Explosions Hit Dwale Plant Units Rewards Increased As 5 Lines Blasted On Christmas Day

Some 14,000 residents of Floyd and Johnson counties narrowly escaped loss of gas service for an indefinite period of time when two pre-dawn explosions Tuesday damaged natural gas cooling units at strikebound Kentucky West Virginia Gas Company's Dwale compressor station, near Allen.

The explosions and a resulting fire temporarily shut down a 2,000-horsepower pumping unit at the compressor station and threatened gas deliveries to the towns of Prestonsburg, Allen and Paintsville as well as the Johnson County Gas Company and Mountain Utilities, Inc., serving customers in rural Johnson county.

With the station shut down, pipeline pressures began steadily declining and continued to drop while company supervisory personnel worked quickly to extinguish the huge fire caused by thousands of cubic feet of escaping natural gas and to assess the damage to the company's facilities. One of the damaged cooling units was rendered operable an hour and a half later, and the pumping unit was restarted at 6 a. m. and line pressures were restored to normal.

Had both cooling units been permanently damaged, the gas supply to the communities involved could have been shut off for a period of several weeks or even months because of the general unavailability of this particular type of equipment, a company spokesman said.

These same communities were without gas service for several hours when two other explosions ruptured supply lines on November 28.

The Tuesday morning explosions early today were the 22nd and 23rd incidents involving explosives since a strike against the company by employees represented by the Chemical and Atomic Workers International Union Local 3-510 began 77 days ago.

The explosions are being investigated by officers of the Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms Division of the Internal Revenue Service and the Kentucky State Police.

The company has posted rewards totaling $100,000 for information leading to the arrest and conviction of anyone.

Rail Firm Loss In Twin Wrecks Near $250,000

Two coal train wrecks on successive nights last week in this county caused an estimated $250,000 damage.

Eighteen loaded coal cars figured in a wreck late in the afternoon of Dec. 27 at Minnie, ripping out 300 feet of railway. Cause of the derailment has not been determined.

In the second derailment, the early morning of Dec. 28, nine loaded cars wrecked at Wayland, damaging 225 feet of track. A broken rail caused the wreck, it was said.

Some of the wrecked gondolas were twisted and damaged beyond repair. Nobody was injured in either wreck.

Last week's wrecks brought to three the number of recent derailments on C. & O. lines in the county. Thirty loaded cars derailed near here, Dec. 7. Although no official estimate of the damage was available, it is believed the loss here was at least as severe as in the two Beaver Creek wrecks.

'Garfield Place' on National Register

GARFIELD PLACE (the Burns House) as it is today. Photo was made from the front of the historic home, which faces on the river, the main artery of traffic at the time it was built.

Garfield Place, the antebellum home here of Mrs. Claude P. Stephens, has been placed on the National Register of Historic Places, the National Park Service announced recently.

The Kentucky Heritage Commission noted that this is the first Floyd county structure to be listed on the National Register. Its listing not only recognizes the structure's historical merit but protects it from any adverse effects from federally funded projects and makes it eligible for matching federal restoration funds.

Originally known as the John M. Burns House, Garfield Place was built in 1857 by a prominent Eastern Kentucky attorney. Burns served in the Kentucky General Assembly while his law partner, John M. Elliott, served in the U. S. Congress. Though partners, these two men disagreed about the Civil War. Elliott served in the Confederate

Congress in Richmond, Virginia, while Burns, a Union sympathizer, stayed here in Prestonsburg.

The house takes its present name from General (later President) James A. Garfield. The lines of battle for the Battle of Middle Creek began to form in January, 1862 when Garfield commanded Burns' house upon his arrival in the Prestonsburg area.

The Battle of Middle Creek was the most important battle for the control of the Big Sandy Valley. The Burns' house, located on the Big Sandy near the mouth of Middle Creek, was an excellent location. John M. Burns had fled the city before the arrival of the troops because he was fearful that his association with Elliott would endanger his life.

Garfield remained in the house for 10 days. Then he was forced to move because Prestonsburg had been stripped of supplies by Southern sympathizers before the Union troops arrived. The battle of Middle Creek was a decisive factor in Garfield's career. Shortly after the battle, he was promoted to the rank of brigadier general and he held this post when he led his troops at the Battle of Shiloh in April, 1862. Ultimately, it provided a rallying cry for his successful campaign for the presidency of the United States. Garfield served as President for four months until his assassination in 1881.

Garfield Place is located at the end of an old residential street near the commercial center of Prestonsburg. The two-story white frame house suggests the Georgian and Federal types. Discreet Greek Revival elements are evident in the gabled double portico and square entrances, facing on the river which at the time of its construction was the region's main artery of traffic.

Nursing Home Building Plans Win Approval

Mountain Manor of Prestonsburg has won approval of its application to build a new 58-bed nursing home here and to convert its present nursing home on College Lane to an intermediate care facility of the same size, but it is far from ready to begin construction.

Tom G. Dingus, one of the owners of Mountain Manor, said that, above all, no

Prosecution Absent, Court Voids Counts Against Roy Boleyn

When none of those interested in his prosecution failed to appear in quarterly court here Dec. 23 for the examining trial which State Trooper Roy Boleyn had requested, the murder charges against the trooper were dismissed by County Judge Henry Stumbo on motion of County Attorney James R. Allen.

Boleyn had been under $5,000 bond in each of two murder charges made against him following a fight near Hueyville in which Phillip Neely and Earl Vanderpool, Jr. were killed.

The grand jury which will convene Jan. 6 is expected to hear testimony in the shooting case.

identify, if possible, those who are dumping refuse on the mountain so that the offenders may be prosecuted.

"We need more solid waste disposal landfill locations available for all the people before we crack down on those who refuse to use them and go ahead and dump wherever it's convenient, but we'll have to get tough," he commented. "We'll make some people mad, I know, but it will take us a long time."

This fiscal court has planned four disposal sites, one for each magisterial district, but except for the Turkey Creek landfill no sites have been found.

'Tough' Policy Eyed To Enforce Cleanup

Recent events have convinced County Judge Henry Stumbo that establishing an effective solid waste disposal program in this county will be one of the most difficult to be undertaken at the county level.

This conviction arises from the fact that residents of the county are hauling refuse past the landfill now open on Turkey Creek and are dumping it on Turkey Creek mountain where dumping has been forbidden.

Judge Stumbo said some of the refuse dumped there has rolled onto a cemetery. He has instructed the operator of the landfill nearby as well as others to

This Town... That World

It's the New Year. The old is history. The last highball has been gulped, "Auld Lang Syne" is a faint echo, and Bayer's is the most popular brand in town... James, the Roman goddess for whom January was named, is depicted as a girl with two faces, one looking backward, the other to the future. None of us admits to being "two-faced," but along about this time, every year, most of us look in two directions. Backward... with regret for things we did or did not do? Forward... with dread or hope?... Oh, well... as I said before...
Happy New Year!

WHAT HOLIDAYS?

If there's any truth in the old saying which runs to the effect that if you work on the first day of the year, you will work all year long, there's no danger of us here at The Times being unemployed. While more fortunate folks are enjoying the holiday, we'll be like the little heavers or been or whatever was so busy. Yet your newspaper could be late this week. The postoffice closes for New Year's Day, you know.

CALENDAR DOES A REPEAT

If you haven't been able to find a new 1975 calendar, look around the premises. A 1973 model will do. Some friend left me one of the older models, and it's perfect for all practical purposes. Jan. 1 that year fell on a Wednesday, and like this year, 1973 wasn't a leap year. Anybody in the crowd have an idea what he or she was doing on Jan. 1, 1973? I recall very clearly what I wasn't doing. I wasn't worrying about getting out a newspaper.

TRAVEL-LOGGED

During the last several days we have been travelling more than somewhat. I thought that while I left the driving up to the two youngsters in our party I would come up with all sorts of ideas for a column, once I was back to the old gridstone, but I didn't.

Miles of almost any kind of terrain you'd want to see failed to inspire. The old noggin deadened with the long hours as much as the nether portion of the anatomy. Besides, I had considerable backseat driving to attend to, and that cut into any thought I might have had.

But an acquaintance later was inspired to remark as I turned my back on him to walk from the room:
"Travel is broadening, now, ain't it?"

Trial of Sykes In Deskins Case Set April 14th

Four murder trials are listed for hearing during the circuit court term which will convene here Monday, and three other defendants are slated for trial on charges of aiding and abetting murder.

