Floyd man's death tied to fire at lodge

By Janice Shepherd
Managing Editor

A fire at Wayland destroyed the James W. Alley Masonic Lodge Sunday morning and indirectly led to the death of a Wayland resident.

Winfred Bentley, 71, of Wayland died Sunday morning, the victim of an apparent heart attack. Bentley had become upset when he saw the flames coming from the James W. Alley Lodge located near his home. Fearing that his home was in danger, he evacuated his invalid mother-in-law from his home and was trying to retrieve his medicine when he suffered a heart attack, relatives said. Bentley was the father-in-law of Garrett Fire Chief Bruce Scott, who was battling the fire.

Fire was shooting out of the Lodge when Wayland firefighters arrived on the scene around 2 a.m. Sunday. The second floor of the building was totally involved. The lower floor sustained water damage and the ceiling collapsed. The building was a total loss, said Wayland fire Chief Sam Bentley, a member of the Lodge.

Records of the Lodge were protected in a fire-proof safe, said Danny Francis, Master of the Wayland Lodge and a Garrett firefighter. Prized photos of past masters and donated items in the Lodge were destroyed, Francis said.

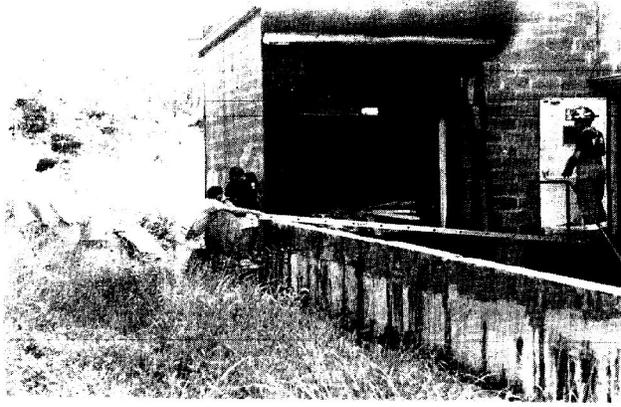

Members of the Garrett, Maytown and Martin Fire Departments assisted Wayland firefighters in bringing the blaze under control. Bentley praised the area departments for lending a helping hand.

Barry McKenzie, Kentucky State Police arson investigator, is investigating the incident. Arson is suspected.

Kentucky State Police are also investigating a fire that destroyed the Cow Creek home of Jamie Goble Friday. Goble was not at home when the fire occurred, said Jim Caldwell, Cow Creek Volunteer Fire Chief.

The fire department was called to the scene around 8:40 p.m. The interior of the one-year-old home was gutted, Caldwell said. Lack of manpower and a heavy downpour at first

Prestonsburg firefighters put out a fire on the loading dock of the old Hecks building Saturday. The fire was accidentally ignited by two juveniles who were shooting fireworks. The juveniles reported the fire when they were unable to extinguish it. The fire was one of several throughout the county keeping area fire departments busy during Labor Day weekend. ## Folk Fest to mark 28th year

by Polly Ward
Times Feature Writer

The 28th annual Kentucky Highlands Folk Festival, from 7 p.m. September 11 at Jenny Wiley State Park Amphitheater, promises to be an evening of entertainment that celebrates our mountain cultural heritage.

The folk festival was founded by the late Edith Fitzpatrick James for singers, dancers, tale-tellers, poets, musicians and craftspeople to share and to perpetuate the lore of the southern mountains.

James, a Prestonsburg native, left the mountains to study music and pursue a singing career. But her love for the mountains drew her back. Soon after her return, she began a lifelong study of traditional or "folk" music. She began collecting folksongs and putting many songs which had never before been written down into musical notation. Later, Sarah Gertude Knott worked with James on what they conceived as a regional festival, and so, in 1965, the Kentucky Highlands Folk Festival was born.

This year, local performers will include traditional folk ballad singer Dianna Donahoe, country singer Rob McNurlin, American folk artist Johnna Poyner and saw-player Homer Ledford of Winchester. Performances will feature bluegrass, country, gospel and traditional ballads. Other attractions will include dancing, storytelling and puppet shows.

Ticket prices for this year's festival are: adults, $3; senior citizens, $2; students, $1.50. Children under 12, free. Tickets may be purchased at the door.

School fund-raiser raising eyebrows among officials

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

With more money than ever before being pumped into Floyd County classrooms, school officials were surprised to learn Tuesday about a fundraising effort going on at Prestonsburg Elementary.

On Tuesday, Prestonsburg Elementary students were given a packet which contained items to be sold for the school's "Fall Fundraiser." There was no explanation in the packet what the funds would be used to purchase.

Harmon said Tuesday that a report that the money raised would be used to buy instructional materials was incorrect and that the money would go toward purchases of televisions, video cassette recorders (VCRs), air conditioners, classroom furniture and window shades.

Gary Frazier, deputy superintendent for instruction, said Tuesday that money allotted for instructional materials is "an admirable amount" this year and that fundraisers should be avoided. Frazier said that per pupil spending for instruction this year is $125, compared to $75 last year.

"The whole purpose for earmarking money for instructional purposes on a per student basis was to eliminate fundraisers," Frazier said Tuesday. "Unless the principal and the principal and the (site-based) council deem it absolutely necessary, I think it should be avoided."

The Floyd County Board of Education adopted a policy earlier this year which prohibits schools from conducting fundraisers to raise money for school's instructional program unless it is "part of the curriculum such as salesmanship training, or school activities."

At a Prestonsburg Elementary teacher's meeting Tuesday, Harmon said that the fundraiser was necessary to buy equipment, such as VCRs, televisions and new classroom furniture, not provided by the board of education.

"The library does get audio visual money, but it's not enough," Harmon said. "We were told by the board not

Truck ban in effect on portion of Rt. 23

by Scott Perry
Times Editor

Coal truck traffic through the city of Paintsville will come to a screeching halt soon, following the enactment Tuesday, September 7, of a ban on extended-weight traffic on a seven-mile stretch of Route 23.

State Transportation Cabinet officials confirmed Tuesday that the traffic ban had actually begun on Friday, September 3, but enforcement would be postponed until this week.

Trucks carrying more than 80,000 pounds will be required to detour around Paintsville indefinitely, using one of two alternate routes. Those routes include Route 3, near Auxier, to Inez and Route 645 which reconnects with Route 23 near Ulysses in Lawrence County. Trucks may also follow Route 114 to Salyersville, then take Route 460 to its intersection with Route 23 north of Paintsville.

The extended weight traffic ban was requested in a resolution adopted by Paintsville's city council as an effort to alleviate traffic congestion in that city. It was also sought after a bridge spanning the Big Sandy River near Hager Hill was deemed unsafe for overweight vehicles.

Denton Billter, supervisor for the Pikeville Office of the state Transportation Cabinet, said Tuesday his office would erect signs, hopefully this week, identifying alternate routes to be used by extended weight vehicles. Neither Billter nor transportation officials in Frankfort were aware of any other measures planned to enforce the ban, but Paintsville Mayor John David Preston said he may post city police officers at the city limits to "turn them back."

The ban will likely become a moot issue when new Route 23 is completed between Prestonsburg and Paintsville, but that construction is expected to take another two years.

Board moves meet ahead one week

September's regular monthly meeting of the Floyd County Board of Education has been rescheduled for Tuesday, September 14, at Duff Elementary.

Floyd superintendent Steve Towler said Tuesday that the meeting had been moved up a week from September 21 because of a scheduling conflict for school board members.

Towler also said Tuesday that a special meeting of the board could be called to before the September 14 meeting to address the district's school facility plan.

The September 14 meeting will begin at 6 p.m.

Primary foes get dates with court

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

A decision could be issued next month in a lawsuit filed against Floyd County's Judge-Executive and the county's board of election officers by the Democratic challenger in May's primary election.

Dale McKinney, who challenged Democrat incumbent John M. Stumbo in judge-executive's race, sued Stumbo and the county election officers after the May Primary claiming that voters were bribed and voting machines were tampered with.

McKinney's attorney, C. K. Belhasen of Paintsville, said in a press release Tuesday that special Judge Charles Lowe of Pikeville is expected to rule on the case next month.

"The trial will be conducted in Floyd County, with the witnesses' testimony to be recorded (on) videotape," Belhasen said in the press release. "Judge Lowe will then review the tape and render a decision sometime next month."

Tuesday's announcement came after a status conference on the case last Friday in Pikeville, Belhasen said. Judge Lowe reportedly ordered that McKinney begin taking proof in the case within the next 20 days and Stumbo will have 15 days thereafter to respond. McKinney will then have three days to rebut Stumbo's evidence.

In his lawsuit filed in June, McKinney alleged that Stumbo had organized a "slate" of candidates for the election who pooled their money and used those funds to bribe voters on election day.

McKinney also claimed that several employees, close family mem-

Pest mess at Betsy Layne gets fast fix

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

A health hazard at Betsy Layne Elementary caused by numerous fly larvae located on a walking path used by students apparently has been corrected.

Betsy Layne principal Fonzo Akers said Tuesday that several parents became concerned Tuesday morning after they noticed fly larvae around two garbage dumpsters located next to the lunchroom building and near the primary mobile classrooms.

"It was a mess," Akers said. "Two or three parents were upset about it and I guess I don't blame them. The dumpsters were full and they (solid waste workers) came and emptied them. The dumpsters will be moved across the parking lot."

hundred firefighting operations. Manual was given by the Prestonsburg Fire Department. Twelve Cow Creek firefighters and nine Prestonsburg firefighters fought the blaze.

The building was occupied at the time of the fire. No injuries were reported.

kept the fire from engulfing a pickup parked near the house, though the pickup sustained some damage from the heat.

Prestonsburg fire investigator Larry Adams and firefighter Mike May are investigating the blaze.

A separate fire Saturday at Highlands Plaza also called Prestonsburg firefighters from their holiday week-end outings. A fire on the loading dock of the old Heck's building was accidentally started by two juveniles playing with firecrackers, Wells said.

The juveniles tried to extinguish the fire but couldn't, and called the fire department around 5:29 Saturday evening. Firefighters contained the fire with minimal damage to the door.

The fire could have easily gotten out of hand, Wells said, because wooden crates were stored inside near the doorway.

The juveniles were questioned and released into their parents' custody. No charges were filed.

to ask for anything." Frasier said he did not understand Hamilton's comment that schools were not to request anything.

Fraser said he was at the state school board meeting in that short said Tuesday.

Towler said, "We hoped to avoid these things."

Towler said he was not aware of the circumstances of the Prestonsburg Elementary fundraiser and he would look into the situation Wednesday.

Towler added that he would classify VCRs and televisions as instructional aids and that "it is a violation of board policy, we can't do that."

Finance director David Johnson said Tuesday that he was "at a loss" to explain why the school is conducting a fundraiser.

Johnson said that problems with School's air conditioning units or a request for window shades should be added to the new director of facilities, Greg Adams, Johnson added.

Johnson said that if a request for a purchase comes from a school that can't be handled with instructional funds, the school is to file that the purchase is a gift.

Johnson cautioned that schools should be "real wise with their monies."

"Woman to woman 1993"—Teleconference on breast cancer

Woman to Woman 1993 is a teleconference about breast cancer for women all across Kentucky. It will be broadcast on September 25, 1993, from the Perkins Building at Eastern Kentucky University (EKU) in Richmond to sites in Ashland, Columbia, Corbin, Fort Knox, Glasgow, Highland Heights, Louisville, Madisonville, Owensboro, Paducah, Paris, and Prestonsburg via KET's Star Channel. Call 1-800-4-CANCER, the Cancer Information Service, for details on the program and the location closest to you. Please register by September 10.

