Filing Delay May Cost Some Workers Social Security Pay

Many retired workers, their families, or dependent survivors may lose some of their social security benefit payments, says Thomas Thompson of the Pikeville social security office because of delay in filing or settling a claim.

He will be in Prestonsburg each Thursday morning and urges every retired person over 65 not now receiving benefit payments, but who has worked for at least a year and a half in a job covered by social security to call on him at the State Employment office in the Midland Building. If the worker died after a year and a half of such employment, his widow or other dependent should see Mr. Thompson.

The revised law provides for six instead of three months retroactive payments. Payments cannot be made, however, for months prior to September 1950. If a retired worker who was 65 or over on that date qualifies for old-age benefit payments this March, he will get six months in back payments. If he delays filing his claim until after March, he will lose his September 1950 benefit.

Retired workers or survivors whose claims were disallowed when filed before last September, should file new claims promptly, says Mr. Thompson points out. In many instances, the new law makes it possible to allow retroactive claims. The six months restriction on back payments is inflexible, however, so he urges all such people in the Prestonsburg area to get in touch with him at the State Employment office in Prestonsburg on any Thursday morning.

TIMES WANT ADS PAY

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

IN EXPLANATION

Editor, The Times: Referring to the article in last week's paper, it is a mistake about us setting our building too close to the highway. It is on a lot we paid for and in line with gasoline pumps on an adjacent lot. The highway people made no protest whatsoever, and we do not want the public to feel we are doing wrong about the matter.

MR. & MRS. TOBE NICHOLS

SAY OFFICIALS FAILED THEM

Editor, The Floyd County Times:

We, the citizens of Abbott Creek and State Road Fork of Middle Creek are only a small part of Floyd county, but we are taxpayers, and for five years the twelve miles of road through Abbott has been left out of the county planning and alignment set-up.

The road was built at the government's expense, a W.P.A. road, built by the people and for the people. What was once a good stone road had now been marked with holes that will jar your store teeth loose to drive over it. In 1950 nothing was done to improve this road, no gravel, no ditches or drain pipes opened. Weeds, brush and other waste choked ditches until water spread over meadows.

This Abbott road connects highways 114 and U. S. 23, and is six miles shorter distance between Salyersville and Prestonsburg than road 114.

What's wrong, Mr. Harris and Mr. Stumbo?

Did you take the oath of office to serve all the people of Floyd county?

Are all the rumors that are going around true—that Old About road will all be deers' statement made at the highway garage; that an official made this statement that if we Abbott road was forgotten when the allotments were made for gravel, what's wrong?

Has old Abbott precinct been Democrats too big and too long to werry about? We wonder.

There is much talk of making a movie film of this terrible road condition. Such movie equipment is available. This line of thought may be slightly irregular, but we the people pay county and state taxes, plus the much-talked gasoline tax, and we feel we are getting a raw deal. It would double the veracity of these statements concerning the condition of this road, all we ask is to see you try to drive over this twelve miles of road and be thereby convinced.

Remember, boys, you are starting on your second year in the driver's seat.

Remember this too, that the statement of the people can make or break any man in public office—and that no one can buy sentiment. Justice, equality and a fair turn for our tax dollar is all we ask.

Do we get just this or must we carry this farther each and every year? The Floyd County Times and The Courier-Journal?

We are prepared to do just this if need be.

Paris and figures are being compiled—won't that look nice with a few pictures in the Courier-Journal magazine.

We have to have to go this far, but you as public servants have failed us in this our greatest need.

Remember this, there are quite a lot of voters along twelve miles of road, and many have friends and relatives outside of the Abbott precinct.

Don't make the mistake of waiting on election year and then send us the money and a lot of election propaganda and promises. We have been looked before.

Signed:—Milt Stanley, Bill Pruitt, Alex Spradlin, C. W. Wright, Harry Maudel, Jim Hill, R. E. Frouse.

Real Flood Control

GOVERNOR Wetherby has urged for a section of Kentucky a type of flood control which this newspaper had hoped would be put into practice by the federal government in the upper Johns Creek valley in Pike county.

The Governor has asked the federal budget director to approve an appropriation for controlling the floodwaters of the Green river by retarding the runoff of water through reforestation, cover crops, terracing and other soil conservation methods. In making that request, Gov. Wetherby made a statement, the truth of which is becoming more widely recognized from year to year. Said he:

"It has become increasingly apparent that floods cannot be controlled by building dams and levees alone. The cause must be curbed at its source."

