Professors Crawl, Crawl Called the strangest club in the world, the "Red Lion club," recently held its annual dinner at Bristol, England. Its members are professors, and the "King Lion," who presided, was seasonably dressed as "Your Majesty" by the other "lions" and "cats." At supper they sedulously qualified strong old English ale. The red lions of the club are the senior scientists, and the cats are new members, who were made on admission to the "Red Lion club," and go through a ritual of initiation. There were also two jackals and when the king lion gave an order they laid it before surrendering to the carpet in their conscientious effort to look lionlike.

Giralda In Seville of Andalusia, Giralda dwells. It is one of the most beautiful Moorish monuments of Spain. A twelfth century tower stretched against the blue sky, and now the shrine of two dozen anointed bells. It is the mother and sweetest of Seville; without Giralda the city would feel compelled to hide and change its name. The tower was ordered to be destroyed before surrendering to San Fernando, but he replied that a Moorish head would be cut off for every stone removed. The heads changed their minds. To an American, Giralda marks holy ground, for in the cathedral stands the sarcophagus of Christopher Columbus.

"Witch" Elm Claims Victim How the "witch" elm tree claimed another victim recently was told at the coroner's inquest at Port Talbot, Wales. Thomas J. Richards, thirty-six, had been engaged by the Penybont council to trim the branches. A branch on which he was standing snapped, and he fell 40 feet to the road and was killed. A lineman previously had been killed while cutting down a branch of the same tree under similar circumstances. The tree, nearly 50 feet high, is known among woodmen as "the witch."

Consider your Adam's Apple!!*

Don't Rasp Your Throat With Harsh Irritants

"Reach for a LUCKY instead"

Eve started it and the daughters of Eve inherited it. Eve gave Adam the apple, and it seems that Adam must have passed it on. For every man and every woman has an Adam's Apple. Put your finger on your Adam's Apple—that is your larynx, your voice box—it contains your vocal chords. Consider your Adam's Apple—when you do so, you are considering your throat—your vocal chords. Don't rasp your throat with harsh irritants. Reach for a LUCKY instead. Here in America LUCKY STRIKE is the only cigarette which brings you the added benefit of the exclusive "TOASTING" Process, which includes the use of modern Ultra Violet Rays. It is this exclusive process that expels certain harsh irritants present in all raw tobaccos. These expelled irritants are sold to manufacturers of chemical compounds. They are not present in your LUCKY STRIKE. And so we say "Consider your Adam's Apple."

Children Enrolled in

Old English Colleges

A curious possibility of the turning of the wheel is suggested by the plea which is being made for an earlier entry into the universities, partly in order that distressed modern parents may be relieved a little earlier of the cost of maintenance of sons and, presumably, daughters. It is true that at present boys enter the university at an age when, over a long period, they would have been ready to leave. John Milton had only just passed his fifteenth birthday when he went up from St. Dunstons to Cambridge, and he was nineteen when he took his bachelor degree. Sir John Denham was sent to Oxford at sixteen, though he seems to have behaved himself there very much after the fashion of some young fellows who have matriculated at a later age, for the future poet is described as a "dazzling young man, given more to drink and cards than study." But even fifteen or sixteen, which seems very early to us, would have seemed very late to the authorities of an earlier age. When thousands of boys, huddled in bare lodging houses, chattering round teachers as noisy as themselves in church porch and "house porch" took the place of "the brightly colored train of doctors and heads." It was in those days that scholars like the boys of Ely, archbishop of Canterbury and saint in later days, came to Oxford, a boy of twelve years. The most ardent advocate of change would scarcely advise a return to those days.—Manchester (England) Guardian.