EKU program helps Appalachian students succeed in allied health fields

Eastern Kentucky University, Richmond, has received a $335,550 federal grant to attract disadvantaged students from Floyd and 48 other Eastern Kentucky counties to its allied health programs and prepare them for productive careers in a region beset by acute health care shortages. The Health Careers Opportunity Program (HCOP), funded by the Health Resources and Services Administration, Division of Disadvantaged Assistance, will enable Eastern to recruit 30 eligible, disadvantaged Appalachian students into allied health disciplines for each of the three years of the project. Students have the choice of four baccalaureate degree programs, Environmental Health, Health Information, Clinical Laboratory Science and Occupational Therapy, as well as three associate degree programs, Medical Assistant, Clinical Lab Technician and Health Information Technician. "This is not a program to build enrollment," Daugherty said, "it's a program to extend a helping hand in preparing students in the sciences, mathematics and study skills," said Dr. Patsy Daugherty, project director. "We'll consider high school seniors, as well as non-traditional students."

"Our hope is that they will return to the Appalachian area to help provide health care," Daugherty added, noting that 34 Kentucky counties are "medically underserved" by federal definition. EKU/HCOP will assist disadvantaged students by providing:

- ** financial aid information and assistance.
- ** a summer enrichment program of learning activities, including field trips to clinical sites.
- ** supplemental instruction in "at-risk" courses such as chemistry, mathematics and biology.
- ** intense advising/mentoring.

Prior to their first semester in HCOP, students will receive a stipend to participate in a six-week, non-credit summer enrichment course designed to acclimate them to campus life and lay the groundwork for the academic work that awaits them.

"One of the good things about the program is that we won't just turn them loose after the summer program," Daugherty said. "We have part-time instructors and teaching assistants lined up who will actually attend the classes that HCOP students are taking and give these students extra instruction."

Information sessions on the new program will be held later this school year in high schools around the affected 49-county area. Students selected for the program must have a high level of motivation toward a career in one of the allied health professions, as evidenced by interview, high school references and/or a written autobiography. Their academic record must also be predictive of success in an allied health major.

For more information about the program, high school students should see their guidance counselor. High school graduates may call Daugherty at (606) 622-3576.

Eastern Kentucky University is a comprehensive university serving about 16,500 students on its 560-acre Richmond campus, throughout its 22-county service region, and beyond. EKU's College of Allied Health and Nursing produces more professionals at the undergraduate level than any other such program in the state.

morning program at EKU and at most of the other sites.

This will be the fifth Woman to Woman conference held in Kentucky since 1986. Conference chair Arlayne Francis and other members of the Thursday Group, a breast cancer support group in Central Kentucky, began planning and organizing the event more than a year ago, with help from the Kentucky Cancer Program, American Cancer Society and Kentucky Department for Health Services. The planners decided to regionalize this year's conference in order to make it available to rural women and to those who would be reluctant to travel to the Lexington area. A true Woman to Woman bond will still be created, however, since every participant will be seeing the same morning program, whether in Ashland or Paducah, thanks to the Star Channel teleconferencing technology. The regional meetings will be small enough to maintain the warm personal nature of the original conferences, a climate which was threatened by the growing popularity of the event. In 1988, co-founders Rosemary Graves and Doris Rosenbaum joked that they might have to rent Rupp Arena for the next Woman to Woman.

Any location that has access to KET's star channel can receive the Woman to Woman program. The signal, which can be picked up throughout the United States by anyone with a good Ku dish, will be on Spacenet 2 transponder 23 upper. The video frequency is 12080 megahertz; audio subcarrier frequency 6.8 megahertz.

bers and "others associated with Stumbo's campaign" were installed as election officers who presided over the election in many precincts. Their presence at the polls "intimidated voters and prevented a free choice of candidates," McKinney charged.

Also during the May primary election, several voting machines malfunctioned and, in some cases, paper ballots had to be used. McKinney claimed that the machines had been sabotaged.

McKinney contended that he should be declared the winner of the May primary election.

Representatives from state Attorney General Chris Gorman's office inspected the machines and determined the age of the machines, not sabotage, caused the malfunctions. Judge-Executive Stumbo said in June that McKinney's lawsuit read like "a David Korsh sermon" and it was a "desperate act by a desperate man."

Russ Wallace, a field inspector for the Floyd County Health Department, went to the school Tuesday to investigate the complaint.

"In my opinion, it was a health hazard," Wallace said. "There were too many maggots literally crawling all over the place. Mr. Akers was very obliging and the problem is in the process of being corrected. The dumpsters were emptied and disinfected. I'll be making a follow-up inspection next week."

Wallace said that he felt the situation was a health hazard because the live larvae were located on a path that children walked back and forth across and the children could be exposed to diseases that adult flies can transmit.

Ned Bush, safety coordinator for the Floyd County school system, said Tuesday that he felt adult flies were more of a health hazard than fly larvae.

"It's not a good situation and it's probably already been corrected," Bush said. "I know it will be by tomorrow, if I have to do it myself."

Akers said that the dumpsters at the school are emptied on Tuesdays and Thursdays.

No strings attached

by Scott Perry

It doesn't matter if it's legally okay to send elementary students out to hawk novelties to raise school funds.

It's still wrong if the youngsters can win "valuable prizes" for their salesmanship.

When the state Supreme Court ruled that every child in Kentucky should have an equal opportunity at quality education, the Justices said nothing about kindergarten students selling candy to pay for it.

When the state legislature enacted the largest tax increase in history to underwrite education reform, they didn't include a requirement that first graders peddle wrapping paper to help out.

When the Kentucky Education Reform Act put an emphasis on parent-child cooperation as a key element for learning, the law made no reference to establishing home shopping networks.

This week a letter went out to parents of Prestonsburg Elementary students promoting the school's "Fall Fundraiser."

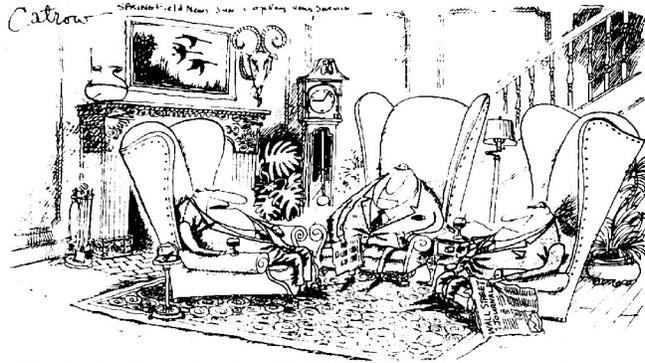

A note from the principal went out later noting the funds raised would go toward the purchase of televisions, VCRs, tables and chairs.

So this week bands of little sales-people, some who have not yet learned to tie their shoes, will be out peddling their goodies so their school can have all the quality education their little hands can scrape up.

We should all be proud.

Maybe after the funds are raised and all the nice new equipment is purchased, we can quit sending our kids home with sales order books and give them something that will truly be rewarding...

An education with no strings attached.

Outraged at school board

Editor:
Lisa parent of Betsy Layne Grade School students, am very, very outraged at what the school board has the nerve to try and pull.

I can't believe that they have the interests of our students at heart when they are trying so hard to cancel our new school, which we so badly need as soon as possible. Not eight years from now!

Are we, as parents, going to back down and get knocked back to the bottom of the school list again for a new school? Then, we will have to fight for how many more years before we get another chance? When, when I ask, can Betsy Layne parents get some peace knowing their kids are in a warm building changing classes, or going to the restroom and not outside from trailer to trailer in the rain and snow?

When will our parents get some peace of mind with the school board members we elected? And the election is coming up soon. And the contractors will start and hopefully finish our school some day. I hope everyone who reads this will call your board members and express your opinion. Nicely, please.

Help us with this fight for our children and their safety, please. Betsy Layne P.O. would like to thank all the parents for their support and ask you please, if you're not involved yet, help us for your children, grandchildren, family's sake. Get involved and stay involved. Don't let our future and our kids today.

Proof of insurance

Editor:
I read your story about the great fire at the city of Allen, April 24, 1924, which burned up most of the town.

There was one little incident that happened that day I'd like to tell you about. I lived at Martin and my father Ernest Boyd worked for the C and O railroad yard at that time. A Regular Baptist preacher, Alex Allen (who resided in Allen), had his wife in the old Beaver Valley Hospital in Martin. She was real sick. They ran big mule engines with water in them from Martin to try to put out the fire. My father and preacher Allen and others climbed on top of a box car going to Allen. Preacher Allen was down on his knees praying. A man said, "Preacher, where is your insurance?"

Preacher took from under his arm his Bible (which he often carried) and quoted him a scripture and said "That is where my insurance is." Every house around preacher Allen's home burned, but his was left standing.

Two or three days later Mrs. Allen passed away. When she died, he brought her body back to their little home. You would have had to see this house to believe it. Nothing but the great power above could have saved that house. Brother Allen had the kind of insurance we all need. I am 85 years old and I'm sure there are others my age who still remember.

Indecent proposal?

Editor:
I recently read about a national organization called Good Tidings and its many spin-off support groups for women and priests who fall in love. Falling in love is normal and priests are not exempt from this healthy, affectionate experience, but I disagree with the reasoning and the goals of these groups.

The report stated that one of their primary goals is to give the priests an ultimatum, to either leave the priesthood and get married or give up the relationship. This is an indecent proposal and a cruel, sinister attack on the priesthood, with women being used as bait. I also see selfishness,

Coffee Break

by Scott Perry

The Gov has set his sights on downsizing state government to stave off the red ink, directing his attention first to the state's payroll which is top-heavy by about 2,500 people.

Cutting those jobs from the payroll will save an estimated $63 million a year, state bean counters claim, and bring employee numbers in line with the law.

It seems that back in 1982, a law was enacted which capped state employment at 33,000 but since then budget-makers have been able to "waive" the ceiling.

Come again?
How do you waive a law and can the rest of us get in on the act?

We've all been taught that ignorance of the law is no excuse, but it would appear that ignoring the law is okay when a particular statute doesn't fit in with day-to-day plans.

In Kentucky, it seems that rules are made to be broken...literally.

It's really hard to imagine that the state will really save anything by slicing its workforce.

Most agencies...at least the important ones...are already understaffed and unable to provide the quality service taxpayers deserve.

We noted sometime back that social workers who provide help to the poor are so short-handed that they can no longer guarantee that needy children will be protected from harm.

State police numbers are down, too, which means none of us are guaranteed protection under the law.

Still, there are plenty of bums and political hacks drawing checks every month from the taxpayers' pocketbooks and they need to be excoriated from the system. The sooner the better.

We don't mean to sound chauvinistic, but this deal with women who choose to keep their birth names (we didn't say maiden names) after they marry as a protest against male-domination is just a tad bit goofy.

If women don't want to take their husband's last name when they're wed that's just fine, but it's hard to figure how they find any liberation by maintaining their birth names.

Those came from their fathers, didn't they?

Head ache?
Eyes itchy and watery?
Having trouble breathing?
The medical folks tells us those are sure signs the fall allergy season is upon us.

Of course, they haven't decided yet whether we're allergic to ragweed or all those politicians scurrying around for votes, but it's probably no coincidence that our heads begin to clear up just after the first Tuesday following the first Monday in November when the frost is on the pumpkin and the campaigners settle in for a long winter's sleep.

Then in the spring everything old is new again...

Achoo!

rivalry, pride, torment, bitterness, manipulation and regret. There is a need for positive support groups and a retreat center to encourage honor and appreciation for mandatory celibacy.

There are vast differences between men and women and in their sexuality. In general, women are superior to men. Most women value love more than sex. Most men value sex more than love. Celibate priests give up sex for the Kingdom of God. That quality makes them special and they should not be reduced to the level of ordinary men.

When mandatory celibacy is an ingredient in serious, mutual, romantic love, there is great potential for the relationship. One could say, "I love you enough to deny some of my personal desires, join you in your cellibate lifestyle, and labor with you for the Kingdom of God." What could be a greater compliment, a loftier goal, a greater test of love, a more decent proposal?

Nurse says bill in Congress will not protect consumer

Editor: I am alarmed by a bill in Congress, H. R. 1709. This bill would significantly change the current safety and labeling standards which concern dietary supplements, such as vitamins, minerals and herbs. As a registered nurse, registered dietitian, certified nutritionist and consumer, I would like to see this bill defeated. The FDA should regulate these supplements to assure that they are safe and truthfully labeled. Sometimes these "natural" substances can be harmful—remember L-tryptophan?

