the game went into overtime.

The teams were tied at 76 and 78 in the extra period until a free throw by Hall and Jones' basket gave the Rebels a 81-78 lead with 1:01 to play.

Clusky hit two free throws to narrow the margin to one point, 81-80 and the adventure from the free throw line began. Hunter missed two charity tosses with 30 seconds left, but the Rebels got a break when Jones rebounded the second miss, dished the ball off to Hall who was fouled.

Hall missed the front end of the two shot foul but hit the second for a 82-80 Allen Central lead.

The Rebels got a very crucial call when Phelps' Chris Hurley was called for walking as he moved toward the basket with only eight seconds left. Phelps put Hunter back on the line with six seconds to play where he missed the first but made the second.

With the ball in hand, Clusky drove up court and pulled up for a long three-pointer that came up short giving the Rebels their 21st win. Allen Central led most of the first half but it was the Hornets who went to the locker room at the half with a 40-33 advantage. The Rebels led 17-14 after the first quarter after the game was tied twice in the opening period.

Allen Central's biggest lead of the game was seven points and that came twice in the second quarter. The Rebels owned a 25-22 lead until they missed four straight free throws. The Rebels owned a 29-24 lead, but Phelps went on a 16-2 run that gave the Hornets a 40-31 lead. Rodney Scott broke the Allen Central drought with a lay up on an assist from Hunter.

Allen Central struggled offensively to end the first half and began the third quarter much the same way, as the Hornets scored the first four points of the third stanza to lead 44-33. The Hornets biggest lead came with 4:14 to play in the third when Lane hit two free throws that gave Phelps a 52-39 lead.

A 6-0 run by Allen Central cut the lead to seven with 2:49 to play in the period as Phelps failed to take care of the basketball. The Rebs found themselves down 60-54 after three quarters.

Shawn Clusky, Lane and Luke McCoy each scored 20 points to lead Phelps. Blankenship finished with eight points.

Allen Central will meet the winner of the Piarist/Betsy Layne game tonight in the second round of the boys 58th District basketball tournament at South Floyd.

Raiders defeat Millard

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

It was a jubilant crowd at South Floyd Saturday night as they said good-bye to some special seniors and also witnessed two record-breaking achievements.

The Raiders set a new school record with a 81-46 win over the Millard Mustangs to go to 13-10 on the season, the most wins ever in the short history of the school. Also, P.J. Hall pulled down 18 rebounds to set a new school record.

Coach Henry Webb emptied his bench early and often in the one-sided game. Byron Hall led the Raiders with 13 points while Kyle Tackett and P.J. Hall scored 10 each as the only double figure scorers.

Justin Paige made his "real return" after seeing just limited playing against the Piarist School last Thursday night. Paige finished with eight points. Ryan Shannon also netted eight points.

Rusty Tackett, a sophomore, came off the bench and drilled two three-point baskets for six points, and Ryan Manns added five.

Bill Bevins, a senior at Millard, led the Mustangs with 14 points.

South Floyd led 15-7 after the first quarter with Kyle Tackett sinking a three-pointer. The Raider's defense held Millard to a single field goal in the second quarter in a 20-2 run that netted them a 35-9 half-time lead. Bevins had the only field goal for the Mustangs.

In the third, Bevins heated up and hit two three's in scoring 10 points, but the damage had been done and the Mustangs could not recover. South Floyd led 60-29 after three quarters.

"We played what I feel was one of our better games all year," said Coach Webb. "We moved the ball extremely well and played good defense."

The Raiders won their fifth straight game and six of their last seven, headed into district tournament play.

"We are very proud of our players as well as our fan support," Webb said. "We will be working hard to get ready for the district tournament. We will face a very good Prestonsburg team, who is very talented."

South Floyd shot 46 percent for the game and outrebounded Millard 46-26. The Mustangs turned the ball over 18 times while South Floyd had 11.

The Raiders meet Prestonsburg Thursday night in a 6 p.m. game.

SPORTS IN KENTUCKY

Hawks and Bearcats need Bluegrass kingpins and they got 'em

Arkansas and Cincinnati need Kentucky and Louisville. In front of CBS-TV on Saturday, Nolan Richardson's revamped Hawks used a renewed 40-minute-of-hell defense to take themselves off the Big Dance bubble.

"We're in, Bay-beel!" Sunday, on ABC, the floundering Cincinnati Bearcats pulled themselves back together to make a case for a top-seed at UoFL's expense. Sunny side to this oh-fer by Kentucky's kingpins? Spin it this way: Tubby Smith's team got one more reminder of what embarrassment lies ahead for the defending national champions, beginning Saturday in Knoxville unless UK finds a way to handle slap'n grab, in-your-face defense with more than a whine to referees.

Denny Crum's willow Cards — after they see tape of the UC game — will see what must be done against muscle teams coming up. And macho wasted fouls top the list. With two regular season games and conference tournaments to follow, Louisville's chances of going deep into the NCAAs looks more promising than Kentucky's.

UoFL plays quick defense which translates into the Cards dictating game pace. Louisville is a reasonably good shooting team. Added together, Denny Crum has a tournament time formula he handles best.

Meanwhile, Tubby Smith's shuttle-in, shuttle-out revolving door lineups have not produced anything remotely consistent. There is still time of course, but Kentucky is a team that has never found a comfortable rhythm and looks like a two (maybe three)-games-and-out team.

