Plans apparently will proceed on construction of a government center on the Prestonsburg municipal parking lot with or without the approval of Prestonsburg's city council.

Wheelwright gives go-ahead to plan for utility extension

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

Wheelwright City Commissioners approved an engineering contract Monday to extend water and sewer lines to the minimum security prison being built in that city.

The Kenvions Company will receive $71,000 to do the engineering work which will be paid from a grant by the Kentucky Infrastructure Authority and the Economic Development Authority.

The prison is expected to be open in September.

In other business Monday, commissioners calmly and swiftly proceeded through the agenda which included an announcement from Commissioner Lowell Parker con-dent Rose Collins at Friday's meeting who asked that the court explore other options before going ahead with the courthouse project.

County Attorney Jim Hammond explained to Archer that county officials are facing time constraints and that they have to have their plans ready by August to submit to the Administrative Office of the Courts. "We were told that the city would not work with (us)," Hammond told Archer. "If we can't work with you, we'll work without you."

Archer told the court that he was unaware of the county's plan to use the parking lot and asked that the mayor and the council be able to review the county's plans.

Hammond chided the local print media for failing "to do their part" to inform the community about the new courthouse project.

The first mention, publicly, of building a new courthouse on the city's municipal parking lot came at the May 28, 1993 fiscal court meeting. Minutes of the fiscal court show that discussions have previously been held on buying a new jail facility and renovations and/or additions to the existing courthouse, contrary to Hammond's comments that the government center project was first mentioned in 1990.

Hammond told Archer that no one from the city council has asked any fiscal court member to attend a city council meeting to explain the project.

Court stalls on insurance; proceeds on vote machines

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

Floyd County Fiscal Court members balked Friday at a proposal from a KACO (Kentucky Association of County Officials) representative who offered to save the county approximately $50,000 for liability insurance.

Sue Porter, representing KACO, explained that the organization is not an insurance company, but an organization representing Kentucky counties which can provide better coverage for a fee lower than an independent insurance agent might offer.

Porter quoted a $55,838.69 policy to the county compared to the $111,529.28 now being paid to Hatton-Allen Insurance Company of Prestonsburg.

Denzell Allen, representing Hatton-Allen, disputed Porter's claim and said the policy was approximately $12,000 less and accused Porter of reviewing his company's policy before making the quote to the county.

Porter emphatically denied Allen's claim and said that she gave county officials a policy before reviewing Hatton-Allen's agreement and jotted down the cost savings during the fiscal court meeting.

In her presentation to the court, Porter said that KACO had received undeserved bad publicity from local insurance carriers in other counties and that she was prepared to back-up her statements about the amount and type of coverage the organization could provide to the county. Porter added that the organization represented 107 counties in the state.

Judge Executive John M. Stumbo suggested extending Hatton-Allen's policy for 30 days so that County Attorney Jim Hammond could review the two proposals.

Magistrate Jackie Edford Owens said that the current insurance carrier had given "awful good service" to the county and he saw no reason to go with another carrier.

The court voted to extend the current policy and have Hammond review the two policies and give a report at the July court meeting.

In other business Friday, the court took the first step toward acquiring computerized voting machines.

Opry wows 'em in opener of summer theatre season

by Janice Shepherd
Managing Editor

Raetta Dameron's rendition of "My Old Kentucky Home" bounced off the stars and straight into the hearts of the audience during Kentucky Opry's season premier performance Monday night at Jenny Wiley Amphitheatre.

Their spirited exhibition brought the sell-out crowd to its feet for several standing ovations. The crowd included visitors from several states, including Texas, Idaho, New Jersey and Pennsylvania.

Among the crowd-pleasing acts were the Opry's tribute to the 50's and 60's with their portrayals of the Beach Boys, the Beatles, Elvis and Motown singers. The theater — and the stage — rumbled with laughter during Freddie Goble's "sister act" — Tillie. Munroe's wit also kept the audience roaring.

Billie Jean Osborne, Opry founder, said performances will vary. Monday nights, this summer, shows will include tributes to Kentucky's miners and to the musicians of Rt. 23 — Billie Ray Cyrus, Loretta Lynn, Ricky Skaggs, the Judds, and Dwight Yoakam.

Two men are charged with sex abuse

by Geoff Belcher
Staff Writer

Officials are continuing their investigation into an incident in which two Floyd County men were arrested last week on charges that they sexually abused three children.

According to Floyd County District Court records, William G. McKinney, 34, of Wayland, was charged last week with two counts of first degree sex abuse and one count of first degree rape of a minor incapable of consent.

Before Monday night's show, a reception was held at the Convention Center where the Kentucky Opry Junior Pros stunned patrons with their professionalism.

First grads get diplomas in new reading program

Parents are a child's first and most influential teachers. Yet, it is estimated that only twenty percent of parents actually read to their children.

A school superintendent once said, "If we could get our parents to read to their preschool children 15 minutes a day, we could revolutionize the schools."

"Reading With Children" is a special family literacy program which gives adults in the Floyd County New Adult Readers literacy program the opportunity to come together with their children to read.

On June 15, six adults involved in the New Adult Readers program and one literacy tutor received certificates of achievement for successfully completing all the requirements for the National Literacy Volunteers of America (LVA) Program "Reading with Children." These adults are the first group in Floyd County to receive these certificates.

James Hamilton of Harrod, Rodney Newsome of Hill Hat, Lonetta Salisbury of Tolers Creek, Ricky Clark and Polly Music of Grethel, Fannie Lawson of Ivel and tutor Debbie Clark of Grethel received certificates.

The certificates were awarded through the Floyd County Adult Literacy Council by Vivian Whitehead, coordinator of Family Literacy Programs for Floyd County and Peg Smith, literacy instructor.

According to Whitehead, "Reading With Children" program is an intergenerational approach to education. You will not truly teach a child unless a parent is involved in the process," she added. "It is important to teach a child not just to read, but to want to read."

Participants learned the art of story telling using wordless books, doodles, puppets, photo albums, oral family history and writing their own stories. They spent time in activities they could do with their children in conjunction with reading such books as The Bear, The Little Engine That Could, and The Runaway Bunny.

"It brought us closer together and we had fun learning some of the easy ways to read to our kids," said Debbie Clark.

Participants invited their children to one session where together they read a story and did learning activities.

The spring program consisted of Landfill opponents ask state for hearing

by Geoff Belcher
Staff Writer

A local environmental group renewed its opposition this week to a proposed residual landfill approved last month by the Kentucky Cabinet for Natural Resources Division of Waste Management.

Pikeville attorney Michael DeBourbon, representing Ivel-Big Sandy Citizens Against Waste on Monday filed a challenge to the draft permit awarded to Costain Coal Incorporated last month after a year-long public battle to construct a 65-acre coal ash landfill at Ivel's Stratton Branch.

Costain began efforts to construct the residual landfill in accordance with AES Cedar Bay Inc., a Jacksonville, Florida-based utility company. Under the terms of the contract, the Florida company would purchase at least one million tons of coal per year for 20 years from Costain if the coal company would dispose of the waste.

Costain officials said that the ash would be treated, pelletized and stored in state-of-the-art, environmentally-sound facility.

Opponents of the landfill project say that it will be located too close to the Levisa Fork of the Big Sandy River and could contaminate the entire region's water supply with such trace elements as mercury and arsenic.

Members of the citizens group protested the project at numerous public hearings and gatherings before Waste Management officials last year. After several months of deliberation and minor revisions in the facility's plan, designed by the Florida-based IT Corporation, the state agency issued a tentative draft permit.

DeBourbon said Tuesday that the challenge to the permit was issued chiefly because members of the citizens group felt that the Division of Waste Management failed to get enough information before approving the project.

"Right now we're looking from a technical standpoint of what information the Division of Waste Management had in order to issue this permit," DeBourbon said. "What we're finding is that we think the application doesn't have enough information concerning the chemical composition of this garbage that will be coming into Floyd County."

"One of the items we see," DeBourbon continued, "is that they're going to bring this ash back in a pelletized form... The state of Kentucky doesn't have enough knowledge about this type of ash to make any kind of a decision."

 Parker told the commission that the Christian Appalachian Project (CAP) awarded the city a $5,000 matching grant to repair the pool in an attempt to have it open this summer. CAP will give the city the grant if the commission agrees to provide matching funds. Although no vote was taken, commissioners agreed to accept the grant to repair the pool.
 Parker also announced that the city will be making city hall available once a month for their attorneys, Cynthia Mulliken and Stetia Singleton. The attorneys will work on city matters and will also be available for consultations with citizens, at their own expense, on legal issues.
 Also Monday:
 • commissioners hired David Gray as a part-time policeman to replace Billy Wright who resigned for personal reasons unrelated to the police department;
 • commissioners authorized Parker to negotiate with Appalachian Cellular to break a lease for a cellular phone used by the police department;
 • commissioners approved the second reading of the 1993-94 budget and a budget amendment;
 • commissioners approved giving a quit claim deed to Debbie and Greg Hall for a city lot;
 • commissioners reappointed David Boyd to the utility commission; and
 • commissioners agreed to give

 Costain, said Tuesday that the challenge issued by the Ivel-Big Sandy Citizens was merely a "delaying tactic."
 "We don't back down from anything we've done," Francisco said. "We've always been up front and honest and tried to answer any questions that anyone might have... We don't want to do anything to damage the environment any more than anybody else does..."
 The Division of Waste Management will conduct a public hearing on the issue. That hearing has not yet been scheduled.
 Ivel-Big Sandy Citizens Against Waste will again begin conducting a series of "town meetings" across the county and region in order to better inform the public, DeBourbon said.

Liberty of thought is the life of the soul—Voltaire

'The saddest words...'

by Scott Perry

There is no comfort in the knowledge that a tragic accident last week which claimed the life of a Floyd County teenager might have been avoided. As poet John Greenleaf Whittier noted, "For all sad words of tongue or pen, the saddest are these: 'it might have been!'" But as we struggle to cope with such a tragic loss, we must attempt to understand how monumental is the task school officials face in their efforts to control young people with plans of their own. It may well be impossible. We all hurt when an innocent life is lost and we must realize that this was not the first nor, despite our best efforts to see otherwise, will it be the last time tragedy strikes so unmercifully. Let us come together today as a community, hand in hand, to mourn our loss and to find a way to ensure that the inevitable sorrows of tomorrow are few and far between.

What's the hurry?

Some legitimate questions have been posed on a proposal to construct a government center in downtown Prestonsburg and proponents of the plan would do well to lay all their cards on the table for inspection by those affected. One phase of the plan favored by the Floyd County Fiscal Court calls for the construction of a five-level government center on the Prestonsburg Municipal Parking Lot, which will include two underground parking levels and above-ground office space for the county offices, judicial offices and others. Sounds good, but how much will it cost, who will pay for it, can it in fact be built on the proposed site, is it the most feasible option, is it the most efficient option and will it address the needs of its owners, the people of Floyd County? Our biggest question is this... What's the hurry? Oh, we know the state is losing its patience with the county over the state of the county jail and we know the current county courthouse is certainly not something you'd want to picture on the front of a postcard. But it wouldn't stall things long by taking some extra time to fill the public in on the project's specific ins and outs. Up to now, we've heard nothing but generalities and a lot of questions. Now, how about some answers.

Local residents have a heart

Editor:
The American Heart Association held a telephone fundraiser for Floyd County on June 15, 1993. Local volunteers met at Consolidated Health Systems and placed telephone calls asking for pledges. The telepledge goal was $2,500 and the volunteers secured over $3,000 in combined pledges and donations. Special thanks to telepledge captains Virginia Watson, Freddie Goble and Walter Snavely. The American Heart Association would also like to recognize Susan Martin of Consolidated Health Systems and Highlands Regional Medical Center for their support in our mission to reduce death and disability from cardiovascular disease and stroke.

Questions for government

Editor:
I have read the Floyd Fiscal Court's efforts to acquire the Municipal Parking Lot from the city of Prestonsburg. This project will be an asset for the future of this community, however, I have a few questions for the city and for the county governments that may or may not be pertinent. I have no hidden agendas or any other agenda by asking these few questions. For the city of Prestonsburg: Are there any encumbrances or restrictions on the area referred to as the municipal parking lot that might prohibit the transfer the title to the property? For Floyd County government: Wouldn't it be wise to get some type of geological survey done to see if the soil will support a five story building? Would the sub-basement of the building be located above the water table? Would it be possible to get some kind of firm commitment from any of Kentucky's agencies to lease a substantial amount of the planned vacant space?

Commending police

Editor:
I would like to commend the officers of Prestonsburg Police Department and their Assistant Chief Roy Roberts for excellent traffic control during our Festival of F.A.C.E.S. 5K race. As a race director, it is very important for the safety and welfare of the runners. By far, the Prestonsburg Police Department is the best compared to other local police departments in Eastern Kentucky. Thanks!