The FDA has a role in consumer protection; it is not attempting to remove the consumer's freedom of choice. FDA requires the manufacturers of these products to prove that the products are safe. FDA requires scientific proof before claims regarding health benefits can be on the label. It requires the same thing of drug and food manufacturers. Why should the manufacturers of dietary supplements be treated any differently?

I know that the vitamins and minerals in my food are natural. I am not so sure that vitamins and minerals that are manufactured in a lab and taken in pill form are natural. I hope that I can at least be given a reasonable assurance that they are safe.

Please write to your congressman in the House of Representatives, Washington, DC, and urge him to vote against H.R. 1709.

—Other Voices—

At least they finally did something

by Leonard Larsen
Scripts Howard News Service
WASHINGTON — That was high political theater in the wrangling over passage of President Clinton's economic program, with tales of personal anguish and arm-waving of sacrifice by some Democrats to save a threatened presidency and of valorous Republican determination to rescue the nation on Republican terms. And all this was going on while economic alarm bells were set ringing on both sides of the argument, Democrats summoning the nation to sacrifice and salvation and Republicans warning of disaster.

A shorter critique might describe the struggle as having less to do with self sacrifice and the nation's economic future than with old standbys of partisan politics lust and fear.

Republicans were lusty for return to political power, and Democrats were driven by fear the Republicans would succeed.

It can't be denied that in the Republican lust to discredit Clinton and his presidency and to put the skids under Democratic congressional majorities, every Republican—every single one of them in the House and Senate—voted against the Clinton program.

If the Clinton White House and Democratic leaders twisted Democratic aims to get the tiny margins for House and Senate passage of the budget measure, it can't be said that those rank-rod Republican votes in opposition just happened to fall in place, without party persuasion and coercion.

The Democratic fear of political disaster with failure of the budget bill was less disguised, openly talked about in both the White House and Congress, and it was made the centerpiece of the statement by Sen. Bob Kerrey, D-Neb., when he finally said he would vote in favor.

Kerrey gave President Clinton something of a dressing-down for compromising away important parts of his policy but, Kerrey concluded, speaking directly to the president "I could not and should not cast a vote that brings down your presidency."

If Kerrey was inspired at the end by such a noble thought, other Democrats—a whole lot of them—were just as inspired by what polls insist is still Americans' rage at government, a government that for years has been marked mainly by failures, non-performance and outright malfeasance.

What long ago dawned on congressional Democrats, whether reluctant or embued with the Clinton program, was that another government failure that could "bring down" the Democratic president would bring down a bunch of incumbent congressional Democrats with him.

So any fear for the Clinton administration was tied to the fears for their own futures and the dread of being "brought down" with Clinton helped hold congressional Democrats together.

Out of the congressional debate and passage of the budget proposal will come some more political theater that could prove to be mind-numbing before it runs its course. Americans, it's almost guaranteed, are going to be forced to a diet of politically-warped economic propaganda for at least the coming year, maybe longer.

Republicans and a rafting band of for-hire economists, editorialists and talk-show quacks already have seen and described in detail an approaching economic disaster, all caused by the Clinton program.

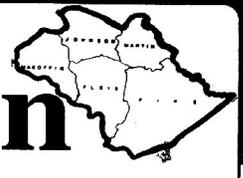

It may be screwball politics to bet on what's now an imaginary approaching depression as the best Republican hope for the party's political future, but that appears to be the unfolding Republican strategy in what's left for them after passage of the Clinton economic program.

And Democrats, in their good news counter-theater, will be combing statistics out every obscure economic report, broadcasting "upturns" and "solid gains" and discovery of more paths to national economic recovery than there are on a gas station road map.

Chances are there's more profit for Democrats peddling their good news than for Republicans who're telling Americans they are doomed.

And while Republican and Democratic politicians will be arguing about dotting every "I" and crossing every "t" in the long and complicated budget measure, Americans out there beyond Washington may be a whole lot more impressed that Congress and the president have—at last—done something.

Corbin man is found dead near train track

Authorities are investigating the death of a Corbin man whose body was found Sunday near a railroad track in Whitley County.

The body of Joseph Franklin Whitaker, 34, was found about noon by a railroad employee. It was 12 to 15 feet from the track about six miles south of Corbin, Whitley County Corner Carl Paul said.

Paul said authorities think Whitaker may have fallen from a train. He had not been seen since he left home about 5 p.m. Saturday.

Paul said the body was taken to Lexington, where an autopsy was to be performed Tuesday.

Kentucky State Police said they are investigating the death.

Ex-principal's hearing delayed

A tribunal hearing for the dismissed principal of Johnson Central High School has been delayed, at his request, until Kentucky State Police complete an investigation into charges of wrongful handling of school money.

The hearing for Stephen D. Butcher had been scheduled for September 20. But Kentucky Department of Education spokesman Jim Parks said Thursday that the proceedings had "been continued generally on a motion by his attorney John R. Leathers, pending on the outcome of the investigation" into the allegations of wrongdoing.

Thomas Swartz, formerly principal at Pikeville High School, was named in June to replace Butcher, who was officially removed later that month.

Charges in his dismissal alleged that he bought $100,000 worth of sports items without bids, failed to account for soft drinks and sales, and spent school money on personal items. — The Ashland Daily Independent

Johnson County man killed when hit by coal truck

A 24-year-old Wittenwille man was killed early Friday morning when he stepped into the path of a coal truck. According to a state police report, Joe C. Castle was walking on US 23 at Nippard 5 a.m. when he stepped into the path of coal truck traveling southbound.

The victim was pronounced dead at the scene by Johnson County coroner J.R. Frisby. The truck driver, Ronnie Castle of Lowmansville, was treated for minor injuries and released from Paul B. Hall Medical Center. The accident is still under investigation by trooper John Blanton. — Staff Report

Elizabeth Blackburn tests the theory of probability by flipping a penny and counting how many times it lands on "heads" with a group of students. The test was part of a math class Blackburn attended while at Transylvania University's Academic Camp for Appalachian Students. Blackburn, a junior at Plarist School, received full scholarship to attend the camp July 11-23. The two-week camp introduces high school students entering their junior year to the liberal arts through discussions in nine academic areas.

Low-tar smoke, no help in fighting lung cancer

Contrary to what many people may believe, the brand of cigarettes that smokers choose has little or nothing to do with their true exposure to tar and nicotine.

According to a new study published by the American Lung Association, researchers who analyzed saliva and breath samples from 33 smokers found that smokers who smoked low-yield brands had carbon monoxide (CO) and cotinine levels that were barely distinguishable from smokers who used high-yield brands. Cotinine is a byproduct of nicotine.

According to a new study published by the American Lung Association, researchers who analyzed saliva and breath samples from 33 smokers found that smokers who smoked low-yield brands had carbon monoxide (CO) and cotinine levels that were barely distinguishable from smokers who used high-yield brands. Cotinine is a byproduct of nicotine.

These findings raise serious questions about the relevance of tar and nicotine data published by the Federal Trade Commission (FTC). "These findings are surprising and do indicate that the FTC's classification of cigarettes as low-tar or nicotine light is not a valid measure of a cigarette's true tar and nicotine content," says Dr. David C. Coates, lead author of the study, which was published in the British Medical Journal of Respiratory Medicine.

The study, which was conducted by the American Lung Association and the American Cancer Society, showed that most Americans interpret these findings to mean that low-yield brands are safer than high-yield brands. However, the study found that the tar and nicotine content of low-yield brands is not significantly different from that of high-yield brands. "As a result, the FTC's classification of cigarettes as low-tar or nicotine light is not a valid measure of a cigarette's true tar and nicotine content," says Dr. David C. Coates, lead author of the study, which was published in the British Medical Journal of Respiratory Medicine.

Hall's poem printed in poetry journal

William C. Chapman, 20, of Prestonsburg, is the author of a poem titled "The Gospel Sing" which was published in the poetry journal "The Gospel Sing" in the summer of 1993. Chapman is a member of the church choir at the First Baptist Church in Prestonsburg.

ing machines, which smoke in a very standardized manner," explains Dr. Coates. "This people smoke to obtain nicotine and they have a nicotine tolerance. They adjust their level of nicotine intake so that they get the level of nicotine they want."

These techniques may include inhaling more smoke per puff, inhaling more deeply, holding smoke longer in the lungs, and blocking the airholes on cigarette filters that dilute the smoke entering the body.

The American Lung Association of Kentucky is particularly concerned about the impact of these findings, since our state has more smokers per capita than any other state and we lead the nation in smoking-attributable deaths. A report recently released by state health officials attributes 11,000 deaths in Kentucky during 1991 to smoking, making smoking the number one cause of preventable death in Kentucky.

Eastern Kentucky University has received a $335,550 federal grant to attract disadvantaged students from Floyd county and 48 other Eastern Kentucky counties to its allied health programs and prepare them for productive careers in a region beset by acute health care shortages.

The Health Careers Opportunity Program (HCOP), funded by the Health Resources and Services Administration, Division of Disadvantaged Assistance, will enable Eastern to recruit 30 eligible, disadvantaged Appalachian students into allied health disciplines for each of the three years of the project.

Students have the choice of four baccalaureate degree programs, Environmental Health, Health Information, Clinical Laboratory Science and Occupational Therapy, as well as three associate degree programs, Medical Assistant, Clinical Lab Technician and Health Information Technician.

"This is not a program to build enrollment," Daugherty said. "It's a program to extend a helping hand in preparing students in the sciences, mathematics and study skills," said Dr. Patsy Daugherty, project director. "We'll consider high school seniors, as well as non-traditional students."

"Our hope is that they will return to the Appalachian area to help provide health care," Daugherty added, noting that 34 Kentucky counties are "medically underserved" by federal definition.

EKU/HCOP will assist disadvantaged students by providing:

- financial aid information and assistance.
  - a summer enrichment program of learning activities, including field trips to clinical sites.
  - supplemental instruction in "at-risk" courses such as chemistry, mathematics and biology.
  - intense advising/mentoring.
- Prior to their first semester in HCOP, students will receive a stipend to participate in a six-week, non-credit summer enrichment course designed to acclimate them to campus life and lay the groundwork for the academic work that awaits them.

"One of the good things about the program is that we won't just turn them loose after the summer program," Daugherty said. "We have part-time instructors and teaching assistants lined up who will actually attend the classes that HCOP students are taking and give these students extra instruction."

"We have had a number of students who take longer than average to get through our programs, and often the problem is the introductory science and math courses," Daugherty said. "The supplemental instruction addresses that."

Because of the special assistance, Daugherty expects students to advance through the allied health curriculum at an 80 percent retention rate, higher than the national average.

Information sessions on the new program will be held later this school year in high schools around the affected 49-county area. Students selected for the program must have a high level of motivation toward a career in one of the allied health professions, as evidenced by interview, high school references, and/or a written autobiography. Their academic record must also be predictive of success in an allied health major.

For more information about the program, high school students should see their guidance counselor. High school graduates may call Daugherty at (606) 622-3576.

Prospective college students and their parents will have a chance to learn more about college life at Eastern Kentucky University on Thursday, September 23 during EKU's Open House in Prestonsburg.

The event, from 6 to 8 p.m. at the Holiday Inn, will give students and their parents an opportunity to talk to academic representatives and persons from EKU's admissions and financial aid offices.

"We've found that this kind of personal contact is a tremendous help to students who are trying to finalize their college plans," said Les Grigsby, director of admissions, adding that EKU representatives would discuss the University's 160 degree options and numerous financial aid opportunities.

"And we can also discuss what life is like on the campus—what goes into the EKU experience," Grigsby said.

Students and parents from Floyd, Pike, Magoffin, Johnson and Martin counties are urged to attend.

Grigsby added that many prospective students and their parents are surprised to learn that about 70 percent of EKU students receive some type of financial aid. The average annual award is about $2,600.

Become the parent you always wanted to be—now!

Participants and their children will also be able to participate in a new incentive program which will give them the opportunity to earn terrific child care items and gifts. Anyone interested in becoming a childcare volunteer or group facilitator may obtain information by calling the above number Monday through Friday. All volunteers will be greatly appreciated.

