Good Riddance—But More Of Same Is Needed

The Kentucky Court of Appeals last week handed down a decision which means the end of the fee system in the courts of the state. It is a pity that by the same summary action the fee system could not be eliminated from all offices of the state.

The Appellate Court's opinion, and this newspaper's salute to such an opinion, is no reflection on the ability of any Justice of the Peace to conduct a criminal trial. It simply states a standard of justice, which is to the effect that the accused is entitled to a trial beyond any taint of bias because of any possible pecuniary gain the presiding judge might acquire in the event of conviction of the accused.

We are told that the fee system in other offices of the counties of Kentucky cannot be thus and forever eradicated except by amendment of the state constitution. This may mean that the state is to be afflicted with such an ancient and antiquated system for years to come, but it does not mean that Kentucky should not make a start, now, to rid itself of the system.

If every official in every county of the state were paid from the state treasury a definite and fixed salary, and if these officials were required to remit to the state treasury every fine and all of the fees collected, the whole political atmosphere of the Commonwealth would improve. Fixed income for officials would control the amount candidates could spend in an election, and in this way slush funds would dwindle, election fraud would be less tempting and the general moral tone of politics would improve.

Getting rid of the pernicious fee system wherever it touches should be a matter of deep concern to every Kentuckian.

SCENIC KENTUCKY

Kentucky has more than ever to offer the vacationer. Already endowed with a variety of scenic "background" from deep-breaker mountains through the lush Bluegrass region to the sea-brother atmosphere of the Combig lakes add up to the biggest vacation area the Combig mountains have ever known.

In accepting the obligations, responsibilities and opportunities which the position affords, we are convinced that the desire that we may be as useful as possible to our community. We are convinced that the continued growth and enlargement of the bank will be correspondingly reflected in the development and progress of our section of the country.

HOMER AIDS P-BURG WIN

Wedington Blasts Homer To Pace Prestonsburg Win Over Drift, 6-5, Sunday

An extraordinary win was required at Drift, Sunday, before the bat of Joe Wedington lined out a home run in breaking a 4-4 tie and to start the Prestonsburg rally that beat the Drift entry in the Louisville Pine League, 6-5.

Ed Hall, capably relieved by Don Sullivan, was credited with his first win of the year in this exhibition. He pitched before approximately 200 spectators. Curt Burdett and Julian Campbell, righthanders, pitched the first eight innings with Hall coming in on the ninth, and Sullivan in the tenth.

Prestonsburg drew first blood in the first inning when Funkie Goble singled, took second on a sacrifice and Sullivan and scored on Goble's sharp single to left. Shoetoss Lowell Hughes then drove Wilcox home with a base hit to left field. In the sixth Prestonsburg added a marker on Hughes' walk, a wild throw which placed Hughes on second, and a sacrifice by centerfielder Quantin Allen.

Drift evened the score in the sixth when Turner walked, Collier singled, and Sullivan scored on Turner's sacrifice walking to force in a run, and Shelton driving in the tying runs with a single to center.

Prestonsburg went ahead as walk pushed Martee Harris around to third where he scooted home on Lowell Hughes' ground-out to the shortstop. Drift caught the cue to tie the game up again and did so in the last seven on a single by Collier, a stolen base and a base hit by B. Allen. Prestonsburg went on top on Wedington's home run in the tenth and added a marker on left-hander Tex Thompson's error at the plate which chalked up Harris with the winning run. Sullivan squashed a Drift rally which netted one run later M. Surley walked, took second and scored on Shelton's single. Drift then went down in order as Sullivan batted in B. Allen (1), M. Surley (1), Shelton (1), L. Hughes (1), Wilcox (1), Wedington (1), Q. Allen (1), Harris scored on Thompson's error. Two-base hit, Q. Allen (2), Homer hit Wedington, Winning Pitcher, E. Hall.

PEACE SOUGHT BY DEMOCRATS

active party above personal ambitions.

"I am presently of the opinion that the Democratic State Central Executive Committee has a decision to make which vitally affects the Democratic party in Kentucky and in the nation. I am sure that each member of that committee desires to find a method of reaching a decision which will insure a great democratic victory in November. For these reasons I am again subordinating personal ambition to party loyalty by offering through means of this letter, to accept nomination by the Democratic State Central Executive Committee to fill the unexpired term of the late Allen W. Barkley.

