Give Uncle His Cut!

Uncle Sam is, apparently, our coldest blooded businessman relative. Give him his cut, and he has little concern about how you get the money. Is it bootlegging you have a...

Apparently the old get wouldn't give a spare whisker about what happens in the counties, cities and states as long as federal revenues are not fluctuating. And the cold cash will fix all that. It may be illegal to sell whiskey in a county such as Floyd, but the federal government will license anybody who has the price of a stamp to sell it.

The federal government should go out of the business of licensing liquor operations in local option territory—or, it should go all the way and license those moonshiners whom its agents seek so diligently.

Crusade Against Ignorance

(An editorial in The Courier-Journal)
Lament the past week Governor Bert Coates, in an effort to launch a statewide "crusade against ignorance" has set forth a three-phase program to overcome the effects of a half century of educational neglect and delay.

An even more difficult problem, and one that may eventually require even more radical remedies, is the problem of drop-outs. Each year in Kentucky, it is estimated, some 100,000 children are unable to complete high school. As the Governor would have it, every child in the state should be able to complete high school.

To accomplish these aims, the Governor proposes remedies for the most neglected areas of the state. He proposes to require all children to attend classes in order to qualify for continued aid. It is a method that has been tried with considerable success in Chicago as a method of underrating immigrants, chiefly from the south, has urged the city and Cook county a massive corps of immigrants for whom public welfare has become a way of life.

There are many reasons for this financial pressure: lack of parents or parents who are unable to afford the part of a child's education, and the results are placed on the state. Sixty-two percent of the country's juvenile delinquents are drop-outs. So are three-fourths of the inmates at LaGrange Reformatory and two-thirds of those in Kentucky State Penitentiary.

It is a fact that the State has no place for the ignorant. Yet more than half of the children who leave school in Kentucky do not finish high school, and they are present in the schools that start high school do not graduate.

One of a series of reports by this newspaper and The Print Advertising Association on the advantages of legal mail.

Don't you read before you buy? Most people generally do. Not only do they read; they cut out and show ads to their family and friends; they clip coupons for information and samples. When people see an advertisement in print, they can compare designs, features, and prices of nationally known products and services. (And people do compare for the best.) Advertising in print is a handy thing you can always check back; the message is all there even if your attention is distracted.

TIDBITS OF KENTUCKY FOLKLORE

THE OLD HOME
An old folkway that is hard for the younger generations to understand is the reverence paid to the "old home," the center of a family, often for several generations.

Recently I have read Donald Hall's STRONG THOUGHT TO BE SAVED, a well-written account of the author's grandfather's home in central New Hampshire in the early thirties. All his childhood he, the only grandchild, looked forward to spending most of vacation from school at the old homestead and helping his grandfather on the rather old-fashioned farm.

John Steinbeck's hauntingly pictures in his TRAVELS WITH CHARLEY, the fine old residential areas in our cities that once were the last word in elegance, where living on a certain street gave one a sense of belonging to the very best in modern society. These years ago, the mansions, the great old houses, new suburbs are opened, and the palaces often become, for many years, slums or even deserted and become, as we used to say, old mansions. Once in a great while some modern groups have the sense of a child that was a kindred spirit until ten years ago. No trace of what the attraction was is to be seen; only the ruins left to be torn down and the areas used for parking lots or new business buildings; just today I stopped to buy some gasoline at a brand-new station that occupies the site of an old mansion that was a landmark until ten years ago.

100 YEARS AGO THIS WEEK
The Civil War in Kentucky
By JOE JORDAN
(Kentucky Civil War Commission)

One hundred years ago this week... Under these circumstances it was Kentucky elected a governor and not astonishing that two Union Army officers favoring support officers, Col. Thomas E. Bramlette of the Lincoln administration and Col. Richard T. Jacob, were his war effort. A few days before elected governor and lieutenant general the election, Maj. Gen. A. B. Burnside, respectively by majorities, commander of the Union of about four to one because the Army of the Ohio, from his head "Republican" was unpopular in Kentucky, they had run as "Union" men putting Kentucky under Democrats' Wickliffe and his associates.

Who Loves A Critic?

From Newsweek's review of Judy Garland's latest movie: "Singing isn't really what she does any more. Acting is not exactly what she does, either. And glamour surely isn't what she's selling."