PCC fund drive announced

State budget cuts have taken their toll in the last few years, so Prestonsburg Community College is launching its own local fund raising campaign with full support of University of Kentucky officials.

UK President Dr. Charles Wehington and Dr. Ben Carr, chancellor of the UK Community College System, joined members of PCC's Advisory Board on August 26 in endorsing the plan to raise seed money between September 1 of this year and August 1994 for four projects.

The projects are a Regional Center for Health Education and Wellness at the Prestonsburg campus; a Regional Classroom and Technology Center, replacing the present Pike County Campus; Rural Technology Resource and Telecommunications Centers in Prestonsburg and Pike County; and a general endowment fund.

Wehington indicated he supports the college's leadership and the four projects.

"Certainly, I will be supportive," Wehington said. "I believe Prestonsburg Community College is primed to go on and take the next step."

He particularly praised the plan's reliance on community volunteers to head the fund-raising effort. "I don't have any question about (the campaign's) success," he said. "The broad-based, volunteer-driven approach is a process that works."

Instruction department has new office location

The Floyd County School District's Central Office is now in two locations in downtown Prestonsburg.

The Instruction Department has moved its offices to Court Street, over top of Incomp Computer Store. The phone number for the Instruction Department is now 886-3014. The mailing address for Instruction is 67 W. Court Street, Prestonsburg, Ky. 41653.

The Superintendent's office, the finance and payroll office, personnel, food service, student services, TAG and pupil personnel are in the old administrative offices on Arnold Avenue. The phone number for the old building is still 886-2354. The address is 69N. Arnold Avenue, Prestonsburg, Ky. 41653.

The university president also praised the college's planning process, which included seeking input from students, faculty, advisory board members and community leaders.

"Ditto," was Carr's response. "I have no doubts that we'll be successful in this effort." The head of the community college system pointed out that all 14 of the two-year colleges are engaged in fund raising campaigns, cooperative effort called "Partners in Progress."

PCC is among the first to get a campaign underway. The local theme is "Reaching for the Stars" and is termed the "STAR Project."

PCC President Dr. Deborah Floyd presented the projects to the board and university officials and indicated the planning process began in 1991.

Development director Page Estes outlined the campaign to the audience. She said the key to its success is getting volunteers involved in soliciting donations. The volunteers, she said, will come from the college staff and from community leaders in Floyd, Johnson, Magoffin, Martin and Pike counties, the college's five-county service area.

The college will soon begin to accept volunteers to serve on campaign committees, said President Floyd, who reported to the advisory board on the college's progress in fund-raising and on fall enrollment which appears to be up.

Earlier in the day, Floyd led the UK officials on tours of the college's main campus in Prestonsburg and its Pike County Campus in Pikeville.

Wehington told the group at the evening meeting that he was "impressed with what the college looks like," referring to the Prestonsburg campus. "It looks as if you're proud of what you've got."

The college's two small buildings in Pikeville, however, led him to conclude that "a facility in Pike County is desperately needed."

Chancellor Carr warned that the changes taking place in the community college system, particularly at PCC, will be "stressful," but he advised, "You should become students of change, proponents of change and don't be afraid of change."

The advisory board's next meeting is set for November 4 at 7:30 p.m. in Prestonsburg.

Board members in attendance at the August 26 meeting were Chairman H. D. Fitzpatrick Jr. of Prestonsburg, O. T. Darton and Robert Conley of Paintsville, Jean Hale of Pikeville, John R. Triplett of Warfield, Chalmers Frazier of Prestonsburg, faculty representative John D. Sammons and student Rachel Ousley.

Representing the Pike County College Educational Foundation Board were Thelmer McClanahan of Pikeville and former PCC President Dr. Henry Campbell.

Attending from the Big Sandy College Educational Foundation Inc. were Raymond Bradbury, Frank Fitzpatrick, William G. Francis, Will Kendrick, Burt Wells Spurlock, Dr. Rodney Handshoe, all of Prestonsburg; Drs. Chandra and Mahendra Varia of Martin, and Tim Weddington of Salyersville.

Happy Birthday to...
Kevin Robinson of the Prestonsburg Blackcats. Kevin turns 15 today and can't wait for number 16.

Kevin plays baseball for the Blackcats, as well as basketball. He is the son of Lonnie and Karen Robinson.

Happy birthday, Kevin!

Belated wishes...

A belated birthday wish to John Caudill of the South Floyd Raiders. John turned 17 last Saturday. He plays for the Raiders' football team.

Happy Birthday, John!

Scoreboard monstrosity...

South Floyd High School is a state-of-the-art school. One of the finest around. The South Floyd Raiders have new uniforms and equipment and look sharp dressing so many players. When you visit Brackett Field, you can see improvements that have been made over the past two seasons. New bleacher seats, new scoreboards building. But when you look to the west end of the stadium, you view a big eyesore — the scoreboard.

It doesn't work. It is of no value and, therefore, needs to be replaced. The Raiders open their home football season with a game against Phelps this Friday night and I asked Coach Donnie Daniels what he was going to do.

"I am going to get one of the big chalkboards we have at the new school and set it on top of the old scoreboard and write in the score," he said jokingly (I hope).

"No, we may have to borrow a portable unit," said the Raiders' coach. "There is still hope that the old one can be fixed. The problem is getting power to it."

According to school principal Terry Stewart, a new scoreboard is supposed to be forthcoming, but "maybe not this year."

High school football is a big fan attraction and while many fans have trouble following the game, they do want to know what the score is. Here's hoping that South Floyd gets a scoreboard of some kind (besides a chalkboard) because the folks up left Beaver need to have the best we can get. Coach Daniels has done a tremendous job with the program and our school system needs to stand behind him.

I went to a freshman game last Monday evening at Wheelwright and arrived early. I caught the grade school team (a combination of McDowell, Melvin and Osborne elementaries) practicing and I was surprised and impressed with the number of players who are out. There will be a "B" team as well as an "A" team. The program at South Floyd looks to be heading in the right direction.

As time grew closer for the start of the freshman game, I noticed that the stands were filling up fast. A large crowd turned out for the game and that is a good indication that our county is moving forward in the sport.

What can I say? department...
Have you seen the football field at Allen Central?

Wow! A lot of work has gone into that facility. Painted sidelines (in Rebel red) and a huge Rebel flag painted in the middle of the field. The end zones have been painted and hash marks marking the field in yards have made following the downs easier. A fence is in place to keep the fans in the seats and yard markers were displayed on the visitors' side of the field.

The Rebels had a full house on opening night and the fans didn't seem to dampen the spirit of the fans.

When you look at the different football programs in the county, you can see a bright future for each school.

Prestonsburg High School has always been a leader in football and will be for years to come. Coach Bill Letton has established himself as one of the area's top coaches. He has brought the Cats back into the state spotlight and his team is currently ranked fifth in 2A schools.

South Floyd High School has a combination of McDowell and Wheelwright students playing a sport together for the first time. The football program under Donnie Daniels

Hamilton rips Phelps defense in 20-12 win

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

The Betsy Layne Bobcats found a go-to guy in their second game of the yet-young football season Friday night against Phelps.

Junior fullback Rocky Hamilton, 5-8, 180, put on a show offensively for the Bobcats as they posted a 20-12 win over the Hornets at the Lloyd Hamilton Athletic Complex in Betsy Layne.

It was the second consecutive win for the Bobcats, something they haven't been able to accomplish in several years. Betsy Layne had won only one game in their past two seasons.

Hamilton carried the football 16 times for 183 yards rushing. But the junior fullback found pay dirt three times. Hamilton had been playing with a pinched nerve, but he seems to be on the mend.

It was a come-from-behind effort for Betsy Layne as they fell behind 6-0 after the first quarter and trailed 12-6 at the half. The Bobcats looked stopy and flat, something Coach John DeHaven did not appreciate.

"I felt the team was flat and I have no answers as to why," said the second-year coach, "but I can bet you it will never happen again." Hamilton scored on a 6-yard run with 1:05 left in the first period. The conversion attempt failed.

The Bobcats tied the game 12-12 in the third period as Hamilton scored on a 75-yard touchdown run.

It was in the fourth quarter that Hamilton struck the third time for a 13-yard TD run. Quarterback Keith Hamilton ran the two-point conversion for a 20-12 lead for the Betsy Layne squad. The defense made the lead hold as the game ended.

"We are still very inexperienced and immature," said Derossett. "We need to cut down on penalties and just downright stupid mistakes."

The Betsy Layne safety came up with two good defensive gems when Brent Akers and Keith Hamilton each had an interception. Hamilton completed just one pass during the game when he hit freshman back Craig Hamilton with a pass good for 17 yards.

Keith Hamilton had seven carries for 38 yards and Craig Hamilton finished with 11 yards on four carries.

Betsy Layne totaled 264 yards with 247 coming on the ground.

Holbrook runs, tosses Fleming-Neon past Rebels

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

Under a second-half downpour at the Don Daniels Athletic Complex, Fleming-Neon quarterback Chris Holbrook used the Allen Central secondary to his liking. He completed 11 passes for 108 yards as the Pirates handed the Rebels a 28-8 loss and spoiled their home-opener this past Friday night. It was the first loss of the year for Allen Central.

Holbrook not only directed the air attack against the dug-in Rebels, but he carried the ground game as well. He directed the ball 11 times in rushing for 91 yards. Neon totaled 320 offensive yards against the home-standing Rebels, who fell to 1-1 on the season. The Pirates picked up 218 yards on the ground.

Allen Central just could not move the ball on the ground against the Pirates front line because running the sweep just wasn't there for the Rebels.

Glenn Floyd and James Osborne led the rushing for Allen Central with Floyd carrying 12 times for 53 yards and Osborne getting 52 yards on 15 carries.

Rebel quarterback Brad Blackburn was constantly under pressure from the Pirates front line and managed to complete only two passes to freshman tight end Thomas Jenkins and sophomore end Adam Coleman. Jenkins' catch was good for 10 yards and a first down while Coleman's went for 6 yards.

Holbrook threw the ball often, especially in the early minutes of the first quarter. He directed his team downfield which covered 61 yards on their first possession in the first quarter. Holbrook then took the ball into the end zone from 4 yards for the TD to give Fleming-Neon a 6-0 lead. It was Holbrook in the drive as he rushed 17 yards, but completed five of six passes in the drive.

Allen Central put together a good initial drive on their second possession, but lost the ball on a loss of downs when upon facing a fourth-and-two situation, they failed to pick up the first down. Osborne picked up 15 yards on five carries and Blackburn hit Jenkins with a 10-yard pass.

Neon took over the football on the Rebels 45-yard line and marched the

Ratliff sidelined but...

Blackcats claw South Floyd 47-0

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

While the Prestonsburg Blackcats were entertaining the South Floyd Raiders this past Friday night, the Blackcats' starting quarterback Thomas Ratliff was listening to the radio broadcast of the game from his bed at Highlands Regional Medical Center. Prestonsburg posted a one-sided 47-0 win over South Floyd.

The junior quarterback was hospitalized after he was diagnosed with diabetes. Ratliff missed Prestonsburg's second game, but according to Coach Bill Letton, he is not expected to miss too many games.

"His sugar level went way up," said Letton of his signal-caller. "We don't know just what to expect right now. I don't think he will be out that long. We will sit down with the doctors and determine when he will be ready to play again."

Thomas was released from the hospital and is now at home.

While Ratliff was "missing from action," there was plenty of action on the gridiron. The Blackcats totaled 377 yards on offense and, again, the defensive line for the Cats tossed a shutout for the second consecutive game. They shut down the Clay County offense in a 43-0 rout two weeks ago.

Again, it was the play of Larry Morris on the defensive side of the ball that led the Cats' charge. Morris had 12 solo hits in the game.

But there was plenty of help for the linebacker as teammate Robbie Rickett had another good defensive outing with eight firsts. Matt Porter, Kyle Fitzpatrick and Brad Wells continued to make it difficult for the opposition on the defensive. Ryan Elliott and Paul Collins, who has been a hard worker on the defensive line, came in with five solo hits. Kevin Vaughn finished with four tackles.

