NATIONAL CONVENTION PARADE
The National Convention Parade to be held Tuesday, September 22, in Kentucky is to make a creditable showing in this spectacle. Every member of the department who is in Cleveland should cooperate toward this end by taking part. For some reason or another, many Kentucky Legionnaires are wont to stand on the side lines as spectators. Instead of taking an active part in this event, let's not let this be the rule at Cleveland, thereby embarrassing those who by their active participation are endeavoring to uphold the honor and dignity of the Kentucky Department of our great commonwealth. If everyone marches, then Kentucky will make just as creditable a showing as any other state in the parade.

Tom Hayden, Dept. Adj.

The Curious Corner

By James Taylor Adams
Robert Shanklin Salyer was twice married and both of his wives were the grandmothers of his first wife's grandchildren; and, besides being grandfathers to 12 children's children, he became their step-grandfather, and, his second wife, besides being their own grandmother, became their step-grandmother as well. Hope is how it happened: Robert Shanklin married a Miss Dunsen. They had several children. Later Salyer married Ella Stapleton. They had several children. Stapleton and R. S. Salyer's wife died and the widow Stapleton and widower Salyer married, which explains the strange relation of their offspring.

HIGH SCHOOL STUDENTS TO RECEIVE MORE FUNDS

Louisville, Ky., Sept. 17.—Additional funds to be used in aiding needy high school and college students who have been affected directly by the drought are being allotted to Kentucky schools by the National Youth Administration. Robert K. Salyers, deputy state director, stated today. The increase was announced following receipt from Richard P. Brown, deputy executive director of the NYA, announcing a Kentucky death allotment of $25,014 for the first three months of the 1934-35 school year. The special appropriation, in addition to the regular three months allotment of $18,000, will be distributed among high schools and colleges in Kentucky for aiding students between the ages of 16 and 27 who, without assistance, would not be able to attend school. Participating in the NYA program are 329 independent public school districts, 50 private secondary schools and 32 colleges and junior colleges. Approximately 11,500 part time jobs will be made available to deserving students through these allotments.

The death fund followed a plan of college administrators and school superintendents for adding half student aid funds to help combat the effects of the death on young people of the American Legion. It is hoped that, where possible, every school authority reported the three showed a large increase over last year. Kentucky colleges have promised cooperation in widening the amount of tuition in installments.

While the St. Louis resolution will be far-reaching so far as some men are concerned, it nevertheless will meet with the hearty approval of the majority of Legionnaires.

Students aided are employed on projects, sponsored and operated by the educational institutions they attend. They are engaged in all types of work, including research, clerical and manual.

The NYA educational aid program is administered by 3044 field offices. Applicants for high school assistance are to apply to the superintendent of their school district or to should make application to the president of the institution her plan to attend.

On a warrant sworn out by his own father, Dale Underwood, of Howell Oak, Mich., was arrested for holding a $200 ransom ring from his mother.

Answering a question as to complaints that private industry is unable to induce many relief workers to quit WPA jobs for private jobs President Roosevelt said there was a reason. He told his press conference that when such complaints were run down it was found that private contractors were offering less than fair subsistence wages. Meanwhile "Postmaster General Farley was making a speech in which he said, "the farmers are getting better prices and the workmen more pay."

Miss Katherine Pettit Established Schools and Won Award For Service

The death of Miss Katherine Pettit, winner of the Algeron Sidney Sullivan award for outstanding service to the people of Kentucky, was mourned Friday throughout the mountains by friends and former pupils of the nationally known educator.

Member of the Hinham and Pleasant Settlement Schools, Miss Pettit died Thursday at the home of her sister, Mrs. S. Huggins Lewis, in Tate's Creek picnic, near Lexington.

Miss Pettit began her work in 1905, going each summer for the next four years to Hazard with traveling libraries of the State Women's Christian Temperance Union and the State Federation of Women.

The Hinham Settlement school combined academic, social and hospital work with industries enabling pupils to work their way through school. In 1913 Miss Pettit left Miss Stone in charge and started a similar school at Pleasant Mountain in Highland county.

Miss Pettit, an ardent temperance advocate, was honored with the Sullivan medal at the University of Kentucky commencement in 1932. She was a descendant of John Bradford, who established at Lexington the first newspaper published west of the Allegheny mountains.

Surviving also is another sister, Mrs. Walter O. Bullock, Lexington—Hazard Road.

LACKEY

Miss Anna Lee Daniels will leave this week for New York City with her aunt, Miss Wanda Fugate, to visit there and to take nurse's training. Anna Lee and Wanda are plan going to spend a year or 1 1/2 in Europe.

Three Lackey graduates, Misses Margaret Pezarski, Vera Hall and Mr. Willard Raliff left Friday, September 11, to enter Brown College. Miss Hall begins her sophomore year at Berea this semester. Miss Pezarski and Mr. Hall enter as freshmen.

Eat a Sandwich at 4
LOOK at that muscle! Nothing beats a 4 o'clock sandwich and a glass of milk to help build husky, healthy bodies. . . and sandwiches are so easy to make. All you need is a loaf of bread with butter, and cold meat, cheese, peanut butter, jams, or other spreads. Bread supplies needed food-energy. With a glass of milk, bread helps children do their best work in school. Let your children eat a 4 o'clock lunch—and guard against afternoon fatigue yourself by joining them in eating a sandwich with a glass of milk at 4.
It is thrifty to serve bread, rolls and other baked wheat flour products of all kinds, because you get so much for your money.

SIDE SADDLES—A manuscript dating back more than a hundred years as riding on a side into my class in great glee; she had had, while the rather, mane seen, while visiting in a neighbor. Good, Wife of Bath rode in manish town, a well-dressed, middle-aged woman ride into town on a side saddle, and most other side-saddle to do her Saturday shopping, have practically ceased to be, and, "trading" she might have Maidbury modesty now manures to called it. People forget to look at the mainline itself—over, without the new cars in their owners to see side saddle. Saddles are seldom used this woman, who seemed to have stepped for pleasure, and riding stepped, or ridden, out of a story-habits, these days are decidedly book. Now some of us might reveal shocking as compared with the our ages if we told how many side-modest riding skirts of a generation saddles we have known, and some ages. Imagine some dashing young few of us, could tell of going to camp Tady of our time, attired in the very meeting or other places with young latest cut of a manish suit, still ladies who rode gracefully on side clinging to the lodge of her former saddle and wore very proper riding-helpplessness, a side saddle! And skirts, too. On a pole near the old imagine her having her having to be still-block at our country church, an upheld on and off her steed! Other member of my family continued. An old lady I once knew, still ill, riding skirts on a single Sunday time, and not very old used to shock morning, and it was not a special our staid town by riding up and occasion, either.

shown our streets, even on county-side saddles, above every other characteristic they may have had, and with "divided" skirts, were proper. They betokened help. Tragic things were predicted of her, and business and quaintness. I can all-few of which seem to have yet come most imagine their having had a top of a woman what she, who is great increase in popularity during which modern, would say if she the origin of "modern" riding, when, so who is, not wholly modern, would say many of our habits acquired so much if she were to see the roots of such respectability. How far back they are digged, and even old women, of the I do not know; Chancery's gun, who some town-riding on the roads and above all else a lady of good man, dressed in the most modern riding next is pictured in the illustrated above.

