Coal Preparation Plant in Plans Allen-P'burg Site Viewed for Plant Costing $1 Million

Allen-P'burg Site Viewed for Plant Costing $1 Million

Early plans for construction of a million-dollar coal preparation plant in this county were announced here this week.

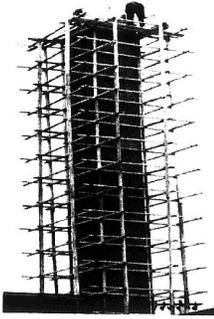

The plant will be constructed between Prestonsburg and Allen, a spokesman for the Big Sandy Coal Producing Co., Inc., said. Bud W. Sparlock, executive vice-president of The First National Bank here, was listed as the individual incorporated in the application filed with the secretary of state for corporate charter, but names of other members of the firm will be announced later, it was said.

The installation is planned to meet a vital need of Eastern Kentucky coal as the market demands a cleaner product with a minimum of ash. It will process coal from various mines, large or small, and will particularly serve "use mining" operations which do not have access to preparation plants, Mr. Sparlock said.

Although the exact location of the plant was not stated, it is known that the C. & O. Railway has agreed to sidetrack construction. Mr. Sparlock said a contract for construction may be expected this summer.

Capacity of the plant was not specified with plans incomplete, but it was said it will employ 25 workers.

Bank Asks 2 Branches In County

First National Files For Facility Here, 1 at Betsy Layne

The First National Bank of Prestonsburg has been notified by the regional administrator of National Banks, Cleveland, Ohio, that its applications for two branch banks in this county have been received and are accepted for filing, effective April 15.

The announcement this week by Executive vice-president Burl Wells Sparlock gave the location of the two branch banks at North Prestonsburg and Betsy Layne. Mr. Sparlock said the bank had doubled its total assets in the last three years, noting that the bank's growth last year totalled approximately $19 million. "Our decision to seek these new branches is in line with our confidence in the continued economic growth of Floyd County," he said.

The First National Bank has its main offices in Prestonsburg and the Twin Bridge Branch Bank at Martin Sites for both new branches have been procured. The Prestonsburg branch will be located on North Lake Drive, near Prestonsburg High School, and the Betsy Layne branch on a site between old and new US 23.

Architects have already begun preliminary plans on both new structures, Sparlock said, and construction could be completed in six to eight months after final approval is granted.

Bicentennial Tree-Planting at Archer Park

Floyd county's participation in the statewide Bicentennial project to plant 12,000 tree seedlings across the Commonwealth—100 in each county—was recorded last Wednesday when members of Prestonsburg FFA Chapter planted seedlings at Archer Park here. With them are, from left, City Manager Curtis Clark, Mrs. Tom G. Dingus, Floyd county Bicentennial chairman, and Lloyd Wells, FFA sponsor. The project is intended to provide an enduring reminder of the Bicentennial period. The seedlings are Chinese chestnut, scotch pine, yellow poplar, white ash, black locust, autumn olive, white, loblolly, shortleaf and Virginia pine.

2 Are Cleared By Juries Here Of Sex Counts

Two defendants named on sex charges have been adjudged not guilty at the conclusion of circuit court trials here within the week.

Gary Frater, who was accused of carnal knowledge of a female under the age of 18, was acquitted last Tuesday by a jury of seven women and five men. The second acquittal was won Friday by Harold Bolen, who was charged with rape. An all-male jury heard the case.

Michael Perkins pleaded guilty to an arson charge last Wednesday, and was sentenced to a two-year pen term. Charges of storehouse-breaking and damaging private property were dismissed.

Haul-Your-Own Fee Set on Solid Waste

The Floyd fiscal court last Thursday heard and approved recommendations designed to remove objections of some individuals and businesses to monthly payment of fees to Floyd County Sanitation, Inc. for collection and disposal of their solid waste materials under the franchise granted by the court.

Those who had filed protests wanted permission to haul their own waste to the Turkey Creek landfill, and on the franchise-holder's recommendation the court voted to permit them to do so.

Effect of the action is to open the landfill to those who prefer to haul their own garbage to the site. The court agreed to permit Floyd Sanitation to have a fulltime employee at the landfill and collect $1.50 for each truck or car, pickup size, hauling wastes to the site.

The basic residential rate for once-a-week pickup by Floyd Sanitation was set by the court at $4 a month. The county, which operates machinery at the landfill, is paid 1 pct. of the gross collected by the firm holding the garbage collection franchise.

The $1.50 charge placed on vehicles used by householders or businesses themselves is intended to protect the franchise-holder's investment in providing the service in its area, which includes Magisterial Districts 1, 2 and 3.

A representative of Floyd Sanitation told the court that his company has six trucks and 18 employees on the waste collection job.

Claude Swiney, county planner, discussed other landfill needs with the court. Magisterial District 1 site on Middle Creek, District 2 site on Left Bear and Mud Creeks. He told the court of the possibility of using abandoned strip-mine sites.

The court approved a three-part application to the Coal-Producing Counties Development Fund for this allocation of severance tax funds:

Solid waste program, $137,050.
recreation program, 161,985.
Martin channelization rights-of-way, $12,917.

This Town... That World

The rebud is blooming, the phlox is carpeting the slopes, the bird's on the wing, the snail's on the thorn, the morn dew-peared, and all that—and still I haven't been fishing. Appears it will take an act of Congress to spring me.

FAPA DIDN'T SHOW

There was a thing in this county, and almost anywhere else, when almost any candidate or issue could pull enough votes to win, if the "right" people were sufficiently interested. Some of us are still around who can remember when bank-mules were voted for a bond issue. Voter-registration lists unpurged of departed holders of the right of suffrage have been known to become plumb averse.

One such situation apparently arose in the 1948 race for U. S. Senator from Texas between Ex-Gov. Coke Stevenson and a fellow named Lyndon B. Johnson. The latter came to be known to some coarse fellows as "Landslide Lyndon" after he had managed to defeat Stevenson by only 97 votes.

The laments of the 202 votes needed to make Johnson the winner came from Ballot Box 13 of Jim Wells county which a character named George Parr literally "owned." It seems that names of various and sundry citizens who had crossed the Great Divide bobbed up when they got around to checking out the vote.

The lament of a distressed young Mexican-American described the travesty. Said he:

"My papa, they say, voted Saturday, but he no come to see me."

Rape Defendant Held; $10,000 Bond Asked

Glen Gilliam, Mare Creek man, is being held in jail here in lieu of $10,000 bond asked for his release after his wife had procured a warrant for his arrest, alleging child abuse. Gilliam, who is accused of the rape of his 12-year-old daughter, was arrested Monday by Deputy Sheriffs Gene Stone and C. Kilgore.

Accused of the rape of two Ohio girls at Drift, Bradford Keith Martin and Richie Johnson were jailed last week by Commonwealth's Detective Doug Lewis and Deputy Sheriffs Stone and Kilgore. They executed $5,000 bond each. Warrants for the two were procured by the girls' parents who had accompanied them to Knott county for a visit. A third man named in the case had not been arrested Tuesday.

Four men were arrested last week on charges of possessing intoxicating beverages for the purpose of sale. Sidney J. Hicks, of Ohio, was arrested Saturday when Deputies Kilgore and Stone and Detective Lewis who said they found 11 cases of beer in a trailer which he occupied on the Auxier road. Larry Musie, who was listed as owner of the mobile home, later was arrested on a possession count. Sheriff Joe W. Lewis said Carl Stanley was arrested Saturday night by the same officers when a search of his home on "Oklahoma Branch," west of Allen, uncovered 182 pints of whiskey and 12 quarts of wine. Wheelwright Policeman Ditto booked Ronald D. Little and Grover D. Sexton on liquor possession charges last week.

Aley Bernon was jailed last week by State Trooper Estep and held for Knott county authorities on a first-degree robbery charge.

Policeman Darrel J. Conley booked David Ritley, John Haramy and Clark Cathey on marijuana possession charges last Friday.