The Blackcats didn't open the game with the excitement of their Clay County game, but once the ball was in their hands, they exploded.

"We opened flat," said Coach Letton. "But we got going on the first series of plays. We weren't as sharp as we were against Clay County."

Senior running back Seth Hyden rushed for 108 yards on just six carries as he saw limited playing time drilled the uprights to give the Blackcats' offense.

Dwayne Garza totaled 81 yards on six carries and he scored on touchdowns for Prestonsburg. The third of the "Troublesome Trio," Jody Comette, got a quiet 89 yards on five carries and he accounted for two TDs.

Stout kicked five of seven extra point attempts. Chris Hicks scored a touchdown for the Blackcats as well.

Arnold Adams led the ground game for the Raiders. He massed 50 yards on 13 carries. Cruse Caudill finished with 34 yards on six attempts. Adam Wright rushed for 23 yards on five carries.

The Blackcats scored their first TD when Hyden galloped 37 yards for a touchdown with 7:37 left in the first quarter. John Stout, who has emerged as a solid point-after-kicker, drilled the uprights to give the Blackcats a 7-0 lead.

Coach Letton said that he saw a different ballclub in some areas of their game.

"We have improved in some areas," he said. "We improved our ballhandling and we carried out our fakes better. Our blocking was better."

The team fakes were a concern to Coach Letton following the Clay County game and Garza said that it was emphasized in practice.

"He wasn't too happy with our fakes," said Garza. "He ran through some drills at practice that weren't too enjoyable. I don't want to go through that again."

quarter and Stout's PAT gave the Blackcats a 14-0 lead after the first period.

Prestonsburg scored early in the second quarter as Garza ran across the goal line from 5-yards out to make it a 20-0 game. Prestonsburg rolled on top when Cornette scored from 10-yards out at the 7:02 mark. Stout added the PAT. Hyden completed the first half scoring with a 30-yard run and Stout's extra point made it 34-0 at the half.

Hyden scored on a 7-yard run with 8:07 left in the third period and Hicks, a sophomore, scored in the third with 2:58 left to finish the scoring for Prestonsburg.

Caudill led the South Floyd defense with five solo hits and three assists. T. L. Pack, a sophomore and a first-year player, had four first hits and two assists.

South Floyd coach Donnie Daniels said that the game was a learning experience for his ballclub.

"We left the game with a good feeling," said the Raiders' coach. "We were able to move the ball against them early. Here we are playing a team that is ranked fifth in the state. But they were much more stronger than we were and quicker. We need to get into the weight room more."

"Bill is a class-act at Prestonsburg. He didn't have to play us. He could have played someone who would have been a stronger opponent. But he wants to help us build our program."

He started low at Prestonsburg and he has built the program into one of the best teams in the state. I was disappointed. No. I'm disappointed with our 0-2 start. But this team will get better and better with each game."

Daniels, who scouted Prestonsburg at Clay County, said that while the Clay County players were wanting out of the game against Prestonsburg, "my kids weren't wanting out."

"We can build on a game like this," Daniels said. "We've never seen the caliber of back that Prestonsburg has. I feel that a lot of good things can come out of a game like this."

The Raiders moved the football from their own 35 to the Prestonsburg 28 before a penalty hurt them.

Rushes for good yardage!

Bobcats

will the win was pleasing to Coach Derossett.

"I'm happy we won the game, but at the same time, I am disappointed with our effort. I thought our offense did better, but our defense was not as strong and made the difference in the game."

Coach Derossett said that his "blackcat" didn't get into the game until the third quarter.

Morgan County awaits the Bobcats this coming Friday night and Derossett is confident his team will be the first to respond.

Against Morgan County, they would allow us to even be in the game unless we come ready to play on the first play of the game. Morgan County is the best team of our first three opponents and if we are to win, we must improve drastically.

Betsy Layne's 200 is not coming for a district title for the second straight year. However, the Bobcats still have a chance to win district titles.

Flag football

Coach Derossett takes the step to expand the sports around the school and means to see Knutson is doing it all the way. Knutson will be the first to contact the school and will be the first to contact the school.

Knutson

"Such was the scene of the Betsy Layne car on the high school parking lot as it got underway in its past week-end. Knutson scored the first touchdown in the new league."

This year at Betsy Layne, third and fourth graders are able to participate in an on-site flag league that is designed to teach the fundamentals of the game and to provide recreational opportunities for the area youth.

The players in the new league practice on Monday and Tuesday's at 3:30 p.m. Games are held each Saturday at 10 a.m. Teams in the league are coached by John Knutson, Randy Elkins, Larry Cecil, Jody Cecil and Solomon Kilburn.

Coach Derossett says the new league can only help the high school program down the road.

When these kids get to the high school level, said Coach Derossett, they will have a solid foundation and they are really having fun.

Now he is looking for a team to play in the new league. If you are interested, contact the school and will be the first to contact the school.

Rebels

It started to rain early in the second quarter of a 14 game Holbrook hit point game with a 19-yard touch down pass after watching his team catch back because of two costly penalties. The Pirates were struggling on the 12 and 11 until they were flagged for an off-side call, then a clipping penalty pushed them back to the 27.

With 2:06 left in the first half Nelson struck again for a 20-yard score. Right Holbrook took a Holbrook pass from 3-yards out and Holbrook hit center with the conversion play.

The Rebels played most of the game in the middle of the field as they moved back and forth. When Central got on the scoreboard in the third period when Osborne ran across from 6-yards out for the TD. Floyd added the two-point conversion to make it a 20-8 game.

Fleming Neen put the final touches on the score when they crossed the goal line with 1:21 left in the game. Jamie Hall scored from 4-yards out and Holbrook hit Elswick with the two-point conversion play to make it 26-8.

The Rebels had opportunities to score in the game. They found good field position in the first, second and third periods. But the Pirates defense met the challenge and turned the Rebels back.

Holbrook set the tone of the game early as the Pirates marched down the field, consistently consuming large chunks of yardage per play. After the Rebels intercepted a pass for 21-yards for the Rebels on-scissors carries. They turned the ball over three times on interception and two fumbles.

Allent Central received 45-yards in penalties on five flags. The Pirates were penalized for yards on many calls. Fleming Neen was having problems lining up at the line of scrimmage and were called for the mistakes.

The Rebels made only 151 yards total offense and 151 of those yards came on the ground. Fleming Neen ran 57 plays to Allent Central's 43.

Justin Salsbury had the game's only sack when he caught Holbrook behind the line of scrimmage and threw him for a 7-yard loss.

The Rebels played their second district game in as many starts and fell to 1-1 in the district and overall. It was also the first win of the season for Fleming Neen and also their first district victory.

Allent Central will entertain powercat game in as many starts and fell to 1-1 in the district and overall. It will be the third consecutive district matchup for Coach Glenn Reeves ballclub.

Prizes, awards to highlight annual car show at Martin

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

New ideas will be incorporated into this year's First Guaranty National Bank's Red, White and Blue Car Show.

A grand prize of a $1,000 savings bond will be awarded to the Best of Show this year and that is just a tip of what car enthusiasts can take home at this year's event to be held in Martin October 16 at the bank's parking lot.

"We're busy getting things together," said show director Tim Mills. "We're looking to having a big show and a better one this year."

Mills said that while the Kentucky Opry will not be on hand, there will be entertainment for the crowd. Reels on Wheels DJ Bruce Higgins from Louisville will be on hand to provide music from the '50s and '60s, as well as the latest hits of today.

"I heard him at a wedding reception," said Mills, "and he is really good."

There will be something for the kids this year, also. "Barney" will be in attendance and the kids (and adults) can have their picture taken with Barney, receive some candy as well as a free coupon for ice cream at the Dairy Queen, all for only $5.

Also for the youngsters and adults, a model car show will highlight the evening. The contest is open to everyone and there will be a $1 entry fee. The winner of the model car show will receive a $50 savings bond as well as a trophy.

Those who remember the days of the "hoola hoop" can relive those days by entering the "Hoola Hoop" contest for all ages. A $50 savings bond and a trophy will be awarded to the individual who can keep the hoop going. Just $1 to enter.

A face painting booth will be set up for those who want a change in how they look. Chances will be sold at the show for a drawing on four directional (another name for fancy) wheels and tires, or the winner can take home cash instead.

Mills said all trophies will be awarded after the parade and a picture of the winning car will be placed on next year's sweatshirts.

"People are always asking 'who won,'" said Mills. "This year we will have a place for the winner to drive his car and they can see who won. Then we will put the winner on the front of next year's sweatshirts."

Clogger, line dancers and other events are planned for one of Eastern Kentucky's largest car shows. There will be fun in store for everyone and the show promises to be the best yet.

If you are a car show nut like most of us, you want to mark October 16 on your calendar and be in Martin for the event of the year.

Blackcats' Ratliff could miss Whitesburg game, maybe more

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

The Prestonsburg Blackcats faced the South Floyd Raiders this past Friday night minus their starting quarterback Thomas Ratliff. Ratliff was diagnosed as being a diabetic and was hospitalized after doctors discovered his sugar level reached 948.

The diabetes was diagnosed when Ratliff had four wisdom teeth cut out last Monday, according to his mother Joyce Ratliff.

"He just kept getting worse and worse," she said, "and we took him to the doctor."

Ratliff is home now and "doing good," his mother said. "He went back to school but I'm worried about him," she stated. "He is doing good but seems to be depressed about it."

Doctors said that Ratliff can lead a normal life with the medical problem, but that he will be limited as to what he can do.

"The doctors said that he could still play football," his mother said. "He will have to take some classes with a dietician and learn some things about it. He needs to learn when he gets weak that he needs to eat something."

Exercise is the best thing for those who have diabetes, said Mrs. Ratliff. "The doctors said that if he just sits down it would get worse."

"The biggest thing for Ratliff is to know what he can and cannot do."

Coach (Bill) Letton has been "super about it," she said. "He came down and visited Thomas three times in the hospital and said that he wanted to know more about diabetes and took home a kit with him."

Letton said that it was a day-today situation with Ratliff and he is waiting to talk with the doctors.

"We'll sit down and talk with the doctors about Thomas," said Letton. "I think he will be back in the lineup. We'll let them tell us when he will be ready."

Coach Letton said that Ratliff had picked up 10-12 pounds of the weight he had lost.

"He thinks his athletic career is over," said his mother. "He just needs to rest awhile."

Ratliff's mother said that they had thought at first the reason he was tired was because of the loss of potassium.

"I thought with practicing two times each day that was what was wrong with him," she said. "But we had to learn the hard way."

"With his teeth bothering him, they thought it would be best to have them taken out before the team was to play a crucial game."

Ratliff is a gifted athlete who loves the game of football. Ratliff was impressive in his first game when he guided the Blackcats to a 43-0 win over powerful Clay County on the road.

If there is anyone who can come back, it will be Thomas Ratliff. This year, he will be behind center calling out the cadence for the Blackcats. Until then, Coach Letton said that the team will continue to use Keith Marsille at quarterback.

TO THE FAMILIES OF PRESTONSBURG:

As the November election rapidly approaches, I have had an opportunity to talk with many people in Prestonsburg about their concerns for the future of our town. Several topics have been brought to my attention, and I hope to address all of them before the election.

One of the main issues seems to be, "What can be done to help the downtown section of Prestonsburg flourish?" I would like to mention some ideas I have regarding this section of town.

1. To attract business to our downtown area, I will propose the removal of the remaining parking meters. Little income is derived from this source (less than $250.00 in an average month). The good will created between the city, business community and patrons will more than make up for the loss of this income.
2. Aggressive steps will be taken to secure an adequate storm drainage system for the city. During heavy downpours, many streets become impassable, and damage occurs to many homes and businesses. This must be corrected and can only be done with help and funding from Washington. This is also true for several public works projects our hometown could use.
3. For BOTH the city's and county's sake, Prestonsburg needs to remain the county seat and everything needed to keep the courthouse "Government Center" in Prestonsburg MUST be done. The area known as "downtown" has evolved into a service oriented professional center augmented with specialty shops and restaurants. The addition of the center to this downtown WILL stimulate new growth and give the WHOLE area a needed shot in the arm.