The WEEKLY CONSTITUTIONAL
 BY MAX BERNS

When Two Laws Clash

What happens when one law conflicts with another? Under our Constitution there can be no conflict between Congress and the Courts, but only between different laws. The two harmonize or conflict. If they conflict the Court simply so states—that is declares the inferior law "unconstitutional."

The rule is simple and the process is simple. The Federal Constitution (the "supreme law");
 II Federal Law passed by Congress;
 III State Constitution;
 IV State Statutes passed by state Legislatures.

State laws (III or IV) are inferior to Federal laws (I) and a law passed by Congress (II) is inferior to the Constitution (I).

Obviously, a citizen cannot have two laws that conflict with each other, because if he obeys one he disobeys the other. Therefore the inferior law necessarily must give way to the superior law. In such cases, "we the people" specify in our Constitution what the Supreme Court shall set for us and decide. But the Court does not decide whether a law is constitutional; it merely lays the inferior law aside since the Constitution is the supreme law and decides that the two harmonize or conflict.

When one law conflicts with another, the inferior law necessarily must give way to the superior law.

Without such a procedure, inferior laws would take precedence over superior laws and ultimately nullify our Constitution, which "we the people" specify is the "supreme law."

SUGGEST CARE IN BALANCING DIETS

There are certain foods which the body needs, and there should be some of each of these in each day's diet. The "4-H Food Manual," published by the U. S. Department of Agriculture, suggests the following groups should be eaten each day:

Cereals: Bread, macaroni, rice, oatmeal and other breakfast foods.

Fats: Butter, cream, olive oil.

Vegetables and fruits: Two of each every day, dried beans and potatoes.

Protein foods: Meat, eggs, cheese, fish, dried beans and peas.

Sweets: Sugar, syrups and honey.

A diet which neglects these necessities for the day when making out the menu, rather than to consider each meal separately. It is the adequate diet for the whole day which counts.

Let milk play an important part in all meals. A quart a day for children and at least a pint for adults are the amounts needed for health. It may not be possible to have all the necessary foods in one meal, but they should be supplied in the course of three meals a day. It is not a matter of how much you eat, but of what you eat.

The manual says that the diet should be such that there is not too much starch and not too much fat, and a good proportion of all.

adequate diet also supplies the minerals and vitamins needed for health.

The manual says that the diet should be such that there is not too much starch and not too much fat, and a good proportion of all.

Avocados are available almost the year round, but their principal season is from November to May. They are high in energy producing food, body building elements. They contain vitamins A, B, C, D, E and F. Only the fully ripened fruit should be selected for immediate use. Avocados are ready for use when the flesh has softened so that the fruit yields to the gentle pressure of the palm hand. Many delicious dishes may be created by the modern cook by using avocados.

Avocado and Grapefruit Salad
 Peel three avocados. Wash the sections of their side on each plate. Between the sections place shrimp or crab meat or lobster. Serve with hearts of lettuce and mayonnaise.

New Mexico Avocado Salad
 1 cup mashed avocado.
 1-4 cup canned tomato pulp free from juice.
 1-8 teaspoon onion juice.
 12 teaspoon chili powder.
 Salt.
 Mix the ingredients together. Chill. Serve on crisp cold leaves of romaine, garnished with a small dish of mayonnaise.

Avocados With Lime Juice
 1-2 teaspoon salt.
 1-2 cups water.
 1-2 cups sugar.
 1-2 cup lime juice.
 Few grains salt.
 1 egg white.
 1 green clove.
 Beat egg white in cold water five minutes. Make a syrup by boiling the water and sugar together. Cut the lime juice and turn into refrigerator tray. When partly frozen turn out into a bowl, beat with egg beater and add mildly beaten egg white. Add enough syrup to give a delicate green. Chill. Avocados and cut in halves. Fill with lime juice.

Avocado Sandwich
 Choose avocados that are well-ripened and peel thinly. Wash the meat thoroughly. To each avocado add 1-4 teaspoon of salt and 1 teaspoon of lemon juice. Spread on these crackers, sprinkle with paprika.

Avocado and Orange Salad
 Cut one peeled avocado in slices. Peel three oranges and remove sections from membranes. Arrange alternate slices of avocado and orange on lettuce. Serve with French dressing made with lime juice instead of vinegar.

Avocado and Grapefruit Salad
 1-2 cup mayonnaise.
 3 tablespoons cream, whipped.
 2 avocados.
 2 cups grapefruit sections.
 Endive.
 Green pepper.
 French dressing.
 Add the mayonnaise into the whipped cream until thoroughly blended. Peel the avocados and cut each portion of all. Fill the center of the in the refrigerator for 30 minutes. Pickle the avocado and 2 strips of pickled beef and a strip of parsley on the side of the plate.

Tomato and Avocado Cocktail
 Four 2 1/2 cups chilled tomato juice slowly into 3-4 cup chilled grapefruit juice. Mix the mixture vigorously. Add 1-2 teaspoon salt, 3-4 cup chopped ice and 1-4 of an avocado, cut in bits. Set in the refrigerator to ripen.

SYNOPSIS

Sheep Cat, desert town of the Southwest, is celebrating the fourth of July. Jane Van Denison, beautiful daughter of Gus Van Denison, hotel owner of Gunlock ranch, has arrived from the East on a vacation. In company with Doctor Carney, local doctor, and her friend the Foreman, Harry Sawyer, she is on the way back to the ranch. A lake horse race at Gunlock is the main event. Jane is the favorite. Her father, Dave McCrossen, foreman of the ranch, is a rival of Harry Sawyer. He enters his own horse, a handsome bay named "The Grandee," in the race. McCrossen is favored to win, and he beats the other horses in a close race. McCrossen and the owner, Harry Sawyer, are in the various events. Denison then drops a full hit, he picks up the Grandee. The race is won by Denison. McCrossen returns to the ranch. Sawyer is a rival of Jane's father. McCrossen is a rival of Harry Sawyer. McCrossen is a rival of Harry Sawyer. McCrossen is a rival of Harry Sawyer.

CHAPTER VI—Continued

Half a dozen cowboys had edged up to listen to the controversy. Jane whirled around to them. "Boys, she spoke the lowest but very determined tones. "Take me over to the foreman from Dave McCrossen. He's no longer foreman here."

Reeling off her words rapidly and frantically, Jane explained the situation to her growing circle of listeners. "Now I have discharged McCrossen," she said in conclusion, "and I want all of your yams were are loyal to me to ride with me over to the fire line on the Denison ranch, and see what we can do to save his building. There are some of you who will go, line up here with us."

One of the boys, Bull Page, stepped promptly to Jane's side. "Before we reached it, four more were on their way. Barney Hebbston and a crowd stood still. It meant that they sided with the foreman."

"Yes, Bull," she added snappily, "hurry up as many of the other boys as you can find and let's get going."

Within a few minutes, with the ponies dancing and the men shouting, a party of ten headed south for the Denison ranch.

Not until they reached the last crest of the hills separating the two ranches and Jane looked over on the lowlands of the smaller ranch, did she catch her breath in sudden fear. In the distance she saw a formidable wall of smoke billowing into the sky above the timber along the border of the reservation.

