City Sticks To Program As Planned To File Application In Full Following Initial Setback

The city of Prestonsburg has received from Virgil G. Kinnaird, Kentucky director of HUD activities, an unfavorable letter commenting on the city's preapplication for $300,025 in federal funds for various improvements here. The letter was regarded as a reaction to the criticism of the preapplication voiced by Joseph R. McCauley, executive director of the Big Sandy Area Development District.

The Kinnaird letter does not preclude the filing of a full application, however, and the city proposes to do just that, a city administration source said Tuesday. Mayor William C. Goodell and the City Council, it was said, will now file a full application for the same projects and the same amounts that were originally requested. These are:

- Purchase of a site for a high-rise housing project for the elderly, $101,500, $99,950 for the purchase of a central business district parking area, $4,500 for relocation of tenant in parking area;
- $9,575 for a parking structure feasibility study; $35,000 for park and recreation improvements at Archer Park and at the Goble-Roberts public housing project; $12,000 for feasibility, cost analysis and preliminary engineering for utilities and road to housing and industrial site on Abbott Mountain; $18,000 for administrative cost and technical assistance.

Ministerial Group Slates Good Friday And Easter Services

The Prestonsburg Ministerial Association will conduct a Good Friday service at 12:10 p.m. at the First United Methodist Church on Arnold Avenue. Host pastor is Rev. Howard Cook, chairman of the Ministerial Association. The speaker will be the Rev. Bruce Boss, vicar of Saint James Episcopal Church. Father Boss was recently ordained to the priesthood for the Diocese of Lexington. Liturgical music will be provided by the Prestonsburg High School choral ensemble under the direction of Mrs. Carlos Hayward. A collection will be taken for the transient fund maintained by the Ministerial Association to assist those who, passing through Prestonsburg, are stranded without food or shelter.

Townsend Declares Big Sandy Not To Suffer Step-Child Role

Seeking the "input of the people," Kentucky's new Commerce Commissioner Larry G. Townsend said with a group of community leaders and other concerned citizens at May Lodge last Thursday, and vowed that his department would not consider the Big Sandy area and Eastern Kentucky as a whole as a "stepchild."

Townsend, accompanied by members of his department as well as other Frankfort representatives, explained that, all too often the area had been regarded in such a way "because you were a little farther away from Frankfort or Louisville." Townsend told the group, "I pledge I won't take this attitude."

The meeting was one of a series of meetings which Townsend referred to as a plan for "charting a course for Kentucky." Throughout the month of March, the Department of Commerce is moving its offices from Frankfort to locations in all of the state's 15 area development districts. Thursday's meeting was sponsored by the Commerce Department and the Big Sandy Area Development District office.

The 33-year-old Townsend said his department is launching a major "Sell Kentucky" program aimed at attracting industry to the state, and he hoped that the meetings would help him to "know as much as possible about what I'm selling."

The Commissioner told the group that economic conditions in the state are much better than in many areas of the country, because, he said, "our industry is characterized by a diverse product mix." Townsend conceded that fewer companies are considering expansion of operations at present but, he added, "I do know that the situation is a temporary one and when the time is right, Kentucky

Theft of Drugs Valued at $1500 Reported Here

Prestonsburg police reported that an estimated $1,500 worth of "hard" drugs were taken last Thursday night in the burglary of Reid's Pharmacy in the Archer Creek area, according here.

Entrance was effected by smashing a window. The police investigation continues but there was no known clue to the identity of the looters.

Sizeable hauls of intoxicants and the impoundment of three autos from which they were taken were reported by Sheriff Joe W. Lewis.

A 1971 Dodge which the sheriff said was licensed in the name of Harold Joseph of Prestonsburg, was impounded Saturday after deputy sheriffs and city police confiscated nine cases of whiskey found on it. A warrant was issued for the arrest of Joseph. Officers involved were Deputy Sheriffs Green Stone, Doug Lewis and Denver Sparlock, Policemen Bill Potter, Woodrow Lafferty, James Lafferty and Craig Kilgore.

The arrest Monday night of James Shepherd on Salt Lick, near Hueysville, and the confiscation of 15 cases of beer, one case of wine and a case of whiskey by Deputies Stone and Lewis were followed by impoundment of a 1969 Pontiac. Shepherd was charged with transporting and possessing intoxicants.

The same night, Deputy Sheriffs John D. and Danny Martin arrested Greg Hall at Galveston, confiscated 11 cases of beer and one case of whiskey, and impounded his 1968 Chevrolet. He also was booked on charges of transporting and selling.

Two cases of beer were taken Sunday when Bobby Ray Newsome was arrested at Teaberry by Deputies John D. and Danny Martin. He was charged with possession.

The auto of Azzie Newsome, Sheriff Lewis said, was impounded after he was arrested. (See Story No. 5, Page 4)

'Copter in Crash Near Here

The pilot and three passengers of this helicopter escaped serious injury late Friday afternoon when it dropped a reported 50 feet in an emergency landing in the vicinity of the East Kentucky Mack plant at Sugar Loaf. A malfunction in the tail section of the 'copter was said to have caused the crash. Treated at the Highlands Medical Center and later released were David E. Walsh, Needham, Mass., John Kozaka, Framingham, Mass., Tim Chiareto, Pikeville, and Bernard Campbell, East Point.

Bad Water Situation Gets Worse

This was the scene on the old road from Allen to Banner last week following heavy rains, with water backed up behind a closed or clogged culvert virtually isolating seven families. Elderly Elizabeth Carr, one of those affected, said the first mail delivered to her home since the recent rainy weather began came last Saturday. Mrs. Carr said the water situation there has existed for a year when a sidetrack was built for the Adams Construction Company and its culvert under the tracks later closed to the extent that water would not pass. She said that her son's garden was flooded last week, that some families living along the road could reach Allen but not Banner and that others were cut off in the other direction. "Last year, the mosquitoes were awfully bad, but nothing was done," she said. Adams Construction, however, began work Monday to effect drainage.

Wells Record Discourages Betting He'll Not Realize $12 Million Plan

Wayland's J. C. "Crit" Wells looks toward federal-aid projects for the Beaver Creeks of this county which will involve the expenditure of $12 million, result in both water and sewerage services for the area and the construction of two low-lying housing complexes, one for each fork of Beaver Creek.

And those familiar with his record of achievement aren't betting he's merely dreaming.

For one such dream-come-true, the Beaver-Elkhorn Water District, already has water flowing from its plant at Allen through 82 miles of mains, all the way to the upper sections of both Right and Left Beaver Creeks. It is believed to be the most extensive water district development in terms of miles in Kentucky.

Phase I of that giant undertaking is complete and has been in operation a year. It has approximately 900 customers at this time and expects to have between 1,200 and 1,500.

Application has been made for additional funds to run water mains from the mouth of Brush Creek on KY 80 up that valley and across the mountain to the town of David and down the Left Fork of Middle Creek to the Buckeye vicinity.

That extension is regarded as almost certain to be made. In the same project 200 or more additional meters to residences some distance removed from present mains are planned.

The cost of this water project will be $2,970,000, of which $2,232,000 is a federal grant.

Two weeks ago, Wells' dream of a sewer system to serve homes and business reached by the water lines "got off the ground" with the approval of a $61,836 planning grant.

Wells expects another 18 months to elapse before construction of the sewer system will be let to contract. But he is confident contract-letting time will come and that the system will become reality.

He argues that with water in homes and businesses stream pollution is magnified many times unless a means is provided for sewage treatment and disposal. And, he adds, only with federal help can this protection against stream pollution be possible for small towns and rural areas.

The sewer work will cost an estimated $7 million.

However long this and other undertakings require, Wells, who is chairman of the water district, is ready to give it. He had the advantage of being semi-retired and of having his share of patience and perseverance.

For instance, during the months of working on the original water district grant, he made 13 trips to Washington, two to Atlanta, one to New York, logged 5,540 hours of his time and was in almost continuous contact with Congressman Carl D. Perkins, county, state and federal officials.

He does not attempt to take all the credit for the water project. He speaks of the good job done by Kenney Engineers, Lexington, Congressman Perkins, county officials, the help of the First Guaranty Bank on interim financing, and so on.

"This sewer project," he said last week, "is one of the biggest undertakings ever for any part of Floyd county. With the completion of both the water and sewer systems, and with all the attributes presently here, this area will be most inviting to new businesses, building of new homes and the general pleasure and enjoyment of those living in this half of the county."

He added that the Melvin-Weeksbury area in the headwaters of Left Beaver Creek, communities not yet reached with water service, are still in the water district plans. "But first the people there must want these services and make proper application." Mr. Wells pointed out.

Twelve million dollars for improvements on the Beaver Creeks with only $2 million to be repaid anybody want to bet it's just a dream?

County Judge Henry Stumbo and County Attorney James R. Allen announced Monday the receipt of assurance of state financial support this year of the Jenny Wiley Drama Association.