Time Magazine's review of the movie, "Miracle of the White Stallions" ends with this: "The supporting players are obviously off their feed. And Actor Robert Taylor—well, frankly, a horse that acts the way he does wouldn't usually be shipped to the glue factory."

THE FAMILY
Close to 74 percent of U. S. farms have telephone service and 90 percent of these are modern dial phones, reports USDA's Rural Electrification Administration.

MOUNTAINEER WRITES BOOK ABOUT SUBJECT HE KNOWS

By ROBERT WALLACE
Librarian, Eastern Kentucky Regional Library
We like to read a book about our people, especially if it says nice things about us. The author of NIGHT COMES TO THE CUMBERLANDS does not say nice things about us, but it is a book about us. It is the most interesting book about us in many years.

THE CUMBERLANDS knows what Whitehe is talking about. He writes on the back of the book that he has lived in the mountains and knows the people and the life. He writes on the back of the book that he has lived in the mountains and knows the people and the life.

WHO DIDN'T SPARE TREE?-- BEAVER CAUGHT ON THE JOB
(Elliott County News)
The rugged cliff country along the Red River gorge in Wolfe county is becoming increasingly popular with sportsmen and outdoor lovers as a place of natural beauty and fine fishing. And nearly every party that goes into the "Roughs" comes out with some interesting experience to relate.

While camping at the mouth of Red River—some three miles up the river from Elliott County—Bob Rose, Earl Kinner, Jr., and Jim Gross, all of West Liberty, were visiting on Wednesday morning by Otis Landrum, of Pomeroy, who along with bait and hooks, had brought his squirrel dog with him. While the men were eating enormous fat bass at the mouth of Clifty Land, the dog began to bark furiously over the bank across the river from the mouth of the creek. Landrum crossed the river and went to investigate.

Other large beavers. The beaver then made a beeline over the bank across the river from the mouth of the creek. Landrum crossed the river and went to investigate.

 Rev. Moran was widely known in Eastern Kentucky. He conducted a revival last year at Allen. He had traveled in 27 foreign countries, working with Methodist missionaries.

The son of a minister, Moran was born in Ohio but spent most of his life in Michigan. His parents are the Rev. and Mrs. C. E. Moran, Peck, Michigan.

Moran attended Asbury College and was graduated from Asbury Theological Seminary in 1949.

Besides his wife and parents, he is survived by a daughter, Linda Jean Moran, and a son, Edwin Lee Moran, Lexington, and three brothers: Stanton Moran, Ann Arbor, Michigan; Paul David Moran, Owosso, Michigan; and Joseph Moran, Flint, Michigan.

The body was removed by air service to Herald & Stewart Funeral Home, West Liberty, where it lay in state from Wednesday till 5 p.m. Thursday, then was removed to the Centenary Methodist Church, Lexington, to be in state until 2 p.m. Friday, August 9. Rev. Russell Patton officiated at the service. Interment was in Blue Grass Memorial Gardens, Lexington.

BLAST ROCKS PROJECT SITE

Earth-Moving Equipment Dynamited In Magoffin; State Police Seek Clues

State police and Highway Department investigators joined Monday in efforts to identify the persons who blew up $36,000 worth of construction machinery on the Eastern Parkway extension in Magoffin county.

The entries of two large earth-movers and one bulldozer were blown to bits with dynamite last Thursday night on the project site three miles west of Salversville. Highway Commissioner Henry Ward said he will take all steps to track down the guilty, mostly because such incidents can hinder road improvement programs in the mountains.

Receipts of the incidents, he said, soon would be reflected in construction bids. Contractors would have to include higher insurance and performance bond costs in their bids. He was concerned, too, over the prospect that some of the larger contractors would refuse to bid if faced with possible trouble on projects in the mountains, which have a history of violence.

The dynamiting occurred about 10:30 p.m. last Thursday. No one was injured, but a mechanic narrowly escaped death. Ward said the unidentified mechanic heard the first blast and drove to the scene in a jeep to investigate. He drove past one piece of equipment just before the second blast.

"John Kenny told me that if the man had stopped he would have been blown to bits, too," Ward said. Kenny is head of the Kenny Construction Company, of Illinois, with headquarters in Skokie, Illinois.

