Who Fails More Than the People?

Two editorials in as many weeks in this newspaper on the bootlegging situation in Floyd county have, insofar as can be detected, created not even a ripple of public interest.

They have succeeded in ruffling the feelings of a few enforcement officers and have evoked from perhaps half a dozen citizens expressions of mild appreciation. Neither reaction was sought by us.

We wonder again. We wonder how great would have been the reaction on the part of a great number of people, had these comments on bootlegging been published during the weeks immediately prior to the May primary election or if we had waited till, say, next October, shortly before the November polling.

If we, the people—remember us?—"the great, common people"—aren't interested, sincerely interested, without political considerations cluttering up our motives and our thinking, we should not expect officials, who depend upon their votes of the people to put them in office to stick their necks out, physically as well as politically, to do a job for us in which we aren't greatly interested in the first place.

But you say, "That's what they are paid to do." And we say to you and to ourselves, "But the paymaster has some responsibilities, too."

- These responsibilities include: 1. A fair, impartial view and assessment of the situation. 2. A willingness to have a part in meeting the situation: To give officers and courts open support; to help in those cases where the courts are wrong; to end to our generations-long failure as citizens, most of all as jurors sitting in trial of those arrested and brought into court; to shake free of our peasant-herf subservience to influence and position and assist in striking at the "top cat" rather than the underdog in this whole messy business.

This failing, we will be ready to compromise and advocate the state liquor store idea which has so long been repugnant to us.

LOCAL HISTORY AND TOURISM

(An editorial in The Licking Valley Courier, West Liberty, Ky.) The history of this county and nearby counties is a heritage which should be cherished and preserved.

More than 90 per cent of the citizens of this southeastern Anglo-Saxon homelands, a hardy stock, freedom-loving, and with democratic ideals.

A prolific stock of people in these foothill counties have sent their children to many fields and the line of the hills drive them ever back even if they visit the place of their origin.

And now that we plan commemorative drives, we need not set up a "Mountain Room" filled with mountain records, books, microfilm records, and the like? Even a small museum of mountain items?

And it will be of prime interest also to our cousins from other states, the sons and daughters of those who emigrated to this area of the hills. And at the same time it will develop the rich business of tourism.

TIDBITS OF KENTUCKY FOLKLORE

Western Kentucky Teachers College Bowling Green, Ky. MAN AND HIS INVENTIONS "LET ME TELL YOU..." The longer this column goes on, the harder it is for me to be believed by the younger generation.

For most of my contemporaries, since probably five-sixths of them are younger than I, this light-fellows would likely memories of other folk failures and us of older times, but so much depended on a few wires. Suppose the best lamp in our home had suddenly blown out: there was the fireplace, with some coals covered up, on a shelf, ready to be used.

And now that we plan commemorative drives, we need not set up a "Mountain Room" filled with mountain records, books, microfilm records, and the like? Even a small museum of mountain items?

And it will be of prime interest also to our cousins from other states, the sons and daughters of those who emigrated to this area of the hills. And at the same time it will develop the rich business of tourism.

Our Yesterdays

(Items taken from files of The Floyd County Times of 20, 30 and 40 years ago)

Thirty Years Ago

The North-East and South-East Coal Companies will sever their long relationship. It was announced this week... Last of the coal operators to be mentioned in the county, with unimpaired almost 700 employees, was the Prestonsburg Coal Co. of White Gap. It was closed this week after 53 farmers who had never before worked in mines there, were sworn in as union members.

Twenty Years Ago

The gasoline plant constructed as an adjunct to the Drale company station of the Kentucky West Virginia Gas Company has been producing this week by Peter John Van Oost, the company's vice-president in charge of operations... Woodrow W. Smith, 25, seaman on a Liberty Ship, was home last week wearing his "topped" uniform, a gift received from the crew of the ship last week.

Ten Years Ago

Despite an effort by the Floyd County Good Government League to have him removed from the bench, Special Judge Lawrence S. Grauman, Louisville, retained here this week for the trial of tax league cases against Floyd County... The trial of the tax league cases against Floyd County, Ky., was held at the home of Mrs. Edna M. Martin, 21 West Main St., Louisville, Ky., on Saturday, July 2, 1953.