Those scheduled for trial on charges of murder are Richard Tackett, Greenberry Tackett, Bobby Workman and Gory Porter, Jr. Eddie Jones and his father, Agnes Jones, and Mary Ellen Iretson face possible trial on aiding and abetting counts. The murder charges against Eddie Jones and John Martin have been transferred to the Pike circuit court for hearing. They were indicted in the slayings of Lawrence Conley, Floyd deputy sheriff, and James Clayton Conley.

The trial of Robert Sykes, charged with the Pike county murder of Mr. Boone Deskins, and transferred to circuit court here on charge of venue, will not be heard till April 14. In closing days of the November criminal court term which was extended late into December, Circuit Judge Hollie Conley set Sykes' trial date and amended his Nov. 20 order directing that certain witnesses be produced for his trial. Judge Conley noted in his order that he found that three of the witnesses—Thomas Sheppard, Charles Stafford and Julius Blankenship—are prisoners in the U. S. penitentiary at Atlanta, Ga., where Sykes himself is now serving time. So he directed that the testimony of these three witnesses be taken by deposition at the Atlanta prison, beginning at 10 a. m. Jan. 13 and continuing till completed. The court order stipulated that the expense of one attorney for the defendant in the taking of the depositions are to be paid by the Commonwealth—either from Public Defender funds or at the expense of the Floyd fiscal court.

Sixty-six cases are docketed for trial during the January court term, but this number could be increased by grand jury action. Among the cases slated for trial there are, in addition to those involved in slaying cases, 11 charging defendants with breaking and entering, burglary and grand larceny, two alleging possession of drugs or violation of narcotics laws, and 14 for possession, sale or transportation of intoxicating beverages.

During closing days of the extended November term three liquor defendants executed $1,000 peace bonds not to violate any local option laws for a period of 12 months. They are Willie Tackett, Clarence Martin and Banner Burchett. Tackett posted cash bond.

Single Liquor Raid Features Quiet Holiday

The Christmas holidays were, for the most part, quiet for law enforcement officers in the county with a no greater than normal number of persons being booked at the county jail over the past two weeks.

A single liquor investigation by Sheriff Joe Wheeler Lewis and deputies Friday, December 20 netted the officers 70 pints of liquor and resulted in the impoundment of two automobiles in which the liquor was found. The cars which were said to have been registered in the names of Mary Butler Joseph of Prestonsburg, and Nora Dawson, of Van Lee, were parked in the lot adjoining Joseph's Taxi. Warrants have been issued for the two women.

Charles Joseph and Harold Joseph, of Prestonsburg, were charged December 24 with blocking traffic, reckless driving, and failure to yield to an emergency vehicle after they allegedly attempted to delay a county patrol car chasing another vehicle suspected of transporting liquor. The two, driving separate vehicles, reportedly tried several times to interrupt the chase by pulling in front of the police car. During the chase, which occurred between Hager Gap and Dewey lake, the patrol car ran off the road and plunged over a steep hillside which dropped to the reservoir. It was said a single tree on the mountainside prevented the car from running into the lake. Although the vehicle was believed "totaled," the occupants of the car, Deputies Doug Lewis and Linzie Hunt, escaped serious injury.

Others booked at the county jail over the past two weeks, charges against

Chairlift Action Ends; $127,000 Paid Plaintiff

Litigation which arose after the cancellation last year by Governor Ford of a contract for construction and operation of a chairlift at Cumberland Falls State Park ended last week in Franklin circuit court in a cash settlement.

Cumberland Falls Chair Lift, Inc., headed by Edward Music, Prestonsburg business man, was awarded $127,000 in a settlement of the suit filed after Governor Ford cancelled the chairlift contract. The agreement was declared void and the suit was dismissed.

Construction of the chairlift was well under way when a storm of protest from environmentalists broke. It was stopped early last year, then resumed a few days later on Gov. Ford's order, but was permanently halted late that month when the governor cancelled the undertaking on the grounds that it violated existing Wild Rivers legislation.

Cumberland Falls Chair Lift then filed suit to recover $106,901 for money expended on the project, plus interest; $100,000 for damages and depreciation of equipment, and $1.6 million for loss of

Area Population Gains Surprise ARC

The Appalachian Regional Commission, which reportedly is writing off much of Eastern Kentucky, as "not worth saving," is at the same time finding the population growth of this same area a source of "wonderment."

And for the next six years, ARC predicts in a new report, this same section of Kentucky is expected to grow dramatically with 90,000 added to the present population.

Overall, Eastern Kentucky lost 15.4 per cent of its population in the 1960's. But in the first three years of the 1970's it gained 5.8 per cent.

During the 1960's Floyd county lost 13.9 per cent of its population. But from 1970 to 1973 the county gained 10 per cent.

The same story, in varying degree, has been written in other eastern counties. The ARC report projects a similar trend over much of the 13-state Appalachian region. It estimates a total population gain of 1.5 million in the region from 1970 to 1980, much of it in the long-hard-pressed central mountain area.

This is a drastic reversal of the out-migration patterns that characterized the region for two decades. A total of 2.5 million persons left Appalachian mountain areas during the 1960s and 1.6 million left during the 1970s.

In offering one of the few tangible signs that the "rural life movement" of young people moving from cities to the country, the report says the region has almost caught up with the national growth rate.

It offers the following explanation for the shift:
—The boom in the coal industry, particularly in Eastern Kentucky.

—Increased black-ling and Social

Mastodon Tooth Found on Spurlock

The object displayed in the above photo by Roy Ousley proves that life forms more formidable than 'coons, ground hogs and possums' have inhabited Floyd county. It's a molar of a mastodon that Ousley found recently protruding from a clay bank on the Spurlock Fork of Middle Creek. The mastodon is a form of elephant which is believed to have become extinct about 15,000 years ago.

Highlands Coronary Care Unit Opens As Training Completed

Highlands Regional Medical Center this week announced the completion of its first training program for coronary care nursing. Completion of the program enabled the Center to begin receiving patients for the coronary care unit, December 16.

The unit is equipped with all the life-sustaining equipment used to treat patients suffering from heart disease and is staffed with certified nurse specialists. The training program requires five weeks' intensive study and practice during which a mannequin Arrhythmia Resuscitator is used to teach the recognition of cardiac arrhythmias and to practice defibrillation and cardiopulmonary resuscitation. The trainees are also instructed and practice endotracheal intubation with the adult intubation model. These teaching aids were purchased by the hospital especially for the coronary care nursing program.

In addition, the Rocom Program was used as part of the course. This is an $8,000 instruction program which was purchased by a gift to the medical center from James Witten, of Prestonsburg. The instructor for the program is Miss Chris Naville, R.N. Miss Naville came to the Medical Center from the Louisville General Hospital where she had several years' experience in intensive coronary care nursing and instructing. Assistant instructor is Mrs. Sherry Dings, R.N., who received coronary care nursing certification from King's Daughters Hospital, Ashland.

Nurses completing the course and awarded certificates as coronary care nurses were Denise Queen, R.N., Teresa Cartmell, R.N., Patsy Willis, R.N., Glenda Patton, R.N., Virginia Hall, R.N., and Sandra Manns, I.P.N.

Assuming that Kentucky will have an average winter—six state-wide snowstorms—the state Department of Transportation expects to spend $5 million clearing expressways and highways. —Higher unemployment and housing shortages in northern cities. —Expansion of recreation and of retirement housing in mountain areas. The trend is part of a national one. Since the late 1800s, the mass movement to large cities that characterized population shifts since World War II has ended while smaller cities and outlying rural areas have grown.

Dr. Jerome P. Pickard, the ARC's population expert, has expressed wonderment over the Appalachian trend ever since he first discovered it more than a year ago.

"I never anticipated this kind of change," he said last week. "Everything has turned around. If you'd told me this would happen a few years ago, I would never have believed you."

Pickard said more than a third of the Appalachian immigrants from 1870 to 1972 were service men and women returning to civilian life. This has now slowed down and there are some indications in preliminary 1974 U.S. census figures that the overall growth is slowing down, he said.

However, he said he expects current trends to continue until the end of the decade. "Of course, we can't be sure about what the recession will do to this," he added.

Kentucky, Pickard's report said, had the largest amount of immigration in Appalachia from 1970 to 1973, as 27,200 persons moved into the eastern part of the state. Births accounted for an additional gain of 23,200 giving the eastern third of the state a total population of 927,000 in 1973. This is estimated to increase to 1,016,700 by 1980.