Kenny has contracts for $5,187,899 worth of construction work on the extension of the Eastern Kentucky Parkway from Campton to Salversville. His two projects cover eight miles.

A threat of violence has been connected with Kenny's work since it was started a year ago. Pickets have appeared from time to time protesting that too few local workers were being employed.

Two other unconfirmed reports apparently were in the investigation. One is that about 15 workers reported for work in a drunken condition on the site of the project. They were smashed by heavy equipment.

Another is that local rock-belters have appeared from time to time, Virginia firm that brought in larger trucks.

Kenny officials were reported in Salversville to be out of the county and unavailable for comment. Kenny himself conferred in Frankfort Monday with Ward and apparently was on the way back to the project.

Ward said he assured Kenny that the state will provide all protection possible. "I feel very strongly that the state has an obligation to protect contractors, even though our own equipment was not involved," Ward said.

He said he had assigned officials to investigate the matter. They will work with State Police investigators. "If necessary, I also will hire professional investigators," Ward added.

Public Safety Commissioner Glenn Lovern said his State Police detective staff is adequately manned to conduct a thorough investigation and that such is planned.

Gamma Globulin Allotted To Counteract Infections Affecting Many In State

Frankfort, Ky.—Gamma globulin, a blood fraction which fights certain diseases and infections, will again be available to Kentuckians through the State Health Department during the 1964 fiscal year. The American National Red Cross is allotting the state 11,296 cubic centimeters (cc) of gamma globulin this year.

The first quarterly shipment of the allotment arrived this month. In addition to this amount, Kentucky usually purchases between 3,000 to 4,000 cc of gamma globulin each year to meet needs beyond that of the Red Cross allotment. Counties buy this when necessary, with local funds to supplement the Red Cross supply.

The gamma globulin is available to protect household contacts of hepatitis patients, women exposed to German measles during the first three months of pregnancy and to prevent rubella (red measles) in children up to two years of age. Last year it was obtained for more than 13,000 Kentuckians exposed to hepatitis, more than 1,000 expectant mothers and for approximately 3,500 children. This gamma globulin may be obtained through the county health departments.

About 127 of the 2.5 million pints of blood collected annually by the Red Cross is processed into fractions of which gamma globulin is one. This is then distributed on the basis of population and amount of blood collected in each of the 50 states, the District of Columbia, and the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico.

Gamma globulin is sent to county health departments by the Kentucky State Department of Health when cases requiring it are reported. The Red Cross places no restrictions on the use of gamma globulin in any application except that no charge be made for the material.

The continuance of the gamma globulin distribution by the Red Cross depends largely on the financial support of the public and blood donations through local support of the bloodmobiles throughout the state. Greater quantities of blood may be collected in Kentucky if the state a larger gamma globulin allotment for the fiscal year.

4-H WEEK

Eight 4-H Club members and one extension agent from Floyd county joined some 4-H club members and county Extension workers and local volunteer 4-H leaders in attending the annual state 4-H Leadership Conference, held at the University of Kentucky, June 10-12.

The 4-H'ers, who represented almost 500 4-H boys and girls in the state, heard talks and took part in discussions on their responsibilities as citizens. Special sessions also were planned for the adults attending this 40th annual 4-H meeting at U.K.; the leaders and agents discussed plans for exploration and trends in 4-H work.

Delegates from Floyd county were Burgess Lowe, E. E. Martin, Dennis Warden, Joe Ed Owsley, Mae Rita Gayheart, Sharon Sturill, Martha Fain, Sarah Hall and Mrs. Frances H. Pitts.

LIVESTOCK REQUIREMENTS

The State Department of Agriculture requires all cattle shown at the state or county fairs to be tested for brucellosis within 14 days before the show. This regulation is for the protection of the farmers. Many high priced cattle are shown before the state fair and regulation it would be easy for one animal with brucellosis to spread infection to several herds.

This regulation will apply to the Floyd County Fair. No cattle without a clean testing record will be allowed to be unloaded at the fair grounds.

The state will provide testing service to the farmers. For this service call Roy Cook (Telephone number 277-2463).

Livestock

Livestock will be shown Saturday, September 7, near the old football field. Fair catalogs will be available in a few days and may be obtained from the Extension Office.

If all farmers owning stock would participate in this year's test it would be the best fair in the history of the county.