In the nearer distance lay Denison's buildings. Between the two points a second fire burned, curling like a great scimitar along the cut-over lands surrounding the ranch.

...doctor, "said that where they were
...needed, pointed and started them
...to their work and turned to Jane.

"The boys, including Jane's counting
...great, gasped off with such shouting
...and yelling. Conspicuous among them
...was the evanescer, Panama. His
...horse, straight black hair dancing
...up and down under his pompadour, and
...with him rode his neophrate, the bald
...and profane Jake Spots.

"Oh, Bill!" exclaimed Jane, as Deni-
...son rode up. "I'm so sorry."
...He said in a dry, cracked voice,
... "Don't think about the small things,
... Bill. You should have seen long ago
... I brought all the men I could."

"McCrossen refused to come!"
... "He was kind of mean—so I came
... myself—I hope I'll do for a substitute
... his answering smile was joyful. It
... was too good of you to come, Jane.
... But now I've got to ride right out
... and see if I can't get you into the cabin
... and rest up before you ride back."

"Hide back? Yes, but who's going to ... look for all these men? I'm going
... back to get things and bring them
... in the chuck wagon and take posses-
... sion here."

Noon passed before Jane got back to
... Denison's and installed herself with
... Quong in the kitchen.
... One man, severely burned, came in
... from the front towards dark. Carpy
... could not be reached till morning.
... Jane handed the man's arms and fed
... him. Denison rode in late, smoked
... and scolded anew, but tireless.

"Bill," she asked, sitting down op-
... posite him, "tell me honestly: are you
... holding it?"
... "Yes, to tell the truth, I don't
... know. I think we are—
... sometimes it looks as if in a forest
... fire, every hour must tell its own
... tale."

CHAPTER VII
...Dr. Carpy walked hurriedly to the ... edge of the woods where the men gath-
... ered closely around him.

"Best thing to do to take off that
... old bunkhouse door, Bill," said Carpy,
... "We can lay him on that and carry him
... over here to the shed."

They did not ride fast. There was ... so much to talk over. Both were
... grave. Denison knew better than Jane
... how grave the danger was both to him-
... self and to her. But he had his hour
... with the woman he loved, and for that
... hour what else in the world mattered?

"Oh, Bill," protested Jane, faintly,
... sick at heart with the happiness of
... listening to his words. "Don't! You
... mustn't say such nonsense. I won't
... leave you. I'm nothing but a girl,
... and you're making me a goddess
... or a fairy—stop such nonsense. Not
... for my money, Bill Denison. If you
... keep on, I'll break out crying. Here's
... the house, anyway. Good night. I'll
... be over in the morning at daylight."

"This well of me, Bill. I always sail
... of you."

Every available man was out on the
... front lines when Jane reached the ... threatened ranch at dawn. Quong
... kept the little stove in the ... kitchen hot, and Jane, busy about the
... cabin and looking after the boy burned
... the day before, did not realize how fast
... the morning was going, until Carpy ar-
... rived from town to dress the lad's
... burn. He greeted Jane and, with her
... help, went to work on his patient.

Afterward he met down beside Jane
... on the bench outside the door.
... "So," said he, "you're playing good
... Samaritan. How are you holding out
... at Gunlock?"
... "All right; the danger is all over
... this way. If we can hold the fire over
... here, it's not likely to bother us. Oh,

"...doctor," said Jane, springing to
... her feet, "what does that mean?"
... "Riding out of the woods south of the
... ranch today, the men of the
... slowly advancing. Doctor Carpy's
... were more practical. "Some one hurt,"
... he said. "Jane was in a flutter."
... "Keep our administration Carpy at
... the door. "We'll soon know what it's
... all about."

"Hitting between two men, supporting
... him on his pony, a third man riding
... behind the trio, Carpy saw the injured
... man collapse on a coal-sack and heard
... him suppress an occasional groan.
... Carpy walked forward to greet the ... party. "Well, boys," he asked, "who
... is it this time?"

Jim Laramie answered. "Why, doc,
... it's Jake Spots. There's been a bad
... accident. The man's name got cut off
... up by the pass. Stayed too long.
... I'm glad you're here, doc; he's hurt
... pretty bad, but he'll live."

"No!" screamed Spots, so blackened
... and burned as to be unrecognizable,
... and with the pain, "It ain't me, doc;
... it's Panama! I ain't hurt, and I ain't
... dead. I'm here, I tell you, go back!"

Denison has gone to get him, doc,"
... explained Laramie. "The man's name
... you only make your leg worse. It's
... his leg, doc."

Carpy said that nothing but a bluff
... would make the man stand. He ... turned to the men standing by him.
... "Right now, you fellows, get ... out of here and hunt for Panama. And
... don't show us here. I'll get you
... if I see you."

Repeal Of Entire Omnibus Bill Is Demanded By Merchants

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE CALLS ON GOVERNOR TO ACT

The Chamber of Commerce of Campbell county demands that Governor A. B. Chandler call a special session of the Kentucky legislature to repeal the omnibus tax law in its entirety. It was learned Thursday.

The resolution declares that this twenty per cent sales tax is unjust, oppressive and burdensome to such business in a "farm" Kentucky. According to the resolution, dealers in the products affected have been "robbed" and have been financially ruined.

The demand was made in a resolution adopted by the Chamber of Commerce of Campbell county at a special session Thursday. The resolution was passed by a vote of 10 to 2.

The resolution is being circulated in the county and is being signed by the Chamber of Commerce of Campbell county. It is the first concerted attack on the entire omnibus bill, although there have been attacks on the ice cream tax and cosmetics tax, both in the courts and by resolution calling for repeal of these taxes.

TEXT OF RESOLUTION:

"Whereas, there was passed at the legislative session of the Kentucky Legislature, and approved by the Governor, House Bill No. 50, known as the Omnibus Sales Tax Bill, which levies a 20 per cent tax on many products sold in the state, and which are necessary to the health and happiness, and
"Whereas, enforcement of the provisions of this act in Campbell county has increased the lead...

WELL-KNOWN PIKE CITIZEN SUCCUMBS

John B. Leslie, one of pike county's oldest and best citizens, died at his home on Johns Creek Saturday, September 12, at the age of 78 years, a victim of heart failure. Mrs. Leslie is survived by his wife, Mrs. Elizabeth Love Leslie, and five children, two boys and three girls: Mrs. Claude Rankins of Danbury; Mrs. Ora Scott of Mayflower, Ky.; Ingram Leslie, of Mossy Bottom; Mrs. Ruth Ford, of Mossy Bottom; Charlie Leslie, of Pikeville; and one daughter, Robert Leslie, of Coal Run, Ky.; three sisters, Mrs. Elizabeth Reynolds of Ashland, Ky.; Mrs. Mrs. L. Hatcher, of Ashland; Mrs. Anna Love, of Mossy Bottom. Twenty-five grandchildren and 20 great-grandchildren also survive.

Funeral rites were conducted from the old Leslie home on the Caney Fork of Johns Creek Monday-Sept. 14, at 2 p. m. by Rev. James Strain, and burial was made in the family cemetery.