Pickard said the greatest amount of growth would likely come in the coal regions and in counties near Winchester, Richmond, Corbin and Somerset.

He has not broken down his projections county by county.

using explosives to damage the company's facilities. Five explosions were reported on Christmas Day. Blasts early Christmas morning ruptured two 8-inch pipelines near Maytown and Hindman and left several families in rural, county without gas for cooking their holiday meal or heating their homes. Company supervisory personnel restored service to these pipelines shortly after noon. Three more pipelines were blasted in Floyd county, that night. First reports of these blasts came from the community of David, where separate explosions severed two pipelines supplying gas to about 20 scattered residential customers and to the Ohio-Kentucky Gas Company, of Prestonsburg. According to John Allen, owner of Ohio-Kentucky Utilities, 20 homes were still without service the next morning in 30-degree weather. Another pipeline had been blasted in the Turkey Creek section, near Maytown.

Commission Report Cites Employment

Nearly three times as many Blacks proportionately serve on the boards and staffs of Kentucky's community action programs as on the boards and staffs of area development districts in the state, according to a report by the Kentucky Commission on Human Rights. The report is based on a survey of the representation of Blacks and women in Kentucky's 15 area development districts and 21 community action programs.

The community action program agencies (CAPs), which operate local poverty programs, are funded by the Office of the Economic Opportunity, and other federal and local agencies. The area development districts (ADDs) are umbrella planning agencies through which federal and other funds flow for local improvements and programs.

The Big Sandy Area Development District has no Blacks on its board or staff, while the Big Sandy Community Action Program has one black board member and one black employee. Three percent of the CAP's board and 4.5 percent of its staff are non-white.

The Big Sandy Area Development District includes Floyd, Johnson, Magoffin, Martin, and Pike counties. One half of one percent of the five county district's total population is non-white.

Because of the low proportion of blacks in this district, neither agency has an under-representation of blacks on its board or staff, but women are severely underrepresented on the boards of both agencies.

Big Sandy ADD's board has a low female board proportion of 5.3 percent, only slightly above the statewide ADD average. Women comprise 12.9 percent of Big Sandy CAP's board—less than half the statewide CAP average of 29 percent.

Both agencies have excellent patterns of female employment—60 percent for the ADD and 68.2 percent for the CAP. In both agencies, about one of every four professional employees is a woman.

Kentucky's ADDs generally have levels of black representation on both their boards and their staffs equal to or above the proportions of blacks in the areas they serve. However, most CAP agencies in Kentucky have significantly better records or minority employment and board representation than ADDs serving similar geographic areas.

The poverty program agencies also have higher proportions of women on their staffs and boards than do the area development districts.

State-wide, 19.8 percent of all CAP board members in Kentucky are non-white, compared to only 6.7 percent non-white representation on ADD boards. In total employment, the 21 CAP agencies in the state have a black employment figure of 29.2 percent, compared to 10 percent for the 15 ADDs. The 1970 census shows that 7.1 percent of Kentucky's total population is non-white.

It's Worth Saving

It is encouraging to learn that the Appalachian Regional Commission has indicated that it now proposes a new program which will include industrial sites, access road construction and more money for coal research.

These three items are basic to the future of what is known as Appalachia.

At the same time the ARC, if newspaper reports are accurate, relegates a part of the region, including much of Eastern Kentucky, to the proverbial boneyard. Bill Peterson reported Monday in The Courier-Journal:

Under the strategy, ARC funds are concentrated in places that show the greatest potential for growth. Other places, including much of Eastern Kentucky, are written off as 'not worth saving.'

'Not worth saving'—how does ARC, an agency established to save depressed areas from hope-destroying conditions, decide which part of the region is to be forgotten?

Five years ago, Martin county might have qualified. Today, the Appalachian Regional Commission is amazed to find that that county, which in the 1960-'70 decade lost 11 per cent of its population, had three years later gained 11 2 per cent.

Or Floyd, Johnson, Pike, Perry, Keokuk or half a dozen other eastern counties could have been written off as hopeless as their young people flocked to other sections of the state and nation. But today they are getting their people back from those crowded, crime-ridden cities and their lines of the jobs.

The Times does not ask the Appalachian Regional Commission to invest in impractical ventures here in Eastern Kentucky or in any other section of the region which it was created to serve, but it does ask it, please, to desist from statements which paint with a broad brush a dark picture for Eastern Kentucky—a picture which would bear the grim title, 'Not Worth Saving.'

We suggest that ARC forget some of its dreamy projections and get down to the practical matters of industrial sites, access roads and coal research—and then watch Eastern Kentucky grow.

After that, it should be our own job to clean up a beautiful land that is a domestic junkyard and an industrial wasteland (as witness junked cars, littered roadsides and farmsteads on strip-mined hills), and so make the area inviting to the world as well as to those who are native to the land and whose love for it blind their eyes to its imperfections.

The Veterans Administration hospital in Castle Point, N.Y., is 'proving ground' for new prosthetic 'handers' that gives totally paralyzed veterans mobility never envisioned a decade ago—such as turning a television set on or off, elevating the hospital bed and answering the telephone.

Dr. Robert V. Pipberger of the Washington, D.C., Veterans Administration hospital, internationally known in cardiovascular data processing, reports analysis of electrocardiograms by computer for diagnosis of heart disease is about one-fourth more informative than readings by any one cardiologist.

Our Yesterdays

(Items taken from The Floyd County Times, 10, 20, 30 and 40 years ago)

Ten Years Ago

(December 31, 1964)

Applications for occupancy of the new low-rent public housing units at Martin are being received at the office in Martin of R. R. Allen, executive director of the Martin Municipal Housing Commission, in advance of their completion which is scheduled for early February. In contrast to the tons of foodstuffs and clothing sent to destitute Whitesburg area families as a result of a recent CBS television program, families in the Weeksburg area of this county, also featured in the broadcast, received only minor assistance, it was learned this week. First meeting of faculty members of Kentucky's new community college system will be held January 6-8 in Lexington. Owners of semi-permanent and permanent camps in the Dewey Lake area have been seeking a modification of the U. S. Army Corps of Engineers order directing that such camps be moved from the area by January 4. Floyd county officials, members of their families and staff members enjoyed a buffet dinner, Tuesday night, December 15, in the circuit courtroom of the new courthouse. The Martin Purple Flash ended the first half of the 1974-75 basketball season with the best record of any of the 15th Region's 31 teams. The team has an 18-1 win-loss record. There died: Mrs. Cleo Rogers, 78, December 23 at Greensburg, Ky.; William Harry Gregory, 49, Sunday at his home at Dinwood.

Twenty Years Ago

(December 30, 1954)

A large-scale drive for funds to carry on the fight against infantile paralysis will begin in Floyd county, as elsewhere over the nation, on New Year's day and this 1955 March of Dimes could be the last big drive for funds if the Salk vaccine given extensive tests this year proves to be as effective in preventing polio as expected. Injuries suffered last Wednesday afternoon when he was struck by an automobile on the Left Beaver Creek highway at Printer resulted Monday in the death at C. & O. hospital, Huntington, W. Va., of 55-year-old Talmadge Robinson, of Printer. Although no fatalities were reported on Floyd county highways, at least two persons were seriously hurt over the Christmas holidays. They were Allen Bentley, of Lackey and Creed Prater, of Hueysville, both of whom are patients in Lexington hospitals. 'I had an awful Christmas, but I'm lucky to be alive,' said 'Uncle' Wise Crum, 80, after fire destroyed his home at West Prestonsburg on Christmas Eve. Born to Mr. and Mrs. Silas DeRossett, of Water Gap, twin girls, Dec. 23 at the Paintsville hospital. They died: Mrs. Polly Jane Case, 79, Monday at her home at Drift; Malone (May) England, 71, formerly of this county, last Tuesday at Ft. Wayne, Ind.; Sammy M. Hunter, 80, of Lancaster, Monday at St. Mary's hospital, Huntington, W. Va.; Alonzo Napier, 59 years old, of Garrett, Monday at the Beaver Valley hospital, Martin; Richard Hicks, 48, of Garrett, Christmas Day at Prestonsburg General hospital; Mrs. Deisie Warrens, 29, of Wakema, O., formerly of this county, Monday at Beaver Valley hospital, Martin.