The remaining tune-ups for both teams are significant. Little more needs to be said than UK plays at Tennessee Saturday on CBS. For Louisville, Saturday might be a good test at Southern Miss on ESPN.

RICK JONES: TUBBY'S DILEMMA?

An old question and an older story. Will Scott County's dandy guard Rick Jones be the next J.R. VanHoose or John Pelphrey? Not Mr. Basketball, the lesser prize, but a scholarship offer from the coach at Kentucky.

Last year Tubby Smith passed on VanHoose and the Scott Padgett-heir(?) is being hailed freshman of the year in the MAC. A decade ago public opinion pressed a reluctant Eddie Sutton to offer Pelphrey a UK jersey. A year later Rick Pitino confessed he would never have recruited Pelphrey.

Public opinion was smarter than either coach. The scrawny red head, with a heart the size of Johnson County, not only became a member of UK's 1,000 Points Club, but is one of the most popular Wildcats ever. Pelphrey's jersey hangs in Rupp Arena.

The horns of this enviable dilemma are passed to a UK coach who needs perimeter shooting, wants a backup point guard for next season and suffers a new mob of Wildcat watchers who want to help him recruit.

Tubby has a 3-point threat recruited in Keith Bogans. Point guard future? Saul Smith is heir to Wayne Turner and J.P. Blevins can earn his way back into the picture, I suppose, but Tubby is courting Chris Duhon, a shoot 'n pass hot-shot junior star in Louisiana for next in line.

Meanwhile, 30 miles from Lexington Rick Jones waits for a call. Tubby has told Scott County coach Billy Hicks, UK "...is interested in Jones," but apparently not enough to spend a scholarship. Yet. The view here is: Any decision choosing between prospects in-state and out, should be considered in the uncolored light of history. One lit by ways of starlight cast by VanHoose...Pelphrey...Dan Langhi (Vandy)...Isiah Victor (Tennessee), and the list can be taken back to Brett Burrow (Vandy) in the 1980s.

'PRACTICING MYTHOLOGIST'

It was a baseball trade last week that did it, along with a paragraph from USA Today columnist Jon Saraceno. Caused me to look closer at this space. First, David Wells, Yankee fan favorite of Ruthian proportions, was traded for Toronto's Roger "Show me you love me with a few million more" Clemens.

Clearly, Yankee management's way of expressing fan appreciation. Then, it was a long sentence from Saraceno that had the short punch power of a DeLa Hoya left hook. "Over the years I've vigorously engaged in the idolatry of teams and athletes, first worshipping pseudo-heroes as a young fan, then as a practicing mythologist (sports-writer)."

Practicing mythologist. I liked that. I used to be one, too. Swallowing whole, then penning sugary wonderments about the genius of this college or high school coach or that one. Or, spew sweet adjectives in praise of sports administrators.

Passage of time and faced with reality not only teaches us lessons on fraud, but also, in this business, leaves distinctive tracks in newsprint of our naivete to show how we were practicing mythologists. The coach was not perfect every day. He lied, believing it was "only to reporters," ignoring readers.

The player, those who could make a sentence, said the right stuff, but had been programmed, rehearsed. And the sports administrator spun his own mumbo-jumbo, but sold out. And there is the media's sullied underside, I've known sportswriters who scalped NCAA game tickets; have seen facts deleted from stories and columns to please advertisers; seen column angles chosen to demean a coach when an exclusive interview request was denied; read an admission of leaked information damning a school he wrote about, costing a tax-supported institution thousands of dollars.

Writers condemn gambling in sports, while point spreads are published in stories; administrators condemn alcohol use by college students, while accepting sponsor money from brewing houses. And, the coaches good-old-boy network has a worthy rival in the media's clique-ish, gossipy club.

Practicing mythologists? The woods are still full of them. But, like Saraceno, there are some of us who realized some time ago that men and women in big time sports are worthy of hero worship only seldom. One act of responsibility, good sense, kindness, generosity should not entitle, for instance, an administrator, a lifetime pass to praise, placing him above scrutiny for making a poor decision or being incorruptible.

Ever changing mythology? A year ago Tubby Smith was the toast of the national media tribe and certainly in Kentucky. Meanwhile, Denny Crum was being skewered. Too old, too complacent, too corrupt. Too Nixon-esque.

Twelve months later Cool Hand Luke-isms are fashionable once more as UoFL has risen from its ashes. Tubby's teams lost back-to-back games in the south, and Monday morning coaches were out in full regalia in coffee shops across the state.

Metro media spin? No scented bouquet-ed columns done about Crum. But lots of "maybe this team isn't as good as we thought," compassion for Smith. Facts are, there was cheating at UoFL, and Denny Crum has done a miracle coaching. At Kentucky, these Wildcats have underachieved and Tubby has not done as good a job with his team as the superb one he did a year ago. Ah, practicing mythologists (sportswriters) work on. And boffo to the rest of us.

Future Scientists

Third Grade
 Hi, from the rock pile!
 In Mrs. Justice's third grade class we have been studying rocks. We did a few experiments studying them. The first project was to put a sandstone rock and water in a jar with a lid and shook it for five minutes. We then opened it and the rock had started to dissolve.

 Next we took a piece of chalk and put it in a jar with vinegar and watched it. The chalk dissolved. Mrs. Justice makes learning fun.