NEW BUILDINGS FOR KENTUCKY STUDENTS

When the students of Kentucky returned to school this month some 55,000 attended classes in new and modern classrooms that have been completed with the aid of the Public Works Administration in cooperation with the state, counties, municipalities, and board of education throughout the state. An additional 10,000 will be accommodated during the current school year when twelve new major construction projects made available, was announced by Dr. George H. Sager, state director of the Public Works Administration.

There is Always a Good Market for LIONS

If raising lions for the market down in South Florida isn't putting the climate to work for you, then what is? A look at a map of the world will show that the lower part of the Alligator State is "on a line" with northern Africa where some of the world's largest and fiercest lions roam about in the wild desert country of the Sahara. And so down in southern Florida two enterprising farmers have taken up lion farming!

The lion raisers (fanciers) are J. H. McKillop, farm manager, and P. M. Hutton, a partner in the venture. Mr. McKillop spends most of his time on the farm—sleeps within thirty feet of some of the largest and fiercest beasts, in fact. The McKillop-Hutton lion farm is located two miles north from Fort Lauderdale, in Broward County, right on the highway into Miami, so thousands of tourists stop each year to see the lion farm in operation. The huge cats don't seem to mind the attention. The lionesses go right on raising huge families of cubs, while the lions strut majestically up and down their enclosures, roaring their defiance to all man-kind.

"Yes, we raise lions for the market. There is always a good market for lions. Zoological gardens, circuses, owners of animal shows, and others, buy them for good prices. Right now we are unable to supply ten orders for youngsters. And if, in addition to our regular business of lion-farming, the public insists upon being let in to look at our operations, isn't it a good idea to charge them a few dimes a head? Well, we do that and we find that both raising lions and letting tourists pay you to see lions raised are profitable!" is the way J. H. McKillop explained his novel venture.

In Natural Surroundings

The Fort Lauderdale, Florida lion farm is an imposing looking place. There is a high wall around the outside and as one enters, it becomes evident that the lions are quartered in several old rock quarry pits. The great gaping holes in the earth (rather in the rock) make the finest quarters imaginable for lions. Even the largest and strongest of the King of Beasts can't leap up over the side of these pits. And pools of beautiful, clear water in the lowest parts of the quarry-holes, add much to the beauty of the farm. Mr. McKillop has built a huge, artificial waterfall which comes tumbling down over a rocky bed between the largest of the old quarries. Huge lions strut about below—they are not caged—and onlookers are told that some of the scenery is typical of the African veldt.

"Yes, we keep our lionesses working. Lions are just big cats. They have lots of kittens, frequently, or rather one should say cubs!

"It takes only 120 days for lion cubs to come into the world. There are from one to three cubs, as a rule, but mostly we have twins. Because we take the youngsters away from their mothers at two months after they're born, you can see we average nearly two litters per year to the lioness. The lions do their part!" Mr. McKillop explained while conducting the STATE FARMER reporter about the premises.

Some distance from the imposing looking entrance and "African veldt" lion caves in the rock, the lion farmers have a "lion house" which is just a wooden building, full of steel cages, where they keep the "main supply" of lions while additional quarters are being prepared out in the quarry pits.

Mussolini From Ethiopia

At present only a few lions are roaming around in the open, so to speak, down in the rock. The others are still quartered in cages in the lion house.

Natural surroundings are a factor of the Florida lion farm.

"Yes, that's Mussolini roaring," Mr. McKillop said, as we entered the place. "Mussolini is a lion from Ethiopia. He was captured alive there and has always resented it. He is the meanest, fiercest brute I've ever seen and a killer!"

Fortunately it was feeding time. Negroes entered with huge chunks of beef. All the lions in the house, nearly a dozen of them, began roaring at once. What a racket! The 10-pound slabs of raw beef were tossed to the front of the cages and the lions pulled their rations through the bars.

"We have 21 lions now on the place. We feed them 200 pounds of beef a day—six days a week. On the seventh they are given medicines, good for their inwards. The small range cattle of South-Florida are cheap and often a carcass won't weigh more than 200 pounds. But the beef makes fine lion food," Mr. McKillop explained.

There were dozens of people in the lion house watching the lions eat; hearing their roaring. When the "roasts" were handed out the huge cats became silent and fell to eating—all but Mussolini. This huge, dark-maned lion, Mussolini, held his portion of beef between his paws and roared fiercely at the humans just out of his reach. Every few moments with a roar he would charge toward the front of the cage. Mussolini acted much as a cross dog acts with a bone. After "showing off" for fifteen minutes this big lion finally ate his dinner.

Guard-rail Protects Spectators

There is a guard-rail between the place where onlookers stand and the cages. On this rail are signs, reading:

"Mussolini," with Cole Bros. Circus, is valued at $5,000 by Clyde Beatty.

his unusual livestock enterprise.

"Some days we've had as many as 1,500 people visiting our place. This would be on Sunday in the winter. But from 200 to 600 daily attendance is common." Adults are charged 35c each, children less. It looks like no matter how well Mr. McKillop's lionesses produce cubs—that he'll make money anyway!

Sleeps Under Waterfall

Mr. McKillop pointed to the "lucky" lions which roared around in the lion pits, near at hand. Then he pointed to the artificial waterfall.

"I sleep under the waterfall—in a little apartment we've built there at the top of the stairs. The lions wake me up nearly every night when they get to roaring. That's part of lion farming," he observed.

David Kirkbride, the keeper, is one of the most experienced lion men in the business. He was brought to Fort Lauderdale by Mr. McKillop to give the lions expert care.

The Fort Lauderdale lions are as neat and clean as an old maid's pet Persian cat. They are, actually, in the pink of condition. Cages are kept clean and sanitary. And of course those lions who are fortunate enough to have quarters in the "veldt" section of the farm are living almost as they would live in Africa. In time Mr. McKillop expects to have all of his beasts living naturally, that way.

Other interesting lions in the house include Princess, a sleek lioness, quartered next to Mussolini. She pays no attention whatever to his growlings and fierce display. Nell, a huge fat lioness, has had 21 cubs already and soon will have more. Walter, a brother of the lion who appears in the movies to introduce films made by a motion picture producer, is just as big as Mussolini, but he is peaceful, gentle and quiet.

Henry Pringle, a colored lion attendant, says "all de lions are gentle, boss." But Manager McKillop says "Henry" is the only negro they ever had who didn't arouse the lions to a fury—the moment the darkey was spotted! Seems the big cats always have disliked negroes, Henry excepted.

Back in the "veldt" country, beside the waterfall, and seated under a coconut palm tree, Mr. McKillop disclosed that he had to pay as much as $700 to $800 a piece for some of his lions, at the start. He said most of his youngsters sell for $200 to $400 each, depending upon their appearance. He expects the lion farm to pay—both from the standpoint of producing lions and because thousands of people pay him to see

There was the granddaddy of all droughts in Middle and East Tennessee the first part of the Summer, a hangover from Spring. Note the knee-high corn as late as July 1, in foreground, and burned out pasture.

A SERIES of downpours giving Tennessee two and a half inches of rain early in July, and good rains in Kentucky in the Blue Grass Region and over much of the state the first week in August did much to restore optimism, and to insure in many sections of both states fair crops with total cash return, due to higher prices, probably equating, possibly bettering, last year.