PROPERTY LISTINGS DUE SOON

All property must be listed for ad valorem taxes with the Property Valuation Administrators between Jan. 1 and March 1, according to new state Revenue Commissioner Maurice P. Carpenter. The assessment must be made at the property's fair cash (market) value. Homestead exemptions for persons 65 and older will be raised to $1,200 for 1975.

Toll-free telephone service is now available to 86 per cent of the nation's veterans for seeking Veterans Administration assistance with the recent installation of the service in Arkansas, California, New Hampshire and Massachusetts.

Prestonsburg Firm Is Ordered To Pay $4,534 in Wage Suit

U. S. District Judge H. David Hermsdorfer has signed a judgment permanently enjoining Floyd Skeans, Vester H. Tomlinson and Jessie E. Tomlinson, individually and doing business as Tony's TCT Truck Stop, of Prestonsburg, from violating the minimum wage, overtime compensation and recordkeeping provisions of the Fair Labor Standards Act (FLSA). Under terms of the judgment, the defendants are also enjoined from continuing to withhold $4,534.93 in back wages due employees under the act.

Three from Floyd New State Troopers

FRANKFORT, Ky.—Three Floyd County residents were among 34 new state troopers taking their oath of office Dec. 20 in the Capitol Rotunda after completing 10 weeks of training with the Kentucky State Police Academy. Terry Dean Hall, 23, of Prestonsburg, has been ordered to report to the state police post at Morehead, where he will begin service as a state trooper.

Hall is a 1969 graduate of Wheelwright High School and attended Alice Lloyd College and Eastern Kentucky University. He is married to the former Mitzie Crisp.

Kenneth Wayne Skeans, 21, of Martin, will begin his duties with the state police post at Ashland. A 1971 graduate of Martin High School, Skeans was formerly employed by the State Highway Department. He is married to the former Katherine Hammonds.

Another Martin resident, Ernest F. Duddleson, 22, also has been ordered to report to the state police post at Morehead.

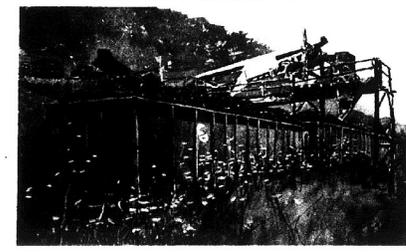

Duddleson graduated from Martin High School and attended Barstow College in Barstow, Calif. He is married to the former Mary Coon.

George Maggard, a Kentucky inmate, has been named the first recipient of a newly-created national Jaycee award recognizing outstanding contributions to the organization's alcohol education campaign. Maggard, an officer of the inmate Jaycee chapter at the Kentucky State Reformatory near LaGrange, was awarded the "Operation Threshold" Award for leading a campaign (by the same name) seeking to rehabilitate and reform alcoholics and problem drinkers.

What we give away is almost as valuable as what we sell.

About 100,000 families this month will be safer, thanks to the diligent efforts of the member companies of the Fire Equipment Manufacturers' Association Detection Division.

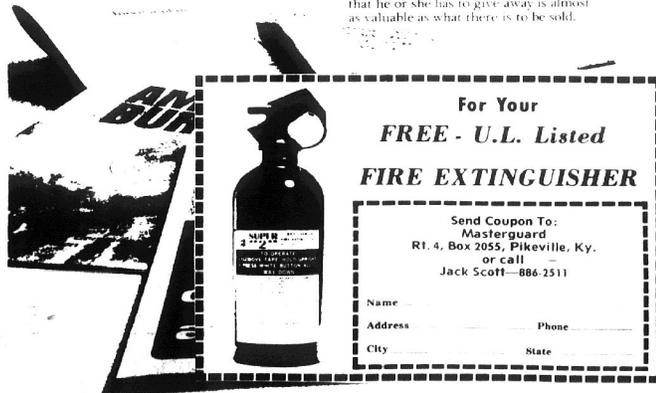

Because those families will have received fire safety information, whether or not they purchase fire detection units.

FEMA Detection Division member companies instruct in fire safety. Every prospective purchaser of a residential home fire detection system is warned about the dangers of home fires. Told about hazards that exist throughout every dwelling. The family is given a plan of exit in case of a fire.

And the details of a proper home fire safety inspection are worked out. Brochures and diagrams are left with every family contacted.

1,200,000 families this year will be safer thanks to FEMA Detection Division members. It isn't enough just to try to sell a family a home detection system. The member companies of FEMA's Detection Division take it as their personal responsibility to see that every family called upon to give up never fire safety instruction. Whether detection devices are purchased or not.

Of course, the Detection Division member companies feel that any home and family is safer with the installation of a protective detection system. But each company and salesman knows that the educational material that he or she has to give away is almost as valuable as what there is to be sold.

Name Mullins Oral History Project Head

Pippa Passes, Ky.—Michael Mullins, director of the Alice Lloyd College Oral History Project, has been named director of the Appalachian Oral History Project. Mullins was elected to the post at a recent meeting of the Project's executive committee.

The Appalachian Oral History Project is a joint venture between ALC, Lees Junior College, Appalachian State University, and Henry College. Mullins succeeds William Weinberg, director of ALC's Appalachian Learning Laboratory. Weinberg resigned because of added responsibilities in his job at ALC, he said.

A native of Hi Hat, Mullins is a graduate of McDowell High School and Berea College. He holds a master's degree in history from the University of Cincinnati. He has been at Alice Lloyd College since 1972, serving as director of the college's Oral History Project.

The Appalachian Oral History Project involves students as historians. Students do audio-tape interviews with long time residents of Appalachia. They tape the recollections of the people, events, stories and songs that help tell the history of the region.

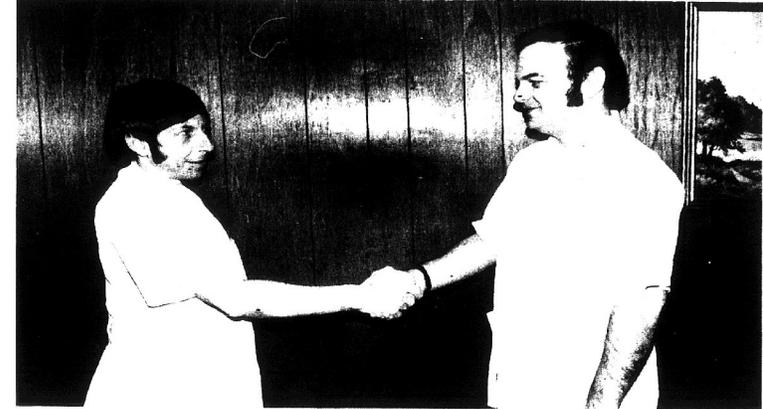

Taped interviews are transcribed by students and are available to scholars and others interested in the study of Appalachia. The interviews will form the basis of a book now being written and tentatively titled "Our Appalachia: An Oral History."

Grandpa Has Gone Away

There is a home between the hills That stands alone so quiet and still. Its master has gone away on a journey To a place where he will stay.

No more will he roam out over his fields. No more will he climb the rugged hills. No more will he sit on the porch in the swing. No more will he plow the brown earth in the spring. No more will he trudge to the barn and do the feedin'. No more will he walk to church and the meetin'. As these were his habits in the days long ago When he shared his life with people And the family he loved so.

His cane hung on a peg by the door. And so did his hat, creased with the worn marks it bore. Who will come to fill his place? No one needs to show their face. For he was a man who stood strong and true. There is no one to fill his shoes.

It used to be when Saturday came He hitched his horse to the wagon And drove off to town. Up and down the streets he would peddle his wares Milk, butter, and eggs And maybe some fruit and vegetables grown with great care.

His life was hard in the mountain way To bring up his family and not go astray. Once was the time when he became very ill. And as he lay upon his bed He had a strange dream one day.

And in the dream he met a man called Jesus Who showed him his soul in hell burning away. He vowed to all, right then and there To give up his mean ways, study the Bible And never swear.

He became a church-going man, lived true to the day Till his Lord and Saviour called him away. All his years added up to ninety-one A crown of stars he has surely won.

There is a home somewhere called Heaven There are loved ones there To bid Grandpa "Welcome".

New UMW Contract Benefits Wide Range

WASHINGTON—Pension checks for 90,000 United Mine Workers of America (UMWA) Health and Retirement Fund pensioners will increase from $150 to $200 a month, beginning with checks mailed this month, as a result of the new contract between the UMW and the Bituminous Coal Operators Assn.

