Outdoor Advertising Bar Brings Kentucky $65,488 From Federal Government

Frankfort, Ky., July 15 (Sp.)—Kentucky is the first state to completely in restricting outdoor advertising on interstate roads and has a check for $65,488 from the federal government for the effort. Commerce Secretary Luther Hodges presented the check to Gov. Bert Combs in Washington, commenting that "the people of Kentucky have given concrete evidence they want the interstate highway system in their state free from distracting signs which mar the beautiful countryside."

The bonus stems from a U. S. Bureau of Public Roads agreement with Kentucky that an amount equal to one-half of one per cent of federal interstate highway grants will be given when billboards are restricted. Nineteen other states have agreed but Kentucky is the first to fully comply with regulations and received the first check.

The amount is for the section of 184 from Frankfort to Middletown. Kentucky Highway Commissioner Henry Ward explained the state expects to receive about $2 million in bonuses by the time the 700 miles of interstate highway in Kentucky are completed. There are no restrictions on spending the money, Ward added.

Interest rates charges on the total outstanding farm debt was only a little higher in 1962 than in 1961. But amount of credit used by farmers has shown a strong upward trend for several years.

The Floyd county club members will join with club members from Johnson, Morgan, Magoffin, Elliott, Menifee, Martin and Lawrence counties.

4-H STRAWBERRY PROJECT

Fifteen Floyd County 4-H Club members received strawberry plants and fertilizer through the Sears Foundation projects this year. Club members receiving the project were Jim Dorrest, East Point; Andrew Ousley, Risner; Barnick Hicks, Hippo; Troy Ousley, Dock; Della Stone, Denny; Donny Sellers, Allen; Martha Cook, Drift; Dudley Collins, East Point; Ray Hunter, Prater; Raymond Goble, Jr., Hippo; Bonnie Hunter, Garrett; Freddy Martin, Prestonsburg; David Turner, Pyramid; Sandy Newsome, Harold; Bonnie Hatfield, Prestonsburg.

STRAWBERRIES

In many ways this was a rough strawberry season. Maybe the most difficult that we will have. Even with the food followed by drought, and then a late freeze killed a large percent of the blooms, several growers that I have talked with said they made some money. The short supply of berries throughout the middle states, caused prices to remain steady throughout the season. The shortage of berries also brought the truckers into the county to buy berries. Since these truckers were offering attractive prices, many growers sold at the patch rather than to the processor. This was predicted two years ago at several strawberry meetings. What made this situation so damaging this year was that total production had not reached the volume necessary to supply both fresh and process markets. The question that I would like to have answered and probably no one can, will the truckers be available again next year and the year after. The experience of those that have followed the strawberry game for many years, indicate that these truckers will not be back unless there is another short strawberry crop. The Big Sandy valley has great potential as a strawberry producing area. Today a good start has been made. Many growers have demonstrated that there is as much or more money to be made producing strawberries as any other farm enterprise. The land, people and market is available, what is needed now is a strong determination on the part of farmers and others to make it go. With the new strawberry patches set this spring, and the proper care of old patches, next spring should be the best strawberry year in the history of Floyd county. If every grower will pledge to first establish a process market, then I am sure the strawberry industry will grow so that there will be both a process and fresh strawberry market for all of the valley.

4-H FOOD EXHIBIT

This year the 4-H food project exhibit was larger and the quality better than in previous years. Fifty-two club members exhibited foods at the Rally Day this year.

Club members receiving blue ribbons on foods were Debbie Kendrick, Wanda Hunter, Sandy Parsons, Mae Rita Gayheart, Judy Spilbury, Wanda Garrison, Martha Fain, Sandy Boyd, Donna Hall, Rose Sturgill, Judy Lee, Glenda Reynolds, Sharon Stevens, Patty Akers, Tamagra Northcup, Diana Prater, Sandy Newsome, Sarah Hall, Emma Allen, Lynn Koutlley, Tam Waddles, Betty McGary, Ruth Martin, Phyllis Martin, Linda Reynolds, Glenda Hale, Denny Hall.

 A Pictorial Review of East Kentucky
 (No. 246 in a Series)

Captain Anderson Hays (1822-1912), C.S.A.

