NEWS FOR THE VETERAN

VETERANS MAY PAY G.I. LOANS BEFORE DUE DATE

Home, farm or business loans negotiated under guaranty provisions of the G.I. Bill may be repaid at any time before their due date without premium or fee, loan guaranty officials at the Veterans Administration Branch Office in Columbus, O., said this week.

Although a G.I. loan contract calls for amortization in specified monthly payments over a certain period of years, the law permits a veteran to repay the loan before its due date by increasing payments or by making a large cash payment at any time.

Advance payments will result in substantial savings in interest, VA points out.

The duration of any G.I. loan depends upon terms of the contract between the veteran and the lending institution. The maximum limits for repayment are 25 years on a real estate loan, 40 years on a farm loan and 10 years on a non-real estate loan. However, the contract may call for repayment of the loan within a lesser period of years, depending on conditions and the lender's judgment. The loan must be repaid within the time limit specified in the loan agreement.

Repayment may be made without premium or fee for all or any part of the indebtedness. Advance payments must not be less than the amount of one installment or $100, whichever is the lesser amount.

VETS SHOULD GET PRIOR SCHOOL LEAVE APPROVAL

Veterans enrolled in educational institutions or on-job training programs should obtain advance approval from the Veterans Administration before taking leave of absence, officials at the VA's Ohio-Michigan-Kentucky Branch Office in Columbus, O., emphasized recently.

When unauthorized leaves of absence are not satisfactorily explained, veterans may forfeit their subsistence allowance for the time they are out of school or away from training, VA officials said.

SCHOOL STUDIES OFFERED VETS IN VA HOSPITALS

World War II veterans, whose education was interrupted by war service and further delayed by hospitalization, are finding the Veterans Administration educational retraining program the answer to their scholastic problems.

The educational retraining program, instituted less than a year ago in the VA's Ohio-Michigan-Kentucky area, is operated by the VA medical service in co-operation with the American Council of Education and the local boards of education.

Under this plan, veteran patients may use their rehabilitation period to establish eligibility for high school diplomas, or as much as 24 hours of recommended credit for college.

Approximately 200 high school diplomas have been issued to date to hospitalized veterans in the three states. Many more patients are being tutored in basic high school subjects, as well as college-level studies. In addition, special instruction courses are given in typing, shorthand, salesmanship and vocational work.

ASK VETS TO NOTIFY VA OF CURRICULA CHANGES

Student veterans wishing to make a change in the course of study they have been pursuing under the G.I. Bill should make such a request in writing to the Veterans Administration.

If the student veteran has not been successful in his original training program, arrangements are made for him to meet with a VA vocational advisor to discuss the requested change and entrance into a new training program.

Should the vocational advisor feel that the veteran can proceed successfully in his newly-chosen field, a supplemental certificate of eligibility will be issued indicating the remaining amount of training at government expense to which the veteran is entitled.

Veterans contemplating changes in their course of study should contact their VA training officer.

VA PAYS 3 1/2 BILLION IN G.I. INSURANCE CLAIMS

More than three and one-half billion dollars in insurance claims have been paid to beneficiaries of World War II veterans in the U. S. since the inception of National Service Life Insurance in 1940.

Insurance officials at the Veterans Administration Branch Office in Columbus, O., said that two out of three World War II veterans in Ohio, Michigan and Kentucky, by allowing their G.I. insurance to lapse, are by-passing nearly 10 billion dollars of insurance protection for their families and their dependents.

It is not necessary for veterans to reinstate or convert the full $10,000 of G.I. insurance, VA officials explained. According to a veteran's budget, any amount from one to 10 thousand dollars of insurance may be reinstated or converted to any of the G.I. permanent plans.

Veterans now have until August 1, 1947, to reinstate by submitting a comparative health statement and by paying two monthly premiums, regardless of how long their policies have been lapsed. Detailed information on all phases of G.I. insurance is available at any VA installation, or from local insurance agents, service organizations or Red Cross representatives.

