FLOYD COUNTY

Serving Floyd County since 1927

Local man wins judgeship Patton, Paxton, Hall, Waugh keep their seats

by Pam Shingler
Editor

The only local election that might have had some doubt attached to it ended with the Floyd County man winning. David Allen Barber appeared late last night to have won the contest for Judge of the Kentucky Court of Appeals.

Barber challenged incumbent John A. Gardner of Paintsville who has served for several years as judge in the 7th Appellate District, Second Division.

Barber, a local attorney, won handily in Floyd County in the non-partisan race, besting Gardner twice over, 6,746 votes to 3,202. Throughout the district, he tallied more than 23,000, a lead of about 3,000 votes over his opponent.

Barber said late Tuesday night he was "very relieved but kind of tired."

Barber said that early in his campaign he was concerned about the outcome of the election due to the amount of funds raised by his opponent.

"What compounded the problem was that there was just a sea of money... donated by the local coal companies and big business... I felt confident (about the outcome) a few weeks ago when he started putting negative publicity out.

"I think we got our message out that we're representing the working people... The message I get (from the election) is that the people want their representative, whether it's the Court of Appeals or the Legislature, to be responsible to the people and not to big business.

"I knew we had the numbers when Pike County came back 50 percent. We had been told that the Gardner camp had to win big in Pikeville. I was ahead and only two precincts were left: Floyd County and Knott County and I knew I would pull those in.

"We rode to victory," Barber said. In the four-person race for the new judgeship in Floyd County, Julia Paxton, who was appointed to the bench in the summer, won with close to 5,000 votes, about 2,000 votes more than her closest contender, Jeffrey Damron.

Also competing for the Third Division in the 31st Judicial Circuit were Tim Parker, who earned about 1,459 votes, and Janice Porter, with a little more than 1,100 votes.

Paxton heads what is commonly referred to as Family Court. The office is non-partisan.

Another appointee, Chris Waugh, easily won his bid for the elected office of Floyd County Clerk. A Democrat, he garnered more than 8,344 votes, as opposed to under 2,000 for Republican Barry Spurlock.

Republican Sheila Crisp Lee posted a decent showing against a third appointee, Douglas Ray Hall, who was seeking formal election as Clerk of Floyd Circuit Court.

Democrat Hall, who was appointed to the clerkship a couple of months ago, recorded around 6,300 votes, and Lee tallied a little more than 3,000, one of the better showings for a Republican candidate in recent Floyd County elections.

Schools host blood drives

Allen Central and Betsy Layne high schools are hosting blood drives next week, in conjunction with the Central Kentucky Blood Center.

On Thursday, November 11, blood donations will be taken in the ACHS gym from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. The following day, Friday, November 12, BLHS will sponsor the drive from 8:30 a.m. to 2 p.m. in the library. Donors should be 17 years of age and weigh 100 pounds or more. For information, call Dawn Wheeler at 606/432-4979.

Local firm wins contract

MRC Materials, with offices in Paintsville and Pikeville, has been awarded a contract to be the concrete supplier for the construction of the US Federal Prison—Big Sandy at Honey Branch in Martin County. P.J. Dick Inc. of Pittsburgh has the federal contract to build the prison, which is scheduled for construction between January 2000 and 2002.

"This will be of tremendous benefit to the local economy and all the workers," said MRC owners Sandy and Mike Brown.

Water forum set for Hazard

A regional forum to discuss how federal dollars are spent on housing, drinking water, sewer systems and employment opportunities is set for November 17 from 10:30 a.m. to 2 p.m. at the Feltner Center at Hazard Community College, room 123D-E. Specifically, the forum will consider the state's Consolidated Plan.

The forum is sponsored by the Homeless and Housing Coalition of Kentucky. For information, call 502/223-1834.

Council will give land for stadium

by Pam Shingler
Editor

The Prestonsburg City Council has formally agreed to donate land in the city's Mountaintop Project for construction of a football stadium for Prestonsburg High School.

At a special called meeting yesterday, council members voted unanimously to support a recommendation by Mayor Jerry Fannin to offer the property to the Floyd County Board of Education.

The donation, if accepted by the board, also includes the city's provision of a parking lot for the stadium.

The building of stadiums at PHS and South Floyd High School has been stymied by concerns over the purchase of land and the growing costs of the projects. The board has no alternative but to purchase land for the South Floyd complex, and it has indicated money is not available to buy land to expand the present PHS field.

No other construction projects in the county system can be started until these two legislature-mandated stadiums are under construction.

Former Wayland mayor robbed

by Randell Reno
Staff Writer

At least three suspects were involved in a theft of $8,000-$10,000 worth of property from land at Garrett belonging to Eugene Mullins, former Wayland mayor.

Floyd County Deputy Sheriff Bobby Hackworth said the land, located on Stone Creek of Garrett, has a number of storage buildings and houses.

The perpetrators apparently entered the land on four wheelers and hauled off air compressors, floor jacks, and various pieces of mechanical equipment. The three alleged thieves proceeded to sell the booty to a Knott County man.

The thefts happened last week, either late Wednesday night or early Thursday morning and then again early Friday morning. An investigation was opened up by Kentucky State Police Trooper Mickey Watson in the first incident.

But after Mullins replaced the locks on the buildings, he found on Friday morning that those locks had been cut.

Mullins had returned to the property late Thursday night and caught one of the thieves, who was apparently on a return trip to procure more goods. Mullins reportedly held the man until Hackworth arrived.

Arrested in the burglaries were Arley Michael Jackson, 21, and Joseph Collett, 19, both of Garrett. The two men were charged by Deputy Hackworth with burglary in the second degree, theft by unlawful taking over $300, and criminal mischief in the first degree. Around $3,800 of the merchandise was recovered from the Knott County man, whose name was not released. The man reportedly admitted to police officers that he knew he was buying stolen property. He also told officers the alleged thieves made at least six trips back and forth from the property

Stadium

Estill Carter, who made the motion to offer the land, said the use of the hilltop tract, off KY 321, north of the city, for the PHS stadium might make it possible for both schools to get the facilities they need.

He added that he thought businesses and individuals in the Prestonsburg community would be willing to help pay for the PHS complex.

Carter said that when the present field was constructed some 20 years ago, community members donated money for the goal posts, bleachers, utility lines and other elements.

"I think we could get something that would be premier (with) a combination of resources of the city, the school board and the community," Carter said.

Carter, however, expressed concern over the figures the board is using for the cost of the two projects — more than $4 million. "They need to show me why the cost is so much," he said.

Fannin said he had visited the new stadium in Breathitt County, which he said cost a little more than a million dollars. "They (Breathitt County school board) have offered to give us their plans," the mayor said. "It's a beautiful facility."

Hansel Cooley said he sees pros and cons to both options for the PHS stadium — building a new facility on top of the mountain or renovating the present stadium. "The perfect situation does not exist," he said. "But, our offering the property at no charge is tremendous."

"I think all of us working together, we could come up with something to be proud of," Cooley said.

Fannin added that the governor has already approved money for blacktop and guardrails for the road up to the Mountaintop Project, where an 18-hole golf course is nearing completion. He also said the city could maintain the football field, since city workers would already be mowing grass at the golf course.

Also at the special meeting, council members passed the second reading of a tax ordinance for the fiscal year. The rate includes 0.217 per $100 on real estate and 0.262 per $100 on tangible personal property and franchises.

The mayor said that since rain caused cancellation of fireworks during the Jenny Wiley Pioneer Festival in October, some residents have suggested to him that the city have a fireworks display to celebrate the new year.

Carter suggested having other activities in conjunction with the fireworks on New Year's Eve. It was agreed that a committee would be formed to plan a celebration.

The mayor asked for citizens to submit suggestions for such a celebration.

The next regular meeting of the council is scheduled for Monday, November 8 at 6 p.m.

Allen leaders discuss water

Allen Mayor Sharon Woods and City Clerk Bill Parsons said that the construction companies installing the water lines in the city are "renegeing on their original deal," in the Allen City Commission meeting Monday evening.

Woods indicated that in the original plan the company said it would install water lines into the homes that were 50 feet or less away from the main line.

"Where they have it stubbed off is where they are going to put line," said Parsons, who said the lines were being "stubbed off at four feet."

"We told the people it would be 50 feet," said Parsons. "The city agreed to pay for 50 feet to the houses. Prestonsburg took over and agreed to honor that."

City attorney Stacey Marshall was given a copy of the original agreement and said he would take it to the next meeting with the companies and officials to see if the problems could be straightened out.

The construction employees told Marshall everything is on track and that barring a terrible winter everything should remain that way.

Because the asphalt plants typically shut down in mid-November, the repaving of the streets in Allen will have to wait until spring or summer of next year, Marshall said.

12 local School-to-Work grants awarded

The Cabinet for Workforce Development has awarded $900,000 in 12 local School-to-Work grants. The grants will help ensure that School-to-Work systems are self-sustaining when federal funding ends.

In School-to-Work activities, elementary pupils are exposed to various careers through activities such as career days and workplace visits. Middle school students begin exploring career areas and thinking about their specific interests and talents.

In high school, students concentrate on career preparation, including worksite training and career-related courses that may extend to college or technical schools.

The following lists the counties involved and amount of the grant.

- Ballard, Carlisle, McCracken and Marshall counties, $87,000.
- Christian, Todd and Trigg, $115,000.
- Henderson, Union and Webster, $55,000.
- Adair, Casey, Cumberland, Russell, $90,000.
- Bourbon, Clark, Fayette, Harrison, Nicholas and Scott, $105,000.
- Estill, Garrard, Jackson, Lincoln, Madison, Powell and Rockcastle, $110,000.
- Bell, Clay, Knox, Laurel, McCreary and Whitley, $90,000.
- Boyd, Carter, Elliott, Greenup and Lawrence, $80,000.
- Anderson County, $48,000.
- Bullitt County, $15,000.
- Hopkins County, $60,000.
- Pulaski County, $45,000.

Two fires reported last week

Times Staff Report

The Prestonsburg Fire Department was called to the scene of a trailer fire Friday morning near the former Plantation Motel on old US 23.

Fire Marshall Larry Adams said that firefighters extinguished the fire completely before leaving the scene, but the next day the trailer was engulfed once more.

Prestonsburg 911 recorded calls saying the fire was getting close to other residences and setting the hills on fire, but the fire department refused to return to the scene.

Enough water was put on the fire to completely extinguish all of the fire on the first trip, and there was no way the fire could have restarted on its own, Adams said.

The trailer was a complete loss, but there were no signs of the hills catching on fire or that the fire would have spread to other residences.

In another part of the county, a trailer belonging to Rodney Brown of Maytown caught fire early Saturday morning.

Twenty firefighters from the Maytown Volunteer Fire Department responded quickly to the blaze, extinguishing it in around 20 minutes, said Chief Darrell Bradley.

The home received extensive smoke and fire damage but the exterior remained intact. The fire is under investigation.

Career-minded puppies need loving households

The Guide Dog Foundation for the Blind is looking for families who are willing to help a Labrador or Golden Retriever puppy pursue a most important career.

When these dogs, who are bred and born at the foundation, are about 14 months old, they begin training as a guide dog for a person who is blind or visually impaired.

Their services are in demand — there are many blind people across the country who need a guide dog to increase their independence and mobility.

But until the dogs are old enough to begin training, they need a loving home, with kind people who will teach them good manners and show them how to act around other people.

Those who help care for guide dog puppies are called "Puppy Walkers," and they are located across the country. In fact, there is a Puppy Walker group already established in Kentucky.

Anyone who is interested in helping, may call Erin Cleary, Puppy Program coordinator, at (800) 548-4337, ext. 316, to learn more about becoming a Puppy Walker, so these pups can get to the next step of their career.

Election

Patton won in Floyd County and throughout the state, challenger Gatewood Galbraith won 17 precincts locally.

A Reform Party candidate, Galbraith won almost 3,200 votes in Floyd County, coming in second to Patton's more than 4,100 votes. Republican Peppy Martin registered in third place with a little more than 2,800 votes. Natural Law Party candidate Nailah Jumoke-Yarbrough was a distant fourth with only 146 votes here.

Statewide, Patton's win was more pronounced. With 97 percent of the vote in, he had almost 350,000 votes to Martin's 125,681 and Galbraith's 84,797.

In the only other contested race, Democrat J.E. Combs, who has campaigned repeatedly for Third District Railroad Commissioner on the platform that his position should be abolished, won easily over his opponent Anita Steffen. In Floyd County, Combs took 5,899 votes and Steffen 1,905.

According to David Layne of the local Election Board, around 10,000 Floyd Countians came out to vote — about 25 percent of the electorate. Layne said a much lighter turnout had been expected.

Running unopposed locally — and assured of retaining their positions — were Circuit Judge Danny Caudill, First Division, and Circuit Judge John David Caudill, Second Division. Sara Combs was unopposed in her bid for re-election to the Seventh Appellate District Judgeship, First Division.

Unopposed at the state level were John Y. Brown, Secretary of State; A.B. "Ben" Chandler, Attorney General; Ed Hatchett, Auditor of Public Accounts; Jonathan Miller, State Treasurer; and Billy Ray Smith, Secretary of Agriculture.

Tainted World Series

That the Yankees and Braves were paired in the last World Series of the century is both fitting and profoundly troubling for baseball.

The assurance comes in knowing that these are the game's best teams and have been for some years. Atlanta has been to the post-season every year since 1991, and New York has appeared in three of the last four World Series.

Indeed, this is the 35th time in 80 years the Yankees have made it to the October classic.

But therein lies the problem. Who could have predicted a Yankees-Braves matchup this fall? Nearly everyone.

These are, after all, the best teams money can buy. And, money — lots of money — seems increasingly to ensure success for baseball's elite, while lack of it dooms nearly everyone else.

Baseball, fixated for the moment with glories of the past century, needs badly to prepare for the next. What it must soon achieve is parity — a real sense of possibility that the lowly Royals and Brewers, Twins and Pirates can have a genuine chance at winning again.

Yes, it's an awesome collection of talent that the Yankees and Atlanta have assembled. Their pitching staffs have won 13 Cy Young awards between them. And the New York batters are marvels at fouling off pitches and working the count to a point where a hit is nearly inevitable.

But in no other sport could two teams have cornered such lineups, lavishing on them paychecks totaling $88 million (Yanks) and $76 million (Atlanta).

By contrast, average teams make do on half as much, and bottom feeders like the Twins can afford less than $15 million.

This year's eight playoff clubs averaged payrolls of $70 million while the worst half-dozen teams averaged $24 million. These are teams — and fans — without hope.