We earnestly hope his request is granted. The result will be a great object-lesson to all Kentucky. Its success should bring about similar projects in other sections.

It has been estimated the cost of such a flood control program in the Green river valley, which has a watershed of 9,273 square miles, would be $88,100,000. And that would be cheap. For it would save all the land a dam would inundate, and at the same time make more of that land tiltable as well as protected from flood.

As a flood control project, we would say the Dewey dam in this county falls far short of its purpose. The benefits from that one phase alone are slight. Here we have one of the most agriculturally productive of Big Sandy valleys flooded a distance of eleven miles, all the bottom-land for that distance under water. And on above slack-water, nothing has been done to curb the run-off. Thus, we ruin the lower part of the valley insofar as its productivity goes and permit the upper part to remain as it was—all to cut down a scant few inches in the rise of the Big Sandy.

If the federal government would now go on upstream and institute a large-scale long-range flood control program in the upper reaches of the valley, it would more fully attain the end-result we desire. Erosion upstream would be reduced, eventually cut to the minimum, upstream floods would be largely eliminated and the ruin of the beautiful lake now formed would be prevented.

And, equally important, other valleys of Eastern Kentucky would be shown how to save the soil they must conserve if the region is not to become a wasteland.

Whose the Victory?

A NEWSPAPER story infers that the Democratic state administration won a victory by placing three Democrats on the five-man investigating body which is expected to make a thorough probe into alleged irregularities in the State Highway Department.

In a show of strength it was a victory. For the immediate future of the party in Kentucky it may not be all it hailed as being.

With a majority on the investigating committee, the Democrats will be blamed for a whitewash, if nothing incriminatory is found, even though the voters unite in earnest effort to find whatever has been wrong. And the people of Kentucky are in no frame of mind to swallow the whitewash, brush and all, whether they're real or imaginary.

It may be foreign to the accepted rules of politics as the game is played, but The Times has an idea Governor Wetherby would have more clearly acquitted himself personally, had he provided the most impartial investigation possible. Could he not with complete candor and justification have adopted this method of meeting the threatened scandal?

"Maybe something did happen that shouldn't, I wouldn't know, for you will recall, I've been Governor only a few weeks and as Lieutenant-Governor I had about as much to do with setting up our departments as your Aunt Susie. If there has been anything wrong, I want to know it, and I'm certain the people are interested in hearing just who was responsible. So go to it, fellows. This is the other fellow's baby, and I'm perfectly willing for the people to know all about its conduct, parentage and whatever needs to be known. I'm willing for you fellows to name any five honorable men to investigate this matter, and I challenge you with the duty of being as frank and above-board with the people as I am being."

Wayland in State Tourney After Winning 5 of 6 Meets

Floyd county is not certain it is sending to the state basketball tournament at Lexington this week the next Kentucky champions. It has a 5-1 record in the Wayland High school tourney which it contributes to the competition for the state's highest net honors a team which already has won more tournaments this year than any other basketball squad in the Commonwealth.

When the Waps defeated the Inez Indians at Pikeville last Saturday night to win the 15th regional title they walked away with their fifth tourney of the current season. No other team in the state is known to have won as many trophies this year.

They started the tournament spring early in the season by winning the Floyd county pre-tournament meet. Then the Mountain Conference meet, still later, the Pikeville Invitational, two weeks ago, the 58th district title at Martin, and, finally, Saturday night's regional title tilt. Along the way, they lost only one meet—this to Manual by one point in the Louisville Invitational.

For the state tournament "Copper" John Campbell's Waps drew into the tougher, upper bracket along with Clark County, the favorites, Manual, Owensboro, et al. But the team apparently has regained the final edge it attained earlier in the season and will have a large following in the stands at Memorial Coliseum, Lexington, when it meets Upton County, "Red" Brantley's old team, at 10:45 this morning.

The Martin Purple Flash, which had the state's best win-loss record for the year was a weary, longer-up team when it met a rangy, speedy Inez five last Friday evening. Inez won 75 to 54, and many doubted the ability of Wayland to defeat the Martin county five.

But, playing with only one substitute, the Waps came through with a last-quarter drive which downed Inez, 69 to 61, in a game which was closer than the score indicated.

Although it got off behind, Wayland led most of the game. But it had to regain the advantage twice in a 4-2 third quarter.