VETS ASKED TO REPORT ADDRESS CHANGES TO VA

Veterans in Ohio, Michigan and Kentucky, who are in receipt of monetary benefits from the Veterans Administration were reminded recently to report immediately any changes in address to the VA.

VA said this procedure is particularly important to the many veterans who will change addresses at the end of the current school quarter or semester. Failure to report change of address may result in an indefinite delay in subsistence or compensation payments, VA said.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Q. At what rate of interest may I borrow on my G.I. insurance policy?
A. After your converted G.I. insurance policy has been in force by payment of premiums for one year or longer, you may borrow an amount up to 94 per cent of the cash value. The interest charged on your loan will be four per cent.

Q. My claim for disability compensation based on an ailment incurred while I was a prisoner of war has been disallowed. Now it is getting worse and I would like to know what I can do to get compensation?
A. VA will give special consideration to disability claims by veterans interned in enemy prison camps. You should get in touch with your nearest VA office and have your case reported.

Q. I am going to school under the G.I. Bill but am dissatisfied with the school and would like to know if I can transfer to another college.
A. Yes, under the regulations of VA you may change your school but you must have the approval of VA in advance.

Q. Can I make G. I. insurance premium payments on my policy at any VA office?
A. All VA offices except contact offices are authorized to receive premium payments on G.I. insurance.

Q. I have a G.I. loan on my home and would like to know if I can have the loan extended.
A. Yes, you can have the loan extended if the lender is willing to give you more time, but the extension must provide for the complete payment of the loan within the 35-year maximum period permitted by law.

Q. My wife and I plan to purchase a $6,000 home. We both are World War II Veterans. Can we acquire the property jointly and so increase the amount which may be guaranteed?
A. Yes, you may acquire the property jointly, but the maximum guarantee may not exceed 50 per cent of the loan.

These 20 Head Floyd Graduating Classes

These are the youngsters who earned through superior scholastic work this year the honor of saying for themselves and their respective classes the "hail and farewell" to high school. They are the valedictorians and salutatorians, the No. 1 and No. 2, of the senior classes in the county's nine high schools.

Third row—Robert Allen Crisp, salutatorian, Martin high school; Billie Frances Jarrell, valedictorian, and Rhoda Allen, salutatorian, Maytown high; Loretta Bridgeman, salutatorian, McDowell high school.

Fourth row—Emogene Hall, valedictorian, McDowell high school; Rhoda Allen, valedictorian, and Billie Frances Jarrell, salutatorian, Maytown high school; Loretta Bridgeman, salutatorian, McDowell high school.

Bottom—Doris Allen, valedictorian, and Wilda Gray Elkins, salutatorian, Wayland high; Mary Louise Osborne, valedictorian, and Charles P. Curry, salutatorian, Wheelwright high.

The competition for top scholastic honors this year was unusually keen. At Maytown Miss Allen won the valedictorian's place by the microscopic margin of .007 of a point over Miss Jarrell. It was a "dead heat" at Auxier where Miss Patton and Pergram share top honors, and the same situation exists in Prestonsburg high school with Miss Robinson and Mr. Garber being named co-salutatorians.

Praise at Festival;
Mrs. James Speaks

Besides presenting a few of her
Patriot Song Chanters in a program of ancient chants at the National Music Festival in St. Louis, Mo. last week, Mrs. Edith Fitzpatrick James, of Prestonsburg, spoke at last Friday morning's conference of folk music specialists sponsored during the festival by the Federation of Music.

Mrs. James spoke at the conference on the subject, "Religious Pious songs of the Kentucky Mountains."
She, her husband, Tom James, and Albert Hall sang from the repertoire of hymns dating back to the Gregorian chant which she has collected during her years of music work in this section. Their part in the festival attracted wide attention and drew the praise of musicians and students of music. "Discovery of these songs has amazed musicians," declared one critic.