Canivorous Plants

by Josh Martin

Mrs. Martins 4th grade class read a story in reading about carnivorous plants. Carnivorous plants are plants that eat meat. Mrs. Martin assigned the class to do a project to make up your own Carnivorous Plant. The plant could either have an active trap or a passive trap. An active trap is a trap that shuts when food enters the trap, a passive trap is a trap that traps it's food by some sweet or ronchy smell. When the day came to display the plants, there was many different sorts of plants. There was only three original plants. But they all can turn out good.

Our trip to the Times!

by Amy Wallen

A few months ago, the Duff Elementary Newspaper staff took a field trip to the Floyd County Times in Prestonsburg, Ky. We saw how everything was done to be able to distribute the newspaper twice a week.

A long time ago, they used to paste the articles one by one onto large sheets of paper. Now they use meor modern technology. Instead of printing out page-by-page, they use one large printer to print everything out at the same time. Everything comes out as a very large negative. A scanner that they use can take a photo from off the computer screen and it comes out in color. If your school wants to be in the newspaper, you can sent the articles to them on a large sheet of paper so it can be placed on the computer omer easily. Nothing will change on your article except that the newspaper staff will proofread it and correct any mistakes.

In the storage room, where they keep the paper, there are about 75 humoongous paper rools. The rolls are 3 feet tall and weigh 910 pounds each! Now that is "alot" of paper!

They have a small room, that is called the dark room. That is where they develop the pictures to be used in the newspaper.

For making the newspaper, a large transparency is placed on a metal frame and then they are melted together. Then, it is fed through the printer.

Did you ever wonder why you don't get ink on your hands while reading the paper? Well, it is truly amazing.

While the papers are being folded by a machine, a chemical is brushed onto the paper, by the same machine. The chemical is used to keep ink from smearing. So, that is why your hands stay ink free.

While on our visit, a member of the Floyd County Times staff took a picture of the Duff Elementary Newspaper staff. The camera that was used was as big as, if not bigger that your head. It was the biggest camera that I have ever seen. The photo was scanned through a printer and then was printed out. The staff member then made copies for us so we each had a copy to take home as a souvenir.

This was the end of a great field trip. It was not only an educational trip, it was also a fun trip. This is what I learned at the Floyd County Times. If you ever get the chance to visit them, I recommend that you do so.

On January 28th, Mr. Herb Owens, a highly-skilled educator visited Mrs. Shelilah Ratliff's fourth and fifth grade classes. The purpose of his visit was to talk about Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., a civil rights activist. He discussed discrimination and civil rights in detail. He used The Sneetches, a book by Dr.Suess, to show the class how wrong it is to be prejudiced.

The entire class enjoyed Mr. Owens's visit because they found it quite enlightening and fun. Mrs. Ratliff's class is looking forward to another visit by Mr. Owens

Activities by students Mrs. Gamble's class

by Susan Smith

Mrs. Gamble's class has been practicing cooking skills. Last Friday we cooked soup beans, baked cornbread, fried potatoes and bacon. The cornbread was made by Jonathan Hall and Ricky Short. The adults in the class did the rest of the cooking under the supervision of the students. A delicious "snack" was enjoyed by all. Up coming activities will be practicing vocational skill by making wreaths for spring and Easter.

How low can they go? Gas prices keep falling, says AAA

Just when you thought it was time for gas prices to bottom out, down they go again. The national average price of self-serve regular unleaded gasoline fell another 1.9 cents in one month to 96 cents per gallon, according to the latest AAA Fuel Gauge Report. It's the fourth straight month that prices have declined.

"If drivers get the feeling they're living in the '70's again, there's a good reason for that. The fact is, this national average price is the cheapest since it was at 94.8 cents a gallon in August of 1979," said Dan Dickson, public relations manager for AAA Blue Grass/Kentucky. "Low gas prices have become the norm rather than the exception over the past year," added Dickson. The current average national price is 15.4 cents cheaper than in February 1998.

Kentucky's average price stayed the same. The average price for a gallon of self-serve unleaded regular was 89 cents. Kentucky has the nation's 10th cheapest gas price. The lowest average can be found in Georgia at 82 cents, followed by South Carolina at 84 cents and Missouri at 85 cents. Don't drive in Hawaii if you're looking for bargains. The average price there is a whopping $1.56 per gallon, the highest in the U.S.

Meanwhile, in Lexington, roller-coaster gas prices continue to frustrate drivers. A survey of 30 gas stations in the city found the average price for unleaded regular to be 81 cents a gallon, down 12 cents from

POISON OAK

Standing on the promises

For as long as I can remember, and even though I don't do it very well, I've enjoyed singing in church. Not solos, or anything, but just joining in with other members of the congregation and singing those old hymns with which we've all become so familiar.

After reaching adulthood, though, I've started to wonder about church singing, or at least the "let's all stand and sing" part of it.

I've decided that it could be dangerous; that I'm risking life and limb just by standing to sing.

Take, for instance, the time when a lady almost hanged me. Perhaps this would have been an appropriate action when I was a kid and probably needed hanging. But now? I mean, I'm talking about something that happened just a few years back.

We'd stood to sing. As the song ended, naturally, we all sat down. As I bent over to sit, my tie fell over the back of the pew in front of me. My sitting motion continued, but so did the lady's in the pew in front of me. As I sat, she sat...on my tie. I felt like some cattle rustler in an old B Western as the knot tightened around my neck. Fortunately, she was not a big woman and before any real harm was done, I realized what had happened and managed to jerk free.