Walkers trod pavement for March of Dimes

Editor:
We are writing to express our deepest appreciation to Paintsville for their support in the March of Dimes Walk America held on Sunday, May 23. This year, we had over 122 walkers and raised over $8,989.05, which is a dramatic jump from last year's $4,000.00.

We would like to thank the committee members that helped in the planning of this event since January. Also, we would like to thank our major sponsors such as: Super America, K-Mart, Independence Financial, WKLW, WSIP, Pepsi-Cola and Pizza Hut. This walk would not be possible without the support from the community through local businesses that supplied food and drinks for the walkers and the local businesses that supplied gifts to give to the top money raisers.

The top money raiser this year was Christy Griffith who raised $500. A special thanks to Christy for all her hard work in collecting donations.

We would like to thank everyone again for their involvement in the March of Dimes Mission—Healthier Babies.

Dogs not in danger

Editor:
To the "concerned" person who called the police last Thursday to report two dogs in the Wal-Mart parking lot locked in a car with the windows rolled up:

My name is Gail Blackburn. The dogs are mine and yes, the windows were up and the doors were locked, but don't give yourself a gold star and a pat on the back just yet.

May I ask you a question? How did you know the doors were locked? I'm certain you didn't try to open them because Scott and Maggie would have gone crazy if you'd come that close to their car and you could hardly have failed to notice why the doors were locked and the windows up—the car was running and the air conditioner was on.

This is the second time some "good Samaritan" has called the police without having the decency and common sense to find out if it was necessary. If I found upset, you bet your life I am. Not only because I've had to explain twice (in public while everyone walking by stared as if I'd committed a major crime) that no, I don't abuse my dogs, kick little children or pull the wings off butterflies but also because in both cases the informer seems to have been more interested in brownie points than the welfare of the animals involved. If I had seen what you thought you saw, no one could have prided me from the spot till help came, the person responsible caught and I'd found out if the dogs were O.K. Where were you?

I care more about my dogs than many people do about their children. At

by Scott Perry

Where there's smoke, there's the U.S. Supreme Court.

Further evidence that our government is in dire need of a reality check has been provided by the nation's highest court, which has apparently agreed to review a prison inmate's complaint that his constitutional protection against cruel and unusual punishment has been violated.

By secondhand smoke. The inmate claims his rights have been stubbed out by his cellmate, who smokes five packs a day, and the high court has agreed to decide if over-exposure to smoke is cruel and unusual.

Good grief. How did this absurdity make it all the way to the Supreme Court and are there no more pressing constitutional issues for our Justices to decide?

Probably not. Scary, ain't it?

We've come up with a sure-fire way to cut government waste, which now costs you roughly 30 cents of every tax dollar you pay.

Don't allow any new laws to be proposed or passed until we use up the ones we already have.

Thousands of new and improved statutes are recommended yearly by state and federal lawmakers which neither have nor deserve a chance of being enacted into law.

And, we have plenty of laws now that we don't really need.

Ironically, the only ten rules we do need can't be posted in any public, tax-supported institution.

We've come a long way, baby.

If it ain't broke, kill it.

While we don't have a dog in the fight, the debate over school consolidation in Lewis County does concern one of our pet issues.

A small school is facing extinction over an issue of expense rather than educational proficiency.

But the debate over the fate of small Tollesboro High offers a good reason to leave the small school alone, beyond the obvious fact that it has outperformed its consolidated cousin, Lewis County High, on educational standards testing and the evidence, oddly enough, has been provided by the leader of the consolidation effort.

"Our county has never worked as a team because Tollesboro has always wanted their own identity," the head of a citizens' group promoting closing of the small school said.

We find it hard to imagine how relieving a community of its identity with its school is conducive to teamwork, particularly when that identity has produced a higher quality of education.

As we've noted before, efficiency doesn't always guarantee quality.

Sometimes, small is big.

If you've thought on occasion that Congress has acted as if it were above the law, it's because it is.

The laws that apply to us don't always apply to them.

For instance, Congress is exempt from some of the most fundamental laws passed in recent times...like the Civil Rights Act of 1964, the Freedom of Information Act and the more recent Americans With Disabilities Act.

Wonder what it is that makes them so special?

least from what I've seen, I do. They are better treated, better supervised and sad but true, have been taught better manners than many children I know.

Concern is fine. Enough of the right kind and my sister could close her office at the Child Abuse Council for lack of business, but accusing someone of wrong without getting the facts is nothing to be proud of.

City and county must cooperate

I was at the June 18 fiscal court meeting as a concerned citizen, public official and taxpayer of Prestonsburg and Floyd County. The county officials needed to know that there were concerns and questions being raised in the business community and general public about the proposed use of the municipal parking lot as the site of the new Government Center and the new Jail project proposed for the current courthouse parking lot. Blame as to where the breakdown in communication came is of no importance or use at this point. What matters now is the two governmental bodies work in concert to see the people get the best facility possible at the best price, taking into account their (the citizens) wants and needs. One of the main reasons I attended the meeting was to personally extend the invitation passed by resolution at the last city council meeting for the fiscal court to send their representatives along with all the information on the three-phase project. This accomplishes a number of things. It gets the two bodies together; it gives the citizens a forum to hear the plan and offer input to better the project; finally, it gets the plan before the city in a meeting where all is on the record for all the citizens to see and evaluate. This is supposed to be the way things are done—the American way.

I am not knocking the county plan (and it was impressive in scope and appearance), but the Collins plan (which offers options for both safety and savings) or any viable option should be explored and given a fair hearing. This is all anyone expects. The people can see for themselves what each plan involves and let either plan stand or fall on its own merits or weaknesses.

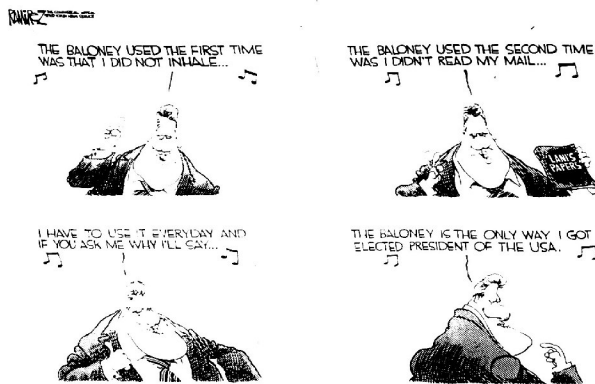

The County Fiscal Court was kind and gracious to all the Prestonsburg citizens who addressed them. Most county officials were open to dialogue with the citizens of Prestonsburg who are still a part of Floyd County. I thank them for the opportunity to address them.

I have arranged for the Fiscal Court meetings of June 18 and May 28 to be shown on the Prestonsburg Cablevision system twice this week for each session. Once again, this is to dispel rumors and give the people information needed to make an "informed" decision. I would like to thank Tel-Com and WPRG of Harold for the use of these tapes and to Cablevision for caring enough about their community to get involved and airing the tapes.

Of course the threat of moving the county seat out of Prestonsburg was brought up, as was expected. I feel this would be a major mistake on the county's part. The real problem in threatening this action as the first response to the simple question and inquiry to the county plan gives the public sad evidence of a communication breakdown between the city and the county governing bodies. If we can't talk together without someone threatening to "take their ball or courthouse and go home," our area surely will not grow due to a horrible unwillingness to work together. This competition between the city and county as enemies is what will spell doom for this county, area and region, because we all must work together; all five counties in the ADD; all the cities in the five counties, but this group effort must start locally between the county and Prestonsburg. Or the surrounding area will pass us by on its way to the 21st century. This would be the worst example we could show our children of their government in action.

"I've learned how to create my own stories from pictures now," said Ricky Clark. "I think I've encouraged my little girl to want to read more."

According to Peg Smith, "This program benefits two generations at once. Week after week I saw our students become more and more confident in reading children's books. After a few sessions, they began joining me as 'story teller.' We had many good laughs together, learning to read out loud as you would with children. It was a wonderful experience for all of us."

The benefits of the program have carried over into the lives of the participants and their children and grandchildren.

"This is the first time I've ever read to my grandchildren," said James Hamilton. "It seems like it makes you feel closer to them."

Rodney Newsome said, "My kids always used to go to their mother to read to them. Now they bring their books to me, too."

The program has produced other benefits. A "Reading With Children" library has been established at the Mud Creek Adult Learning Center. New books have been donated to the library from various sources. In addition, the Floyd County Adult Literacy Council has just been awarded a $300 mini-grant to purchase children's books through the GTE Foundation (LVA).

With the integration of "Reading

With Children" into literacy classes, new adult readers will receive a free children's book for every five books they read to their children. This will help parents begin libraries in their homes. And the children love the program.

Fannie Lawson said about her son, "Danny always wants to see what books I'm going to bring home. He says, 'Mommy, I love your school.'"

As a result of the program, Polly Music was inspired to start her own family library. "Now we are collecting books for our own library at home and I'm looking for a bookcase to keep them in."

Whitehead said, "Reading with Children" motivates a child to want to read. It stimulates a child's intellectual ability, imagination and curiosity. It teaches the child life lessons of love, justice, courage and compassion by giving them book characters who are models of good behavior. It builds emotional bonds between parent and child that no TV watching can do."

"Reading With Children" will also be presented at the Adult Learning Center at Drift and other sites in Floyd County. The program can be adapted to meet the specific needs of an organization. If you are interested in receiving more information about the "Reading With Children" program, either as a participant or group leader, contact Vivian Whitehead at the Floyd County Literacy Council at 886-READ.

Project

Archer said that it had been rumored that the city had already given the county an option on the parking lot and that the council was not aware that the county had proceeded with drawings of the facility or what time constraints surrounded the project.

Hammond did not say if the county had an option and told Archer that

Rt. 1428 to get new guardrail

Highway crews soon will begin installing a guardrail along a small portion of the Prestonsburg-Allen Road.

The guardrail will be installed along a 1.5 mile section of Kentucky 1428. The project is expected to cost approximately $58,767.

The project will be funded through the state's Rural Secondary Account, which is made up of gasoline tax revenues and distributed to each county throughout the year based on land size, population and rural road mileage.

To Oma Hughes

The 13th child of Caleb Sherman and Martha Louise May whose birthday we celebrate on June 22nd.

Mother, do you ever wonder about the year when you turned one year old in June? Do you think it might've been something about the moon? That made Mamaw forget when she thought back to your birth and confused the day that her 13th child was born upon this earth? Now that I've thought about it, I bet it was Papaw's little "white lie". 'Cause he was sometimes quite the prankster and an innovative guy. He must've wanted you to stay a baby, so he thought up this little plot. To make Mamaw think your birthdate, she had simply just forgot. Now he knew it would still have to fall in the month of June, so he added 16 days 'till the changing of the moon. And I bet every year when the 6th of June goes rolling by, He looks down from heaven with a twinkle in his eye, And wonders if you ever learned about the little trick he played. That, each year, gives you 16 more days to stay a younger age.

Happy Birthday!
Love, Dawn and Brenda

On Tuesday, June 29, Wednesday, June 30, and Thursday, July 1, Central Kentucky Blood Center will sponsor the monthly Prestonsburg/Floyd County community blood drive.

The drive will be held from 11 a.m.-7 p.m. on Tuesday and from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Wednesday and Thursday at the Prestonsburg Donor Center located on the second floor of the municipal building on North Lake Drive.

Central Kentucky Blood Center is the only provider of blood and blood components to Floyd County Hospitals which include Highlands Regional, Our Lady of the Way and McDowell Appalachian Regional.

The need for blood donors is increasing. In fact, over 200 donors are needed daily to meet the needs of area residents and patients in the Central Kentucky Blood Center service area including Floyd County. Sixty percent of the population will need blood sometime during their lives, yet only five percent of the population has donated blood. Also, blood only lasts 30 days so monthly blood drives are essential for maintaining an adequate blood supply.

Please take time to support the ongoing blood needs of Floyd County by becoming a regular blood donor. Participation in the monthly community blood drive does make a difference.

For more information or to make an appointment call Central Kentucky Blood Center at 1-800-775-2522 or call Georgia Sanders at 886-1557.

These Parents' Choice: Quality Education and Christian Values

Alice Cole, Minnie
Two children at MCA, Grades 4 and 7

"I chose MCA for my children to attend for several reasons including the Christian Education Program taught every day and the close teacher-pupil relationships in small classes. The uniform dress code is also a plus.

My older child, now in seventh grade, was in the very first class at MCA and I am well satisfied with his academic progress. When my second child reached school age, I had no doubts about where she would go."

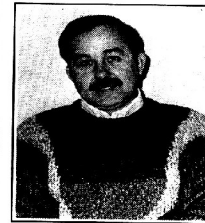

Jimmy Stumbo, Langley
One child at MCA, Grade 2

"My aunt was a teacher at Mountain Christian Academy and she was one of the best ever. I know because she taught me in school way back when. If MCA chose her for a teacher, I knew they had high standards. I definitely have not been disappointed.

My child loves MCA. The kids I work with in the sports program at the school tell me the same thing.