A MAN KEEPS VIGIL

The man with the "hardest job on earth" for several days now has laid aside the responsibilities and burdens of his position for the cares of a dutiful and loving son.

The man who sits in a modest home, beside the bed of an old, old woman in Grandview, Mo., is less the President of the United States than he ever was. At the same time he never was a greater man.

He is plain Harry Truman, giving his whole attention and devotion to the mother who, as all must, faces a lonely, rest, devours with death. Politics is but the sham warfare of little men, and power and influence of little consequence now to the watcher at the bedside.

Harry Truman as he keeps vigil is the comparatively colorless individual he always was. His ordinary citizen's head is not of heroic mold, standing out in bold relief against the shadows of the room. But no man can play a role nobler than his, to give his mother the comfort of his full and manly devotion.

These hours Citizen Truman are spending at the old woman's bedside will have no place in the part of history that will deal with President Truman. But they may well supply him an epitaph, than which there is none greater:

"His heart was good. He loved his mother."

"HE WHO LAUGHS LAST..."

THE pruning season is on in Kentucky and the boys apparently are sawing themselves off, or are getting sawed off, along with the limb.

Early this month, political observers over the state were saying that Governor Willis had fallen along with the branch when Congressman John M. Robison and J. Ross Todd, of Louisville, gave the word for Congressman Morton to bail out of the Republican primary for Governor against Attorney General Dummit.

The Governor, in the minds of many, was a titular party leader without a candidate.

Then last week Mr. Dummit did his pruning act while sitting on the wrong side of the saw. He courted Governor Willis with a bit of ecstatic phraseology, in the course of which he declared the Governor to be the Commonwealth's greatest Chief Executive, or words to that effect. Furthermore, said he, his burning ambition was to carry on at Frankfort in the Willis tradition.

That would have been all right if Mr. Dummit's non-pareil, Governor Willis, hadn't come back with some political strategy of his own. But, lo! only last Saturday night, State Superintendent John Fred Williams, with the Governor's blessing, announced as Mr. Dummit's opponent in the primary.

Which pretty well leaves the Attorney General, who last week so greatly admired Willis, and who expressed that admiration in "imperishable type," in a bad way if it comes down to the necessity of attacking the Governor to mitigate his influence in support of this unexpected opponent.

Miss Lillian Vass, daughter of Mrs. Bertha Vass, of Stone, Ky., became the bride of Mr. Raymond See, son of Mrs. Della See, formerly of Stone, in a beautiful ceremony at 8 o'clock Saturday evening, April 12, in the Methodist Church at Stone.

The single ring service was performed by the Rev. H. C. Francis, Baptist minister.

Baskets of white gladioli were placed at the altar which was banked with greenery and flanked by candelabra. Graduated white tapers were arranged at intervals at the altar and among the greenery, and were used for lighting each of the church windows.

Preceding the ceremony Miss Kiki Vass, sister of the bride, played a program of nuptial music including the traditional wedding marches, and Miss Mildred Gray, vocalist, sang, "Always," and "For Sentimental Reasons." Miss Vass wore a two-piece white dress and a corsage of white carnations. Miss Gray was attired in black. Her corsage was of pink carnations.

"He fixed it," Chief Justice Vinson definitely concluded. "That night, we were on a train, Arkansas-bound—both of us in the infancy."

MORE OF SAME

THE TIMES is indebted to Allan M. Trout, of The Courier-Journal, and himself a country boy, for what to expect of John Gunther's forthcoming book, "Inside U.S.A."

One paragraph was enough for us. It reads, in the old, familiar, libelous vein:

"The curse of Kentucky is backwoodsness, and its gritty mountaineers in the east form a narrow, provincial world all their own. They are of the most poor and primitive type of Anglo-Saxon stock; they adhere, largely, to their isolated mines, hills and mountains; they have, by and large, both the meanness of the typical peasant and the suspiciousness of the mountaineer; above all, they are fantastically inbred..."