"In the meantime, I will continue my present campaign in such manner as may effect a compromise is not accepted, I will receive at the hands of the Democratic Party a nomination much more desirable to me personally than the one I have offered to accept for the sake of the success of the Democratic party."

Pressed for comment on the situation created by Bates' offer to quit the race against him, Clements issued this prepared statement:

"Representatives of the press have indicated they feel I should make some statement on the suggestion by my opponent that he will withdraw from this race against me if he can be assured that the Democratic State Central committee will give him the nomination to fill the vacancy in the Senate created by the death of Senator Allen Barkley.

"This proposal by my opponent was not addressed to me, and that is quite proper, inasmuch as I am not a member of the State Central Executive Committee. That committee is composed of the men and women of our party who are qualified to reach conclusions of their own as to what is best for the Democratic Party for our state, and for our nation.

"Throughout my public career I have never sought to dictate to my fellow Democrats I followed that policy while I served as Governor and have continued to do so as senator.

"I have no control over the committee and I certainly could not and have no desire to attempt to speak for its membership.

"There is only one course for me to follow and that is to continue as a candidate for reelection to the U. S. Senate. I was not responsible for the entry of my opponent into this race nor do I have authority to bring about his withdrawal.

"The rules under which I must make this race have been laid down. Again they were not made at my request or for my benefit, but I am trying to make the best of a difficult situation by dividing my time between attending to my official duties at Washington and the details of my campaign in Kentucky.

"I do not feel there is any connection between this contest and the filing of the Senate vacancy by Senator Barkley's death. The Democrats of Kentucky will settle this immediate contest on May 29 by selecting their nominee for the full six-year term.

"The Governor has the authority under law to fill the vacancy until the November election. The State Central Executive Committee has the authority under the law to select a Democratic nominee for the remainder of that term.

"Neither the Governor nor the committee has asked for my advice. My position is that I hope my record and Senate standing will justify the Democrats of Kentucky to renominate me on May 29 and that I will again participate in the Senate in November. This would give me further opportunity to push forward for greater service to our people."

right of refusing trial before federal magistrates, on the grounds that the trial judge in such courts receives part of the fine imposed on the defendant and that consequently the defendant is not guaranteed a fair and impartial trial.

Trial for any criminal offense must hereafter be before county judges, police judges, or some other judicial officer not compensated by fees.

Justices of the peace in Jefferson county, however, are paid a flat salary of $6,000 a year, and thus are exempt from Friday's ruling in other counties. They are paid on a flat basis, and thus have a financial interest in the fines they impose.

"It is our opinion that no justification exists for perpetuating a system that is designed at least in part to deprive accused persons of the process of law," the court said.

Said the court:
"It is our opinion that until some other method of compensation is provided by statute, justices of the peace in counties having less than 250,000 population have no jurisdiction to try criminal cases."

This does not affect their jurisdiction to hold examining trials in criminal cases, however, or their jurisdiction in civil cases.

The $200,000 minimum population is the arbitrary figure set by state law to place Jefferson county in a separate classification.

In handing down its opinion, the court upheld a decision of Judge Jean L. Axler of Pike circuit court.
It was based on a case involving Pete Roberts, justice of the peace in Pike District No. 1, and Brown Martin Noel.

This is how the case developed:
Noel was arrested December 31, 1954 on a charge of drunk-ness in a public place.

He did not appear in Roberts' court, but was represented by his attorney who filed an objection to the jurisdiction of the justice of the Peace Court.

The attorney also filed a motion to transfer the case to Pike county quartermaster court on the ground that by the justice court would constitute a violation of due process of law because of the pecuniary interest of the justice of the peace in the outcome.

Roberts denied the motion, but announced he would waive his own and fees. He then declared Noel's appearance bond forfeited, empaneled a jury, and tried Noel in absentia. The jury set a $20 fine.

Noel, then applied to Pike circuit court for an injunction to prevent Roberts from carrying out the judgment. Judge Axler granted the injunction, and Roberts appealed to the Court of Appeals.