Gov. Julian Carroll has designated $30,000 from his contingency fund to help the drama association continue its summer theatre program at the Jenny Wiley amphitheatre. It was announced that of this amount $15,000 will be paid within the next two weeks, the remaining $15,000 to be available after the beginning of the new fiscal year, July 1.

This year's financial aid from the governor's contingency fund is the same as last. Without such assistance the drama association would be hard-pressed to continue its annual program.

Badly needed as it is, $30,000 is, however, no complete answer to the association's financial needs, and a fund-raising drive will be launched shortly.

Elizabeth A. Beatty, public relations director for the Jenny Wiley Summer Music Theatre, said this week. "We're hoping to get on sound financial ground and avoid some of the problems of the past," she said.

A national entertainment figure who is interested in the program here is Richard Thomas (John-Boy of "The

Park Ready For Influx Of Campers Goble Br. Facility To Be Ready April 1 At $400,000 Cost

Kentucky's system of state parks will have ready and waiting at the April 1 outset of the 1975 camping season a modern campground in each park, and the campground in the Goble Branch area of Jenny Wiley State Park is the newest of the lot.

Preparation of the Jenny Wiley campground, made at a cost of approximately $400,000, has been under way more than a year. The work there involved construction of 128 camp pads, a water and sewage system, the latter including a tertiary sewage treatment plant, two bath houses, a trailer dump station, a camp store to be opened soon, grills, picnic tables, a fully equipped central playground and access roads.

Each year, more and more visitors are camping at park campgrounds. Department of Parks statistics show that last year the total number of campers was up by more than 100,000 over 1973. This year marks the first rate change in six years on state park campgrounds. Rates for recreational vehicles only are up 50 cents per night—an increase due to rising prices for utilities and supplies, parks officials say.

For up to six people, rates per night are $3.40 for tents and $5.50 for recreational vehicles. An additional 25 cents per person is charged for groups of more than six.

Campers are rented on a first-come, first-served basis with no advance reservations accepted.

SOME SECRETS NEED KEEPING

The people's right to know, a principle which covers many the journalistic sin, is a noble premise, but sometimes it may be wrong for everybody to know.

Freedom does not mean license to do whatever any freeman wants to do, without responsibility to others, and by the same token, there is some information which does not belong to every individual who wants to know when such information, becoming public knowledge, endangers the many.

That CIA secret operation to salvage a sunken Russian submarine to afford this country needed knowledge of Soviet weapons and gadgetry of war should have been kept secret. But one television network, keeping the secret, was frenetic in its fear that the news would "break" on another network, and newspapers and news services were in a tizzy, lest they be "scooped" by another, until finally Jack Anderson gave a bare sketch of the secret. Then everybody rushed to battle stations to let the "dear public" here at home and the rest of the world, including the Kremlin, know the story to the fullest detail.

Woman Claims She Was Held As Shoplifter

A total of $250,000 damages were asked in a suit filed last Wednesday by a Floyd county woman who claims she was unlawfully detained by employees of a Prestonsburg store as a shoplifting suspect.

The plaintiff, Georgia Jean Marsillett, alleges that on Dec. 20, after she had left the Maloney store here, she was "seized" by store employees who, mistook her identity and addressed her in the name of another woman, then by threats and intimidation forced her back into the store building over her protests, locked her in a small room and searched her. She claims they accused her of having a prior shoplifting record.

The plaintiff claims the action has caused her mental and physical suffering and loss of earning power and that it was intentional and malicious, or, in the alternative, in gross neglect of her rights.

The suit asks $100,000 actual damages and $150,000 punitive damages.

(Allegations made in such damage actions represent only the plaintiff and do not include any defense answer.)

Judge Asks FBI Probe Of Tampering Charge

PIKEVILLE, Ky.—A federal judge says he's asked the FBI to investigate allegations of jury tampering in two cases.

U. S. District Court Judge H. David Hermansdorfer declined Thursday to be more specific.

"I can't answer any questions as to what prompted my call but it is a serious matter," he said.

The FBI will check into threats or promises which may have been made to some jurors.

"Anything that the FBI uncovers will be turned over to the grand jury," the judge said. "I put no limitation on the amount of time the FBI may need to complete its probe."

The FBI also declined to elaborate on the cases.

State Drops Old Littering Myths, Picks Up New Litterbug Research

By MARVA GAY

Frankfort, Ky.—The citizens of ancient Rome were warned that littering could lead to fines or corporal punishment. Shakespeare's father was fined for littering a street in Stratford, England. A Boston newspaper in 1874 condemned the actions of litterbugs at an Independence Day parade.

Between 1874 and recent years, the story of littering has remained basically the same. Littering has been often condemned and just as often practiced. Probably the biggest difference between littering in 1874 and now is the cost of cleaning it up. Last year, the Kentucky Department of Transportation spent about $1.5 million to remove and dispose of litter along state highways.

In 1960, Kentucky, becoming one of the first states to enter the anti-litter business, set up a beautification agency, now a party of the Kentucky Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection.

According to Mary Helen Terrell, assistant supervisor of the state beautification program, research is helping increase public concern and volunteer clean-up efforts.

security and no sense of personal responsibility. It is an action caused by the feeling on the part of many individuals that their acts have little impact on the world around them."

Beyond that, litter seems to attract litter. "When a room or an area is messy or littered, people tend to mess it up some more. But if an area is neat, people will try to keep it that way."

Some recent findings which surprised Miss Terrell the most include a study done by Gallup International, Inc., which says men litter twice as often as women. "I was also surprised to learn that small families litter more often than those with five or more members and that local residents litter more than tourists."

"This type of information," she added, "gives us much more to work with than the Romans or the Bostonians had. We are certainly revising the Kentucky program and tactics in light of new research—and that seems to be helping."

Strip-Mine Law Will Help At More Than One Point

The Times is not alone in its belief that the proposed federal strip-mine bill will not be destructive to the coal industry, whatever President Ford may say.

Among those who share this conviction are Congressman Tim Lee Carter, Fifth district Republican. Both represent coal-mining areas, and both spoke last week with refreshing candor on their support of the legislation.

By way of endorsement we reprint their statements, in part. Said Congressman Perkins:

"This legislation would be the salvation of the coal mining industry and not—as some mistakenly believe—a detriment to it. It would save Appalachia, while allowing responsible mining to continue there and in other areas of the East. And it will prevent the wholesale destruction of the Great Plains area of the West, preserving a tremendous source of badly needed food . . . This bill will affect those who don't care—and it should."

Declaring he would be for the bill if a Presidential veto override is necessary, Congressman Carter said, in part:

"Eastern Kentucky has been ravaged by strip-mining and I have made my position clear—even in Harlan county. If it can't be reclaimed, it shouldn't be mined."

Some environmentalists have opposed the legislation on the grounds that it is too loose to serve the purpose of really controlling surface mining and protecting the land and water resources. But we maintain that the bill gives the federal government needed power to take over enforcement in those cases when the states fail to enforce. And it is obvious that, although some strip-mine operators are in compliance with reclamation provisions, not all are being required to meet the full requirements.

Freshman Congressman Carroll Hubbard, Jr., First District Democrat, makes the valid point that the bill will really help Kentucky coal interests. He referred to coal companies threatening to move, or actually moving, from Kentucky and its "strong" reclamation requirements to other states where the requirements are not so stringent. Said Hubbard: "By putting some regulation on other states that are not as stringent as Kentucky, this bill could even enhance production in Kentucky because we won't have any more of this interstate blackmail."

The legislation protects Kentucky coal in another way. It will curb wholesale strip-mining operations in those rich 50-foot seams out west which, if fully developed, could kill the coal market for areas such as Eastern Kentucky.

Some farsighted Kentucky coal men have supported the federal strip-mine law, and that threat of western coal may be one of the reasons.

If there had been competing newspapers and radio and television networks in operation, back in 1975, wonder how long it would have taken the British to learn the important secret of the hour, "One if by land, two if by sea."

When I ventured back, some time later, Moore had the refrigerator loaded on a truck and the delivery ticket marked for delivery next morning. To this day I don't know how he saved the sale, and at the time I was afraid to ask.

WHEREIN I COLLECT

Some years ago, James Morell horn-sungled me into selling him the one and only lifetime subscription to this newspaper that has ever been sold. Now I propose, without his permission, to get some space filled by him with a note which he wrote me recently.

When I was right at that point that the customer said to Moore, "Hold up on delivering the Electrolux. I'm going to find Dr. Ransdell and see what kind of a deal I can make with him."

"Most lawyers talk too much and many of them fall to shut up when they are ahead. I recall a lawyer who was defending a man who had bitten off the ear of another man. On cross-examination of a witness for the plaintiff this lawyer said, 'John, you claim the defendant bit off this man's ear, but did you with your own eyes actually see it happen?'"

"Sure, I'm sure James."

"When the witness replied, 'No, I did not,' that was when the lawyer was ahead. But he didn't stop there. His next question was, 'Then how on earth can you testify that it happened?'"