Even though I could have been strangled, my wife Wilma laughed. She laughs at the strangest things.

She didn't laugh, however, on another occasion when great harm could have come to me because of my standing to sing.

We'd been late for church that day, and the only seats available were on the very back row. Now, these weren't your typical church pews. What they were, were four old-fashioned wooden, school auditorium seats. You remember the kind. They had the fold-up bottoms and were connected to each other.

Well, these four seats were connected to each other, but to nothing else. What I mean is, they weren't nailed to the floor or anything. Somebody had rescued them from the trash bin of some old school somewhere and sat them in the back of the auditorium, just in case they were needed some time...like today.

Anyway, my wife, our son, Todd, another gentleman, and myself were occupying these seats.

We'd stood to sing. When the song was over, we sat down. For some reason, I sat before the other three sat. Maybe I sat too hard, but for whatever reason, all four seats flipped over backwards. There I lay, flat on my back, my feet sticking straight up, right in the middle of the church service. This time, Wilma was too embarrassed to laugh. As a matter of fact, she just stood there staring at the song book. Todd, who was a teenager at the time, stared straight ahead, as if he figured, "If I don't look, it didn't happen."

Fortunately, the gentleman on the end had the presence of mind to pull both me and the seats upright. Then on the count of three, we all four sat down.

I don't expect to see warning labels printed on the backs of songbooks, but take it from me, standing to sing can be hazardous to your health.

As long as Jeremy could remember, he had wanted a dog. For his 11th birthday, his parents gave him a large box that wiggled and yapped.

"A dog! I know it's a dog!" Jeremy hurriedly opened the loosely wrapped container and out tumbled a wagging, licking cocker spaniel whose tail was flipping from side to side so quickly that its whole rump seemed to jump from the floor.

"Is it a boy or a girl?" Jeremy asked as the puppy tried to climb into his lap, lick his face and chew the box all at the same time.

"It's a girl."
"She's beautiful! Her color reminds me of the sand on a beach. I'm going to call her 'Sandy.'"

One of their very favorite times together was when Jeremy would ride his bike in the park with Sandy running alongside him. She would stop, sniff, toss her floppy ears and then zoom ahead of Jeremy. Then, she would then wait for him to catch up and zoom off again. She thought this was the greatest game. When Jeremy stopped and got off his bike, she would run up to him, barking happily, and then sit and look at him, with her tongue hanging out. She always looked so silly that Jeremy would have to laugh. She would then proudly tumble into his lap, as if she had just told a very funny joke.

A year went by. That summer, at the end of a busy day swimming at the beach, Jeremy complained to his mother that he had a headache and stiff neck. The next morning, Jeremy was worse. He could not get out of bed. When the doctor was called, the stiffness had gotten so bad that Jeremy could hardly move.

"I'm afraid Jeremy has polio," the doctor said.

Jeremy spent three months in the hospital. When he finally came home, he had a brace on one of his legs and he needed crutches to walk. Sandy was so happy to see him that she refused to leave his side.

"Every time Sandy saw someone ride by on a bike, she would bark and run back and forth in the back yard. Then she would whine and whine," Jeremy's father told him.

"Well, I can never ride a bike now," Jeremy half-whispered.

The next morning, Jeremy limped out to the garage with his crutches to look at his Schwinn-Flyer, all red and chrome and shiny. Sandy immediately began to jump and yap and wag her tail.

"No, I can't Sandy. I can't," Jeremy cried. Sandy just whined. She did not understand.

Every day after that, Sandy would run out to the garage and back to Jeremy, barking and wagging her tail.

Sandy did not understand the word "can't." Finally, Jeremy said, "Okay, okay, Sandy, but my leg is so weak."

As Jeremy climbed on the bike, Sandy barked happily, ran furiously around the bicycle and wagged her tail. Jeremy started to ride, then he suddenly fell. He started to cry, and immediately Sandy ran up to him where he lay sprawled on the ground, and she started to lick his face. His crying turned to laughing because Sandy's tongue tickled him.

"Okay, I'll try again!" The second time, he fell again — but, this time, not as hard. The third and fourth times, he fell and started to laugh.

"Sandy, now I'm getting mad!" Finally, after a number of tries, he did not fall.

Sandy sat on the ground, and if she could talk, she would probably have said, "I knew you could do it."

It was a slow process but, after three months, Jeremy was slowly riding his bicycle again. After another four months, he was walking with a cane and no brace on his leg.

Sandy never knew that she was one of the main reasons why, today, Jeremy is a normal grown-up who does not even limp. She was only a dog and did not understand.

Or did she? ***

Floyd County TRIAD S.A.L.T. Council has high hopes for 1999

The Floyd County TRIAD S.A.L.T. Council met in regular session at the Betsy Layne Senior Citizen Center on Monday, February 9, at 10 a.m., with Vice-President Anna Howell, presiding.

The council discussed credit card fraud; credit fraud in general, telemarketing fraud, and the Attorney General's program of a No-Call-List for anyone wishing to have telemarketers stop calling them. Sheriff John K. Blackburn and Officer Ricky Thornsberry gave suggestions to seniors for dealing with these types of fraud and how to safeguard themselves from fraud and other types of crime.