In reaching his decision today, the court relied on two earlier decisions
— the United States Supreme Court case of Tumey versus the state of Ohio, and the Kentucky Court of Appeals case of Waters versus Sizemore.

The Appellate Court upset a previous Court of Appeals finding in the case of Adams versus Slavin.
After the Tumey case, the court held in the Waters case that a defendant in a justice of the peace court may object on the ground of financial interest and thus cause the justice to be disqualified.

In the Adams case, it had interpreted the Tumey case decision to mean that the fee system was not absolutely declared unconstitutional,
but only recognized the constitutional right of the defendant to object
because of "pecuniary interest."

The court said last week:
"Upon re-examining the opinion in the Tumey case, we now conclude that the Supreme Court intended to,
and did, declare the entire system unconstitutional."

In the Adams case, it had interpreted the Tumey case decision to mean that the fee system was
not absolutely declared unconstitutional,
but only recognized the constitutional right of the defendant to object
because of "pecuniary interest."

The 'Old Mansion'
Now State's Home
For Lt. Governor

Frankfort, May 7 (Sp.) — A General Assembly reception April 26 officially opened the old Governor's Mansion for the first time since 1914.

The old house, built in 1797 and first occupied by Governor James Garrard, is now the official residence in Frankfort for the Lieutenant Governor. For 116 years, the 11-room mansion at the corner of Clinton and High streets was the home of Kentucky's first family. In 1914, it was abandoned when the new mansion was completed.

Governor and Mrs. Chandler and Lt. Governor and Mrs. Wainwright were the guests throughout the evening. Later, the guests were taken on a tour of the entire house.

The living quarters have been brought to a high standard of modern comfort. The kitchen is especially well equipped with modern methods. The public rooms of the first floor have been reproduced in an 18th century tone.

It is the intention of the Waterfields to keep the state rooms open so that Kentuckians and their guests may visit the home of their state's first governors. The rooms will be opened to visitors 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. each day.

COUNTY STUDY

'Army' of 1,000 Needed
If Program Undertaken, Is Word Received Here

Wanted—1,000 men and women welded into an effective organization to plan and project a multi-phased program of development for Floyd county.

If the personnel were available this ambitious program would be started immediately and continue, perhaps two years or more. After all the facts were in, the program stated and the answers indicated Floyd county would be in position to implement the findings with a constructive program of development.

So say the University of Kentucky's Extension Service specialists. It has been done in other states, even in a few counties in Kentucky did it. Pike did it in a very limited way with a few people and is now testing the findings and looking for any "bugs" in it. The program in Pike county, if it hits development, will be expanded to a more thoroughly planned and projected affair in the future.

Program planning and projection will differ from previous planning chiefly in scope and intensity," specialists of the Extension Service say in a statement to county agents and local advisory committees. "The planning will be directed by a planning committee. The nucleus of this committee will be the county extension advisory committee with representation from other organizations having a stake in the welfare of rural people and the rural community."

Specialists in sociology and in other fields of extension map seven steps in planning procedure. First step, and basic to the program, is determination of what the people need or want. From there the next step would be definition of the problems involved in attaining desirable standards of living. A determination of the physical resources available in the solution of the problems would be the third step. The sixth step in planning is set out as a "charting of a course of action which would bring the solution to bear upon the problem." Final objective would be the setting of goals.

One primary need to launch such a planning program in this county according to Extension Service workers, would be an advisory committee of at least 50 members. This committee would serve as only the nucleus of a County Program Planning and Projection committee. The advisory group would accept the responsibility for the success of the planning.

State Trend Reversed
In Highway Fatalities

Frankfort, May 7 (Sp.) — Kentucky is one of fifteen states which reversed the national trend and cut its toll of highway fatalities during the first three months of 1956. The National Safety Council advised Governor Chandler of this step and suggested that the movement was an "encouraging demonstration of effective traffic control by you and your citizens, and we strongly urge that every effort be made to improve this fine record."

The governor announced he topped to add 100 State Police to the force as rapidly as possible, and has promised State Commissioner of Police P. A. B. Widener every assistance in this respect.