The real message of the 1999 World Series, then, is that a lack of hope at the bottom tarnishes success at the top.

Baseball needs only to look to the NFL for a better, fairer system. Shared TV revenues and limits on player salaries give football fans everywhere real hope that this could be their year.

Since March, baseball has had a blue-ribbon committee working on solutions to its woeful inequities. Fans deserve some answers soon.

Hospital is 'moving on'

Editor:

In response to Ellis J. Stevens' letter published Sunday, October 31, 1999, representatives of SEIU and Highlands Regional Medical Center have talked. Bargaining means give and take.

The medical center bargained against itself throughout the negotiating process. The negotiations broke down when it was evident the medical center could go no further, and the union would not change its initial positions.

The medical center is moving on. It has been hurt by the impact of the strike. The offer of September 1 is making less and less sense now.

The medical center is moving on. We are rebuilding, re-staffing and re-energizing. Yes, we have many good workers out on strike. Many have returned and found a very upbeat environment within which to work. We are truly thankful to have these people back.

There are also many other good people in this community who want the opportunity to work at Highlands. They bring with them new skills, new perspectives and new attitudes. They are deserving of a chance to work and to contribute to the rebuilding of the medical center.

No one, no one is indifferent to the 300 workers who are keeping Highlands operating. We appreciate the difficult, stressful situation they face each day. We witness their compassion toward the increasing number of patients they serve.

The management and board of the medical center appreciate their sacrifices.

The compassion shown by these caregivers toward the patients outshines the harsh words and intimidation that is occurring on the picket line, Mr. Stevens.

As a self-proclaimed man of the cloth, it is hoped you would find the good in all of those involved.

HRMC

Minister urges negotiations

Editor:

To Harold C. Warman, President/C.E.O., Highlands Regional Medical Center, and David Regan, President, District 1199-Ky. OH, WV, Service Employees International Union

It has now been nearly two months since the conflict between Highlands Regional Medical Center (HRMC) and the Service Employees International Union (SEIU) culminated in work stoppages and a called strike.

During this time, I have silently watched and diligently prayed as the tensions between HRMC and the SEIU grew to the point where neither side now communicates except through public advertisements and/or courtroom appearances.

Need I remind you that at the very heart of HRMC lies a founder who toiled to enhance the quality of health care for this region. "Doctor George" (Archer) dreamed of the day when his people would not have to travel a hundred miles to receive the same quality of health care that many city-folk enjoyed.

In the same vein, many dedicated employees of HRMC have labored selflessly to not only provide an income for their family, but care for the working people of eastern Kentucky and their families; young and old, rich and poor.

The same community whose neighbors are employed by HRMC and to which quality health services have been offered, now find themselves dealing with a divided heart on many of the health care decisions facing them and their families.

Therefore, I urge you both to move beyond the obstacles that have not only prolonged this struggle, but have driven wedges between HRMC, the SEIU, and the community you have both vowed to serve.

For the sake of those who need your services and in time of illness do not need to face the decision as to where to seek professional health care, I pray you to enter into immediate dialogue which would lead to a creative, harmonious and peaceful resolution of this matter.

To that end, I ask that each side not only commit to continued dialogue, but also to the following principles:

- First, that both HRMC and the SEIU immediately agree to a neutral third party facilitator or mediator from the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Services whose duty it would be to foster discussion, mediate issues, keep the sessions focused and the lines of communications between HRMC and the SEIU open and civil until a resolution is reached.

- Second, that both the HRMC and the SEIU be present at all scheduled meetings and engage in open dialogue and good faith bargaining intended to bring resolution to the current standoff.

Bubba's Wildcat schedule

I notice that we have a large number of signs for the various candidates (not as many as when we have a full-fledged election but quite a few.) I guess we have to call this a mini-election.

After you read my questions about such signs and cards, you will probably say, "I know why he isn't a politician."

Do those signs really accomplish anything? I mean, do people actually go to the polls and say, "I think I will vote for candidate X because he had a neat looking sign?" or "I'm voting for Bubba because he gave a Wildcat schedule."

I have noticed that the use of cards is not as prevalent as in the past. Time was when candidates would pay someone to hand these cards out on election day. I know this was a ploy of some kind, but I never did figure it out. To be honest with you, I didn't really spend a lot of time on it.

Sometimes the signs are bunched up so that the average reader would have to be straight from an Evelyn Wood session to read all of them.

What I do is divide them up. When I come out of McDowell, I read the signs starting from the left, and the next day I start from the right. If a car is in front of me, I can read them all. None of them gives me any idea why I should vote for the candidate.

I may be wrong on this, but I think candidates are supposed to take the signs down after the election (win or lose). Even if it isn't the law, it's the ethical thing to do.

If you don't take your signs down, I'm going to talk about you.

An idea — when you take the signs down, replace them with words of the day, famous quotations or even formulas we all should know.

Or lacking that, let's put that classic back up that appeared some years ago: "Floyd County has the best politicians money can buy."

Why don't you politicians (why is it everyone running for a political office is a politician but nobody will 'fess up to being one?) do something constructive — like raise $50 some million.

If George can do it, I know some of you can. Then we will turn around and give the money to the school system and let them waste it. (Sorry about that — the devil made me write that.)

Oh, enough about the election. Let's look at some humorous stuff.

I got a letter from Hugo and Sally Miller at Drift. After reading my column on the funk, they sent me an envelope marked "Non-funk material — use responsibly."

Part of the material had to do with answers that 11-year-olds gave on a science test. Below are a few rather interesting answers.

"When you smell an odorless gas, it is probably carbon monoxide."

"Three kinds of blood vessels are arteries, vanes and caterpillars."

"The body consists of three parts — the brainium, the borax and the abominable cavity. The brainium contains the

Walter May and Susan Smith (director of the Leonard Lawson Cancer Center) received words of praise from Governor Paul Patton and his wife, Judi.

Patton at Cancer Center

Governor Paul Patton and his wife Judi, attended a ceremony at the Leonard Lawson Cancer Center Monday, October 18, to commend the staff of the facility for the work they do and to help celebrate Breast Cancer Awareness Month.

Pikeville Methodist Hospital, in cooperation with the radiologists of Pikeville Radiology, is offering a special rate of $68 on screening mammograms during the month of October in celebration of Breast Cancer Awareness Month.

According to Alex Poulos, M.D., one of four radiologists at Pikeville Radiology and Chief of Staff at Pikeville Methodist Hospital, breast cancer is the disease most feared by women today, and for good reason.

"The American Cancer Society estimates that there will be 175,000 new cases of breast cancer in the U.S. this year, while 43,300 will die from the disease. Breast cancer is the leading cause of cancer deaths in women age 40-55, but the good news is that the earlier the cancer is found, the better the chances for successful treatment," Poulos said.

Throughout the month of October, you can schedule an appointment for a screening mammogram at one of three separate locations by calling (606) 432-6058. Three locations participating in the event include: The Breast Care Center on Hambley Boulevard; The Archer Clinic in Prestonsburg; or Pikeville

Methodist Hospital.

The American Cancer Society recommends that all women age 40 and older have a mammogram each year. Talk to your doctor about when and how often you should have a mammogram.

More than 2,700 women are diagnosed with breast cancer each year in the state of Kentucky, and approximately 700 of those Kentuckians die from the terrible disease. The Pattons urge every woman to have their mammograms performed regularly, stressing that prevention is the best cure.

CROWNING GLORY

If water trickles down into the fireplace, the chimney crown may be the culprit. The crown is the sloped skirt of masonry around the top of the chimney. If the mortar that forms the crown shrinks and cracks, gaps will form between the crown and flue. To prevent water from entering the airspace that exists between the flue and the surrounding masonry, it is necessary to inject flexible sealant between the flue and crown. The crown must also be protected with flashing that wraps from inside the flue, over the flue edge, behind the crown, and out the bottom of the crown. Thus, any moisture that makes it past the sealed opening is diverted outside the chimney by the flashing.

HINDMAN PROMART invites you to stop in and look over our fantastic selection of items for your home. We carry everything necessary for home maintenance and repair, including flexible sealants. We also work with professional contractors in this area by providing them with everything they need at competitive prices. We are close by at #1 Pro St., Hindman (785-3151). Most major credit cards accepted. Open. Mon.-Fri., 7-5:30; Sat., 7-2. Need windows or doors? We carry the outstanding Peachtree line.

HINT: Because a chimney flue will expand at a greater rate than the surrounding masonry, chimneys are constructed with an airspace between the flue and the crown.

Legislature to consider assisted living legislation

State Representative Ira Branham has announced that he is sponsoring assisted living legislation on behalf of older and disabled Kentuckians.

Branham said, "Assisted living is the most exciting innovation in the care of the elderly in decades, and provides new hope, new options, and an entirely new homelike environment for frail individuals who can no longer reside in their own homes."

The American Association of Retired Persons has worked throughout the nation to develop assisted living as the important link in the continuum of care between the home and health and rehabilitative care facilities, such as personal care in nursing homes.

Assisted living offers a preferred housing and service arrangement for adults needing assistance, but not requiring nursing home placement. The clients reside independently in a safe environment that ensures consumer choice and dignity.

The AARP has said that the consumer protections proposed in the legislation are noteworthy as some of the most progressive in the nation.

Julie Harding of the Kentucky Assisted Living Facilities Association says that the proposed legislation "creates a careful balance between reasonable government oversight of Kentucky's assisted living industry and each consumer's oft-ignored right to live in a residential setting that offers choice and independence."

The proposed legislation is being sponsored along with State Robert Damron of Nicholasville, and will be voted on in the upcoming General Assembly session starting in January.

- Fourth, that all intimidation tactics on both sides cease immediately. Such tactics include, but are not limited to, video taping, telephone calls, public comment, threats, and/or personal attacks.

- Fifth, that HRMC and the SEIU agree to have present at every session a member of the clergy to offer spiritual direction and pastoral care to the negotiating teams, members of HRMC, the SEIU membership, and the third party facilitator or mediator.

- Finally, that HRMC and the SEIU agree to a contract approval process that will be conducted in a positive environment, free from any and all tactics and/or actions that would fuel conflict and mistrust. And, that HRMC and SEIU do everything possible to restore the public trust and confidence.

The situation as it currently exists holds in the balance both danger and opportunity. I strongly urge both HRMC and SEIU to seize the opportunities available before this

Cancer center approved

U.S. Rep. Hal Rogers (KY-5) says the House of Representatives has approved the creation of a Center for Disease Control in Kentucky that will focus on preventing cancer in the Appalachian region.

Rogers worked to include the provision in the final version of the FY 2000 Labor/HHS Appropriations Bill which provides funds for the federal CDCs.

"The high rate of cancer in the counties of Appalachia is a problem which has not been adequately addressed," Rogers said.

"Under this proposal, the Centers for Disease Control - in conjunction with the University of Kentucky - will establish a center to catalogue the incidence and causes of cancer in this region. The center will also help provide cancer awareness and prevention services throughout Kentucky's Appalachian counties."

A 1994 study by the National Cancer Institute highlighted significant cancer control problems in the region and recommended a coordinated research effort utilizing the resources of a major research institution, such as the University of Kentucky.

The CDC has supported the project and has signaled it would sponsor the new cancer center if funding were included in its budget. Rogers said the center would develop a comprehensive cancer control plan for the region and develop a research program that would identify some of the barriers to effective cancer control in Appalachia.

The legislation awaits Senate passage and will be sent to President Bill Clinton for his signature.

Safe Schools Data project releases district reports

The second in a series of three statistical reports based on the Kentucky Safe Schools Data Project was released November 1. District and regional data are reported on prevention activities, law and local board policy violations, and school response to such violations for 176 school districts, the Kentucky School for the Blind, the Kentucky School for the Deaf and the Model Laboratory School. The third report will focus on school data by type of school setting (elementary, middle, high school) and will be issued before the end of the calendar year.

The data reveal that there are variations among the service center regions for all of the data elements analyzed in this report. Provision of prevention programs and strategies by region ranged from an average of 67.1 percent to 92.7 percent, with drug prevention services/activities the most prevalent. Rates of law and local board policy violations, victims and offenders, as well as disciplinary actions taken, were calculated per 1,000 students for each region, as well as the state:

State Regional Ranges
Law Violations	10.1 to 28.7
Disciplinary Actions	12.4 to 42.7
Board Policy Violations	75.6 to 539.4
Disciplinary Actions	97.0 to 222.3
Victims	13.1 to 69.4
Offenders	24.3 to 118.5

All calculations are based on 1,000 students for each region, as well as the state.

As reported in October, Kentucky schools used a number of security measures individually or in combination, with the highest percentages (93 percent) requiring visitors to sign in, and 89.9 percent maintaining a closed campus during lunch. Firearm expulsions, required by the Federal Gun-Free Schools Act, totaled 31, with school districts in seven of the eight service center regions indicating such action in their reporting.

The first report, released in early October, represented statewide totals on data required by the Safe and Drug-Free Schools Act, the Gun-Free Schools Act, and Kentucky's Safe Schools Act. School districts reported data from July 1, 1998, through June 30, 1999, during this pilot year of the Kentucky Safe Schools Data Project.

The Project is a partnership between the Kentucky Department of Education and Research Triangle Institute (RTI), a non-profit organization located in North Carolina. The Kentucky Center for School Safety is responsible for receiving and analyzing the data from school districts, as provided by RTI.

Local school districts have access to their specific school and district data on the Safe School Data website, provided through

RTI. "The data during this first year of reporting represents a baseline to be used by school districts, communities, the Department of Education and the Center for School Safety in planning, training and communication with a variety of stakeholders and policy-makers," said Dr. Lois Adams-Rodgers, director of the Kentucky Center for School Safety. The executive summary of the district report may be seen on the Center for School Safety's website at <http://www.kysafeschools.org>. A full copy of the report may be obtained by calling the Center for School Safety at 877/805-4277.

Information on specific school district data is available from local school district superintendents. More information on the Safe Schools Data Project is available from Dr. Lois Adams-Rodgers, director of the Center for School Safety, 606/622-2898, or Steve Kimberling, Kentucky Department of Education, 502/564-3301.

Local woman to present paper

Jeri L. Smith of Tutor Key, will present a paper at the 85th annual meeting of the Kentucky Academy of Science (KAS) this month, at Eastern Kentucky University in Richmond. She is a student at Prestonsburg Community College.

Her paper will report the results of a project she undertook at Paintsville Lake last spring, concerning the occurrence of megalitter.