The group's refrigerator card program is going forward. All seniors in Floyd County are urged to participate in the program. Seniors may get further information regarding the purpose and benefits of the refrigerator cards by contacting any one of the council members, visiting the senior citizens center near them and/or attending the meetings. Information on this program and others benefiting seniors is always available at the meetings of the TRIAD S.A.L.T. Council.

The quality of life survey results are in. All seniors were urged to participate in order to get a very thorough and accurate result. Those seniors answering, "yes," from the nearly 200 participants are as follows:

- Do you fear going out after dark?, 64%;
- Are you bothered by telemarketers/sweepstakes?, 62%;
- Is there vandalism in your neighborhood?, 66%;

- Are you afraid to be alone?, 64%;
- Do you fear your home being broken into?, 61%; and
- Is there a lack of public transportation?, 65%.

Which of the following would improve your life?

- Installment of home security devices, 77%;
- Street light improvements, 75%;
- Expanded neighborhood watch programs, 84%;
- Public transportation, 76%;
- Home security checks by police, 70%;
- Postal carriers/meter readers watching out for you, 75%;

- Having window locks on all first floor windows, 70% and
- Having smoke alarms installed, 73%.

This list includes only those areas in which seniors expressed concern. Some seniors may have additional concerns and/or suggestions that should be addressed. They are urged to attend the TRIAD S.A.L.T. Council meetings and make their views known.

The TRIAD program is in existence to address the needs of seniors and to provide information and assistance whenever and wherever possible. Caregivers and family members of senior citizens are also urged to attend.

OUR YESTERDAYS

(Items taken from The Floyd County Times, 10, 20, 30, 40, 50 and 60 years ago.)

Ten Years Ago (February 22, 1989)

The petition campaign seeking an April referendum on liquor sales in the Prestonsburg area hit a snag in the Floyd County Clerk's office Tuesday evening because clerks found that addresses of signers and the date signed were missing ... The Wheelwright City Council approved the purchase of a police car and agreed to join the Kentucky Municipal League during Saturday's regularly-scheduled meeting ... THINGS TO PONDER

"Smoke, smoke, smoke that cigarette!"

by Mable Rowe Lineberger

Really hate to admit it, but I gave in to peer pressure to smoke cigarettes at 17 years of age during my first year of nursing school. Then I continued to smoke for 20 years, even through several important people in my life tried to talk me into stopping. I just was not interested in giving up my "coffin nails." Finally, I stopped spontaneously for no reason connected to my health. Without smoking, hands seemed to appear that I did not know what to do with, since they no longer held a cigarette. I have often thought of how GREAT it would feel to have a cigarette, but I have not dared to tempt myself. It is just not worth it!

Researchers report that about half the blame for smoking goes to environmental factors, including parents and friends who smoke, society's acceptance of smoking, the availability of cigarettes, the need to be rebellious, and the abundance of cigarette advertising; i.e., the top three brands bought by underage smokers are exactly the top three brands that spend the most on advertising. The other half can be blamed on heredity with many genes that are likely to contribute to one's tendency to smoke, plus the interaction with the environment. For example, (1) variations in genes for proteins known to metabolize nicotine might make people react differently to nicotine; and (2) differences in genes known to be involved in the brain's reward system—which is triggered by nicotine—might make people more or less vulnerable to addiction. Women reported that external pressures of smoking, such as holding and smelling a cigarette, influence their urge to smoke, while nicotine seemed to influence men's smoking the most.

In addition to the powerful addictive nicotine, now 599 ingredients are added to tobacco in the manufacturing of cigarettes by the five major American cigarette companies. Each cigarette delivers about 6-8 mg of nicotine. Repeated use produces addiction in as little as a week! One-third of young people who are just "experimenting" end up being addicted by the time they are 20. Smoking is particularly dangerous for teens, because their bodies are still developing and changing, and the 4,000 chemicals (including 200 known poisons) in cigarette smoke can adversely affect this process. The carbon monoxide in the cigarette smoke increases the amount of cholesterol clogging the arteries.

As commonly known, nicotine impacts negatively on the body's every cell and system. Nicotine can increase salivation (makes you drool), increase stomach acid and motility (gives you heartburn and diarrhea), and increase heart rate and blood pressure. In your brain, nicotine can act as a psychomotor stimulant, increase alertness, increase attention, and can make you less hungry. These things tend to trick folks into addiction. Although many people smoke because they believe cigarettes calm their nerves, smoking releases epinephrine, a hormone which creates physiological stress in the smoker, rather than relaxation. The risks associated with smoking cigarettes include: diminished or extinguished sense of smell and taste, frequent colds, smoker's cough, gastric ulcers, chronic bronchitis, increase in heart rate and blood pressure, premature and more abundant face wrinkles, emphysema, heart disease, stroke, and cancer of the mouth, larynx (voice box), pharynx, esophagus, lungs, pancreas, cervix, uterus, and bladder.

Similar to other substance detoxifications, the body reacts when the person stops smoking; some nausea, upset stomach, slightly elevated blood pressure, possible mild skin rash, some swelling and water retention, irritability, and/or headaches. The bad news is withdrawal occurs within several hours of your last fix and is about one week long (unfortunately, the cravings and weight gain may last a little longer). This is what stops many people from being able to quit. The good news is there is help and support to help you kick the nicotine addiction. In addition, think of the money you'll save.