Although my son is only eight years old, he already realizes the importance of a good education. At Mountain Christian Academy, he's getting that good education and a strong sense of Christian values."

Mountain Christian Academy Offers:

- Quality Education—all test scores above the national average
- Interdenominational Christian values
- Individual attention that every student deserves

Opry

mance, Opry Board of Directors chairman Paul Phillip Hughes announced the beginning of fund-raising activities to build a home for the Opry, the Mountain Arts Center. The cost of the building will be around $6 million, Hughes said, with one million coming from Prestonsburg, two million from the federal government, one million on the state level from Development Block Grants, and two million from private donations.

Hughes said the center is off to a "running start," with $256,600 in pledges. The center received a sizeable donation from the family of Marvin Music Sr. and the lobby of the new center will be dedicated to him, Hughes said.

Patrons donating $5,000 to the center will be Gold Star Donors and will receive preferred seating at all Opry shows. Donors' names will also be permanently displayed on the Mountain Arts Center's Wall of Fame. Their names will also be emblazoned on nameplates on the back of two Gold Level seats in the center's theater.

For a $1,000 gift, contributors will join the ranks of Silver Star Donors whose names will be displayed on the center's Wall of Fame and on a nameplate on the back of a Silver Level seat in the center's theater. Silver Star Donors will also receive a Certificate of Appreciation.

Businesses and individuals may also sponsor certain areas of the theater, such as music rooms where area children will receive training. Donations are 100 percent tax deductible, and pledges may be paid in installments.

Mail donations to the Kentucky Opry, 130 North Lake Drive, Prestonsburg, Kentucky 41653. Or, for more information, call 1-800-844-4704.

 "She posed and we drew a picture of her," Brittany Taylor said.
 Clark was pleased with how these drawings turned out. "They pick up characteristics in people's faces. They drew very charming portraits of her."
 Clark said he has enjoyed teaching the classes. "I look forward to seeing these kids. They're special."
 "Mr. Clark is special to us," said Daphnia McCoy from Betsy Layne. "He has worked with us to improve our drawing."
 The art program is the first-ever for TAG students and Wednesday's TAG teachers hope the program will continue next school year. Frazier said, "I've thoroughly enjoyed the program. It has given me a chance to become closer to the students. They also become closer to each other."
 Francis said about the program, "It has been really good for the students to work together and to get to know each other. The African art sessions were really good. Students learned about another culture."
 Other workshops, including an art class for children and a dulcimer workshop, are planned for this summer. Contact the Mountain Heritage Arts and Crafts Center for more information.

Mt. Heritage TAG Classes end

by Polly Ward
 Times Feature Writer

For the third and fourth grade students in the talented and gifted (TAG) classes in the Floyd County school system, the last sessions of the art enrichment program was a time to make fish and to talk about what they had learned over the past 12 weeks.

The art enrichment program, held at the Children's Museum of Art at Mountain Heritage Arts and Crafts Center in Prestonsburg, started Tuesday, February 9 and ended Wednesday, June 16.

Each Tuesday, TAG teacher Pat Barnette brought her students from McDowell, Duff, Auxler, Martin and Clark Elementaries to the museum. Wednesday was reserved for TAG students in Mary Frazier and Tammy Francis' classes from Betsy Layne, John M. Stumbo, Harold, Allen, Prater, Prestonsburg, Maytown, Osborne and Melvin Elementary schools.

During the sessions, students were involved in a variety of activities designed by art instructor Ralph Clark to develop the students' creativity and awareness of art.
 During recent Wednesday morning visit, students were working on their last project — a fish mobile. Clark showed the students a book with color pictures of fish and had each student pick out a fish to draw, color and then stuff with newspaper. Once their fish creations were finished, Clark planned to hang them as a mobile from the museum's ceiling.

Brittany Taylor, a TAG student from Betsy Layne Elementary, said that the first art classes began with "still-life drawings of things you find in a kitchen. Then we studied African culture — the art they make. And then we drew pictures from ideas we got from the (festival of) FACES art exhibit."
 The Festival of FACES student exhibit was held at the museum in June. Clark said that the students did their own interpretations of particular pictures from the exhibit. "They added their own ideas" to their versions of the pictures.
 Aaron Goble of Betsy Layne said he liked the classes because, "we get to draw. We get to do all kinds of stuff. From the art exhibit, I did a igate the cost of purchasing new voting machines through lease-purchase arrangement through KACO.

Court

Magistrate Owens said he felt the county should try to upgrade the current voting machines and said "the suckers work pretty good." Owens added that he felt older citizens would be "afraid to fool with" electronic voting machines.

Boyd disagreed with Owens and said that she has used the electronic machines for absentee balloting and that no citizens had any problems casting their votes.

Boyd explained that by the May 1994 Primary, federal law requires that electronic voting machines be in operation. She said that the county would save money in storage and delivery of the machines because they weigh less and are smaller than the voting machines now used.

Judge-executive Stumbo said that the court is expected to advertise for the new machines in July and that Boyd would report back to the court on a lease/purchase arrangement.

In other action Friday, the court:

- heard an annual report from Darrell Gilliam on the Economic Development Authority;
- approved closing a street at Auxier named Richmond Avenue;
- approved advertising for bids for supplies for the 1993-94 fiscal year;
- approved an extension of an agreement for the proposed harness racing track on Route 3; and
- held second reading and adopted the 1993-94 county budget.

Brings home national title!

Jonathan Thornberry, 11-year old son of Ricky and Renea Thornberry of Martin, proudly displays the trophies he won during last weekend's National Tumbling and Trampoline events in St. Louis, Missouri. Thornberry won first place in the trampoline events and took third place in the Double Mini. He had a fifth place finish in the Tumbling events. (photo by Ed Taylor)

Thornberry captures national trampoline title in St. Louis

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

Most young men at the age of 11 and 12-year olds are involved in baseball or summer basketball camps this time of year. Not Martin's Jonathan Thornberry. Thornberry has another interest that brought him a national championship.

This past weekend Thornberry and his mother Renea were in St. Louis, Missouri, where the younger Thornberry took the national championship in the Tumbling and Trampoline Competition in trampoline competition.

Thornberry scored 22.20 for first place, beating out Grant Smith of Florida in the intermediate age group.

"I was nervous at first," said Thornberry, "but the more nervous I get, the better I do."

According to his mother, Thornberry was perfect in his three passes on the trampoline. Thornberry himself was confident he had scored well.

"I felt comfortable with my performance," he said. "I wasn't used to the type of floor they had. It didn't have much spring to it. The floor I was used to had a lot of spring—a 'power floor.'"

Thornberry is a newcomer to the sport. He has only been in competition for a year. He became interested in the sport by watching cheerleaders at basketball games.

"I would go to the games and watch the cheerleaders do their gymnastics and I was in awe of it," Thornberry. "I then got interested in it."

Thornberry began training under Henry Young, a local gymnastics trainer who operates a gym in Pikeville.

The young gymnastic performer advanced to the nationals in St. Louis by first winning the regional and state meets in Grayson.

At regionals, Thornberry captured first place in the Trampoline, Tumbling and Double Mini events.

State competition was also a first place sweep in all three categories for Thornberry, who then qualified for the nationals.

Not only did he take first nationally in trampoline, but he placed third nationally in the Double Mini and took fifth place overall in the tumbling event.

At the regional meet, he was the top overall scorer, a very distinguished honor.

Because of placing third in the Double Mini, Thornberry will now have to move up a level in competition from the novice to the intermediate level, but that doesn't scare him. "I feel that I can compete on the next level," he said. "I can do the passes on that level as well as the novice level."

Thornberry feels that he needs to practice on his landing in the Double Mini as an area of improvement.

"I feel that I am doing alright in the trampoline events but there is some room for improvement in the Double Mini," he said.

Thornberry will trek to Knoxville, Tennessee on August 1, 2, and 3 for the Junior Olympics. Until then, the gymnastic standout will be practicing on Tuesdays and Thursdays in preparation.

Local foursome captures CPA golf competition

The Eastern Kentucky Chapter of the Kentucky Society of CPA's held their annual golf outing this past Friday at the Paintsville Country Club.

The days events included a golf scramble among CPA members and their guests.

The foursome of Wayland's Jeff Riley, Fred Goble of Prestonsburg, Greg Stumbo of Prestonsburg and Bill Fairchild shot a 9-under-par to take first place. The winning team was sponsored by Jones, Pack and Associates CPA's in Prestonsburg.

Other Floyd Countyans taking part in the tournament were Johnny Ray Turner, Brad Hall, Edgar Cray, Tommy Hill, Keith Leslie, Dick Clark, Jeff Jones, Tim Hies and Steve Pack.

Following the golf competition, an outdoor picnic style steak dinner was provided by the "Moonlighters."

McKinney's hot bat helps Martin Cards overcome Reds

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

Nick Samons struck out eight batters and got some help from Dwight McKinney at the plate as the Martin Cardinals closed out their regular Little League season with a 12-6 win over the rival Martin Reds.

McKinney was impossible to get out as he collected four hits in three plate appearances. He had two singles and two triples while driving in four runs.

Samons, who worked the first four innings, picked up the win for the Cardinals and Jeremy Hayes hurtled the fifth and sixth frames.

Jesse Hall, who was the losing pitcher, was the first of a trio of pitchers used by the Reds. Hall went the first three innings being followed by Larry Mullins and Kevin Goodman.

Five local Little league teams to vie for District 7 Championship

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

While the Little League regular season may be over, the All-Star competition is just getting underway.

On Monday, July 5, the District 7 Area 2 Little League All-Star Tournament will get underway at Inez with the Harold-Allen-Prater (HAP) All-Stars facing an always tough Paintsville team. HAP is the defending district champion and will be a strong contender again this year. HAP will face Paintsville on Monday at 4 p.m.

In the second game on Monday the Beaver Creek South All-Stars will tangle with a good Morgan County team in a 6 p.m. start. The third game of the night features Magoffin County against host Martin County at 8 p.m.

The tournament resumes with Beaver Creek North squaring off against the winner of the HAP/Paintsville game on Tuesday at 6 p.m. Two Floyd County teams will lock horns in the second game on Tuesday as Wheelwright will face Prestonsburg at 8 p.m. to complete first round action.

The double elimination tournament continues throughout the week with the championship game scheduled for Tuesday July 15 at 6 p.m.

The winner of Area 2 faces the winner of Area 1 (Pikeville) for the right to advance to state competition later in July.

Each team will carry their win and lost record into the final series of play. If a team loses one game and still wins the tournament, they will carry that loss into the championship round.

All fans are urged to turn out and support the local teams as they try for a championship.

The winner advances to state play later in the month.

A Look At Sports

by Ed Taylor, Sports Editor

REMEMBERING BRANDON... Floyd County, especially the Wheelwright area, was struck with tragedy this past week when Brandon Holbrook was killed in an automobile accident.

All of us who knew Brandon knew that he was a thoughtful person that was always courteous when you met him.

Brandon played football, basketball and ran track at Wheelwright High School and was an exemplary student/athlete.

He won the EKMC 800-meter dash during their final meet of the season. He played football for Coach Donnie Daniels and junior varsity basketball for his father Dennis Holbrook. Coach Daniels sums up the feeling of many of us in remembering Brandon.

"If you were to describe him you would have to say that he was a person with a heart as big as his body," said the Wheelwright coach. "He was willing to give to those whether they were strangers or friends. Brandon was a very giving person."

"One thing we all will remember about him will be regardless of the situation he always was smiling. He always had a smile on his face."

"Brandon had a good outlook on life and he lived life to the fullest," continued Daniels. "He was a young person that had his priorities straight in life. He had his church (United Methodist Church in Wheelwright), his family and his friends."

Coach Daniels explained that next season a Brandon Holbrook Award would be presented to a male and female track and field participant in the county next season.

"Brandon knew no strangers," said Daniels. "He knew more people by just talking to them. I not only lost a good ball player but I lost a good friend as well."

The Wheelwright coach said that the football team at South Floyd will wear display a symbol on their helmets next season in memory of Brandon. His jersey will also be pulled out and not worn until after his class graduates in the appropriate year.

Also, at the new school a plaque will be hung in the lobby in memory of Brandon as well as a plant on display.

"I'm sure that Coach Daniels said it all in his statement and that many of us echo his same sentiments."

"I know that Dennis and Linda (his parents) have suffered a great loss and our heart and prayers go out to both of them. Words cannot be expressed that will take away the hurt they both feel at the time. They are both won people."

Justin Ray and Elmer Caudill were also passengers in the car that overturned at Bypro Justin is in a Lexington hospital and we understand that Elmer is home. To both of these young men we wish they a very speedy recovery and we will continue to mention them in our prayers.

Get well soon!

CONGRATULATIONS TO JONATHAN.

It was quite an accomplishment for 11-year old Jonathan Thornberry this past week end as he won the national intermediate tumbling events in St. Louis, Missouri (see story in sports section).

We're proud of you, Jonathan!

WE GET LETTERS... Seems like lately we are getting more and more letters concerning athletic events in the county and they mostly deal with the way leagues around the county are being run.