Others booked at the jail, charges alleged against each and names of arresting officer follow:

Bobby Gene Crum, carrying a concealed deadly weapon, and no operator's license, by Detective Lewis; Kenny Ray Williams, harassment, by Detective Lewis; Taubee Branham, drunk driving, by Allen Policeman Virgil Conn; Ela Gene Endicott, drunk driving and no operator's license, by Lewis and Kilgore; Don Holbrook, drunk driving, by Deputies Bradley and Kilgore; Phillip Moore, drunk driving, by State Trooper Williamson; Lawrence Amburgey, drunk driving, by State Trooper Castle; Charley Blankenship, and Donald Spears, each charged with drunk driving, by Deputy Sheriffs J. Sculpture Exhibit at Library Features Biblical Figures

The Floyd County Library is currently featuring an exhibit of the work of Walter Pritchard, Dwaile sculptor. The exhibit will continue through May 3.

A cross-section of the sculptor's work over the last five years, the exhibit offers representations mainly of Biblical figures—the Prodigal Son, Elijah, the Risen Christ and others. And Mr. Pritchard explains why.

"I was raised a Christian, but, like many others, slipped away as I grew older. Almost eight years ago, however, I returned to the church, and this is reflected in my work which is based mainly on Biblical figures."

The sculptor's talent is matched by that of his wife, Ida, whose art exhibit at the library last year attracted much attention.

Mr. Pritchard retired two years ago after spending eight years at Alice Lloyd College, where he was assistant professor of art. He came to Eastern Kentucky from Oregon, where he was for a time in the field of commercial sculpture. Before that, he taught at State University of Washington, Pullman, Wash., and Linfield College, Oregon. He received his master's degree from the University of Oregon. Mr. Pritchard has done other work in the areas of art and sculpture with the Art Student League, New York City, Stanford University and Marshall University.

Major Motel Planned Outside Prestonsburg

J. E. Holdren, president of People's Choice of Kentucky, Inc., last Friday announced plans to construct a 100-room motel on a site just beyond Archer Park on the Mountain Parkway at Katy Friend, on the interchange of U.S. 23 and 49, near here. The motel will be affiliated with a national chain.

Mr. Holdren said he has obtained a lease on a six-acre tract of land from Edward C. Musie, the George P. Archer estate and Tom Ruth.

In addition to 100 modern rooms, the motel construction will include three convention rooms, a dining room that will seat 160 persons, plus a coffee-shop that will seat 64. The motel will also feature an indoor-outdoor swimming pool.

Adjacent to the motel, Holdren said, will be a 28,000-square-foot supermarket to complement the total development.

"We are making this investment in the Prestonsburg area because we feel it is rapidly becoming the center of commerce for Eastern Kentucky," Holdren said. "We feel Prestonsburg is the hub of the five-county area from a standpoint of both transportation and recreation. We feel the construction of this motel will add greatly to the continued growth of Prestonsburg in both commerce and tourism."

Both projects, he added, are estimated to be under construction within the next 12 months.

It was said the motel and supermarket together will employ about 125.

Mr. Holdren last February announced plans for the construction near the Archer Clinic here of a 78,000-square-foot Shoppers' Village featuring a 28,000-square-foot supermarket and 50,000 square feet of space for lease to commercial businesses.

Delayed because of a change in structural plans, the complex will be under construction within the next 20 days, if not earlier, it was said here last week. The proposed construction is a project of J. E. H. Development, Lexington firm which Holdren heads.

Mt. Comp Care Changes Plans On Bldg. Here

The 14-acre tract made available on US 23, near here, by the state to Mountain Comprehensive Care will not be used as the location of an administrative headquarters building, after all, it was learned last week.

Richard S. Stal, executive director of the multi-county agency, said the Development Disability Services building which was originally planned for the site near here will be built at Pikeville. He explained that the need for development in Pike county is greater at this time because other counties have facilities in operation. Purchase and renovation of the former Prestonsburg General Hospital here has eliminated much of the need for office and services space here, he said, and buildings are in use at both Paintsville and Salyersville on long-term leases.

Mr. Stal said the property near here will be used for later construction of residential housing for the handicapped. Mountain Comprehensive Care's Greenhouse Project is already located there.

The developmental services building at Pikeville will be located at the corner of Third street and Scott avenue and will cost an estimated $500,000. It will also house the Mary Calvert School for Retarded Children.

Hearing Follows Usual Pattern

By MARVA GAY
FRANKFORT, Ky.—What happened at the recent public hearing on proposed state air pollution regulations was just what air pollution officials expected.

For seven hours, industry representatives argued that the cost of meeting the new regulations would be oppressive to business and to the general public. Environmentalists argued that the indirect cost of pollution exceeded the cost of pollution control.

According to John Smither, director of the division of air pollution in the Kentucky Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection, all the comments made at the hearing will be considered before the final regulations are drafted and adopted.

The two changes which provoked the most furor concerned power plants. One changes the classification system for control of sulfur dioxide. The other eliminates the use of alternate control strategies in lieu of direct emission controls.

Under the state's old air pollution regulations, the state was divided into nine air quality regions and every pollution source in each region had to control its emissions to the same degree. The new proposal retains the regional classification concept for control of other pollutants, but sulfur dioxide will be controlled on a county-by-county basis.

According to Smither, the division changed the classification system partially because the 1974 federal Energy Supply and Environmental Coordination Act encourages control agencies to develop new strategies and regulations that would both control sulfur dioxide emissions and allow greater use of high sulfur fuels.

State officials maintain that the new system allows industries in counties which have low sulfur dioxide ambient levels to use higher sulfur in fuel than would have been possible with the regional concept. The new system relaxes the sulfur dioxide regulations in 114 counties, makes them stricter in five and remains the same in Jefferson County, Bell, Clark, McCracken, Pulaski and Woodford counties will have to meet the stricter requirements.

Mrs. Stratton Named Lawyers Aux. President

Mrs. Henry D. Stratton, of Pikeville, president of the Kentucky State Lawyers Auxiliary, met April 15 at the home of Mrs. Paul C. Combs with wives of attorneys in this area who are interested in organizing a local bar auxiliary. Those attending decided to form a local Auxiliary, and a committee was named to further their plans. The committee is composed of Mrs. Marshall Davidson, Mrs. Harris Howard, Mrs. Albert Burdett and Mrs. Paul Combs.

Mrs. Stratton was installed as president of the state auxiliary at the 1974 state convention in Louisville, and at that time announced her goal as being the institution of one or more auxiliaries in each Appellate Court district. As of October, 1974, only three such auxiliaries existed—Fayette county, Jefferson county, and the Southern Kentucky district. Seven new auxiliaries have been formed since October and Mrs. Stratton would like to help organize several more before spring.

"Each local organization will function independently of all other auxiliaries, including the state and national auxiliaries," Mrs. Stratton explained. "Keeping in mind in all instances, that the ultimate purpose of a ladies auxiliary is to enhance the image of the legal profession as a whole, we will endeavor to stress the dedication of the attorney to that profession in particular."

She added that there are many worthwhile law oriented projects which could best be evaluated by the local auxiliary and a program adopted uniquely fitted to that home town or area situation. "All auxiliaries will share a mutual bond of creating public awareness of Law as one of the oldest and most honorable professions."

2 Plead Guilty In Eagle Blaze

Two Letcher county men pleaded guilty in Letcher Circuit Court last Thursday to a charge related to a fire last Aug. 1 at the office of The Mountain Eagle, a Whitesburg weekly newspaper.

The two, Benny Ray Bentley, 19, and Roger Stewart, 21, were each fined $300 plus court costs by Judge F. Bryd Hogg. Bentley and Stewart had been charged with "willful and malicious burning of a building other than a dwelling," a felony, but that charge was reduced to a misdemeanor, unlawfully damaging private property but without felonious intent.

The trials of two other defendants in the case, Johnny Dwight Caudill, 25, a former Whitesburg city policeman, and Bradley Wayne Jones, 19, were continued by Judge Hogg until July 23.

Caudill and Jones are charged with "aiding, counseling or procuring the willful and malicious burning of a building other than a dwelling."

The early morning fire at The Mountain Eagle caused about $30,000 worth of damage and destroyed documents and photographs belonging to the paper, according to Tom Gish, editor and publisher of the newspaper.

Shortly after the fire, city officials condemned the paper's downtown office building, and the newspaper had to be moved to new quarters.

Questions Board of Education

The Floyd County Board of Education announced last week in the Floyd County Times that Coach Gene Frasure of Allen Central would not be reemployed in that capacity for the following year. No reason was given for his dismissal. It was an unexpected and questionable act, because Coach Frasure is regarded as one of the more successful coaches in Eastern Kentucky, as is evidenced by his past record.