"Sure, I'm sure James."

"Whereupon the witness blandly replied, 'Well, sir, I saw him spit it out.'"

"Sure, I'm sure James."

"Which says (Mr. Morell) brought to mind an incident involving Lennie Moore. 'Back in the early '30s Moore was helping me out in my business by selling Electrolux gas refrigerators. With down-to-earth people he was probably the best salesman I ever knew, but, like the lawyer, on at least one occasion he failed to shut up when he was ahead."

"Sure, I'm sure James."

"There was this prospect from Martin in the store and Moore was giving him the usual sales pitch, and the man finally said, 'OK I'll take it. Bring it up tomorrow and I'll give you a check when it's installed.'"

"Sure, I'm sure James."

"Instead of then turning the conversation to the weather or some such important matter, Moore kept on selling the man, and his line went something like this:

"Sure, I'm sure James."

"Yes, sir, you've made the right choice in buying a gas refrigerator in . . ."

"Sure, I'm sure James."

Letters to the Editor

Reply to Criticism

I was surprised to learn from Mayor Goebel on Monday, March 17, that he and members of his administration were criticizing the letter I had written to Mayor Goebel had been published in the Floyd County Times on Wednesday, March 19, 1975.

I want to set the record straight on this. I wrote the letter, but I did not give it to the Floyd County Times, and Mayor Goebel has since informed me that he had discovered that the letter was given to Mr. Allen by a member of his administration.

When Mr. Allen informed me that he had the letter and asked for my permission to use it, I told him that I certainly had no objections, and that he might use it in any way he wished since it evidently had been turned over to him by the City Administration, and as far as I was concerned there was nothing in it which should not be made public.

JOSEPH H. MCCAULEY

Says Credit Due

In last week's paper I read about the struggle over leadership in Big Sandy Health Care Corp. As a former board member, this announcement caused me deep grief. I was a board member during 1974 as the auditor of Big Sandy Health Care, Incorporated, then called Comprehensive Health Care, Incorporated. Mr. Allen insisted that every penny of the taxpayers' money be protected. He followed my advice in avoiding the fiscal pitfalls of the former agency.

If Mr. Allen is guilty of anything, he is guilty of caring too much about people deprived of health care by dent of their life circumstances. He has provided doctors and nurses where there were none before. I can assure you that as Mr. Allen leaves this section, Eastern Kentucky will become poorer for losing compassionate people such as Quentin Allen.

I would appreciate your printing this letter.

Seeks Information On Crazy Quilts

RICHMOND, Ky.—Crazy quilts are made from bits and pieces, and "The Sour Mash Crazy Quilt" will be no exception to this rule—except that it will be a book and not a coverlet. . . . The author, Mrs. Olyne Snow Reynolds, instructor of English at Eastern Kentucky University, is seeking bits and pieces of information on "very old Kentucky handmade quilts" for inclusion in the book. . . . She is compiling from across Kentucky a collection of stories about quilts that are unusual because of their age (at least 80 years) and their history, artistry, or creator. . . . The book will be part of Kentucky's bicentennial celebration.

Defends Quentin Allen

Last week, The Floyd County Times reported a news story which shocked and disgusted me. That story carried the headline of "scheduling" resignation of Quentin D. Allen, former executive director, Big Sandy Health Care, Incorporated.

Mr. Allen has no reason to resign. His work has had the earmarks of high ideals and competency. In his tenure as executive director, Mr. Allen brought the former agency, Comprehensive Health Care, Incorporated, back from total disgrace to the point of actually delivering health care. This was the first time the agency had actually done anything and it was under the direction of Quentin Allen that effective service was started.

Moreover, Mr. Allen involved the whole community through extraordinary effort. He cared about people participation in such a way that their participation was real, not a sham.

I understand that Mr. Allen has been forced to resign. I don't understand the reasons for kicking success. I particularly don't understand kicking an honest and upright man.

I am no kin of Mr. Allen. I served for a brief time as the auditor of Big Sandy Health Care, Incorporated, then called Comprehensive Health Care, Incorporated. Mr. Allen insisted that every penny of the taxpayers' money be protected. He followed my advice in avoiding the fiscal pitfalls of the former agency.

If Mr. Allen is guilty of anything, he is guilty of caring too much about people deprived of health care by dent of their life circumstances. He has provided doctors and nurses where there were none before. I can assure you that as Mr. Allen leaves this section, Eastern Kentucky will become poorer for losing compassionate people such as Quentin Allen.

LARRY G. TOWNSEND
Ky. Commissioner of Commerce

2. Begin to cultivate and develop relationships with companies in other states. Townsend pointed out that in the past many of Kentucky's industrial plants had been acquired in this way.

3. International trade. Townsend stressed the need to be selective in procuring industry. "We want the kinds of industry which would not detract in any way from a community but actually complement an area," he said.

"Through your careful planning, improve upon the experiences of other states, to minimize the disadvantages of industry and come up with as close to an ideal situation as possible."

In a session which followed Townsend's address, members of the group were invited to make comments or ask questions concerning the work of the Department of Commerce, the problems of securing access roads to industrial sites were voiced by representatives of Prestonsburg, Pikeville and Paintsville.

Speaking on behalf of Prestonsburg, Edward Muck discussed the problem involved with industrial sites at Cliff where the location of industry depends upon the construction of an access road which the State Department of Highways refuses to build without the firm commitment of an industry to locate in the area. "We've been pointed out by the people look at the sites but when you drive an industrial representative from, say, New York, over the existing road, it's a site before you're out of the area," Mr. Muck said.

Joseph R. McCauley, director of Big Sandy ADD, suggested an experimental change in the Department of Highways' rule that an industry must be committed to a site before a road will be built. McCauley said communities shouldn't necessarily be managed by the same rules. "We would like to be a guinea pig for a time to see just what happens if an access road is built first. Challenge us," McCauley suggested.

At the conclusion of the meeting Townsend told the group that he would be back in town for additional meetings in the area and he promised to bring representatives of other state government departments such as the Department of Highways to discuss further the problem in the Big Sandy area of access roads.

Johnson Highway May Share Funds

Frankfort, Ky.—Eastern Kentucky may be receiving as much as $17 million of the recently released $2 billion in federal highway funds, according to the Kentucky Department of Transportation. Gov. Julian Carroll has applied for a total of $70 million for statewide projects.

If all projects are approved, state matching funds will bring the total to $85 million.

Several Eastern Kentucky projects could be advanced, including work on US 27 in McCreary county from Pine Knot to the Tennessee line, US 460 in Johnson county from Oil Springs to near Paintsville, and KY 312 in Laurel county from I-75 to near the Laurel River. Also, bridge improvements or replacements could begin on US 421 in Harlan county, KY 1325 in Bath county, KY 38 in Harlan county and KY 225 in Knox county.

Approximately 80 per cent of the money will be required for construction, with the remainder spent for design, utility and right-of-way. Improvements of rail crossings, pavement markings and elimination of roadside obstacles in various counties also could begin.

The federal funds must be matched on a 90-to-10 basis by the state on interstate construction and matched 70-to-30 on other highway projects.

New Dye Technique Developed by USDA

NEW ORLEANS, La.—Housewives who like pretty towels may soon find a wide variety of fancy multicolored towels on store shelves as a result of a new invention of U. S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) scientists who have the consumer in mind.

Traditionally, dyeing has been used to enhance the style and beauty of cotton textiles. It is far less expensive than weaving multicolored fabrics, and the colors go deep into the fabric unlike the surface effect of printed fabrics.

Now scientists of USDA's Agricultural Research Service (ARS) have developed an entirely new dyeing technique that adds another dimension to imparting colors to towels and other cotton textiles such as denims and twills.

The technique allows dyeing one side of a fabric one color and the other side an entirely different color. It even allows patterns as simple or as complicated as the designer makes them.

The new technique is a spinoff from wash-wear and durable-press finishes developed at the ARS Southern Regional Research Center here during past years. The research team responsible for developing the new technique included chemists Robert J. Harper, Jr., Eugene J. Blanchard and Joseph S. Bruno, textile technician John J. Lofton, and physical science technician Gloria A. Gautreaux.

In making what they call a "restricted dye application," the researchers treat one side of the fabric with a modified wash-wear formulation then dye the fabric with a reactive cotton dye. The dye has no effect on the treated side but colors the untreated side.

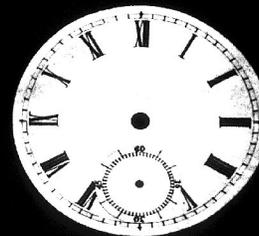

Following the dyeing, the fabric is washed in an acid bath to hydrolyze and remove the "restrictor." The fabric, now free of chemicals and dyed on one side, is dyed again. Voilà! a two-colored fabric. The choice of colors used in the separate dyeing steps necessarily must be made very carefully, but this poses little real difficulty. With the wide variety of choices, an almost unlimited combination of colors and shades is available.