The first pension increase since 1969, the raise will be the first of three during the life of the contract. Effective Dec. 6, 1975, benefits will be increased again to $215 for pensioners who receive black lung benefits and to $225 for pensioners who do not. A year later, Dec. 6, 1976, benefits will rise again, to $235 for pensioners receiving black lung benefits and to $250 for those who do not.

Miners who retire during 1975 will receive pension benefits based on this same schedule.

Miners who retire during 1976 and 1977 will receive pension benefits based on the miner's age and the number of years worked at retirement. Under the sliding benefit scales used for the new pension plan, miners who retire in 1976 will receive pensions slightly lower than miners who retire under the scales used for 1977 retirements. However, those who retire in 1975 will receive a $10 a month increase in 1977 as a hedge against inflation.

The contract also provides monthly pensions of $125 for miners permanently and totally disabled in mine accidents between May 29, 1946, and Dec. 31, 1975. Beginning in January, 1976, miners with less than 10 years of service in union mines at the time of their disabling accidents will receive $125 a month pensions. Miners with more than 10 years of work in union mines will receive pensions based on their years of credited service and computed as if they were age 62 at the time of the accident.

The surviving spouse of a miner who receives a disability pension after Dec. 6, 1974, or on retirement under the 1974 pension plan after Jan. 1, 1976, will continue to receive 50 percent of the miner's pension until the death or remarriage. If the miner is killed in a mine accident after Dec. 6, 1974, the surviving spouse will receive $100 a month until death or remarriage. If the miner was eligible for a pension at the time of his death, regardless of cause, the spouse will receive 50 percent of the pension the miner would have received had he retired before his death. If the miner is killed in an accident in a union mine after Dec. 6, 1974, his surviving spouse will receive $100 a month in addition to the 50 percent of the pension the miner would have received.

The use of the Fund's Health Service Cards, which enable holders to obtain health benefits, has been extended to surviving spouses of miners permanently and totally disabled or killed in union mine accidents after May 29, 1946, and surviving spouses of miners who are eligible for pensions during 1976 or 1977. The cards can be used until the surviving spouse dies or remarries.

Miners who are disabled and eligible for pensions are also eligible for Health Service Cards, as are disabled miners who receive Social Security Disability Benefits and who have completed 20 years of credited service under the new pension plan but have not yet reached the minimum retirement age of 55. Disabled miners who have worked at least 10 years in union mines and are within four years of age 55 are eligible for the health cards as long as they are disabled and receiving worker's compensation benefits. The cards will also be extended to disabled miners receiving sickness and accident benefits.

Disabled or mentally retarded children of Health Service Cardholders are eligible for coverage, regardless of age, if they are living in the cardholder's home or are confined to an institution for treatment.

Funds death benefits also have been increased by the new contract. A cash payment of $7,500 will be paid to the spouse of a miner who dies, regardless of cause, leaving one to five dependents. If there are more than five dependents, the cash death benefit will range from $8,000 to $10,000, depending on the number of dependents. If there are no dependents, a $2,000 death benefit will be paid.

If the miner is killed in a mine accident after Dec. 6, 1974, the surviving dependents will receive a cash payment of $10,000 in addition to the other death benefits. If the miner has no dependents, a $2,500 cash payment will be made in place of the $2,000 benefit.

On the death of a retired miner with dependents, the survivors will receive a cash payment of $2,500. If the retiree has no dependents, a $2,000 payment will be made.

Plan Telerama For Dimes Fund

One of the most spectacular fund-raising events in a telerama, and the National Foundation-March of Dimes announces its first such event in Eastern Kentucky to be telecast, live and in color, from the studio of WKYH-TV, Hazard, from 7 p.m. Thursday, January 9, until 1 a.m., Friday.

WKYH-TV is donating its air-time, studio, equipment and operating personnel for this effort to raise essential funds to continue the fight against birth defects.

Ernest Sparkman, manager of Radio Station WSGS, Hazard, and Don Croshaw, president of WTCW, Mayking, have increased the telerama audience by their population of listeners as they are donating air-time and personnel to broadcast the audio portion of the telerama.

The telerama is being sponsored by the Hazard-Perry County Jaycees and has the backing of a number of area Jaycee Clubs through supporting events such as proposed road blocks.

Honorary co-chairmen for the telerama are Congressman Carl D. Perkins and Congressman Tim Lee Carter.

Nationally known Country and Western recording artist Johnny Duncan will be on the program with a number of his songs, including his hit hit, "Sweet Country Woman." Local talent will also be performing, providing a non-stop variety of entertainment. The talented and talented Robbie Lynn Haiscomb, formerly Miss Kentucky and Sugar Bowl Queen, concert soloist, will enceed the program.

Coach John Oldham, state chairman for the National Foundation-March of Dimes and athletic director of Western Kentucky University, will appear as a guest in the telerama and is hoped Coaches Fran Curci and Joe B. Hall and retired Coach Adolph Rupp will appear.

Soil Value Stressed By Conservationists

"Heal your problems with soil." That's the advice both city and country people are being given by the Soil Conservation Service, an agency of the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Glen E. Murray, who heads the Soil Conservation Service in Kentucky, said free color brochures are now available to virtually all land users. Obtainable through any one of Kentucky's 121 conservation district offices, nine new color brochures are designed for homebuyers, farmers, engineers, builders, planners, and even for waste disposal.

The leaflets reveal the economic secrets of modern soil surveys. Whether you're in the market for a home or a playground, the helpful manuals-saving tips are available at the Soil Conservation Service Office, Court Street, Prestonsburg.

ENERGY CONSERVATION TIP

Atty. Gen. Ed W. Hancock, in his "Consumer Comments," furnished us with an excellent tip concerning heating. He suggests that we be wary of the furnace inspector who drops in free of charge and who may try to persuade you to spend needless money on furnace repairs. He offers several bits of advice: don't let anyone take your furnace apart for cleaning or inspection unless you are sure he is qualified; don't take his word that he is qualified; check him out; and during an inspection, watch carefully—a fraudulent inspector may bring his own broken parts with him and pretend they are yours. But still, it is a good idea to have your furnace inspected by a reputable person before cold weather comes in full force.

Floyd County Health Notes

By DONNA J. GRIFFITH
(Health Educator)

The Floyd County Health Department will conduct a glaucoma clinic Friday, January 3, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Glaucoma is a serious disease that can cause blindness slowly and painlessly in persons age 35 and over. Since early detection and treatment can prevent glaucoma, the public health nurses urge all persons over 35 years of age to take advantage of this free screening.

A nurse from the Floyd County Health Department will conduct an outpost clinic at Dr. Claude Allen's office in Martin. Clinic hours will be from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. with the following services being available: TB skin tests, immunizations, diabetes screening, blood pressures and pap smears. These services are free and open to the public.

The Floyd County Health Department will hold a pap smear clinic Thursday, January 9, from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. Patients will be seen by appointment only. If you would like an appointment for a pap smear, call the Floyd County Health Department at 886-2788, Monday through Friday, from 8 to 4:30.

The Floyd County Health Department will be closed Tuesday and Wednesday, Dec. 31, and Jan. 1, in observance of the New Year holiday. Regular business hours will resume January 2 at 8 a.m.

One out of every 400 black Americans has sickle cell anemia, according to the March of Dimes, one in 10 carries sickle cell trait.

Parks Commissioner

Frankfort, Ky.—A man trained in wildlife conservation and an early manager of Kentucky Dam Village State Park was named Thursday by Lt. Gov. Julian Carroll as Kentucky's new commissioner of the Department of Parks.

The new parks chief is 49-year-old Bruce Montgomery, of Danville, who takes office on Jan. 8, five days after Carroll assumes the reins of state government from U. S. Senate-bound Gov. Wendell Ford.

Montgomery was manager of Kentucky Dam Village State Park from 1950 to 1964. He is a graduate of Centre College, Danville, and did graduate work at the University of Missouri.

"Bruce Montgomery is well remembered for his work in the Parks Department in the earlier development of the department," says Lt. Gov. Carroll. "Much of the progress of Kentucky Dam Village State Park, one of the Commonwealth's major parks, came under his direction.

"His ability as a business administrator is well-established through the management of his own private business enterprises."