Trout's comment on Gunther's chapter on Kentucky should be read in full to be appreciated as a calm appraisal. His defense of the mountains did him and The Courier-Journal credit. Perhaps I should merely re-print Trout's article and let it go at that, but when I feel like saying something myself in type I prefer to say it in my own way. Now, my dear Gunther! Let's "line" that paragraph of yours that we've dirtied this column with and see if you're willing to face it if you're off on a night of fancy.

"The curse of Kentucky is backwoodsness, and its gritty mountaineers in the east form a narrow, provincial world all their own." Why call it Kentucky's curse? Isn't backwoodsness the world's curse? What of the provincial thinking of other sections of the country in the days before the war, when "men of the world" preached isolationism? You would be surprised to know how many Kentucky mountaineers were so little "backwoods" that they recognized this as "One World" long before Wendell Wilkie made the phrase famous, and how many, too, were ready to fight instead of relying on the false security many sought in isolationism. And that "narrow provincial world all their own"—that stuff was new when John Fox, Jr., wrote his "Trail of the Lonesome Pine," but it's old now. Good roads, railroads, schools, the radio, newspapers, practically all the conveniences of transportation and all the media of disseminating information that are in New York are here in the mountains.

"Isolated mines, hills and mountains..." How many mines did Mr. Gunther write while he was "Inside U.S.A."? A still to exist, must be isolated, and so must gangsters' hideouts in the cities, but neither the mountains nor their mines are "up a far hill," cut off from the world, as the writer of the forthcoming volume would believe. (Mr. Gunther might read with benefit the Lewis M. Williams' "The Transformation of a Coal Mining Town," the story of Wheelwright, in this county.)

"...Meanness of the typical peasant and suspiciousness of the mountaineer..." Has Mr. Gunther ever met a mountaineer outside the pages of a "sensational" book, or newspaper column? What is the mountaineer's "meanness"? That of the Scotch Highlander—a crime committed in sudden anger or to avenge a family pride. Never the cold, studied crime of mass slaughter for financial gain, the horror of the horrors of a sex perversity.

If Mr. Gunther has an idea that the mountaineer even faintly resembles a peasant, he should come here and get acquainted. He will meet the proudest durned "peasants" he ever saw, "peasants" who do an honest day's work but who will split in the eye of any man who would attempt to make them work or do anything else that runs counter to their concept of liberty. No "man with the hoe" ever lived in these hills.

As to the "suspiciousness" of the mountain man, it's like Mr. Gunther, with their distrusts, their violations of the hospitality we so gladly offer them, that make them suspicious—and why not? The visitor who was so genial during his visit, who so graciously accepted our hospitality, has so often departed to paint a distorted picture of us that we would be foolish indeed if, at long last, we did not become suspicious.

"...Fantastically inbred..." Give us strength! A few isolated cases of inbreeding and an entire section is stuck with the stigma. Mountaineers, as Mr. Gunther classifies us (and we accept the appellation), are admittedly the purest Anglo-Saxon stock remaining in America. The royal families of Europe are the "fantastically inbred." In this section, it's the most ignorant families.

"Oh, well, if I become troubled with insomnia, think I'll quit 'Joseph in Egypt' and invest in Mr. Gunther's tome."

Wilbur Parsons is filing application with the Floyd County Court for permit to operate a roadside cafe at his location on Mud Creek, approximately three miles from Madrid, in which business a music machine or phonograph will be operated.

PROHIBITION PAYS... WHOM?

Not everybody loses when Prohibition comes in.

The bootlegger profits. His business grows.

The gangster profits. He gets a job.

The grafter profits. His billfold bulges.

Even some honest folks prosper.

The merchant in the wet county gets a lot of business from citizens of "dry" counties—who prefer to shop away from home.

Who loses under Prohibition?

Bootleggers don't pay taxes, so you lose tax revenues.

Bootleggers sell to minors, so your children lose the protection offered by Legal Control.

Honest workers lose honest wages for honest work.

Legal Control—our present system—is your insurance policy against these losses. Let's keep Legal Control!