Demand for Ambergris

Greater than Supply
Treasure troves were scattered through up on a Pacific coast beach in the form of a piece of ambergris, at least that was what his fingers called it. Ambergris, always scarce, and now even scarcer, has been a coveted possession for centuries in view of the high price it commands. It has figured in fiction, and from time to time it has brought a measure of wealth to those who have been fortunate enough to find a piece of it. This strange substance comes either from the stomach or the intestines of the sperm whale and frequently contains the seeds of corals, which, the whale feeds. It is a grayish substance, often mottled with darker streaks. Whales after a kill sometimes found large pieces of it floating in the water. Long ago chemists discovered that ambergris could be melted in boiling alcohol and used in the manufacture of perfumes. Hence it became a valuable commodity. It is much rarer than it used to be because of the scarcity of sperm whales. In the early days of American whaling the sperm whale was plentiful, ranging into the North Atlantic by its foot.

Ruins of Old Roman City

Timagd is a ruined city, 23 miles southeast of Bataia, in the department of Constantine, Algeria. Timagd, the Timungis of the Romans, was built on the lower slopes of the northern side of the Aures mountains, and was situated at the intersection of six roads. The acropolis of the theater, which held nearly 4,000 persons, is complete. A little west of the theater are baths, containing several mosaic floors in perfect preservation. Ruins of other and larger thermae are found all over the city. The city, though on the north being very extensive. There are the remains of seven churches. Numerous inscriptions have been found on the ruins and from them many events in the history of Timungis have been learned. Timungis passed from history after the defeat of Gurgurinus, governor of Africa, by the Arabs in 647.

Road Versus Rail

It is now many years since the expenses of the railway companies run up in England and services used to race against each other, and there is today very little "sporting interest" in connection with trains. On the continent, a new form of railway racing was growing up some time ago, touring cars being run against express. This road versus rail racing is now discouraged in Europe. However it is catching on so much in New Zealand that a recent race between a car and the Wellington-Auckland train was broadcast throughout the country. The race took place at night, and, despite the handicap of the car, the train won by half an hour.

Had Daughter's Sympathy

Iris had been sitting with an absorbed look on her face, gazing at her father. "Why did you marry mother, dad?" she suddenly said. "Because I was a fool, I suppose," he replied. "Four Mums," said Iris softly. "What do you mean, miss?" asked father. "I mean that it was sad for mother to marry a fool, dad," explained Iris seriously.

Ray Baths for Horses

Race horses and other animals are being treated with artificial sunlight just before they go on the track in England. Some trials are fitted with powerful lights, and in the rays from these the animals stand quietly while "taking their baths." Among the "knows" announced the wretched manager, "but I thought I'd let it have a try."

Glimpses at Sports

Two players in the world of tennis stand out from the rest. They are Cocochet and Helen Wills. (Mrs. Stoddard).

Despite a lame splinter and a falling off of her below his usual form, the Frenchman's tennis genius flamed brightly enough in the Davis cup matches, to win the championship of his country, defeating one of England's best. Earlier in the season, Cocochet lost matches to inferior players, but at the big moment he arose to the heights of which only genius is capable. What a match it was! If Bill Tilden could still look ten years, and Cocochet could be at his best, somehow, though, he would have been better than Tilden would win.

As for the girl whom they call Little Pooker, she, she called through an Eastern tournament, last week without success. At a recent match she has been out of tournament for two months, and obviously was not at her best. And what a match it would be to pit Wills and Landon, both at their best, against each other. Somehow, we have the feeling that the French girl would have won. There was another tennis match.

Another year or two should see some of the young crop of American players round Apache again, which should be something for the French unless he comes back to the U. S. in France.

THE FLICK OF THE IRISH

We have always understood a mean streak in the Irishman. The New York Herald and John M. Gray. Most of the Irishmen are the natural result of a long history of the 500 year and more of the underlying of underdog. But after all, we are forced to give Mr. McGraw a lot of credit for his boldness of judgment.

Take it all in all, the world has been from third class to the second class. What manner would have taken the chance of moving one of the best third-classers in the world into new territory and replacing him with a first-classer, and a comparatively little-known quantity? And who would have foreseen that the result would be so satisfactory?