Whether or not there were legitimate reasons for the decision of the Board, its concern to many. However, regardless of the reasons, the method in which the matter was handled remains questionable to all. It reflects a total lack of responsibility on the part of the Board to act as a group and demonstrates their inability to act decisively, as is required of men in their positions.

Their solution was to select special committees to screen applicants for the position of coach at Allen Central, of which anyone in the county was eligible to apply for, including Coach Frasure. The inclusion of Coach Frasure on the possible list of applicants was brought up by a member of one of the selected committees, and could not be denied by the Board without demonstrating their partial position on the matter. Since the Board dismissed him, obviously they weren't going to turn right around and allow him to be rehired if they could prevent it. However, not wanting this responsibility left upon themselves, they placed it upon the committees (which were selected by the Board).

I feel that if the committees had been openly elected by popular vote to represent the wishes of the parents of the Allen Central school district this action would have been much more acceptable, even though it deviates from standard procedure.

I ask, should a body such as the Board of Education be allowed to pass their designated responsibilities on to others in such a devious manner? Has our Board of Education initiated a new method for the selection of school personnel, and if so is it legal? Or have they merely flexed the rules in this special case in an attempt to preserve their own popularity? These are questions that should be asked in the minds of concerned Floyd citizens.

lift one such communication bodily from The Courier-Journal in which a gentleman from Richmond, Ky., a Mr. Philip Markin, rebukes those who heaped time-honored words with ridiculous substitutes. Read:

Among the many beauties of present-day American English is the total replacement of the archaic word man by the charming word "guy." Think what an improvement it would have been if Macbeth had said to his wife, "I dare do all that may become a man; or if that had said to David, "Thou art the guy." An American Hamlet would beautifully say of his father, "He was a guy, take him for all in all."

Another example of greatly improved diction in American English that must cause the hearts of all of us to rejoice is the ousting of the old-fashioned (and square) terms child and young woman and young man by that exquisite, felicitous word kid. What a pity that Housman did not have the taste to call his famous book "A Shropshire Kid." What a pity that Poe did not have the genius to hit upon the precise word and write, "She was a kid and I was a kid in this kingdom. And the kid that became a man, or if that had said to David, "Thou art the guy." An American Hamlet would beautifully say of his father, "He was a guy, take him for all in all."

POLLS TO CLOSE
Now, for the Pike Warden campaign. It ends next Wednesday. Polls close at noon. The candidates are indubitably able men, but both are becoming short-winded. So vote.

FOR PIKE WARDEN:

Watt Hale
Lenna Moore

A militant Women's Lubber registered a protest, the other day, pointing out (with a forefinger in the proximity of the editorial nose) that I had hauled off on my own and, male chauvinist pig that I am, nominated two men and no women for this Pike Warden office. I did a bit of herring and hawing and tilting and tacking and finally agreed to let her in as a late starter.

But it didn't work. There still are only two candidates. The gal who nominated wouldn't know poke from her uncle Zechariah.

Praises TV Program On Red, White, Blue Day

Everyone who did not see the Monday, April 14 program on WKYH at 7:30 p.m. missed a fine 30-minute interview given the founder of Red White and Blue Day, our own Marcella Bailey of Marcella's Kountry Kitchen, Langley. She told the history of, and the hopes for, Red, White and Blue Day. Encouraging her in her efforts were letters from Senator Kennedy, Senator Humphrey, Bob Hope, Paul Harvey, Governor Wallace and Governor Carroll. UMW President Miller had recently stopped to see her and offered encouragement.

Last fall, then-Governor Wendell Ford declared Oct. 26-Nov. 2 Red, White and Blue Week. A local benefactor contributed $2500 to bring the Old Guard here from Washington.

How refreshingly wholesome and truly American is this idea to honor our flag and country. May others catch the spirit and join in the next celebration this coming October 26. All are welcome. We need to reaffirm our faith in our country as never before.

Marcella, we are proud of you for directing your patriotism toward such a worthwhile purpose.

Wants Cake Recipe

I saw an article in your paper about an old cake called a stack cake. It was four layers of cake with dried apples between each layer. When I saw the article I knew that I wanted to try the recipe. Now the paper has been misplaced and I can't find the recipe. If anyone has a recipe like this, could you please send it to me? Thank you very much.

is accused of the Pike county slaying of Mrs. Boone Deskins, was continued to June 2. The continuance followed the court's order, in response to a Commonwealth motion, that depositions of two witnesses in the case, Bobby Lee Brooks and James W. Dalton, be taken at the federal prison in Terre Haute, Indiana. The order specified that Sykes and his counsel are to be present when the statements are taken. The Sykes case was transferred here for trial on change of venue from the Pike circuit court.

A third acquittal resulted Tuesday of this week in the trial of Edgar Kirtel who was charged with removing or stealing coal from the Island Creek Coal Company.

The only murder trial expected to be heard during the current term, that of Gene Salsbury in the Left Beaver Creek slaying of Crit Butler, is scheduled to begin Monday.

Ten Years Ago (April 22, 1965)
Ray Meade, 38, died last Saturday at his home at Mud Creek, victim of a rifle shot in his chest. The Prestonsburg Park Board, which will direct the development of the 22-acre recreation area at West Prestonsburg, was approved by the City Council on recommendation of Mayor George P. Archer last Thursday evening. Still unconscious in a Lexington rest home five months after he was injured in a fall from a tree is Ray Hall, 25, of Galveston. Mrs. Catherine Akers, 28, who has been in a coma since she was beaten at her home on the Middle Creek road last January, is at the same rest home. John Franklin Brandenburg, 37, of McDowell, was almost instantly killed last Thursday when he was crushed beneath a roof fall at Printer. Martin Luther Vanderpool, of the Salt Lick section, is a patient at the Methodist hospital, Pikeville suffering from a bullet wound in his stomach sustained in an accident with a 22-caliber rifle. The work of removing junk cars from Floyd county roadways began this week. Sirion steak is currently selling for 79 and 89-cents a pound in local grocery stores. A five-pound bag of flour is 49-cents. Married: Miss Gwendolyn Sue Daniels, formerly of Lackey and Fred T. Fuiks, of Louisville, March 20 at Louisville, Miss Carol Lynne Rice, and Mr. Nelson Robert Allen, of Floyd county, April 3 at Ashland. There died: Lemuel Ervin DeLong, 13, Saturday at the home of his parents at Banner, Bud Hayes, 82, Sunday at his home at Langley, Earl Leslie, 71, April 9 at the Paintsville hospital, Evan Hall, 64, of Bypro, April 9 at the McDowell Appalachian Regional hospital, Charles W. Twenty Years Ago (April 21, 1955)
The tenth annual Floyd County Music Festival will unfold its array of color, beauty and talent here Saturday. Alton Eugene (Gene) Hamilton, 52, of David, was killed Wednesday night when the "Hitterbug" he was riding into a Princess Elk horn mine collided with a trip of loaded mine cars. The J. B. Clarke building on South Lake Drive here and the equipment of the Tri-City Bowling Center owned by John D. Collins are a total loss as the result of a fire which was discovered about 1 a.m. Saturday. Pikeville Junior College will start its long-term building program this week. The first "shot" in the Floyd county sector of the historic battle on infantile paralysis will be "fired" at 8 a.m. next Monday, or shortly thereafter. The State Department of Education and the state fire marshal have approved plans for the auditorium gymnasium proposed as an adjunct to the county high school plant now under construction here. Evidence that Prestonsburg is becoming the strawberry center of a dozen Eastern Kentucky counties was apparent here Wednesday when representatives of growers from these counties, accompanied by their county agents, met at the courthouse here to set up a regional marketing organization for fruits and vegetables. Wheelwright high school, defending Eastern Kentucky regional baseball champion, opened its 1955 baseball season Monday with a 7-4 win over Elkhorn City. Forty Years Ago (April 19, 1935)
The grand jury said in its final report this week that crime is decreasing, although it had voted 121 indictments against 110 defendants. C. Conn Reports Jewelry Theft Loss at $15,000

The investigation of the reported April 14 theft of more than $15,000 in jewelry from a Prestonsburg home continued this week.

Police began the probe shortly after Dean Conn, Prestonsburg hair stylist, had reported that three diamond rings, a watch and other items were missing from his home. Mr. Conn said a rear window of the home had been opened and that fingerprints had been found.