Montgomery, president of the Central Kentucky Federal Savings and Loan in Danville, is also involved in farming, an oil distributorship, real estate and insurance and a water treatment business. The new Parks Commissioner was the incorporator and first president of the Boyle County Industrial Foundation and for those efforts was named Citizen of the Year in 1961.

NOTICE

The Floyd County Clerk's office is open each day, Monday thru Friday, from 8 a.m. until 4:30 p.m., and on Saturday from 8 a.m. until 4 p.m. Each Thursday, the Clerk's office will be open from 8 a.m. until 8 p.m.

To Subscribers

Please note date shown opposite your name on your copy of The Times or on the wrapper. If the date reads, for instance, "December 74," your subscription will expire at the end of December.

TV Show Zeros In On Alcohol Abuse

FRANKFORT, Ky.—On New Year's Day when many Kentuckians are recovering from high times the night before—the seventh "Feeling Good" will zero in on alcohol abuse. Kentucky's Department for Human Resources (DHR) helps to promote the show.

Particular attention will focus on the influence of parents' habits on teenage drinking. A teenager's first personal experience with alcohol typically happens at home at 13 or 14 years of age and not at wild parties among teenagers, according to a recent study.

Often, abuse of alcohol starts in the teens, according to the study. By high school graduation, practically all teenagers have had a drink.

Kentucky youths are influenced by the state's one million plus adult drinkers and the estimated 140,000 abusers of alcohol.

According to the study, teenagers who drink generally report at least one parent is an alcohol user (not necessarily an abuser). Adolescents who do not drink usually report that their parents are non-drinkers.

Kentucky's DHR has a broad scope of programs to help prevent alcohol abuse. "Our doors are open to anyone who wants help," said Commissioner Stanley Hammons, M.D., of the Bureau for Health Services, DHR. "We offer services through comprehensive care centers in every county. Medical Emergency Alcohol Detoxification Services (MEAD), Situation Identification and Disposition (SID) units, Alcoholism Demonstration Projects (ADP), 17 half-way houses throughout the state and more," said Hammons.

A special announcement during "Feeling Good" tells the abuser, regardless of age, where he can go for help.

The show is on KET each Wednesday night at 8 p.m. EST through May 14.

Hammond Former Prison Warden, Says Stiffer Penalties Needed

PAINTSVILLE—James W. Hammond, of Ashland, former warden of the Kentucky State Reformatory at LaGrange and former acting director of corrections for the state, told Paintsville Rotarians recently that both major and lesser crimes are increasing at an alarming rate.

"U. S. Attorney General (William) Saxhe reports major crimes are up 16 percent over last year. And there is a big question if all are being reported—if they were reported, it would reflect discredit on their communities."

Hammond, formerly of Paintsville, noted there are an estimated 30,000 murders in the nation each year and an equal number of rapes.

Several reasons for the increase in crime were cited by Hammond, including the U. S. Supreme Court ruling a few years ago that the death penalty was "barbaric, cruel and inhuman."

He said there were hundreds of death penalty cases awaiting trial and prisoners awaiting the electric chair or death chamber. "Many have been released (paroled) and some are still pending. I put forth every effort last session of the (Kentucky) legislature to restore the death penalty."

"When that ruling was made there were hundreds of 'do-gooders', sociologists, ex-convicts and many who had cases pending in the courts, and civil rights who got together and before the people of the respective states realized what was taking place they have sold many governors—our Governor Ford was one—and the state legislatures a bill of goods to amend the state criminal codes, including probation and paroles, and operations and management of the penal institutions."

Hammond said when the bill got to the floor of each legislature, word was out that it was an administration bill and "okay" when actually legislators should have scrutinized the laws more closely. "With the present laws it is most difficult to convict anyone. It is no wonder most law violators do not have any fear of the courts, penal servitude or otherwise, as he too knows he has a 90 percent chance of being turned loose."

Hammond claimed the reasons there are "escapes, murders, rape, fights and drugs in Kentucky prisons is due to a lack of discipline. No control—and the greater part of the control is by the prisoners."

He said it is time for people to start holding all those in authority accountable. "The legislature must enact and update the criminal code, including the probation and paroles, and the operations of the penal institutions."

"The laws must be tough with teeth in them and meaningful. And the public should be made aware of the new laws and penalties. The courts should use every measure to see that justice is meted out accordingly."

The former warden said tough laws will deter murders, rapes and assaults. He said many law enforcement agencies, judges, and elected officials are in favor of "tightening up the criminal code."

"There are protests from all over Kentucky about the present setup and how it is being administered. Many in Governor Ford's administration are not satisfied but cannot speak out."

Retirement Plan Can Save Taxes

By JOSEPH KURTZ

Cut your income taxes while providing for your retirement. If you are a farmer or other self-employed person, you can accomplish both of these things by putting part of this year's income into a deferred-income retirement plan, approved by the Internal Revenue Service.

You will not have to pay 1974 income taxes on the money which you put into such a plan this year, explains Joseph I. Moore, Sr., Extension farm management specialist at the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture. After you retire and begin to draw money out of the plan, you will have to pay taxes on the money. However, the tax rate during your retirement years is likely to be much lower.

Moore points out that Congress passed a law this year increasing the amount of tax-deductible income which can be put into approved deferred income retirement plans by self-employed persons. Under the old law, passed in 1962 and commonly called the Keogh Act, eligible persons could put up to 10 percent of each year's income, but not more than $2,500, into such a plan. The new law, known as the 1974 Pension Reform Act, allows a contribution of as much as 15 percent of each year's income, with the maximum raised to $7,500.

"The average age of Kentucky farmers is in the mid 50's, and 1974 net farm income is the highest ever except for last year," says Moore. "Thus, a deferred-income retirement plan should prove very beneficial to many farmers in Kentucky."

Moore says most tax consultants and insurance companies have pre-approved basic retirement plans available for those who do not have a plan. Those who already have a plan need to have it reviewed because of the new 1974 law.

Beginning in 1975, a self-employed individual who does not wish to participate in a regular approved retirement plan will have the option of opening a retirement bank account and deducting up to $1,500 in contributions to the account each year on his income tax returns.

"Even though a retirement plan provides some current tax advantages for the self-employed, I feel the most important reason for having such a plan is to provide for retirement," says Moore. "It is very obvious that with today's prices, social security alone will not provide an adequate retirement income."

Name Change Is Meaningful

WASHINGTON—The contract recently agreed upon by the United Mine Workers of America (UMWA) and the Bituminous Coal Operators Assn. (BCOA) has changed the name of the UMWA Welfare and Retirement Fund to the UMWA Health and Retirement Funds.

"The two changes in the name—going from 'Welfare' to 'Health' and from 'Fund' to 'Funds'—are more than cosmetic," Fund chairman Harry Hoge explained.

"The benefits provided through this organization are not welfare," he said. "They are earned by the work of union coal miners. And the Funds' health programs do more than just pay doctor bills. The Funds are now actively involved in monitoring the quality of health care provided by the network of physicians, hospitals and clinics that we've established over the years and doing what they can to keep health care costs as low as possible. The Funds are also involved in various health education efforts designed to help keep miners and their families healthy, so that we're not just paying to treat illness after it develops.

"And the change from 'Fund' to 'Funds' is very substantial," he said. "There is no longer one large pot of money from which we draw to pay for health care and pensions for miners and their families. The new contract establishes four separate and distinct trust funds. There are two funds to pay health and pension benefits for miners who were retired when the new contract was agreed upon and two other funds to pay health and pension benefits for miners who were working when the contract was signed."

Mr. Hoge cited legal and economic considerations as the reasons why the UMWA Welfare and Retirement Fund, which was first formally created with the signing of the 1950 National Bituminous Coal Wage Agreement, had to split into four separate and distinct trust funds.

"The most important legal consideration was the passage last September of the new federal pension reform law," Mr. Hoge said. "That law requires pension funds to begin funding the pension benefits they have promised to pay, and it requires pension plans to institute vesting, which means that a worker's pension will be based on the number of years he has contributed to the plan and his age at the time of retirement."

"Given this legal requirement, we also faced a giant economic problem," he said. "If we took into consideration the pensions that have been paid since the Fund began, our funding requirements for the 90,000 pensioners we have today would be $1.9 billion. That's as much money as flowed through the Fund in the past 15 years. Faced with this, we knew there was no way we could fund both the old pension plan and a new pension plan and pay the same benefits out of both. So, we established two separate plans, and, although each will be funded and pensions will be guaranteed, the benefit levels are, out of necessity, different. There was simply no other way to meet all the requirements."