THE EXPERIMENT

A young man whose knowledge of tennis was extremely visionary was tried in to complete a bridge four. After a few moments he committed his first mistake by playing a king on a trick actually taken by his opponent's ace. "Good heavens!" roared the young man, "my partner, stung to wrath by the dreadful sight, 'a king usually doesn't beat an ace, you know." "I know," stammered the wretched beginner, "but I thought I'd let it have a try."

DEATHS

Rev. Enoch Bowdler and wife mourn the loss of their only son, a bright-eyed and beautiful boy of 14 months, who lay in the victim of a complication of disease, and while everything possible was done that could be, yet to no avail. Death came on Wednesday of last week. Funeral took place the following day in the Martin cemetery. Funeral services were conducted by Rev. Allen.

RECENT RAINS

During the past week this drought-stricken section was visited by some of the finest rains we have had in 18 months. New hope has been set upon the growing crops and prospects are now better than usual for the crops of every sort, and our fruit-crop is by far the most promising in years.

NEW SCHOOLHOUSE

The new school one of the most beautiful school buildings in Floyd county, a three-room structure built entirely modern in every particular, both inside and outside. The building will be furnished with modern equipment and will have all facilities necessary for excellent work by the school. The following compose our corps of teachers for this year: Miss Lydia Latham, principal; Miss Ruth Cookey of Milas, assistant, while the primary department will be under the charge of Mrs. D. C. Cookey of Glo.

SUNSHINE GAME

The M. Dowell ball team came over and met the Wayland regulars in one of the most hotly contested games of the season. The score was 2 to 1 in favor of Wayland. Two home runs for Wayland settled the score. The Gladies went to Prestonsburg and looked that team 3-2.

HOME RUNS WIN FOR WAYLAND, 2-0

McDowell, Ky., July 27. Two home runs for Wayland told the story of Sunday's game between that team and the McDowell team at Wayland. The contest, one of the tightest hurling duels to be staged in this section, ended with Wayland the winner, 2-0. The holding was exceptionally clean. McDowell going errorless and Wayland committing only three mistakes, none of which was costly.

Old English "Sport" of Fox Hunting Endangered

Without its hunting rallies? If this sport of centuries, the merry chase of elusive foxes, fated to die out? It is unlikely that there is any feature of the custom and traditions of the nation, as fox hunting, this being so, a recent statement of the earl of Derby, an accepting the mastership of the Whidden chase, that this sport is in a very critical condition, came rather as a surprise. He declared that five neighboring packs are having difficulty in finding masters, and that sportsmen must rally around now, or lose that the story told—Purser Critter Star.

MAYTOWN

The foods project girls met Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. George A. Allen. Eight girls were present. Record books were inspected and girls reported on their home work. Supper menus were discussed and a cream of tomato soup demonstration was given by the leader. The club picnic was repeated and several songs were sung. Home work was assigned. After the foods meeting, girls who could not be present at the sewing meeting made up the work they had missed in the previous meeting.

Floyd County Times

Prestonsburg Kentucky

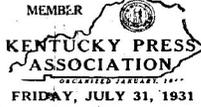

PUBLISHED EVERY FRIDAY BY Prestonsburg Publishing Company Incorporated

NORMAN ALLEN, Editor

OFFICIAL ORGAN FOR FLOYD COUNTY, KENTUCKY

$2.00 per year Payable in Advance

Entered as second class matter June 18, 1927, at the postoffice at Prestonsburg, Ky., under the Act of March 3, 1879.

THE TIMES' PLATFORM

- 1. The completion of the Allen-Hindman highway and the improvement of Floyd county's system of rural roads.
2. Reasonable and sensible economy in effecting public improvements.
3. Lower taxes, to the end that both old and new industry may find encouragement to operate in Floyd county rather than to face discouragement; particularly, relief from exorbitant taxes for the farmer.
4. The improvement of Prestonsburg's streets and the direction of special attention toward keeping the town clean.

THE POOR AT OUR DOOR

The fiscal court met Wednesday, and the poor, the halt, the blind came. All came, clutching at the drowning man's straw of hope of help from the county.

A few may receive help. The fiscal court doubtless finds it impossible to help all who really deserve assistance.