He said Tuesday he is not certain insurance will cover his loss. He also expressed the belief that the burglary was committed by a person or persons who are acquainted with him. He based this theory on the fact that he usually wore the rings and the sweater broke into his home had observed that he was not wearing them on the night of the break.

Conn said the Federal Bureau of Investigation has joined in the case.

He moved here recently from Cincinnati and was living alone in the home on the hill overlooking Prestonsburg. Police also reported the theft last Thursday night of three motorcycles, helmets, parts and tools valued at $3,000 from the Yamaha Shop on North US 23 here. Entrance was effected by breaking out a side window. Police said there are no clues.

The club voted to participate in the 100 Per Cent Club awards of the State Democratic Woman's Club, and adopted the following as projects to be developed prior to the state convention in October: A membership drive to increase membership by five percent; assistance to Knott county Democratic women, to help form a club there; participation in the fund-raising projects of the state club, and actively support all Democratic candidates in the November general election.

Nature Trails

Vitamins From Nature

VITAMIN C—This vitamin is not stored in the body and its supply must be replenished daily. Natural Vitamin C may be obtained from nature and is superior to the organic form as sold on the markets. A tea made of rose hips is a fine source of this vitamin. These hips are hard-seeded berries which grow on different kinds of roses, such as multiflora and the pasture rose. Another good source is persimmon leaves and the fruit. Gather the green leaves, cut up fine and steep to make the tea. Elderberries, from which a delicious wine is made, are also rich in Vitamin C, and so are the cranberries.

VITAMIN E—This is another important vitamin, beneficial to the body in many ways. It may be obtained for alfalfa tea, pure wheat germ, dandelion leaves, and kelp.

VITAMIN K—This vitamin is necessary to the process of clotting the blood, and so it prevents undue bleeding from wounds. Sources of Vitamin K are alfalfa tea, Shepherd's purse, a member of the Cress family.

VITAMIN B1 (Thiamine)—This vitamin produces growth and helps to maintain a healthy appetite. It may be obtained from wheat germ, okra, kelp and dulse.

Teas to keep you cool and healthy through the hot summer:

(a) Peppermint Tea. This tea was an old favorite in our grandmothers' day. You'll find peppermint growing in patches along brooks or in damp soils. It is one of our finest and most aromatic mints, has a soothing effect and cools the body against heat. It is fine for an upset stomach. A little lemon juice adds to the flavor to the tea.

A well-known writer once said: "The good things that soothe and heal and bless are scattered at our feet like flowers."

Yet we do not pause to study them and learn of their value to us. For instance, there is an abundance of red clover in summer, growing in fields and along roadsides. Its red, globe-shaped blossoms make a delicious tea when boiled a few minutes. Then there is alfalfa tea in the clover family. Its merits have been highly praised because of the minerals and trace elements it contains.

(b) Wintergreen or mountain teaberry. Perhaps mountain tea makes the sweetest and best tea of all. The young leaves of spring have the richest flavor and make the best tea. The tea made from this plant has the good taste and flavor of Chinese tea, but without any of its harmful, stimulating qualities. Refinesque once wrote: "Mountain teaberry makes a beverage that is very agreeable and refreshing and is superior to Chinese tea. The vining plants make a rose-colored tea, which leaves a pleasant, lingering after-taste. Mountain tea grows on most of the high, dry spurs and points of our region and bears sweet, edible berries. It is used to flavor chewing gum and medicines.

(c) Slippery elm tea. A spoonful of the inner bark makes a pint of tea when boiling water is poured over it. This is the best tea for a weak or sickly stomach. A remedy for that hacking winter cough: Gather a pint of fresh wild cherry bark and boil; add sirup and boil until the mixture is thick. Take a mouthful when coughing or at night before retiring.

Boat Licenses Required May 1

Although boat licenses for the coming boating season don't take effect until May 1 (covering the period May 1, 1975-April 30, 1976), they have been on sale at circuit court clerk's offices since Jan. 1.

"The boat licenses are made available this early," said state Division of Driver Licensing Director F. E. Hodges, "because many boat owners like to pick up their boat licenses when they come to the circuit court clerk's office to pick up their automobile tags."

"This year we want to make a special effort," added Hodges, "to get complete information on everyone's boat license. In the past, and to far this year, many people have come to the clerk's office without all the pertinent information about their boat which should be included on the license."

"Specifically," said Hodges, "many people do not know the manufacturer's serial number (or hull identification number) of their boat. Nor do they know the make and year of their motor and its horsepower."

Hodges said that on most boats the manufacturer's serial number is located on the stern of the boat (recessed in the transom) above the waterline. Hodges added that some boats don't have a manufacturer's serial number, but that most do.

"People should look at their old license before coming to the circuit court clerk's office to renew it," Hodges said. "If it doesn't have the manufacturer's serial number on it or the make, year and horsepower of the motor, this information should be obtained and noted so that the clerk will be able to type it on the new license and thereby send along a complete record to our central computer bank in Frankfort."

"This information will allow us to trace more effectively a person's boat in the event that it is stolen," said Hodges.

Hodges added that the boat owner has the option of applying for his license at the office of the circuit court clerk in the county where the boat is principally used or in his home county.

Mayor George Clark, of Hindman, ended here Tuesday afternoon a trip by mule-drawn wagon from Hazard.

Clark made the slow overland trip, he said, to protest the condition of KY 80 from Hazard to Allen, but it also served to advertise his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for state senator.

An Open Letter To The People of Floyd County:

Although I have never before desired or sought political office, I am now seeking the Democratic nomination for State Representative of Floyd County, for never in my life have I seen so much to be done for our county through the legislature, with no one willing to do it. Do you realize that although millions of dollars were taken from this county by the coal severance tax last year, only a pauper's share was returned? Do you also realize that of the pauper's share returned, we are not allowed by law to spend any of this to build roads and bridges, educate our children, or even supply minimum fire and police protection for our homes? To me, the greatest shame that has ever befallen the people of Eastern Kentucky is the allowance of the exploitation of the God-given wealth of our region without Floyd County sharing in enough of this wealth to even supply the most fundamental government services. If you see fit to send me to the legislature, I will fight for all Floyd Countians welfare by seeking A RETURN OF 50 PCT. OF ALL THE SEVERANCE TAX collected from our county, free to be used:

1. For construction and maintenance of our county roads and bridges.
2. For construction, remodeling and maintenance of our children's schools.
3. To supplement our teachers salaries which are now totally inadequate.
4. To supply adequate police and fire protection to our citizens and their homes.

The foregoing are only a few of the things that may be accomplished by hardworking, earnest representation of Floyd County's interest, and this realization is what forces me to seek this office. I honestly feel that whom you decide to support in this race could prove to affect what type of county we have for years to come. Please consider what I say, and give me your support and vote. I will take that support and vote with me to Frankfort and repay it daily with hard work and dedication to your best interest and welfare.

The Trimbleaires, a gospel singing youth group, was formed in early 1974 under the direction of Tilden Ellis, youth director of Trimble Chapel United Methodist Church. The group is made up of teenage members of Lafferty Chapel and Trimble Chapel of the Water Gap community. The group's activities thus far this year include special programs for Methodist Youth rally at Louisa's First Methodist Church in January, youth rallies at Maytown and Dwale, programs for Mt. Manor and Golden Years Rest Home, and four Floyd County Gospel Sings. They have traveled nearly 1,000 miles and have sung at over 30 church services in Knott, Floyd, Johnson, Lawrence and Boyd counties in addition to Sunday night services at their home church. Members are students at Prestonsburg Elementary, Allen Central or Prestonsburg High Schools. They plan to spend the summer singing in area church revivals.

Sights and Sounds Of Past Featured At E. Point Event

"Old-Fashioned Sunday," sponsored by the East Point Area Development Club in honor of the senior citizens of the East Point area, was held last Sunday afternoon. Approximately 80 persons attended. The program opened with the devotional, "It is Toward Evening," which was given by the mistress of ceremonies, Mrs. Calvin K. Gray. The welcome was given by the club chairman, Landon Tackett. George L. Ramey gave a brief history of East Point. Poems were read from the works of local poets, Mrs. Estie Mae Tackett and Mrs. Patsy B. Williams. A side presentation of Holy Land scenes was given by Wade Moore, of Prestonsburg, followed by music and songs by Miss Donna Carol DeRossett. R. C. Lyon entertained the group with his ever-popular stories and "crow call."