Moreover, modifications of the procedure, such as weaving treated with untreated yarns, and making designs on the fabric surface with the dye resisters, offer virtually unlimited combinations of colors and designs.

The dye-resisting chemical treatment is an inexpensive, modified wash-wear formulation. Those portions of the cotton fabric treated with the formulation are completely resistant to the activity of the reactive cotton dyes used in the research.

Although the reactive dyes are used in the finishing industry, the research is now being turned to adapting the process for use with the vat dyes which are in more widespread use than the reactive dyes because they are less expensive and offer superior color and light fastness and crack resistance.

Judge Asked To Disqualify

INEZ, Ky.—An attorney for miners striking the Martin County Coal Corp. said last week he is asking a circuit court judge to disqualify himself from presiding over proceedings on picketing at the mine.

Attorney Raymond Kirk said Thursday he would ask Circuit Judge W. D. Sparks to step aside in the case. Kirk charged that a relative of Sparks was affiliated with the A. T. Massey Coal Co. of Richmond, Va., parent firm of Martin County Coal Corp.

Kirk said Sparks previously had disqualified himself from cases involving the Massey company because of the connection.

Meanwhile, picketing spread Thursday to nearby mines owned by the Massey firm.

Peter Cave Coal Co. officials confirmed that a Wolf Creek mine was closed all day when miners honored picket lines, and strikers said picketing was partially successful at Kermit Coal Co. in neighboring Mingo County, W. Va.

The Martin County Coal Corp. miners have been on strike since Feb. 25. The United Mine Workers union (UMW) said about 80 per cent of the miners later signed authorization cards for union representation.

State Police arrested 82 strikers earlier last week on charges of violating an order by Judge Sparks that limited pickets to two at a single entrance of the Martin county mine.

Sparks, however, ordered all of them released Wednesday and later modified his order to allow six pickets at one mine entrance and four at another.

He also ordered fines of $30 each against the 82, but held the fines in abeyance pending appeal of his earlier order limiting picketing.

State Police said the mine entrance was much quieter after the higher number of pickets was allowed. "The only time we have men on the scene is when the shifts change," said Capt. Billy Lykins, commander of the Pikeville post.

Consumer Comments

By EDW. HANCOCK

A Kentucky consumer recently noted that the warranties on some appliances are so short that they run out by the time you get home from the store! Although this may be an exaggeration, there have been a lot of problems with warranties. To deal with the warranty problem, a new law was passed by the Congress, signed this year by the President, and will be effective as soon as the Federal Trade Commission puts forth specific rules.

The new law has two basic goals: to make manufacturers provide consumers with straight-forward and meaningful warranties (and to back them up) and to strengthen the Federal Trade Commission's capacity to protect consumers against other unfair and deceptive practices. The new law does not require all consumer products to have a warranty. But if products do carry warranties, the warranties provided by manufacturers must meet certain standards.

Under this new warranty law, a written warranty must be labeled "full warranty" or "limited warranty." A "full warranty" means that the warranty meets minimum federal standards for warranties. A "limited warranty" means the warranty does not meet those standards. Minimum standards for warranties include repairing or replacing defective products at no charge and within a reasonable length of time, and giving a refund or a new product or part if the item cannot be repaired after a reasonable number of attempts.

What are a reasonable number of attempts? That's for the Federal Trade Commission to decide in the coming months, they will determine this question and put forth other specific rules for warranties.

A consumer should not longer be stuck with a car, a refrigerator or anything that never worked properly. That's what warranties are for—to protect consumers against paying their hard-earned dollars for unusable products.

If you have a complaint about warranties, or any consumer problem, contact the Attorney General's Division of Consumer Protection, Kentucky consumers may call toll-free on the consumer hotline: 1-800-373-2960, or write: Attorney General's Division of Consumer Protection, The Capitol, Room 344, Frankfort, Kentucky, 40601.

And if you'd like to hear more about consumer protection, tune in your TV set to the Consumer Survival Kit, a new TV series designed to save you headaches and money in the market place. Check your local listings on Sunday, Tuesday and Thursday for the exact times and channels.

Area Rich in Beauty, History

By HELEN PRICE STACY

Pilot Knob, near a corner boundary of Powell, Clark and Montgomery counties, was a guideline for Boone, John Finley and other scouts of the era and before that it was a landmark for Indians. Those who get permission from the landowners can climb the knob and stand where Boone stood long before them.

Mountain children on trips to the Bluegrass used the knob for a guideline too. They knew they were near Lexington when it came into view. "Look! Look! There's Umbrella Top. We're almost there."

"The knob is still timbered," wrote Lucian Beckner and Lucille Clark in the 1900s, "and is a rich collecting ground for botanists, ornithologists and the like."

Anyone who makes it to the top of Pilot Knob can see Clay City, Stanton, Mt. Sterling and Winchester. One party that made it to the top agreed they were even able to see Lexington.

This view from the top also looks down and around to historic ground. A short distance westward is Eskippikithki, last Indian village in the Commonwealth.

"There yet remains visible a large Indian mound and beside it a circle of 200 yards diameter," Beckner said.

The circle was designed and planted to protect the village. On the surrounding 3,500 acres of level land, Indians grew corn and other crops.

Here Tecumseh's father lived and here was born Catahecassa, or Black Hoop, who was chief of the Shawnees before Tecumseh forced him out.

This particular area today is known as Indian Old Fields and the land is considered extremely fertile. This Clark County area was inhabited for three years by Pierre Chartier, a half-French Indian chief, who in 1744 led 400 warriors and their families to settle here until 1747.

John Finley established a fur trading business with Indians here in 1752, leading Beckner to theorize that an Indian attack on Finley brought blue grass to Kentucky. In Finley's haste to get away, he threw away grass hay used for packing. "Its seed germinated, making the first blue grass in Kentucky."

Eskippikithki has much historical background, for the village was on the Great Warrior Trace beginning in the north, continuing through Cumberland Gap and on to the sea.

Northern Indians called the area just west of Pilot Knob "Kentucky, or a word sounding similar."

Citing the Iroquois alphabet and vocabulary as authority for this first mention of the word Kentucky, Beckner and Clark said "keer" was Iroquoian for level and "aki" or "iki" meant place. Col. Trent, in a 1753 report of the Indian

Old-Fashioned Trade Day

By GEORGE L. MOORE

During the 1890's and the 1940's, a thriving institution in the small towns of the Kentucky hill country was trade day. Perhaps the most important part of trade day was the jockey ground. This was the place where plug horses and mules were bought, sold and traded. Actually, there was not much selling but a great deal of swapping going on. It might be well to state that a plug horse was an animal that had seen its best days and was of little monetary value.

When old Dobbin, along with the sure-footed mule, began to disappear, trade day as the oldtimers knew it gradually faded from the hill country. The tractor and the pickup provided the new source of power on the farm. When trade day disappeared, it also sounded the death knell for the village blacksmith shop. Horseshoeing was the mainstay for the country and village blacksmith.

It was something to watch a plug horse trader go to work. When two traders met on the jockey ground, each would banter the other for a swap. Each trader would dismount and begin a preliminary examination of the two respective animals. Trader No. 1 would say, "How old did you say this nag was?" "Well, I'll tell you the truth, he was traded to me for a seven-year-old." Then trader No. 1 would carefully examine the animal's mouth, shake his head in disgust and say, "He will never see 21 again." Now trader No. 2 would make the same type of examination of the other horse. "How old did you say he was?" "Well I know the feller that raised him and he told me that he would be 11 this coming March." "I can tell you one thing, he shore is old enough to vote."

If the deal was finally consummated, not more than a couple of dollars changed hands either way.

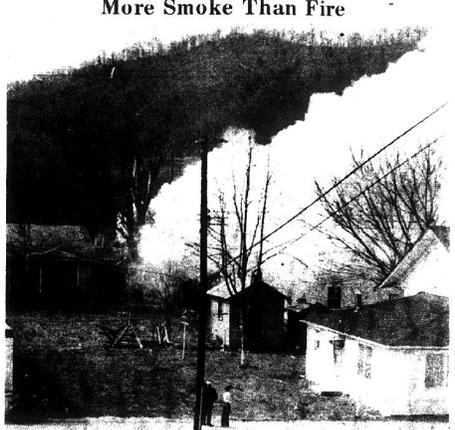

Once knew a young man who got more pleasure from visiting the jockey ground and swapping plug horses than anything in life. He not only attended all the trade days in his own county but in all the surrounding counties that he could get to. He usually carried two short pints of mountain dew with him "to sweeten the deal," as he put it. The only trouble with this, was he was known to imbibe rather freely himself and more often than not he would come out on the short end of the deal. Despite this fact, he considered himself a very clever trader. When he thought he had made a good trade, he would tell his fellow traders, "I shore give that feller a good burning."