School Supts., Guests At ROPES Meet

Council members and their local school superintendents were luncheon guests of ROPES Region Eleven, Advisory Council meeting at Jenny Wiley State Park, December 18. Presiding at the meeting was Council Chairman Wendell R. Conley, of Winterville.

Guest speaker was William R. Birdwell, director of the Division of Regional Services. Mr. Birdwell brought greetings from Dr. Lyman Ginger, State Superintendent of Public Instruction. He told the group that by March, 1975, every region in Kentucky will be organized and operating and listed three original purposes of the regions: to improve delivery of State Department services; to provide a vehicle for improved cooperation and communication among local school districts; and to provide a more comprehensive program of education to the regions.

Birdwell stressed that Kentucky Educational Development Regions are not administrative agencies but are service agencies. He said that in the future regional offices will have a curriculum member on the staff, a Department of Education representative on the Board of Directors, improved communication with other services, computer services, a grant from the Right to Read program, and a planning grant. All of these will be utilized to improve services to local school districts.

Birdwell also told the Council that although 43 states have some form of educational regionalization, Kentucky is the only state to use the unique form typified by ROPES Region Eleven. Rhode Island is considering the establishment of educational regions and Birdwell will visit there on January 10 to discuss Kentucky's regional concept for their consideration.

The next Advisory Council meeting will be held in March, 1975.

"Is My Baby All Right?", a comprehensive book on the causes, treatment, and prevention of birth defects, is a valuable resource for both health professionals and the public. The authors are Dr. Virginia Appgar and Joan Beck.

Alice Lloyd College Helps Make Christmas Merrier

Pippa Passes, Ky.—Alice Lloyd College helps make Christmas merrier for thousands of Eastern Kentucky children and adults this year.

The college's ALCOR Program (Appalachian Leaders in Community Outreach) asked area residents to donate cast-off toys and children's books to a special Christmas program.

The material was repaired and renovated by ALC students, faculty and staff and was distributed to about 700 children who otherwise might not have received Christmas presents.

"Response to the toy drive was overwhelming," said Christine Stumbo, the college's ALCOR director. "Local citizens in Floyd, Knott and Letcher counties donated almost 2400 toys to our Christmas Project."

Even the mothers of some ALC students pitched in to sew new dresses for rehabilitated dolls. Several area merchants donated whole cartons full of new toys to the Project, as did the staff of the East Kentucky Health Services Center, Inc., at Malle in Knott county.

Other contributors to the project included the KLPF Community Action Program Office in Hindman, which donated several pairs of children's boots and the Knott County Junior Chamber of Commerce, which donated toys and helped with distribution.

According to Miss Stumbo, Rich Blandeau, director of ALCOR, Inc., in Hazard, Ky., was so impressed with the project that he gave ALC a grant to cover the program's expenses.

Most of the children receiving the toys were in families with from six to ten children. These families did not qualify for other types of aid, Miss Stumbo said. Distribution was handled by the Kentucky Department of Human Resources Social Service Agency.

Toys also went to families with children being served by the Pippa Passes Rural Child Care Center.

In addition, several departments of the College—ALCOR, Community Services, and the Human Services Program—gave five Christmas parties for area children and adults. The parties were held at the Golden Years Rest Home, Letcher, the Missionary Baptist Church at Mousie, the Upper Kentucky River Adult Mental Health-Mental Retardation Center, Hindman, an outdoor ALCOR center on Doty Creek and on Ball Creek.

This year, as in years past, Mrs. Edith Hayes, wife of ALC President William S. Hayes, worked hard hours preparing 30,000 Christmas "Pretties" for distribution to about 10,000 school-age children throughout Eastern Kentucky. ALC's Christmas Pretties program was begun many years ago by Mrs. Alice Lloyd. "Pretties" was the term used by Mrs. Lloyd to describe Christmas gifts which had no function other than making a child happy at Christmas.

Old Christmas To Be Feted With Story and Song, Jan. 5

By HELEN PRICE STACY
"This year's observance of Old Christmas will be held at 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon, January 5 (Old Christmas Eve—at May Lodge).
"When the calendar changed and Christmas came 12 days earlier, many American settlers never accepted it and continued to celebrate January 6th as Christmas."
Mrs. Edith Fitzpatrick James, of Prestonsburg, was explaining why another Christmas was being celebrated so soon after the "real" Christmas. Of course, most people today consider Dec. 25 the real day for celebrating the birth of Christ, but this was not so among early settlers throughout America.

Mrs. James, director of Old Christmas in May Lodge at the park, is herself a noted dulcimer player and singer. The Jan. 5 celebration will include songs, music and maybe a bit of square dancing, along with chautau singing by the Jenny Wiley Chantresses.
The folk dancing will include, among others, the Killikranksie, the Scottish Sword Dance and the Sir Roger deCoverly dance.

Those who might enjoy a Christmas without the heavy money for gifts, time for shopping and the commercialism can drive to Jenny Wiley State Resort Park near Prestonsburg for the annual observance of Old Christmas on Jan. 5.
Mrs. James revived the custom more than 40 years ago when she was responsible for a special Christmas program on Dec. 25. She became ill and was unable to follow through with the planned event. To compensate, remembering stories of another Christmas, she planned her program around the Jan. 6 date.
"When I was a child," she said, "Old Christmas didn't take the place of Christmas proper, but at Christmastime we always would hear all the old stories and legends."
One of the stories explained the part animals played in the great celebration. "Cattle and other animals in the barn were supposed to kneel in reverence at midnight on Old Christmas and mystically acquire the power of speech."
Long years ago in the hills and hollows of the Kentucky Highlands, children were admonished by their elders not to go near the barn at the midnight hour, for humans were not supposed to hear what the animals said. But children then were the same as they are today, and many

New Penal Code Effective Today

By RACHAEL KAMUF

FRANKFORT, Ky.—At 12:01 a.m. New Year's Day what had been a crime two minutes before may not be a criminal offense as a result of the broadest revision of Kentucky criminal laws in recent times.

At that time a new penal code goes into effect. The code eliminates laws governing some activities, such as adultery. But more importantly, according to state justice officials, it simplifies and clarifies all other crimes, except those set apart by specific statutes.

One group to benefit by the penal code will be police officers. Guy Bayes, director of the Department of Justice's training program, said the code will make it easier for policemen to understand and enforce the laws. "Criminal offenses are presented in an orderly, understandable fashion in the new code," he said.

There are now 25 separate theft offenses. The new penal code redefines theft and breaks it down into seven different types. Bayes said this division by categories is logical and will make it easier for policemen to charge a suspect properly.

Bayes said the code also simplifies the classification of felonies and misdemeanors. Offenses such as robbery are classified by degrees. A first degree robbery offense is more serious than a second degree offense. Bayes said an officer's knowledge of classes in cases of robbery or other crimes enables the officer to know when he must obtain a warrant or when he can make an arrest on probable cause.

As the laws are now written, he said, an officer may have to delay taking any action until he has consulted someone on the law's interpretation. "It is hard for a policeman to interpret laws in split seconds on the streets when judges and attorneys spend years interpreting them in court."

While the code has been welcomed by those involved in the criminal justice system and citizens alike, it has not been without its controversies.

One of the most controversial aspects has been the penal code's limit of the amount of force a policeman may use in making an arrest. The present law allows the use of deadly force (a gun) when a person's life is threatened, including the officer's, or whenever a policeman believes it is necessary when arresting a felony suspect.

The penal code limits the use of guns to certain types of felonies such as murder, armed robbery, armed assault or anytime someone's life, again, including the officer's, is endangered. Many are concerned this may mean police officers may be subjected to abuse and danger. Noting that policemen will still be allowed to protect themselves and others, Bayes said he is not sure the changes will cause the problems others expect.

"By and large, the police in this state are reluctant to use deadly force. Policemen are like other people and respect human life," he said.

A definite problem Bayes expects, police to encounter is determining mental states when charging a person with a crime. With few exceptions, no crime has been committed under the code unless the suspect acted with one of four newly defined mental states. When making an arrest, an officer must determine if a crime was committed intentionally, knowingly, wantonly or recklessly.

The confusion arises as a result of the language defining the mental states. "Intentionally" and "knowingly" mean basically the same thing under the code—the person knows he is committing the crime. The only real difference lies in how they are used.