Awards were presented to the following persons: oldest woman present, Mrs. LaRue Robinson, oldest man, R. C. Lyon, couple longest married, Mr. and Mrs. Kay Smith. Door prizes were won by Mrs. Maude Lewis and Miss Lisa Wenzel.

Many handmade items were displayed in the arts and crafts exhibit.

Following the program, a social hour was enjoyed by all.

CHURCH SERVICE DISRUPTED BY CHANTING, WHOOSHES!

NEW YORK AP—Veronica Luessen, who claims to commune with the Virgin Mary but whom the Roman Catholic Church calls a fraud, disrupted baptism services at St. Robert Bellarmine Church Sunday when she and about 250 followers refused to stop chanting. "You are profaning this church," said the pastor, the Rt. Rev. Msgr. J. Emmett McDonald. Outside 100 policemen were massed to prevent the group from holding its usual Sunday vigil on the church lawn. Instead, almost 300 members of the Backus Hills Civic Association met there on the question "what should our community do about the Veronica situation?" Police prevented any confrontation between the groups.

Appalachian Regional Commission funds of $4.1 million will be directed specifically toward enterprise development this year in Eastern Kentucky. This means greater investment in the development of industrial sites, water and sewer systems and housing. The investment, as outlined in the ARC Guide for 1975-76, is designed to capitalize on previous investments in areas such as health and education to help the region more fully realize its economic potential. Gov. Julian Carroll said the new concept would mean increased involvement in Appalachian planning by the Area Development Districts and a more direct effort at the state level to link Kentucky's Appalachian programs with statewide development strategies.

Administration Backs
ARC Extension 4 Years

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Donald W. Whitelaw, federal co-chairman of the Appalachian Regional Commission (ARC), last week transmitted to the Congress a strong Ford Administration bill calling for an extension and expanded authority of the Appalachian Regional Commission and its programs.

The proposed legislation would extend the Commission and its non-highway programs for four years to 1979, add a major innovative option for funding the highway program and make a number of improvements in other programs.

The legislation represents the strongest endorsement made by any Administration for continuing the RC's program since the Commission was created in 1965.

In addition to the four-year extension, the Ford Administration is proposing a major change which will give states an additional option in financing the Appalachian Development Highway System, which is currently authorized through 1978. The proposed legislation would permit an increase in the federal share to 90 per cent when Appalachian Act funds are combined with state allocations under the regular Federal-aid Highway Program. The present federal limit is 70 per cent.

To be eligible for 90 per cent federal aid, a state would be required to provide up to 30 percent from its Title 23 federal-aid highway allocations with 60 percent from state funds. A state could use a maximum of 45 percent federal-aid highway funds with a corresponding amount of Appalachian Act funds.

This legislation, putting the funding of Appalachian development corridors on a par with the interstate system, would permit the states to accelerate the construction of the development corridors and would contribute to highway construction employment in the region, Mr. Whitelaw said.

"This innovative new option of financing the Appalachian Highway System not only will allow an acceleration of construction on the system, but will simultaneously reduce the cost to the states. Endorsement of this change by the Administration, combined with the four-year extension request, indicates the Administration's strong support of the ARC joint federal-state organization and its program of bringing the region further into the mainstream of the national economy."

The highway system, started in 1965, has been the cornerstone of the region's economic development programs. Currently, half of the system—1,346 miles of a total of 2,685 miles—either has been completed or is under construction. Over the past ten years, the Commission has invested the major portion of its non-highway funds in health, child development and education programs, with the balance concentrated on community facilities and environmental projects.

Frontier History Among Offerings

Lying at the point in southcentral Kentucky where the pioneers' Wilderness Road and Boone's Trace almost merged, Levi Jackson Wilderness Road State Park remembers early Kentucky while providing modern campers the finest in convenience and recreation. Hiking, swimming, archery, picnicking—most especially camping—combine with history, as seen in the Mountain Life Museum, a carefully preserved pioneer village that offers visitors a rewarding look at the life of America's first westward adventurers.

One of three hiking trails in the park follows Boone's Trace from McHargue's Mill on the Little Laurel River where the historic trail crossed it, to the Freeman and Jackson cemeteries, the only marked burial grounds on either the Wilderness Road or Boone's Trace. The park itself marks the burial spot of 24 settlers who died in one of the bloodiest Indian massacres in Kentucky's history. That was in 1786, 11 years after Boone had first crossed the Little Laurel on his way north to the Kentucky River.

The life of these settlers, and of others like them who settled in the Kentucky wilderness, is portrayed in the Mountain Life Museum, the park's most outstanding feature.

It's a collection of seven log buildings arranged much the same way as the first homesteads in this part of Kentucky and constructed of hand-hewn logs.

One two-story cabin was first used as a school building and now contains household utensils from the frontier era and a collection of frontier guns and Indian artifacts.

The Old Hopkins "homestead," housed in two other cabins, represents early family life on the frontier and is furnished with the same household items the original home contained, including a loom and spinning wheels.

The museum also includes an old Methodist church, Bald Rock Chapel, built with logs over 200 years old and containing a 200-year-old piano made of rosewood.

Other buildings are the smokehouse, the blacksmith's shop, which is equipped with the original smithing tools, and a barn which houses an old prairie schooner, the type of wagon that brought early settlers into Kentucky and the Western frontier.

Today's travelers who venture east from the London exit off interstate Highway 75, will find a 300-site camping area at Levi Jackson that is one of Kentucky's largest and finest.

Briefs Upheld Validity Of Law Curbing Deeds

By RAY COHN
 (In The Lexington Herald)
 FRANKFORT, Ky.—The legendary disputes between the Hatfields and McCoys "will wane in comparison to the upheavals that could occur between surface" and mineral rights owners if there is no law undermining the broad form deed.

This claim was made in a reply filed in the Court of Appeals recently for four Knott county owners who are defending a 1974 law requiring the surface owner's consent prior to strip mining.

The state—often referred to as House Bill 9—was declared unconstitutional by Franklin Circuit Judge Henry Meigs in January.

The Court of Appeals in March permitted the law to remain in effect pending its decision on an appeal of Meigs' ruling which was filed by the four surface owners and the state. Since the high court has agreed to hear the case on an expedited basis a decision is expected soon.

The assertion about the "upheavals" which could occur without the law was contained in a reply brief by Appalachian Research and Defense of Kentucky attorneys, Dean Hill Rivkin of Lexington and John M. Rosenberg of Prestonsburg, to one filed by No. 8 Limited of Virginia. The Virginia coal firm successfully challenged the law in Franklin circuit court after the state Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection denied it a strip mining permit because it did not have consent of the land owners.

The state also filed a reply brief to the Virginia coal firm. Both the state and the land owners previously filed briefs before the high court. And six Kentucky organizations have intervened in the case in support of the law.

Rivkin and Rosenberg contended in their brief that disturbances of the peace that have and could occur as result of disputes between land and mineral rights owners were one of "three primary reasons" which "motivated" the legislature to pass HB 9.

"The legislature foresaw this potentially explosive problem and tackled it head on," the brief claims.

The other two reasons it listed as major motivating reasons for passage of the law are that it "protects the safety and welfare of the surface owners and their property" and that it "will promote orderly and planned development and will remove the chill currently affecting land transfers and strip mining in the regions of the state."

The brief contends that "these reasons were not afterthoughts of counsel, as the plaintiff desperately speculates, but were grounded in history, logic, and fairness."

"The General Assembly determined HB 9 would benefit many in the state, the plaintiff offered nothing but verbiage to the contrary."

In the brief's conclusion Rivkin and Rosenberg seek to turn the coal firm's argument to their advantage. "Ironically," it maintained, "the main thrust of the plaintiff's argument is that HB 9 does not go far enough in completely protecting the commonwealth and its people against the evils of strip mining."

"These defendants (the land owners) wholeheartedly agree and wish stronger measures were adopted. Nevertheless, the defendants recognize that a legislature has wide latitude in fashioning a remedy it perceives as a just accommodation to a pressing problem affecting the general public. HB 9 represents just such an accommodation."

The state's brief, filed by Asst. Atty. Gen. David D. Beals, argued the law "is not unconstitutionally vague and uncertain in violation" of both the federal and state constitutions.