Captain Anderson Hays, Confederate veteran, was a son of John Hays and Elizabeth Anderson Hays, pioneer settlers of Right Beaver Creek, Floyd county. Capt. Hays married Rachel Sizemore and they were the parents of ten children, one of them being Lewis Hays, early settler at the Forks of Troublesome Creek, Knott county. Lewis Hays, first county clerk of Knott county, was the father of the late State Senator Doug Hays.

Hays fought at the Battle of Middle Creek, was captured at the Battle of Cynthiana and taken to Ohio where he was imprisoned. He finally escaped and returned to Buckhorn Creek, Breathitt county, but later returned to Troublesome Creek, Knott county. He was the leader of the Hays faction in the feud with Old Club Jones at Hindman but when peace was made he became a pillar of civic, social and political stability in the area.

The First National Bank presents these pictures in recognition of our historic heritage.

Surviving brothers and sisters are Monroe Combs, Hazard; Dolph Combs, in Otto; Mrs. Malba Scott, Garret county; Mrs. Clara Hicks, Robertson county, and Mrs. Della Ramsey, Knott county. Four grandchildren and one great-grandson survive.

Funeral rites were conducted Saturday from the home of Mrs. Maggie O'Quinn at Garrett, the Revs. Ed Moore and Burt Howard officiating. Burial was made in the Hoover cemetery at Garrett under the direction of Hall Brothers Funeral Home.

HARDSHIPS OF MANKIND SYMBOLIZED BY DREMA PRESENTED AT PINEVILLE

Pineville, Ky.—As the modern world writes under the shadow of it as to a magnet. As someone remarked, "There is no play aren't enough people in these hills to support this play on a see-one basis."

Yet, a drama from the oldest book of the Bible may provide a soothing balm to the disturbing questions of the atomic age.

It is titled, quite simply, "The Book of Job," from the same Biblical book, and starts as Hebrew scholars feel, as a play and written in verse for one actor, a bard, playing many parts, or for a company.

The tormenting question, "Why does man suffer?" is a constant and omnipresent query to mankind of every age, regardless of color, creed or race.

Mankind, as Job today, is a pawn within the nuclear condition. He is buffeted and harassed by the invisibility of man's inhumanity to man.

"How can God permit this?" he asks himself and the world. And there is no clear-cut answer to modern man or Job.

The Biblical Job unknowingly is a pawn in a celestial argument between God and Satan. God wagers that Job will remain unswerving loyalty despite the most fiendish tests to which Satan can put him. God's dignity rides on Job's faithfulness, and here perhaps is the only answer offered Job (or man) in the abyss of despair (minus sons, family, wealth, lands, cattle, friends, health and sight).

The answer and consolation is, "At last I am God's!" and the viewer leaves unsettled, perhaps, but fulfilled.

Such profound fare has taken on a spectacular showing in the scenic hill country of Southeastern Kentucky. This is hardly the center of the performing arts for avant garde drama.

Yet every summer since 1959 at Laurel Cove within the wooded confines of Pine Mountain State Park, Job has persevered throughout a relatively isolated location and has brightly prospered.

It has outlasted the usual two-to-three-year run very successfully. Despite the cardinal rule of being off the trodden tourist path, audiences for the last four years have substantially increased.

But this is not all. Few plays have dared to board the New York critics in their own den as did "The Book of Job." This past winter, during the New York newspaper strike, "Job" flourished while seventeen other Broadway and off-Broadway dramas folded. "Job" has appeared for the last two years at the off-Broadway Park Avenue Methodist Church.

Said the New York Times in 1961: "An awesome and most majestic production. The imagination is stirred, the eye magnetized. 'The Book of Job' should not be missed!"

The New York Morning Telegram: "One cannot but sit and be totally absorbed, feel its power and glory. No one should miss it."

"The Book of Job" raises a host of burred questions, answers few, but brings folks back. Many have even it a dozen times and return to it as to a magnet. As someone remarked, "There is no play aren't enough people in these hills to support this play on a see-one basis."