I believe all three of these points are important and relevant to our town, and if elected I will make sure that these projects are addressed to make our town a better place for us to live and raise our children in.

Sincerely,
George P. Archer

The fun of fishing By Scott Patton and made possible by these sponsors:

Scott Patton fishes the BASS-MASTERS Tournament Trail. He won the 1989 B.A.S.S. Federation State Championship. He was named 1987 Hydra Sports Points Champion.

Scott is sponsored by TRACKER Marine, Burnett Brothers Boat Mart, Mercury Outboards, Nichols Lures, St. Croix, Triple Fish Line, VMC Hooks, and Hummingbird Electronics.

It took three Prestonsburg defenders to haul down South Floyd's Eric Moore on this carry in last Monday's junior varsity game between the two schools. Moore rushed for 42 yards, but his team fell 24-6. (photo by Ed Taylor)

I would like to offer some advice for when you find a dry spell has caused the water level of your favorite lake to go down considerably. Look at the positive side of it: There's that much less water for the bass to hide in.

If the shallow brush is out of the water, use your senses or your depth finder to figure out where the bass have gone.

The same group of bass seldom show up in the exact same place twice. However, a new group will usually take the old ones' place, given time. What separates the pros from other fishermen is knowing where to locate fish in between this time frame. When nature surprises us and our bass have had to pull out because of low water, they may have only moved 75 yards or so away. Many fishermen will give up and go look somewhere else when they don't find bass where they would like to find them or even where they expect to find them. A good bass angler will start looking for clues to tell them where the bass are.

You should begin by finding the first drop off from the edge of the current water level. Often bass will retreat with the water level and look for the first available cover or structure.

So when you find the water is low, use your imagination and let go of your favorite spot. You'll soon find the bass have just relocated and probably to some place very nearby.

ATTENTION FISHERMEN
If you have any questions, suggestions, or comments, please contact me. You can write to Scott Patton, 4912 Jerry Drive, Shepherdsville, Ky. 40165. I will respond either by mail or in my article in your local paper.

NEW FISHING LINES HAVE ANGLERS EXCITED

The days of spooling on fresh line after every fishing trip, or in the case of the bass tournament pro, re-spooling after every day of competition, may be over.

Two new fishing lines, the first major new innovations in line since the introduction of monofilament in 1958, will soon become available, and the tournament pros are excited.

"I used one of the new lines during the Bassmaster Tournament Trail Texas Invitational on Sam Rayburn Reservoir, and never changed line all week," says Johnson Outboards Pro Staff angler Randy Dearman, who won the event with a three-day catch of nearly 70 pounds.

"It is absolutely the strongest line I've ever used, but it is still limp enough for easy casting and it has practically no stretch."

Dearman's line, Spectra, is a high-density polyethylene fiber imported from Germany for Allied Signal Corporation. Allied Signal does not make the line itself; it sells the bulk material to other firms that braid strands together to produce lines ranging from 35 to 80 pound test.

"I used the 80 pound test line for flipping jigs into thick cover at Rayburn," continues Dearman. "and I had another reel spooled with the line for Carolina rigging. I was in weeds, brush, and trees all week and never broke the line."

The Johnson pro had actually used the new line in earlier tournaments in Alabama and Georgia. To test its strength, he wrapped the line from his rod around a bush several times, then tied it to his boat cleat and drove away. Instead of breaking the line as he expected, he pulled up the bush by its roots.

One of America's largest fishing line manufacturers, DuPont Corporation, which actually developed monofilament, plans to introduce its own new line in July at the American Fishing Tackle Manufacturer's Association meeting in Las Vegas. DuPont's line will be braided Kevlar, an extremely high-strength fiber best known for its use in bullet-proof vests.

Denny Brauer, a member of the Evinrude Outboards Pro Staff, has used this line in preliminary tests, and rates it as a major step forward in line technology.

What's amazing is the castability these new lines have in relation to the pound test strength," says Brauer.

"Normally, the higher the pound test, the stiffer and more difficult the lines are to cast, but the line I've used casts like 20-pound test although it rates at about 100 pound test."

"These new lines are not going to totally replace monofilament," adds Dearman, "because they're expensive. They are high performance lines that should appeal most to the serious fishermen.

"I know the bass tournament pros are excited about them. This line was a major factor in my tournament win, and I hope it'll give me another."

*Bassmaster Tournament Trail is a registered trademark of the Bass Anglers Sportsman Society.
Evinrude and Johnson's outboard dealers offer the Pro-Team Bass Vest, a personal flotation device (PFD) designed for bass fishermen. The vest features four pockets, adjustable sides, and a D-ring for attaching an emergency ignition cut-off tether.

SOME BASS SEEM DESTINED TO BE CAUGHT

Some bass, it seems, are destined to be caught, no matter how hard they try to escape.

At least that's what a two pound largemouth in South Carolina's Lake Murray must have thought after being reeled in by angler Randy Dearman during a national bass tournament there recently.

"The fish hit right beside a bush," says Dearman, a member of the Johnson Outboards Pro Staff and long-time guide on Lake Livingston in Texas, "and as I set the hook, my line broke right above the reel."

"I tried to grab the line as the bass pulled it through the rod guides, but I missed it. Then I missed it again as it floated across the water as the bass swam away."

By all rights, that fish should have been on its way to freedom then, but Dearman yelled to his partner to try to snag the line, which by now had disappeared below the surface, with a lure.

Amazingly, the line was snagged on the second cast, but again, Dearman missed grabbing it and the line disappeared into the water once more.

Somehow the line was snagged again with another lucky cast, and this time Dearman caught it. Carefully he started pulling in the bass, wrapping line around his hand a few inches at a time.

"I brought him on board," laughs the Johnson pro, "and it was a keeper weighing about two pounds. It went into the livewell as part of my limit that day."

"Tournament rules state only that bass must be caught by rod and reel in a 'sporting manner,' and I think my method was about as sporting as it could be.

"That bass had every opportunity possible to escape, but it just seemed destined to be caught that day."

Although Dearman's experience is unusual, many tournament pros can tell equally odd-ball tales of how they brought bass into the boat.

"When you're fishing the thick grassbeds down in Florida's Lake Okeechobee, bass occasionally land in the boat as they try to jump out of the way," says fellow Johnson Outboards Pro Staffer Ron Shuffield.

"I've had two and three pounders jump into the boat with me, and a friend once had a bass weighing over nine pounds jump into the boat with him as he cased through the grass. I don't know who was more surprised, the bass or my friend."

The service experts at OMC recommend that bass boosters and other high performance enthusiasts install a water pressure gauge on their boat. Outboards can lose water pressure if the motor is trimmed or raised too high, or if the water intake is covered with weeds or mud. Loss of water pressure can lead to overheating. A water pressure gauge gives earlier warning of trouble than an engine temperature gauge.

Most improved squad!

The South Floyd junior varsity football cheerleaders were voted the most improved squad at the recent UCA cheerleading camp this year. The squad also won several superior ribbons as well as spirit sticks each night. Squad members include Misty Newsome, Jessica Maldonado, Donna Newsome, Miranda Ouseley, Joni Price, Brandi Tuttle, Jeda Hall, Alicia Hall, Lora Chaffins, Leslie Howell, Becky Hopkins, Brandi Presley and Brandi Stumbo.

Good blocking downfield!

Prestonsburg's Seth Hyden (32) followed the blocking of Dwayne Garza (28) as he broke loose for a touchdown against South Floyd in the first period Friday night. Hyden had three TDs and rushed for 108 yards in his team's 47-0 win. (photo by Tom McIntire)

Morris leads junior varsity Blackcats past South Floyd

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

Jon Morris rambled for 137 yards on 13 carries to lead the Prestonsburg junior varsity Blackcats to a 24-6 win over the South Floyd junior Raiders Monday evening at Wheelwright's Bracket Field.

Morris scored two touchdowns and ran two conversions plays also. Jason Pack had an interception and returned the football 16 yards for a TD.

An off-sides call on the junior Raiders led to the first score for Prestonsburg. The Blackcats were faced with a fourth and two situation when a long cadence count by quarterback Mike Castle drew the Raiders off-side and gave Prestonsburg a first down.

Actually, it was two breaks for Prestonsburg that set the 15-yard touchdown run by Morris. Prestonsburg had fumbled the football but did recover it on the 20-yard line.

Morris ran the two-point conversion to give Prestonsburg the 8-0 lead at the end of the first quarter.

Prestonsburg looked as if they were on the board again when Morris ran into the end zone from 27 yards out. But the touchdown was nullified on an off-side call against the Blackcats.

Morris scored again on a 4-yard run but once again a personal foul against Prestonsburg brought the football back. South Floyd held the Blackcats on the fourth down play and took over on their own 13.

Deep in their own territory, Raider quarterback Scotty Johnson was forced to put the ball in the air. Jason Pack picked off a Johnson pass on a fourth and 11 play and returned the ball 16 yards for the touchdown. Morris scored the conversion and Prestonsburg led 16-0.

Early in the third period Prestonsburg made it a 24-0 game when Morris hit pay dirt on a 43-yard scamper. He added the two extra points.

The Raiders avoided being shut-out when Johnson connected with Brian Triplett with a 21-yard pass to make it 24-6.

Eric Moore carried the football eight times for South Floyd and rushed for 42 yards. South Floyd lost the football twice on interceptions and once on a fumble. Prestonsburg fumbled the ball four times, losing it three times.

All-State team

Ashley Nicole Tackett, daughter of Paul and Anita Tackett of Teaberry, was chosen as a member of the Kentucky AAU 14 and under All-State team. Only 12 players from the state are chosen for these honors. Tackett averaged over 14 points a game and pulled down eight rebounds per contest.

Ask Dr. Bubba

Editor's Note: Bubba is not a licensed, practicing therapist, but has earned Ph.D.s in analytical psychology and the figure-four leg-lock from the prestigious World Wrestling Federal University. Dr. Bubba recently lost his hair in a tragic jigsaw accident, but doctors say he is recovering nicely and his body has not yet rejected the special Shatter Turbo 2000 artificial hair transplant.

Dear Dr. Bubba: For the past several weeks, I've been remodeling my house all by myself. I've installed new windows, new insulation and I nailed up new wood siding and re-shingled the roof. I don't mind the work, but I sure wish my husband would do more than just watch me and suck down Budweisers and then say "When you finished with that ya can fix me up a mess of vittles." My question is, what exactly are "vittles," where do I find them and how are they best prepared? Also, what kind of measurement is a "mess"? A Liberated Woman, Prestonsburg

Dear Liberated: Oh, yeah, yer a nineties woman, alright. Yer a reg'lar Gloria Steinem. Look babe, tell that scuzbucket to get off his sorry backside an' start pullin' his own weight. Just forget about the "vittles" an' the "mess" until he starts treatin' ya right. An' if he DON'T start treatin' ya right, divorce the bum, take 'im fer ever 'ahing he's worth an' leave 'im broke an' alone catin' Hungry Man dinners over the sink. An' if ya need a place to stay after that, well, I got spare room an' a whole sink full o' dirty dishes, so just give me a call.

Dear Dr. Bubba: After a long and happy marriage (lasting almost 22 and a half days) my beloved wife, Becky Sue Broadbottom, has left me for another man. I am so mad that when I catch up with this creep, I'm not only going to beat him about the head with my ure iron, but I am also going to break both his legs, burn his truck and shave his head. I don't know who this home-wrecker is, but I have managed to find out that he is in the newspaper business; that he has real bad breath; the first letter of his name is "B"; and that he was recently run out of Floyd County by an angry mob and is now living in Lawrence County. Since you are in the business, I thought you might know this guy. There is a five dollar bill in it for you if you can tell me his name and address. Mad Dog Mike in Melvin

Dear Mad Dog: Nope. Can't help ya. Never seem 'im. Never even heard of this what'd you say 'er name was? Becky Sue? Nope, don't know no Becky Sue neither. Sorry, I'll keep an eye out for ya, though, an' I run into this guy, I'll take care of 'im for ya. Honest. So you could just, who know, forget about the whole thing, 'cause it's took care of.