"As a practical matter," his brief argues, "the broad form deed is the only type of contact effected because it is the only type of contract which has been construed, as between parties, to authorize strip mining, which does not contain express consent sufficient to satisfy" the law. "No definitional problem is raised; what is required is express consent to strip mine," it maintains.

Beals also argued the requirement for the surface owner's consent is not in violation of the two constitutions. "The consent required in K.R.S. 350.060 (a)," he said, "is a reflection of the legislature's determination that no land in Kentucky may be strip mined unless the operator produces an express and specific consent authorizing the use of this method."

He said "the only distinction which is made (in the law) is between deeds which do and do not contain express consent to strip mine." And he argued this "is based on a regional and discreet difference and relates to a subject of valid legislative concern."

Beals also argued the lower court failed to recognize that the consent requirement "bore a reasonable and substantial relation to the accomplishment of a valid state purpose and was a valid exercise of the police powers of the commonwealth."

Beauty is where you are. The story is told of the man walking through a Scottish moor, examining flowers and blades of grass through his pocket lens. A shepherd, moved by curiosity, drew near and watched with interest.

"Would you like to view this moss cup through my lens?" the man inquired of the shepherd. He eagerly assented. He looked, his eyes filled with astonishment, and asked: "Can this be a moss cup?" Assured that it was, he looked again at the tiny flower through the lens.

"Sir, I wish you had never shown this to me," "Why?" the man asked in surprise. "Because," was the reply, "I read on thousands of them every day of my life."

Like the shepherd so many people fail to see the beauty of life that surrounds us all.

Why should a woman be afraid of either one?

The mighty Bus, like the minnie mouse, has quite a reputation for frightening women.

Even though the Bus can hold almost twice as much as an ordinary station wagon, it's actually three feet shorter. It looks like someone cut off its tail with a carving knife!

And don't worry about handling. The ride is smooth and easy, even without the optional automatic transmission.

And the Bus's steering wheel needs only two and three quarter turns, left to right. So it maneuvers left and right without using a "steering wheel" or a "steering column." It has a "bopping up" pedal. And this year the Bus has fuel injection for even greater economy.

In the recent 1975 Federal EPA fuel economy tests, it averaged 25 miles per gallon on the highway and 18 in the city.

But what about appearance? Some women are afraid that the Bus is plain and money-looking.

Well, perhaps that's true, but with prices going higher all the time, a Volkswagen Bus may be the one thing that will help you break through.

Kentucky To Implement New School Lunch Program Financing

FRANKFORT, Ky.—Kentucky school officials soon will know exactly how much it costs to produce a lunch at school, according to C. E. Bevins, director of the division of school food service, state Department of Education. He explained that the U. S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) will reimburse local districts on a per-meal basis for the actual cost of operating their food service programs. Bevins added that although the federal guidelines are tentatively scheduled for July, 1976, most Kentucky school districts should be ready to implement the new cost accounting procedures this fall.

Presently, Kentucky and most other states reimburse local districts at the announced average rate per meal.

School food service program costs in Kentucky are so diverse that one school district may spend 60 cents per lunch, while another district's cost may be 66 cents per meal. Standards for determining meal costs also vary.

Regulations set up by the USDA require that each school district be reimbursed no more than the actual cost of operating school food service programs.

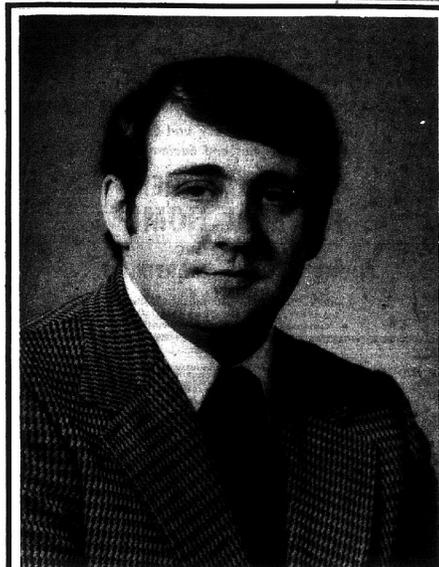

When the new financing requirement becomes mandatory, a district designating 60 cents as its meal cost will receive that exact amount. And, if a district can prove that its food costs are greater than the state average, the difference will be given to that program if funds are available.

"The beautiful part of this new procedure is that boards that previously have not determined meal costs are now permitted to do so," said Bevins. He explained that new USDA regulations permit use of "hidden" costs, since districts keep records of the amount spent for food, supplies, labor, equipment depreciation, purchasing services and overhead—the total expenses involved in a school lunch program.

Explicit directions are enumerated in a USDA handbook, a part of which states, "The system must be consistent and uniform, although it crosses cafeteria and district lines. Only in this manner can local, state and federal officials make valid comparisons between entities over long periods of time."

Bevins said that the Kentucky staff was providing excellent leadership in gearing up for the new program and that it continues to be a voluntary decision on the part of local districts as to when the new procedures would be put into effect.

The food director noted that the new guidelines should not affect lunch prices. "The only great change is that those in charge of the programs can show accountability. They will be able to show what has been done with the money they received," he explained.

Huddleston Co-Sponsors Direct Vote

WASHINGTON—Senator Walter Dee Huddleston is cosponsoring legislation to provide for the direct election of the President and Vice President. He said the present system gives an advantage to large, high population states.

"The procedure we presently have for electing the chief executive bears the seemingly innocuous name of 'The electoral college,'" Huddleston said. "But this procedure can be criticized on two points: first, it is inequitable, unjust and undemocratic; secondly, it is fraught with potential pitfalls which could possibly cause serious political disruption under certain conditions."

"Under the present system the key states with large numbers of electoral votes have an advantage over the smaller states. These pivotal states usually receive preference in the selection of presidential candidates."

The Kentucky senator said that under a system of direct election large states with high population density would still receive a great deal of attention.

"But the system would be more equitable because each vote would be equally weighted. Knowing that every vote is equal will force candidates to pursue them with this in mind."

Compliance officers for the U. S. Labor Department's Occupational Safety and Health Administration rarely give advance notice of inspections.

ARC To Meet In Kentucky

For three days this week, Kentucky will host a meeting of the Appalachian Regional Commission (ARC), which will include a visit by representatives of the governors of the Appalachian states to Eastern Kentucky sites and facilities.

Gov. Julian M. Carroll is the states' current co-chairman of the joint federal-state commission.

Monday's meeting began with a breakfast at the Governor's Mansion, where Carroll will welcome the delegates.

Afterward, approximately 40 ARC officials, representing the 13 Appalachian states and the administrative staff in Washington, began a tour of Kentucky's Appalachian region to gain first-hand impressions of the area and to inspect various facilities built with ARC funds.

The group visited an ARC child development center and a neighborhood center in Campton and the Breathitt County Area Vocational Education Extension Center in Jackson. Tours of the Lees Junior College Science Center and the Berea College Museum of Appalachian also were scheduled.

A general business meeting, Tuesday and Wednesday, was slated at the Hospitality Inn in Lexington.

EXPERIENCE COUNTS

For four years, from 1968 to 1972, I was State Senator for the 29th District. The experience to me was invaluable as I came to know so many people throughout the area, the needs of our Eastern Kentucky region, how the state (and national) governments work, the people in Frankfort (and Washington) that can help us, and how that help can best be gotten.

Now, I am seeking this office again. I believe the experience I gained in those four years qualifies me to ask for your vote and support for the following reasons.

SEVERANCE TAX

How much money, IF ANY, will be returned to coal-producing counties from the severance tax in the next four years? This is a question vital to Eastern Kentucky and will be a major issue in the next legislature. The only three Eastern Kentuckians to hold leadership posts in the last Legislature—Rep. W. J. "Bill" Reynolds, Floyd County; Rep. Terry McBrayer, Greenup County; and Sen. Joe Stacy, Morgan County—are not seeking re-election. The incumbent Senator from this district is not seeking re-election. If we are to get the money we need from our coal, to use where we need to use it, I believe we also need a Senator with experience, who knows and has worked with Gov. Julian Carroll as I have in the past, and who knows and has worked with many of the other Senators and Representatives who will be voting on this issue.