While 70 counties in Kentucky are on the official drought list, the August rains did much to improve pasture, corn and tobacco. In the extreme western part of the state the corn crop is estimated at normal, but in the rest of the state it will run about 60 per cent.

The Kentucky tobacco crop will average about 65 per cent of normal but higher prices will offset to an extent the short crop. Burley is expected to bring 25 cents or better. Last year it averaged 20 cents.

Soil Conservation and AAA payments in Kentucky will total around $13,000,000. Much sudan grass, soybeans and cowpeas, and other hay and pasture crops will be sown this fall and there will be large seedings of rye and wheat for fall pasture.

In Tennessee, the heavy rains early in July were followed by a short dry spell which gave farmers an immediate chance to replant crops destroyed by the early spring drought. Tennesseans were further encouraged by the announcement from the Department of Agriculture in Washington that farmers cooperating in the 1936 Soil Conservation Program could plant feed, forage and food crops above their original basis and not lose their soil-building payments.

While the crop estimate for Tennessee made on June 1, 1936, was the most pessimistic on record, by the third week of July with more inches of rainfall recorded, it was difficult to remember how the brown, sun parched fields had looked six weeks earlier.

Tennessee harvested 4,532,000 bushels of wheat this year, more than the 1935 crop. Corn will be 2,500,000 bushels under 1935. Tobacco suffered heavily. It is believed that the 1936 yield will be approximately seventy million pounds, almost 20 million under the 1935 crop. The oat crop is the lowest on record.

The late crop of potatoes put out early in July in Tennessee, is expected to pay a handsome dividend. While the hay crop will be considerably under 1935 should favorable weather last for 10 days beyond the average frost line of October, there would be extra cuttings and a consequent gain in tonnage, but August expectations were for a total crop of around 900,000 tons.

One cash crop that escaped serious damage in Tennessee despite the late winter, prolonged cold weather, and the summer drought was cotton. Excluding an early killing frost, experts estimate 400,000 bales.

In spite of the optimism created by July and August rains drought took a definite toll from Kentucky and Tennessee farmers. Truck gardeners had almost a total loss in roasting ears for early market. Feed prices advanced sharply, affecting both dairymen, feeders and poultry producers, and all crops were injured to greater or less degree. How far increased prices will offset yield losses remains to be seen.

By A Staff Writer

The animal husbandry and crop division of the Tennessee extension service advised the planting of forage crops to offset increased costs of feed. In Tennessee, the college advises the time limit for seeding crops as follows:

Alfalfa and Red clover up to September 15.
Rye from August 20 to November 1.

Rye grass, September 1 to October 15.
Barley, September 1 to October 15.
Wheat may be sown in October.
Winter oats, September.

"If Tennessee valley farms were operated by westerners accustomed to irrigation, there would be streams of water flowing through the fields and pastures, and the farmer who was foresighted enough to be prepared to furnish his own rain would be reaping a good harvest of high priced crops."

This is the statement of M. M. Johns, U. T. extension specialist in rural electrification, who holds that many farms with lowlands adjoining streams, can flourish despite such a drought as damaged Tennessee and the rest of the southern states, excepting not more than three, this year.

Now Mr. Johns does not advocate irrigation, such as is practiced in the west. Other agricultural specialists know that soil types are different from the irrigation area of the west, that rolling and hillside land, most of it with rock just underground, would never repay any investment in irrigation, let alone the problem of perverting wash.

"But there are low, flat fields, with deep soil that can be supplied water from rivers, small streams, ponds, springs or wells, according to Mr. Johns. "It is not necessary to go to the west coast to find examples of profitable irrigation," Mr. Johns says. "There are a number of irrigation plants in Virginia, pumping water on truck crops and apple orchards, which have paid for themselves out of the profits of one or two years operations. There is scarcely any section of the country where rainfall is so evenly distributed that supplemental irrigation would not be profitable on certain types of crops."

"Intensive crops, such as vegetables and fruits, will frequently pay good returns on a reasonably large investment in an irrigation sprinkling or pumping system. At the Mississippi experiment station good results have been obtained from a small stream. Even pastures have shown unexpected profits from the application of irrigation water in such semi-humid areas as the western part of Oregon.

"In this section of the country there are many locations where the application of irrigation water would mean merely the placing of a temporary dam across a creek and the plowing of ditches to conduct the water to the fields. Farmers in the hilly section of Union county, Georgia, have taken advantage of this opportunity during the drought. A dozen or more farmers diverted water from small streams and applied it to their gardens and potato patches with the expenditure of a few days' labor.

"If large quantities of water are available, distribution may be made over the surface by flooding. Row crops usually are irrigated by flowing the water in between the rows. These furrows must have a slight grade, which means that they should be laid out carefully to permit the water to flow, and at the same time to prevent washing.

"It is too late to plan for irrigation after crops are suffering for moisture, unless the water is at hand and easy to supply. The time to think about next year's irrigation and do some planning for it is right now, when the drought is fresh in mind."

"In order to get the best results from irrigation one must study how to apply the water effectively, how to prepare and lay out the land and ditches, and what type of pumping equipment to select to do the job most economically.

Pastures gain back in late Summer.

Duck Season's Opening

A Tennessee River duck hunter. Note the green cane blind on the bow of the boat.

By DICK WOOD

The opening of the duck shooting season is a major event in the lives of over a million sportsmen. Ducks are widely distributed and popular game with all shotgun users.

Migrating ducks often light and tarry for days on ponds, sloughs and creeks, providing sport and duck dinners alike for the farmer lad with his single barrel "Loog Tom", and the crank sportsman with his automatic.

Jump shooting on rivers requires considerable skill and provides more real sport than deer hunting. The usual procedure is to engage a local riverman to paddle his skiff on a float down river.

Thrills Around Bend

The start should be made on a considerable "tide" (freshet) which keeps the ducks near the banks, and the colder, the morning, the better. The hunter invariably follows the convex bank, and the skilled boatman keeps the craft hugging drooping foliage, and paddles quietly from the stern. One or two shooters sit in the bow and bang away at ducks along the banks, within range.

This sort of hunting is far more enjoyable and sportsmanlike than sitting in a cold blind, firing into the occasional flock that drifts into a bunch of decoys.

The river duck hunter anticipates thrilling action around every bend. When the ducks come out or rise perpendicularly, skill is required to hit them from a moving boat. Sometimes a small bunch of ducks will be signed far down the bank and a long stalk by boat begins. If a straggler or brace of mallards are kicked up on the way down, the hunter has to make a hasty decision on taking the bird in hand or trying for the two in the bush. It usually pays to pass up no fair shots. Sometimes ducks are not frightened by shooting beyond half a mile.

Conservation Problem

It is illegal to use an automatic shotgun of more than three shots. Since wild ducks were diminishing rapidly, something had to be done by the conservationists. I contend it is not the gun, but the man back of it, who hogs the game. My idea would be to restrict hunters in areas where ducks are abundant, such as on the marshes of Maryland, to single shot arms; the river duck hunter will seldom kill the legal limit with the five shot automatic, and the extra shots do save a lot of cripples.

The 12 gauge is almost universally accepted as the best duck bore, but the 20 makes clean kills at slightly shorter ranges and is a more sportsmanlike gun where ducks are abundant. If using a single barrel, I prefer a 30-inch full choke. If a double barrel, 28-inch, right modified, left full choke. None but the best grade duck loads should be used.