We have always had, and always will have, the poor and the afflicted among us. But now, with the land distressed by industrial depression, the common, ordinary citizen hard-pressed to care for his own, these unfortunates face greater deprivations than ever before.

What should be done is what should have been done long ago—the establishing of a county poor farm. This was planned several months ago, but evidently has been lost in the backwash from the current of other affairs.

Not every person who begs needs help, but the majority do. A county poor farm could not help all those in distress, but it could offer food and shelter and raiment to those for whom hope of self-support is gone beyond recovery.

Floyd county cannot afford to play Dives to their Lazarus.

VALUE OF THE LOCAL PAPER

Of what value is a newspaper to its community? A newspaper can't build a town; it can't make a good one out of a bad one; it can't make a town grow.

But a newspaper can encourage people. A newspaper can be the eyes and voice of the community. It can watch the trend of affairs; it can note the important things other communities are doing; it can keep the people posted, and then it can lead the way.

A newspaper published by a successful man or woman can point the way, it can show how things can be accomplished, it can create a wholesome atmosphere in which people can realize the beauties and joy of life, and then progress is made.

Can any other institution render greater service to humanity?

Shaw said: "The profession of journalism—God help it." I say to the rural and small city publishers who have an honest determination to get ahead, whose ambition is to render service, and whose hearts are filled with joy, "The profession of Journalism—God be praised!"—Fred Naeter, in the Cape Girardeau, (Mo.) Southeast Missourian.

RED CROSS ITEMS

The local chapter, with Miss Ella Noel White as executive secretary, has started social welfare work throughout the county. The object of the social welfare work is to get firsthand information on all worthy cases, and through the Red Cross, in cooperation with other organizations and agencies and public-spirited citizens, work out plans whereby applicants for aid will be enabled to solve their own problems and not be dependent upon charity for support.

Eastern Kentucky U. S. Court Leads in Prosecuting Youth

Hoover's Wickersham Law Enforcement Commission pointed an accusing finger at Judge Sam in its report on child offenders, charging that the government has done an ignorant, almost negligible amount of work in enforcing child laws.

The commission told President Hoover, who is noted for his love for children, that Congress should act to withdraw the government from the field of child punishment.

The federal government treats children like adults when Federal laws are broken in marked contrast with the attitude of forty-seven states, the commission found. In the states, an erring child is considered a ward of the state and cannot be prosecuted. He can only be treated in a manner calculated to reform.

According to the Wickersham report youth is meted out the same harsh punishment as seasoned criminals. Kentucky leads all other states in punishment of youths under 19 years of age. The greater number of these youthful offenders are from the Eastern District of Kentucky and for violation of the prohibition laws. A dispatch from Washington says:

Nearly one-fourth of all the juveniles held in jail on Federal prohibition law charges during the last six months of 1929 throughout the entire nation were held in the Eastern Kentucky Federal Judicial District, presided over by Judge A. M. J. Cochran. This is shown by a report of the Wickersham Law Enforcement Commission made public today at the White House.

The report shows that 218 boys under 19 years old were in jail for Federal dry law offenses in Judge Cochran's district.

There were more than three times as many reported by any other district and more than six times the number reported by any other district except that of Southern West Virginia, which showed seventy-one youths in jail during the same period.

Notwithstanding the number of juveniles held in jail for Federal offenses, the commission's report fails to offer any comment on this condition.

The tabulations show that in Judge Cochran's district, the total number of juveniles in jail for Federal offenses was 226, including 241 boys and nine girls. The total for the Western Kentucky district, presided over by Judge Charles L. Dawson, was thirty-three, including twenty-nine boys and four girls.

Of the boys held in jail in the Western Kentucky district, twenty-four were confined for prohibition offenses.

cases, two for violation of the Federal motor vehicle theft law and three for other offenses not designated. Of the four girls held there, three were confined for prohibition offenses and one was held under the Mann white slave law.