The fabric of "Job" weaves itself about every dramatic facet. Maleness, which transforms actors into flesh and blood mosaic Byzantine church windows; sackcloth costumes, in tune with Job's travails; steep formation, diamond-like, interchanging as a moving kaleidoscope, are startling and vivid to the eye; the voices, hollow, full, crying, whispering, singing, humming, lullaby themselves to Job's travails.

The cast of 101 farm state designs, numbering over 250, reflected in a reflecting pool in which colored light and their shadows, serve to give the production a larger-than-life almost ritual quality.

The setting is a cave, cathedral in the half-moonlight, where shadows cast shadowy images upon the simple stone seats. Civilization in the hush of forested Pine Mountain, seems forever away.

And "Job" starts again, each night, except Sunday, asking his eternally tormenting question at the Pine Mountain State Park, near Pineville, Ky.

Warning To Viewers Of Eclipse Is Issued; Blindness Is Threat

The Kentucky Ophthalmic Association this week warned against viewing the impending solar eclipse Saturday July 20 with the naked eye. The eclipse will be full or partial, depending upon the viewer's area. From Alaska to Maine, the eclipse will be total. A partial eclipse will occur over the rest of the nation.

Observers should not use telescopes, binoculars, sunglasses or any other type of glasses to see the eclipse in the past. In 1959, 171 Australians suffered partial loss of central vision after watching an eclipse for a few seconds. Complete blindness was reported in 23 cases in Utah in 1960.

Unfortunately, there is no immediate hint of danger. Complete blindness was reported in 23 cases in Utah in 1960.

Dr. Joe Cheek, Bowling Green, president, advised the use of neutral density filters or the construction of a simple viewing aid. Permanent retinal damage and blindness have been reported after eclipses in the past. In 1959, 171 Australians suffered partial loss of central vision after watching an eclipse for a few seconds. Complete blindness was reported in 23 cases in Utah in 1960.

Dr. Cheek suggested the use of a pinhole device which avoids the harmful infrared rays. It can be made by punching a clean hole with a pin through a piece of cardboard.

The viewer should turn his back to the sun, hold the punched cardboard over one shoulder and let the sun rays come through the hole into another piece of white cardboard. The sun's image is thus reflected on the white cardboard with no damage to the viewer's eyes.

Dr. Cheek emphasized that no attempt be made to view the eclipse through the pinhole itself. It simply intensifies the damage.

Governor To Be Speaker At Combs Family Reunion

Governor Bert T. Combs will be the speaker at the Combs family reunion to be held at Hazard Memorial gymnasium from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Sunday August 25. It was announced here this week.

The reunion will include all who are related to the Combs family by blood or marriage; residents or non-residents of Kentucky. Those who desire may bring their lunches; otherwise, box lunches will be available.

More than 40,000 wintered birds, white chicks were delivered to cooperator's sportsman's club's through-out Kentucky this spring. These winter chicks were produced in heated quarters at the State Game Farm near Frankfort and sent to clubs which have facilities to raise them until they are six weeks old. At that age these early birds are released into the fields where it is hoped they will produce covets their first year.

"Grassroots Ambassadors" IFYE's from the U. S. spend about five months in the countries they visit as "grassroots ambassadors." Living with rural families and taking part in their everyday life. This year, 68 countries are taking part in the exchange. Kentucky has five 1963 IFYE delegates. All this year's delegates are girls; more especially from young men are especially needed for the 1964 program.

Gipe was an active in the Optimist Club in Louisville and he and his family are members of the South Louisville Christian Church.

Wildlife Service Crew Study Trout Situation; Stream Restocking Noted

A three-man crew has arrived from the Federal Fishery Service in Atlanta, Georgia, to study the trout needs for Kentucky streams and lakes. Aides of the Kentucky Fish and Wildlife Resources Department will work with them and possibly other federal agents from Washington to conduct a survey in the Kentucky Division of Fisheries.

A survey last year indicated that expanded hatchery facilities in neighboring states could meet the demand for trout stockings in Kentucky. However, Edward E. Thompson, of Louisville, an ardent fisherman, went to Washington in March with a petition of 12,000 signatures which described the study as inadequate. This petition asked a trout hatchery for Kentucky.