It was a taller, clever Inez team that Wayland conquered.

The defensive boardwork and the giving and shooting of forward Paul Hopper, who came up with 14 points, were the major facts in the Waps' win. Fred Fraley and Bill Griffith added with 21 and 14 points, respectively.

Opposed with a hard-driving game and an aggressive defense, Inez jumped into a 6-2 lead.

The Maytown band members and band mothers wish to thank all who so generously helped in raising money for the band.

Miss Winnie Sue Cooley, of Prestonsburg, was the guest of Sandra Sue Patrick Sunday afternoon.

Miss Libby May, who attends Georgetown College, was home this week-end. She brought as her guest Miss Sparite Eastman, of Jacksonville, Florida, who is her room-mate at the college.

The nursery mother's class will have their next meeting at the home of Mrs. Jones Tillent on March 22. Miss Alice Harris, of Prestonsburg, and Mrs. Mary Wrightson, of Wayland, will be guest speakers.

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Jones and son Jimmy of Graham, Va. were over night guests of his sister, Mrs. Thomas Patrick and family Saturday.

The attendance of the Sunday School has been so high for the last few Sundays that it is hoped it will reach 200 on Easter Sunday. The PTA will present its original play, "Deestrick Skule," at Martin, on March 19; Wayland, March 20, and Allen, March 26. This play is presented to help raise money to buy supplies for the school lunchroom, which is under construction now.

Open Grate Burns Fatal to Child, 4, At Local Hospital

Burns suffered at the home of her parents on Cow Creek last Saturday morning resulted in the death of four-year-old Patsy Lewis within 10 minutes after arrival at the Prestonsburg General hospital.

Dr. George P. Archer, of the hospital staff, said 90 per cent of the surface of the boy's skin was seared by the flames. The child's dress caught fire from an open grate while her mother, Mrs. Eider Lewis, was outside the house for a bucket of water. The mother was burned about the hands in a vain attempt to save the child.

Surviving, besides the parents, are five brothers and sisters. Funeral rites were conducted Monday from the home of Lewis Burchett, a neighbor of the family, by the Rev. Isaac Stratton, and burial was made in the Lewis cemetery on Daniels Creek, the Arnold Funeral Home directing.

Farm NEWS and VIEWS

By HAROLD B. RICE, Floyd County Agent

There is a ready market for all the strawberries farmers in Floyd county will produce. With more than 52,000 people living in this county and no commercial strawberry fields, it is easy to see what a market there is.

Strawberries should be set between March 15 and April 15. Plants set in the fall are likely to be forced out of the soil by freezing and thawing. Plants set after April 15th are usually slow in starting and will not make as many runners as the first year. High yields of berries the second year depend largely on the number of runners produced the year the plants were set.

Plants should be set 2 or 3 feet apart in rows 4 feet wide.

BLACKMOOR—The Blackmoor is an early, firm productive berry with a bright red color. It is excellent for fresh use, preserving and freezing. It is a vigorous plant maker. The disadvantage is that it is subject to yellow disease, blooms early and is often injured by frost. Also the variety often makes too many runners and as a result the berries are small.

TENNESSEE BEAUTY — The Tennessee Beauty ripens about a week later than Blackmoor. The Beauty is very productive, and a good plant maker. It produces a large, bright red berry with a large green cap. It is excellent for fresh use, shipping, preserving, and freezing. This berry yielded more than any other variety in a five year test at the Western Ky. Experiment Station.

The only other variety that merits consideration is the Tennessee Shipper and as its name implies it is grown primarily for shipping.

FLOYD COUNTY BUILDING, UP

Is 12 Times Greater Than Population Rise, According to Census

Special to The Times
NEW YORK, Mar. 6.—The growth of population that took place in Floyd county in the last 10 years was accompanied by an even greater expansion in local housing facilities in the period. This is shown by the United States Census Bureau in its preliminary reports based on the recent tabulation.

The county's population grew from 52,938 in 1940 to the 53,473 counted in the 1950 census, an increase of 0.9 percent. This housing expansion, which amounted to 117 percent.

The favorable balance of 10.8 percent in housing over population resulting from these increases reflects a better situation than that reported for most other communities. The net annual balance in favor of housing was 9.1 percent. In the east-south central states there was a 1.06 percent gain in favor of housing. In Florida it was also 9.1 percent.

The Census Bureau reports, from its survey, that there are now 12,068 dwelling units in Floyd county compared to the 10,722 listed in the previous census.