NEW LAWN

Several new homes have been built in county this year. Each of these homeowners are now faced with the problem of establishing a lawn. Too often this is passed over until the winter and the grass is scattered in hopes of having a beautiful lawn. This usually does not happen. To establish a new lawn requires some advance planning and several hours of work and money.

Anyone expecting to seed a new lawn should plan to complete the seeds before October and preferably during the first two weeks of September.

The first step is to have a soil test made to find out how much lime, potash and phosphate is needed. Then after the lawn is grade, add three inches of top soil and spread ground corn cobs or similar organic matter. Then add the fertilizer recommended on the soil test plus 100 pounds of nitrogen nitrate per 1,000 square feet. The extra nitrogen is to help decay the sawdust. Follow this by using a rotary tillage and mix the sawdust with the top six inches of soil.

Settle the soil by watering with sprinklers. A thorough soaking is needed at this time.

These steps should be completed as soon as possible. Then in September cultivate the surface of the lawn enough to roughen it, remove any weeds which have grown, and sow your grass seed.

If the lawn seeded by October 10, it would be best to either sod, or to seed to annual ryegrass and wait until next September to seed.

Additional information is available at your Extension office.

STRAWBERRY WEED CONTROL

Strawberry growers are now facing a critical time in their patches. Corn fields are now "laid by" and some strawberry growers feel their strawberry patches can now be forgotten. This is not so. If grass is now reaching ideal growth conditions. The weather is hot and strawberries are not growing fast enough to offset competition. There are now many strawberry fields are lost between August 1 and frost in the spring.

Another problem a few growers have faced is over cultivation. The strawberry runners must take root and be allowed to grow and then make a wide row. To do this, the cultivation must be pulled in and not plowed too close to the berries.

Craig Sewing is a well known weed control material for strawberries. This material is very effective if used properly. Most reports of failure are usually because the material is improperly used. Follow directions on the packages, or obtain our leaflet explaining proper use.

The 1964 feed grain program will be basically the same as the state feed program. B. O. Wilson, Chairman, Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation State Commission, says the shipment period for both fall and spring-corn crops is planned for early 1964.

Educational TV Heads Appointed, Announced; Program Purpose Told

Frankfort, Ky., August 5 (Sp.)—O. Leonard Press has been appointed executive director and Ronald Stewart has been named director of the Kentucky Authority for Educational Television. It has been announced by Dr. Roy H. Bowling, Auburn chairman.

The Association between Press and Stewart will continue one of nearly four years at the University of Kentucky in Lexington. Press has been head of the Department of Radio, Television and Films and director of the U. K. Broadcasting Service since September, 1958. Stewart has been technical director of the University service since October, 1959.

Educational television will supplement the regular classroom instruction. Its main purpose is to make available to even the smallest and most isolated schools top-flight instructional aids for the teacher and laboratory facilities many of these schools cannot afford. Use of educational television will be entirely up to the local school districts.

Press, 41, a native of Lowell, Massachusetts, has been on the staff of the University for 11 years, having joined U. K. in September, 1952, as program supervisor. He has also served as program consultant to the National Educational Radio and Television Center in New York and Ann Arbor, Michigan, and to the National Association of Educational Broadcasters in Washington.

He has been vice-chairman of the Kentucky Authority for Educational Television since its organization last year. This year he has been a consultant to the U. S. Office of Education regarding the Educational Television Fielding Act.

Stewart, 29, a native of Jenkins, Kentucky, was chief engineer for radio station WBLG in Lexington prior to joining the U. K. He was graduated from the University in 1960 with a degree in electrical engineering.

Offices for the Authority will be housed temporarily in a U. K. building until a permanent structure is completed on the campus. Test operations are planned for next spring or early summer, with full-time programs scheduled to start in September, 1964.

Ten transmitter stations are to be built. They are to be located at Ashland, Covington, Hazard, Madisonville, Pikeville, Somerset, Bowling Green, Lexington, Morehead and Murray. In addition, it is expected that the production and transmitting facilities of the Jefferson County Board of Education at Louisville will be tied in with the system.

Lexington, Ky.—Biblical agricultural knowledge combined with modern food processing and marketing methods has resulted in a product which may help expand markets in U. S. wheat, according to the U. S. Department of Agriculture. The product is bulgur, a dried whole-wheat food that has long been a staple in the Middle East.