100 YEARS AGO THIS WEEK

The Civil War in Kentucky

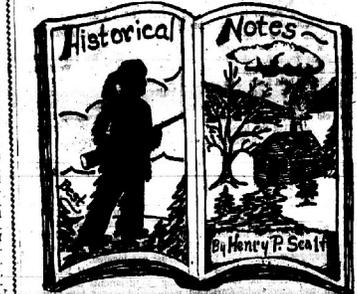

BY JOE JORDAN (Kentucky Civil War Commission)

One hundred years ago this week, in the Kentucky counties of Wayne, Clinton and Cumberland, the Union Army troops of the West, in Pendleton county, and region south of the river if possible, were sent and at other points; to be sent and at other points; to be sent and at other points; to be sent and at other points.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

WE'RE 'GROWING UP'

EDITOR, The Times: Today I picked up the Herald-Dispatch, and as I scanned the Floyd county news I was struck by the expansion of the county. I read with delight and a sense of pride that the Herald had been selected for construction of the community college, thus making this project a reality and no longer a dream.

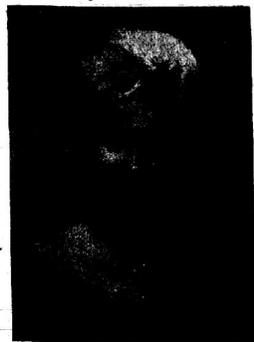

McGUIRE AND COMPTON

A letter from Hubert C. Lowman, 3332 North Corridor Drive, Covington, California, offers information on the McGuire and Compton families and poses a few questions. Mr. Lowman writes: "Family information in my possession says that Cornelius, Jr., married Eleanor McGuire in Tazewell county, Virginia, COMPTONVILLE, declared Cornelius McGuire's father as ELEANOR COMPTONVILLE declared, Cornelius McGuire, he had to have been born that 1790. The reasoning is that Eleanor McGuire, the eldest child of John, Jr., and wife Eleanor, was married in 1822. This Eleanor could scarcely have been born later than 1765, probably between 1760 and 1765.

"In 1770 James McGuire proved himself a French and Indian War in the Botetourt county court; the service in 1760. This James was probably born no later than 1742. He was a member of the Botetourt county court; the service in 1760. This James was probably born no later than 1742.

"Mrs. Mabel Rice, Paintsville, Kentucky, wrote it was your great-grandfather, William McGuire, who came to this county but went back to Tazewell, Ky. of legal age when he was 17. The above records show it was more than 100 years ago that he was born. It is also mentioned that several of the McGuire and Stratton families moved directly from Tazewell county, Kentucky, to Floyd county, Kentucky, in 1825. Another mentioned Second Lieutenant William McGuire was a preacher in the Botetourt county court; the service in 1760. This James was probably born no later than 1742.

Miss Wright, Mr. Lyle Wed

Mr. and Mrs. Henry B. Wright, of Prestonsburg, announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Jan Wright, to Mr. Lyle Wed, son of the Rev. and Mrs. G. G. Lyle, of Cave City, Kentucky.

The doubling ceremony was performed Saturday, June 1, in Hamilton, Ohio. Rev. Vernon D. Wright, pastor of the First Assembly of God Church, and brother of the bride, performed the ceremony.

Miss Jan Turner, of Cincinnati, Ohio, was the matron of honor and Mr. Bill Mahan, of Louisville, was Mr. Lyle's best man. The bride was given in marriage by her brother, H. E. Wright, Lexington, Kentucky.

Mrs. Lyle, who was graduated from Prestonsburg high school in 1958, recently completed four years of undergraduate work at the University of Kentucky where she majored in music education.

Mrs. Lyle is a 1962 graduate of Western Kentucky State College where she received an A.B. degree in history and political science. Her husband is a graduate of the University of Kentucky where she also majored in music education.