ROAD WORK PROMISED

Judge R. R. Dalton attended a meeting of the state highway commission in Frankfort last week and was notified that the work of giving the Monticello and Burnside highway and the north side of Main street of Monticello a coating of Tarvel would be started in the next three weeks, and that the Cooper pike would be put in good repair before winter.

ANNOUNCES WINNERS IN BETTER HOMES CONTEST

Winners in the 1931 nation-wide Better Homes campaign were announced this week by Dr. Lyman Wilbur, Secretary of the Interior. Santa Barbara, California, was winner of first prize among the cities and towns. In our first prize among the smaller communities, the first county prize was granted to Greene county Ark., and special prizes to Highland Park, Illinois, and St. Helena Island, South Carolina.

Dr. Wilbur is president of Better Homes in America, which each year sponsors a program designed to stimulate interest and activities leading to improved housing conditions and home and community life. These programs culminate in the observance of Better Homes Week and are judged on their merits as adapted to the needs of the community in which the campaign is conducted. This movement sponsored by President Hoover, who served first as president and later as honorary chairman, is non-commercial and is designed especially to assist families of modest means in attaining the highest possible living standards. Headquarters in Washington, D. C., are carried on under the direction of Dr. James Ford, as executive director. Each year a Committee on Awards selects for recognition the communities in each group which have presented the most highly educational programs. The committee this year consisted of Mrs. William Brown Melroy, vice-president and founder of Better Homes in America; Dr. Hugh S. Cummings, surgeon general, U. S. Public Health Service; Dr. Louise Stanley, chief of the U. S. Bureau of Home Economics; Victor Mindeloff, fellow of the American Institute of Architects; and Prof. Niles Carpenter, department of sociology, University of Buffalo.

PILES CHINESE NEED

If you suffer from itching, burning, protruding or bleeding piles you are likely to be annoyed at the expense of buying power of the raw, burning Chinese Herb, which forms the basis of the Chinese treatment. It is the only relief and comfort in a few minutes so that you can work and enjoy life while it continues to soothe, soothe, soothe. Don't delay. Act in time to avoid a sharp pain and costly operation. Dr. J. M. Morell, under the name of Chinese Herb, offers the small size of 10¢.

PROMINENT PIKE MERCHANT DIES

Operation Fatal to B. F. Johnson; Widow, Native of Floyd

Pikeville, Ky., July 27. B. F. Johnson, 77 years old, of Etty, one of Pike county's most prominent citizens, died at the Methodist hospital here at 2:30 o'clock Sunday morning without rallying from an operation performed at midnight last night for intestinal trouble from which he suffered an attack late Saturday.

Mr. Johnson was one of Pike county's pioneer merchants, having entered the mercantile business more than 50 years ago. Beside his mercantile interests he leaves an estate valued at $250,000, consisting of an extensive boundary of timber lands and valuable bank and commercial stock. His rise in the mercantile field was unique in that he first kept his entire stock of goods in a box concealed under the bed except as he found customers. His goods at that time consisted chiefly of knives and trinkets. His shop built a large store at Etty and his customers grew until they represented both Pike and Letcher counties.

Ky., as well as a part of Virginia. He was first married to Elizabeth Wright, of Booneville, Ky., who died several years ago. His second wife, formerly Miss Ann Little, of Floyd county, survives him.

He is survived by one son and eight daughters. His son, George F. Johnson, is a merchant at Virgie, Ky.; one daughter, Myra, married M. T. Reynolds, Whitesburg, who is now sheriff of Letcher county. Other daughters are Mrs. Annella Mullins, Hostonia; Mrs. Sarah, Fossil; Childress, of Etty; Mrs. Mary E. Osborn, New Mexico; Mrs. Victoria Trivette, Janney; Mrs. Montana Fleming, Shelbourn; Mrs. Isabelle Fleming, Horton. He is also survived by one brother, Dr. W. H. C. Johnson, Janney, and one sister, Miss Dick Johnson, also of Janney. He is survived by a large number of grandchildren and twenty-two great-grandchildren.