James Hall (Mudcreek Reds coach) and his wife Lynn writes in regard to Mudcreek Tigers coach Jerry Hamilton's remarks earlier concerning a forfeit game.

"I'd like to see this letter in regards to Mr. Terry Hamilton's letter concerning the forfeit ruled against the Reds in the Mudcreek Pee Wee League."

Mr. Hamilton is the Tigers coach and supposedly the league president (Terry's wife Joann contends that the league has no president). Seeing how he wants "to set the record straight" I think the whole situation should be exposed.

My team was scheduled to play the first game at 5:30 p.m. At 5:10 p.m. we had some rain and everyone that had arrived early including myself and Mr. Hamilton were forced to wait out the rain in our vehicles.

Moore's three hits send Wayland past McDowell

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

John Moore had a triple, double and a single and Matt Crawford hurled seven strong innings as the Wayland Babe Ruth team defeated a good McDowell team 8-3 this past Saturday at Stumbo Park.

Moore tripled and scored in the first. He doubled in the second and got a sixth-inning single and scored. Crawford allowed McDowell three runs but scattered the nine McDowell hits while striking out nine. He walked five batters.

Chris Moore suffered the setback, allowing all eight runs on nine hits.

Moore fanned six and walked one. Moore set the offensive stage for Wayland in the first inning when he tripled leading off. He scored on an error in left field off the bat of Todd Bingham. Crawford reached on an infielder's choice and both runners scored on a second left fielder's error.

Wayland plated four runs in the third for a 7-0 game. Crawford had an RBI double and Brad Allen scored Crawford with a base hit. With one out, Kyle Turner drilled a two-run single scoring Allen and Phillip Stone.

McDowell got on the scoreboard with a run in the third on a base hit by Terrance Mullins. The ball eluded left fielder Mike Sexton with Mullins ending up on third base. He scored on Chris Moore's sacrifice fly to center.

McDowell scored a lone run in the fifth to make it a 7-2 game. Chris Moore reached on a base hit but was erased on T.T. Pack's grounder to shortstop. Pack scored on Adam Coleman's RBI triple.

One run scored in the Wayland sixth when Moore collected his third hit of the game. Tim Bellamy singled and Moore scored on Bingham's base hit.

McDowell plated their final run in the sixth on a walk to Eric Cook and Mullins base hit. Mullins was nailed at the plate later trying to score.

Two runners reached for McDowell in the seventh when Pack and Coleman collected back-to-back singles. But both runners were left stranded.

McDowell stranded 10 base runners in the game and Wayland left five on base. McDowell had five errors and Wayland committed two.

Mullins, Pack and Coleman collected two hits each.

Crisp homers as Allen Astros win over Ivel Reds, 14-12

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

There were a combination of things that made the Allen Astros and Ivel Reds tournament game an interesting one.

The game had it all. Power hitting. Strategy. Rallies.

The Ivel Reds found it hard to contain Seth Crisp and Scotty Walls while all the time they were taking the bat out of Nathan Leslie's hands. Ivel elected not to pitch to the Astros clean-up hitter-intentionally passing him all four times that he came to the plate.

But Crisp and Walls, along with third baseman Jesse Isaac made the Reds pay for not paying attention to them.

Crisp hit a solo home run in the fourth inning, one of three hits and three RBIs. Walls had three hits, including a fourth inning triple and he drove in three runs. Isaac had a three-run double in the first inning, driving in three runs.

There were other stars like Dusty

Stephens who had a two-hit night for the Astros and an RBI. Alvin Reed scored three times and collected a second inning double.

The Reds scored six times in the fifth inning as 11 batters went to the plate to make the game interesting.

The Astros built what seemed to be a safe 14-4 lead and the mercy rule was about to go into effect.

The Reds avoided an abbreviated game by playing six runs in the fifth for a 14-10 game.

Miller had a three-run double in the inning for the Reds as they took advantage of some wildness by Leslie, who walked five batters and hit one.

Consecutive singles by Stephens and Deskins started the sixth for the Reds as they scored twice, threatening to tie the game. Stephens scored on Deskins' base hit. He came in to score on a ground out by Hall. Leslie got things together and got Swiger and Goble on strikes to end the threat and the game.

The Reds jumped out to a 2-0 lead on singles from Miller and Deskins, who scored on Hall's two-out triple. Allen went in front 4-2 after batting in the bottom of the first. The big, and only, hit in the inning was a bases-clearing double by Isaac.

Ivel did manage to catch the Astros in the top of the second inning on a leadoff triple by Swiger and a walk to Goble. Both runners scored.

The top of the lineup for the Astros made a lot of noise in the second as Alvin Reed doubled with one out, Crisp singled and Walls got a base hit that scored Reed. Ivel intentionally walked Leslie for the second time and the move paid off as the Reds escaped the inning with just two runs being scored.

Allen took command in the fourth with four hits, scoring eight times. Crisp had his solo home run in the fourth. Walls and Stephens had base hits with Brandon Jarrell driving home two runs with a single.

Miller suffered the loss for Ivel and Leslie was the winning pitcher.

Miller struck out three in the game while walking eight, four intentionally. Leslie struck out 11 in the game and walked seven while hitting one batter.

The win put Allen in the finals of the Harold-Allen-Prater Little League tournament. The Astros will be awaiting the winner of the Prater Creek-Mudcreek/Ivel game.

Ivel will play the winner of the Prater Creek Indians and Mud Creek Cubs game with the winner of that game facing Allen in the championship game Wednesday night.

Is he safe or out?
The photo tells it all. Or does it? Is Braves runner Micheal Reed out or safe? Did Brian Roberts have his foot on the base or not. Was the first base umpire lately accused or not? The answer is that Roberts did tag the base and lifted his foot before Reed arrived. (photo by Ed Taylor)

Betsy Layne edges Martin in Babe Ruth baseball

by EA Taylor
Sports Editor

Doug Keathley collected two hits, picked up two runs batted in and Craig Johnson went the distance as the Betsy Layne Babe Ruth team edged Martin 6-2 in action this past Saturday afternoon.

Johnson allowed two runs on seven hits while striking out seven. He did not issue a walk.

Kevin Robinson suffered the loss for Martin. Robinson worked seven innings allowing six runs on seven hits. He struck out 14 batters and walked three.

Keathley picked up both of his RBIs in the first inning with a single and collected his second hit in the fifth.

Rocky Newsome had two hits and an RBI for Betsy Layne. Marcus Hamilton was a perfect two-for-two at the plate.

Betsy Layne had taken a 3-0 lead with three runs in the first inning with Johnson, who reached on an error, scored on Lance Jones' base hit. Keathley then singled in the other two runs, Jones and Marcus Hamilton.

It was a 5-0 game after Betsy Layne batted in the second. Johnson reached on a two-out error, went to second on a wild pitch and scored on Newsome's RBI single. Newsome moved to third on two errors and scored the second run of the inning.

Martin collected but one hit through the first three innings against Johnson although they did put runners on in each frame. Shannon Farrell had a first inning single. John Scarberry walked in the second and Mike Stephens reached on an error in the third.

Betsy Layne got a leadoff single by Hamilton in the third inning and he came around to score on an error for a 6-0 game.

Robinson settled down over the final five innings and shut Betsy

Layne out on two hits.

Martin scored their two runs in the bottom of the sixth inning. Jason Bevin collected a one-out double and scored in Robinson's triple. John Scarberry's grounder was misplayed at shortstop and Robinson scored.

Robinson fanned the side in the seventh inning on his way to 14 whiffs.

Martin stranded eight base runners as they failed to come up with timely hits. They committed four errors in the game.

Betsy Layne left seven runners on base and had two errors.

Kaleb Yates had an extra-base hit in the game when he led off the fifth with a double. Yates was left stranded as Johnson fanned the next three batters.

Martin left two runners on base in the seventh when Greg Horne singled to open the inning and Wade Damron collected a two-out hit.

Stars come out Friday night at Johnson Central High School

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

The high school baseball season will have one more day—this Friday evening at 5:30 p.m. when all three 15th Region All-Star teams will see action at Johnson Central High School.

The region media recently picked their All-15th Region first, second and third teams and now arrangements have been made to present the talented group on the diamond.

The All-Star tournament is the effort of Paintsville Herald Sports Editor Noel Crum, who has worked endlessly in putting the program together.

Hopefully, in front of several college coaches that will be on hand to view the players, the players will once again be able to strut their stuff before the fans.

The first game will match the second All-Region team against the third team. The winner of that game will face the first All-Region team.

Pikeville coach Dave Thomas will coach the first team, assisted by coaches from Belfry and Sheldon Clark. Prestonsburg coach Russell Shepherd will lead the second team and Betsy Layne coach Junior Newsome will head up the third team.

All three teams will be strong contenders and the number of the team should not be a factor. If there is an edge, it will be in the pitching department as the likes of J.P. Blair (Pikeville), Morgan Cyrus (Paintsville), Don Montgomery (Paintsville), Kevin Varney (Belfry) and J.R. Melvin (Johnson Central) will be the pitching staff of the first team.

Ray Collins, who was named first team catcher, will not be present because of the call of the Marines. However, Barry Clark (Betsy Layne) will be at first base and Paintsville's Jon Holbrook will play at second base.

Shortstop for the first team will be anchored by Brad Tiller (Sheldon Clark) and Prestonsburg's Seth Hyden will play at third base.

The outfield will have three of the region's best in Barry Collins (Betsy Layne), Anthony Howell (Prestonsburg) and Jason K. Taylor (Johns Creek).

Shane Hensley (Belfry), Scott Anderson (Pikeville), Jesse Watts

(Sheldon Clark), Sean Damron (Prestonsburg) and Jesse McCarty (Johnson Central) will make up the pitching staff of the second team for Coach Russell.

Aaron Tucker (Prestonsburg) will catch for the second squad and Justin Harris (Pikeville) will play first base. Derrick Newsome (Betsy Layne) will see action at the second base position while shortstop will be played by Jason A. Taylor (Johns Creek), Todd Ward (Johnson Central) will play the hot corner.

Byron Dixon (Paintsville), Ashley Blanton (Paintsville) and Chris Bowlin (Johnson Central) will roam the outfield.

The third team will be highlighted by arms such as Danny Kidd (Phelps), Toby Vance (Allen Central), Alex Ward (Johnson Central), Bryan Conley (Magoffin County) and Craig Ratliff (Paintsville).

Mark Shortridge (Johnson Central) and Justin Hall (Elkhorn City) will share the catching duties.

Peyton Roberts (Pikeville) will play first for the third team. Brent Adams (Johnson Central) will play at second while Mark Carroll (Belfry) and Chris Potter (Betsy Layne) covers shortstop.

Bruce Justice (Pikeville) plays third base for the third team. Catching fly balls in the outfield will be Shannon Wright (Shelby Valley), Corey Reitz (Prestonsburg) and Jason Pinson (Sheldon Clark).

The second game will begin at approximately 8 p.m. and admission is $2 for adults and $1 per student.

Each player will receive a All-15th Region t-shirt and plaques will be presented to the Coach of the Year as well as Player of the Year.

All fans are urged to come out and see past and future stars in action.

Deadline draws near for Bluegrass State Games

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

Floyd Countians that are planning on entering one of the events of this year's Bluegrass State Games had better hurry because the deadline for some events is fast approaching in the next two weeks.

Registrations for entering soccer and softball must be turned in by June 25, according to a release from the Bluegrass State Games executive director Shirley R. Watts.

Soccer and softball are the Games' two most popular team sports. Last year 5,920 persons participated in softball and 3,920 participated in soccer.

The ninth annual Bluegrass State Games will be held July 23, 24 and 25 in Lexington. The Games will involve 25 sports including three new ones—Karate, racquetball and darts.

The other early deadline for registration is June 30. This is the deadline for diving, equestrian (dressage and combined test), gymnastics, tennis, volleyball and three categories of shooting (sporting, regional highpower and outdoor small bore). These three categories of shooting will be held in Owensboro July 17 and 18.

July 9 is the deadline for entering the remaining sports. These are archery, three-on-three basketball, canoeing/kayaking, chess, croquet, cycling, darts, equestrian (hunter and saddle seat), golf, horseshoes, karate, racquetball, other shooting events, swimming, table tennis, track and field and wrestling. Regional qualifying rounds for bowling already have been played.

The Bluegrass State Games is open to persons of almost all ages and skill levels. Participants come from all walks of life and have ranged in age from 2 to 90.

Last year, 18,553 persons from 109 counties participated in the Games. As one of 41 state games nationwide, the Bluegrass State Games is already ranked in the top six as participation.

Over 120 athletes from Floyd County took part in last year's Bluegrass State Games with several participating in track and field. The county had six softball teams registered as well as many in archery.

The largest county turnout came from Fayette County with 2,527 participants.

Booklets and registration forms may be obtained at the Floyd County Times in Prestonsburg or at SuperAmerica stores.

For further information on the Games call 1-800-722-BGSG.