BEAR MARKET SALE

In this sale we go 'way, way back to Pioneer Days. And in this sale there hangs a tale—a bear's tail, if you will pardon the pun.
More than a hundred years ago, David Cooley, father-in-law of Isaac Richmond, operated a General Store in Prestonsburg.
In those early days of this, the oldest of Floyd county businesses, Mr. Cooley owned a bear which he kept chained to a tree on the property where the store was located on Front Avenue here, a few doors away from the site of the present store. It was his custom in those days to invite home with him for lunch all customers who happened to be in the store at the noon hour. The invitation was usually accepted, and stores and bears were left unattended.
On one such occasion Mr. Cooley and his friends returned to the store to find the bear had broken his chain. Since he kept sugar in a barrel, the whereabouts of the bear was no mystery. They found the barrel overturned and the bear helping himself to its content.
As a result of this incident, Mr. Cooley staged Prestonsburg's first sale of the sugar from the barrel, at bargain prices.
And now, a century later, we go 'way back to the bear and this bit of history to fill over for our customers and friends barrels and barrels of bargains in our Semi-Annual Sale, July, 1963.

SPRING FOREST FIRES HIT STATE IN RECORD NUMBER

Frankfort, Ky., July 27 (Sp.) — Kentucky experienced its severest spring forest fire season on record this year, State Conservation Commissioner J. O. Matlack has reported.

A total of 3,851 reported fires damaged 230,850 acres of timber land during the period from March 1 to May 15, he said, topping the worst previous record set in the spring of 1969, when there were 2,676 fires and 99,029 acres were damaged.

The increased number of fires was attributed primarily to high winds and below-average rainfall.

Gene L. Butcher, director of the Forestry Division, pointed out, however, that the State Conservation Department has no control over the weather conditions that spread and nurture fires. It can only put more emphasis on enforcing the fire control laws.

All of these fires were man-caused, Butcher said. "Some were set on purpose and some were accidentally started, but every one of them cost a person's life."

"It is our intention to step up the law-enforcement activities of the Forestry Division to cut down on the man-caused fires before the fall forest fire season begins," he said.

Butcher anticipates that the fall season, which begins around October 1, will also be more severe than usual if the drought conditions which were present this spring persist through the summer and fall.

Commissioner Matlack said he has instructed Butcher to "take whatever steps are necessary to intensify the law enforcement activities of the Forestry Division so that all individuals who can spend all their time on this job."

The Forestry Division has had only three men assigned full-time to enforcement of the fire-control laws since the program began in 1969. They receive assistance from the forestry field men, who help with fire-investigation along with their regular duties.

Matlack said one of the most common fire violations is the burning of debris without taking proper precautions. A Kentucky Statute prohibits any kind of brush-burning during the spring and fall fire seasons except between 4:30 p.m. and midnight, when danger of the fire spreading is not so great.

"It is my opinion," Matlack said, "that increased enforcement of Kentucky's forest fire control laws will do much to reduce the number of fires and consequently reduce the damage to Kentucky's timber lands."

Jest Among Us...

By Jack Wild

There is a good chance that printer's ink in the veins of an 11-year-old will inoculate him against other occupations for life.

After it ends the printing business, Don Grote, manager of the University of Kentucky Press printing plant, believes there may be some truth in the statement.

It has been exactly that many years since Grote's father bought a shop and weekly newspaper at Vanceburg, Kentucky, and put his offspring to work.

Since that time Grote's career in the printing business has ranged from editor and publisher of a weekly newspaper at Louisa, Kentucky, to supervising the printing of such scholarly books as "The Life and Writings of an Early 'Abolitionist'" at the University of Kentucky.

Grote's leaning toward the mechanical side of the printing business wasn't influenced by lack of scholarship. He attended Berea College and was graduated from U. K. in 1929, receiving the Sigma Delta Chi award for scholarship in journalism.

His mechanical inclinations were probably cultivated, Grote remembers, by his being called from school two or three times a week to fix the gasoline engine which powered his father's printing plant.

What is the difference between dealing with scientists who write books and the folks who subscribe to weekly newspapers? "I wouldn't want to comment on that," Grote says in his soft spoken, barely audible drawl. "I'm the non-argumentative type and can set along with most anyone."

After most people have been in one business as long as Grote they begin to think about retiring. "Not me," says Grote. "So many new processes are being introduced in printing that after 47 years it is beginning to get interesting."