German Never Predominant Although there was a discussion in the Continental congress in regard to the use of the German or English language in the colonies and a motion was made in favor of using the German language, the matter never came to a vote, only in Pennsylvania was the German element more than a small minority at the time. Although the German language persisted in the speech and in the press in Pennsylvania, the English stock outnumbered all the others from 1780 to 1790.

Dray Mrs. Robert A. Mack of Porterville relates the story of a little girl giving her first visit to a farm. Everything was new and novel to her but her interest finally centered in the pigpen where a huge mother sow had temporarily deserted her offspring in order to enjoy a plentiful lunch of corn milk.

But the piglets didn't care so much about it. They wanted some attention themselves. They were very hungry and very thirsty. They lifted up their heads and told the world in impatient tones that they were not satisfied with their mother's milk. "Daddy," called the little "Came quick! All the little piglets they squeak!" Phil's mama leader.

Modern Music Made No Hit With Lord Balfour

In music Lord Balfour took a great delight and was an enthusiastic lover of the old masters, especially of Handel. Modern music had little charm for him.

"I remember how patiently he would sit through dinner at his favorite restaurant in Paris until most of the clients had left and the music of jazz and jazz had ceased," recalls Sir Ian Malcolm, in a personal memoir of Lord Balfour, "and would then ask the chef to play him some eighteenth-century French music."

Then during the five months Lord Balfour remained in Paris for the peace conference his house was the scene of many brilliant musical evenings.

"I remember one evening," says Sir Ian, "when Charles Henck was going to sing, he inquired delicately whether anybody present objected to German songs. The chef (Balfour) promptly replied: 'No, I will take them as part of the repast that they offer us.'" -Kansas City Times.

Ingenious Methods of Making Use of Suction

Some of our readers probably are old enough to remember the first vacuum cleaners and the interest aroused when it was found that a carpet could be cleaned of just without a broom being used. Coal is now hoisted by suction. The pipe used is made of steel and is 12 inches in diameter, the nozzle is a box three feet long and something more than a foot wide at the most important part of the invention is an arrangement to prevent the whole thing getting choked by coal dust.

Royal Friend of Dogs

Queen Victoria's love of animals (a characteristic inherited by all her descendants) is shown in several portions of her recently published letters. In August, 1883, when everybody remembers her with an air of reverence for her mad dogs, she wrote a long memorandum on cruelty to animals which might almost be described as the Magna Carta of man's four-footed prisoners.

Roughness on Oceans

The zone of greatest storm frequency is between latitudes 45 degrees and 55 degrees. The most severe storms are the hurricanes that begin in the tropical portion of the Atlantic. The North Atlantic lies in the path of the great procession of cyclones and anti-cyclones of the middle latitudes, and also in the path of the West Indian hurricanes over its lower latitudes, and counterparts of these atmospheric disturbances in the South Atlantic. The Pacific is subject to sudden and violent storms, especially typhoons, but the frequency of storms is not so great as in the Atlantic.

Log of the Great Western

The original log of the Great Western steamship, which crossed the Atlantic in 1838, and only missed by a few miles being the first steamer to do so, came to light in Bristol. The log was found by an old sailor employed in the Bristol Corporation offices among a lot of rubbish. An expert planned for the name of Lieut. J. Hostin as that of the captain and has pronounced the log as genuine. The first steamship to cross was the Sirius.

Pneumatic Art Gallery

The London-Italian scientific expedition in South Africa found in a rock shelter not far from the Congo harbor a large number of ancient rock engravings which appear to depict human figures in a procession. Professor Dart, of Transvaal university, the discoverer of the Taung skull, a member of the expedition, declares that the discovery is a most important one, the period of its engraving being between four and six thousand years B. C.

ARCHEOLOGISTS CONDUCT SURVEY

One Area Under Exploration Includes Big Sandy Country

Working in four different sections of the state, Mr. W. D. Funkhouser and Professor W. S. Mills, of the University of Kentucky, hope to complete this summer the state archeological survey of Kentucky in which they have been working for several years. They plan to start the present work this week in the Big Sandy country.