The housing situation at the present time in Floyd county, taking into account the various changes in the past 10 years, is an improvement over what it was in 1930. There are now 238 living quarters available for every 1,000 residents compared with the 204 per 1,000 previously.

The improving housing situation in Floyd county follows the general upward trend in construction activity which was furthered by government priorities and by financial assistance to both civilians and veterans in the purchase and rental of homes.

During the 10 years between censuses, the net increase in dwellings in the nation amounted to 8,235,000. The country's population rise was about 19,000,000.

FLOYD SCHOOL BENEFIT TOLD

County and City Districts Would Receive $142,622 If Appropriation Made

School districts in Floyd county will receive an estimated $142,622 from the proposed $600,000 increase in the common school fund...

The increase will provide an estimated $878 increase in the state per capita fund behind each pupil over last year's total of $29.59.

Estimated sums to be received by Floyd county are $100,000 from the state, $39,100 from the federal government...

Governor Wetherby estimated the average teacher salary increase under his recommendation...

1. The pupil-teacher ratio is higher in some districts than others. 2. Some school districts have a greater percentage of public attendance...

ASSAIL RATE BOOST LAW

Experts Hits at Law Permitting Increases Prior to Approval

The Kentucky law which permits utilities to post bond and charge higher rates before official approval, has been criticized by a rate expert.

In asking the Public Service Commission to dismiss the Kentucky Telephone Corporation's application for a $22,000 rate raise, James M. Honaker contended...

Since December 6, the company has been collecting and imposing the increased rates. If the rate raise is voided, customers will get refunds of the increased rates they have been paying.

Honaker said the company's cost-of-money man testified that money is worth 7 or 8 per cent of obtainable. Honaker said the money imposed by the company bears no interest rate for the telephone subscribers.

"This is the taking of cash property from the rate payer without due process of law and in contravention of well known laws of the land," Honaker said.

Honaker claimed the K.T.C. has failed to make a case for itself in the application. He cited technical reasons which he said warranted dismissal of the application.

"The rate payers have dedicated the best years of their lives to public service," he said. For every seven subscribers who have telephones, there is one person who wants a phone and can't get one, Honaker said.

He said the company's president has testified 2,000 new phones will be installed in his system this year. But at present the company has 3,647 unfilled requests for phones, he continued.

K. T. C. is a subsidiary of the General Telephone Corporation, Lafayette, Ind. The parent firm has assets of $200,000,000. Honaker scoffed at K.T.C.'s claim that it cannot get new money from the General Telephone Corporation.

"As to why the applicant is so unattractive, step-child, to its parent, we are at a loss to understand," he said. Honaker said the company has placed most of its rate increase on customers who use their phones chiefly for local service.

"Long-distance tolls affecting 'brokerage' firms, large distributing firms, and bookmakers, were not raised substantially," he said. He pointed out a business phone is a deductible expense for income tax purposes, but a home phone is not.

KENTUCKY ON THE MARCH
By EWING GALLOWAY

If you have anything to leave to widow, children or other heirs when you are out to die, you may do well to read and heed this little essay on wills.

A smiling evangelist whom I helped sing stanzas to the mourners' bench when I was a youngster in Dixie villages in a back corner of Henderson county, died in his old age to make a will. He owned a home and very little else, and wanted to leave the residence to his wife. But he knew a lot less about legal terms than about Holy Writ. His first step was to seek a lawyer. Probably had heard people say one should stay away from lawyers.

So the dear old chap decided to write his own will and he wondered if anything like this: "I hereby bequeath all my personal property to my beloved wife. If she is deceased, I hereby bequeath what I personally owned to the widow. I don't get the home. It wasn't personal property."

Usually wills written by lawyers are the best possible assurance that an estate will be settled promptly, and in most instances nobody should write his own will. Even if the document is as simple as "I hereby bequeath all my personal property and personal to my beloved wife." It is safer to let the lawyer put it into words.

If two or more heirs are involved, a will should not only be prepared by an attorney, but the legality of the document should be checked with recent decisions of the Court of Appeals. Circuit Judge Martin Blackwell, of Dixon, discussing the administering of estates with me recently, suggested that in many instances it would be advisable for lawyers to even cite decisions of the appeals court as applied to each bequest. That might not always make wills longer, but the courts sometimes reverse their own previous decisions.