OFFICIAL NOTICE OF THE ANNUAL MEETING OF MEMBERS for BIG SANDY RURAL ELECT

STILL NAMED TO MSC JOB

Famous Hindman Author Instructs In Writing As Associate Professor

Morehead, Ky., June 24 (Sp.)—James Still, nationally known poet, novelist, and short story writer, has been named to the Morehead State College English faculty as a permanent writer in residence.

Still, who will teach imaginative writing, the short story, Southern literature, and literature, will serve as an associate professor in the Division of Languages and Literature.

No stranger to the campus, Still spent the spring semester of 1961 as a writer in residence at Morehead. He has also served as a member of the Morehead State College Writer's Workshop staff for the past 10 summers, helping to make the annual two-week workshop one of the finest in the United States.

Still has served as librarian at the Hindman Settlement School since 1922 with a year's absence while serving in the Air Force. He lived in a 150-year-old two-room log house near Hindman, on Dead Mare Branch, where he did most of his writing—much of which has never been submitted for publication, even though there was a waiting market for anything he writes.

"I have no particular urge to publish," he said. "My urge is to write. There was a time when it seemed important to me to be constantly publishing, but not any more."

Still was honored at Morehead in 1961 when the college dedicated the James Still Room in Johnson Camden Library. The author's work turned over his manuscripts, correspondence and mention to the college and they are now on exhibit in the library.

Dr. Adrian Doran, president of Morehead State College, calls Still "one of the nation's outstanding writers." He said that are exceedingly pleased that a man of Jim's stature has joined our faculty. He adds a great strength to the Division of Languages and Literature.

Still has written three widely-acclaimed books and numerous short stories and poems which have been published in America's leading magazines.

His novel, "River of Earth," received the Southern Award as the best novel of the year in 1941 and his books, "Hound on the Mountain," a collection of poems, and "On Troublesome Creek," a collection of short stories, are regarded as modern classics.

Still has been a regular contributor to The Atlantic since 1936 and his short stories have appeared in numerous anthologies. "Mrs. Raton," a short story made into a television play, is one of three Still works to be selected to appear in Best American Short Stories.

Born in Alabama, the popular author earned the AB degree from Vanderbilt University and the BS degree in library science from the University of Illinois.

Travel Editors Affirm
Kentucky Parks Finest;
Tour Lasts Nine Days

"Frankfort, June 24 (Sp.)—Magnificent! Undoubtedly the best in the nation." These comments about Kentucky's state parks system were typical among editors who were guests on the recent 1963 Kentucky Travel Editors Tour. The 25 editors represent newspapers, magazines and feature syndicates with a combined total of more than 15 million circulation.

They got a close-up look at Kentucky's attractions during the nine-day tour, including results of the $19.9 million parks expansion program launched in 1961. The tour covered more than 1,100 miles—from Kentucky Lake in the west to Cumberland Gap in the east.

Editors visited 12 of Kentucky's 33 state parks and two national parks on the trip. They stayed overnight in new state park lodges at Kentucky Dam, Village Lake, Cumberland and Pine Mountain.

Co-sponsored by the state departments of Public Information and Parks and other travel interests, the tour is part of an intensified program to advertise and promote Kentucky's state and national parks, as well as privately-owned tourist accommodations.

Among other state parks the group visited were Kentucky Lake, Kentucky Forest, Jefferson Davis Monument, Cumberland Falls, Levi Jackson, Constitution Square, Pioneer Memorial, Lincoln Homestead and My Old Kentucky Home.

The editors also visited Louisville, the Governor's residence in Frankfort, Lexington and the historic homes and horse farms of the Bluegrass, Wolf Creek Dam, Harrodsburg and Bardonia.

National magazines represented included National Geographic and Bird's Magazine. Newspaper Enterprise Association of Cleveland, one of the nation's largest feature syndicates, also had a representative on the tour.

Michael Frome, of Alexandria, Va. affiliate writer and a leading travel authority, was a member of the group. Latest of his four books, "Whose Woods? These Are," was published in 1962.

Another tour member was J. Harold Brislin, Scranton, Pa., 1962 winner of the Pulitzer Prize for reporting.