Sturgill Elected 'Veep'
Of Jayces Last Week
At Owensboro Meeting

Barkley Sturgill, Prestonsburg, atorney and past president of the Owensboro Jaycees, was elected vice-president of the Kentucky Junior Chamber of Commerce at the state Jaycees' convention in Owensboro last week.

Other officers named were: John Whisman, Lexington, president; James Justice, Pikeville, secretary; and Joe Nurbler, Louisville, treasurer.

In the hotly-contested election, Sturgill defeated candidates for the office from London, St. Matthews, Scottsville and Morehead.

The new position puts Sturgill responsible for the Whitesburg, Pikeville, Pineville, Hazard and Winchester clubs, along with promoting the establishing of it. At Monday's Jaycee meeting Sturgill announced plans for the national convention at Kansas City, June 26. Wendell Ford, of Owensboro, is a candidate for President of the U. S. Junior Chamber of Commerce, and plans are being made to get all Kentucky Jaycees to attend. Also announced at Monday's meeting was a membership drive for the Prestonsburg chapter. John Heinze, Jaycee president, pointed out that every young man between the ages of 21 to 35 is eligible for membership and he invited every one qualified to join and become a part of the Jaycee movement.

Sturgill told the local chapter that, starting in the next few days, the state organization will sponsor a voter-registration campaign for 18-year-olds, pointing out that throughout the state registration of this age group has fallen behind.

JOE BATES One of Us

Joe B. Bates is one of us—by blood relationship, background, action and conduct. Ask any of our older citizens concerning the background and relationship of Joe B. Bates, and most of them can point to a cousin or closer relative living in the community. Joe is a native of the Seventh Congressional District, and was born and reared to manhood here in Eastern Kentucky, and the Big Sandy Valley. In Floyd county alone live at least a thousand cousins and closer relatives of Joe Bates, including members of his immediate family. He has brothers who quietly earning their living and contributing to the welfare of our community.

Joe was born in Knott county, at Republican, now known as Dry Creek, in the year 1894. His father was Jesse Bates and his mother, Hannah Caudill Bates. He is a grandson of John Bates and of Betsy Hall Bates, sister of Captain Bolen Bill Hall.

Joe grew to manhood and maturity in this vicinity. He attended the Knott county rural schools as a youngster, and later went to school at Hindman to Prof. George Clark, where he completed his teacher's training course. He taught school in the Knott county rural schools, and then attended Eastern State Teachers College, at Richmond, where he obtained his college degree. Upon graduation he was employed as principal of Raceland high school in Greenup county. He later went to Laurel county to become principal of the East Bernsadt high school, from there to Drakeboro as principal of that city's high school.

Joe then turned his attention to law and politics. He is an attorney at law. He entered the campaign in Greenup county for County Court Clerk, was elected and served in that capacity sixteen years. When Fred M. Vinson, late Chief Justice of the United States Supreme Court, resigned as Congressman from the Eighth Congressional District, Joe Bates was appointed as his successor. Joe was subsequently elected and served in that capacity for fourteen consecutive years.

Joe Bates is one of us by blood relationship. He is widely related to the people of Eastern Kentucky, and especially in Knott and Floyd counties. His close relatives include the Bates, Canflos, Martins, Hayes, Tuckerts, Littles, Shores, Escorts, Thornburgs, Johnsons, Collins, Wrights, Colborns, Jones, Verners, Akers, Waddies, Osbornes, Kings, Moores, Coates, Mallins, Banks, Gaybearts, Allen, Ouseys, Mays, Davisons, Stephens, Hamilton, Concus, Campbells, Babbitt, Conleys, Stumbers, Holbrooks, Turners, Cobles, Soursors, Sturges, Howards, Shepherds, Meades, Harrisos, and many others.

The Bates campaign committee of Floyd county know that our older citizens are aware of these close connections and kinship. We want all to know, especially those younger citizens voting for the first time. We would remind the people of one thing—A MAN WITH AT LEAST A HALF A DOZEN OF SISTERS IN THIS COUNTY WILL BE MORE INTERESTED IN THE WELFARE OF FLOYD COUNTY. We believe that blood is thicker than water, and we know that the citizens of Floyd county have never failed to support unanimously one who is truly one of us. We request that all join in this campaign. Forget our past differences and join together to elect Joe B. Bates, an outstanding man who is a native of our county and background of this district, an United States Senator; a man who in his life has lost truly one of our nation's most respected throughout the length and breadth of this Commonwealth of Kentucky.