The Bluegrass State Games is sponsored by Valvoline Inc. and Coca-Cola. The Games is organized by the Lexington-Fayette Urban County Government with the assistance of many volunteers.

Disadvantaged youths to participate in annual Bluegrass State Games

One hundred disadvantaged youths will be able to participate in the 1993 Bluegrass State Games individual sports without paying entry fees, thanks to founding sponsors Valvoline Oil Inc. and Coca-Cola.

The "Bluegrass State Games Participation Scholarship" is a pilot program which will begin in Fayette county this year. Sponsors hope to extend the program to benefit other children throughout the state next year, according to Carl Frey, Chairman of the Board of Directors of Bluegrass State Games and Senior Vice President for External Affairs for Valvoline Oil Inc., who made the announcement last week at the Bluegrass State Games Media Day at Kearney Hill Links in Lexington.

"It is exciting to be able to provide a means for financially disadvantaged youths to participate in the Games," Frey said. "Promoting all amateur athletes across the state is what the Bluegrass State Games is all about."

According to Lexington Mayor Pam Miller, this program will enable more of Lexington's, as well as the rest of the states, amateur athletes to display their talents.

"Lexington is lucky to have such supportive, active corporate citizens," Miller said. "This truly makes the Bluegrass State Games better than ever."

As a participant in the Bluegrass State Games, the children will receive free Bluegrass State Games t-shirts, attend the opening ceremonies picnic with their families and compete for bronze, silver and gold medals.

Children who wish to participate in the Games but can not afford it may apply in person, accompanied by a parent, at Douglass and Gainesway parks. Playground supervisors are at the parks between the hours of noon and 5 p.m. and 6 p.m. to 9 p.m. and will have forms and additional information.

Harold Sharks swim past Garrett in mercy win, 20-10

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

The Harold Sharks continue to hold on to first place in the Floyd County Babe Ruth standings as they had an easy time against Garrett Saturday afternoon at Stumbo Park.

The Sharks posted a 20-10 mercy victory over Garrett, scoring seven runs in the third inning for a 13-4 lead. But the Sharks had only one base hit in the frame and that came off the bat of Chris Holbrook. Gary Hunter, who started the game for Garrett, walked four batters and hit one in the inning. Garrett committed two errors in the frame as 12 men batted.

Harold took a 3-0 lead in the first without the benefit of a base hit. Back-to-back walks to Chad Case and Brad Kidd opened the gates. A one-out error at short and then an error at second base let the three runs score.

Garrett took a 4-3 lead with four in their half of the first. Shawn Rose, on the mound for the Sharks, gave up a leadoff single to Mike Pack before retiring Derrick Conler and Gary Hunter on strikes. But he proceeded to walk Larry Hunter and Brady Scott to load the bases. Two consecutive errors on Harold's second baseman allowed the four runs to score.

Consecutive singles by Holbrook and Matt Kidd to open the second for Harold led to three runs and a 6-4 Sharks lead.

Garrett plated three in the bottom of the second to assume a 7-6 advantage. Three Harold errors lead the way for the scoring. All runs were unearned.

It was in the third that Harold took advantage of Hunter's wildness and scored seven times. The first four batters reached for the Sharks on consecutive walks to Craig Hamilton and Mark Tackett.

Holbrook singled to load the bases. A walk, wild pitches and a hit batsman accounted for the Sharks' runs. Jerry Combs came on in relief of Hunter and got the side out.

Garrett put their first two batters on base in the third inning with Alan Hicks opening the inning with a double. Johnny Case singled with Hicks stopping at third. Rose then bore down and struck out the next three batters, leaving the two base runners stranded.

Willie Meade singled in the fourth and scored for Harold, making it a 14-7 contest. Garrett came back with three in the fifth as Combs and Larry Hunter had back-to-back doubles.

Harold scored four in the fifth with two runs scoring on a triple by Meade and pushed home two in the sixth for the mercy win.

Hunter was the losing pitcher, working 2 1/3 innings. He allowed 11 runs on two hits and walked four while striking out no one. Combs went 3 2/3 giving up nine runs on five hits. He walked one and struck out one.

Rose went the distance for Harold, striking out 12 batters. He issued five bases on balls while giving up 10 runs on eight hits.

Harold committed five errors in the game while Garrett was guilty of four.

At 5:30 (times are exact due to the fact that I was keeping a close eye on my watch since I had to be at Allen for a Little League game at 6:30), it was yet undecided if the field was playable. The field had been marked off before the rain but no attempt was ever made after the rain to ditch the water or fill the puddles with sand.

Due to the rain many parents thought the game was cancelled. The opposing team, the Indians, had all their players present because it was their turn to sell at the concession stand and they needed to arrive earlier than usual to set up.

However, I had eight players present. One of the parents volunteered to run and get our ninth player to avoid a forfeit.

At 5:50 p.m. (five minutes after the 15 minute grace period), he arrived. The Indians coach refused to play the game. Before the second game, between Mr. Hamilton's team and the Braves, was played, sand was brought in to cover water down the first base line and at home plate.

The second game was scheduled to start at 6:30 p.m. and the first pitch was thrown from the mound at 6:55 p.m. This game was five minutes later than the first which was the "forfeited game."

When we asked Mr. Hamilton how our game could be ruled a forfeit when the field had to have work done on it before the second game was played he assured us, in the presence of his wife who agreed, that it could not be a forfeit.

He said, "It could not be a forfeit. Did you hear me say it was a forfeit?"

The coaches all got together to discuss the situation at the next game. One coach, who was not present that day, asked Mr. Hamilton if his team (the Tigers) had been scheduled to play the first game would he have done so with the field in the condition it was in. Mr. Hamilton said yes. Then why the sand? He did not play until the field was worked on.

In regards to his letter, I agree that "the Tigers are in no way responsible for the Reds forfeiting to the Indians." The vote continued with the results as follows.

"I voted no forfeit. The Smurfs and Indians coaches voted for the forfeit. The Braves coach walked away from the vote and told Mr. Hamilton, "I'll vote the way you do, Terry."

A forfeit was ruled.

I have coached in the Mudcreek Pee Wee League for the last six years. Numerous changes have been made but the one thing you count on is that the games never start on time. Not once in the last six years has any team forfeited a game due to lack of players.

During the end of the season trophy presentation, you can imagine the shock when our supposedly league president gives two third place trophies out. One to a team with a 8-7 record and one to his team with a 7-7 record. Especially since the 8-7 team was treated like fourth place finishers with their names being called after the 7-7 record team and their pictures being taken in the fourth place position behind the 7-7 record team.

Yes, everyone sure does like to win and it's too bad that "the kids" means "my kids" and not "all kids" in this league.

Thanks Ed for letting me clear this up. Now the record is straight.

Signed James E. Hall, Reds coach. Hall stated also that his team may not be allowed to play in the league tournament that started Friday due to the fact that the Reds refused to put in money for trophies.

Hall stated that he informed the league that because the way the trophies were handled last year that the Reds would purchase their own trophies and have them available for the presentation.

"Mr. Hamilton said that the matter would have to be voted on by the coaches," said Hall. "Here we go again!"

I attended the tie breaking playoff game between the Tigers and Braves last Thursday at the John M. Stumbo school.

I really appreciated the effort the kids put forth on the field and the close game was a joy to watch. But I didn't find it very entertaining to watch coaches and fans getting upset with one another and the riding of the umpires who volunteered their time to see that the game was played.

I feel that the Mudcreek Pee Wee League, before the first pitch is thrown next season, get together and in unity elect themselves a recognized league president that will oversee the league rules, affairs and presentation. The man in charge should be one that does not coach a team in the league nor has any children taking part.

Only then will there be an end to the confusion that seems to reign in the league.

Perhaps the most disappointing factor was the way some of these very young kids picked up on the arguing between coaches and fans. I personally hate to see a game where everyone something is not called their way a coach or fan has to stop play and argue about it.

The five inning game could have been played in less than an hour but because of some egos the game took two hours.

As I have stated before, coaches have the responsibility to be an influence in a child's life during the summer months. These young kids watch their coaches and some even try to pick up on what he is doing and it carries on to the field.

I know, I was there and I see it. Until Friday, good sports everyone and be good sports!

My deepest appreciation is extended to the following businesses or their generous donations to the St. Jude's Bike-A-Thon held on June 11 at the Stumbo Park: J.C. Penney, Ky. Oil & Refinery, Hall Funeral Home, Tackett Furniture, Pikeville Wal-mart, K-mart, Roger Tackett, DMD, Samon's Service Station, McDonald's, Rax, Pizza Hut, Fazolis, Hobert's Pizzeria, Allen Family Restaurant, Dairy Cheer, Wendy's, Dairy Queen, Food City, Pic Pac, Velocity, Hometown IGA, Sav-More, WDOC, WPRG, WMDJ, Mike Auxier, Floyd County Times, Hall-Mart, Brock McVey, Tom's Potato Chips, and a special thanks to all the participants and their sponsors.

fourth inning when the Cardinals struck for six runs in the inning. The big inning quickly changed Samons from a losing pitcher to a winner.

A three-run fifth made it 9-2 before the Reds made it close with four in their half of the fifth. The Cards added three more in the sixth and the Reds went out in order in their half of the inning.

Samons had a triple for the Cardinals in the third inning but was left stranded. McKinney had his two triples in the fifth and sixth innings when the Cardinals scored three times. Hayes tripled in the fourth.

Goodman had the only extra-base hit for the Reds—a fifth-inning triple.

Tim Davis and Hayes each had three runs batted in. Hayes' came on a bases-loaded triple in the fourth. Josh Bailey had a fourth-inning double for the Cards.

Goodman drove in three runs for the Reds. Henry Napier had three hits for the Reds in the loss. Chris Damron collected third and fifth inning singles.

READERS (RIGHT) WRITE 'N THINGS.

Fascinating ... some of the letters I receive.

Dr. James Wilson, Brownsville. A portion of a letter he penned following the Final Four came to mind recently when two things happened.

1. Pitino accepted a contract extension at UK.
2. An I.A. Times columnist wrote: "...chances of Rick Pitino serving the full length of his new 7-year contract are about the same as Jamal Mashburn renouncing his draft eligibility and returning to Lexington for his senior year: zilch and less than zilch."

Wilson letter written in April ... the urgent question many are asking, "Will Pitino stay?" I am betting he won't, but hoping he will. After another season or two, he will truck his belongings back east. Pitino likes the N.Y. scene, the atmosphere at Madison Square Garden, the publicity, the Italian food he enjoys. And after all, that is his home.

"We all want to go home again, but as Thomas Wolfe said, 'you can't go home again.' However, Rod McKuen said, 'you can't go home again on a train, but you can go home again on the trains of your thought.'"

Wilson concludes, however: "I think you can safely bet that next year's basketball season began for Coach Pitino exactly one day after the Wildcats returned to Lexington (from New Orleans). He is already getting his ducks in line for the next shoot out."

COMMENT: Thank you very much for writing.

Carl Bible (Milford Oh. writes: "I'm glad Bernadette Locke didn't accept the promotion to full-time assistant. Can you picture her recruiting the mean streets of inner cities and attending various summer camps? She would be the laughing stock of the coaching fraternity. She should maintain her status as a poor man's Mary Fenlon."

COMMENT: Summer camp scene? I've been there and Locke's husband wouldn't like it.

Bible adds: "Apparently Rick Pitino has ticked somebody off who is close to (prop star) Felipe Lopez as evidenced by fact that UK isn't on his list."

COMMENT II: Thanks for writing.

Brent Coffman of E'town writes: "Regarding the upcoming NBA draft, it seems to me (Orlando) Magic should trade down to Golden State (No. 1 for No. 3). The Warriors get Shawn Bradley ... Philadelphia will take Chris Webber since 76ers have a small forward in Clarence Weatherspoon; Orlando still gets its man, Jamal Mashburn, plus an additional pick later in the draft."

"The team Mash goes to is also important to his fans. Orlando is a team of interest with a marquee player, Shaquille O'Neal, that should have several TV appearances (next season).

"Television stations in Lexington should get their (commercials) tapes ready now. Mash drinking a Coke, milk, whatever, saying 'I'm going to Disney World.'"

Footnote: Coffman wants to know if anyone has a video tape of the 1990 UOL-UCI-A game. His address is 212 Village Dr., E'town, 42701.

COMMENT: Impressive how closely Coffman's view on the draft and Mashburn—mailed June 4—parallels Pitino's June 14 assessment.

SUMMER-BIG BLUE LINE

I am amused (and amazed) when a fan asks 'why do you write about basketball in the middle of summer time?'

When Rick Pitino (and Ralph Hackett) set up at Osmore Center in Louisville on a Monday night (June 14) to do a Big Blue Line and the place was packed, well... Too, WAVE-TV was knee-deep in advertisers willing to sponsor the show live.

I must say, just seeing faces in the crowd makes the telecast worthwhile. Amazing.

LSU coach Dale Brown is Preacher Man to college hoops, but UK's coach is the pied piper.