The project was part of her work in individual guided study, a course newly introduced at PCC by her instructor, Dr. John Shiber, associate professor of biology.

Smith's paper will compete with those of other undergraduate students from across the state for the KAS Undergraduate Research Award. She is the third PCC student to be sponsored by Dr. Shiber to present a research paper at this annual scientific event.

Couples' dispute attracts police

An apparent fight between two couples kept county and state police forces busy in the Hi Hat area, around KY 979, Saturday evening.

The KSP 911 media log recorded that about 25 people were surrounding two men and two women who were fighting.

Residents of the area made repeated calls to the Sheriff's Department and to the Kentucky

State Police about the couples.

Arrest records state indicate that, after being called out repeatedly to the scene, Sgt. Shawn Roop and Deputy Steve Toy arrested Malen Mitchell 25, Olivia Mitchell 23, Judith Nicole Rowe 26, and Ricky Rowe 30, all of Ligon, and charged them with disorderly conduct. Both couples were released on surety bonds the following day.

Why sell your old car when you can give it away?

-This year put the giving back in Thanksgiving-

If your car is a turkey, Thanksgiving just may be the time to stuff it for good. Save sentiment for your family dinner and donate your used car to the National Kidney Foundation of Kentucky's Kidney Cars Program. The money raised will help support programs in research, patient services, organ donation, and public education.

The donation procedure is a lot simpler than cooking a meal for 25, and you might actually get something more valuable than a kitchen sink full of dishes when it's over, a tax deduction. All you need to do is call 1-800-488-CARS (2277) and the National Kidney Foundation will mail out a packet, complete with a self-addressed envelope in which to mail back the signed title and odometer statement. Once the complete packet is received, the Foundation will contact the donor to arrange for a free pick-up. Vehicles are sold either at auction or for parts, with 70 percent of the proceeds supporting the work of the National Kidney Foundation of Kentucky.

The National Kidney Foundation of Kentucky is the nation's leading voluntary health agency dedicated to preventing kidney and urinary tract diseases; improving the availability of all organs for transplantation. For more information or to donate your car, van truck, or boat, call 1-800-488-CARS (2277) or donate online at www.kidney.org/funds/cars.cfm.

EKU'S new director of bands looking for 'old' Colonels

RICHMOND — The new director of bands at Eastern Kentucky University is looking for "old" Colonels.

One of Dr. Joe Allison's top priorities this fall has been to establish and energize a strong and effective network of band alumni group.

"For most if not all of us, our college band experiences are precious and personal," Allison said. "They continue to be a part of our lives that we can recall and celebrate with those who share these common memories."

"We want to perpetuate and build upon this shared bond to provide similar musical and life experiences for our current students, so that they too might share in the special traditions of a special organization."

Allison hopes the Band Alumni Association can support ECU Bands and serve as a focal point for gatherings that allow former classmates and friends to relive their favorite memories. Plans call for traditional activities for graduates, including Alumni Band performances and social events at the Arlington Mule Barn.

"We want to reacquaint graduates with old friends and to more directly involve former band members with the current program," he said.

Allison expressed appreciation to his predecessor, Dr. Robert Hartwell, who served for 32 years before retiring.

"No one has been more supportive or encouraging to me than Bob," Allison declared. "It has become obvious that his love for the program, its traditions and particularly our students, past and present, is sincere and deep. Bob has been the first to encourage new growth and development and has been an invaluable source of experience and knowledge to me during my time here. He'll continue to be an important part of the band family here at Eastern."

Allison can be reached at 606-622-3161 or musallis@acs.eku.edu. The new ECU Music Alumni web site is at www.music.eku.edu/alumni.

"I'm looking forward to meeting our graduates and sharing thoughts on our program, past present and future," he said.

This December, Allison was one of five Americans scheduled to present a series of clinics and help judge a national band contest in Japan. He also has judged several other major international marching events, in addition to numerous state, regional and national competitions.

Next summer, after directing the 65th annual Stephen Collins Foster Music Camp at ECU, Allison will serve on the visiting faculty of the Australian Institute, a program of El Camino College of Los Angeles, where he will prepare performing ensembles for performances in Sydney, Melbourne and other venues.

He served as associate director of bands and director of jazz studies at East Tennessee State University 1996-98 and then interim director of bands at the University of North Carolina at Charlotte before joining the ECU faculty this summer.

Previously, while Allison was director of bands and orchestras at Sumter (South Carolina) High School, 1988-96, that school became the first ever to receive both the Sudler Shield for marching excellence and the Sudler Flag for concert excellence from the John Philip Sousa Foundation.

The ECU Marching Colonels Band, under the direction of Dr. Chris Hayes, debuted its all-new Big Band Swing Show this fall and will continue to display "enough variety during the season to engage the audience."

Governor unveils new license plate dedicated to Future Farmers

"We redesigned the plate in recognition of the FFA moving their national convention to Kentucky and to honor our future leaders in Kentucky and around the nation. We also included the 4-H logo to honor that great organization as well," Governor Patton said as he addressed members of the organization at their national convention at Freedom Hall Thursday.

"We chose to unveil this new plate here today to show you that we're happy to have you here, and we look forward to all the future national FFA conventions," the governor added. The FFA has selected Louisville as the site for its national convention for the next six years.

The new license plate will cost $15.00, and will be used on farm trucks up to 38,000 pounds. There are about 160,000 such trucks in Kentucky. The plate will go on sale the 1st of March in each county clerk's office.

In his address to the group, Governor Patton said that organizations like FFA play a role that can't be duplicated. "The experience, the friendships, the appreciation of a high work ethic, the development of our future leaders, these are all parts of the FFA experience that are unique to your organization, and they represent great assets for the rest of us."

As governor, Patton has made a top priority, the health and future of Kentucky's rural communities and some 90,000-farm families. Last year, Patton appointed the first Governor's Commission on Family Farms to look at the issues faced by farm families. He also created an Office of Agriculture Policy to keep him in direct contact with the rural and agricultural communities of the state.

"We're looking to develop a vision for the future of our rural communities that capitalizes on our strengths, on our assets, and chief among those strengths are our Kentucky FFA members and the rest of our young people," the governor added. "The future is you, and because of FFA, we can all feel more assured that the future will be in capable hands."

School-to-Work funds headed to Kentucky

FRANKFORT — Kentucky School-to-Work initiatives have received two federal grants totaling more than $1.9 million.

The Cabinet for Workforce Development will receive $1 million to help sustain local School-to-Work systems. The Kentucky Highlands Investment Corporation, a partnership of government agencies and private industry based in Jackson County, will receive $903,000.

Gov. Paul E. Patton said that School-to-Work is a proven benefit for Kentucky's young people.

"School-to-Work helps students see the link between academics and their future careers," he said. "Activities from grade school to high school are beneficial in helping our students transition from the classroom to the workforce."

In School-to-Work activities, elementary pupils are exposed to various careers through activities such as career days and workplace visits. Middle school students begin exploring career areas and thinking about their specific interests and talents.

In high school, students concentrate on career preparation, including worksite training and career-related courses that may extend to college or technical schools.

The $1 million awarded to the Cabinet for Workforce Development will be distributed to local areas through a grant process administered by the Kentucky Office of School-to-Work.

NOTE: The local contact for the Kentucky Highlands Investment Corporation grant is Michael Hayes at (606) 864-5175.

Card of Thanks

Perhaps you sent a lovely card, or sat quietly in a chair,
Perhaps you sent a floral piece, if so we saw it there.

Perhaps you spoke the kindest words, as any friend could say,
Perhaps you were not there at all, just thought of us that day.

Whatever you did, to console our hearts,
We thank you so much, whatever the part.

A special thank-you to the Floyd County Sheriff's Dept., Martin Fire Dept., Allen Police Dept., Brother George David Garrett, Clifford Austin, Chuck Hall, and all those who brought food.

Card of Thanks

The family of Jim Lafferty would like to thank all our friends and neighbors who helped us in the loss of our loved one. Thanks to all who sent food and flowers. Your prayers and kind words were deeply appreciated. A special thanks to Clergymen Russ Taylor and Jim Smith, and the Katy Friend Freewill Baptist Church singers for their spiritual support and services. Thanks to John W. Hall Lodge for their Masonic service. We are especially grateful to Dr. James A. Campbell and Home Health for everything they did for him. Thanks to the Sheriff's Department for their assistance, and the kind and professional service of Nelson-Frazier Funeral Home.

"He is Just Away"

You cannot say, you must not say
That he is dead. He is just away!

With a cheery smile and a wave of the hand
He has wandered into an unknown land
And left as dreaming how very fair
It needs must be, since he lingers there;
So think of him faring on, as dear
In the love of There as the love of Here
Think of him still as the same, and say
He is not dead, he is just away.

In Loving Memory of My Father, MERLIN (BLACKIE) GOBLE

God looked around His garden, and He found an empty place,
He then looked down upon this earth and saw your tired face.
He put His arms around you, and lifted
you to rest,
God's garden must be beautiful,
remember: He only takes the best.
He knew that you were suffering, He knew you were in pain,
He knew that you would never get well
on earth again.
So, He closed your weary eyelids, and whispered, "peace be thine."
It broke our hearts to lose you, but you did not go alone,
For part of us went with you, the day
God called you home.

Card of Thanks

The family of A.J. Hatfield, would like to take this opportunity to say thanks to all those friends, neighbors and loved ones who helped comfort us during our time of sorrow. Thanks to all who sent flowers and food. A special thanks to Pastor Terry Adkins for his comforting words, and the Floyd Funeral Home for their friendly and professional service.

MDA offers free flu shots

The Muscular Dystrophy Association is again offering free flu shots for those affected by any of 40 neuromuscular disorders.

Influenza is particularly hazardous for people living with muscle-wasting diseases, including muscular dystrophy, myasthenia gravis, spinal muscular atrophy, and amyotrophic lateral sclerosis (ALS or Lou Gehrig's Disease).

Funds raised during the Jerry Lewis MDA Telethon help make it possible for MDA to administer thousands of free flu shots annually.

The linchpin in its grass roots effort, the Labor Day Telethon also helps MDA fund worldwide research into neuromuscular diseases and potential therapies, offer comprehensive medical services for affected families, and provide far-reaching professional and public health education.

"For decades, MDA flu shots have helped 'my kids' reduce the chance of getting respiratory infections caused by influenza," said Jerry Lewis, MDA National Chairman. "This is vitally important.

"Neuromuscular diseases ravage all muscles, including those responsible for respiration, so the flu can be life-threatening for children and adults with progressive muscle diseases."

Patients registered with MDA may have transportation made available or be reimbursed for travel costs to visit the MDA clinic. The association will also pay a local doctor to administer a flu shot if a patient is not close to one of MDA's 230 clinics.

For more information or to set an appointment for a free flu shot, call your local MDA office, MDA headquarters at 800-572-1717, or visit www.mdausa.org.

MDA is a national voluntary health agency dedicated to finding treatments and cures for neuromuscular diseases affecting more than a million Americans. The association receives no governmental grants, nor does it seek fees from the families it serves.

MDA is the first voluntary health agency to be honored with the American Medical Association Lifetime Achievement Award "for significant and lasting contributions to the health and welfare of humanity."

In Loving Memory of Dorothy Moore

God saw you getting tired, and a cure was not to be found,
So, He put His arms around you,
and whispered, "Come with Me."

With tearful eyes we watched you suffer and saw you fade away,

Although we loved you dearly,
we could not make you stay.

A golden heart stopped beating, you're now at peaceful rest,
It broke our hearts, but it proved to us, God always knows best.

Anthropologists and sociologists at state meet

Pikeville College will be the host to the ASK (Anthropologists and Sociologists of Kentucky) 1999 State meeting, Friday and Saturday, November 5 and 6.

The meeting is open to all students and faculty from various colleges and universities throughout the state. The program for Friday evening will consist of Appalachian folklore with keynote speaker, Loyal Jones, a lecturer, humorist, and author, who is retired from the Appalachian Center of Berea College.

Larry Webster and the Mule Band will provide entertainment for the evening with Appalachian style square dancing in Booth Auditorium at 7:30 p.m. This entertainment is free and open to the public.

Saturday, November 6, will consist of different sessions containing paper presentations from the various students and educators on recent research studies in sociology and anthropology. Some of the presentations will include anthropology and sociology in religion, American groups and teaching of sociology and anthropology, Appalachian literature, and community studies. The morning sessions will conclude with a panel discussion from authors of the forthcoming publications "Handbook of Appalachia Atlas of Appalachia," and the "Encyclopedia of Appalachia."

Pikeville College's instructors in the criminal justice program, Lori Kepford and Kay Hardesty, will be presenting a special afternoon session on "Developing Web-based courses in the social sciences."

For more information, or to make reservations for the ASK meeting, contact Peggy Davis at (606) 432-9298 or Robert Davis at (606) 437-3423.

MSU Honors program adds two new members

Two Fleming County freshmen are new members of Morehead State University's Academic Honors Program.

The students are: Stephanie Roark, the daughter of Darlene Roark of Hillsboro and Tom Whitaker of Prestonsburg. She is the recipient of the Democracy Award and Woodmen of the World History Award. She participated in the 1998 Leaders Program at Western Carolina University and the Upward Bound program at MSU.

Tiffany Hornsby of Flemingsburg is the daughter of Tim and Darlene Hornsby. A Governor's Scholar, she was the recipient of MSU's Regional Math Award. She received honors in geometry, algebra II, advanced topics and anatomy. She is a volunteer at Fleming County Hospital and a project member of the Fleming County Watershed project. Students are accepted into the Academic Honors Program for outstanding academic performance with an ACT composite score of 26 or higher and a strong academic record. College students are eligible to join the program if they meet the criteria. Additional information is available by calling the Academic Honors Program at (606) 783-2807.

KECSAC receives award for efforts to educate KY's at-risk youth

Those who serve at-risk youth in Kentucky know the value of the Kentucky Educational Collaborative for State Agency Children (KECSAC).

Now the success story is getting told nationwide.

KECSAC, headquartered in Eastern Kentucky University's Training Resource Center (TRC), has received the 1999 Award for Exemplary Collaboration from the American Psychiatric Association, State/University Interdisciplinary Collaboration Project.

Established by the Kentucky General Assembly in 1992, KECSAC is a unique partnership, joining the state departments of Juvenile Justice, Education and Mental Health/Mental Retardation, the Kentucky Cabinet for Families and Children, State Agency Children School Administrator Association, ECU's Training Resource Center and local education agencies in service to over 6,000 court-ordered, state-committed and at-risk youth in Kentucky.