Miss Connie Mitchell Weds Ronald L. Hammons At Frankfort, June 8

Miss Connie Mitchell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gene Mitchell, of Gretna, Kentucky, was married to Ronald L. Hammons, son of Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Hammons, of Frankfort, Kentucky, in a wedding ceremony June 8 at the home of her parents.

The double-ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. Gene Corbett in a setting of red roses, gladioli and pink peonies. Mrs. Corbett played the organ and sang "I Love You Truly" and "Tell Me Why."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white, ruffled lace, street-length dress fashioned with a satin, fitted bodice and a scoop neckline that dipped in the back to reveal a lace and satin bow that hung to the hem. Her veil was of pure silk tulle imported from France.

Mrs. Lois Mitchell, sister of the groom, was maid of honor. She wore a street-length dress of yellow chiffon. Her bridesmaid was accompanied with tiny bows and a nose-length veil. Lowell Mitchell, brother of the bride, was best man.

The mother of the bride wore a blue sheath silk dress with white accessories and a white carnation corsage. The mother of the groom wore a blue jersey dress with harmonizing accessories and a white carnation corsage.

Mrs. Hammons was graduated from Belle Layne high school in the class of '62. She was a member of FFA, Music Club and president of the senior class. She is now an employee of the Commonwealth of Kentucky at Frankfort.

Mr. Hammons was graduated from Franklin County high school at Frankfort. He is now stationed at Baltimore, Maryland, with the Navy as personnelman third class.

LaRUE SCHOOLS RECOGNIZED FOR PHYSICAL EDUCATION

Physical education for LaRue students added that after 1952 the percentage unable to pass was down to nine.

In the overall survey, the council said that during that 1962-1963 school year, four out of every five children passed a minimum test of strength, agility, and flexibility as compared to two of every three children tested in 1961.

While there have been big gains in physical-fitness programs and the number of children participating, the council cautioned that more must be done. It said California is the only state requiring daily participation by every student in a physical education period. It said 70 percent of public school pupils in Grades 4 to 12 have no program at all.

The council went on to say they will begin aiming at the adults now. Despite the gains, the report said, the United States "still has a long way to go to match foreign countries in physical fitness programs."

Still, it said, "Today's school children are spending more time in physical fitness programs and are measurably stronger and in better condition than the school children of a few years ago. A significant trend also is noted at the college level. The decline in the physical fitness of entering freshmen apparently has been checked and reversed."

The council operates under the direction of C. B. "Bud" Wilkinson, President John F. Kennedy's consultant on physical fitness and football coach at the University of Oklahoma.

Scholarship Plan Made For Over-Age Children In State Institutions

A scholarship plan for vocational training of older children in state institutions has been announced by Richard J. Clendennen, commissioner of the Kentucky Department of Welfare.

Clendennen said the new plan calls for sending selected children 16 to 18 years old to the Mayo Vocational School at Paducah and West Kentucky Vocational School at Paducah. Funds are available to meet their expenses of enrollment and living at the schools, Clendennen said. He estimated the cost at about $600 a year for each student.

To start the plan, $6,000 is available, the commissioner reported. He said this is more than enough for 12 scholarships. Eight of these would go to selected children at the Kentucky Children's Home, and the others to youngsters at Kentucky Hilltop, the State Reception Center, and the Barkley State Camp for Boys, with allotments varying by need.

The money is to come from Social Security payments, matronly survivors' benefits, which a number of dependent children receive. A portion of these payments goes to the account of the beneficiaries and a portion into a pooled fund of the institution which shelters them.

Another source of scholarship money is the Kentucky Children's Home Corporation, which disposes of the children from that institution. R. G. H. nearly 70 years ago. The corporation board has authorized a grant of $1,000 to pay tuition, fees and incidentals for C. C. children in high schools, junior colleges, and vocational schools.

State-Chartered Banks Show Resources Upped; Commissioner Comments

Frankfort, Ky., August 5 (Sp.)—Kentucky's 27 state-chartered banks showed an increase of 8.3 percent in total resources on June 30, compared with the same date last year, Banking Commissioner H. A. Rogers has reported.