FEDERAL PROGRAMS

In the Senate, I was privileged to work for four years with then-Senators Walter "Doc" Huddleston, now U.S. Senator; Romano "Ron" Mazzoli, now third District Congressman; and Carroll Hubbard, now first District Congressman. Our other U.S. Senator, Wendell Ford was then Lt. Governor and President of the Senate. Because of this relationship, I know these men, both personally and politically, as well as I do our own Seventh District Congressman Carl Perkins. I can and will work with these officials in Washington to help this district.

ROADS

I am aware that it sometimes takes years to get approval to build a road. As a Senator (and since that time) I made countless trips to Frankfort with delegations from this district to get approval on streets, roads, highways and bridges for this district. I was working for Ky. 80 in both the 1968 and 1970 legislatures, as were others in both the House and Senate. Now that engineering contracts have been awarded and work begun on this road, I believe your next Senator should be working for approval of the roads we will need for our future growth. This I will do.

EDUCATION

In my last term, I was a member of the Senate Standing Committee on Education, and named Chairman of the Special Committee on Education. I am fully aware of the problems faced by our school systems, teachers and administrators. I also know that one Senator, working alone, cannot pass any bills or raise any salaries. It requires a majority of 38 senators and 100 representatives plus the cooperation of the Governor. I believe my past experience qualifies me to obtain the support needed to help bring our educational programs, budgets and salaries in line with the rest of the nation and I will work honestly toward that goal.

Consumer Comments

By Atty. Gen. Ed Hancock
A consumer recently asked our office, "What are those funny-looking lines and numbers on the wrappers and labels of my food?"
This series of vertical bars and numbers is called the Universal Product Code (UPC), part of a new system designed and presently being tested by the supermarket industry, to computerize supermarket checkout.
Under this system, each grocery product sold through retail channels in the U. S. would be assigned a 10-digit number. The first five numbers form the code number for the manufacturer and the second five numbers represent a specific product. The bars correspond to the numbers.
At the checkout counter, an electronic scanner will "read" the symbol and transmit that information to the store's computer, where the price is checked and transmitted back to the cash register. The price will be flashed to both checker and consumer. At the same time, a register tape is printed with the product name, manufacturer, price and, sometimes, weight. This whole process takes only a split second for each item.

With computerization, the supermarket industry hopes to lower costs by speeding up checkout times and by reducing the chance of human error, by obtaining instant inventory information and by decreasing out-of-stock and ordering problems.
The most controversial part of the computerized system is the likelihood that stores would discontinue marking prices on each item in the store, leaving the consumer with prices listed only on the shelves. This might mean much running back and forth between aisles for those who wish to compare prices between, say, frozen and canned corn.

If you'd like to know more about the Universal Product Code, or if you have a consumer complaint, contact the Attorney General's Division of Consumer Protection. Write to the Attorney General, Division of Consumer Protection, The Capitol—Room 34, Frankfort, Kentucky 40601. Kentucky consumers may call toll-free on the consumer hotline by dialing 1-800-372-2860.
And if you'd like to hear more about consumer protection, tune in Consumer Survival Kit, a new TV series designed to save you money and headaches in the marketplace. Check your local listings on Sunday, Tuesday and Thursday for the correct times and channels.

ROME (AP)—Burglars using torches cut their way into a bank from an adjoining building over the weekend and stole cash and valuables worth $1.5 million from about 100 safety deposit boxes, police reported yesterday.

How Many Kilograms?

Pictured is Velma Conn being weighed on scales using the new metric system. Explaining the metric system of weights and measures is Kathy Bullen, home economist with the Kentucky State Extension Service. This, along with other displays, was viewed by the public on the Kentucky State Mobile Education Unit recently sponsored by the Floyd County Extension Service.

Rutherford Talks Perkins Parkway

A proposal to build a new highway between Hazard and Allen, and to name that highway the Carl D. Perkins Parkway, has been made by Pike County Judge Wayne T. Rutherford. In a telegram to Governor Carroll, Judge Rutherford said:
"I wish to urge and request that your office actively pursue the construction of the highway between Hazard and Allen to its completion. This highway is a necessary and vital link in the realization of Kentucky's transportation network. I further recommend that, upon completion, this highway be dedicated and named the Carl D. Perkins Parkway."
The proposal brought an enthusiastic response from Rutherford's 2,500 supporters gathered at a fund-raising event for his bid for the Democratic nomination for lieutenant governor recently in Pikeville.
At that same rally, Rutherford gave his "full and wholehearted endorsement" to Governor Julian Carroll's bid for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination in the May 27 primary.

Criminal Justice Study To Begin

By HERB BROCK
Special task forces designed to evaluate and recommend improvements in Kentucky's criminal justice system will meet for the first time in a series of open conferences starting in Frankfort this week.

The juvenile delinquency task force will meet at 10 a.m. today (Wednesday) at the Ramada Inn, with the corrections task force meeting there the next day at 9 a.m. The schedule also includes these meetings:

Courts task force at 10 a.m., April 28 at the Ramada Inn; police task force at 9 a.m., May 15 at Morrison's cafeteria; assessment task force at 9 a.m., May 22 at the Ramada Inn.

A spokesman for the state Justice Department, which is sponsoring the meetings under its newly formed Advisory Commission on Criminal Justice Standards and Goals, said the task force on juvenile delinquency will focus on delinquency prevention, pre-trial investigations, police-juvenile relationships and training of all personnel in the field.

He said the second meeting, dealing with corrections, will center on the role and benefits of probation, parole and other community-based programs and treatment programs inside state and local correctional facilities.

In the other meetings, the courts task force will consider effects of a proposed judicial amendment and sentencing procedures, while the police group will concentrate on developing investigative capabilities and crime detection.

The assessment task force will deal with areas not specifically covered by the other groups, including statewide training programs, legislation and general programs aimed at upgrading the state's criminal justice system.

Proposals made by the task forces may be used in drawing up grants for new crime-fighting projects at the state and local level and also may be incorporated into the state Justice Department's legislative package for the 1976 General Assembly.

The F.H.A. members were divided into committees under the guidance of the following chairmen: Teresa Allen, Gwen Blackburn, Tania Blevins, Lillean Bradford, Sharon Click, Drema Cornelison, Phyllis Goble, Judy Hale, Edna Horn, Debbie Johnson, Linda Maynard, Libby Ousley, Teresa Ousley, and Glenda Shepherd. Opinions from Office of Attorney General

Rep. William I. Schmaedecke, of Covington, asked if the owner-occupant, who is 65 years of age or older, is eligible for a homestead exemption for his mobile home which is placed on a rented lot. It is the opinion of the office of the Attorney General that if the wheels or mobile parts have been removed from a house trailer and the unit rests on a permanent fixed foundation, the residence classifies as real estate and is therefore entitled to the exemption.

R. Wayne McGee, Harrison county attorney, inquired if a defendant can be tried and convicted for driving while intoxicated, although no breathalyzer, blood or other test was given, due to inoperability. The Attorney General's office held that a court must not permit a drunk driver to escape conviction for the offense simple because the testing equipment was temporarily out of order.

William G. Buckman, faculty regent for Western Kentucky University, asked if the faculty is required by law to participate in both the Teachers' Retirement System and the Social Security program. Buckman also asked if participation in Social Security could be terminated. The Attorney General's office said participation in TRS has been mandatory for the faculty of WKU since 1940. State colleges, by referendum vote, also may modify this coverage by electing inclusion into Social Security, which WKU voted to do in 1966. Federal law does not provide any means of terminating the modification of a state agreement without also terminating the entire agreement. Therefore, it is the prerogative of the state to make such a change for all of its employees. An individual group of state workers, such as those at WKU, are not authorized to withdraw from the Social Security program on their own.

Jack L. White, mayor of Manchester, asked if a policeman, not under civil service requirements, may run for a public office and still retain his present job. The Attorney General's office gave the opinion that, while a policeman who serves a city which has not opted for civil service may seek a public office, he would not be able to continue in his present position, since the two offices would be incompatible. This incompatibility, however, would not become effective until the second office is assumed.

Kenneth M. Grant, president of the Kentucky Coroners Association, requested advice on what public agency or private concern should have access to a coroner's records. The Attorney General's office ruled that the central element of the coroner's work is supervising the inquest. Since the transcript of this proceeding is filed with the circuit court clerk, it is a public record. The coroner is not required by law to furnish information about inquests to anyone.