The guy could open a cult. Some Pitino(s) gleaned from e

Summer Big Blue Line.

UK's 1993-94 schedule:

"We have toughened it to humble ourselves because right now our players are feeling pretty good about themselves."

On Jamal Mashburn and the NBA draft.

"If I were picking for Orlando, Chris Webber would not be my choice. Partly because you already have Shaquille (O'Neal) inside, I would choose Jamal Mashburn or Anfernee Hardaway."

Pitino thinks Mashburn will go to "Orlando or Golden State."

On Mashburn's bonus from Fla. as a probable as part of his $7 million contract.

"I want to see Jamal get into that (tiny) car."

On Travis Ford.

"The Michigan game showed him that he's going to have to dribble the ball by people."

On recruiting next season.

"We're going to be looking for a point guard, a small forward or wing player and perhaps a big man. We don't need a power forward or a shooting guard." (See recruiting segment).

On U. Washington transfer Mark Pope.

"Think of a shooting version of Jared Prickett."

On fans fretting over Pitino leaving UK.

"Some people want to look three or four years down the road. We need to enjoy today, the next game. Right now we have something great going at the University of Kentucky. That's the important thing."

On projections for the '93-94 season:

"I think we'll have the same type season as last year. We would like to anyway in the sense of peaking at the right time."

KY. HALL OF FAME

The KHSAA Hall of Fame announced 18 inductees into the Hall next spring.

Among them it is personally gratifying to see:

• Hugh Durham, The Eastern High School grad has distinguished himself at Florida State and currently at Georgia. A humorist second to none among SEC coaches.

• Howard Beth of Marshall Co. girls basketball program.

• Darel Carrier who starred at Bristol High, Western Ky. U and the ABA Colonels.

• Ann Karrick of Montgomery County who organized the Kentucky Girls' Sports Association.

• Bob Mulcahy who not only coached Seneca to two state basketball titles, but has made major contributions to sports in the Commonwealth.

• Ray Vencil, who not only coached Richmond Madison and E'town High to Sweet 16 championship games, but was one of the profession's best tactician/motivators.

• George T. Taylor, legendary coach at Central City High School who passed away at 84 in 1996.

Incredibles? In 17 seasons Taylor's Golden Flashes won 439 times out of 536 games, 82 per cent. Central City won 14 district titles and eight regionals, and won 20 or more games in 16 straight seasons.

Perhaps more important are these two special items.

• "He was a strict disciplinarian. Lots of boys may not have finished high school if Mr. Taylor hadn't gotten them involved in basketball."

Central City businessman Bob Lawton told the Times-Argus.

• Richard Deavers, sports editor of the newspaper in Central City, has campaigned tirelessly to bring recognition to Coaches Taylor, Delmas Gish and others from Central City's tradition-rich sports programs.

What better tribute than these?

Footnote: Bad move the Hall of Fame selectors made, choosing one of its active committeemen for induction.

Earl Cox is a friend of mine, but there are many Kentuckians of far less influence but with equal or better credentials who deserve induction first.

PARTING SHOT

Chris Webber still hears about the timeout he called in the NCAA championship game, but the former Michigan star handles it good naturedly.

"My father got 'Time Out' on his license plate," Webber told a reporter recently. "He'll call my answering machine screaming, 'You have no timeouts, baby!' With people like that, it's sort of easy to get over it."

And so it goes.

Garrett Pirates North Division champs

Rodney Bentley hurled three strong innings and Wes Howard pitched the final three as the duo combined for a two-hitter and an 8-5 win over the Wayland Dodgers.

The two teams met Saturday in a special playoff game to determine the champion of the North Division of the Beaver Creek Little League.

Bentley worked the first two frames, having no problems. However, Wayland came back and just missed tying the game in the bottom of third inning when they scored all five of their runs.

The Pirates owned a 6-0 lead as Wayland came to bat in the bottom of the third. Errors plagued the Pirates as they misplayed the ball allowing the five runs to score. Garrett committed four miscues in the inning.

Brian Crawford had a two run double in the inning and Eric Casbolt drove in a run.

Garrett went up 6-0 with a single run in the second and five in the top of the third. Bentley walked and stole second in the second inning and scored on an error on Crawford.

Five runs scored in the third for a 6-0 lead for the Pirates. Travis Francis got a leadoff base hit and Josh Clark walked. After Ryan Mannis fanned, Johnny Paige drilled an RBI single and Brandon Murrell singled home a run in the inning. A walk to Ryan Owens set up Wes Howard's two-run single.

Howard replaced Bentley on the mound for the Pirates and he did not allow a hit over the final three innings. The only runner to reach base against Howard was Crawford, who walked in the fourth. Howard retired the final seven batters he faced in the game.

Crawford took the loss for Wayland in going the distance. He allowed eight runs on six hits. He had 11 strikeouts in the game and he issued six walks.

Paige collected three hits for Garrett and Howard drove in two runs.

The Dodgers will play the winner of the Martin Blue Jays and Martin Reds game on Tuesday in the league tournament that got underway Monday evening at Minnie and Martin. Garrett played the Garrett Cubs.

P'burg Cubs win fourth straight title

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

Mike Castle's Prestonsburg Cubs rang up another league championship as they run up the Prestonsburg Yankees in a 12-1 mercy win last weekend at Archer Park.

For the Cubs, it was their fourth consecutive title win in the local league. The Cubs finished the season with a 12-2 record.

"We lost to the Yankees the first of the year," said Cub assistant Bobby Hackworth. "We had lost to them earlier in the season."

The two clubs came into the game with Bobby Shepherd's Yankees needing a win to actually tie for first place. The Cubs were 11-2 and the Yankees stood at 10-3. A Yankee victory would have given them the league title by virtue of having beaten the Cubs twice.

However, that wasn't to be as Grant Castle scattered five Yankee hits en route to the 12-1 win. Castle struck out six batters while walking two.

Gabe Shepherd started on the mound for the Yankees. Shepherd fanned eight batters in the contest but ended up walking eight—mistakes came back to haunt him. The game was a four-inning affair.

The Cubs scored six times in the second inning and plated four in the third for the 12-0 lead. The Yanks manufactured their lone run in the fourth.

It was 2-0 after the Cubs batted in the first. Neil Fannin and Dustin Crisp scored for the Cubs. Fannin opened the game with a double and both runners scored on Castle's two-run double.

Fannin collected his second double in as many innings when he doubled home two runs in the second. Castle then hit a three-run home run that scored Fannin and Crisp ahead of him.

Four consecutive one-out walks in the third, along with Eric Price's two-run single highlighted the four-run inning. Castle had an RBI double in the inning.

Eric Fleming led off the Yankees fourth against Castle with a double. Roy Sturgill, who entered the game in the fourth, singled and Fleming scored on Brook Sinner's base hit to avoid the shutout.

The Yankees placed three players on the all-star team. Included in the selection were Fleming, Kyle Shepherd and Gabriel Shepherd.

For the Cubs Neil Fannin, Dustin Crisp, Castle and Eric Price were named. Chris Prater was chosen as an alternate.

Prestonsburg Rangers slay Giants 32-2 to end season

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

After a humiliating 19-2 loss to the Prestonsburg Indians Tuesday night, the Prestonsburg Rangers took out their frustrations on the Prestonsburg Giants as they knocked off the Giants 32-2 to end the season 9-5.

Sting in hand, the Rangers pounded out 15 hits while limiting the Giants to only two behind the pitching of Drew Brown. Brown gave up two runs on two hits and he struck out eight while walking 10. Eddie Gardner suffered the setback for the Giants. Gardner walked 20 batters in the game.

The Rangers struck for 15 runs in the third inning as 18 batters went to the plate. The Rangers collected five hits in the inning but Gardner walked 10 batters.

In the first for the Rangers, Todd Kidd singled and stole second where he scored on Kalen Harris' base hit. Brown walked to load the bases, but Brian Bowling's pop fly to second scored May who tagged up on the play. Harris and Brown stole home to make it a 4-0 game.

An error by Harris in an attempt to pick off J.T. Absher at first base resulted in the Giants first run for a 1-0 game.

The Rangers made it 8-1 with four in the second. Brown drew a bases loaded walk to score Josh Shepherd. Bowling then cleared the bases with a triple.

Ray Bays singled with the bases loaded to score John Absher with the Giants final run in the second inning.

The Rangers added nine runs in the fourth inning on seven hits and four walks. All nine runs scored with two out.

The Giants collected only the two hits. One was a third inning double by Gardner.

Brown, Bowling and Robert Spradlin doubled for the Rangers. Bowling added a triple in the second and Jon May had a third inning triple.

Todd Kidd was a perfect four-for-four from the plate with five runs batted in. Bowling had three hits for a perfect plate appearance. He had three RBIs.

May finished with four runs batted in on two hits. Harris had two hits and two RBIs.

Ask Dr. Bubba

Editor's note: Dr. Bubba is not licensed, practicing therapist, but holds doctorates in analytical psychology and the prestigious International Correspondence School. Dr. Bubba's latest novel is an updated adaptation of the "Wizard of Oz" fable in which Dr. Bubba himself is transported to a magical kingdom and attacked by flying possums after a tornado sweeps his home away. The book, "Twisters & Trailer Parks & Tiny, Tiny People," will be available from BubbaPress later this year.

Dear Dr. Bubba: Last week, I thought de end of de world, for me, had finally come. It all began when I wuz checkin' into my hotel at Hylton Head in North Carolina. Ther cler, a short, scrawny and swarthy little weasel, asked from de sied of his mouth, "How many in your party?"

Well, what was I to say, Dr. Bubba? I mean, I wuz all alone, but hey, my reputation wuz on de line. So I says to de weasel, "One, possibly two..." The weasel didn't buy it. He dropped his pen and leaned back, giving me de ey. And just when I knew I wuz had, up steps dis drop-dead-good-looking blonde dame. She looks da weasel in his one good eye and syad, in a high-pitched Brooklyn whine, "I'm wit' him."

What could I say, Dr. Bubba? I mean, da dame just touched my hand and fired my toenails. Dis wuz chemistry de third kind. I couldn't say no. Every cell of my body fell for da woman like a ton-o-bricks. Well, let me tell you, one hour later, and it felt like an eternity, dis fatsoed, half-wit midget breaks down da door screaming, "Watcha doin' wit' my wife?!" I tell you, Dr. Bubba, I taught I wuz a goner, but guess what, it wuz all a case of misidentification. Da blonde wuzn't married to da midget after all. His wife was across de hal wit' da weasel.

And da blonde had mistook me for some CIA guy returning from Argentina. She said it wuz da way I had tied my shoe laces or something like that. Anyway, Bubba, it wuz one heckuva vacation. Now about next year. Do you think I should go back to Hylton Head or just camp out at Jenny Wiley Lake and dream of da blonde? Tuckered on Toler

Dear Tuckered: That's quite an imagination ya got yer self there, pal, only we all know that HILTON Head is SOUTH Carolina. Besides that, from the sounds o' things, I figger that any gal what'd hook up with you prob'ly has an air valve. This seems ta be a purty pitiful plea for attention. On the other hand, ya got quite a way with words. Ya oughta write one o' them there Harlequin Romances. Ya'd make a fortune an' then the chicks'd FLOCK around ya. In the meantime, ya might really consider gettin' outta the house more often. Head on down ta the lake fer awhile. An' bring that blonde. She'll make a great flotation device.

Dear Dr. Bubba: Please help. My arrogant, conceited, backstabbing worm of a boss just fired me for no good reason other than the fact that his nephew wanted my job which, by the way, I do very well. Unfortunately, I told my boss exactly what I thought of him when he fired me, so now he's doing everything in his power to keep me from getting another job. What should I do? Jobless in Jackson

Dear Jobless: I understand the feelin' o' pain an' betrayal that ya must be goin' through. However, these negative emotions're just gonna catch up inside an' they'll project themselves into every aspect o' yer everyday life, includin' job interviews. Ya've gotta forgive yer boss for the displeasable way he treated ya so that ya can go on in life an' become a better person and, as a result, a better perspective employee. If that don't work, go up ta the bum's office, fake an accident an' then sue his sorry butt for ever yerbin' he's worth an' live the rest o' yer unemployed days in the lap o' luxury.

That's all for today, folks. Write ta me, Dr. Bubba, c/o The Floyd County Times.

After retirement:

Ferguson's zeal for Wheelwright remains

by Cindy Mullins
Contributing Writer

Mention politics anywhere on the Left Elmer Ferguson of Floyd County and the name Elmer Ferguson inevitably comes up.

Now retired, Ferguson, 76, still resides in his hometown of Wheelwright, a city in which he served as mayor for over 25 years.

The May '93 primary allowed him opportunity to reflect on his extensive political career and the town he proudly calls "a nationally-known model coal town."

Though Wheelwright was sparsely-populated before the coal company came, the Inland Steel company, a Chicago-based surface mining company, gets the credit as being the bloodstream of the town in Ferguson's reverie. "They owned the town. They provided the goods and services; grocery and dry goods stores, doctors, dentists, soda fountain and theatre. The town even had a combination restaurant / rooms-forrent building called the Club House.