The all-inclusive collaboration captured the attention of the judges, according to Dr. Norman Powell, KECSAC director.

"What's nationally unique about KECSAC is that we've been able to put together a viable coalition of state agencies committed to the education of at-risk youth, a population traditionally underserved and overlooked," Powell said. "This is a collaborative model that can be duplicated in other areas around the country."

Before KECSAC was established, Powell explained, the distribution of funds to serve the Commonwealth's state agency children was uneven at best.

"KECSAC has helped to eliminate the disparity in the distribution of funds," said Powell, noting that the Collaborative administers a $12 million annual budget from which funds are distributed to school districts in which community-based and residential treatment programs, partial hospitalization programs, emergency shelters and similar programs provide service to state agency children.

The Collaborative also provides technical support and a wide range of professional development activities.

"KECSAC is one of the only programs within state government or in child welfare in which true collaboration takes place," said Bart Baldwin, president of Children's Alliance, Frankfort, an association of agencies that serve children and families throughout the Commonwealth. "KECSAC represents our commitment to provide quality care, treatment and education to our most vulnerable children and youth."

Since KECSAC's role was expanded in 1994 to serve state agency children in private agencies, the consultation, technical support and training "has greatly benefited our member agencies."

Dr. Ralph Kelly, commissioner of the Kentucky Department of Juvenile Justice, said KECSAC "has continually met the needs of these agencies while maintaining a role as a central clearinghouse for a variety of educational issues. Most notably, it has brought about awareness, recognition and legislative education regarding state agency children."

Powell became the Collaborative's first full-time director last year. KECSAC staff consists of two full-time administrative aides. A search is underway for an associate director.

EKU's Training Resource Center was established in 1984 with a series of contracts between ECU and the Kentucky Cabinet for Families and Children. Since its establishment, the Center has

Views On Dental Health

LISA MINIX, R.D.H.

FLUORIDE FACTS

Dental literature is replete with facts on the effectiveness of fluoride in preventing tooth decay. How does it work? Sugars in the mouth set up a favorable environment for the growth and development of germs. These germs produce acids that cause decay and leave behind deposits that injure the gums. One of the big defenses against this process is fluoride which builds up the resistance of teeth to these acids. It should be in your child's drinking water so it can be absorbed in his growing teeth; it should also be in your child's toothpaste, and applied regularly on his teeth by the family dentist.

Chicago (the first big city to fluoridate its water supply) reports that tooth decay has been cut in half among its school children, and credits fluoride for this improvement. As an added plus, Chicago parents are saving an estimated $20 million a year in dental bills.

In areas where the water is not fluoridated, children's teeth can be substantially protected against cavities by fluoride in drop or tablet form.

Prepared as a public service to promote better dental health. From the office of: DR. MARTIN R. MINIX, D.M.D., 123 North Lake Drive, Prestonsburg, Kentucky, phone: 886-0808

Geography information system focus of state program

The Kentucky Office of Geographic Information has scheduled a GIS Expo at the Capital Annex in Frankfort on GIS Day, November 19.

State, federal, regional, county, and local governments, as well as schools and non-profit organizations, will gather in the state capital for an all-day event to showcase GIS applications, and computer mapping.

The participants will have computers showing how GIS works, as well as posters, and brochures which explain how they are using this exciting technology. The event is scheduled to begin at 9 a.m. and end at 4 p.m. in room 125 of the Capitol Annex, which is located directly behind the Kentucky State Capitol.

A GIS (geographic information system) is a computer-based tool for mapping and analyzing objects and events. It combines the power of a database with the visualization capabilities offered by maps.

Businesses, schools, governments, and organizations use GIS for a wide variety of applications, as GIS provides the power to solve complicated problems, experiment with scenarios, and present ideas. Although geographic analysis and mapping are not new, a GIS performs these same tasks better and faster than manual methods.

GIS Day will be the last day of Geography Awareness Week, November 15-19, and is sponsored by the National Geographic Society, American Association of Geographers and ESRI.

Since 1987, the National Geographic Society has sponsored Geography Awareness Week to promote geographic literacy in schools, communities, and organizations, with a focus on the education of children. The GIS Day celebration is a grassroots event that formalizes the practice of GIS users and vendors opening their doors to schools, businesses, and the general public to showcase real-world applications.

There are about half a million GIS users in the world, but most of the public is unaware of this growing technology. Used to solve problems in such areas as environmental protection, pollution, health care, land use, natural resources, conservation, business efficiency, education, and social inequities, GIS provides a unifying framework for analyzing and understanding the world around us.

Colleges, universities, K-12 schools, cities, and private industries are participating in GIS Day, giving the general public an opportunity to see how GIS technology is applied in many interesting and exciting ways.

How much money will you need to retire?

(NUE) - If you're thinking of retiring in the next year or two or are already retired, you know how important it is to manage your money well during retirement. If you've planned well, chances are you'll weather retirement better than those who haven't.

But even if you haven't done your homework, it's never too late to develop a plan for making your financial future secure.

T. Rowe Price, one of America's oldest investment advisers, has developed an investment and income strategy for the retirement years, helping meet one of the most pressing concerns of retirees.

The program, called the Retirement Income Manager, estimates how much income an individual's retirement assets can generate each month, taking into account the person's financial priorities, life expectancy and the variability of market returns.

The Retirement Income Manager combines sophisticated computer modeling with the expertise of the firm's financial planners and investment professionals.

One thing that's certain about the future is uncertainty. But rather than overlooking this reality, as many retirees do, the Retirement Income Manager addresses it head on. By so doing, the program better prepares for the unpredictable ups and downs of markets during your retirement.

Unlike traditional methods of retirement forecasting, which typically rely on projected average annual market returns, the Retirement Income Manager accounts for uncertainty inherent in making such financial projections.

The program takes into consideration a plethora of investment portfolios, income amounts, and combinations of mutual funds and annuities. The entire income and investment strategy also is reviewed by T. Rowe Price financial planners.

"The result is a more realistic and reliable retirement income plan that has a 70 percent or better chance of being sustained throughout retirement," says Joseph Healy, T. Rowe Price's manager of retirement and advisory services.

Retirement income planning is a complex issue, and unless you work with someone trained in this area you may not receive information that's appropriate for your situation. Expert planning for retirement is becoming more and more necessary as people retire earlier, Healy notes.

"In coming years, as the massive baby boom generation moves into retirement, people will rely more on personal savings, including 401(k) assets, and less on guaranteed sources of income such as pensions," he notes. "As a result, individuals will assume a greater burden in managing financial risk in retirement. The Retirement Income Manager is designed to help them meet that challenge."

For more information, call T. Rowe Price at 1-800-566-5611.

Car owners pay for lack of care

The majority of respondents to a recent AAA survey aren't taking proper care of their vehicle's tires, belts and losses, leading to additional expenses down the road, according to AAA Blue Grass/Kentucky.

AAA's survey shows that most motorists are rotating their tires every 9,089 miles, 3000 miles more than recommended. About 20 percent aren't rotating their tires at all.

"Failure to properly rotate tires leads to reduced tire life, loss of traction and alignment problems," said Dan Dickson, public relations manager for AAA Blue Grass/Kentucky. "This is not only affects your wallet, it affects your safety."

The survey shows similar results for vehicle belts and hoses. Motorists are checking the quality of their belts and hoses every 7,930 miles. "Belts and hoses should be checked monthly for cracking, fraying and missing pieces," said Dickson. "Newer cars have one belt controlling several vital functions. If that belt breaks, you're stranded."

Above all, AAA suggests you get to know your vehicle. "October is Car Care Month," and AAA is using the month to help educate motorists on the maintenance needs of their vehicles.

To assist motorists, AAA is launching the "Make Sense of Car Care Campaign." AAA clubs nationwide will be distributing brochures, videos and booklets that are designed to instruct motorists on how to do a self-check of some of their vehicle's vital components. Contact the AAA Blue Grass/Kentucky office nearest you.

AAA Blue Grass/Kentucky is a not-for-profit auto club serving 120,000 members in 61 counties in central and eastern Kentucky and parts of Virginia and West Virginia.

Brandy Wells

Leadership
Hard work, more playing time

by Ed Taylor
 Sports Editor

For the past two weeks, girl's high school basketball teams have taken to the hardwood, and as they appear very optimistic about the upcoming season.

For Prestonsburg's Brandy Wells, she has set certain goals for herself as an individual, but her main goal is to do whatever she can to help her team reach the championship game of the girls' 15th Region tournament.

The Prestonsburg Lady Blackcats did just that last year when they fell to Belfry in the championship game.

Most of the team returns and Brandy Wells will be the lone senior on this Lady Blackcat team this year. Wells, who will be at the two-guard this season, says this year's team will be more competitive than last year.

"I really like our team this year," she said. "The players, the coaches, I think we are going to have a very successful season."

Wells has been playing basketball ever since her third grade at Auxier Elementary. She has been known for her free-wheeling three-point shooting. Like most players who like the treys, she can kill a team when in the groove.

"I've always liked sitting up outside and shooting the threes," she said, "but this year I'm learning to take the ball inside more."

Wells said she wanted to be more of a "complete" player and has been working hard.

"I have been working on my rebounding, blocking out and shooting," she said. "Coach (Bobby) Hamilton and Coach (Harold) Tackett have been working with me on my shot."

Wells views the return of Ramanda Music to the Prestonsburg team as a big addition for the team that lost three starters last year.

"We lost Kimi (Nunnery), Shelly (Greathouse) and Crystal (Slone) from last year and that was a big part of our offense. But Ramanda and Megan Hyden should take up a lot of the scoring slack this year.

"We have Brooke Coleman and Amelia Conley back and we all know what they can do."

Wells agrees with the tag of being an "erratic player" at times on the court. But she says there is a reason.

"I get too nervous and excited when I am out there, I try to do more than I can or do things that I am not capable of doing," she said. "But I have been working on my game. I will be used as a two-guard this year where I played at the point some last year. But we have Megan at the point."

Wells said she expects this Prestonsburg team to advance further than last year's team in the regional tournament. If so, that spells a regional championship and a berth in the Sweet 16 in March.

Sports commentary...

1999 football season, not a good one for Floyd teams

by Ed Taylor
 Sports Editor

A look back at the just-completed high school football season, one could see that it was not a very successful season for Floyd

County teams, although two of the four will advance to the state playoffs.

Making the playoffs does not mean you had a great year. Case in point: Prestonsburg is play-off bound, but they finished 3-7 on the year. South Floyd did have a winning season at 6-4 and a successful season.

However, Allen Central, who was not competing in a district, finished 4-6. Betsy Layne went winless over the 10-week schedule.

South Floyd faces Harlan on the road this coming Friday night, and the Raiders could match up against the Green Dragon pretty well.

"We match up good in size," said South Floyd coach Donnie Daniels. "We feel we can play with them."

The Raiders will have quickness and power in the backfield in B.J. Bryant, Matt Tackett and Joe

"Prestonsburg, South Floyd advance to playoffs first round"

Grade School Volleyball

Allen Central and John M. Stumbo advance in county tournament

by Karen Joseph
 Contributing Writer

The grade school girls' volleyball tournament got underway on Monday night at the Allen Central Middle School. Floyd County has six grade school volleyball teams.

Volleyball is a growing sport in Floyd County and is catching on in the grade school ranks. The sport is getting more support and girls are becoming more interested in it.

In the first round of the single elimination tournament, it was the Eagles of Allen Elementary taking on the host team, the Rebels of Allen Central Middle School. In the nightcap, it was the Bobcats of Betsy Layne taking on the Mustangs of John M. Stumbo.

The Mustangs and Rebels came away victorious. On Tuesday night, it will be the South Floyd Middle School taking on Allen Central Middle School and the Blackcats of Prestonsburg taking on the Mustangs of John M. Stumbo with the winners of both games competing for the championship immediately following that game.

There was a good crowd on hand for the opening round of the tournament as the host school, Allen Central Middle School, coached by Doug Derossett, took on Allen Elementary School, coached by Valerie Colburn.

Allen Central defeated the Eagles in two straight matches, 15-3 and 15-4.

The Rebels jumped out to an early lead and held on to it for the entire game. The Rebels scored the first two points on the serve of Jessica Isaac before giving the serve back to the Eagles. Then, on the next serve by Elizabeth Mosley, the Rebels scored three more points. The Eagles scored their first point on the serve of Terra Calhoun. Then, on the

"We have a long bench this year," said Wells. "We can go deep and not hurt ourselves off the bench."

Amanda Stephens, a freshman, was one of the players mentioned by Wells who will help the Lady Blackcats this season.

"She is a really good player," said Wells. "She has been getting stronger and will help us a lot."

Vicki Bowling is another Wells-mentioned player who will add to the depth of the team.

"Vicki has really improved from last year," Wells said. "She has stepped up her game and she is going to surprise a lot of people this season."

Wells said that not only has she been working on her ability to rebound and score points, but another area of her game needed adjustment.

"My attitude," she said. "My attitude toward other players and sportsmanship. I am the only senior, and I have to show some leadership. At least that is what they tell me. I definitely have changed in that aspect."

Wells, who will be entering her fourth season as a Lady Blackcat, views Betsy Layne as Prestonsburg's toughest district opponent but issued a warning as well.

"But Allen Central is going to be strong, if they can get Jessica Martin back. I wish Jessica the best and hopes she is able to play. Allen Central plays us tough and has always been a hard team to handle. I just think Betsy Layne is stronger inside."

Every senior can look back over their brief career and cite some game or moment that was their most gratifying.

"I really don't know about that," she said. "I guess it would be when I scored over 20 points last year against Johnson Central. And, again, when I made the All-District team as a sophomore."

Wells is hoping her improved play and attitude will earn her more playing time.

"I averaged about two minutes a game last year," she recalled. "I hope to see a lot more this year. Like I said, I have been working hard on rebounding and shooting the ball. I just hope the hard work will pay off this season."

Sports in Perspective

by Denis Harrington

The quote was brief but very telling.

"I've played my last golf tournament. I just can't get the message past my elbows anymore."

Such were the lately enunciated words of Tony Jacklin, 55, a former U.S. and British Open champion, who had become thoroughly frustrated with his inability to compete as a senior pro.

Once into his graying years Jacklin contracted a serious case of the "yips", a psychological disorder which makes it very difficult for the victim to so much as draw the club back from the ball.

The late, great Ben Hogan suffered from the same malady as his career waned. He would stand over a putt, unable to "pull the trigger," until his playing partners and members of the gallery openly evidenced their embarrassment for him.