JEST A-WHITTLIN' AN' A-THINKIN' BY PETE GETTYS

Maybe there is and maybe there ain't somethin' that God made that's prettier 'n a Jersey heifer—but whatever it is, I ain't never saw it—and evidently there's some who don't share in this opinion for out in Kansas they had a "Beauty Bovine Contest"—open to all the breeds and not judged on the regular points—any cow—scrub or purebred, with sufficient "it" could enter the race, and the pickin' of winners was made strictly on the grounds of charm and beauty—artificial beauty aids, of course, were allowed, an' beauty shops did a landoffice business. Rouge, lipstick an' mascara were freely painted on, hoofs were varnished an' eyebrows penciled an' curled, bovine coiffures were baked an' frizzed into permanents that'll be the envy of the barn lot for many months." But the judges selected a registered Holstein as "Miss Bovine America," an' left out the Jersey queens.

about say that the farmer ain't progressive—that he's operating small producing units wastefully, while industry, puttin' together the efforts of thousands of workers under a single roof, has swept by him and left him hopelessly in the lurch.

The man who believes these things is no closer to the farmer than the caricatures in the funny papers would make him. Those who have worked with the American farmer know that he has set a new record in the history of man in contact with the soil by the quickness and intelligence with which he has assimilated the results of invention an' scientific research, an' made the changes in his daily practice which new appliances and new methods indicated.

Bookkeeping on the farm of course ain't the exact science it is in case of many other commercial businesses—but there are some reliable cross section statistics of our country's successful farming—

But these are gross incomes—still they ain't the total gross, an' every radish pulled, every quart of milk used by the family an' its labor, every chicken an' hog butchered an' every day of housing enjoyed must be added to make a true gross.

Agriculture's more than a profession for makin' a living. It's the life of families workin' at it. There's no other vocation which requires the entire family as does the business of farming. Men who make their livin'—farmin' have never prospered to the same degree that some men in other trades and professions have, even with the same or even more capital invested an' the same muscle and brains applied to their business, an' it's doubtful if they ever will.

The farmer can't control the weather, the rain, insects, disease an' other factors entering into the cost of production an' the price at which the product is sold, with the same degree of accuracy as the man runnin' a factory. However, for one that likes farmin' there's other compensations. There's an independence an' down right pleasure in workin' in the open an' with growin' things that only people thoroughly familiar with the farmin' business can understand.

This Summer there was a moon-vine growing on a stump in our side yard. We sat out on the porch about dark an' looked at the buds and waited for 'em to open. As long as we watched, they didn't seem to stir, but take our eyes away for a few minutes, an' lo an' behold! there they were in full bloom just a smilin' up at you.

"Listen, Honey"—said the old Black Manumy—"Look over yonder, in 'de cawn-fiel'. See dem tall stalks move an' quiver?" Yet there's nary a fiel'-hand near 'em. Hear dem big blades rustle? Yet ain't ary breath of wind to stir 'em from their sleep. Some one what comes to see sure, that our corn don't blight, that sun don't parch, nor rain don't mildew. Somebody is makin' sure that his children have corn for the winter, corn an' to spare!"

FOR ALL NIGHT EVERY NIGHT SOMEONE WALKS IN THE CORN.

Yes, some one walks in the corn—some unben power, makes those moonvines open.

Like the old feller who jumped a ten-rail fence—he said he had to 'cause a bear was after him. A lot of us fellers have done a lot of things durin' the last few years that we thought we couldn't. "Cause we had to—the old she-bear depression was crowdin' us." Now along comes the Dept. of Agriculture an' says when sufficient pressure of hunger an' heat is put on some species of grasshoppers, an' they can't get around fast enough a-hoppin', they can change into fliers so they can get places quicker an' the vowing turkeys can't catch 'em. Grown at high temperatures, an' deprived of choice green food, grasshoppers in test cages grew longer wings, got slimmer, an' took on brighter colors.

Yes sir—hard times'll evolve a lot of things—an' make necessity the mother of invention with a vengeance.

When two fellers, both apparently about equally mentally equipped, an' one seems to get along better than the other, a reason's sure to crop out sooner or later. Over in the adjoining county there's a number of good farms and good farmers—all seemin' to get along pretty good—until the drought came this Spring an' their hay crops an' pastures dried up, an' they had to go to town for hay—except one—"just like a lot of other insurance I carry, I always have an extra silo to fall back on that carries me through, an' it has paid for itself many times over this Spring."

The feller who can't afford fire insurance is the one who can't afford to be without it, an' it's the feller who thinks he can't afford an extra silo that needs it worst.

"Neighbor, this shorely must be God's country around here—walnut an' hickory nuts an' chinky pins an' wild grapes and chestnuts, and a whole wagon-load of stuff that just growed. Now, if a feller just had a yaller hound dog that'd tree ginseng, an' shary nosed razor-back hog to root it up—wouldn't he be fixed?"

It's mighty aggrayarizing to hear some feller who doesn't know what he's talkin'

FRANK FARMER

Says ---By A. B. Bryan

The worst of all bad eggs is the non-laying hen.

The road through the one-crop cotton farm leads to the poor house.

Selection is the solution of successful selling.

Splitting farm yields with bugs and plant diseases is mighty poor business.

Home-grown feeds fed to home-grown livestock make home-grown profits.

After all, the real basis for a better and happier rural life is greater earning capacity for farmers.

Now, more than ever, it is apparent farmers who won't cooperate block their own progress.

More and better family cows would mean a higher standard of health and happiness among Southern farm people.

The test of the scrub hog is on the meat scales, when he is weighed in the balance, and found wanting.

A pretty stream through the farm adds usefulness to beauty when harnessed to a little home power plant.

Club boys and girls who live up to their slogan, "Make the best better," also set a fine example to their parents.

Yes, business before pleasure, but why not business and pleasure in a second-learn tour among the best farmers you can find?

Since we learned from our agricultural college that green foods keep bodies strong and well, with needed minerals and vitamins. It is easier to get our garden work done.

land should be seeded in the Fall to a cover crop such as wheat, rye or barley. Hence the recommendations of the planning boards that barley be stepped up 277 per cent, rye 50 per cent and wheat 30 per cent.

Approximately 20 per cent of the tillable land in Kentucky normally is devoted to intertilled crops such as corn and tobacco, and 54 per cent to hay and rotation pasture. A reduction of intertilled crops with a consequent devotion of about two thirds of the land to hay and pasture, it is thought, would do much to conserve the soil resources of the state.

Under Kentucky conditions, the growing of tobacco is considered less injurious to the soil than the growing of corn, because tobacco is harvested earlier than corn and a winter cover crop can be sown immediately.

The Experiment Station reports notes that failing markets, surplus production and the like may justify a reduction in tobacco, but soil conditions call for a reduction in corn rather than tobacco.

In order to maintain fertility and to prevent erosion, somewhat longer crop rotations than now practiced are advised by the Experiment Station. To assure grass crops that will help prevent erosion, more ground limestone and fertilizer must be used. If these practices are followed, it is believed that yields per acre of most crops will be increased and that the quality of pastures will be improved sufficiently to permit an increase in livestock.