Daily Bible Reading To Be Continued, Said; Directive Anticipated

Frankfort, Ky., July 1 (Sp.)—Kentucky's public schools may "continue present practices" in daily Bible reading to pupils until notified otherwise, the State Board of Education has decided.

A new directive will be issued the board said, when the State Department of Education and the Attorney General's office can clarify the recent Supreme Court ruling that such practices are unconstitutional as part of mandatory classroom exercises.

Kentucky law presently requires daily Bible reading for all pupils except those whose parents object. Wendell P. Butler, State superintendent of public instruction and chairman of the State Board, said "continue to read any prayer till somebody stops you. I don't want to make anybody stop."

The board also heard a progress report on integration in Kentucky schools. Only five school districts have no immediate plans for integration. These are the Fulton, Graves, Muhlenberg, Hickman and Todd county districts.

Also available at the same address is a gravity map published by the U. S. Survey. It deals with the relative mass—thickness—of subsurface rocks throughout Kentucky. The total price is 88 cents.

RUNYON ACQUITTED AS COURT RESTRAINS PIKE GRAND JURY

More than 160 Kentucky high schoolers have received the University of Kentucky Alumni Association's first annual award for high scholastic achievement.

Most of the awards were presented at high school graduation exercises held during the past several weeks across the state.

The Alumni Association inaugurated the awards this year as a means of giving their recognition to academic achievement.

The 1963 winners, as announced by Judge James Sutherland, Bloomfield, immediate past president of the Alumni Association, included those from Floyd and other Eastern Kentucky counties:

- Patricia Rogan, Middleboro high school; Leneda Rigby and Doris Ann Hampton, Paintsville high school; Janice Blakely, Evans high school; ...

An investigation of the Pike county school system and of alleged election irregularities will not be resumed, Judge Reese ruled today in a decision handed down in the future. The Kentucky Court of Appeals, Tuesday last week, restrained the grand jury, which had been called by Judge Reese from holding sessions.

The writ of the high court was served on Judge Reese Wednesday last week in accordance with the order he dismissed the requirement.

Woodrow Runyon, former school bus driver for the Pike county school system, was acquitted recently by a jury in Pike Circuit Court. Both Commonwealth's Attorney John Conner and County Attorney John Paul Runyon had refused to prosecute the defendant on charges of embezzlement of $10,000 from the system over a period of 10 years.

Francis Friend said the indictment was not in his province to prosecute. Reese read the indictment to the jury, no evidence was introduced and the jury returned a verdict of acquittal within five minutes.

Judge Reese had summoned the special grand jury to investigate alleged irregularities in the May primary and to continue investigation of the Pike county school system as recommended by the March grand jury.

Judge Reese, in his courtroom remarks concerning the writ, said he had been informed that the Commonwealth's Attorney, Friend, the County Attorney, J. P. Runyon, and the State Attorney, Mr. Verne, went to Frankfort, Monday and obtained the writ to prevent this. Judge Reese's holding a special grand jury at this time.

Eastern Is Conducting Summer Science Classes For Junior Hi Teachers

Eastern Kentucky State College, in conjunction with the National Science Foundation is presently conducting a Summer Science Institute in biology, chemistry, geology, and physics for science teachers from junior and senior high schools.

The institute, supported by a grant of $45,000 from the N.S.F., is the first program of its type to be held at Eastern. According to Institute Director, Dr. Darrell Saylor, of the Chemistry Department, 40 science teachers are seeking to increase and broaden their subject matter proficiency.

Personal stipends, plus dependency and travel allowances, make it possible for each participant to spend his full time for eight weeks in improving his knowledge of science. Junior high teacher participants are in the majority, making up some 60 per cent of the group.

Some of the teachers are from high schools with enrollment of 1,000 students and upwards, while others are from small schools where they teach only one grade in the self-contained classroom. One participant teaches in a one-room school.

Twenty-four of the participants are from widely-scattered areas within the Commonwealth, while the remaining sixteen are from ten other states.

Pinkerton Is Employed To Teach At Pikeville

The business courses Mr. Pinkerton will offer in the evenings are bookkeeping, shorthand and typing. They will be non-college credit courses and will be open to any interested persons.