Currently, Corey Pavin is desperately trying to reclaim his game. During the late 1980s and early 1990s he hovered near the top of the PGA Tour's cash-and-carry list. Although not long off the tee, he was extremely accurate through the green and a fine putter. In 1995, he won the U.S. Open with a dazzling display of shotmaking.

Then, abruptly, he lost the payoff touch. It has yet to return.

Germany's Bernhard Langer twice topped the Masters field in 1985 and 1993, and was a leading international competitor. But today, while still in his prime, he is afflicted with the putting jitters which have seriously impaired his effectiveness.

For more than a decade Britain's Nick Faldo held forth as the No. 1 ranked player in the world. He finished first in the British Open on no less than three occasions (1987, 1990, 1993) and earned three green jackets at the Masters (1990, 1992, 1996).

Since then his game has left him. And he's not been able to find it.

In 1991, Australian Ian-Baker Finch added the British Open to a growing list of tournament triumphs. Then he began experimenting with his swing in an effort to attain more length off the tee. His game gradually deteriorated until he was forced to quit the tournament scene.

Commenting on Finch's sudden demise, Jack Nicklaus said, "He still has the talent. You don't ever lose that. The problem is in his mind. He'll have to find a way to overcome it."

Lest it be thought otherwise, this phenomenon is not of recent origin.

Not long ago Bill Rogers was a very successful contemporary of Nicklaus and Tom Watson. He headed a strong international entry in the 1981 British Open and his future seemed secure. But within a few short seasons he dropped off the leader boards completely and is now a club pro in Texas.

Even Johnny Miller was not immune to his fame-robbing plague. No one had a hotter hand in tournament golf during the 1970s than the slender, blond Californian. He annexed eight tour events in 1974 alone and was the man to beat wherever he teed his ball. In 1973, a final round of 63 gave him the U.S. Open championship and a closing 66 in the 1976 British Open earned him the trophy.

Always one to tinker with swing mechanics, Miller fell victim to his own technical expertise and quickly slipped down the money chart.

Easily one of the most dramatic falls from grace befell Ralph Guldahl, a phlegmatic Texan who soared to prominence in the 1930s. He clinched back-to-back U.S. Open crowns in 1937 and 1938 then won the 1939 Masters. Shortly thereafter he authored a golf book and almost immediately disappeared from view.

Said old friend Sam Snead, "Writing that book he (Guldahl) took to analyzing his swing. Something he'd never done before. Guess he got to thinking too much. It was like he forgot how to play."

Toward the end of his reign Arnold Palmer said, "I used to think I could make putts halfway across the green. Now I'm happy to make one the length of my foot." More nerves.

A sage once noted that "Talent is a gift from God. It's not man's place to question the why or how of it, but simply to use it."

From all indications an overly analytic approach to perfection is but a slippery slope into golfing perdition.

Something to think about. Or better yet — don't.

SURGEON GENERAL'S WARNING: Cigarette smoke contains carbon monoxide.

NASCAR Connection

PIR: It's not for everyone

In the past, many drivers have turned the series' annual trip to Phoenix International Raceway to somewhat of a family vacation by taking in some of the sights close to the Phoenix area. It seems that with the Winston Cup drivers enjoying their first weekend off in nearly three months very few are looking at Phoenix as a vacation destination.

The Sunday's running of the Checker Auto Parts/Dura Lube 500 will be the 12th Winston Cup race held at Phoenix's one mile track. According to Sterlin Marlin, the winner usually isn't the team that gets better as the race wears on. In his words, "It's usually the team that gets worse less than anybody else."

When trying to describe Phoenix's track layout to someone, there really isn't any other track that you can compare it to.

First, there is an unusual dogleg along the back straightway, which would be OK if Phoenix were a golf course instead of a race track. The dogleg in the track is enough that some drivers and teams actually set their cars up for a five turn track instead of the usual four.

If trying to set a car up for an extra turn isn't tough enough, the four other turns on the track have different amounts of banking which further adds to the headache of trying get a car set up to make it through all the turns as efficiently as possible.

Turns one and two have 11 degrees of banking, while three and four are only banked nine degrees. This makes it one of the flattest tracks that the series competes on, but there is still one more consideration when setting up a car for Phoenix.

When the Winston Cup season begins in February, one of the least concerns that faces a crew in setting up a car is track temperature. You would think that as the season winds down in November the same would be true. It would be if you didn't race at Phoenix in November. This past weekend the predicted highs for Phoenix was in the low 90s, and the early outlook for race day was more of the same.

Put it all together, a flat track, hot temperatures, and an extra turn and what you have is one tough race track that can play havoc with a driver's ability to get around the track. In the 11 previous races held at the track, only one driver has visited victory lane on more than one occasion. The late Davey Allison won two races at the difficult one mile track.

Another unusual fact about racing at Phoenix is that this may be the only track that more races have been won from a starting position from outside of the top 10 than from the top 10. No winner has ever come from a front row starting position.

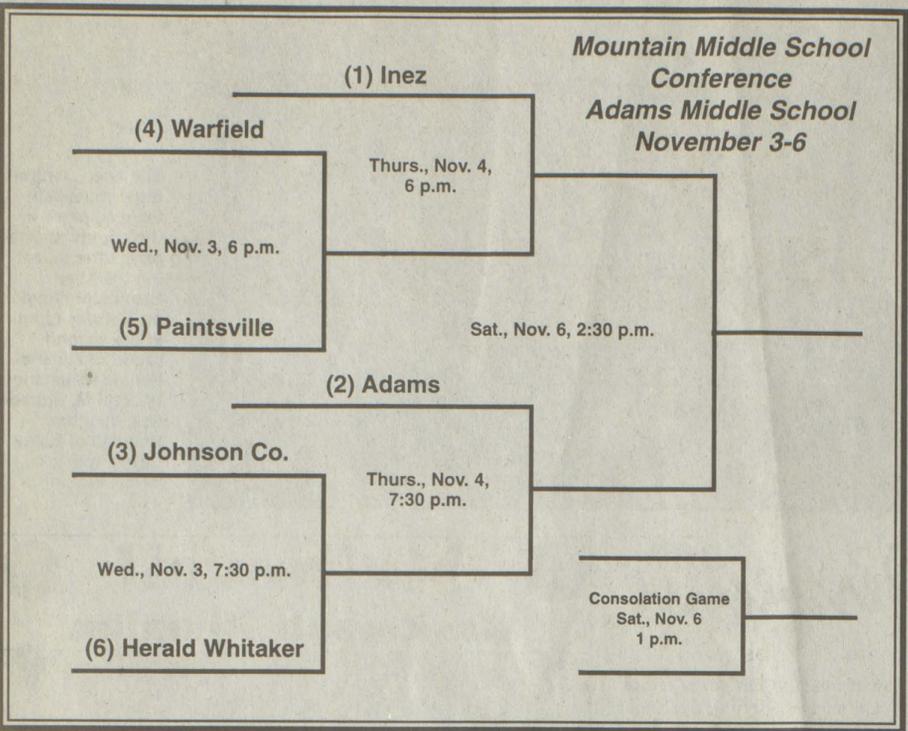

If you were trying to pick a favorite for this weekend's race, you might want to take a look at what kind of car he drives. Ford has won eight of the 11 races at Phoenix and has had at least two top-five finishes in all 11 races. There have been four Fords in the top five twice and three on five occasions.

That should be good news for current points leader Dale Jarrett, who drives Robert Yates' Quality Care Ford Taurus. With two remaining races after Phoenix, all Jarrett has to do is finish 19th or better in each of the three remaining races and he will win the championship. Jarrett can also clinch the title by gaining 126 points this weekend at Phoenix.

Three-time champion Jeff Gordon has conquered the NASCAR world, but in six previous starts at PIR, he has yet to win. His Phoenix stats are uncharacteristically average for a driver who has dominated the series for the last five years.

The driver to watch out for this weekend is Ford driver, Mark Martin. The Jack Roush driver has been a terror at PIR with one win, three runner-up finishes and one third place. Martin said, I love Phoenix, to me it's not difficult by any means." With an attitude like that and with his past successes at Phoenix, Martin may just be the man to beat come this Sunday.

Tubby and Torre Cats and Yanks systems that work

A good thing sometimes (Kentucky) not being the overdog.

Consider: A college hoops team loses four starters and the one returnee averaged fewer points than your kid in Junior Pro (5.6 over three seasons);

Three conference opponents are listed ahead of your team in preseason polls

... and your club is still ranked 13th in America.

Not a bad pedestal from which Tubby Smith launches his third edition Kentucky Wildcats.

Street & Smith magazine ranks No. 5 Auburn, No. 6 Florida and No. 12 Tennessee ahead of Kentucky.

Tubby and Joe Torre I was thinking about Yanks manager Joe Torre and UK basketball coach Orlando

"Tubby" Smith. From television interviews, a flurry of newspaper and magazine features, not a butthead in the Yankees group. Maybe an odd-duck, Hideki Irabu, but no buttheads.

Manager Torre, the ultimate nice man, is a leader of men whose feet are planted firmly, particularly since being told last spring he had prostate cancer. George Steinbrenner bought the players, but Torre put the Yankees in motion. He judged how to use each man to team maximum. You know the results.

This formula brings us to UK's basketball boss who took a group of players recruited and coached by someone else and marched it to an NCAA title two seasons ago.

Much as Torre faced critics and skeptics, Tubby did the same and achieved the same result, a championship ring.

Now comes a UK team—except for Jamaal Magloire—that will be exclusively Tubby's men.

Smith's latest two recruiting names, Nat Knight and Michael Southall, have skeptics buzzing. Knight is a last-minute junior college signee to replace self-interested Michael Bradley. Knight's tune is "happy to be here." Proud to wear a Kentucky uniform. "I'll do anything to help the team."

Southall of West Salem, Wisconsin committed to UK last week. A 6-9 forward listed on the Siberian edge of high school recruiting publications, Southall is thrilled for the opportunity. The chance to "...play for one of the country's elite programs."

Both are good students with right-headed attitudes. Just as Torre put in motion a title team, blending attitudes, egos and personalities to maximum effect, I believe Tubby Smith is doing the same as he reloads UK's roster. Not a butthead in the bunch.

Chris Duhon preferred Duke and Adam Boone North Carolina because Saul Smith is the starting point guard at UK. So be it. Neither would have fit. If 6-9

Rolando Howell of Columbia, S.C. was put off by Southall's commitment to Kentucky, saying: "I don't want to go somewhere where I'll be competing for my position. I'm kind of selfish," then he would not fit in Tubby's scheme either.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Q. Point guards, you said UK had lost out of five this recruiting season. Who are they?

A. The following were interested, recruited and/or offered scholarship by Kentucky, but committed to other schools: Taliek Brown, 6-1, St. John's, NY; Omar Cook, 6-1, Christ the King, NY; Chris Duhon, 6-2, Slidell, La.; Imari Sawyer, 6-2, Chicago; Adam Boone, 6-2, Minnetonka, Minn..

A sixth, Luke Ridenour, 6-2, Blaine, Wash. is considering UK, but is expected to pick Utah.

Q. How could a program like UK's lose out on so many point guard prospects?

A. Playing time and circumstance. Taliek Brown wanted a guarantee to start.

Chris Duhon wanted to be a Dookie. Cook and Boone had concerns about competing for playing time with the coach's underclassman son.

Comment: Move on. Bring on high school's junior class.

LACEY PICKS THE 'CATS

Jim Lacey of Williamstown has picked UK games correctly seven weeks in a row. This week UK at unbeaten and No. 7 Mississippi State. "Kentucky looks lethargic on a Thursday night (ESPN), but manages to win one for the national audience. UK 34 Miss.State 28. ... Write when you find work."

NBC's JIM GRAY ... AND US

We have met NBC's Jim Gray metaphorically, and he is us. At least some of us.

Despite public outcry and condemnation by pompous metro columnists, NBC pit bull reporter Jim Gray who ambushed Pete Rose at the World Series, was doing his job. The job the public wants done: Extract information, no holds barred.

From New York tabloids to Jerry Springer to NBC, Gray's tactics might be distasteful, but as long as someone else is doing the dirty work, the public wants to know, in this case, what Rose has to say, and what his body language says.

Yes, the time and place were not appropriate, but where better than on a World Series stage for a sports reporter to show off what a tough guy he can be? That, and ratings for NBC, were what Gray's interview was really about. Rose? After 10 years did anyone really expect this Cincinnati pine knot to suddenly repent? Re: "You know Jim, you're right my man. You've converted me, I'm contrite, man. I'm going to apologize here and now."

For all the outrage, did anyone click off Gray's live teevee inquisition of Rose? Even though some of us were uncomfortable with the tactlessness and conceit, I didn't hit mute, did you?

Truth is, we all want Rose to apologize, be done with it, and have his (and our) feel-good day on stage at Cooperstown instead of hustling autographs down the street.

Yet, in a business sense, this is clever public relations windfall. Baseball, with all its flaws and thousand faces, espouses integrity (snicker) by refusing to let its all-time hits leader into the Hall of Fame where he would join Ty Cobb, Babe Ruth, Mickey Mantle and sundry other scallywags who would belly up and embrace Rose like a lodge brother.

In the swirl of it all, NBC made $5 million on this World Series and Major League Baseball is enhanced by the Rose controversy. Fans argue and debate it like DH and newspapers do polls. Until Gray came along, Rose was a profiteering villain, but the pendulum has edged back the other way. If Gray achieved nothing else, he stirred the brew and Major League Baseball is talked about, written about, praised and condemned with new vigor. Non-fans discuss the Rose case as if were new evidence from the grassy knoll instead of a clubby thing.

Given its social ramifications and presence of melodrama elements, fame, politics, hustling, lies, truth and denial, gambling, alleged ties to organized crime—the Baseball-vs-Pete Rose flap would make a captivating special. A Frontline investigative report on PBS.

In the interim Jim Gray can go back to posing gray questions. Example: To Atlanta reliever John Rucker after the pitcher crashed his new corvette and got out without a scratch. "How fortunate do you feel?"

Rocker: "Very fortunate" Insightful.

SPORTS JOURNALISM

If NBC and other networks were genuinely interested in the sports public's right to know, then media moguls would present profile features on qualifications of ground troops like Gray, Craig Sager, Michelle Tafoya and others. Who are these men and women? What are their credentials and biases?

And why should the viewing public believe them to be honorable and truth-seeking instead of ambitious fast guns interested in being as famous and rich as those they interview.