Rogers said the increases showed "a vigorous climb well above our expectations." The 1963 figure is $1,982,807,021 for June, 1963, compared with $1,538,335,238 on June 30, 1962, an increase of more than $443 million.

Another source of scholarship money is the Kentucky Children's Home Corporation, which disposes of the children from that institution. R. G. H. nearly 70 years ago. The corporation board has authorized a grant of $1,000 to pay tuition, fees and incidentals for C. C. children in high schools, junior colleges, and vocational schools.

Total deposits in June, 1963, were up $161 million over last year. The biggest jump was in the time deposits which reflect the higher interest rates now being paid. Rogers said. Time deposits rose from $538 million to $417 million over the 12 months.

Demand deposits showed a significant increase, from $721 million to $796 million this year. Total capital accounts of the institutions were $285.5 million this year, compared with $148.5 million last June. But increased deposits lowered the percentage of total capital to total resources from 18.8 percent last year to 9.26 this year.

Rogers explained this means the banks have 9.26 percent in capital funds above the national average. In addition, Kentucky's 27 banks have $1.4 billion in deposits under federal regulation. The latter include "national" in their names and are insured in federal funds. These banks are not included in the report by Rogers.

Urges Subscribers Keep Phone On Hook

Please don't leave your telephone off the hook. That's the request of Leroy Warren, plant manager for the Southern Bell Telephone Company in Paintsville and Prestonsburg. Mr. Warren said several subscribers each week who report their telephones are out of order have really just forgotten to replace the receiver on the hook.

Nearly 8,000 cases of trouble reported during the first six months of this year in Southern Bell territory in Kentucky were the direct result of customers not replacing their receivers properly, Warren said. He pointed out that not only their own service was affected, but also the service of other subscribers on the same party line also found his telephone dead. In many cases, Warren said, he discovered an extension telephone had been left off the hook and forgotten when another member of the family had taken the call on the telephone elsewhere in the home.

EAST-WEST GAMES
Saturday night in Lexington the annual East-West high school basketball and football games will be held for the 12th time. Representing this area in the basketball skirmish will be Virginia's six-foot-four center, Don Blair, and Carl Creek has all-starer Lewis Couch and William Fannin, both of whom played under East coach, Morton Combs. In the East-West football game, E.K.W.C. is represented by Bell's all-state quarterback, Floyd Hatfield; halfback John M. Ratliff and John Collins, of Pikeville; and Donnie Phlips, of Elkhorn City. William's Delano Thomas and tackle Jimmy Stamper were named but failed to accept the invitation to play. All of the players named from this area were all-conference selections last season.

All Eastern Kentucky football coaches and football officials are required to attend the annual Eastern Kentucky football rules clinic at Prestonsburg high school next Tuesday night at 7:30. The clinic is sponsored by the Kentucky High School Athletic Association, E. B. May, Jr., of Prestonsburg, is the region's official representative. Prestonsburg high school football coach Bert Dixon had 30 candidates report for fall practice drills Monday. The Black Cats will play a ten-game schedule, with home games set for September 18, Elkhorn City, October 11, Bell; October 18, Whitesburg; November 1, Paintsville.

ALL-STAR GAME
William's annual West Virginia-Kentucky Kivans all-star football game will be played in the West Virginia city Saturday, August 17, at 8:30 p.m. (E.S.T.). Bell's coach, Al Vipperman will coach the Kentucky team and be assisted by Jack Hall, of Elkhorn City, and Carl Ward, of Ceredo-Kenova. Jim Perry, of Crum, will handle the West Virginia team. Some of the players on the Kentucky roster are: Ernest Tabert, Claude Tolliver and Kenneth Duff of Fleming-Neon; Hiram Wright, Billy Wright and Jerry Coode, of Whitesburg; David Scholer, Elkhorn City; John Turner, Paintsville; George Shell, John Fleming and Craggton Hamill, Jenkins; Larry Lee, Caledonia; William Pelner, Leslie County; Jay Collier, Pikeville; Marnel Arnett, M. C. Napier, and Soney Phillips and John Coleman, Bell.