It's wife took a very dim view of his activities on the jockey ground. What little domestic bliss there was in his home was rapidly disappearing. One Saturday afternoon he returned from the jockey ground on a flea-bitten nag that looked as every step it took would be its last. His wife met him at the door and gave him a tongue lashing more severe than any that Dame Van Winkle ever administered to Old Rip. She said, "I've had it, and if you ever start toward that jockey ground again, I will leave you for good." The following Monday morning Ira and a group of his fellow-traders were gathered in the country store waiting for the mail to arrive.

Ira was sitting near the pot-bellied stove, gazing at the floor in a very sad mood. He was a picture of utter dejection. He sat there quite a while with his head bowed in silence. Finally he lifted his head and spoke: "You know what I wish? Wish that men would start swapping wives just like they do plug horses."

"Why?" one of his fellow traders asked. "Well if you'd just like to know, I would like to give some feller a damn good burning."

Under new provisions of the Fair Labor Standards Act, any retail, service or agricultural employer may hire up to four full-time students at a subminimum wage by notifying the Secretary of Labor.

Smoke billowed last Thursday noon from the former Church of Christ building at Dvale as fire threatened the small structure, but damage was confined to its ceiling. The blaze started while employees of Charles May, owner of the building, were temporarily away.

CARD OF THANKS

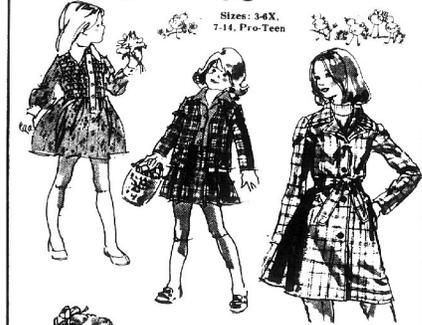

We, the family of George Bentley, wish to acknowledge with gratitude all that was done for our loved one who passed away Feb. 13, 1975; to the doctors and nurses of McDowell Hospital and Veterans Hospital, Huntington, W. Va.; for the beautiful flowers, the food, all who came, those who prepared the grave, the comforting words of the ministers, those who performed the military services, and the Hall Bros. Funeral Home for their kind and efficient services. All these things we will always remember.

Junior Club To Purchase Pediatric Resuscitator for Highlands Hospital

The regular March meeting of the Prestonsburg Junior Woman's Club was held March 20 at the Floyd County Library, with the president, Janice Allen, presiding. Guest-speaker for the evening was Terry Webb, of the local Army National Guard.

Martha Johnson, third vice-president, reported that the club has become a member of the Kentucky Walking Horse Association in order to upgrade the quality of the club-sponsor horse show to be held August 16.

In the president's report, Mrs. Allen announced that 16 clubwomen will be attending the KFWC annual convention April 7-11 in Louisville and that Seventh District Juniors are official Fun Night hostesses at the convention. It was also reported that over $170 was raised by the club's KET committee for the Experiment in International Living student will be hosted by Sellersville Juniors.

Reporting on the department meeting held March 12, Helena Johnson, Conservation chairman, announced that three park benches and two bike racks have arrived, that flowers will be planted shortly at the Floyd County Library, at "Welcome to Prestonsburg" sign boxes and at Peppermint Park. The Conservation Department has also submitted the club's entry in the KFWC Energy Contest and the committee has ordered $45 additional equipment for the club-sponsored Peppermint Park, which brings the total equipment purchased for this club year to $800.

Thelma Laferty, Education Department chairman, had on display the 8-mm projector the department had purchased for Prestonsburg Elementary School.

Lora Hamilton, Home Life chairman, reported on the March 4 department meeting at which the speakers were Frances Pitts, home economist, who spoke on "Budgeting," and Billie Post, director of Extended Care at Highlands Regional Medical Center. Mrs. Hamilton distributed material on venereal disease and announced an Easter party to be held March 28 for extended care patients at Highlands Regional Medical Center. Since the February meeting, the department had also contributed money to MCCC to be spent for educational materials at the Maytown Adult Center.

Eight new members were accepted: Virginia Boess, Donna Combs, Joyce Ewerley, Cindy Holly, Barbie Liedeker, Susie Pelphrey, Cheryl Rosenberg, Carole Tussey.

In special committee reports, Martha Johnson, chairman of the St. Jude Radiothon, reported that $3,030.40 had been collected to date and that money is still coming in. Mrs. Johnson, who is also third vice president, recognized pageant chairmen who provided updates concerning pageant activities.

In new business, clubwomen voted to participate in a KFWC Junior endeavor which will provide one free bus seat and one free room for a club representative to attend the GFWC '76 convention in Philadelphia and to support the KFWC Junior project, Experiment in International Living, with a club contribution for the next two years. The club also voted for the Prestonsburg Junior Woman's Club to become a non profit corporation and to raise the Miss Floyd County scholarship to $200. The membership elected Martha Johnson chairman of the Nominating committee and Patsy Beatty, Nell Lawson, Helena Johnson and Nancy Spradlin to serve with her to provide a slate of officers to be presented and voted on at the regular April meeting. Membership also voted to withdraw club money from the savings account, to withdraw the CIP money for use in an immediate project and to leave $300 in the treasury as summer operating expenses.

The big item on the agenda was to decide how to spend $3000 the treasury had ready for use. Twelve projects were presented for club's consideration, and it was voted to appropriate the fund for a pediatric resuscitator for Highlands Regional Medical Center.

Hostesses for the evening were Thelma Laferty, Nell Lawson, Jan Wells, Patricia Webb and Faye Miller.

A Thought for Easter

(The Kentucky Christian)

A big black beetle crawled out of the water onto a stone. Under the heat of the sun, the beetle began to die. Then a strange thing happened! His glistening black shell cracked down the back. Out of it came a shapely roach. But four iridescent wings gradually unfolded, and spread, flashing a thousand colors, and a gorgeous dragonfly left the stone to dip and soar over the water. The body it left behind still clung to the stone—an empty shell. If the Creator can work such wonders with the lowliest of creatures, what may be in store for the human spirit? That is the Easter hope. It is in this hope that we respond with joy!

Easter time is a period of great joy. The heart is warmed by the promise of the soft days of spring which lie just ahead. The soul is warmed by Jesus' triumph over the grave. Easter Sunday brings to a climax the deep spiritual experience of the Lenten season. The Risen Christ represents new hope for all the victory of eternal life over death!

Floyd Group Plans Support Of Perkins' Black Lung Bill

Black lung legislation (HR 3333) introduced by Congressman Carl D. Perkins has the support of both the United Mine Workers and the Kentucky Black Lung Association, and some of its strongest backing will come from this county. It was said last week.

The HR 3333 Transportation Fund, based at Wheelwright, is seeking funds to finance the transportation of black lung sufferers and others to Washington hearings and to appear in support of the legislation. Those who wish to contribute to the fund are being asked to send check or money order—no cash—to P. O. Box 3333, Wheelwright, Ky.

Items in the Perkins legislation which are regarded as particularly important are these:

15-Year Rule. A miner who worked in or around the mines should qualify for benefits without having to establish disability by medical evidence. A widow should be eligible if her husband worked 15 years as a miner in or around the mines.

No Re-reading of X-rays. If a qualified physician interprets an x-ray as showing pneumoconiosis, Social Security and the Labor Department should not have the x-ray reinterpreted.

A Permanent Program. At present the Department of Labor black lung Program will end in 1981. H. R. 3333 removes any ending date from the black lung law.

Title I Assistant Praises Kentucky Reading Teachers

Dorothy Jones, assistant Title I director for Kentucky, gave the Title I reading teachers a boost March 11 as she addressed the Jenny Wiley Reading Council.

Mrs. Jones said the reading teachers in Kentucky are doing a marvelous job. She complimented the teachers on the many wonderful techniques and ideas she has observed. Unfortunately, much of the good they are doing cannot be shown on paper, she added.

Mrs. Jones did cite a few practices still being used which, she felt, should be changed. The practice of teaching words out of context was high on this list. She suggested that more thinking skills be taught.

Delphia Hicks, president of the Reading Council, announced that all committee reports would be due at the May meeting. These should be written reports. New officers will also be elected at this time. The president suggested that the nominating committee have ballots. The meeting is to be at Clark Elementary School, May 19, with a pot-luck dinner. Refreshments were served by the Martin teachers.

Charcoal, Nature's Finest Filter and Preservative

The uses of charcoal are so many it would take volumes to list them all. It is the main ingredient of gunpowder, and the finest charcoal for this purpose is charred from the wood of willows. As a cleanser and absorbent of poisonous and noxious odors, charcoal has no equal. It is full of pores and can absorb 90 times its own volume in obnoxious gases. It can absorb bad odors from the air. One cubic inch of charcoal can absorb 100 inches of gaseous odors.

Activated charcoal is used to absorb and filter the impurities out of drinking water. It was once used to make tooth powders and was mixed with chalk for this purpose and then flavored with peppermint. This mixture made teeth "beautifully white." Charcoal has been used to cure bad breath and to remove the odor of tobacco or liquor from the breath. It has also been widely used as a medicine.