That's about all the space we got for this week, kids. You 'uns keep sending in them cards an' letters to "Ask Dr. Bubba," c/o The Big Sandy News, P.O. Box 766, Lousia, Ky. 41230, an' we 'uns'll keep tryin' to answer 'em to the best of our ability, just as long as we 'uns don't incriminate ourselves by doin' so.

Family reunion becomes festival

14th Annual Floyd County Slone Mountain Squirrel Festival

by Sandra Slone

Editor's note: The following article is a brief history of Slone Mountain Squirrel Festival. This year's festival, located near McDowell on Route 1086 off the Wayland-Minnie Road, takes place Saturday, September 12.

The soft, low hanging mist lifted slowly from the majestic mountain peaks of eastern Kentucky revealing an artist's pallet of fall colors. The dew was giving the shady plants of wild ferns, mushrooms and lilies of the Valley a last refreshing drink for the day.

A newly constructed road which wound through the small hollows and, from bench to bench atop the mountain, led to a clearing shaded with tall hickory nut and oak trees. This was the spot selected for the first Slone and Cassell picnic.

Mummy's (Virginia Cassell Slone), family did not have the opportunity to visit as often as they would have liked to; work and miles kept them apart. Many hours of planning went into making sure everyone knew about the event. On the other hand, Daddy's (Helton Slone's), family lived near and plans were made and passed on by word of mouth. It really did not matter to Daddy if you were a family member or not; if he met you, you were invited. So on this beautiful morning, Cassells, Slones and numerous friends, not knowing they were setting a precedent for what was to become the Slone Mountain Squirrel Festival, merged atop one of Kentucky's most beautiful mountains.

Only a few of these gatherings were held. Work, school, college, the army and hard economic times dominated most of the family's time. Early in the spring of 1976, we began discussing the possibilities of another picnic.

The Slones and Cassells would once again gather with family, friends, neighbors and anyone else who chose to venture on to the mountain.

The first festival, held in its present location eleven feet above sea level, gave the visitors a magnificent and unbelievable view. Only a small area had been cleared underneath the trees to accommodate the guests who enjoyed themselves eating and listening to music performed by family members, watching young students dance to folk music and listening to other talented people in the community perform. One small stage area was the center of gospel, country and rock music from nine in the morning until six in the evening.

That year, there was only one large iron pot of soupbans simmering over a slow burning wood fire. Daddy had reserved a cooler spot underneath a huge oak tree to prove that he could cook the finest squirrel and make the best squirrel gravy in the state. Next door to the "King of the Mountain" was another fellow who declared he could cook groundhog gourmet style. To the right was a medium-sized gourmet pit holding a fairly large pig, guarded by a soft-spoken man who, along with a couple of friends, had been on duty since the evening before making sure the pig roasted slowly and would be done by lunch time.

Placed on four tables were many other dishes ranging from chicken to cornbread. Cakes and pies were served as desserts and Kool Aid, coffee and water were the beverages.

All was ready, lines were formed, children's games were halted and the eating began. When there was nothing left on the tables but empty pots, bowls and plates, everyone gathered once again underneath the shade trees to enjoy the rest of the afternoon talking with family and friends and to listen to mountain music. After everyone had left the mountain except the family and a few friends, we found ourselves accompanied by the perfect weather and the number of persons who had joined us to celebrate this special day.

That day was fourteen years ago and many changes have been made. The entire mountain top is now cleared of underbrush and roads wind through the tall timber encircling the mountain's highest peak.

Instead of the one lonely pot of soupbans, there are now approximately twelve of them filled with soupbans and smuerkraut. A long line of barbecue pits with lifts replaced the first pit. The afternoon of the day before, a team of volunteers began preparing many types of meats such as beef, venison, pork, mutton, goat, groundhog, and last but not least, squirrel. An all-night vigil takes place as the team makes sure the right amount of coals are in the pits.

The four tables have been replaced by two long lines of tables filled with large serving pans. A volunteer stands behind each pan ready to heap servings of food on plates. Ice cold Kool Aid is the official drink.

There are now five stages to accommodate every music lover. The western side of the mountain peak has a natural amphitheater which is the site of the all-day gospel and bluegrass singing. The eastern slope is the location of stages one through three for those who enjoy country and rock music. Stage five is situated above the cooking and serving area and is used to entertain the long lines of people waiting patiently to be served dinner.

Guests may stroll along the arts and crafts area where they can become involved in a part of our almost forgotten mountain history. The broom-maker may ask you if you would like to try your hand at making a broom. The man who makes dulcimers may, at any given time, have a group clogging to "Turkey in the Straw." The chairmaker may let you take a rest in one of his chairs that he has just completed. Quiltmakers and portrait painters greet visitors with a smile and eagerly talk about their craft.

One of the busiest displays is the lye soap making demonstration. People of all ages make it a point to stop by and talk about all the uses they have found the soap to be good for, to help stir the boiling pot and get their yearly supply of soap.

And we didn't forget the children. Games such as the greasy pole climb, the greasy pig chase, the egg toss, the crazy crawl, and the girls' and boys' sack races entertain the children all day long. The games are supervised by volunteers.

Before we realize it, the sun has begun to disappear behind the tall mountain peaks and a lonely feeling has replaced the smiles and laughter. Once again the mountain is host to only a few friends and family who linger to plan how to improve next year's gathering.

Kim's Korner

THE GLOVED ONE DID HE OR DIDN'T HE?

by Kim Frasure

No matter what channel of news you're watching, or what newspaper you're reading, you've heard the latest episode of Michael Jackson.

Whether this news is an extortion attempt or true remains in question. Now, if you've even watched a Michael Jackson video or seen him on a music awards show, you have to admit he's one weird individual.

And weird doesn't qualify one as a child abuser, I know. I have yet to analyze the reason Michael and Madonna repeatedly grab themselves.

What message that act is supposed to send is beyond me.

Michael, on the other hand, has surrounded himself with children in videos as well as contributing millions to the Heal the World Foundation to help children in need.

He's been seen with Emmanuel Lewis (Webster) and Macaulay Culkin (Home Alone) and has made public statements such as "I find children more fun to be with than adults," according to People Magazine's September 6 issue.

It's hard to imagine that someone so childlike could be so cruel to a child.

From his soft spoken voice to the likes of his Neverland ranch, it just doesn't seem possible that the "gloved one" could do anything that ludicrous.

No matter what Jackson releases, always seems to turn to gold.

Now, if the reports find Michael Jackson guilty of sexual abuse, I for one believe he won't be the only one tarnished, but so will his music.

I suppose we'll just have to stay tuned and wait for the conclusion.

PART II

Another news topic recently was the separation of the Lakeberg Siamese twins, a heartbreaking story that no person would ever dream of having to endure.

The Lakebergs from Lake Village, Arkansas, faced a decision that would make any individual feel compassion for their situation. However, after reading an article on Ken Lakeberg (father of the twins) he gets no compassion or sympathy from me.

It seems Ken not only is facing a possible prison term, but as his twins were being surgically separated on August 20, he was spending $8,000 of the funds raised for the funeral and medical expenses on drugs, cars and food.

Any was the weakest of the twins who shared a heart and Angela was the one whose position of the heart developed in better condition.

Any's funeral, August 24, was not held without friction. The night before Ken and a brother-in-law were in a fistfight over whether to keep Any's funeral closed casket.

After reading this article my heart ached for Joey Lakeberg, the mother who has gone through such trauma. It's unreal. And then to read of her husband's actions adds more sympathy than a soul can muster.

Just when you think nothing else could possibly be as bad in your life, she's to deal with a man with more problems than are imaginable.

Sometimes it's just not worth knowing, ya know? Till next week. On a happier note, birthday wishes to Lincoln and Whitney Stone.

ROSHINERS AND NUMBERS

I'll admit, I was sort of surprised when I learned that there was no such word as "roshiners."

I was sitting in a health class in the old Weaver Building on the campus of Eastern Kentucky State College in the fall of 1957.

The class was discussing the basic food groups, when corn was mentioned. All I said was that I loved roshiners. I might just as well have been speaking in a foreign tongue, because everybody just kind of stared at me like they had no earthly idea of what I'd just said. I blubbered to think what they'd done if I'd referred to a "paw paw."

I tried to explain, "You know, roshiners? Corn! Corn on the cob."

"Old Lady Hood," I think, because "Hood" was her last name) told me I meant "roasting ear."

"No, you don't roast them, you boil them in water," I explained further.

Everybody laughed, except me, of course.

Personally, I felt sort of sorry for those kids from Louisville and southern Indiana, and places like that, who didn't know what a roshiner was.

Anyway, I thought I liked roshiners about as well as anybody could... until I married Wilma, that is. I've never seen a woman love roshiners like she does. I wouldn't be surprised if she didn't fix roshiners for breakfast some morning. (Now! That wouldn't work. Roshiners and pop-tarts? Naw!)

I think someday when I retire, I'll buy me a good team of mules and two or three acres of river bottom somewhere and raise her tons of roshiners.

Of course, if some city slicker should drop by for supper for should I raise my pinky finger and say, "dunnah!" I'll see if I can't rustle up a "roasting ear" for them.

Just between you, me and the gate post, though, roshiners are a lot better.

*****
This next tid-bit has nothing to do with roshiners, except to me at least, it sure is "corny" using.

If you follow these six little mathematical instructions, you'll be surprised at what you'll discover.

(1) Write down a number of any size.

(2) Double it

(3) Add 5

(4) Multiply the result by 50

(5) Now, add 1,743

(6) And last, subtract the year in which you were born. There, now? Aren't you surprised? I mean, look at the number you've ended up with. The last two digits are your age (that is if you've already had your birthday this year. If you haven't, that's how old you'll be when you do).

And what a coincidence. The other digits are the very same ones you had when you started. Go figure.

Floyd County declines in infant mortality rate

Floyd County's 1992 infant mortality rate fell from 1991's 4.9 deaths per 1,000 live births to 3.0 deaths per 1,000 live births, according to statistics released by the Cabinet for Human Resources.

Fifty-five counties in Kentucky recorded a decline in infant mortality rates. The infant mortality rate is the number of babies per 1,000 live births who die before their first birthday. It is considered a major indicator of a society's overall health status.

Kentucky's infant mortality rate has fallen steadily since 1960 when the rate was 27.8.

In 1992, Kentuckians gave birth to 53,655 infants, of whom 444 died. These numbers compare to 53,703 births and 472 infant deaths in 1991.

when the infant mortality rate was 8.8.

"The continuing decline in the number of infant deaths is due to a cooperative effort between public and private medical professionals," said Dr. Patricia Nicol, director of the Department for Health Services' Maternal and Child Health Division.

"The impact on infant mortality — either positive or negative — comes from a variety of sources," she said. "To find reasons for the decrease in the rate, we can look to the public prenatal and well-child care provided by health departments in every Kentucky county."

"We can look to the hundreds of private physicians who have worked with their patients to bring about a decline in the rate. And we can look to the improving medical care of critically ill newborns, especially at hospitals in Louisville and Lexington."

Nicol said that with Medicaid coverage for pregnant women plus the availability of prenatal care for low-income women at health departments, there are no longer financial barriers to early and adequate prenatal care, the most important factor in having a healthy baby.

However, a figure disturbing to state officials is the number of women who do not get early prenatal care or get none at all. Of mothers whose babies died, 36 percent of them received prenatal care after the first trimester or received no care at all.

Early and adequate prenatal care can help prevent low birth-weight and premature births, Nicol said. Prematurity is the leading cause of infant death — causing 26 percent of the 1992 deaths.

Of babies who died in 1992, 52 percent of them were low birth-weight.

Births to teens were also down as was the infant mortality rate among infants born to teen mothers. In 1992, 8,911 babies were born to teens. 96 of these infants died, producing a 1.08 infant mortality rate. In 1991, the comparable figures were 9,590 live births, 116 deaths and a 12.4 rate.

The 1992 infant mortality rate for the Big Sandy Development District was 2.7.