School Program Aided From Governor's Fund; Curbak Is Prevented
Youth Councils, to deal with the problem of Kentucky's school dropouts, are being set up at the local level, have been set up in 50 Kentucky counties. Dr. Cathryn Hainsman, chairman of the Kentucky Commission on Children and Youth, has announced. In Floyd county, appointments to the council have been accepted by Judge Henry Shumbo, Superintendent Charles Clark and Richmond School. They will represent the county at a forthcoming statewide conference on school dropouts set for August 22-23 at the Kentucky hotel in Louisville. "We want this conference to be a practical one," Dr. Hainsman said, "and in order to do so, we need help from the local level. An organization in every county is the ultimate goal of the Commission. We have invited all county judges and school superintendents to select a third council member and participate in the local movement. In addition," she said, "we hope the county youth councils will provide continuing study and action on a year-round basis. Kentucky in 1962 had the second highest school dropout rate in the nation—48.2 percent. An intensive report of the situation will be released next August, and will be the Kentucky Department of Education.

Forestry Award Contest Deadline Is Announced; $1,000 Cash Prizes Set
The deadline to enter the Tom Wallace Farm Forestry Awards Competition has been extended two weeks until August 29. Kentucky and Southern Indiana farmers have until that time to submit entries in the ninth annual contest, which offers $1,000 in cash prizes. Designed to emphasize the importance of an active farm forestry program, the competition is sponsored by The Courier-Journal, The Louisville Times and WHAS, Inc. To be eligible for the grand prize of $500 or the second prize of $200, the farmer must have completed his forestry program over a period of several years or in a single year. However, the improvement awards of $200 and $100 are based on progress made since last August. A certificate of merit will be presented to the top entrant in each county from which five or more entries are received. Entry blanks and complete rules may be obtained from foresters, county agents, conservationists, or by writing the Public Service Department of the newspapers.

? WILDLIFE ? QUESTIONS ? AND ANSWERS ?

Q. A few days ago I was fishing in a state-owned lake and was told that I could take but 15 bluegill. It was my understanding that there was no limit on the number of bluegill that can be taken from Kentucky waters. Why this limit on specific lakes? J.R.B. Spencer, county.

A. Different rules apply to newly opened state-owned waters, both as to size and creel limits. This is necessary to protect the fish during the formative years of the lake and to guarantee so far as possible a sustaining population of fish. Yes, in some of the lakes only 15 bluegill may be taken. There is no size limit on bluegill but for bass there is a size limit and creel limit for a fisherman is that he should acquire himself with the rules of the lake before fishing. Papers giving this information have been placed on all lakes so governed.

Q. Our teacher told us that the mourning dove is a migratory bird. If it is why do we have a large cedar tree on our place and most every year doves are hatched there. K.H.R., Pembroke, Ky.

A. Your teacher is correct. The dove is considered a migratory bird and seasons are regulated by the federal government. They do nest and hatch young in Kentucky but the birds hatched in this state often move southward during the winter, while those reared in states such as Alabama and Kentucky during the cold periods.

Q. What's your question about the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources? Send it to Minor Clark, commissioner, Department of Fish, Kentucky, and it will be answered in this column in the near future. All questions must be signed by the sender but initials only will be used in the column, if desired.

What's Going On in FISH & WILDLIFE
By MINOR CLARK, Commissioner
Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources

A lure that is good for casting but by the length of line out—the more the deeper. What is the best trolling speed for bass? Nearly always, it's the slowest speed that will give you lure full action, which you can determine by towing it alongside a few moments, watching it. The same slow speed seems invariably best for walleye—which will take any lure that a bass will. Since these are so often found on the bottom in quite deep water, you'll have to use a pretty heavy sinker to keep the thing down there. Is it true that you should troll much faster for pike and muskies than for other species? Not much faster; just noticeably faster, most of the time, in my opinion. But these certainly vary more from day to day than any other species. I know of as to how fast-running a lure they'll take best.

Still some of our best lures come in weedless only. Some are so effective that I use them as they are, even in open water, says Jason Lucas, Angling Editor of Sports Afield Magazine. With others, you can instantly press down the weed-guard to render it impervious in any way—and later, when it's needed, put it back up just far enough above the hook point to avoid hooking weeds. Many lures, trailed at the right speed, impart a steady twitching or bobbing motion to the rod tip, but even the times used will stop this; so a casual glance at the rod will tell you if the lure is performing properly. Most fresh water trolling, the depth at which an underwater lure runs is governed not by a sinker.