The astronauts kept charcoal in their spaceships to purify the interior. It is used in smelly factories to absorb bad odors.

Powdered charcoal is also a quick remedy for poisoning. It is an effective antidote for arsenic poisoning and for lye and alkali. In some homes, children sometimes gain access to aspirin tablets and may swallow a lethal dose. A quick antidote for such poisoning is two tablespoonsful of powdered charcoal.

Tablets of activated charcoal taken internally relieve colic and gas pains; they also aid in the digestion of heavy foods.

When mixed with powdered slippery elm bark and flaxseed meal, charcoal makes an excellent poultice for burns. It also tops as a preservative. Smoked hams packed down in pulverized charcoal will keep indefinitely. Butter placed in clean pots and surrounded with charcoal powder will keep for 12 months. Charcoal absorbs bad odors from poorly ventilated rooms, and removes unpleasant odors from lockers and refrigerators.

A dozen pieces of charcoal placed in a bowl and moistened with hot water will soon absorb their own weight in bad odors and impurities. The stale air of basements or cellars can soon be purified by the use of charcoal moistened with hot water.

Even outdoor plants like charcoal and may be stimulated to growth and beauty of flower by "sweetening" the soil with charcoal.

Oldtimers made charcoal by piling logs in a heap and covering them with earth to exclude the oxygen. Then the logs were set on fire, but, due to a lack of oxygen, they did not burn up but simply were charred. There is a mineral charcoal which miners call "mother of coal." It is found in thin layers between veins of bituminous coal.

In more modern times, charcoal is made in well equipped plants containing burning chambers in which the air is sealed off. The logs are placed in these airtight chambers and burned until charred.

Charcoal is widely used in outdoors cookery and in camping out, for grilling steaks and other meats. It produces heat without smoke and is widely used by outdoorsmen.

Dept. of Fish and Wildlife

Do you have a farm pond you'd like to get stocked with bass and bluegill? Or would you like to know how to increase the amount of wildlife on your property? Or maybe you've got a snake in the washing machine.

There's a man in your county who may help with any of these problems, or with practically anything else pertaining to fish or wildlife. He's your county conservation officer and, as the local representative of the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources, he's the man to see when you need any of the services offered by the department.

For the farm pond owner, a call to the local C. O. is the first step in signing up for the department's free fish stocking program for new or renovated ponds. The officer will inspect your pond, make recommendations for any improvements needed and provide all the necessary forms and information for participation in the program.

If your pond is presently stocked but you feel that it is not producing as it should, the C. O. will be happy to request the service of a fishery biologist from the Division of Fisheries to examine your pond.

The conservation officer is also on hand to aid those landowners wishing to increase wildlife populations on their lands. The C. O. will request that a wildlife biologist from the Department's Game Management Division visit the land and draw up a wildlife management plan which will increase the numbers of both game animals, such as quail and rabbits, and songbirds and other desirable species.

The C. O. is also the man to see if you have any questions about hunting and fishing regulations, seasons, license requirements, pet permits for holding wildlife or anything else pertaining to fish and wildlife laws.

As a wildlife law enforcement officer, the C. O. should receive reports of any illegal hunting or fishing activity. Also, he is the official to whom any instances of water pollution, particularly those involving a fish kill, should be reported. In cases like these, it is important that the C. O. be reached as soon as possible, since fast action often is necessary to apprehend a violator or to determine the cause of a fish kill.

To find the name and phone number of your county conservation officer, call the county clerk or county judge's office, or the local sheriff or police station.

Woman Who Was First Inspector Of Mine Reclamation and Began Work Here, Is No Longer Oddity

By JENNY PULLIAM
Five months ago, reclamation inspector was a masculine term. Then, dared by a friend, Ann Cullen Nuckols became an inspector in eastern Kentucky, based in Prestonsburg. She was an instant celebrity. She had broken a sex barrier. Her picture ran in newspapers and her opinions on sex discrimination were in demand. Some people cheered her. Others said she'd never last a month. But in recent months the division of reclamation in the Kentucky Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection has hired two more women—Sue Poole and Gail Kowalski—as inspectors in western Kentucky.

Today, Miss Nuckols is no longer looked upon as an oddity. Coal operators are used to seeing her watching over their mines. Other reclamation inspectors consider her one of them. The people of Prestonsburg know who she is.
Now, Ann Nuckols is simply accepted in reclamation work.
Miss Nuckols, who handles about 50 active permits covering 20-25 mines, says she has learned a lot in the last five months. "I'm not as dependent on the men in the office as I was at first," she said. "So my communication with them is different now."
"At first," she explained, "since I was new at the work, the men carefully explained the standards and the routines involved. Now that I've grasped these aspects of the job, however, they seem confident in my work and my capabilities."

Miss Nuckols said being the state's first woman reclamation inspector has caused no problems. "Some of the coal operators have gone out of their way to explain aspects about their mining operation," she said, "I haven't had any trouble. I thought that, perhaps, a lot of operators would ignore what I said, but they haven't."

No extra pressures have befallen the 29-year-old inspector during her five months on the job. To her, the job is not competitive. "Gratification is what you receive for yourself," she said. "After I've done a good job of inspecting, I can feel pleased. I know the coal operator has done a good job."

"I've found this job is unique itself," she added, "but it is as unique for a man as for a woman."

For many women, one aspect of the job that may be unusual is the constant working with men. But Miss Nuckols, who was reared on a farm, was accustomed to associating with men and to what is usually known as "men's work."
Yet she doesn't believe she was a tomboy. "I joined several 4-H projects," she said, "and knew how to cook and do housework as well as anything else."

Miss Nuckols, who was previously working on research at the University of Kentucky, says her lifestyle has changed a lot. "But," she said, "that's more a result of moving down here than it is a result of the job. I've always liked eastern Kentucky and there's always a lot to do."

"Basically, I'm an environmentalist," Miss Nuckols says. "My background in agriculture and my love for the outdoors and outdoor sports, such as camping and canoeing, makes a reclamation inspecting job interesting and challenging to me. I enjoy being on my own and enjoy the job."

Those people who bet she'd never last a month as a reclamation inspector have lost that wager.

IN MEMORIAM

Dedicated to the memory of Ben Parker, who died March 27, 1968, by his wife, Lilly H. Parker:

HE WALKED WITH GOD
He "walked with God!" Could grander words be written?
Not much of what he thought or said is told;

Not where or what he wrought is even mentioned—
He "walked with God" - brief words of timeless gold!

How many souls were succored on his journey—
Helped by his words, or prayers, we may not know.

Still, this we read - words of excellent grandeur—
He "walked with God," while yet he walked below
And, after years, long years of such bliss walking—
One day he walked, then was not, God said "Com!"

Come from the scene of weary sinned sadness!
Come to the fuller fellowship of home!
Such be the tribute of thy pilgrim journey

When life's last mile thy feet have bravely trod—
When thou hast gone to all that there awaits thee.
This simple epithet - "He walked with God!"

'75 Ag Conservation Program Announced

The U. S. Department of Agriculture has announced a 1975 Agricultural Conservation Program (ACP) designed to encourage the application of enduring soil and water conservation practices on the nation's farms. The ACP will be funded at the $190 million level authorized by congress. This level will include funds to finance the Long-Term Agreements (LTA's) signed under the 1974 Rural Environmental Conservation Program.

The 1975 program will offer both annual and long-term conservation agreements to farmers at cost-shares from 50-75 percent of the cost of carrying out approved practices. Under long-term agreements, cost-sharing will be scheduled over a period of from 3-10 years. These agreements will be based on a Conservation Farm Plan approved by the local Soil Conservation District.

As has been the case in the past, local Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service offices will administer the 1975 program through the farmer-elected committee system with planning and technical assistance being provided by the Soil Conservation Service and/or the Forest Service.

Details of specific practices will not be announced until later. Because of the rapidly approaching spring season for carrying out certain practices, however, local county committees have been authorized to accept immediately requests from farmers for the following practices:

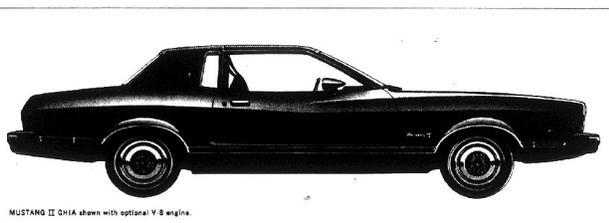

Establishing permanent vegetative cover other than trees, planting trees, stripcropping, sediment, chemical or water runoff control measures (critical areas).

More specific information may be obtained by contacting Sharon Conley, Acting Floyd county ASCS office.

Wets Fail To Find Voters Who Were Denied Ballots

PAINTSVILLE—A search for disenfranchised voters in the March 7 local option election in Paintsville has apparently negated any attempt of an appeal in that campaign, according to a spokesman for the losing wet side.

Roger Frazier said only one person has responded to a newspaper advertisement seeking qualified voters who were turned away from the machines because their names were not on a computer printout.