Attorney To Explain Commitment Process

Oliver Barber, a lawyer from the Department of Human Resources, will speak April 30 at 10 a.m. at the Floyd County Library here on the current process for making involuntary commitments to one of the Bureau's psychiatric hospitals. The process has recently changed as a result of a February court ruling which restrains judges, comprehensive care centers, and state hospitals from making involuntary commitments without observing the legal rights of the involved individual. This court decision affects the commitment process to the extent that an individual who is being involuntarily committed must be given the same protection in the form of legal counsel and representation as an individual who is faced with a criminal charge. Mr. Barber will explain in detail the process which must be followed and will answer questions. All interested persons are urged to attend.

Possible Radiation Leaks At Maxey Flats Under Study

By MARVA GAY FRANKFORT, Ky.—The Environmental Quality Commission wants to know more about possible radiation leaks at Maxey Flats in Fleming county. Suspicion that a leak exists on the nuclear waste disposal site run by Nuclear Engineering Co. on land leased by the state since 1963 led the citizens advisory commission to the Kentucky Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection to begin questioning government officials at its last meeting. The commission determined that responsibility for the site is divided among several state and federal agencies, including the federal Nuclear Regulatory Commission. The commission voted to ask Gov. Julian Carroll for assistance in acquiring the necessary personnel to determine the situation at Maxey Flats. Answering a commission request, John Roberts, director of the state division of reclamation, delineated the provisions of proposed strip mining reclamation legislation and compared them to Kentucky requirements. Many of the federal requirements are not included in the state's laws or regulations. Both new and existing strip mines must comply with eight major provisions of the federal law. New mines must comply immediately, existing ones within 135 days after the law's effective date. They must advertise, demonstrate an equal or higher land use, develop hydrologic consequences of reclamation, grade the land to approximate original contours, restore topsoil to the area, meet federal vegetation standards, construct sediment control structures under federal guidelines and meet rigid requirements on mining land steeper than 20 degrees. Roberts said the federal provisions will necessitate an enormous amount of paperwork for both the mine operators and the regulatory agencies. Competition for engineers, hydrologists, geologists and other experts needed to meet the federal law also may put a strain on both the operators and the agencies. In other action, the commission adopted recommendations of its Noise Advisory Committee, which call for adequate funds to allow the noise control agency to collect data, conduct investigations, train its staff and hire consultants. The next meeting of the Environmental Quality Commission will be May 21, in Frankfort.

VA Traces Damage Caused by Alcohol

A poisonous chemical that is a breakdown product of alcohol, acetaldehyde, may be responsible for body chemistry by which drinking damages the liver, brain, and other organs of alcoholics, according to a research team from the Bronx, N. Y. Veterans Administration Hospital and Mount Sinai School of Medicine, New York City. Reporting in a recent issue of the New England Journal of Medicine, Drs. Mark A. Korsten, Shohei Matsuzaki, Lawrence Felman, and Charles S. Lieber said alcoholics in their study had "significantly higher" blood levels of acetaldehyde than nonalcoholics with the same intake of alcohol. In an editorial on their findings that appears in the same issue of this journal, Dr. Neil H. Raskin of the University of California School of Medicine in San Francisco commented: "This demonstration of higher blood levels of acetaldehyde in habitual drinkers satisfies the dose-response requirement and effectively remove a constraint that has been imposed upon hypothesis of alcohol's toxicity. It has now become important to know much more about the metabolism of acetaldehyde and the characteristics of its cytotoxicity."

ATTORNEY STRICKEN Jarvis Allen, Prestonsburg attorney and former county clerk, was in intensive care at Highlands Medical Center after having been stricken III Tuesday morning. Mr. Allen became ill while in conference in the office of Circuit Judge Hollie Conley.

Ford Denies Meeting Held To Raise Funds

The Courier-Journal in a copyrighted story by Kyle Vance last Sunday quoted coal men, one of whom is a Floyd countyman, to the effect that in the 1971 meeting of then-Lt. Gov. Wendell H. Ford with strip-mine operators at Wise, Va. resulted in cash and pledges to the Ford campaign which approximated $80,000. Senator Ford denied that the meeting was held to collect money and that any was collected. He added that the allegations were obviously made to embarrass him because he introduced stronger strip-mine legislation, implemented the coal severance tax and is now supporting the federal strip-mine reclamation bill in the Senate. "I deny the allegations and I defy the allegator," he said.

Harry Hale Ranier, of Prestonsburg, was quoted by Vance as saying he attended the Wise meeting with his father, the late Harry Ranier. He said he sat in the room occupied by Ford, that the adjoining room was the "money room" and that there was no way Ford could fail to observe those leaving and entering that room. Ranier identified the men "in charge" inside the money room as Ford's brother, Reynburn, of Owensboro, Dr. Jack Razor, Mt. Sterling dentist, and Willis Clay Henry, former Mt. Sterling liquor store operator.

The Prestonsburg man said he learned from his father that every operator at the meeting, with the exception of a Knoxville Mack truck dealer, gave $5,000 at the time of the meeting or pledged to give later. His detailed account of the meeting was verified by Hobart Potter and Walter P. Walters, both of Pikeville, according to the Vance story.

Nurses' Conference Date At PCC Is Next Monday

A conference for registered nurses on cardiac arrhythmias will be held Monday, April 28, 10 a. m. to 4 p. m., at Prestonsburg Community College's Pike Auditorium. The conference, co-sponsored by Prestonsburg Community College and District 11, Kentucky Nurses Association, is designed to provide an opportunity for registered nurses with basic or advanced knowledge of coronary care nursing to interact with Evelyn Geller and Carol Caples, clinical nursing faculty, about recognizing and interpreting cardiac arrhythmias. It will focus on the nursing aspects of a person with an acute myocardial infarction. Registrants are encouraged to bring a written list of the nursing problems they have experienced in caring for this type of patient. 0.4 Continuing Education Unit will be awarded. Pre-registration is requested for planning purposes. Those interested in registering for the conference should call the Nursing Department at Prestonsburg Community College, 886-3863, Extension 260.

A federal interdepartmental task force is working with states to help them upgrade their workers' compensation laws, according to the U. S. Department of Labor.

The romantic remembrance of beautiful Kentucky belles in swirling hoopskirts, and gallant young gentlemen, is everywhere on the grounds of this old Southern plantation at Bardstown. Carillon bells chime Stephen Foster melodies, especially "My Old Kentucky Home," which Foster was inspired to write while on a visit here.

Kentucky's heritage and tradition are preserved in other state parks and shrines across the Commonwealth... all within a day's drive of your own home. So whether you're out for a one-day jaunt or for a week's vacation, visit Kentucky State Parks this year!

Akers To Be Youngest Heritage Artist at Seminar

By HELEN PRICE STACY
When Kentucky Heritage Artists, Inc. arrive at Lake Barkley State Resort Park, near Cadiz, for an art exhibit and seminar-workshop, May 2-4, they will have with them their newest artist and the youngest of the group.

Gary Akers, of Florence, native of Floyd county, is 24. At age 5 he was interested in drawing and by the time he was 10 he was painting with watercolor. "I attended Dedy Layne High School," said Akers, who was accepted into the Kentucky artist group during an exhibit-seminar at Carter Caves State Resort Park last March. "I had three years of art there but it was at Morehead State University where I really began to develop my art."

Akers specializes in egg tempera and will demonstrate this technique in one of the seminar sessions at Lake Barkley. "During graduate school at Morehead I began painting in egg tempera, using small gessoed panels. While working on my third painting, I began to get attached firmly to this medium."

Egg tempera is not a fast medium with which to work, and Akers usually spends 150 hours or more on a painting.

COMMITTEE NAMED
Gov. Julian Carroll announced the formation of an executive committee of his Economic Development Commission. Twenty-one prominent Kentucky business leaders will serve as members of the committee, headed by commission chairman John Y. Brown Jr.

"I plan to continue with this medium," said Akers, "because when you get a painting to really come off, there is nothing like it in freshness, realism and luminosity."

The basis of the technique, which will be explained fully at the seminar, involves mixing powdered pigment with the egg yolk. Akers said the safest rule in tempering a color to satisfaction "is to add enough egg to the mixture to make it a bit shiny when first painted and dry."

Heritage artists will demonstrate other media and more than 100 paintings will be exhibited.