The principal objective of the present summer's work will be to locate, explore and describe as thoroughly as possible all such prehistoric remains as mounds, shell mounds, and other objects which are not at present a matter of common knowledge. Many of these sites are of great scientific interest, but are being rapidly destroyed by cultivation and erosion and are being lost to the knowledge of the subject before they are entirely obliterated.

The work to be done during this summer will take Professors Funkhouser and Mills into a large number of counties in Kentucky, those there are centers of population, situated in which have never been recorded. These sites will be surveyed and photographed as part of the data for the survey.

If time permits, trips will be made to the other sections of the state where such an amount of work is known to exist. One of the principal sites in the Big Sandy country, north of the town of Hazard, Kentucky, and about 100 miles from the present site, is a large prehistoric site. It is a large mound of earth, and is situated in a valley. It is a large mound of earth, and is situated in a valley. It is a large mound of earth, and is situated in a valley.

Doctor Funkhouser and Professor Mills will establish camps in these various regions and will remain in the field until the opening of the university in the fall.

AMONG THE COUNTY AGENTS
Warren county farmers shipped 207 cartons of strawberries this week, which averaged at $2.50 per box, or approximately 518,000 shipments are expected to be shipped next year due to the increased acreage. The county agents estimate that 100,000 bushels of raspberries will be shipped from Warren county this year. One hundred and fifty acres of raspberries were planted in Warren county in 1929, and 150 acres of raspberries were planted in 1930.

FRESH AIR CAMPAIGN SEEKS BIDS FOR 150 BEFORE AUGUST 1

With only a few more weeks before school begins again for the boys and girls of Louisville, the Fresh Air Campaign is about to come to a close. More than 100 boys and girls already have been given vacations in private homes and at various camps, but the waiting list on this approximately 150 names of children who have applied for our services. These underprivileged children have no summer vacation except that of the Fresh Air Committee of the Courier-Journal and the Louisville Times offers them through the hospitality of residents of rural communities of Kentucky and Southern Indiana. Unless fresh air is provided, these boys and girls will be compelled to return to school after a long summer spent in the sweltering city streets.
Since it takes about 10 days to examine the children and to fix the homes of the child's parents, applications should be in the hands of the Fresh Air Committee by Saturday, August 1. There are 150 boys and girls anxiously awaiting final notice of the country. They are mostly of children from 10 to 14 years of age.
Whether or not these boys and girls get their much-needed summer vacations depends entirely on the residents of another community. Residents of Louisville are requested generously to fill the call for funds to buy railroad fare and laundry costs for the vacationists, but instructions are needed.
Those wishing to contribute a child for two weeks should write the Floyd County Times, or to the Fresh Air Committee of the Courier-Journal and the Louisville Times, Louisville, Ky.

DISCUSSES CHICKENPOX

Discussing chickenpox, a trouble disease, the department of industrial pathology of the College of Agriculture, University of Kentucky, says that if only a few birds have the disease, they should be killed and buried at once, unless they are very valuable and worth isolation and individual treatment. Give a dose of epsom salts as soon as the disease is noticed. The eyes and exudation on the skin and discolored membranes may be removed and the sore soothed with tincture of iodine or treated with an ointment. Affected eyes should be cleansed and have drops of hot perf. solution of boric acid placed in each eye and in each nostril. The houses should be cleaned daily. The use of disinfectants is not of much value and may cause the disease to become dangerous. Drinking water should be scalded each day. One of the chlorinated antiseptics, such as zoxide or B-K, may be used in the drinking water.