"We were a self-supporting town. We had the very first municipal swimming pool in Floyd County, complete with a nine-hole golf course."

The Inland Steel Company left the area around 1966 when a Holden, West Virginia-based mining company called Inland Creek Coal took the stem in the town.

"They weren't interested in maintaining the town, just the coal," Ferguson remembers. "I'll always see that as the gradual fade of the town's economy and I hold it against Inland Steel when they left, they should've given the people the opportunity to purchase land and housing for themselves. They would have kept it going," he said.

By the time Inland Steel pulled out of Wheelwright, Ferguson, who graduated from Caney College in 1938 with a degree in political science, had already held the mayoral office since the earlier part of that decade. He was appointed by the city-council in the early 60's and re-elected thereafter for over 25 years, until 1983.

His political clock rising, along with the personal savvy he acquired with age and through classes in corporate and municipal law at the University of Kentucky, gave Ferguson just the ability he needed for one of his greatest challenges as mayor: dealing with a man named Gordon Brown and his Florida real estate company, Mountain Investment. The company bought housing and utility rights to Wheelwright when Inland Creek Coal left in the 70's.

"When I first took over as mayor, we had no fire truck that worked, no police car and no money in the treasury. After calling a town meeting — everyone would attend in those days — I told 'em I'd auction their belongings off it I had to, but we needed the money and they needed to pay their taxes."

The money came, then federal funding (based on population) rolled in. Coal severance also began adding up and the town was able to progress and upgrade itself at a rapid rate.

Ferguson's list of office achievements is endless. The rising treasury led to better salaries for the town's employees. His finesse at receiving grants lead Gordon Brown of Mountain Investment to continue to lobby for grants in places like Georgia and Washington; but Brown "only used Wheelwright as a tax write-off," Ferguson said. "He didn't care to upgrade things here. Wheelwright was one big non-profit organization to him that flashed dollar signs behind his eyelids. I knew this, so I used it to our advantage. I told him I might go, but I wanted the town to get something off it did.

"It was almost like a monopoly game, that conversation. The town's sewage and water systems were already ours, due to the mines. Brown wouldn't let loose of the gas rights — they were his revenue. However, after all was said and done, I was planning a couple of lobbying trips, and the city of Wheelwright had acquired city hall, a church and a building to be converted to a youth center.

"I guess the coup de grace with Brown and I came after I had contacted Alice Lloyd College about a possible deal with them in the 70's, then Caney College. They had just received a grant for expansion and I saw this had wonderful rejuvenative possibilities for the town. This would put Wheelwright 'on the map.'"

"We planned to do a lot — a hundred houses, the club house and our swimming facility for the college personnel, and buses would run twice a day between here and Caney. They were very interested. But when the paperwork time came, Brown jacked the prices up so far that he did us out of our last big chance. He just didn't care if our town thrived. I refused to lobby for him after that."

Mountain Investment left Wheelwright not long after this occurred. Brown even went so far as to try and have Ferguson removed from office after he went back to Florida, but to no avail. By this time, Ferguson's savvy had added up in the town. He got monies to renovate the swimming pool, had donated the old youth center building to the Senior Citizens' Organization, had courted Dr. Ira Potter into building a new health-care clinic in town instead of Virgie, and had obtained a grant for a housing development in the town — what is today Brianhams Heights.

Behind the scenes in Ferguson's life, though, there was tragedy. He resigned from office for a time when his wife and the mother of his three daughters passed away in 1977. Hazel Blair Ferguson had patiently stood at her husband's side while he fulfilled his political duties, sometimes seeing him two evenings a week. The whole of Ferguson's family believed in him and his passion for the town.

Ferguson ran again and was elected mayor in the latter part of the 70's. Retiring from the coal industry in 1980 after 44 years of service, he remarried and watched as his three daughters graduated college and went on to serve the communities in which they lived: Amber, the oldest, is now a manager of a Cincinnati recording studio; Debbie is a library coordinator for the Jefferson County School System; and Cathy, the youngest, is a registered nurse.

Today, Ferguson and his wife Edna remain low-key. After holding the mayoral office for a quarter century and having himself named to various area educational boards and committees, he now sits back and watches political elections from the spectator position.

"With the right kind of government in our town — people with education and vision — our town can improve. The new prison will help generate revenue. Maybe it can entice other programs here if the right kinds of people are at the helm. Even today, I'll do all I can to help this town. I love it here," he said with a smile. "But," he quickly added, "I won't seek public office again myself."

Friend of the people

Elmer Ferguson is pictured with some of the awards he has received for his service to Wheelwright and Eastern Kentucky. He is one of the few to have achieved a dual Kentucky Colonelcy (one from a Democratic governor and one from a Republican). He also proudly displays a plaque from the African-American population of the town for his 25 years of service to the City of Wheelwright.

LOOK! SEE! APPRECIATE!

"She sweeps with many-colored blooms. / And leaves the shreds behind; / Oh, housewife in the evening west, / Come back and dust the pond!"

The lines by Emily Dickenson describing a brilliant sunset came to mind as my wife Wilma and I sat in our car at Paintsville Lake the other evening and were treated to a dazzling spectacle, the beauty of which could never be matched in verse — nor prose either, for that matter.

It had rained earlier in the day and some large billowy clouds were hanging high and heavy in the north. The atmosphere was such that the sun appeared as bright (yet faded enough that we could look at it comfortably) reddish-orange orb as it retired for the day and bedded down in the soft tops on the opposite side of the lake. The streak of color on the water look as if it could have been drawn with a ruler until it was smudged by a water skier and then a swimming duck with a green head.

It was truly a scene that artists live for; one of those "hey, this is God, and I'm still in charge" kind of sunsets. Wow!

You mean there's still some things in Eastern Kentucky worth seeing? Do you suppose, that just maybe... someone from somewhere else might enjoy seeing them too? Try to imagine yourself as a first-time visitor to the area. Imagine getting, for the first time, a whiff of honey suckle, or your first taste of a juicy, fresh-picked blackberry or even a sun-ripened pawpaw. Imagine leaving the smoke-filled North and finding yourself at such a sunset as we experienced at Paintsville Lake. Imagine experiencing, for the first time, these hills with which we surround ourselves — but seldom see. Of course, they're less majestic than the Rockies and less dense and scenic than the nearby Smokies, but they do offer a unique and colorful view — despite the efforts of some to destroy, deface and otherwise maim their green lushness.

And speaking of such abuse, if the actual physical scarring we've had to endure weren't enough, we're also still having to contend with attacks against our positive sides by writers who continue to insist on painting word pictures that portray nothing but our area's ugly aspects. (I don't think I can stand another reference to a Clorox bottle as an Eastern Kentucky duck, or to a tree that grows disposable diapers.)

Before even we start believing that we really don't have anything to offer anybody, maybe we need a little course in appreciation.

I'm not for a minute suggesting we ignore and accept the mistreatment of our environment without protest, but while we're protesting, neither do we need to cheat ourselves I'm not advocating we all go around chasing sunsets, but I do think we need to make the effort to look and to see.

I wouldn't be surprised if when we attempt to perfect ourselves as it regards opening our eyes, we'll start to realize that, despite what others say, we still have a few things worth seeing.

"CORRECTION"

First of all, from the comments about one particular word in last week's column I have to explain my theory of what happened.

In doing so, I'll use one of Scott Perry's words, "Inadvertently" an "S" was deleted from the word daughter. Because of this many of you along with my oldest daughter thought I was being cruel to say this space would be blank if it weren't for my daughter, which was supposed to have read "daughters."

Mistakes happen and sometimes feelings are hurt. Sometimes people think less of us when, in reality, something as simple as omitting an "S" from a word can cause turmoil.

Kim Frasure's face was blank when she read it and some of you readers sure didn't hesitate to let me know how you felt. Thank you. I'm glad you noticed.

But I would never not include both my daughters in a comment such as last week's. It was simply an "S" left off.

TRANSIENTS

Anyone out there have one of these living under your roof? Sure you do and so do we. It's a child going through those darn mixed up emotions, feelings and growing pains they don't fully understand and literally drive parents, along with teachers, nuts.

The good of "not a child any longer, but an adult by no means" syndrome. By looks, they pass for an adult, but by actions, well, one day or (let's say one minute) they may act like an adult and the next they're stamping their feet and crying buckets because the "no" word was heard.

In our household, it didn't creep up like the "terrible twos." This transience came along overnight. I hear it usually hits around the seventh grade and I figured I've got till school starts next year then, right? — Wrong!

It hit hard — like a baseball — "smack" right between my eyes. Ashleigh (the child who was inadvertently left out of last week's column) went upstairs one night, recently I might add, came down the next morning and WHAM! She was a totally new child, young lady, preteen.

My first born, my little girl, what a mother to do? Well, our make-up dollars have doubled. Heck, she wears things I never knew existed until now.

Clothes — oh the clothes, the shoes, the social life. This child's social life is more constant at this age than I ever had in high school.

The phone rings constantly and it's never for the spouse or me, either. I think these stages are thrust upon parents so that we may never have a full night's sleep ever again.

When these transients are born, we worry when they cry because we have no way of knowing what hurts. They're babies, they can't tell us. We long for them to talk, so they can. Then we hear Da Da very first times out of ten for their very first words, we go hog wild and can't wait for them to walk.

The first step is made and we're jumping for joy. Then we look forward to seeing them run, jump, play, their first day of kindergarten and for the loss of the first tooth.

We mark these days, hours and down to the minute in their baby books so that we will never forget these oh so precious moments of our lives.

And then one night we go to bed and wake up and our babies are babies no more.

Wow! Mom sure left this part out of our mother-daughter conversations. One thing's for sure I'm gonna add this column to Ashleigh's baby book for her to read one day in case it slips my mind, too!

Ill next week, keep those babies happy as long as you possibly can!

THEM WORD

A few days ago, there was a rare scene at Cow Creek. Sighted: Newspaper writer in tuxedo. Yes, Li'l ol' me was in a wedding last weekend. My good friend Dusty Weathers got himself hitched on Saturday to Shelley Blackburn. My congratulations to the two of them, who won't read this for awhile, since they should be in Florida on their honeymoon by the time this goes to press.

I must thank the Weathers family for giving me so much face time in the wedding. Picture, if you will, Saturday afternoon. For those of you who don't remember, Saturday was pretty darn well Tarzan hot. The wedding is at the Cow Creek Freewill Baptist Church, which isn't a large place. Keep in mind that everyone's lined up outside.

The ceremony starts. Mike heads to the front of the church to light candles (somehow managing not to set the place on fire) and gets back down the aisle just in time to escort Dusty's grandmother to her seat. I duck out the side door of the church, sprint around to the back just in time to walk Dusty's mother in (Mind you, I'm in black full body armor and you can swim through the air, it's so humid. Slick shoes too.) I seat Dusty's mom and sprint again to the back of the church just in time to escort a bridesmaid. By this time, large drops of sweat were sighted running down all visible skin.

The ceremony was very nice. I didn't quite get the part in Shelley's vows about having to keep a "warm, clean and orderly home," but I didn't think people would appreciate me stopping the ceremony and asking the preacher if he'd read my article in the last issue of Woman to Woman about men sharing housework.

But then, I'm confused by most ceremonies. In fact, much of the whole marriage thing escapes me, especially with my peers around here.

Now don't get me wrong. I don't think marriage is such a bad thing. I'm very happy that my folks got together — else you folks in newspaper land wouldn't have the privilege (?) of reading this column. And I see marriage doing wonders for people in many cases.

Lots of times, I see it go horrendously wrong. Basic script: Boy and girl, usually somewhere between sixteen and twenty, decide that they're "in love" such that the world has never seen before and have to get married. Translation: they're tired of fooling around in secluded spots at Dewey Lake or waiting for the tents to fall asleep.

Often, they think they have to get married because of the consequences of fooling around carelessly at Dewey Lake. Marriage ensues and things are hunky-dory for a little while. Then, things get rocky; people get hurt; usually the husband bolts out and the wife is left alone, often with a kid, and with nowhere to turn. (My mother deals with this story in her Single Parent Program on a daily basis.)

Even without the pregnancy thing, there's just too many people getting married at a young age. It takes a great deal of emotional maturity to handle something as intense as marriage and most people in their teens just don't have that. (There are some who do, and my hat's off to those who can make it work.)

I sometimes report the marriages from the courthouse (when I can talk Geoff into it) and I'm always amazed when I see thirteen and fourteen-year-olds getting licenses. A week or so, a ten-year-old got married in Pike County.

Sorry, but that's just not right. No thirteen-year-old I've ever met has the wherewithal to make a long-lasting marriage.

I'm twenty-three years old and some folks ask me if I've been married. Almost anywhere else, that question would raise eyebrows, but here, many people think that you've got to get married as soon as high school ends. There's another wave of marriages right after college graduation. It's almost like there's a marriage certificate like a diploma — there's a certain time when you've got to get one. If it takes longer, you've failed somehow.