CHIROPRACTIC OUTLOOK

Dr. Phillip R. Simpson

Misalignment Can Cause Headaches

Millions of Americans experience severe, recurring attacks of migraine and tension headaches. Some people seek help from over-the-counter or prescription drugs, but get only temporary relief. Studies have shown that headaches often begin in the spine. Many headache sufferers have a misalignment of the spinal vertebrae in their neck. Other contributors to headaches include allergies, smoking, stress, caffeine and some diseases.

Chiropractic care has often greatly improved the condition of those who have headaches caused by spinal misalignments. A doctor of chiropractic is specially trained to restore the integrity of the spine, which and relieve the pressure that is causing the head pain. After locating any misalignment, the chiropractor gently applies pressure and repositions the vertebrae. These adjustments can also improve mobility, decrease stiffness and enhance the total health of the patient.

Commentary

side threat. Platkus will run the ball up "the gut" of the opposition.

Quarterback is secure in senior Charlie Williams. Williams, like Bryant, had to sit out the first part of the season as untested sophomore Jason Johnson ran the club. But Williams is back and it does not appear he has lot to beat.

Wide receiver Kyle Tackett has had a strong season hauling in Williams' passes. Jarrod Johnson and Bryant have been in on the receiving end of several passes this year.

Defensively, they don't come much better than James Walker and Andy Moore.

Prestonsburg will have to guard against the passing of Allen Sperry, the state's top passing quarterback. Sperry averaged over 300 yards passing per game, completing 161 of 261 passes. He also threw for 43 touchdowns this season.

Anthony Johnson is the target Sperry looks for on the gridiron. Johnson has caught 36 receptions for 740 yards this year. Eight were for touchdowns.

The Bobcats are one of the state's top scoring teams with an average of 46 points per game. That gives them a scoring margin of 28 points over the opposition.

With that said of the Bobcats' passing game, Prestonsburg is one of the state's top passing defensive teams in the playoffs. The Blackcats have holding the opposition to 47 yards per game passing. Prestonsburg has held the opposition to just 426 yards through the first nine games.

Prestonsburg has not had a player to rush for over a 100 yards this year. Fullback Jeremy Caudill rushed for 72 in one game. The Blackcats' defense has been holding its own but scoring points has evaded them.

Coach Derossett and the coaching staff will run the likes of Hank Mullins, Seth Crisp, Matt Slone and Caudill at the Bobcats. It is a young front line the Blackcats play.

Betsy Layne will look to regroup over the winter months, and I know there will be some tough decisions facing coach Ted George and his coaching staff.

Betsy Layne has the players, but just didn't seem to be able to put together four full quarters in a given game. They were supposed to win early before reaching the district games, but that did not happen.

Will the Bobcats drop out of district competition or will they continue to play a district schedule? With the new training facility at the school, it will hopefully bring out more numbers in the new millennium.

Allen Central has proven they can win. A 4-6 record would be envied by many teams, but the Rebels have not played in a district for the last three seasons. But that probably will change next year as they re-enter district competition.

One of the questions facing the Rebels, will Kevin Spurlock return as head coach of the football program? Spurlock has kept the program alive and well, even though they played a lesser schedule than more area teams. Still the Rebels have been competitive this year in their own right.

It will be interesting to see what happens in the year 2000. What changes come about? Who will be around? Who won't? I personally hope that all coaches return, and I think the better years are in front of them.

Lykens leads Betsy Layne to two victories

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

The Betsy Layne Lady Cats elementary team rolled to their seventh straight victory of the basketball season by winning over Paintsville and Turkey Creek last week.

Whitney Lykens led the Lady Cats' scoring in both games, scoring 20 points against Paintsville and tossing in 24 against Turkey Creek.

Against Paintsville, Betsy Layne posted a 46-34 win between Lykens' 24 points. Lykens struggled from the charity stripe, hitting only five of 16 attempts. Tabitha Witt added 10 points, and Breann Akers scored six. Lynsey Frasure had three points for the Lady Cats.

Lykens scored nine first quarter points in taking a 12-3 lead at the first stop. Witt had two points in the first quarter, and Frasure hit one of two free throws.

Paintsville hit five three-point baskets in the game, but that was not enough. Reynolds led Paintsville with 12 points and Chaffin finished with 11. Chaffin hit three treys and Reynolds has two three-point baskets.

Chaffin lit up the scoreboard for Paintsville in the second quarter with all three of her treys and 11 points. Paintsville outscored Betsy Layne 16-9 to trail 21-19 at the half.

Lykens had three points in the first quarter with Witt, Frasure and Akers scoring two apiece.

In the third stanza, Lykens scored nine points as Betsy Layne started to pull away at 36-26 after three quarters. Witt scored six of her 10 points in the third stanza.

Akers had four of her six in the fourth quarter.

Against Turkey Creek, Lykens scored 20 points and Witt added 14 in a 47-35 win over the Lady Tigers. Akers needed five pints and Frasure scored four. Candice Meade and Nicole Spurlock scored two points each.

Betsy Layne led 15-4 after the first quarter behind the scoring of Lykens. Lykens netted nine points in the first quarter with Witt, Frasure and Akers scoring two apiece. Sharia Howard had Turkey Creek's four points.

Betsy Layne led 24-17 at the half after Turkey Creek outscored them 14-9 in the second quarter. Betsy Layne's defense held Turkey Creek to just one point in the third quarter in a 15-1 run.

After trailing 39-19 after three quarters, Turkey Creek rallied in the fourth period outscoring Betsy Layne 16-8 to make the game more respectable.

Tourney

serve of Rebecca Thomas, the Rebels pretty much put the match out of reach as they scored five more consecutive points giving them the 10-1 lead.

The Eagles only scored two more points in the game on the serves of Cristy Crum and Sara Reffett. The Rebels scored four points on the serve of Terri Mullins, giving them the match, 15-4.

The second match was quite like the first. The Rebels took the early lead and held on for the entire game. The Eagles played a hard game, but could not seem to get going. This is the first year for a lot of these girls and its their first tournament.

All teams have only played five regular season games and then the tournament, so maybe it would have helped the teams if the tour-namment had been double elimination.

Several of girls had trouble serving the ball with the low ceiling. The Rebels had an easy time winning the second match. The Eagles scored their only four points for the game on the serve of Ashley Collins. The Rebels scored points on the serves of Terri Mullins, Amber Griffiths, Jessica Isaac, Elizabeth Mosley, Rebecca Thomas and the final point on the serve of Lindsey Anderson to give the Rebels the match, 15-4, and the game. The Rebels will take on the Raiders from South Floyd on Tuesday night.

In the second game, it was the Bobcats of Betsy Layne, coached by Sherry Witt, taking on the Mustangs of John M. Stumbo, coached by Karen Henry.

These two teams meet during the regular season, and it was Stumbo coming away with the win, but in volleyball sometimes the first games don't mean much. During the regular season, South Floyd defeated John M. Stumbo, Stumbo defeated Betsy Layne, and then Betsy Layne defeated South Floyd, which shows you can never go by records in the regular season.

Tabetha Witt served the ball for the Bobcats to start the game. The Bobcats failed to score on their first serve. On the Mustangs' first serve by seventh grader Misty Tackett, the Mustangs put five straight points on the scoreboard. The Bobcats did not score until their fourth serve.

The Bobcats scored their first point on the serve of Amy Barton. The low ceiling really put the Bobcats at a disadvantage because they are used to practicing at the dome. Anyway, the Bobcats would only score two more times in the game on the serves of Marlana Cole and Amanda Hunter.

The first match could have been called the Misty Tackett show. She scored 12 of the 15 points for the Mustangs. Shelly Hammonds scored two points and Brandi Johnson scored the other point for the Mustangs, giving the Mustangs the 15-3 match win.

In the second match, the Bobcats came out a lot stronger. Misty Tackett served first to start the match, but the Mustangs failed to score. Then, the Bobcats scored the first point on the serve of Tabetha Witt.

Both teams volleyed the ball back and forth for the next several serves. Stumbo scored its first point on the serve of Alexis Fleming. The Bobcats would not score until the next rotation. The Bobcats scored five straight points on the serving of Amy Barton to take the lead, but did not maintain it for long as the Mustangs scored four points on the serves of Shelly Hammonds. Betsy Layne scored three more points on the serves of Marlana Cole and Tabetha Witt, but the Mustangs would go on to defeat the Bobcats 15-10 for the match and the game.

The Mustangs will advance on in the tournament and will face the Blackcats for Adams Middle School on Tuesday night.

A Look At Sports

Playoffs!

The high school football playoffs kick off this coming Friday night with some good first round games on tap. Anymore, it doesn't matter how you finish in the districts (one through four) a fourth seed can knock off a one seed.

Now I know that hasn't happened very often in the past, but that was in the past. Teams are so much better today, and this should be a good state playoff.

Locally, South Floyd, Prestonsburg, Sheldon Clark, Shelby Valley, Belfry, Pikeville and Paintsville will compete this Friday night.

Coach John Derosssett's Prestonsburg Blackcats will travel to Breathitt County, and the Bobcats are going to be a tough two-seed. Last year the two teams were in the same district but with the new alignment this year, the Bobcats moved. So, with the way the district finished, they meet again in the playoffs.

Prestonsburg has never beaten Breathitt County since they joined as foes in district play.

Of all the teams in Region 4, Class AA, Breathitt County and Shelby Valley have sparkling 9-1 records. Breathitt dropped a 42-41 decision to Middlesboro (8-2), while Shelby Valley lost in the final regular season game to Belfry, 28-6.

Prestonsburg finished 3-7 overall on the year and 3-2 against district teams.

South Floyd coach Donnie Daniels knows his team has their work cut out for them as they visit the Green Dragons on their home turf. However, this may not be a bad matchup for Coach Daniels' team. The Raiders will be bigger and have more speed than the Green Dragons.

Harlan finished the season at 9-1 as did Pikeville, the best in Region 4, Class A.

The Raiders finished the season with a 6-4 mark but 3-3 in district competition.

This will be a good one. Look for South Floyd to maybe beat the odds and pull out a win. This is one of those situations where a four can beat a one.

Paintsville will have to go on the road to Williamsburg, and the Tigers have a chance to pull off a big first round win. The Tigers went 7-3 on the year while Williamsburg was 7-2 (just nine games).

Coach Phillip Haywood's Belfry Pirates finished 7-3 on the season and will host Estill County in a first round game. The Pirates are a heavy favorite in this one. Estill County finished 5-5 on the year.

Pikeville will be at home against Pineville who finished the season at .500 with a 5-5 record. Pineville should be no match for the "mighty" Panthers. In fact, I look for Pikeville to make a big dent into the playoffs.

Shelby Valley, who still remembers the loss to Belfry that knocked them out of a perfect regular season and first place in their district, will host Leslie County in a first round game. Leslie County finished 5-5 on the year.

So, there will be a lot of good high school football this Friday night as the state playoffs get underway.

BASKETBALL

I found out that the Kentucky High School Athletic Association has a rule that unless a grade schooler "attends school" at a district feeder school, he or she may not practice or play for a high school team.

While I believe we should go by the rules, it still does not make any sense. But those are the rules and the Prestonsburg Lady Blackcats are abiding by the rules. That's good.

Now, if a player from the Mountain Christian Academy gets permission from our local board to play basketball for another grade school team in the district (because the school he or she attends does not offer the sport), why should he or she be punished by not being able to practice with a varsity team.

I know! I know! Those are the rules, but the rule stinks.

Well, we could really dwell on some of the KHSAA rules that are broken every day.

• Coach Johnny Martin of Allen Central said, "I lost four starters from last year's team and lost three from the summer league team."

The Rebel coach was referring to the loss of Nathan Tackett (transferred to Betsy Layne), Shawn Newsome (busted knee) and Rodney Scott (enough said). All three were expected to be in the starting lineup for Allen Central this season.

But the Rebels will return Larry Mullins, Josh Howell, Leslie Slone and others.

Newsome had surgery and, according to Coach Martin, says he is determined to come back quicker than expected.

The Allen Central coach is optimistic about the upcoming season.

Allen Central will host a big, big panorama on Wednesday, November 24 (night before Thanksgiving) and has a good lineup of teams coming in. All four county schools will be in the event, as well as Somerset.

• The Mountain Middle School Conference gets underway tonight at Adams Middle School.

Jack Sprague was able to pass two trucks for the lead on the final restart to win Saturday's NAPA Auto Parts 200 and secure for himself his second NASCAR Craftsman Truck Series Championship.

Coming into the race, Sprague trailed Greg Biffle by 21 points.

Biffle, who was running seventh just before the last caution flag came out on lap 94 of the 100-lap race didn't have the speed to catch up with Sprague on the restart and finished seventh.

"I wasn't sure with three laps to go," said Sprague. "We came into this race trying to protect second place, but everyone knows we don't give up. Our guys kept digging all day. It's about these guys, Dennis Connors (crew chief) and the whole crew."

Biffle, wasn't quite as happy. He made reference to a prior accident about his team being penalized 120 points after winning the Orleans 250, September 24, which probably cost him the championship.

"It's disappointing, but its obvious NASCAR got what they wanted. But I want to congratulate the 24 team," said Biffle.

GORDON HOPES FOR DRY WEATHER

"Rain, rain go away, I like to win today..."

The last place you would expect a race to be shortened by rain is in the desert at Phoenix International Raceway. However, last year Jeff Gordon and his DuPont Automotive Finishes team of Rainbow Warriors may have had a chance to get their first win at the 1.0-mile oval until the race was shortened due to heavy rain with Dusty Wallace leading.

Going into the Checker Auto Parts/Dura Lube 500k at PIR, on November 7, Gordon hopes to see the race through to the end.

"Phoenix is a flat, fast track," said Gordon. "It's a tough place to win. We thought we had a car capable of winning last year, then the rain came."

Phoenix is the only track that Gordon has raced on each year since his 1993 rookie season but has yet to win.

"It's hard to even conceive of the fact that we have won 49 races," said Gordon. "It would be nice to get that 50th win at Phoenix. However, you never know when any win will be your last, so we'll be thankful to get a win anywhere we go."

In six starts at Phoenix, Gordon has three top-five and four top-10 finishes. He has not led a lap here since 1994. His best finish is fourth. With virtually no chance of seriously contending for the championship with a fourth place points position, 474 behind leader Dale Jarrett with only three races remaining, Gordon main goal is to win races.

"We still want to accumulate as many points as we possibly can," said Gordon. "However, unlike the last four years, we can focus a lot more on just winning races."

With win No. 8 of the season and 50 of his career in sight, Gordon hopes to be showered only with success.