Officers." May told the jury, adding: "I never attempted to—I had too much respect for them, men in high positions like that."

In other trial developments today:

1. Charles J. Margiotti, attorney for the Garsons, served notice while questioning May that he intended to bring into court a voice recording of May, Gen. William N. Porter, wartime chief of the Chemical Warfare Service.

Margiotti said the speech would "contradict" testimony Porter has given in the trial regarding conversations with May in behalf of the Garsons.

2. The court blocked testimony from May which defense attorneys said was designed to link politics to a Senate probe last summer of the May-Garson deals.

3. May said that the lumber firm was sold before he learned of the Senate investigation. The government contends the Cumberland

Lumber Company was sold to "cover up" the alleged bribe payments.

MAY 24 — Former Congressman Andrew J. May has told a federal court jury he used the money he received from two munitions makers to pay personal expenses but "gave it all back later."

May said he placed Garson checks in his personal accounts and issued checks against them to pay department store and grocery bills and a $695.16 federal income tax installment.

He said he returned these sums because the money was intended by the Garsons for a Kentucky firm, the Cumberland Lumber Company.

MAY 26—Andrew J. May today said his cash from a Prestonsburg safe-deposit box twice mailed out the Cumberland Lumber Company when the real owners, the Garson munitions combine, failed to send money for pay-rolls and other expenses.

He spent most of the day, his seven sons on the stand, parrying thrusts by Prosecutor William A. Paisley concerning operations of the Cumberland Lumber Company in Letcher county.

Paisley asked him a dozen questions as to why he devoted his time and energy to the affairs of the lumber firm if, as he says, he was only a non-profiting agent of the Garsons.

"I was sick to death of it and urged Henry Garson to sell it," May replied. "I wanted to get out of it, but I felt obligated to see that the Garsons didn't lose the money I had induced them to put into it."

On Friday May told of going to his Washington safe for $1,300 cash, with which he repaid part of a Garson advance which he had spent for his personal needs.

Today he revealed that on two occasions when the company's Prestonsburg bank balance was low he pulled $1,600 and then $800 cash from his Prestonsburg vault to meet company expenses.

"I frequently was after Joe Freeman (the Garsons' Washington representative) to get some more money to meet expenses and when it didn't come in I had to put it up myself," May said.

R. R. Allen, J. W. Howard, Earl Spurlock, B. L. Sturgill, County Judge Alex L. Davidson, County Attorney W. W. Burdette, J. R. Hurt, H. L. Mayo and Rev. W. B. Garrick are in Washington this week on business.

TIDBITS OF KENTUCKY FOLKLORE

By GORDON WILSON, PH.D.
Western Kentucky Teachers' College Bowling Green, Ky.

"THIS IS NONE OF IT"