Increase in forage and hay crops are indicated for Kentucky.

More Livestock Possible

The Experiment Station is not entirely in accord with the planning figures regarding livestock increases. Speaking of sowing small grain and grasses at the same time in the Fall of the year, or grasses and clovers in small grain the following Spring, the report says that if this practice could be increased, together with increased grain production, the state might support an increase of 40 per cent in dairy cows, 200 per cent in beef cattle, 50 per cent in sheep and 30 per cent in poultry.

Four extension field agents of the College of Agriculture who travel extensively in the state supervising demonstrations in stock improvement and contacting farmers and county agricultural agents are Wayland Rhoads, Richard C. Miller, Grady Sellards and Stanley Caton.

Said Mr. Rhoads of beef cattle: "Enough distillery slop is being produced in Kentucky to warrant an increase of 40 per cent in beef cattle feeding, if all of it were used. Forty thousand cattle were brought into the state in 1934, when hay and pasture were abundant. Production of hays, alfalfa, lespedeza and other forages are increasing. We need more beef cattle produced on the farms, and could feed more brought in from the west."

An authority on sheep, Mr. Miller thought there might be an increase from the present million head to a million and a half. Small farmers, especially in the western part of the state, should raise more sheep. Sheep eat a lot of material on the farm that otherwise would go to waste.

Mr. Sellards wants good hogs. The state should produce a million good ones annually, he believes. He also expressed the opinion that the mountain people should raise enough to provide their own meat.

Conservative Mr. Caton refused to get excited about poultry. Climate, nearness to market and general adaptability make Kentucky a good poultry state. Scavenger flocks are the curse of the chicken business, although the College of Agriculture has done almost a miracle job improving flocks of the state. Mr. Caton believes small farmers could well afford to give more attention to poultry. Turkey raising is developing rapidly in the state.

Soil Authority Quoted

Prof. George Roberts, head of the agronomy department of the Agricultural Experiment Station and College of Agriculture, preached soil conservation before many of the boys connected with the "New Deal" were born. "The soil is the fundamental resource of the people," he declared, "and when it becomes impoverished, the people soon become impoverished along with it."

Prof. Roberts estimates that 35 million dollars is the annual value of the nitrogen, phosphoric acid and potash washed out of the soils of Kentucky. Plant food losses from erosion are 20 times as great as the removal of plant foods by crops, he declared. He suspects there is a close relation between the amount of soil erosion in a given area and the number of rural people on relief in that area.

This noted soil authority points out that in the bluegrass region of Kentucky, where the soil is still fertile, 60 per cent of the crop and pasture land is kept in pasture and 15 per cent in hay. In the 37 poor counties west of Louisville, only 44 per cent is in pasture.

Future Encouraging

The planning statistics, then, as well as the opinion of men in position to have ideas on the future of Kentucky agriculture, would seem to indicate that farmers need to attend first of all to the fertility problem.

For farmers in position to follow the recommendations of the state's Experiment Station and College of Agriculture, and to make adjustments in keeping with county planning and national conservation programs, the future holds encouraging prospects.

This Kentucky farmer examines the effects of marl.

Production of hays, alfalfa, lespedeza and other forages is increasing.

To assure grass crops that will help prevent erosion, more ground limestone and fertilizer must be used.

Fair Time in Tennessee

Lowing cattle, steaming hamburgers and lost children! Ice cold drinks and canned fruit! Horse shows and a merry go round!

We're right in the middle of the county fair season in Tennessee. Sunk in the red during the early depression years, the county fair is staging a rapid comeback, beginning with 1933, with attendance totals mounting yearly. Where the biggest day at the average county fair didn't run much above 3,000 a few years ago, the mark is now around the 10,000 figure. This year prize money is up, and entries are more prolific.

Tennessee's first county fairs started in August, with the largest number scheduled for September. A few will be staged in October, sponsors preferring to follow the state and district fairs rather than in advance.

Knoxville, Chattanooga, Jackson, Memphis and Nashville have their fairs beginning in September. The state fair, of course, is at Nashville, but the other exhibitions named have as large attendance and exhibits. Lawrenceburg also has a district fair with attendance figures surprising for the population of the town.

For almost a decade, horse shows have grown in popularity as fair highlights. The larger fairs contribute to this interest with generous prizes and a variety of classes, harness and saddle events. Competition in community horse shows precedes the county affairs, and winners from these latter events usually, if considered good enough, go to the district or state fairs.

However, the county fair hinges about agricultural products, as always. Secretaries, as a rule, are working with state and extension service leaders in promoting purebred stock this year. The building of more creamery stations, construction of cheese plants and shift to livestock due to increased pasturage, launched first under the AAA and now going on as a result of the soil conservation program, has caused a boom in dairy herds. The distribution is beginning to be more general, especially in plateau counties where purebred Jerseys were a rarity a few years ago.

Beef cattle types are increasing also, and the promotion work of various agencies among young people, encouraging beef cattle projects, has been reflected in the fair prize lists, county, district and state.

Tennessee's oldest fair is at Alexandria. For 81 years the DeKalb County Fair has been a going concern and, as its secretary, Rob Roy declares, it is "the Grandpa fair of the south, with a record of every premium paid." Rob Roy is the tycoon of the county fair association and no state fair would be normal without his presence and aid.

The Tennessee State Fair is held this year from Sept. 21 to Sept. 26. Memphis stages the Mid-South Fair Sept. 14-19. Knoxville, with the Tennessee Valley Fair, follows the state fair, its dates being Sept. 28 to Oct. 3. Chattanooga holds its exhibition the same week as the state fair in Nashville.

Jackson's West Tennessee district fair is to be held the week of Sept. 14-19, and the Lawrence district fair comes Sept. 28-Oct. 3.

Eliminating Off-Flavors in Milk

Under the heading, "Some Facts About Milk Flavor," the Dairy Department of the Kentucky College of Agriculture makes the following comments:

There are only two principal causes of off-flavors in milk at the time it is drawn from the udder. Perhaps the most common are flavors due to feed eaten. Chief among offenders are weeds such as wild onion, ragweed and bitterweed. Certain green forage crops such as rye and green alfalfa cause pronounced off-flavors in milk unless grazing periods are properly spaced. Other green feeds known to affect milk flavor are cowpeas, beet tops, rape, cabbage, turnips and kale.

Most feed and weed flavors pass into the milk within 30 minutes after the feed is consumed and remain for a period of three to four hours. Therefore, if the cows are removed from the pasture to the dry lot or clean pasture several hours before milking, most off-flavors will be eliminated. Usually four hours is sufficient, but with such weeds as onions and bitter weed six to seven hours should be allowed.

Full rations of alfalfa hay, green alfalfa clover hay or corn silage produce a strong feed flavor when fed one to two hours before milking, but do not ruin the milk appreciably when fed four to five hours before milking. Green barley, wild oats and foxtail produce feed flavors. Improperly cured hay transmits a musty flavor to the milk.

Another class of off-flavors frequently encountered are those depending on the physiological condition of the cow.