Davey Crockett searches for a wife

Davey Crockett is one of America's most famous folk heroes. From a humble beginning he went on to become a United States Congressman who received consideration as a presidential candidate before dying at the Alamo.

His father, John Crockett, owned a tavern in an area known as Messy Creek. It was located about ten or twelve miles north at Dandridge, on the early road from Knoxville to Washington, near present-day Jefferson City, Tennessee.

In the late 1790's the senior Crockett hired out his 12-year-old son to Jacob Siler, a man he had met the preceding day. He assisted Siler in herding cattle to Rockbridge County, Virginia, a distance of four hundred miles. Siler attempted to keep Davey in his employ by force after their return. Young Davey stole away in the night and hitched a ride to his father's home with a band of travelers.

Afterwards the youthful Davey Crockett bound himself to debtors of his father on several occasions to liquidate his debts. He worked six months to pay a thirty-six dollar note to Abraham Wilson and another six months for John Kennedy, a Quaker, to erase a forty dollar debt.

Davey proved to be a good worker and, following his period of servitude, he presented his father's promissory notes to him. The elder Crockett cried tears of gratitude.

The youthful Crockett, his garb thoroughly tattered following his year of work, then returned to John Kennedy to work in order to acquire money to buy new clothes.

The Quaker's niece came for a visit during his period of servitude and Crockett had his first experience with love.

"I reckon no poor devil in the world was ever cursed with a love such as mine," he wrote years later while serving in the United States Congress. "I found myself head over heels in love with this girl."

The youthful Crockett was struck to the extent that he couldn't talk to her. "I was afraid to begin a discussion," he said. "My heart would begin to flutter like a duck in a puddle. If I tried to speak, it would get right snuck up in my throat, and choke me like a cold potato."

"I finally concluded that I must die if I didn't try to speak till my heart would get out of my throat one way or another."

Davey approached her and after several false starts he was able to confide that she was "the darling object of his soul and body."

When she told the youthful Crockett that she was engaged, he experienced an acute case of melancholy.

"This news was worse to me than war, pestilence, or famine; but I knew I couldn't help myself. I tried to cool off as fast as possible, but I had hardly safety pipes enough, as my love was so hot as mighty nigh to burst my boilers."

Davey surmised that his loss and heartache was due to a lack of schooling. He had attended only four days of school in his entire life and didn't know a single letter of the alphabet. He immediately began a program of self improvement and agreed with Kennedy to work two days each week for his board and four days of schooling. The Quaker had a married son who taught school nearby.

Crockett applied himself diligently for several months before deciding that he could not get along any longer without a wife.

"I found a family of very pretty little girls that I had known when very young," Davey wrote. "I got my loving one of them as bad as I had loved the Quaker's niece. I would have agreed to fight a whole regiment of wild cats if she would only have said she would have me."

When Davey finally asked Margaret Hill for her hand she gave him a positive answer. He kept pressing her for a positive answer until finally she relented and said she would become Mrs. Davey Crockett. He went to the Dandridge courthouse and got the necessary license.

But when the wedding day arrived, he found that his would-be bride had decided to marry the following day—to someone else.

"This was as sudden to me as a clap of thunder on a bright sunny day," Crockett wrote. "It seemed more to me than I or any human creature could endure. It struck me perfectly speechless for some time and made me feel so weak, that I thought I would sink down."

After his disappointment Davey thought that there was no mate for him.

"I thought that I was born odd," he wrote, remembering his depression. "I thought I would always remain so, and that nobody would love me. I had no peace day or night for several weeks. My appetite failed me and I grew worse and worse every day."

"They all thought I was sick and so I was. But it was the worst kind of sickness, a sickness of the heart which was brought on by disappointed love."

John's note: Davey Crockett finds a bride and rushes to the altar in London. From the Mountains next week in the Floyd County Times.

 1 Tbsp. minced parsley
 1/2 Tsp. seasoned salt
 1/2 Tsp. salt
 1/2 Tsp. oregano
 Dash of pepper
 1 Clove garlic, minced
 1/2 Cup vegetable oil
 4 Eggs, slightly beaten
 Combine all ingredients, mixing well. Place in a greased 13" x 9" x 2" pan; bake at 350 degrees for 30 minutes. Cool in pan; cut in triangles. Freezes well.

 1 Tbsp. butter
 2 (14 1/2 ounce) Cans chicken broth
 4 to 5 Yellow squash
 Salt and pepper
 1 Pint light or heavy cream
 Sauté onion in butter until transparent. Add broth and squash and cook over medium heat until tender. Cool, process in blender until smooth. Add seasonings and cream. Chill for several hours. Serves 6.

Beef-Eggplant Parmesan

1 1/2 Pounds ground beef
 1 Onion, chopped

Dip eggplant slices in batter and fry until brown; drain on paper towels. In a casserole, alternate layers of eggplant, sauce and both cheeses, ending with a layer of cheeses. ## Cooperative education

Pikeville Methodist Hospital receives accreditation

Pikeville Methodist Hospital has achieved accreditation from the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Healthcare Organizations as a result of its demonstrated compliance with the Joint Commission's nationally recognized health care standards. The Joint Commission on-site survey of Pikeville Methodist occurred in February.

The mission of the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Healthcare Organizations is to improve the quality of health care provided to the public. The Joint Commission develops standards of quality in collaboration with health professionals and others, and stimulates health care organizations to meet or exceed the standards through accreditation and the teaching of quality improvement concepts.

It accredits more than 5,000 hospitals and evaluates and accredits more than 1,200 other health care programs. An organization voluntarily undergoes a survey by a full team of Joint Commission experts every three years.

Kentucky Housing Corporation lowers mortgage interest rate

Kentucky Housing Corporation announced recently that effective immediately its current mortgage interest rate for low to moderate income first-time homebuyers has been reduced to 6.50 percent, fixed for 30 years.

According to Cheryl Hupp, director of Homeownership Programs for Kentucky Housing Corporation, "This rate reduction demonstrates KHC's efforts to provide more families than ever before with the means to enter into homeownership." Because these low-rate funds are limited and on a first-come, first-served basis, Hupp recommends that interested potential homebuyers contact a local participating lender soon for more details.

To qualify for this special rate, individuals or families are evaluated by income according to family size. The maximum purchase price of a newly constructed home is $67,000, with an existing home being no more than $64,000. All loans will be FHA or VA insured.

For potential homebuyers having problems accumulating funds for the required downpayment and closing costs, Kentucky Housing Corporation offers a mortgage assistance program called EPIC (Equity Partners Investing in the Commonwealth). Under the EPIC Program, homebuyers can borrow up to 60 percent of their downpayment and closing costs up to $3,000 at a 3.5 percent interest rate for a term of seven years.

For more information on home loan financing, EPIC or a local participating lender, contact Kentucky Housing Corporation's Homeownership Department at (502) 564-7630, (800) 633-8896 or (800) 247-2510 (for the hearing impaired only).

According to the American Heart Association, 33 percent of all heart attacks occur in people under age 65, and five percent occur in people under age 40.

What's the "beef" about the beef?

If you are considering buying meat in bulk, the Better Business Bureau of Central & Eastern Kentucky, Inc., advises caution in choosing the supplier that will best fit your needs.

"There are many legitimate firms that offer bulk meat, or freezer food plants," explains BBB President, J.O. Tracey McClarmey. "However, consumers should be familiar with industry terms and practices to protect them from unscrupulous fly-by-night firms to which they might fall prey."

Carcase beef is normally sold by its "hangings" weight. This weight includes approximately 25 to 30 percent bone. The "hanging" weight of Agriculture (USDA) has developed country grades of quality and yield of carcass beef. Quality grades relate to tenderness and flavor and include an increasing order USDA Prime, Choice, Good, Standard, Commercial, Utility, Cutter and Canner, with Prime being the most desirable grade.

"Consumers should be regular buyers, other department meat firms, other than government grading," warns McClarmey. For example, "USDA Prime, Choice, Standard, Commercial, Utility, Cutter and Canner, are not government grades."

The Better Business Bureau further advises consumers to:

- Understand all costs that are included in the price per pound such as processing and finance charges. Don't be influenced by a "free" bonus offer of pork chops, turkey, chicken, etc. Their cost may be included in the price of what you buy.
- Arrange to select meat and have it cut on the same day while you are present. Most reliable dealers will allow you to be present when your selection of meat is cut and wrapped.
- Be cautious of such phrases as "beef bundles," or "steak packages." Make sure the representative specifies in writing the USDA grade, the type and the quantity of the various cuts.
- Read and understand the terms of the contract.

This farm contains an estimated 200 acres and is being conveyed by the boundary and not by the acre and joins the Wolfe County line and lying on both sides of Nickell Road. There is approximately 30 acres of bottom and cleared land, the rest being wooded land. There is a 5-room modern house of frame construction, and a 4-bent combination barn and also 2 old log home buildings. There is a tobacco allotment for 1993 of 3,821 lbs. which is reserved for this year. There is approximately 40 acres on the East side of Nickell Road. PROTECTING OUR WILDLIFE
Wetlands Conservation Saves Wildlife

(NAPS)—Making a splash with many Americans concerned about saving wildlife as well as our health and our economy is a plan to preserve our wetlands.

Wetlands marshes and swamps are the single most productive source of life on earth, ecologists agree. Perhaps no other single natural resource provides us with so many benefits:

- Cleaner water in lakes and rivers.
- Drinking water, thanks to recharged groundwater.
- Protection from flooding and soil erosion.
- Commercial and recreational swimming.
- Boating, swimming and other outdoor sports.
- Habitat for 600 wildlife species, many endangered.

Unfortunately, for the past 200 years, laws and policies which encouraged filling and draining wetland areas caused the destruction of more than 100 million acres of wetlands in the U.S. Wildlife numbers, especially waterfowl, have diminished as wetlands have disappeared.

Federal and state governments and private organizations have tried to abate further losses by purchasing wetland acreage. However, 74 percent of the remaining wetlands in the continental U.S. are found on private property, primarily farm land.

The goal of taking this land out of agricultural production is simply too high. That's why Ducks Unlimited, a conservation organization with over one-half million members, is working with private landowners to enhance their wetlands and ensure continued use of their property for agriculture.

Hundreds of landowners enrolled in Ducks Unlimited's Private Lands Program have already enjoyed such welcome results as better weed control, higher crop yields, improved grazing pastures and more waterfowl and wildlife and such projects can be implemented at little or no cost to the farmer. Successful projects include:

- On the Great Plains, low annual rainfall can leave ranchers with parched, depleted grasslands and serious soil erosion problems on croplands. To enable landowners in North Dakota to have a sustainable method of livestock grazing, Ducks Unlimited provided fencing and water development by ranchers. In turn, agreed to divide pastures and rotate livestock to avoid overgrazing at specific sites. Rotating pastures allows grass to improve and helps retain moisture. Ranchers using this method report overall improvements in the quality of their pastures.
- In California's Sacramento Valley, Private Lands biologists are working with rice farmers to demonstrate how flooding techniques will help them comply with new state environmental laws. To demonstrate an effective alternative to burning remaining crop stubble, Ducks Unlimited helped build a "rice roller" to flatten rice stems into the mud after harvest. The group also assisted with the timing, duration and depth specifications to flood the rice fields during growing season. Winter flooding decomposes the rice stubble and at the same time creates needed habitat for water fowl.

For free brochures on wetlands conservation, contact Ducks Unlimited, One Waterfowl Way, Memphis, TN 38120.

A year ago we began an aggressive campaign to be the very best in the Southeast. And that didn't just mean cosmetic changes to the outside. It meant major investments of both time and money to enhance the competence of our staff and facilities.

To complement the group of expert physicians, nurses and staff members already at King's Daughters Medical Center, we sought out and recruited top specialists from all over the United States.

We also made an investment in our facilities and equipment to help our staff perform their jobs better. A state-of-the-art cardiac catheterization lab. A CT scanner. A triple-head nuclear medicine camera. And laser surgery equipment, just to mention a few.

We've brought it all together. Right here. Right now. The finest equipment and professionals.

Which means that if you or a member of your family should ever come to King's Daughters' for medical care, you can rest assured you'll be in very good hands.