"We would have to identify at least 72 such persons (who wanted to vote wet but could not)," Frazier said. "It looks like the county clerk was right. She said an election night there wouldn't be more than four or five errors at the most."

"Our advertisement wasn't intended as a criticism of her office, or of her, but it seemed on election day we had 200 calls from people who said they weren't permitted to vote. We were just trying to run them down, figure out who they were."

Frazier said lack of an appeal would mean Paintsville must wait at least three more years before having another wet-dry election "unless there is a Johnson county-wide election, and that's a possibility."

He also noted the Legislative Research Commission has handed up a bill for consideration by the General Assembly which would allow precinct option. Precincts may now vote dry, if wet, but by court interpretation are not allowed to vote from dry to wet.

Looking back two weeks at the election, Frazier repeated his initial contention that apathy and the opinion the wets could not win kept many of his voters at home. "It went about like we thought it would, except for Erdgroff precinct. That part of town went dry by about 40-50 votes and we had counted on winning there by about 25 or 35, so there lies the difference in the total election."

Singing Teens Here This Week

This group of teenagers, "The Salt of the Earth", will appear at several churches and before other groups in this area from Thursday, March 27, through Tuesday, April 1. They are members of the Macomb Baptist Church, of Mt. Clemons, Mich., and are appearing in this area with their program of testimony and song under the sponsorship of the Rev. Dan Heintzelman and the Spurlock Bible Church. Youth leader of the group is the Rev. Marty Doorn. Their sponsor is George Clark.

Commenting on these young people, Rev. Heintzelman said, "We often hear about the teenagers who are living in sin, drinking, using drugs, etc., but rarely do we hear of the teenagers who are living for our Lord. This is why I am excited about hosting this group. I feel that our teenagers as a whole are doing an excellent job of living, considering the pattern my generation has left for them to follow."

The public is invited to hear this group of young people at one or more of the following places:

Thursday, March 27, Prestonsburg Kiwanis Club; Friday, March 28, a Good Friday service at 1:30 p.m., at Mountain Manor Nursing Home; Sunday, March 30, Spurlock Bible Church, Spurlock Fork of Middle Creek, 10 a.m., Sunday School and 11 a.m., morning worship service; Sunday evening, 7:30, Irene Cole Baptist Church, Prestonsburg; Monday, March 31, Calvary Baptist Church at Betsy Layne, 7 p.m., special evening service; Tuesday, April 1, 7:30 p.m. at the Allen United Methodist Church, sponsored by the Martin Kiwanis Club.

"After discussing Archer Park with you, and others on the board, I have a strong feeling that this is to the best interest of the park."

"I wish to congratulate the board members for their time, ideas and efforts spent over the year in making a 32-acre cow pasture into what it is today."

He added that he will be glad to afford future help to park board members, if needed.

Church Women Honor Mrs. Kelsa Elliott

Women of the Betsy Layne United Methodist Church met at the home of Mrs. Eliza Blackburn and Billie Jean for their regular monthly meeting. After the business session, the meeting was turned over to Billie Jean Osborne who explained that the special meeting was to honor Mrs. Kelsa Elliott on her birthday and also to make her a life member of the United Methodist women. Edith Mae Stanley gave the devotional which was on special women of the Bible. This was most fitting for Mrs. Elliott has unselfishly devoted her life to the church and community.

The president, Mrs. Willie Caldwell, presented Mrs. Elliott with a membership certificate and pin. She was also presented with a birthday cake.

A donation for this occasion was sent to the district to be used for missions. Martin County Towns To Get Water Project

Approval of an $840,600 grant to help stimulate long-range economic growth in Martin county was announced last week by Congressman Carl D. Perkins.

Martin County Water District No. 2, with headquarters at Warfield, is the applicant for the grant from the Economic Development Administration, U. S. Department of Commerce.

The project involves the installation of a water system to serve an area along Highway 40 in the Beauty, Warfield, Lovely and Pilgrim communities. It also will serve the Massey Coal Company, a firm employing approximately 600 persons, water district officials said.

Availability of water is expected to encourage construction of new homes in the area and commercial growth in connection with coal-mining activities in eastern Kentucky, local officials said.

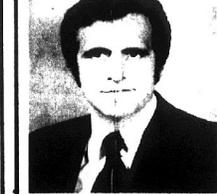

The water district is installing the distribution system in connection with the overall economic development program of the Big Sandy Economic Development District, a multi-county organization working to overcome regional problems and to create new jobs through the utilization of local resources.

Martin County Water District No. 2 will provide $560,400 to complete the $1,401,000 total cost of the project. The EDA grant includes a $140,600 bonus because Martin County is participating in the long-range planning program of the Big Sandy District.

In addition to the installation of distribution lines, the project includes the construction of two storage tanks.

The Rehabilitation Act of 1973 is designed to provide job opportunities for and eliminate job discrimination against qualified individuals who are physically or mentally handicapped.

Kentucky Afield

By Hope Carlston
Dept. of Fish and Wildlife

Of the many services and projects under the guidance of the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources, few receive more attention than the Experimental Game Farm located approximately three miles west of Frankfort on U.S. 60. This 150 acre farm plays host to some 75,000 visitors annually. It is during April, May and June that the majority of schools allow some of their children to visit the state capitol and points of interest close at hand.

Many teachers in the past have contacted the superintendent of the Game Farm for a guided tour of this area when they and their students came to the capitol.

The youngsters will see on Exhibition Row, as an example, bald and golden eagles, hawks, owls, black bears, mountain lions, pheasants, racoons, gray and red fox and many other specimens. Then, in three large separate enclosures, there are fallow and whitetail deer and even a large family group of buffalo. Along the shoreline of the two small lakes on the farm, ducks, geese, swans and shorebirds may be observed in flight or swimming about.

There are still other points of interest for the school groups: inside the administration building in the main showroom is a display of mounted waterfowl and wildlife. There is a large picnic area where the touring groups may eat their lunches and rest before heading home.

Along the fence rows, one may hear the calls and see many of the songbirds that abound in this area.

The Game Farm is open seven days a week and visitors and tourists are welcome to come and see the many attractions that this area affords, as well as sample the limited fishing opportunities.

The two lakes are open to fishing for children under 16, women, and men 65 years of age and older.

Fishing license requirements are the same as statewide. Size and creel limits are posted and special limitations apply: Black bass—10 inches long and a creel limit of three; bluegill—no size limit and a creel limit of 25; catfish—no size limit and creel limit of three.

The Game Farm is by far more than just a place to visit. It is the place where the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources produces some 100,000 bobwhite quail chicks under the "Quail Under Lights Program."

Also at the Game Farm, experimental programs with ruffed grouse, wild turkey, mallard ducks and exotic game birds are carried out.

The entire area has been made possible through the sale of hunting and fishing licenses, which is the sole support of the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources.

To the visiting students, tourists and guests it is a gift from the sportsmen of Kentucky.

For reservations for a guided tour write or call: Superintendent, Game Farm, Route 2, Frankfort, Kentucky 40601; Telephone, Area Code 502-223-8211. The farm is open from 8:00 a.m. until sunset.

Geri Grigsby (No. 35), McDowell high school's superstar, is shown in the process of making two of the 39 points he tallied for the Daredevilles in a losing effort against Sheldon Clark in the championship game of the Regional Tournament last Tuesday night here. McDowell lost 32-51. The 5-foot 5-inch sophomore has averaged 41.6 points per game this season.

Sheldon Clark Girls Edge McDowell High For Berth in Finals

By C. "OLLIE" ROBINSON

The McDowell Daredevilles lost to the Sheldon Clark girls in the championship game of the 15th regional girls' basketball tournament here last week. Sheldon Clark's girls will be in the lower bracket of the state tournament to be held at the Eastern Kentucky University gym, Richmond, starting today (Wednesday). Sheldon Clark will be playing tomorrow (Thursday), facing Louisville Seneca at 1 p.m. Sheldon Clark tipped McDowell, 52 to 51. Robin Harmon's field goal and a free throw by Janie Porter in the final seconds gave the Martin county team a three-point lead. McDowell held a 27-23 lead at the half but Sheldon Clark battled back to pull even at the end of the third quarter at 39-all. Harmon topped Sheldon Clark, which takes a 22-1 record to the state tournament, with 39 points, while Grigsby burned the nets for 39 point to top McDowell. Grigsby finished with more than 1,000 points for the season.

The all-regional team: Geri Grigsby, McDowell; Kathy Isaacs, Allen Central; Kim Hall, Allen Central; Robie Harmon, Sheldon Clark; Debbie McCoy, Sheldon Clark; Dana Booth, Sheldon Clark; Deane Vanfoose, Paintsville; Denise Auster, Paintsville; Elaine Stone-Millard; Elizabeth Hurley, Millard; Elaine West, Belfry; Donna Ratliff, Elkhorn City.