A NURSERY RHYME I used to read to my children tells of how an old woman went to sleep by the roadside, and a practical joker came by and cut off her petticoat. When she awoke, she was greatly puzzled and exclaimed, "Lawk a mercy on me, this is none of it." Now that is how I felt in the summer of 1946 when I drove up and down the one street of Fidelity, seeing no one I recognized and very few people at all. It was too late-cutting time, and everybody except a skeleton force for the stores was out in the fields or barns. I entered the school building, turned down the main street, and ended my brief half-hour pilgrimage by visiting the graves of Father, Mother, and the rest of the family, in the graveyard at the end of the village. Primarily I wanted to get one more glimpse of the village before putting the finishing touches to my book "Fidelity Folks" and wanted especially to see whether my memories, "recalled in tranquility," as Wordsworth suggested, were accurate enough. The short trip convinced me that for all practical purposes I had done justice to the village as I knew it, though most of what I had known long ago had ceased to be, people and buildings alike. Why, when I stood at the family burial plot, my eyes rived over the adjoining plots and caught the names of many a person I used to know. The dates seemed strange, too, for many of the young people I had known had died well after those dates: soon and true. Where had I been all these years, where are the years themselves that have passed, all 40 of them, since I lived near Fidelity? And yet, though this was my native ground, I felt like a person from another world looking down on things that maybe had been dreamed some time in another existence. My Fidelity, the one that remains unchanged in tranquility, was not the this. It had the same street, the same names, the same buildings or whatever was left of them; but it was, too, an ethereal thing, a village not made with hands. My Fidelity, the village of the last of the nineteenth century and the first six years of the twentieth century, seems to have vanished like the heavenly visions that so often appear in the Bible and in the classics. Even while I looked at the quaint little weedy village that must have been much like I used to see forty years ago, I almost seemed to get a mirage in the clear blue sky above of such a village as will never appear again on this earth. And I tried to pinch myself to establish conclusive evidence that I was not dreaming but viewing with natural eyes the place where I once lived and moved and had my being. Emerson says there are two Concord rivers; one winds in and out among the hills and meadows of Concord, the other flows through the poet's brain. And there are two Fidelities, one as real as the other. One sits still on the small hills not far away from a great arm of Kentucky Lake, with about the same number of people as the earlier village had; the other one lies deep within the memory and emotional depths of such wanderers as I, who have carried the image of the little village through years of "soil and toil and care, from raven traces to thin gray hair." And I am prepared to defend this second Fidelity before any critic of human life and experience. Not to have this image would be to confess that only physical things live and impress us. Never in history time could you have weighed and measured the Fidelity that will last longest in my memory; the other one is just as obvious, just as experienced as any village in the world. Maybe the real is a combination of these two divergent pictures of things that used to be.

Charles Lardon, of Wolfe county, estimated that eight acres of balbo rye were worth more than $100 as pasture during late winter and spring.

of a 1946 legislative act providing for the state to pay the premiums on bonds by Sheriffs, provided the bonds are made by officially recognized surety companies.

Judge Ross held that payments by the State of the Sheriff's official and state bonds would not increase the compensation of Sheriffs who were in office when the act became law last June 19. Kentucky's constitution forbids that.

The opinion, however, declared that part of the 1946 act calling for the state to pay premiums on the bonds the Sheriffs give to protect county revenue they collect was unconstitutional. This is strictly a county matter, it was explained, and the constitution prohibits the state from paying it.

Mine Bureau Report On Cooley Elkhorn Released This Week

An improved ventilating system and an effective rock-dusting program, the supervisor advocated recommended changes in the Cooley Elkhorn Coal Company's No. 1 mine at Garrett, are proposed in a federal coal mine inspection report released this week by the Bureau of Mines.

When inspected in February by Russell Shaw the mine employed 59 men in the daily production of 280 tons of coal.

Although commending an improvement in ventilation in the west entries, Inspector Shaw recommended more air for several areas in the east entries, attendance at single doors on the erection of air-lock doors along the haulageways, construction of substantial incombustible stoppings between main intake and return airways, offset installation and added safety devices for the No. 1 fan, and pre-shift examination for hazards.

As this mine had not been rock-dusted, the inspector advocated rock-dusting all dry dusty areas, removing coal dust accumulations from haulageways, and using water to allay dust during cutting operations.

Hazards from coal dust accumulations were minimized in the tipple between inspections, he reported. As further safety aids, Inspector Shaw called for adherence to the minimum timbering standards in each working place, removal of some loose rock, transportation of explosives and detonators underground in individual non-conductive containers, a shelter hole or suitable clearance at all main-entry switch throws, proper re-railing and audible warning devices for each locomotive, guards for the trolley wire at doors and other locations, frame-grounds for mining machinery and hand-held electric drills, additional electrical and mechanical safeguards, and adherence to the company rule prohibiting smoking underground.

Noteworthy between-inspection improvements also included approved separation of explosives and detonators in the box used for transportation purposes, well-installed switch throws along main haulageways, adequate clearance in newly developed workings, effective bonding of main haulage tracks, and a suitable check-in-and-out system.