Especially women. Look how we treat a lady who goes through her twenties and never gets married. A thirty-year-old unmarried male is "fiercely independent." A thirty-year-old single woman is an old maid.

I don't think it's right to view marriage as a requisite. Why do something that major simply because "well, everyone else thinks it's time?" To those folks who are still together, congratulations. Unfortunately, too many people I know have gotten married and divorced in the five years since I left high school. I guess the key is to keep a level head and be honest. Trapping someone with marriage is not only liable to create a union that falls apart pretty quickly, but it's downright wrong.

I figure I'll get married eventually, but it's nothing I'm planning on rushing into.

Mark Twain (at least I think it was Twain) said "Marriage is a noble institution — but who wants to live in an institution?"

Amen.
Later days.

No matter how happily a woman may be married, it always pleases her to discover that there is a nice man who wishes she were not.

My name is Linda Moore. I am 49 years old. I am a single parent and have two daughters and five sons. I am a grandma too and I have 12 grandkids.

I grew up in Hunter. My daddy was killed in the mines on January 25, 1956 when I was a small girl and my two sisters were small too. We all had to help mother with the chores. We had to help wash dishes and iron clothes and my mother told me I should have stayed in school.

If I had listened to my mom and hadn't gotten married I would have had a job. I got married June 17, 1961. Me and my husband lived with my mom and his mom. Then I got pregnant with my oldest girl and she was born June 4, 1962. I was going on nineteen when I had her.

Then I had six other kids and they and my husband left me in 1979. My youngest boy was not even a year old. During these years, I never did have a job in my life. I just stayed home and took care of my kids and raised all seven of my kids myself. I want to encourage other kids and adults to stay in school. It is important to stay in school so you can get a job.

'Garden of the Month' for June

The landscape of Leviathan and Edgar Jones of Mays Branch at Prestonsburg is the Women's Club Garden of the Month for June. Judge Boete Adams Garnett Fairchild and Ella Faye Music like the variety of plantings and the mixture of shades of green throughout the landscape and the fact that the Joneses designed and planted their landscape themselves. Evergreen plants, such as dwarf myrtle, magnolia tree, a white pine, a weeping cherry and white pine. Edgar Jones, who started planting the garden nine years ago, said that his secret for successful gardening is "lots of sweat." (photo by Polly Ward)

Poison Ivy: The scourge of the outdoors

Now that summer has arrived chances are you will be spending more time outdoors and chances are a brush with certain weeds could leave you with an itch that will make you wish you'd stayed inside. Poison ivy, poison oak and poison sumac grow practically everywhere in the U.S., except Hawaii and Alaska. They cause allergic reactions effecting more than ten million Americans each year.

The cause of the reaction is a colorless or yellowish substance called urushiol, found in the sap of poison ivy, poison oak and poison sumac, that oozes from any cut or crushed part of the plant, including the leaves and stem. Sticky and virtually invisible, it can be carried on the fur of animals, on garden tools, or sports equipment or anything else that comes in contact with a broken plant.

Once it touches the skin, urushiol penetrates in minutes. A rash will appear within 12-48 hours, followed by redness and swelling, blisters and severe itching. In a few days, the blisters will crust over. Total healing takes about ten days.

Recognizing poison ivy
Poison ivy and poison oak can take on different appearances depending on the environment, and leaflets may vary from groups of three to five, seven or even nine leaves. The plants thrive near streams and lakes, and wherever there are warm, humid summers. Poison ivy grows as low shrub, vine or climbing vine. It has yellow-green flowers and white berries. Poison oak is a low shrub or small tree with clusters and yellow berries and oak-like leaves. Poison sumac grows to a tall, rangy shrub, producing smooth-edged leaves and cream-colored berries.

What to do about poison ivy:

Power outage: Refrigerators/freezers

During recent storms, electrical power outages have occurred. The following guidelines for handling food are suggested.

In emergency situations, the following foods should keep safely at room temperature for 2-3 days: fresh fruits and vegetables, opened jars of peanut butter, jelly, relish, taco sauce, barbecue sauce, mustard, catsup, fruit juices, herbs, spices, flour, nuts, fruit pies and bread products.

The following food products will not keep safely at room temperature and should be discarded: meat, poultry, sea food, milk products, cooked pasta and pasta salads, cream and custard pies, egg products and substitutes and foods containing eggs, meat pizzas, lunch meats, casseroles, soups and stews, mayonnaise, tartar sauce, cream filled pastries and cookie dough.

Thawed frozen foods that still contain ice crystals can be refrozen. However, the quality of the food begins to deteriorate and it should be used soon.

Keeping freezer doors closed during power outages helps frozen foods to stay frozen longer.

Marketing 'U-pick' fruit and vegetable enterprises

Local 'U-Pick', road-side, or farmer markets provide an excellent economic opportunity for local producers and consumers.

These "direct markets" allow horticultural produce to be sold directly by the producer to the consumer, said Forrest Stegelin, extension agribusiness economist at the University of Kentucky's College of Agriculture.

Consumers feel this type of retail offers fresher and higher-quality produce than if obtained elsewhere, he said.

"This produce tantalizes all of the senses — color, flavor, texture, fragrance and even hearing when a producer overhears someone praising the virtues of the products," Stegelin said.

However, "U-Pick" farms can be a disaster if not marketed correctly. Stegelin suggested producers plan a marketing strategy to allow the operation to reach its full potential. This includes developing key marketing skills.

"A successful 'pick-your-own' operation should emphasize the need for action," he said, "because consumers, other growers and even mother nature can alter the fate of an operation."

"U-Pick" farms have relatively short seasons that occur only about once a year. Moreover, this precious time can be cut short because of loss due to a late freeze or harsh winter.

Therefore, effective marketing procedures are critical. Successful marketers have knowledge of their own direct market outlets. They have a good grasp about the customer's needs, their competitors, and their reactions to marketing strategies.

To realize the maximum potential for a 'pick-your-own' harvest, Stegelin suggested the following for

Check Your Home

Q: You say you inspect homes in Kentucky. What are the qualifications for a home inspector in this state?

A: Home inspectors aren't regulated or licensed in Kentucky. Some belong to associations, but those are trade associations, without regulatory power.

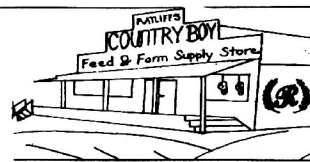

I recommend you check to see if the inspector is a professional engineer, which does require experience, examination and a state license. Ask for references. Ask how the company stands behind the inspections. Ask nature of report (comprehensive or check list), amount of in-house training, how long the company has been in business.

This concludes this series of columns. We've covered roofs, foundations, basements, settlement problems, rot, heating, plumbing, garages, wells, electrical systems, windows, efficiency, drainage, chimneys, decks, safety, septic systems, ventilation, painting, Kentucky standards and more. Hope it has helped.

Keep that Kentucky home warm, safe and sound.

Local student honored at Governor's mansion luncheon

Kassie Smith, a student at J. D. Adams Middle School, was the state eighth grade winner of the "Painting for Agriculture" contest, sponsored by the Kentucky Department of Agriculture. She was made an Honorary Commissioner of Agriculture by State Agriculture Commissioner Ed Logsdon at a luncheon at the Governor's Mansion in Frankfort on May 7. Attending the luncheon were Kassie's parents, Robert and Charlotte Smith.

"culture" and "Painting for Agriculture" were conducted this year as part of the celebration of National Agriculture Week. The theme of this year's contest was "Caring for the Land That Feeds You." Two entries were selected by teachers from each classroom to be judged in the state competition. The contests drew over 500 entries from all over the state and were designed to encourage teachers to use agriculture as a theme for teaching so that Kentucky students will become more aware of the state's food and fiber industry.

The contests "Writing for Agriculture"

First place winner

Kassie Smith, daughter of Robert and Charlotte Smith, is the first place winner in the eighth grade division of a painting contest held by the Kentucky Department of Agriculture. The theme of the contest was how farmers care for their land and the importance of the land. She attended an awards dinner with the state agriculture director in Frankfort. Her tempera painting will be published in the state agriculture magazine. She was encouraged to enter the contest by her art teacher at AMS, Ralph Dingus.

To Assemble The Region's Top Cardiopulmonary Team, We Implemented A Long-Range Plan.

When we set out to establish the first comprehensive cardiopulmonary program in the Ashland area, we went out our way to make it the best in the region. Literally. We began a nationwide search for top cardiopulmonary specialists. The very best doctors. Nurses. Staff members. Our search took us from one end of the country to the other. And what we found were physicians from such world-class medical facilities as the Mayo Clinic, the Texas Heart Institute, and the Deborah Heart and Lung Center. Physicians who now call Ashland and King's Daughters' Medical Center home. Why did we go to such incredible lengths to find an expert cardiopulmonary team? The answer is simple. So you won't have to.

Nunnery receives state sales award for 1992

Kenway Distributors of Louisville, the largest cleaning supply company in Kentucky, recently announced that salesperson James H. Nunnery Jr. of Betsy Layne received an award for racking up the most sales in Kentucky for 1992.

Kenway Distributors is a distributor for Clark International Company, one of the oldest cleaning equipment supply companies in the world.

Nunnery is a company sales representative in six counties — Floyd, Pike, Magoffin, Morgan, Johnson and Martin. He has worked for the company approximately 15 years and said that he owes his success to "the high quality of Clark equipment and to hard work and advertising of the product and demonstrations — mostly demonstrations."

Kenway Distributors, which has 33 salespeople, sells automatic scrubbers, stripping and buffing machines, industrial vacuum cleaners, parking lot sweepers and numerous other items to businesses.

James H. Nunnery Jr.

As top salesperson, Nunnery received a personalized racing jacket and a 10-carat gold cross pin. Nunnery, the son of the late J.H. Nunnery and the late Sylvia Nunnery Purdy, was also the 1981 salesman of the year in Kentucky.

Build Your Dream House

Geneva 10-067

Associated Designs-Eugene, Oregon

A single stately brick column supports the Geneva's entry portico, creating a dramatic first impression. Graceful arched windows, brick-work quoins, and multiple rooflines add to the street appeal of this mid-size contemporary home.

The vaulted and richly glassed kitchen/family room is the center of family living. Windows span most of a rear wall with an eating bay that opens onto a wide deck, and more windows flank the fireplace.

Range and oven are built into the combination eating bar/work island, while the location of the kitchen sink allows appreciation of the outdoor scene during clean-up. Utilities are close at hand, tucked in a pass-through between the kitchen and the garage. A small workshop with a window is nestled in an alcove at the front of the garage.

Living room, dining room and entry are also spacious and bright, with vaulted ceilings adding to the open feeling. Plant shelves, supported by slender columns, separate the three areas. A small bathroom is centrally located, across from stairways to the basement and the upstairs bedrooms.

The bathroom in the master suite is nothing short of elegant. Luxury touches include: twin basins, an oversized shower and a spa tub brightened by glass blocks on two sides. And the walk-in closet is huge.

Both of the upper bedrooms in the Geneva also have large walk-in closets, along with dormer windows. A roomy storage closet is located at the upper landing, and a coat closet is at the bottom, across from the entrance and the open stairway.

For a review plan, including scaled floor plans, elevations, section and artist's conception, send $7.50 to Associated Designs, 1260 Charnellton St., Suite 2, Eugene, Ore. 97401. Please specify the Geneva 10-067 and include a return address when ordering.

Beauty Of Ornamental Iron In Maintenance-Free Fencing

The traditional look of wrought iron fencing has been making a strong comeback over the past few years. This type of fence lends a distinctive elegance and charm to its appearance that other fences lack. However, the frequent painting and constant maintenance associated with it (not to mention the rust) have kept many people from purchasing wrought iron products.

Recently, many people have discovered a fence that offers the dignified appearance and protection of wrought iron without the bother of the rust. Jerith Manufacturing Company in Philadelphia, PA has created an ornamental fence that is fabricated from aluminum and is guaranteed for as long as you own your fence! Jerith fences are ideal for swimming pool enclosures, as well as for coastal areas where dampness causes wrought iron and steel fencing to be a chore to maintain. Jerith's Aluminum Ornamental Fence can not rust even under the most severe weather conditions.

Jerith fences never need painting or maintenance because their powder-coated finish is guaranteed not to peel, crack, or chip. In addition, Jerith's exclusive aluminum alloy allows a typical section of fence to support over 300 pounds, which makes it as strong as a steel section! This unique fence is available in a wide variety of colors, styles and heights to complement any type of architecture.

As a manufacturer of aluminum products for over 40 years, Jerith has built a reputation for high quality and product durability. This is why Jerith includes a Lifetime Warranty on every item it sells.

For a free color brochure displaying Jerith's full line of maintenance-free aluminum fences, write to Jerith Manufacturing Company, Dept. HTO-3, 3901 G Street, Philadelphia, PA 19124.