It's raining wins.....hallelujah, it's raining wins!

POISON OAK

by Clyde Pack

For a mere nine cents

I saw a big new Western on TV the other night (at least I thought it was a Western, because everybody rode a horse) and all I can say is, "Oh for the good old days...when men were men and women were women, you could tell the difference, and you could go to the movies for nine cents."

And what movies they were, too, especially the Westerns.

But today's Westerns, which fortunately are few and far between, are mostly rated R for violence and language.

That's okay, I guess, if you like that sort of thing, but those of us who grew up listening to our cowboy heroes saying nothing worse than "shucks" or "durn" and blushing when the saloon girls winked at them, have a problem with all this so-called "realism" upon which moviegoers today seem to thrive.

Back in the 1940s we stood in line on Saturday mornings waiting for the Royal or Sipp theaters to open, and were willing to lay down our pennies because Roy, Gene, Hoppy and The Durango Kid were willing to lay down their lives. We knew, without doubt, that our cowboy heroes never cussed and would do whatever was necessary (and fair) to protect all the nesters and sod-busters from the likes of those ugly bad guys who wore black hats, string ties and thin mustaches.

In those days when Randolph Scott played the town marshal and told the poor old widow Jones that he'd guard her money, she (and we) knew it'd be guarded. On the other hand, today's hero would likely shoot the widow, kidnap her niece, steal her buckboard and ride off on a big spending spree...with the theatre audience cheering him on.

I'm afraid there were several things about those old Westerns that today's audiences just wouldn't buy. For example, not only did cowboys back then not cuss, neither did they bleed. I sat for years and watched fist fights and gun battles and never saw ten drops of blood, all totaled. The other night, I saw more blood before the first commercial than I saw in all the years I was going to the movies as a kid.

I doubt too that folks today would accept six-shooters that you never had to reload, and the predictability of the plot. Like when the good guy (nearly always on the white horse) chased the bad guy (nearly always on the black horse), we knew he'd never catch him until they came to a little hill over which they could both roll. Even we coal-camp kids knew that if they'd have hit the solid, flat ground, it'd have killed them both.

Back then, when a villain was finally headed off at the pass, and toted off to jail, and when our hero patted his girl on the head and kissed his horse and rode off into the sunset, we knew the show was over.

Now, we've got to listen, for another 15 or 20 minutes while some unseen narrator explains how the crook only turned bad because somebody shot his dog when he was a mere lad of ten.

"Oh for the good old days, when men were men and women were women, you could tell the difference, and you could go to the movies for nine cents."

When no words seem appropriate

Perhaps they are not the stars, but rather openings in Heaven where the love of our lost ones pours through and shines down upon us to let us know they are happy.
 Inspired by an Eskimo Legend

I won't say, "I know how you feel" - because I don't. I've lost parents, grandparents, aunts, uncles and friends, but I've never lost a child. So how can I say I know how you feel?

I won't say, "You'll get over it" - because you won't. Life will have to go on. The washing, cooking, cleaning, the common routine. These chores will take your mind off your loved one, but the hurt will still be there.

I won't say, "Your other children will be a comfort to you" - because they may not be. Many mothers I've talked to say that after they have lost a child, they easily lose their temper with their remaining children. Some even feel resentful that they're alive and healthy when the other child is not.

I won't say, "Never mind, you're young enough to have another baby" - because that won't help. A new baby cannot replace the one that you've lost. A new baby will fill your hours, keep you busy, give you sleepless nights. But it will not replace the one you've lost.

You may hear all these platitudes from your friends and relatives. They think they are helping. They don't know what else to say. You will find out who your true friends are at this time. Many will avoid you because they can't face you. Others will talk about the weather, the holidays and the school concert but never about how you're coping.

So what will I say?

I will say, "I'm here. I care. Anytime. Anywhere." I will talk about your loved one. We'll laugh about the good memories. I won't mind how long you grieve. I won't tell you to pull yourself together.

No, I don't know how you feel - but with sharing, perhaps I will learn a little of what you are going through. And perhaps you'll feel comfortable with me and find your burden has eased. Try me.

Annual Rebekah state meeting held

The annual meeting of the Rebekah State Assembly of Kentucky was held in Paintsville, at the Ramada Inn (formerly, the Carriage House) on October 3-6. Attending from Miriam Rebekah Lodge No. 31 were Beverly Hackworth, who served as Marshall; Paulena Owens, who served as inside guardian; Sue Moore served on the courtesy committee and Lorena Wallen on legislation committee.

On Sunday night, a devotion and memorial service was held followed by a reception for the assembly president, Anita LeMaster of Paintsville, and her officers.

Monday was spent by attendees participating in committee meetings. Monday night, the Grand Master's Banquet was held, at which time many awards were presented.

The regular session of business started on Tuesday morning with the seating of officers and visitors. Members of Miriam Rebekah Lodge were in charge of seating the district presidents and district deputy presidents.

Election of new officers was held Tuesday at 3 p.m., with installation at 8 p.m.

Wednesday's meeting concluded all business with closing of the session at noon until the year 2000, to be held in Louisville.

Construction of the US 23/US 460 through Floyd County is expected to begin next spring with the letting of the first contracts, according to the Highway Department's five-year road program. Total lengthwise projects in this county will be 16.1 miles, and cost of the projects is expected to total almost $30 million...Commonwealth's Attorney Harold J. Stumbo said this week that he has been urged by Attorney General John B. Breckinridge to take legal action against mine operators which do not carry workmen's compensation for the protection of their employees...The Prestonsburg Municipal Housing Commission was notified Friday by the Housing and Urban Development Administration that the application for 78 low-rent housing units has been approved for letting to contract December 30. The housing complex will involve the expenditure of $1,306,421, including site and construction cost, architect's fees and other items...Some 500 on-the-job training opportunities for jobless unemployed rural residents in Kentucky will be developed by the U.S. Department of Labor, William H. Norwood, regional administrator here, announced last week...There died: Milton D. Ramsey, 79, McDowell, at McDowell Hospital; Green Spradlin, 91, of Bonanza, at Prestonsburg General Hospital; Addie Arnett, 91, of West Prestonsburg at Mountain Manor Convalescent Home; Lula Shepherd, 68, of David in Paintsville Hospital; Prophet Little, 67, of Melvin, at Methodist Hospital, Pikeville.

Forty Years Ago (November 12, 1959)

The Kentucky Parks Committee, in a meeting at Frankfort Tuesday accepted proposals for the development of the state's park system and will turn the recommendation over to the General Assembly when it meets in January. A total of $1,785,000 was asked for the development of Jenny Wiley State Park. Recommended for the park here was an improved entrance, expanded swimming area, a 50-bed lodge, a dining room, snack bar, 20 cabins, a swimming pool, trailer park, a golf course, an amphitheater, campsites and maintenance buildings...When the tally of all votes cast in the Nov. 3 election had been completed it was found that Bert T. Combs of Prestonsburg had been elected governor by the greatest majority ever polled in the state. His lead over John M. Robinson Jr., Republican, was 179,895...There died: Frank Carr, at his home at Allen; John Hurd, 82, Lancer, at the home of a son on Sugar Loaf Creek; Jack Moore, 63, of Eastern, at the McDowell Memorial Hospital; Albert Spradlin, 61, of Mare Creek, at the Pikeville Memorial Hospital; Marion Grimm, 48, of Johnson County, in the mines at David.

Fifty Years Ago (November 17, 1949)

If sportsmen of the area would give their approval, the state Division of Game and Fish would poison the waters of John's Creek, kill all the fish in the stream and stock it with bass and panfish well before the U.S. Corps of Engineers is ready to impound the water behind the new Dewey Dam... Every Floyd County mine with orders for coal was in production this week, but over the head of the industry still hung threat of another strike. Tuesday, the day the United Mine Workers of America paid the $1,420,000 imposed by Federal Judge Galdsborough, for refusal to stop the 1948 strike...The election over, with no local repercussions apparent at the time, Floyd County's officials-elect this week viewed the financial outlook of the beginning of their terms with concern. The fiscal court met here Tuesday, but was powerless, in the absence of money, to transact business...There died: Clara M. Gunnels Leslie, 60, at her home at Emma; Leonard Gibson, 83, at the Wayland home of son; Dr. Charles Franklin Bond, the last of his doctor-brothers, died at his home here; Rebecca Jane Crisp Hunter, at her home at Martin; Easter Carver Sammons, 77, at her home on Arkansas Creek, near Martin.

Sixty Years Ago (November 9, 1939)

To adjust a dispute in church matters which have arisen at Martin, Circuit Judge John W. Caudill will conduct a hearing Friday on an injunction action designed to prevent the Rev. Julian Hunt from using the church...Admitted to the Floyd County bar Saturday morning, Anne Bond, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Charles F. Bond, Prestonsburg, became the first woman attorney to become a full-fledged member of the local bar association in its long history...Despite the Times' report last week to the effect that the Williams Grocery Company was moving stock of the local firm to Paintsville, it now develops that new stock's being added to the store and that it will continue in business as long as business justifies... Forty-two Floyd County youths were accepted for duty in the CCC last week and sent to camp in Pike and Johnson counties...There died: Cecil Slone, 25, at Stumbo Memorial Hospital; Mary Buckner, 39, Wheelwright, at Beaver Valley Hospital, Martin; Eliza Holbrook, at home at Myrtle.

SMALL WORLD

'Preacher McGinnis'

by Aileen Hall

The world, and eastern Kentucky in particular, lost another influence for good a few days ago when Rev. Fred H. McGinnis went to receive the reward he had preached and taught about for most of his ninety years.

I was a small child living on Prater Creek when the McGinnises—Rev. McGinnis and his wife Dorthea—moved to our community. What they ever saw to bring them to this community those long years ago had to be based on the need they could fill and the will of their Heavenly Father they wanted so much to please. It certainly wasn't for any promise of financial gain or for any real potential that anyone with a lesser vision could see.

We were a rag-tag bunch of boys and girls who made up those first Bible and Sunday School classes. But we were coached into memorizing Bible verses beginning with John 3:16. The ten commandments were posted on the wall and etched into our memories as we were given goals to reach and rewards for having attained them. We took great pride in carrying home the little New Testaments as evidence we were doing well in the classes.

Whether or not we studied or read these in any depth, I can't remember; but I know we treasured them greatly and wrote our names on the inside cover as evidence they were our individual property. I doubt that we had many such tangible items that was not a common belonging of the whole family, and that made them more special.

There was a birthday celebration a couple of years ago where this much beloved preacher was given some recognition for his years of service. There was also a story in this newspaper about some of the hard times his family had endured as they went about on their teaching mission. I'm sure those of us they influenced most were not aware of what it cost them to move among us as they touched our lives in such a gentle way.

Fred and Dorthea had three daughters, Mary Elizabeth, Sharon and Carol, and I suppose it was to be expected that they also be involved in Christian work. Mary, who is a look-alike of her mother, married Bill Barkley, and they live in Sao Paulo, Brazil, where they work in publishing, translating the Bible and related materials into the Brazilian language.

Sharon is married to a minister, Tom Dice, and they live in Saskatchewan, a province of Canada. Beside his preaching, the Dices also have a Christian counseling service.

Carol was married to Ralph Hall, Jr. and lives in Salyersville near their children. After her father could no longer live alone, she brought him to live with her where she gave him the greatest of care with the long distance help and moral support of her sisters. Their mother had died about twenty years ago, but her presence has stayed with them in the things she taught them and the values she passed down to them.

The daughters had written a eulogy for their father's funeral service and they told of his love and great commitment to the Master he served. They told of how he once had a severe disability with his legs that he was delivered from. In fact, much of their travel up the creeks and hollows was done by walking. Even after they had a car, it once sat on blocks for a year because they couldn't afford gas to run it.

I'm sure we took the McGinnises for granted back in those early years and, because they lived at Banner, we thought of them as "our McGinnises," not realizing they were reaching out as much to other communities and to other families. But after he died and when friends visited at the funeral home, they came from Allen, Martin, Dwale, Buck's Branch, Prestonsburg, Buffalo Creek, Salyersville and all points to pay tribute to this man who had taught them too.

Julian "Bob" Hall has an old and faded picture that consists of that little rag-tag group that made up one of those first Sunday School classes. Those children are grownup now and all making their own contributions as solid citizens. To my knowledge, none were ever involved with drugs or any type of crime. That group would have been multiplied many times over with other faces filling the pictures, other lives being guided in the right direction.

Children growing up without a spiritual influence in their lives have a void that nothing else can fill. Fred and Dorthea McGinnis knew this when they came to invest their lives in Eastern Kentucky. They were God's gift to us, and now sweet peace together is His gift to them.

Your woodland may be the best learning tool your children have

More and more is being said lately about outdoor classrooms. Schools everywhere are adding outdoor amphitheatres, nature trails, ponds, gardens and birdhouses. Curriculums focus on habitats and natural resource issues. In the newspapers and on television, we see an assortment of environment-related programming.

Once upon time in America, if a parent wanted to improve the chance of a child's educational success, a set of encyclopedias would be bought, if the family finances would allow. As time went on, the computer became the educational tool of choice, again if the family finances would make such an expenditure possible. Finally, though, near the turn of the millennium, we're waking up to realize that one of the best learning tools may be in our backyard. Actually, it may be our backyard. If you own even a few acres (or less), you may have an excellent educational resource for your children, and it's a resource that's free.

If you own any woodland at all, you're very fortunate. Learning is at your fingertips. But, if you only own a yard, then you're pretty lucky, too. Your own personal outdoor classroom might only include a birdhouse, a rain gauge and a flower garden. The key is simply to make the most of what you have.

Several subjects can be studied outdoors:

SCIENCE—Make a leaf collection; do a bird survey near a bird-feeder; plant a vegetable garden and record the results; collect as many insects as possible.

MATH—Measure the height and diameter of a few trees and make a graph of their yearly growth; use a map and compass to calculate angles from one point to another; measure the rainfall in a rain gauge and make a table of monthly precipitation.

ENGLISH—For a writing assignment, choose a tranquil spot and write about some natural feature found there; for inspiration, read aloud from Aldo Leopold's A Sand County Almanac or from a few of the nature-oriented passages of Psalms.

Some basic educational tools that might be useful would include a tape measure, a map and compass, guide books (trees, plants, insects, birds, etc.), a rain gauge, a Biltmore stick (used to measure tree heights) and so forth.