Generally, according to the code, "intentionally" is applied to crimes against persons, such as murder, while "knowingly" pertains to crimes against property, such as illegal possession of stolen property.

"Wantonly" and "recklessly" are applied to a suspect who does not know that he is committing a crime but should know because of the circumstances. "Wantonly" is defined as creating a serious risk when a person is aware of the risks and consciously acts in spite of them, such as speeding in a residential area.

Conduct is considered to be reckless when a person wrongly creates a serious risk of which he is not aware and his failure to see the risk is unreasonable, such as firing a loaded gun in the assumption that the gun is unloaded.

To prepare the policemen for the changes, the state of training has sponsored week-long seminars on the penal code. Bayes said 3,100 police officers in the state will have received the training by New Year's Day.

The bureau of training also has prepared a manual listing every crime in the penal code and the laws which the code doesn't change. The booklet, which is available to all policemen free of charge, also contains chapters on arrest, search and seizure procedures.

In addition to the listings, the manual also explains situations that may help officers interpret the law. The definitions of mental states are accompanied by examples to help officers determine which applies to the specific incident he is facing.

Because the manual is pocket sized, policemen can carry it with them. This gives them an easy reference point until they become familiar with the new penal code, Bayes said.

He thinks it will take several years before police and citizens become totally familiar with the penal code. As with any other law, the penal code will be subject to changes. "The courts will be asked to interpret various provisions," Bayes said, adding that he also expects policemen to request changes as they see how the penal code can be realistically applied on the streets.

He described the code as a "tremendous improvement in the law," and whose advantages "far outweigh the disadvantages."

If nothing else, he said, a more accessible law will make officers "even more professional."

Churchill's Memoirs Highlighted on KET

Sir Winston Churchill's memoirs are the main focus of "The Finest Hours," a two-hour documentary presented Thursday, Jan. 2, at 8:30 p.m. EST on Kentucky Educational Television.

"The Finest Hours" highlights the years of World War II, when Churchill mobilized the English people to combat the Axis powers that threatened an invasion of British soil for the first time since 1066.

Narrated by Orson Welles, the documentary uses film clips, still photographs and archive film to trace Churchill's turbulent career and leadership during the war years. It focuses on the period from the early dark days of Dunkirk and the beginning of the London blitz, through the North African campaign and the invasion of Italy to D-Day and, finally, the victory.

Churchill rallied the British people together through his eloquence and humor as a master tactician and politician. He became prime minister in 1940, found himself out of office at the end of the war, then served once again from 1951-55, when he retired from public life at age 80.

Comprehensive Health Group To Meet Jan. 6

The Big Sandy Comprehensive Health planning council will conduct business Monday night, January 6, at Jenny Wiley State Park Lodge immediately following a Dutch Dinner which begins at 6:30.

Nomination of two new council members, certificate of need and 1122 review for three applications, six-month review for 11 applications, and various other status reports are tentative agenda items.

The public is welcome to attend and comment on any or all health needs in the Big Sandy.

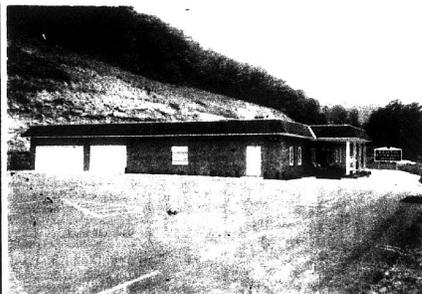

Over 200,000 American babies are born with birth defects each year, the March of Dimes reports.

Fifteen from County Attend Seminar

Pippa Passes, Ky.—About 45 persons attended a day-long seminar on natural resources in Kentucky Dec. 8 at Alice Lloyd College. Among them were 13 students and two teachers from Floyd county schools.

The instructors were: Glenda Fraley, science teacher at Betsy Layne High School, and Lowell L. Martin, biology instructor at Allen Central High School. The 13 students, all from Betsy Layne, were Phillip Hall, Peggy Tackett, Ray Akers, Danny Ramey, Debra Hayes, Dennis Hall, Mary Ellen Stumbo, Sylvia Jean Martin, Yelonda Edmonds, Karen Newman, John Walters, Randy Conn and Debbie Lewis.

The seminar was one of a number of regional meetings sponsored by the Kentucky Junior Academy of Science and the Kentucky Academy of Science. The purpose of the seminar was to promote interest in the natural sciences and to give high school students an opportunity to meet and talk with professional persons working in scientific careers.

At the conference, Rufus Fugate, Leslie county, agricultural extension agent, gave each person in attendance a list of rare and endangered wildlife in Kentucky. The list contained 40 species including the common shrew, the spotted skunk, the golden eagle, the bald eagle, trout, the green tree frog, the black bear, the bobcat, and the cougar.

Fugate said that, contrary to popular opinion, coal mining in its various forms is not the main problem facing wildlife in Eastern Kentucky. The major problem, he said, is forest fires.

Anna Miller, geology instructor at ALC, said the only state in the country with more fresh water streams than Kentucky was Alaska. Jit Ghosal, ALC associate professor of chemistry, explained how coal mining polluted fresh water streams and what steps could be taken to prevent fresh water pollution.

Roy Mullins, vice president of the Falcon Coal Co., explained how strip-mined land can be re-claimed and described Falcon's reclamation efforts.

Roy Reynolds, organizer of the ALC conference and chairman of the College's division of Natural Science and Mathematics, said he is considering planning a second science seminar on another topic for next year.

On Emory Dean's List
Miss Nancy Louise Short, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hardin C. Short, of Prestonsburg, has been named to the Dean's List of Emory University, Atlanta, Ga., for the fall quarter. It was announced last week by Dr. John M. Pains, dean of students.

Consumer Comments

By Atty. Gen. Ed W. Hancock

Make a New Year's resolution to stop cheating yourself! Yes, you—so knowledgeable about common consumer frauds like bait and switch, so able to pass by phony bargains with an iron will that exhausts swindling salesmen and a glance that would shrewd any fly-by-night operator—you may be cheating yourself!

Are there times when you lose money simply through carelessness—carelessness with something like looking over your monthly bank statement? If the balance doesn't correspond to your own calculations, do you dismiss it as a mistake on your part? Don't. Banks, just like any establishment, can make honest mistakes. Be diligent in your balancing and report any errors immediately.

How about your last grocery store visit? When the checker rang up your sale items, did you notice if the items were marked correctly? If they weren't marked, did the checker remember the correct sale price? You must be an alert shopper, not because everyone is out to get you, but because everyone can, and does, make an honest mistake now and then. Help prevent these kinds of mistakes and save yourself some money.

Another such situation may occur in a restaurant. You're eager to leave and ask for the bill. When it comes, check it over to be sure the correct charges were made. Don't be afraid of offending the waiter or waitress instead of offending your wallet.

At least every consumer situation is open to error. At the dry cleaner or laundry, make note of what articles of clothing you have taken and check to be sure all are returned to you. When you receive a telephone bill, utility bill or credit card bill, look carefully at each charge. If you don't remember a particular charge, look at the accompanying receipt, call the company or store or write to the credit card company or whoever has the information. But never pay a bill that you're not sure is correct. Instead, put your doubts in writing before the bill is due to be paid.

If you feel that you have been a victim of some type of consumer fraud, write to the Attorney General's Consumer Protection Division, the Capitol, Room 34, Frankfort, Kentucky. Kentucky residents may call on the toll-free hotline: 1-800-372-2860.

Ten Kentucky schools have been recognized for exceptional physical education programs by the Kentucky Alliance for Health, Physical Education and Recreation (KAHPER) at the group's 21st annual convention in Louisville. The honored schools were Wilt Elementary and Eisenhower Elementary in Jefferson county, Bluegrass Baptist Elementary and James Lane Allen Elementary in Fayette county, A. M. Yealey Elementary and Chester Goodridge Elementary in Boone county, Paul G. Blazer Senior High School in Boyd county, Franklin Elementary in Simpson county, Sinking Fork Elementary in Christian county, and Murray State University Elementary in Calloway county.

Daniel Williams, who preached the first sermon in what later would be Morgan county, built one of the first cabins in West Liberty. Williams later moved to Caney Valley in Morgan where he discovered coal and thought the material so black, shiny and beautiful that he built his house of coal. Before long, the house constructed of canned coal, pieces of which could be ignited with a single match, caught fire and was destroyed.