Farm Labor Not Subject To Wage and Hour Law, Says Eaves, Official

NASHVILLE, Tenn., May 10.—Neither the $1.09 an hour minimum wage nor the overtime provisions of the Fair Labor Standards Act apply to farm workers, says an official today. The Wage and Hour division today to clear up any possible misunderstanding on the matter. He said there is some evidence that both farm and farm workers may be covered by the act.

To a 14-month period, employees and workers. Eaves said a simple question. "The Wage Hour law does not apply to the farm workers. Farmers are not required to pay the $1.09 minimum wage set by the Federal law."

He said that the exemption from the act provisions of the law does not cover the child labor provisions applying to young farm workers.

The law makes it unlawful for children under 16 to work on a farm of any size during the school hours of the school where the child is currently attending. If the child is not in a school and the child is under 16 he cannot legally work on a farm.

The one exception to this is that a parent can employ his child on his own farm. Such a child may not work for another's after farming during school hours.

ROAD REPAIRS DELAYED HERE

Sarcastic of Highway 850 Must Await Federal Funds, Humphreys Notifies Hill

Improvement of State Highway 850 which connects the Prestonsburg-David road with Ky. 90 at the mouth of Branch Creek on Right Beaver, must await federal aid, Robert Humphreys, Commissioner of Highways, wrote Representative Lon C. Hill recently.

While Mr. Humphreys said "this road carries a substantial amount of traffic, and we will grade and construct a low top surface from near Hippo to State Route 80 with Federal Aid secondary funds just as soon as these funds are made available. The previous administration obligated about all of the funds and it will be late next fall before additional funds are actually available for construction. In the meantime, we will program this section and complete the plans—including the bridges, and the county can obtain the necessary right-of-way which would make this project ready to receive bids."

He added that the Department of Highways cannot see much advancement in backlogging part of the route and having the other end meanwhile closed to traffic. Instead, Humphreys said, "We prefer to wait until the entire road from Goodloe to State Route 80 has been graded, and then backstop the entire road at one time."

Deputy Highway Commissioner Bert Kiser last Thursday wrote Representative Hill that the survey on the side-walk project leading to the new high school here has been completed but that there are some right-of-way involved. As soon as these rights are acquired, he said contract on the job will be awarded.

Jackson Says Teamwork Is Key To Conservation; Pledges His Cooperation

Frankfort, Ky., May 7 (AP)— Cooperation between all agencies interested in conservation of natural resources and stressed in an appeal to top U. S. Conservation Service personnel from 19 conservation states by Kentucky Conservation Commissioner L. P. Jackson at Kentucky Dam Village State Park recently.

USCS Conservationists and their assistants, gathered for an area conference, heard Jackson declare that cooperation between federal, state and farmer's groups is the key to protection of natural resources. "People in my department have been asked to do more than find, as in their efforts to assist other agencies in the preservation of our resources. We're taking the attitude that natural resources not only must be preserved but utilized," he said.

Jackson pointed to predicted shortages of water and noted that Kentucky, with more miles of waterways than any other state, should be developing into a system of reservoirs.

He said "Kentucky could be the promised land if we would first conserve our water then attract industry that will utilize products of our fields, mines and forests. At the same time we would create for our people a recreational spot as surpassed in America."

Other Conservation Department officials on the program were Marshall Qualls, Director of the Division of Soil and Water Resources and Robert Lee Bell, Director of the Division of Food Control and Water Use.

Nurses Have Double Role In Tending and Teaching Sick To Heed MD's Advice

If you have asked "What is a nurse's job?" you probably reply without hesitation, "Caring for the sick." But did it ever occur to you that in some cases teaching the sick is also an important part of nursing?

This is particularly true of tuberculosis, a disease that usually requires a drastic change in the patient's living habits. Today, because of the effectiveness of modern methods of treatment, more and more victims of TB are living longer. While the threat of death from the disease has declined, the possibility of relapse—of another bout with the disease—is faced by almost all TB patients. Relapse can, however, be avoided if they learn to adjust their lives to the special problems.