CARROLL PRESENTS CHECKS

Gov. Julian Carroll recently presented checks to four Kentucky counties eligible to receive severance tax surplus funds. Judges from Muhlenberg, Webster, Bell and Letcher counties received checks totaling $187,281. The money is to be used for the acquisition and development of industrial sites, public recreation facilities, drainage and land reclamation projects related to industrial and recreational site development, and other construction and renovation or public facilities.

Crippling strikes one family in five, according to the Easter Seal Society. The Society, which conducts a year-round program of direct rehabilitation services through its affiliates nationwide, is supported mainly by gifts and contributions.

Learning an Ancient Craft

Gurney Bolster, weaving instructor, is pictured working at a loom similar to ones used by the Community Services program's weaving class.

Not so long ago, most women in this area practiced the ancient art of weaving, mostly through necessity—as a means of producing garments and other products which were, at that time, generally scarce and relatively expensive. Now, however, through Prestonsburg Community College's Community Services program, local people are being introduced to weaving as recreation and a way of expressing artistic creativity.

Broad Form Deed Appeal Briefs Filed

By RAY COHN (In The Lexington Herald)

FRANKFORT, Ky.—A 1974 law undermining the broad form deed does not violate the contractual rights protected by the Kentucky and federal constitutions because it is a valid exercise of the state's police power, the state contended yesterday in a brief filed in the Court of Appeals.

This was the predominant argument in the 49 page brief filed by the Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection in support of its appeal of a Franklin circuit court decision which declared the law unconstitutional.

Four Knott county landowners who intervened in the lower court case on the side of the state also filed a 44 page brief with the Court of Appeals. Their brief emphasized arguments contending there is a socio-economic necessity for the law.

The law, often referred to as House Bill 9, was struck down by Franklin Circuit Judge Henry Meigs in January on the ground that it violated the contractual rights of the state and federal constitutions. The statute requires the landowner's consent before a strip mine permit can be issued.

The Court of Appeals on March 7 agreed to let the law remain in effect pending its decision on the appeal.

The law is designed to end the abuses of the "broad form deeds." Coal operators through use of these deeds acquired mineral rights separately from surface rights in many parts of Eastern Kentucky in the late 1800s and early 1900s.

"It is not a two party contract which is in issue in this case," the state argued, "but rather the power and ability of this commonwealth to protect the public interest in the subject matter of that contract, strip mining."

The state's brief contended that the control of strip mining and "the protection of state interest connected with its conduct simply cannot be decided by reference to contracts or principles of contract construction for the state's interest must take precedence where strip mining is concerned."

It further maintained that "the scope of that need (to regulate strip mining) is as broad and pervasive as the effects and problems associated with the activity. The legislature is not, therefore, limited to controlling the mechanics of strip mining but its power extends to the alleviation of the human suffering occasioned by it, and only this method of mining."

"It has long been a principle of law in this area that all contracts are enforced subject to any changes in the law adopted pursuant to the police power as well as the laws existing at the time of entry." Both the Beals brief and the one for the four landowners stress the heavy proof they say courts here required before declaring laws unconstitutional. A law passed by the legislature, the state brief argued, "should not be declared unconstitutional unless its violation of fundamental law is shown beyond a reasonable doubt."

The brief for the surface owners, filed by Appalachian Research and Defense Fund of Kentucky, Inc., attorneys, Dean Hill Rivkin, Lexington, and John M. Rosenberg, Prestonsburg, stressed socio-economic arguments for the law.

"It is an environmental bill" they argued, "because it protects those individuals most adversely affected from the abuses of strip mining and serves to promote local conservation efforts and deep mining."

"It is an economic development bill because it furthers the orderly planned development of an entire region of the state. It is a public safety bill because it will quell the numerous breaches of the peace that arise between surface owners and strip mines."

Beals' brief also advanced some of these arguments. Both argued that broad form deeds have retarded economic development of Eastern Kentucky.

The Rosenberg-Rivkin brief also questioned the validity of the broad form deed contracts. "The gross disparity in bargaining power between the usually uneducated surface owner and land or coal agent makes suspect the validity of the contract itself," they argued. "What the law would uphold the contract like the one presented in this case."

Both briefs argued that owners of the mining would not have their property rights taken away without due process because the law doesn't interfere with their rights to mine deep coal.

Murphy Victim Of Auto Wreck

James A. Murphy, 45, of Langley, died early Monday afternoon of injuries suffered Sunday night in the wreck of an auto in which he was a passenger. It was said by investigating officers that the auto in which he was a passenger went out of control on the Davis Branch road, near Painsville, and struck a tree. The driver, Morris Thacker, who was treated at a Painsville hospital and released, was charged with intoxication and driving without a driver's license. He pleaded guilty to both charges and was fined. The body of Murphy was taken to the Richmond-Callahan Funeral Home at Inez. The victim had been staying with a brother, Johnny Murphy, on Turkey Creek, near Langley.

Big Sandy Valley Historical Society Meets

The Big Sandy Valley Historical Society met March 22 with a luncheon at Johnson Central High School in Painsville. Due to the illness of Henry P. Scalf, the president, Edward Hazelett presided. Mrs. Edith P. James presented her Jenny Wiley Chantress in a program of old, familiar songs. The guest-speaker, Dr. William Talley held the interest of the group with "The History, Genealogy and Records of East Kentucky." A tribute to historians was presented by Mrs. Henry C. Holbrook, who paid tribute to Mr. and Mrs. Garland H. Rice for their contribution to Painsville, Eastern Kentucky and the Big Sandy Valley Historical Society. An engraved plaque was presented to Mr. and Mrs. Rice for their services to the Society and their contributions to Eastern Kentucky. Assisting in the award presentation were Edward Hazelett, Barbara Burchett and Karen Grimm. Banjo solos and mountain songs by Dennie Stone, of Allen, were enjoyed. Gardeners who are anxious to get started can plant peas and spinach around the first of March, according to horticulturists at the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture.

Coalition Forms, But Missing Are 2 Legislative Leaders

While Kentucky mountain county judges forming the Kentucky Coal County Coalition were in session this week to plan future handling of the coal severance tax, St. Ramsey, Associated Press writer, pointed out that the two kingpins in the successful General Assembly fight last year for coal tax severance will be missing when the battle is again joined next January. The real "wheeling and dealing" that brought about the coal tax victory were Floyd county's W. J. "Bill" Reynolds, House majority caucus leader, and Greenup county's Terry McBrayer. And neither will be back in their House seats, next session.

Writes Ramsey of the situation: The mountain delegation revolt of 1974 was an amusing diversion during a lackluster legislative session, though with a serious goal that eventually was achieved. Hoover Dawahare, a Whitesburg Democrat, became a bewildered folk hero when he was ejected from the house in a misunderstanding about rules of order. The eastern Kentucky group eventually got what it was after—a portion of proceeds from the excess in estimated coal severance taxes. This year the sum amounts to about $6 million. Next year it will quadruple, according to revenue department estimates. Dawahare undoubtedly will be back for the 1976 session—who can beat him for re-election after last year's performance? But, giving Dawahare his due as a personable legislator who lurched into brief fame, an observer can be excused for failing to rhapsodize about his experience or leadership qualities.

Heart Clinic Set At Health Dept.

A two-day consultative and diagnostic heart clinic for medically indigent patients will be held in the Floyd County Health Department, Tuesday and Wednesday, April 8 and 9. This clinic is being organized so that adults only will be admitted to the clinic on April 8 and children only will be seen on April 9.

Physicians from the departments of Medicine and Pediatrics at the University of Kentucky Medical Center will conduct the clinic. Co-sponsored by the Kentucky Heart Association, the Bureau for Health Services and the County Health Department, the clinic will provide a diagnostic service for the patient, along with recommendations for treatment and management of the case. It also will offer an opportunity for the referring physician to consult with the clinician regarding his patient.

Necessary expenses of the clinic are being underwritten by the Kentucky Heart Association and the Bureau for Health Services. Clinic personnel as well as space and equipment will be provided by the Floyd County Health Department as well as the Bureau for Health Services and the Kentucky Heart Association. Only those patients who have been referred by a physician and have a written referral will be admitted to the clinic. Counties in this clinic area are Floyd, Johnson, Magoffin, Martin and Pike.

Forestry Incentives Program Announced

The U. S. Department of Agriculture has announced a 1975 Forestry Incentives Program (FIP) aimed at improving the nation's timber production by stimulating better forest management practices. This program will be tentatively funded at the $25 million level authorized by congress. FIP will be administered by the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) through its farmer-elected committee system. The Forest Service, in conjunction with state and district foresters, will provide the technical assistance in developing forest management plans and servicing requests. Both annual and long-term agreements will be offered to eligible owners of non-industrial private forest land with cost-shares ranging from 50-75 percent of the cost of approved practices. County committees have been authorized to begin accepting requests immediately from farmers for tree planting. However, specific details are to be announced at a later date. Interested persons are encouraged to contact Sharon Conley, Floyd County ASCS Office, for more information relative to the FIP.