The best conditions for trout in Kentucky streams is to be studied by the federal crews, Carter said. A stream is automatically "good" as a trout source, if the temperature is over 72 degrees. Trout need temperatures between 60 and 70 degrees for optimum conditions, such as those in the trucks which transport them from hatcheries.

Kentucky's Division of Fisheries has been restocking its trout streams with 15,000 to 20,000 pounds a year from the Paint Bank, Virginia, hatchery, some 500 miles from Frankfort. About 90 truck trips a year are required for this transfer.

Additional help is expected from a trout hatchery now under construction at Colma, Tennessee, near the Kentucky state line. The long-range plan of Kentucky's Fish and Wildlife Resources Department would require an annual, assured supply of trout, Director Carter emphasized.

Heavyweight Champ Bout Scheduled for Broadcast

WEHS 440 Radio will broadcast the return bout for the World's Heavyweight Championship from Convention Hall in Las Vegas on Monday, July 22, 9:30 p.m. between Champion Sonny Liston and challenger Floyd Patterson.

A network of over 400 stations are expected to broadcast the fight to an estimated audience of over 67 million listeners. The ABC blow-by-blow commentary will be led by Howard Cosell doing the color Ring-side commentary for the title clash is returning heavyweight champion Rocky Marciano.

A special pre fight program produced by the WHAS Sports Department giving a run down on each fighter will be aired at 9:00 p.m. on the Louisville station.

First round winner and Heavyweight Champion of the World, Sonny Liston now has a record of 24 wins by knockout in 35 professional bouts. A title to his strength and boxing ability.

Patterson is the only man in the history of professional boxing to represent the Heavyweight Championship on Monday night he will try to repeat the record.

The fight will also be carried on closed circuit television.

High School Dropouts Subject of Conference; Problem Second In State

Frankfort, July 8 (Sp.)—A state-wide youth conference, August 22-23 in Louisville, will make plans to combat the continuing problem of high school dropouts in Kentucky.

The state in 1962 had the second-highest dropout rate, 42.8 percent, in the nation. An intensive survey of the situation by the Kentucky Department of Education is to be released at the conference.

Gov. Bert Combs has directed all units of state government in the Health and Welfare Agency to participate in arrangements for the conference in co-operation with the Kentucky Commission on Children and Youth.

Themes of the five sessions at the Kentucky hold over the two-day period will be "School Dropouts—Road to Social Disaster."

An organization in every county—if possible, in every community—for study and action is the main purpose of the conference. More than 5,000 invitations have been issued to county and community leaders, representatives of public agencies and to citizens active in programs for children.

The Kentucky conference was planned as part of a national movement after a study by Dr. James Conant, former president of Harvard University, who called the condition "social dynamite."

In New England, where the fox hunt was the rage, the Buck and the New England Native strains originated.

In the northeastern states, where the going is tough and now is common, a number of strains have been developed, some named after the originating families, others for their geographic location. These are the Gossett, the Merritt, the Helderberg, Green Mountain, Adirondack, Catskill and White Mountains. Another strain of distinction, noted for its ability to take the rough going in snowy country, is the Cook hound, established by Mr. H. E. Cook of Detroit, Michigan. Many of these hounds were used successfully in wolf hunting.

Another excellent strain is the Travis, developed by George Travis and widely distributed among his fox-hunter friends.

State's Senior Golfers Ready for Tournament; Ray Fraley to Compete

Ashtland, Ky., July 15 (Sp.)—Kentucky's senior golfers—age 55 and over—are ready to compete in preparation for the annual senior championship tournament to be held this month over Bellefonte Country Club's course here.

Defending Champion Art Nuttall, of Louisville, will be on hand to seek another state title. Ray Fraley, of Whitesburg, current holder of the Butler Trophy, and last year's medalist Earl Walker, of Louisville, also will be attempting to repeat their victories of last year at Idle Hour Country Club at Lexington.

James J. Ryan, Sr., vice-president and senior tournament chairman of the Kentucky State Golf Association, says the 12-yard, par-70 Bellefonte course will be in excellent condition for the matches to be held July 25 through July 27.

"This is the only tournament limited exclusively to senior golfers in Kentucky," Ryan said, "and if early entries are any indication, we can expect an excellent turnout of competitors from every section of the state."