Here the nurse comes in as a teacher. She helps her patients understand their situation and how to cope with it. They must take to keep it under control. When patients leave the hospital, they take health and well-being, and good health. If the nurse has done a good job of teaching, they will have a much better chance for a healthy, active future.

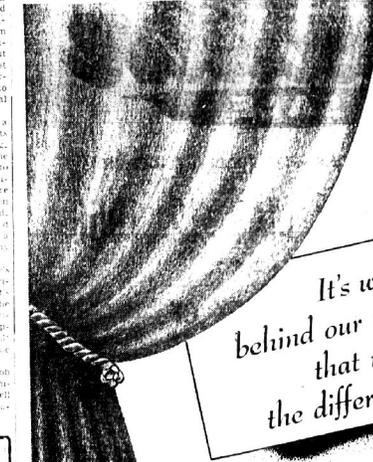

The importance of the nurse's teaching extends beyond the individual patient. It affects the patient's family and all those with whom he comes into contact. If the TB patient does not care for himself properly and others suffer as a result, he endangers the health of those around him.

The nurse in her teaching job helps protect the health of the family and the entire community as well as that of the individual TB patient.

Roberts, Locklin Tell Methods Inland Steel Uses in W'Wright Mines

Speaks to The Times — Cincinnati, Ohio, May 8 — The use of continuous mining equipment has been undertaken at mines of the Inland Steel Co. in Eastern Kentucky in an effort to keep these mines competitive with others in the coal industry, many of which possess less difficult natural conditions.

E. H. Roberts, superintendent of the Inland Steel Co. in Eastern Kentucky, in an effort to keep these mines competitive with others in the coal industry, many of which possess less difficult natural conditions.

They said that the coal seam in which they operate supplies coal with good coking qualities to the company's Chicago steel plants but that operating conditions in the mines are difficult and the mining process is slow and laborious.

They pointed out that they intend to install a continuous mining machine at their properties in June, 1953 and added other models in 1953 and 1954. They told the mining meeting that their main problem to this time has not been operating the mining machine in coal that approaches the lower cutting height, but that natural seam conditions forces the machine to do a large amount of extra hard cutting.

They predicted that a machine will eventually be built which will overcome several problems which they have faced: low height, soft bottom interference with timbers and excessive noise.

The safety director of the Consolidation Coal Company (Ky.) told the convention that through the use of roof bolting, as a means of mine roof support his company had been able to sharply reduce accidents from roof falls, supply handling, and equipment movement over the past six years.

M. E. Prunty, Jenkins, Ky., said that in this period these cases of accidents had dropped by about 80 per cent. He also pointed out that use of roof bolting instead of conventional timbering at his company's mines had resulted in an increase in production efficiency of approximately 70 per cent during the past six years.

Prunty told the convention that the use of roof bolts to hold up the mine roof had also cut the cost of ventilation while increasing the quantity of air throughout the mines and had stopped up gravel dusts through the freer and fast movement of equipment into and out of the working faces. He warned that mistakes must be made while roof bolting has been a great advance in roof control, it is not by any means the final answer. He urged them to use every effort to improve these methods and further reduce roof fall accidents.

Research Commission Studies Effect of Law

Frankfort, May 7 (Sp.) — The Legislative Research Commission has been asked to study the effect of the new annexation bill passed by the recent General Assembly, one calculated to prevent "torrid" annexation of parishes and industries.

Governor Chandler said it was the purpose of the bill to "prohibit, restrict or hamper normal expansion of municipal boundaries if such normal development and expansion extend to and embrace industrial properties," but added that its purpose was "to prevent arbitrary annexation procedures."

He added that the Commission would study the effect of the law during the next two years and "if the report of the Commission, based on the experience of Kentucky communities indicates that changes in the law are necessary, the Administration will give full support to such changes at the next meeting of the General Assembly."

MORE EASILY UNDERSTOOD — Great Bend, Kan., May 3 — The response has improved since the late Raymond Knowles replaced "Reserved" signs in the East Methodist Church lot with signs reading, "Thou Shalt Not Park."