Why the Railroads Can't Afford NOT to Modernize!

A Dollars-and-cents Example That Will Interest Travelers, Labor and Investors

FOR a long time the C & O has been saying that America's railroads must modernize their passenger equipment—or forfeit a great opportunity.

In print and in private we have lampooned the "rolling tenements" that still pass for sleeping cars. We have stumped for modern streamlined trains to replace tired, creaking old day coaches. And over and over we have stated the conviction that, given attractive equipment, and new comforts and services, the railroads could open the door to a new era of travel.

As an earnest of that conviction the C & O is replacing every old sleeping car, day coach and diner, on all our main lines, with modern streamlined cars. The orders have all been placed. If every railroad were doing as much, there would now be 21,000 new passenger cars on order instead of a mere 3000.

But Is It Practical?

The standpatters in the industry are still shaking their heads. And lately more reasonable people have been asking, "How can the large-scale replacement of old trains be practical?"

They point out that several of our largest systems had serious deficits in 1946. And everyone knows that the railroads are caught between rocketing costs and lagging rates. "How," they ask, "can such an industry afford large outlays for new equipment?"

The answer is that the railroads can't afford not to make these outlays. And here is a dollars-and-cents example:

The Investment That Is Fast Returning Its Cost

Last August one of the C & O lines, the Pere Marquette, installed two ultra-modern trains on its run between Detroit and Grand Rapids. These new daytime streamliners were the last word in passenger attractiveness.

Since they have been in operation the new trains have carried 86% more passengers than old trains carried over the same route during the same period of the previous year—when traffic was still swollen by war emergencies.

And here is the proof of the pudding: In less than 4 years, at the present rate, the increase in passenger receipts will equal the total cost of the trains!

Modern equipment is not a luxury that only a few fortunate systems, like the C & O, can afford. Even a bankrupt railroad can borrow money today to buy such equipment at 2% interest. Since that is the fact, it is almost incredible that less than 100 new passenger cars have been ordered this year!

Which Way Do We Go?

To investors, the labor brotherhoods and the traveling public, the C & O repeats its conviction—that our railroads face one of the most critical choices in their history.

If pessimist thinking, old-line practices and Toonerville equipment continue to be tolerated, then, regardless of rate relief, further deficits and bankruptcies are certain.

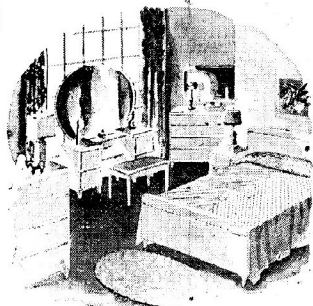

But, if, on the other hand, these liabilities are replaced by modern ideas and modern trains, our railroads can again be a credit to our country. They can also be a bulwark of our national defense, which, as every citizen knows, depends on a flourishing transportation system.

I urge all persons qualified to vote to be sure you are registered, and you who have moved from one precinct to another since the last election to have your registration changed so that your names will not be purged.

KENTUCKY ON THE MARCH

By EWING GALLOWAY

What makes schoolteachers teach? Two things: love of the work and need of money.

And the schools of Kentucky cannot survive without both.

Pay has been hiked considerably in the last year but probably not enough to retain what has been lost through low pay in the last eight or 10 years.

What I am driving at is that if we are to get the good teachers who schools need we must make the profession as attractive here as in other states.

The alarming drift away from the profession must not only be checked. It must be made to do a Phil Sheridan—a retreat must be turned into an offensive—a forward march.

You may be interested in paragraphs quoted from a recent article in The Courier-Journal by its school editor, Laurence Bolton:

"The normal turnover of teachers in the state is 1,400, and during the five years before the war, 1,000 beginning teachers were hired every year. This normal quota has not been filled for the last seven years."

"It doesn't seem likely to happen; but let's say, for the sake of argument, that 500 beginning teachers will be certified in Kentucky this year. That leaves the state short 900 of its minimum requirements for this year alone. And it means that at least 500 will be added to the shortage of teachers which has been growing for seven years."