The statement is sometimes made that milk from cows on pasture in the Spring contains a "grass" flavor. This flavor may usually be traced to a digestive disturbance in the cow, caused by the sudden change from dry feed to new grass. After a few days, the cow becomes adjusted to her new diet, the intestinal disturbance is corrected, and the slight off-flavor largely disappears. This "grass" flavor in milk may be minimized greatly by allowing the cows to graze for only a short period each day until they have become accustomed to green feed.

Another source of undesirable flavors in milk is the cow in advanced lactation or those having a diseased or inflammatory condition of the udder.

One of the first symptoms of garget or mastitis is an increase in the sodium and chlorine or salt content of the milk giving the milk a characteristic salty flavor. Cows that have been milking for a long time will sometimes produce salty milk even though they have no symptoms of a diseased udder.

If only a few cows are producing such milk it will usually be diluted to such an extent by mixing with the milk from other cows that its effect will not be detected. However, the quality of the entire output will be lowered slightly.

The Farm Bureau In Kentucky

By L. A. VENNES
Kentucky College of Agriculture

Since the day Daniel Boone first came through the Cumberland Gap into the wilderness, which is now the State of Kentucky, and shot for himself a mess of squirrels, the settlers and residents of the state have been individualists. Each pioneer's farm and household was self-sufficient and except for a few necessities, such as salt, gun powder and coffee all else was produced on the farm. That the success of a pioneer depended upon his individual courage, ingenuity and industry, developed an independent type of citizen and this characteristic still is apparent today.

Ben Niles, President

At various times in the state's history, farmers in large numbers have joined general farm organizations, but these movements have, in the past, been short lived.

The Kentucky Farm Bureau Federation is the only active general farm organization in the state. Not until it was reorganized in April, 1933, have Kentucky farmers shown a definite interest in its development. At the time of the reorganization, there were only 300 paid up Farm Bureau members, but the membership has grown steadily until there are local organizations in 59 of the 120 counties of the state, with a total membership of about 6,000. Henderson County leads in membership with 650. Campaigns to increase membership are being carried on in all counties.

This interest in the Farm Bureau Movement can probably be attributed to four major causes. First, the depression with its accompanying low agricultural prices, farm foreclosures and lowered standard of living brought many of the farmers to see their problem as one common to all agriculture and one impossible to solve by individual effort.

Second: The Agricultural Adjustment Act and subsequent agricultural legislation sponsored by the general farm organizations have been pointed to as to what may be accomplished for agriculture if the farmers unite their forces. Furthermore, the method provided for administering the Agricultural Adjustment Act within the counties lent itself very well to furthering the cause of farm organizations.

Third: Taxation is always a live question when it affects agriculture. The Farm Bureau grasped its opportunity of appealing to, and serving farmers by, fighting for a sound tax program. Their tax program called for: (1) removal of all state property taxes, (2) income tax on personal income and corporate net incomes, (3) revised inheritance tax to meet the 80 per cent federal offset, (4) selected luxury sales taxes, (5) adequate liquor, wine and beer taxes, (6) reduction of automobile licenses. During a special tax session of the State Legislature, a law was passed taxing cigarette sales within the State. This bill was unpopular among burley tobacco growers and the Farm Bureau gained popularity by its fight against the bill.

Fourth: The growth in membership of the Farm Bureau has been due in no small measure to the ability and efforts of the general secretary, Ben Kilgore, and the guidance of its board of directors. At the time that he became Secretary, finances and membership in the organization were at a low ebb. Mr. Kilgore has built an organization that is now being felt throughout the state.

Mr. Kilgore was born in North Car-

The board of directors include: Ben E. Niles, Henderson; J. L. Thurmond, Grocory; Wm. C. Dale, Finchville; R. E. Nute, Valley Station; M. D. Royce, Winchester; and Ernest Rice, Hardinsburg. Mr. Niles is president.

Garrard 4-H's Garner Awards

With 11 carload grand prizes and six individual grand championships to its credit in 14 years, Kentucky's famous Garrard county 4-H Club is out to capture another purple ribbon at the annual Fat Cattle Show to be held at the Bourbon Stock Yards in Louisville.

Sixty-one purebred Aberdeen-Angus calves are being fitted for the show in November. And every boy and girl in the club declares they are going to win again, take both carload and individual grand championships. And, judging from their past record, they certainly stand a good chance of doing it.

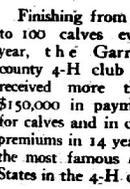

Fourteen shows have been held, beginning in 1922. The first two years did not see Garrard county at the top, either in the groups or on individuals. Then these youngsters gained supremacy. Beginning with 1924, the Garrard county 4-H Club has made a clean sweep in grand champion carloads with the single exception of the year 1929, when they gave way to a heavy carload of black cattle fed out by Bottorff Bros., noted farmers of Goshea, Ky.

Four club members boasts this progressive organization, have taken six individual calf grand championships to Garrard county. Julian Price Bourne carried off top honors in 1926 and 1927; Paul Rich took them both in 1928 and 1930; F. L. Sutton captured the laurels in 1931, and Miss James Charlotte Sanders was the winner in 1935.

James Charlotte Sanders

Finishing from 50 to 100 calves every year, the Garrard county 4-H club has received more than $150,000 in payment for calves and in cash premiums in 14 years. It now is probably the most famous county in the United States in the 4-H club baby beef project.

Teaching Biddy To Lay and Pay

BY A. B. BRYAN

Seven Oaks poultry farm, two and one-half miles from Spartanburg, S. C., is the laboratory in which T. L. Green and his son, O. H. Green, have found diverting interest and satisfying profit in working out scientific poultry production practices that led to heavier production of large eggs. Incidentally, Seven Oaks farm has become the center of a better-poultry community through the sale of hatching eggs and baby chicks to neighboring farmers.

It is 10 years since T. L. Green, growing tired of his grocery business in town, bought 16 1-2 acres of Piedmont rolling land a few miles from town, equipped it with poultry farm needs and conveniences, and started out with a determination to produce egg layers that would be profit payers.

Skilful Breeding

For seven years, Seven Oaks farm has been the home of 2,000 or more large White Leghorns that average 175 or more eggs each per year. Aiding in the good work, O. H. Green, son of T. L., graduate of Clemson, the state agricultural college has joined his trained efforts with the father's to make the best better.

The Greens are frank to ascribe their success to superior breeding stock, careful management according to advice of poultry specialists, and trap-nesting.

"Eight or ten years would be too short a time to breed up a flock to lay as our hens lay if we had started with poor run-down stock; but we didn't," said the senior Green. "We started with the best obtainable by purchasing from a breeder who was a constant importer of high-producing birds. We then ordered 12 pedigreed males. The results were so favorable we have had for several years hundreds of hens that produce 200 to 300 eggs per hen yearly, and they are some of the biggest White Leghorn hens in the South.

Trap Nests Don't Lie

"Without the aid of trap-nests we could have done little. The only way to tell how many eggs a hen lays is to trap-nest her and count the eggs. Which hens are laying of-colored, badly shaped, or pee-wee eggs can be told in no other way.

"We weed out hens that lay small eggs. We have hens that produce eggs weighing 26 ounces per dozen. Our pullets, because of their excellent body weight and development at maturity start off by laying large eggs."

Sales have spread to a half dozen or more states, with never a dissatisfied customer. The premium on eggs and chicks sold for breeding has been a big factor in the profit made at Seven Oaks.