This, in no way, is all there is to know about smoking cigarettes, but hopefully it will help strike a bell that will influence someone to stop smoking. Try to hold on to these tidbits about nicotine addiction when you start to light up. Nicotine is a drug, the most prevalent psychoactive drug, only second to alcohol as the most abused drug, and often seen as a legal form of substance abuse. Smoking is a disease that often begins in childhood. Every day another 3000 young people become regular smokers. If a parent smokes, it is highly likely that their children will become smokers! I also found this great list of TOP 10 REASONS TO QUIT SMOKING: 10—Others have quit, so can you!; 9—Smoking doesn't solve your problems, quitting will!; 8—If you're a pack-a-day smoker (about $2.00 per day), then you'll be saving $730 per year; 7—Smoking has become less acceptable in public. Don't you want to be around others?; 6—You won't have to waste money on cosmetic surgery for your premature wrinkles, cigarette burns, and yellow stained teeth and nails; 5—You're sick of coughing all day, running out of breath, and smelling bad; 4—You want to stop killing others you care about with second hand smoke; 3—Chemotherapy (lots of cancer drugs) just doesn't seem like a good hobby to take up; 2—You don't want to learn to breathe with an oxygen tank or only one lung; 1—SMOKING KILLS YOU—QUITTING PROLONGS YOUR LIFE!

Reportedly, every cigarette you smoke, takes seven minutes off of your life!

A grouchy woman more likely to have depression than PMS

by John C. Wolf, D.O.
Associate Professor of Family Medicine
Ohio University College of Osteopathic Medicine

Question: I am currently starting a relationship with a girl who has told me she suffers from PMS quite severely. I have known her for nine weeks, and twice she has been very emotional, erratic, and acted like she was in a panic. Can you help me understand her condition and suggest things I can do to help her during these times? It is very important.

Answer: Premenstrual syndrome, often abbreviated as PMS, is so ubiquitous that the term has become a part of the common vocabulary. It describes an occurrence of anxiety, depression or other changes in mood before the onset of the menstrual period. Other symptoms such as breast tenderness, fatigue, bloating and abdominal cramping may also be present. Most women have some or all of these symptoms associated with their menstrual cycle, but in a mild and brief form. For an unfortunate few women, estimated at between 3 to 8 percent, the mood changes and other physical symptoms are both longer in duration and more severe in nature. It can truly become a disabling condition.

In PMS the symptoms clear up within a day after the start of the menstrual period. All seems well for another two to three weeks. Then one to two weeks before the next period is due, another episode begins.

The label "PMS" is often used by both men and women to describe a woman who is irritable, anxious and moody, particularly if she "growsl" at those around her. In more than 80 percent of cases, the cause of the mood disorder is not PMS. Depression, anxiety or even too much coffee or other drugs can be the cause. In fact, women don't have exclusive rights to moody behavior. Men act this way about as often, there just isn't a catchy acronym to describe their behavior. For the majority of women with PMS-like symptoms and for all those men who act the same way, the treatment is directed at the causing her symptoms. It may be true PMS or it may be another condition. In either case, suitable treatment can be recommended once the correct cause of her symptoms has

underlying depression, anxiety disorder or psychiatric condition. Fortunately, we have treatments today that are very effective for these problems. Unfortunately, we are not as successful with true PMS.

The cause of PMS has not been identified. Most researchers currently believe that it is a subtle disorder involving the relationship between the levels of sex hormones, principally estrogen and progesterin, and the chemicals in the brain called neurotransmitters, particularly serotonin. Because of this the current "cure du jour" includes the use of an antidepressant medicine that raises the level of serotonin. It is beneficial for most. There are other medicines that are also helpful for some sufferers, but there are also a number of prescription and non-prescription products that have been touted as the cure du jour for PMS and are now proven to be ineffective. High doses of progesterone, vitamin B, vitamin E and Primrose oil are among these. The use of calcium and magnesium supplements are currently in vogue, and they may or may not ultimately prove to be beneficial.

There are two important things you can do for your friend: Be emotionally supportive, and encourage her to talk to a family doctor or gynecologist about what may be

been established.

THE ONE NOT SENT

THE VALENTINE
My husband is not the greatest gift giver that ever went to the store. For all our years together, I have bought gifts on special occasions like birthdays and Christmas for the family and friends and signed both our names to the cards. When someone says, "Thanks for the gift," he usually says, "You're surely welcome," when, in fact, he doesn't even know what the gift is.

But he does like to buy cards for me on special occasions. Sometimes they're mushy, and sometimes they're more matter of fact. I, on the other hand, enjoy choosing gifts whether it's a special occasion or not.

We were driving up the road on Saturday before Valentine's day and he said, "I want to find you a pretty Valentine card." I said, "You don't need to get me a card. I don't have one for you." But he reminded me I had just brought home a new shirt and said, "Here's a Valentine gift for you."

"I've got a suggestion," I told him. "A card you would choose would cost you about five dollars. Why don't you just tell me what you want to say and give me the money?" He just grinned. Maybe he thinks Hallmark can say it better.

When I came into the kitchen Sunday morning, the big V day, he had coffee made and a card placed by my cup. I opened it and saw there were two one dollar bills enclosed. "What's this for?" I asked.

He said, "I couldn't find a card as nice as I wanted, so I'm giving you the difference in the price."