"As a result of this growing deficiency, Kentucky already has 2,229 emergency teachers. That means that the state has 2,229 persons school who aren't qualified to be regular teachers."

The situation, calls for the best brains and well directed energy in every organization, every agency, state and local, interested in lifting elementary education up to a standard we will not have to apologize for. It will take all this to win back the school personnel we have lost and are still losing.

BETSY LAYNE

The first of this year's Commencement program was the glee club and band concert directed by Mrs. Carlos Haywood and Jesse Elliott, which was presented to a full house Thursday, May 22, at 8 p. m., in the school gymnasium. This was one of the best programs of its kind ever presented here.

Other Commencement programs included the Baccalaureate sermon on Sunday afternoon, May 25, the speaker being the Rev. Cecil Maye, pastor of the Pilgrim Church, Pikeville; Monday evening, the Eighth grade graduation exercises were presented, sponsor of the class being Mrs. Palmer Crum. Thursday evening, May 28, the Achievement Night program will be held, with the Rev. Everett Brannan, pastor of Irene Cole Memorial Baptist Church, Prestonsburg, delivering the address; Barbara Bush, the salutatory address and Joe Hinchman, the valedictory.

Miss Alberta Caldwell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. C. Caldwell, was recently married to Mr. Oliver Williamson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ferrell Williamson. A household shower was given last Saturday night for the couple at the home of the bride's aunt, Mrs. Harry Caldwell, and they have moved into their new home near here.

In reporting the election of officers at the last P.-T.-A. meeting, an error was made. Miss Lola Bush was elected to the office of secretary instead of Mrs. Palmer Crum.

Mrs. Bert Allen left here last Friday morning to join her husband in Norfolk, Va., where Mr. Allen is attending school and where they will reside for the next few months.

Mrs. Zella Phillips Reis and her two sons arrived last Sunday to spend a few days with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Phillips, Sr. Mrs. Will Ferguson, of Huntington, was visiting her sister, Mrs. Charles Cooper.

Mrs. J. O. Webb, Jr., and baby, Mary Josephine, have returned from the Pikeville hospital and are visiting at the home of her father, J. A. Hager.

Festival Performance Earns Freshman Here Scholarship to Camp

Excellence of his performance with the band and as soloist, playing the baritone horn, at the Eastern Kentucky Music Festival at Pikeville recently has won for William Rannels, Prestonsburg high school freshman and son of Mrs. W. P. Rannels, West Prestonsburg, a half scholarship to the Stephen Collins Foster Music Camp on the campus of Eastern Teachers College, Richmond. It was announced this week by Jesse Elliott, Floyd county band instructor.

The scholarship award was offered young Rannels after James E. Van Peursum, director of the music camp, heard him play at the festival. Mr. Van Peursum was judge and guest-instructor at the festival.

Rannels is the second Floyd county student to win this scholarship. Len Edward Roberts, of Betsy Layne, won the scholarship in 1945.

Mrs. and Mrs. Richard Feller were supper guests of Dr. and Mrs. A. J. Davidson at their home on Highland avenue Saturday evening.

All for a penny!

Look what Grandma got for a penny when she was a little girl—a trained dog, all Tower arose the coin in his iron jaws, leaps merrily through the clown's hoop, and deposits the little red cent neatly in the little red barrel.

Quite a show for a penny! But nothing to show your present-day electrical penny puts on for you. That penny does a lot. It will:

- Tell you the correct time for 4 days,
- or vacuum-clean 6 large room-size rugs,
- or bring you an evening's radio entertainment,
- or run your sewing machine for 8 hours,
- or wash 3 heaping tubfuls of clothes for you!

Grandma's pay little bank may be a collector's item today, but electricity puts on a bigger and better show as it takes more and more work out of your housework.

It costs so little—and it does so much! Dollar values for penny prices—that's the record of the friendly folks in this company, under sound business management.