FINAL APPEAL TO THE VOTERS OF FLOYD COUNTY

For the first time in my life I am asking the voters of Floyd County for their support as a candidate for Representative.
The voters of Floyd county have been very kind to the Mays and Hill. We have elected them to various offices for years. Don't you think that other people are entitled to your support as well as we?
I have never been in politics before and have no political sores in my party, and would have the solid support of my party and many Republicans in the November election.
If given the nomination, I will make a hard fight for the ticket, in the fall, and assure you that if I am not nominated I will not bolt my party or its nominees. I hold my party above my personal political ambition and will take defeat like a true Democrat, although I have no idea of being defeated for the nomination. My nomination is practically certain.
I have withheld the many things I hope to do for my people in the Legislature, feeling that it is better to bring them before the public in the November fight. Hoping to receive your support on August 1, I am,
Very truly yours,
Political Adv. OSCAR C. HAYS

CISTERN WATER OFTEN UNSAFE

A third of the 1,200 samples of cistern water analyzed in the public service laboratories at the experiment station of the University of Kentucky last year were found contaminated. There is little excuse for this condition, since in nearly all cases the contamination of cisterns may be easily prevented, says the agricultural expert of the college of agriculture.
Contamination of cistern water may occur in four ways: Lack of proper filtration; lack of tight cover; seepage through leaky side walls; and neglect of regular and thorough cleaning.
By installing a good filter between the downspout and the cistern, protecting the cistern with a tight cover, and making certain that walls and bottom are water-tight, the water can be kept safe in a cistern.

Old Story Disputed

There is an often repeated story credited to the historian, Harvey Rice, that Moses Cleaveland's exploring and surveying party started up the Chagrin river, mistaking it for the Cuyahoga, and that upon discovering the error Cleaveland gave it this name as representative of the state of his feelings.
It appears, however, that this story has little foundation for its origin. Made before the Revolution the river was called the Chagrin. The name is no doubt from an Indian word given as "shagrin" or "shagan" and said to mean "cater." One map issued in 1765 calls it the Elk river.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

CONGRESS CHANGES CAUSED BY DEATHS

Republicans Have Majority Of One With Seven Vacancies

Congressional seats emptied by death have opened a new 88th Congress. The House of Representatives on November 17, 1924, had 100 members. Administration Republicans held the last election with a majority of 100. The last election with a majority of 100 was held in 1924. The last election with a majority of 100 was held in 1924. The last election with a majority of 100 was held in 1924.

Supper for the Eight Proposals

Supper during the eight proposals of the workers and 25 employers everywhere, in addition to their wages, received 50 per cent of the profits of industry and commerce every week after the post-war period. Do you not think our purchasing power would have lasted a good deal longer and we would still be enjoying flourishing conditions?

Wonders of the World

The largest waterfall in the world is the most wonderful in the world. In the Wide World Magazine R. H. Harrison writes: "Half a mile away a great mass of water seemed to flow forth from the sky. It was a river, which, after wandering quietly through the forest of Brazil, had come to the edge of a great plateau. There it girds itself for a grand climax to its career—climax so spectacular that no one who sees can ever forget that this river surpasses all others in the sublime beauty of its passing. Unseen behind one of the wonders of the world. With one mighty charge along a front 10,000 feet in length it hurk over the brink, in super 200 foot cataclysm of foam. Niagara greater height, but for astirity and coloring Iguazu stands alone."

Historic Eastern Spot

Shimoda, on the eastern coast of the Izu peninsula, came into the American spotlight in the middle of the last century, when a treaty was ratified there which first opened Japan to foreign trade.
In 1853, Capt. Matthew Calbraith Perry, United States navy, sailed by the bay of Sagami to Shimoda, went ashore with 300 men and delivered letters from President Fillmore to a representative of the Japanese emperor. In the spring of 1855 the first treaty between America and Japan, providing among other things for the opening of Shimoda to American trade vessels, was proclaimed.
America's first diplomatic representative to Japan resided at Shimoda. It was a tidal wave and earthquake that caused the diplomatic office to be removed from Shimoda to Yokohama in 1859.

Life Sentence

Klimsch obtained a job as printer in a china shop. He thought that the third day he committed a big case. On the day he was a first into the manager's office and was told that half his wages would be deducted each week until the wage was paid.
"How long was the wage worth?" he asked indignantly.
"About 2000," replied the manager.
"Hurray!" shouted Klimsch.
The manager smiled. "Shut up!"
"Well," said Klimsch, "I'm back as if I've got a steady job of work."