Rail Lines Continuing Reduced Service Trend

Frankfort, Ky., May 7 (Sp.) — Trend toward abandonment of local freight and passenger service by Kentucky's railroads still continues, the Kentucky Railroad Commission reported today.

"Unless action is taken by the Legislature, Kentucky may find itself without this service," said a report of the Commission. "Three times bills have been offered to change the law so as to make it necessary for the railroads to show a loss in their waste operations in order to discontinue passenger service, but none of the bills have been passed."

The law requires the Commission to approve applications for discontinuance of service if it can be shown that passenger trains operate at a loss without regard to whether the combined freight and passenger system is profitable.

The tremendous increase in motor vehicle registrations in Kentucky, as well as the entire country, has cut deeply into railroads' local passenger service patronage, the report continued.

Mr. Floyd County Voter...

Keep A Real and Effective Friend In The United States Senate

WORK and VOTE for EARLE C. CLEMENTS

For U.S. Senator In Kentucky's Democratic Primary, Tuesday, May 29

There's No Substitute for Experience and Prestige

Earle Clements has both. He learned your problems and your needs:

- At the local level as sheriff, county clerk and county judge.
- At the state level as State Senator and Governor.
- At the federal level as U. S. Representative and U. S. Senator.
- As a World War I veteran.

It's All In The Record...

EARLE C. CLEMENTS — AS YOUR SENATOR:

- Is piloting through Congress legislation to give effective federal help on small watershed programs including those on the Big Sandy and other rivers.
- Led the fight to restore tobacco acreage to Kentucky farmers.
- Is vigorously supporting federal aid to education.
- Has voted consistently in the interests of organized labor. Already he has been endorsed by the Political Action Committee of the A. F. L. and C. I. O. He has received the endorsement of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen and has been highly praised in the United Mine Workers Journal of April 1, 1956, for his efforts to procure surplus foods for unemployed coal miners.
- Because of his experience, proven ability and progressive thinking Earle C. Clements was selected by his fellow Senators to be their Assistant Majority Leader, an unprecedented honor for a first term Senator.

EARLE C. CLEMENTS — AS YOUR GOVERNOR:

- Started the expanded rural road program in Kentucky. He was responsible for building more rural roads in Floyd county and in Kentucky than any other governor in the history of our state. Watch for a list of these roads to be published later.
- Appropriated more money for Kentucky's schools than any governor who preceded him in office—and this without additional taxes.
- Made Kentucky's park system second to none in the nation, bringing millions of money-spending tourists to our state. Our present Governor has cut the appropriations for this progressive program.
- Through the A. & I. D. Board encouraged millions of dollars in new industry to come to Kentucky.
- Obtained increased appropriations for Kentucky's institutions and greater appropriations for the teacher retirement fund, the aged, the needy blind, the dependent children and the unemployed of Kentucky.
- Was the first governor to speed up the processing and handling of workmen's compensation claims and raised the injured workers' benefits both medical and otherwise, beyond that of any governor of Kentucky.

Chapel for No. Marines Always Have Chaplains

Washington, D. C. — Wherever in the world they are seen, United States Marines have chaplains with them, but not necessarily houses of worship.

In far-off Okinawa, members of the 2nd Marine Division at Camp Hansen were without a chapel. Church and sacramental services were held in their "multi-purpose" mess hall.

Obstetricians, cooks, barber, blending with religious services just didn't sing true for the devout. Now, a chapel stands proudly on a piece of ground overlooking the ocean. The Marines have built their own.

From unknown nooks and crannies, from one store room or another, the materials were gathered together by some 50 men during their off-duty hours.

Ground was cleared by a bulldozer. Then a spare hospital tent went up. Church pews, an altar platform, and altar rail were nailed into shape and painted. For the Christian services a cross was constructed to adorn the top of the structure. One hundred loads of sand from the beach embellished the natural landscaping, and the final touch was the transplanting of some trees and shrubs.

In far-off Okinawa a chaplain attached to the Marine Division observed the completed effort and remarked: "A church, however crude, is a house of the Lord."

Then he plans for the first dedication in this new church.