I'm sure he got exactly the card he wanted, regardless of what it cost, for the message read: "I was going to wish you a wildly romantic and passionate Valentine's Day, but then I remembered, what's the use? You're married!"

Along about the first of February, I stopped by a K-Mart store on a quick errand. I walked by the greeting card department and spotted some small Valentine cards for special friends. I picked up three or four, thinking I would go back when there was more time to choose others for some family members and other close friends.

I don't know where the time went but I never got back, not even to get a special card for the grandchildren and people I ordinarily give attention to. One lady, especially, deserved a card and a little note of thanks for many things. I doubt that she missed it, for she is so much more used to giving than to receiving.

This lady was born with some God-given talents. She could play a musical instrument by ear, draw and paint beautiful pictures and write eloquent words. But there was never opportunity to polish and market these gifts because someone else was always needing her time and attention. While still in her teens her own mother became ill and died, leaving her with a household and two brothers and two sisters, younger than herself, to care for.

When the brothers and sisters grew up and became independent, others came along to need the care she gave—children, grandchildren, nieces, nephews and strangers that wandered through her gates. Caring for other people became a way of life for her.

She doesn't like to travel. She likes to help others get ready to go. She will launder clothes, polish shoes and pack lunches, wanting everything to be just right for whoever she's involved with. And when they've returned, she will listen to their experiences as though she had enjoyed them herself.

Her name is Sylvia, my sister, and this is my belated Valentine message to her.

4-H search

A nation-wide search for 4-H alumni is underway to locate former members who can reconnect with today's kids and provide them with 4-H opportunities, just as their parent's generation did for them.

The effort is being bolstered by the J.C. Penney Company according to Dick Sauer, President of the National 4-H council.

During the month of March, the company will put a statement on all their credit card mailings asking 4-H Alumni to re-establish contact with 4-H by calling a toll-free phone number (1-800-651-9800) or by accessing the National 4-H council's official web site (www.fourhcouncil.edu).

Both contact points will give 4-H Alumni a chance to identify where they are now, how 4-H has affected their life and give them the opportunity to know what is going on in today's 4-H program. Names of Kentucky respondents will be sent back to the appropriate county and state by the National 4-H council.

Extension support is critical, finding time for the kids is even more important.

4-H alumni may become re-engaged with 4-H as donors or volunteers. While financial Extension support is critical, finding time for the kids is even more important.

Skills for solo parents: Make time for yourself

by Theresa Scott
County Extension Agent for Family and Consumer Sciences

Do you love your children? Do you want the best for them? Then you've got to carve out personal time for yourself. (Now, go back to the beginning of this short paragraph and read it again—slowly, thoughtfully. It's that important!)

You feel better when you take time to nurture yourself. You're calmer, more energetic, and more creative. You're more fun to be with, and you're a better parent, co-worker and friend. By your example, you teach your child an important lesson about self-renewal and giving your best to those around you.

Take responsibility for creating time for your personal enrichment. The following suggestions will help you get the ball rolling:

- Using a calendar, schedule chunks of time just for you. Do this a month, or even a year, in advance.

If your children are old enough to understand, tell them what you are doing and why. Then stick to your plan.

- Do something just for you. For example, take a hot bath. It's relaxing, gives you time to think, and reduces stress. Or set aside time to read a book you think you'll enjoy, or to watch a favorite television program.

- Ask yourself: What do I find peaceful, refreshing, or energizing? See if you can participate in one or more of these activities on a more regular basis.

- What brings joy to you? Consider doing more of these things—particularly those that require little time and might easily fit into your daily routine.

- Remember: Making time for yourself is not selfish; it is healthy—for you and your children.

- Give a friend or family member the opportunity to spend a morning, evening or entire day with your children. Use the time to do whatever your heart desires.

- Build in a little period of quiet time early in the morning or at another time when you are fresh. Use this quiet time in a way that feels good to you, perhaps to relax and enjoy nature, to put your day in perspective, or to commune with God.

- Be adventuresome. What would you love to do? Let yourself dream; then follow your heart and take some risks. Give your home a fresh look, launch into a hobby that fascinates you, or explore new people, places and ideas.

We all need time for ourselves—time for recharging our batteries and nourishing our souls. Time for doing what brings us peace and joy, time for personal reflection and enrichment. Make it a point to give yourself this gift of personal time. Guide your children in similarly taking a little time here and there for themselves. By doing this, you'll find that your life as a single parent becomes less hectic, richer, and more enjoyable.

Many employers using wrong forms

Seven months after the implementation of a new Kentucky law designed in part to improve collection of child support, many employers are still sending their new-hire information to the wrong address and using the wrong forms.

Employers must report all newly hired employees within 20 days of their hire to the Kentucky New-Hire Reporting Center, which offers several easy reporting methods, such as submitting via the Internet or using pre-formulated diskettes.

They are no longer required to report new-hire information on the forms labeled UI-414 or UI-414 to the Division of Unemployment Insurance to provide information directly to the Division of Child Support.

Employers may mail or fax their new-hire information to: Kentucky New-Hire Reporting Center, P.O. Box 1130, Richmond, VA, 23218-1130. Toll-free fax line: 1-800-817-0099.

To answer employers' questions, the center provides a toll-free customer service help desk at 1-800-817-2262 or a website at www.ky-newhire.com.

Employers who fail to comply with Kentucky's new-hire reporting law can be fined up to $250 per calendar month per employee.