One smart testator stipulated in his will that the county judge was to get $300 if the estate was wound up in one year from the day the will was probated. If the settlement here took longer than a year, the judge was to get nothing.

Stringent litigation along for many years is one of the worst besetted racks in the country, and wills, written by able lawyers, cannot fail to facilitate early settlements, the transfer of property to its rightful owners.

A well worded will means that dissatisfied heirs will be less likely to waste time and money squabbling over the terms of a bequest. If an estate amounts to as much as $200,000 and daughters of the deceased may fight over it as bitterly as if millions were involved.

A testator down our way overlooked a pair of well worn shoes when he wrote his will. He probably figured the shoes would be worn out before he died. Two bits almost came to blows over the right of ownership.

If you don't have a will, go to a reliable lawyer and have him write one for you. It is a duty to those you love.

State Forester Urges Care To Prevent Forest Fires As Spring Season Begins

Frankfort, Ky., March 8 — Care with fire in or near wooded areas was urged by State Forester H. B. Newland today, as he announced the beginning of the spring forest fire season.

"During the months of March, April and May the forest fire danger in Kentucky will be high. Warm, dry, windy days, common during these months, cause forest fuels to dry out rapidly, making them highly inflammable. This is one of the reasons our new brush burning law prohibits the burning of brush, trash, grass leaves and other debris within 200 feet of any woodland or brushland during these months, except between 4:30 p.m. and midnight or when the ground is covered with snow," the State Forester said.

"Two out of every five forest fires that occurred in Kentucky during 1950 were caused by carelessness in the burning of such materials," Newland said.

"Some lookout towers were manned beginning March 15 by March 15 all of the Division's 62 towers will be manned and seasonal forest guards and fire crews will be on duty," he said.

"During these critical times our forests take on added importance. The demand for forest products to meet expanding defense needs is increasing. Trees destroyed by fire cannot help supply the lumber and other products needed to keep a nation's defenses strong. A little thoughtfulness on the part of us all when using fire in or near wooded areas can stop this shameful waste and help keep Kentucky green and America strong," the State Forester said.

SICK AND HOMELESS, PERRY MAN FLAUNTS LAW TO FIND SANCTUARY THRU PRISON SENTENCE

Hazard, Ky., March 2 — Sheriff John Gross was surprised today when an elderly man walked in and asked:

"What is the penalty for carrying a concealed weapon? Is it a penitentiary offense?"

"Yes, it's a penitentiary offense," the sheriff replied. "Carrying concealed weapons is a felony."

The man reached into a back pocket, took out a gun in a holster, and said it on the counter. The sheriff grabbed the gun, expecting a trick, but found it wasn't even loaded.

"What do you want me to do," Gross asked.

"I want you to do your duty, whatever that is," said the stranger.

The man identified himself as Truitt Corbett, 62, of Dwarf, a Perry county community eight miles north of here.

He explained that he had a lung disease, could scarcely see, and had no home, so he wanted to go to prison.

It was the last day of the Perry county grand jury's session. The case was taken before the jurors, who indicted Corbett. No date has been set for a hearing.

Corbett told reporters he had been in prison 22 years ago on a homicide charge, but later was pardoned.

TO THE PEOPLE OF FLOYD COUNTY:

For the past several months now, and especially since the recent publication in The Floyd County Times of my query to the Attorney-General relative to judicial district office in this county many of the Christian people of this county, loyal and staunch supporters of law enforcement, have prevailed on me to make the race for Commonwealth's Attorney, have endorsed my candidacy and pledged me their whole-hearted support.

Appreciating this action from so many of the common people from out over the county, being deeply grateful for their pledged support, and knowing that they have no political axes to grind, and that their support stems only from their desire to further the cause of good government in Floyd county, I have definitely decided to make the race on the Democratic ticket for the office of Commonwealth's Attorney.

I, therefore, announce my candidacy, pledge full time devoted, 12 months out of the year, to fair and impartial law enforcement in this county, and earnestly solicit the assistance, the support, and vote of every legally qualified voter, with the earnest assurance given you all that I have no personal political ambitions other than to serve my community and the county in which I live.

URGES USE OF COAL, SHALE IN SYNTHETIC FUELS PLAN

Washington, D.C., Mar. 8 (Sp)—Coal and oil shale must be used "promptly" as sources of synthetic liquid fuels in order to safeguard America's oil supply, Secretary of the Interior Oscar L. Chapman announced in a report to Congress on the Bureau of Mines' fuels research program. He said that he is calling upon private enterprise, with government assistance if required, to establish a synthetic fuels industry.