The learning that can be accomplished in your own backyard should only be limited by your imagination. If you don't have any potential sites near your home, try spending an hour or two after school at a nearby state park. Jenny Wiley State Resort Park, for example, has miles and miles of nature trails, as well as a staff that can help you learn much about the history and natural features of east Kentucky.

Tips for smart online shopping

(NUE) - Wondering where to find your favorite catalog? Look to your computer. More than 80 percent of catalogs are now on the Internet, and online sales this year are expected to top $11 billion.

"It's no surprise that online catalog shopping has proven so popular," says Amy Blankenship, director of the Direct Marketing Association's (The DMA) Shop-At-Home Information Center. "Nearly two-thirds of all Americans — 128 million people — already enjoy the convenience of shopping from home."

The DMA consumer Web site, www.shopthenet.org, offers helpful tips on smart catalog and online shopping and provides links to many catalogs. The DMA's tips for online shopping include:

- Shop with companies you know.
 - Read the customer service section of the site, including return policies.
 - Use secure sites. Look for the image of a locked padlock or unbroken key at the top or bottom of the screen when you're on the "checkout" page. The URL ("Web address") at the top of the screen will read "https:" if you are shopping on a secure server.
 - Pay by credit card. You'll be covered by the Fair Credit Billing Act, which protects you whether you buy online, from catalogs or in a retail store.
 - Print out a copy of the order for your records.
- Interested "site-seers" will want to visit sportswear cataloger Lands' End, www.landsend.com. Clicking on the preferred size, cut, collar, cuff and color of their extensive dress shirt collection makes for faster shopping.

For jewelry and other of "life's luxuries for a lot less," try the Ross-Simons site, www.ross-simons.com: it features a bridal and gift registry, online specials, and a list of best-selling items.

You can order clothing, home items and gifts by clicking on keywords at the Paragon Web site, www.paragongifts.com: Its many product categories range from "animals" to "whimsy."

And JCPenney's The Perfect Match, www.jcpenney.com, is a perfect way to buy wedding gifts online. Extensive selections of china, silver, sterling and linens are available through its gift registry.

Getting hungry from all this surfing? Place an online order for Harry and David's, www.harryanddavid.com, luscious fruits and snacks. The catalog's site also offers an update on the harvesting of its fruits.

For whimsical mugs, T-shirts, mousepads and other computer-related gear, order from Computer Gear, www.computergear.com.

And folks who work with tools more old-fashioned than computers — hammers, nails, saws and the like — can still use a computer to order them. Just visit the popular Web site of the handyman's favorite catalog, Tool Crib of the North, www.toolcribofthenorth.com.

UK Science & You: Mercury no culprit in Alzheimer's

Mercury used in dental fillings does not cause Alzheimer's disease, according to a new study by University of Kentucky researchers. The study compared mercury levels in autopsied brains from Alzheimer's disease subjects as well as control subjects. The researchers found no significant association of Alzheimer's disease with the number, surface area or history of dental amalgams.

"Our key finding is that there is no relationship whatsoever between mercury found in the brain and amalgam," says Stanley Saxe, one of the study's authors and a professor emeritus of periodontics and geriatric dentistry in the UK College of Dentistry.

"Although very small amounts of mercury are released from dental amalgam—generally when rubbed or abraded due to brushing or eating—it is not taken up by the brain."

Funded by a grant from the National Institutes of Health, the study was prompted by scientific controversy that has been brewing for several years on the topic.

Saxe and William Markesbery, director of the Sanders-Brown Center on Aging, led the research team that worked on this study. "This is the only study that has looked at this question in a large group of people," Saxe says.

Dental amalgam has been used since the early 1830s and is considered an excellent restorative material in dentistry because of its strength and durability. However, because dental amalgam is comprised of 50 percent mercury, a neurotoxin, it has been the subject of continuing controversy as a possible public health risk.

"The fact that there was no differential found in brain mercury levels due to dental amalgams is very exciting news for the dentistry profession," Saxe says.

"It's good to know that dental amalgam is safe because it is a very good restorative material," says Steve Rider, of the Lange, Rider and Reynolds restorative dental practice in Lexington. It's also good news for dentists and dental assistants, he says.

"Though we don't actually touch amalgam, we're in close proximity to it on a daily basis," Rider adds that the scope of this research at UK is also important. "There are millions of people with silver fillings around the world, which makes this finding even more significant."

Barbara Pugh passed the exam to become Practitioner

Barbara Pugh

RESNA, The Rehabilitation Engineering and Assistive Technology Society of North America, has announced that Barbara Burchett Pugh of the Carl D. Perkins Comprehensive Rehabilitation Center and the Cabinet for Workforce Development has fulfilled the eligibility requirements and passed the credentialing exam necessary to become a certified Assistive Technology Practitioner. These requirements include a combination of relevant education and experience, as well as adherence to a code of ethics and rules as outlined in the RESNA Standards of Practice. RESNA has developed this voluntary credentialing process in order to ensure consumer safeguards and increase consumer satisfaction with the service delivery process.

The ATP credential is intended for service providers who are primarily involved in the evaluation and assessment of an end user's assistive technology needs, as well as training and follow-up in the use of that technology. By passing the exam and meeting all eligibility requirements, Pugh has demonstrated a level of expertise to guide the consumer, including third party purchasers of services, in determining how assistive technology can help meet their needs.

Pugh is a 1984 graduate of Johnson Central High School and a 1988 graduate of the University of Kentucky. She received a Master's degree in speech language pathology in 1989 and is currently finishing the research for an Educational Specialist's degree in special education technology. She worked for the Johnson County School System for a number of years and is currently employed by the Cabinet for Workforce Development at the Carl

D. Perkins Rehabilitation Center. She is the wife of Douglas Pugh of Paintsville and the daughter of Patty and Leon Burchett of Concord.

RESNA is a not-for-profit, interdisciplinary, association comprised of persons who share a common interest in technology and disability. The purpose of RESNA is to improve the potential of people with disabilities to achieve their goals through the use of technology.

CentrePointe grand opening winners

On Friday morning, September 10, the signs for the Citizens National Bank CentrePointe Branch were uncovered in a grand opening celebration commemorating the new site. The celebration included an official ribbon cutting ceremony by President and CEO Dennis T. Dorton, and brief presentations by bank officers. As a special addition to the ribbon cutting ceremony, Citizens National Bank contributed $250 to Hospice of the Big Sandy, taken directly from the ribbon itself.

During the grand opening celebration, Citizens National Bank offered customers the opportunity to earn instant rewards. Anyone who opened a checking or savings account between September 10 and September 17, had the opportunity to receive instant prizes. Whether it was a wall clock, golf umbrella or T-shirt, Citizens National Bank wanted its customers to know that banking with them provides instant rewards.

"The grand opening celebration at CentrePointe was the perfect way to allow our customers to immediately feel the gratification of banking at Citizens National," said Randy Reynolds, senior vice president and chief operating officer. "Our customers are winners with superior quality banking products and service, and now with a more convenient location."

To encourage people throughout the Big Sandy area to do banking with Citizens National, individuals who visited the CentrePointe branch had the opportunity to enter to win a grand prize trip for two to Myrtle Beach, South Carolina. The trip includes four days, three nights deluxe accommodations for two adults to the beautiful beaches of the East Coast, as well as a complimentary vacation gift, round of golf for two, and tickets to a popular local entertainment attraction.

Dr. Anita Hale Allen, a dentist in Prestonsburg, was the lucky recipient of the grand prize trip to Myrtle Beach. "I was so surprised, I've never won anything," said Allen. "CNB has always been a good bank for me, and has continually helped me with loans and financial business. Now they really helped me!"

Currently, Citizens National Bank has 11 banking locations in Floyd, Magoffin, and Johnson counties, including the new CentrePointe branch.

There are many legal issues that surface in the day-to-day operation of a business. Tax matters, liability concerns, government reports and the like can bear heavily on the mind. Take a tip from the scouts—BE PREPARED! An opportunity is coming up that will help make you aware of some steps you can take to prevent unnecessary legal costs.

How can you have a healthy business that runs smoothly through the paperwork process? Would you like to know how to hire the right professional? Would you like to know how to retire and close out your business in the most efficient manner? Then plan to attend a legal issues seminar on November 16, 10-12, noon at the American Electric Power Conference Room, Coal Run.

Rx for a Healthy Business will be taught by two professionals in the legal and accounting communities. Attorney Daniel Stratton, with Stratton, Hogg and Maddox, will join CPA Jeffery N. Hatfield, with Collins and Love, to enlighten you on subjects such as: How to Hire the Right Professional; Examining your Business Needs; Planning an Exit Strategy; and Would a Limited Liability Company Help You?

This training session is one of several which are co-sponsored by the Floyd County Chamber of Commerce, Pike County Chamber of Commerce, and Morehead State University's Small Business Development Center. This particular seminar is also sponsored by Firststar Bank, Pikeville. As usual, Chamber members are given a discount on registration. Cost is $20 for members, $25 for non-members and includes workshop materials and refreshments. Registration is limited, so call today to reserve your spot. Pike County Chamber number is (606) 432-5504; Floyd County Chamber is 886-0364; or you may call the Small Business Development Center at 432-5848.

See you, same place, same time, next week. Stay in touch!

Audit finds BellSouth meets obligations

"We are pleased that the auditors found that our price regulation plan has worked well in Kentucky over the past four years," said Eddy Roberts, BellSouth Kentucky president. "Customers have benefited under the plan."

The price for basic residential service did not increase and the price for basic business service decreased for most business customers. At the same time, BellSouth employees worked hard to maintain high quality service as evidenced by BellSouth receiving the J. D. Power and Associates Customer Satisfaction Award for the fourth straight year.

"BellSouth has also benefited," noted Roberts. "Price regulation has added flexibility in pricing competitive services and provided appropriate incentives for investments in the high risk telecommunications industry."

"The audit report recognizes that the telecommunications industry is changing rapidly and becoming more complex," said Roberts. "The report provides a framework for further discussions with the Kentucky Public Service Commission to create the appropriate interim regulation of BellSouth as we continue to provide service in an increasingly competitive market."

HELP LEAD FLOYD COUNTY TO EDUCATIONAL EXCELLENCE

Kentuckians have an unprecedented chance to rebuild the state's school system, and local boards are central to the reform movement. Share a sense of pride with other citizens by serving the children of Floyd County.

You are invited to nominate yourself or a qualified acquaintance to serve on the Floyd County Board of Education.

There is a vacancy created by the resignation of a current board member.

Activity

Board members are involved in four main tasks:

- Developing policy-making guidelines that govern the operation of schools.
- Providing visionary leadership and vigorous stewardship with long-range educational plans and programs.
- Hiring the district superintendent and issuing annual evaluation reports.
- Setting local tax rates and ensuring that public funds are spent wisely and efficiently.

Requirements

- At least 24 years old.
- Kentucky citizen for the last three years.
- Registered voter in the School Board District Two.
- High school diploma or GED certificate.
- Except in limited circumstances, board members may not have a relative employed by the school district.

Pick up an application at the Floyd County Board of Education office at 183 North Arnold Avenue, Prestonsburg, Kentucky, or the County Court Clerks Office, Central Avenue. Mail the completed form to Wilmer S. Cody, Commissioner of Education, 500 Mero Street, First Floor, Capital Plaza Tower, Frankfort, KY 40601. Applications must be postmarked by November 8, 1999.

The Kentucky Department of Education does not discriminate on the basis of race, color, national origin, sex, religion, age or disability in employment or the provision of services.

ADVERTISEMENT FOR BIDS

Sealed bids for kitchen equipment will be received and then at said office publicly opened and read aloud by the Martin Area Senior Citizens Board of Directors on behalf of the Martin Area Senior Citizens Center, Martin, Kentucky, in the manner and on the date and time hereinafter specified for the furnishing of appliances and equipment to complete the Martin Area Senior Citizen Center Kitchen, as set forth in the specifications and under the terms and conditions of this invitation.

Thence with KY RT 122, a north easterly course to the corner of Thomas Meade property, the point of beginning.

TRACT II

Beginning at a point along KY RT 122, a corner of Tract IV-B as depicted on that survey map of the Estate of H.F. Meade recorded as Map 673 and 673-A in the office of the Floyd County Clerk. Thence with Tract IV-B N 18° 43' 46" W, 37.34 feet to a point; thence N 70° 53' 10" E, 65.95 feet to a point; thence N 64° 11' 19" E, 141.61 feet to a point; thence N 62° 11' 58" E, 48.17 feet to a point; thence S 34° 00' 05" E, 38.73 feet to a point; thence N 54° 04' 14" E, 94.28 feet to a point; thence S 39° 08' 32" E, 17.37 feet to a point adjacent to KY RT 122. Thence a south westerly course with KY RT 122, approximately 320 feet to the point of beginning.

Being part of the same property conveyed H.F. Meade by various Deeds executed October 28, 1932, January 2, 1943, November 19, 1942 and December 30, 1940, recorded in Deed Book 132, Pages 146, 148 and 149, respectively, all in the records of the Floyd County Clerk's Office.

The property hereinabove described cannot be divided without materially impairing its value and therefore will be sold by the Master Commissioner of the Court as a whole, subject to those items set forth hereinbelow, but free and clear of all other liens and encumbrances and said subject matter real property shall be sold with all improvements, appurtenances and fixtures and the rents, issues and profits therefrom and thereon, prior and superior to any and all liens and encumbrances, except the following:

(a) delinquent ad valorem taxes asserted by Floyd County, Kentucky;

(b) ad valorem taxes due and payable in the year 1999, and all taxes due thereafter;

(c) easements, restrictions and covenants of record;

(d) assessments for public improvements levied against the property; and,

(e) any facts which an inspection or accurate survey of the property may or would disclose.

TERMS OF SALE: (a) At the time of sale, the successful bidder, if the other than the Plaintiff, shall either pay cash or make a cash deposit of ten percent (10%) of the purchase price, with the balance on credit for thirty (30) days.

(b) The successful bidder shall be required to execute a bond with good surety thereon for the unpaid purchase price of said property, if any, bearing interest at the rate of twelve percent (12%) per annum from the date of sale until paid, having the force and effect of a Judgment.

(c) The property shall be sold subject to any easements and restrictions of record in the Floyd County Clerk's Office and such right of redemption as may exist in favor of the United States of America and/or the record owners thereof, pursuant to 28 U.S.C. 2410 or KRS 426.530.

(d) The purchaser shall be required to assume and pay all real property taxes for the fiscal year 1999, and any prior years for which taxes are due and owing, and all subsequent years not yet due and payable.

Any announcements made on date of sale takes precedence over printed matter contained herein.