More than 74,000 information packets have been mailed to employers explaining Kentucky's new-hire law and the services provided by Kentucky's New-Hire Reporting Center.

New-hire reporting is an effective way to increase child support collections, lower public-assistance costs, and reduce fraudulent unemployment and worker's compensation payments. It also provides a critical link in locating non-custodial parents and withholding child-support payments from their wages.

Last year, 406,142 newly hired employees reported in Kentucky were matched with 41,462 child-support cases. Child-support collections through wage withholdings, the most effective collection method, totaled more than $82.8 million of the $198 million collected by the Kentucky Division of Child Support in federal fiscal year 1998.

Improvements in Kentucky's new-hire reporting law enacted in July, and the establishment of the Kentucky's New Hire Reporting Center, will make it more difficult for delinquent parents to avoid making child-support payments.

Kentucky's new-hire information is also entered in the National Directory of New Hires, which has located more than one million delinquent 1, 1997, launch. About one-third of all child-support cases involve parents living in different states.

CHAMBER NOTES

"Business helping business"

by Rebecca Derossett, executive director
Floyd County
Chamber of Commerce

Country at Heart was a lively spot last Tuesday evening! Owners Gary Frazier and Gwen Harmon hosted Chamber members at Business After Hours from 5 till 7 p.m. The group enjoyed refreshments from a variety of snack items which can be purchased at the shop.

While munching and mingling, members browsed through the handicrafts on display and viewed videos about Appalachian Log Homes and Old Town Travel, two other businesses represented by Frazier.

The Chamber office has seen a lot of activity this past week, as Rebecca Derossett settled into her new position as director. Thanks go out to Tom Harris' crew of able-bodied city maintenance workers for rearranging the office furniture. Drop by and visit at 106 N. Front St., Prestonsburg, upstairs over The Bank Josephine. Office hours are 8 a.m. till 4:30 p.m. Derossett and secretary Beverly Hackworth look forward to seeing you!

The calendar is getting full—lots of meetings and events. The Chamber will meet in regular session on Monday, March 1, at noon, Jenny Wiley State Resort Park. Guest speaker will be Dawn Wheeler, Central Kentucky Blood Center, who will announce a children's contest.

A very important meeting is coming up soon for the membership committee, which is co-chaired by Trent Naim and Allen Bolling. This will be a work session to plan the BIG BLITZ membership drive in March. Others on the committee are Stephanie Baldwin, Bruce Kelleck, David Lafferty and Norm Marcum. Date of the meeting will be announced as soon as possible.

Dues renewals are coming in at a fast pace, but we want to give everyone an opportunity to join the Chamber. Of course, you do not have to wait till March to join. Just call the office at 606/886-0364.

What can the Floyd County Chamber of Commerce do for your business? Take a moment and think about it. Do you need more exposure to the general public? Do you need training for your employees? If so, what kind? Let us know your priorities and concerns, and we will do everything possible to work with you on resolving these issues.

The executive committee is tentatively planning to have a couple of two-hour forums in which we could address topics such as education, employee health care costs, and excessive business paperwork. The Chamber welcomes your input.

The Chamber website is now in the process of being updated by Carl Lafferty of the Floyd County Library. Check www.floydchamber.com for accuracy of your web listing. Call the office with any corrections. You may include your E-mail, also.

Carl's goal is to get the website completely updated and then maintain it monthly. Just think what this can do for you and the Chamber. Links and special events and information highways! The possibilities are endless.

See you, same place, same time, next week. Stay in touch!

Take charge with Choose to Move

Choose to move is a newly developed American Heart Association National Women's Heart Disease and Stroke Campaign program that provides incentives for American women to incorporate physical activity into their daily routine through creative and practical ways. The new 1999 program focused on both physical activity and nutrition.

Primarily aimed at women, (age 25 and above), who are considering becoming more active. Choose to Move is a 12-week program that helps participants set health goals, manage their weight and build a support system of friends and family members.

Since the mind is most often the biggest barrier to physical activity, the American Heart Association is hoping to change women's attitudes about fitness and good health through the Choose to Move program. Participants will not only lower the risks of cardiovascular disease by increasing their physical activity, but also will enjoy benefits of a healthier life—including increased strength, more energy and reduced stress.

There are no costs associated with the Choose to Move program. Women can sign up on-line at www.women.americanheart.org—the American Heart Association's Take Wellness to Heart web site.

Those previously registered with Take Wellness to Heart through 1-888-MY HEART will automatically receive information that includes a brochure with questions to answer.

After returning the completed questionnaire to the American Heart Association, each participant will receive a program handbook. The handbook, written in collaboration with the highly respected Cooper Institute of Aerobics Research in Dallas, contains health and fitness tips, resource lists and weekly score sheets.

The program seeks to underscore the point that women don't have to join a gym or health club to fit a daily routine of physical activity into their lives. Choose to Move begins with only 10 minutes of moderate physical activity per day in the first two weeks, moves up to 20 minutes per day in the second two weeks, and tops off at 30 minutes per day in the final eight weeks.

The American Heart Association believes that is a routine a woman can continue—even in an active life—after the program ends.

Sponsored by Aetna U.S. Healthcare and Wyeth-Ayerst Laboratories, the Take Wellness to Heart campaign is designed to educate women and help them reduce their risks of heart disease and stroke.