"It is apparent now that neither the government nor industry would be taking any considerable economic risk in starting the initial plants," the Secretary said.

Development of the new industry is necessary because of the "ever-increasing need for petroleum in the United States, the critical international situation threatening foreign supplies, the growing demands for steel and the heavy cost to industry of constantly discovering and developing new oil fields," Mr. Chapman explained.

The Secretary's report pointed out that for the past year and a half the Bureau of Mines has been operating a coal hydrogenation plant at Louisiana, Mo., and the results yielded from the coal has been subjected to fleet road tests with "satisfying results." The hydrogenation process chemically combines hydrogen with coal under high temperature and pressure with the aid of a catalyst to produce a high yield of liquid products.

The Department of the Interior will encourage construction of "one or two" such plants at this time, the report said.

Although the cost of producing gasoline from coal is somewhat greater than it is from shale, under present conditions, coal plants will have a greater material advantage in that they can be placed near important consuming centers where production-transportation costs will be relatively low. The Interior Department report emphasized the following immediate advantages attributable to coal hydrogenation:

Chapman Asks for Gasoline for Road Industry

That the amount of steel required for initial construction per barrel per day of gasoline is about the same for coal hydrogenation as it is for petroleum. Also, if a coal hydrogenation plant is used 20 years, the actual amount of steel consumed per barrel of product made is less than that required for petroleum.

2. During the past few years, demand for such aromatic chemicals as benzene and phenol (materials used in plastics, nylon, insecticides, synthetic rubber, and other essential chemical products) has outstripped production capacity. Coal hydrogenation plants can produce a high percentage of aromatic chemicals in addition to gasoline.

3. Coal hydrogenation plants can be operated to yield a liquid product that is almost entirely aviation and motor gasoline jet fuel and diesel oil in widely adjustable proportions. Under other operating conditions they will give a high yield of the same chemicals, a flexibility that holds great strategic advantage in time of war.

"Hydrogenation plants will not complete in time of emergency for raw materials that are already in short supply," the report continues. "In such critical periods petroleum must fill a coal need for aviation gasoline, jet fuel, diesel oil, heating oil, and chemicals. Each of these products becomes increasingly vital during a war and important competing needs clamor to be supplied. While the demands for coal increase, there can be supplied from the vast resources of the United States alone. During World War II, coal production rose from about 500 million tons per year to a maximum of about 650 million tons. This or a greater expansion can be achieved again when it becomes necessary."

"The building of hydrogen plants is the first step to allow coal, the largest fuel reserve in the United States, to begin to carry some of the heavy demands for liquid fuels."

SPORTS AFIELD

By TED KESTING

Sometimes even the most experienced sportsmen run out of supplies before getting back to their base. So Paul Johnson has planned an emergency kit that weighs only 1 3/4 pounds and can be carried in your hunting coat pocket. This will supply sufficient nourishment and shelter for a three-day trip.

First get a tin with a good lid that measures 5 x 2 1/2 x 2 1/2 inches. This is a standard size tin and is easy to find. Then get the following: three packets of dehydrated soup, three plain, sweet, chocolate bars, nine bouillon cubes, one-half pound of rice, a short length of fishing line, three or four hooks, water-proof matches or matches in a waterproof box, a four-inch piece of canvas and 40 feet of 90-pound test cod line.

To pack these, first place the candle upright in one corner of the tin, then pack the nine bouillon cubes on the bottom after removing any bulky wrappings. Next, place the three packages of dehydrated soup on the side of the tin opposite the candle. Now pack the three chocolate bars upright in the tin and pour in some of the rice to fill any spaces.

Place the hooks in a small envelope on top of the rice, put the lid on the can and seal it with one-inch adhesive tape. Then wrap your fishing line lengthwise around the can and wrap the cod line neatly around the side of it.

You should use the supplies in this manner: For breakfast each day have one of the packages of soup, strengthened with one bouillon cube. For lunch, eat one chocolate bar, and for supper boil up one-third of the rice with two bouillon cubes. You do all your cooking in the tin container, after carefully unpacking it.

The candle is very useful for lighting a quick fire. The cod line is used for fishing poles when making a lean-to shelter; and the fishing line and hooks are used, if necessary, to augment your diet.
