Fannin's one-vote victory will stand :

Archer will drop election challenge

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

A one-vote margin will apparently stand in a hotly contested race for the mayor's seat in Prestonsburg.

An expected legal challenge to the November 2 outcome by second place finisher George Archer has been scrapped, Archer's attorney said Tuesday, clearing the way for mayor-elect Jerry Fannin to assume the post.

Fannin won the four-candidate election with 442 votes, one more than the 441 picked off by Archer. A canvass last month provided no change in the vote count and set up plans for a legal challenge from Archer.

On Tuesday, Archer's attorney, Phil Damron, said it would be better for the City of Prestonsburg not to file a lawsuit concerning the election.

"George basically ran because he thought it was in the best interest of Prestonsburg," Damron said. "It's in the best interest for Prestonsburg not to file suit at this time. It's more important to have an orderly change of administration rather than to have it tied up for months."

"We want to congratulate Mr. Fannin and offer our help, if he wants it," Damron added.

If no contest of the results of November's election is filed by 4 p.m. Thursday, the election could be certified at that time. County Court Clerk Carla Boyd said Tuesday. The only other issue to be resolved relating to the election is setting a time for a coin toss to decide the winner of a Wheelwright City Commission seat. Andy Akers and David Hall each received 136 votes in that race.

Fannin could not be reached Tuesday to comment on Archer's decision.

Damron said that although he had evidence of election law violations in the mayor's race, he and Archer's main focus will be to lobby state legislators for improved election laws.

"We will try to get legislation passed that allows people over 65 to vote on absentee machines," Damron

State board member to attend open house

State and local officials are expected to be on hand December 15 at an open house in Prestonsburg for the Region 8 Service Center for education reform.

State school board member Tom Gish of Whitesburg is expected to join state legislators and school superintendents at the open house which will be held from 4-6 p.m.

Nancy Price, with the service center, said representatives from the Kentucky Department of Education will also be available to discuss education reform.

The center is located on Cliff Road in the new Big Sandy Area Development District building. The public is invited to attend.

Special meeting set

A special meeting of the Wheelwright City Commission has been called for Wednesday, December 1 at 6 p.m. at city hall.

The only item on the agenda is a closed session to discuss police personnel.

Dr. Chandra M. Varia estimates that she has delivered about 3,400 babies during her fourteen-and-a-half-years as an obstetrician/gynecologist in Floyd County.

After December, the 54-year-old physician will no longer deliver babies. Instead, she will be concentrating on her gynecology practice at her office in Martin.

Why is she giving up her obstetrics practice?

"I love obstetrics," she said in an interview last week. "I love every baby I delivered. But I wanted something more. There were few obstetricians here when I started. There is no scarcity of obstetric doctors now."

"I will continue my gynecology practice here," she quickly emphasized. "I'm not retiring."

Instead, she said she will concentrate on preventive medicine for women, such as detecting breast cancer and treating sexually transmitted diseases.

Saturday afternoon, the doctor, who is known by her first name, bid farewell to her obstetrics practice by throwing a huge party in honor of all the children she birthed. Dr. Chandra said she set up the special celebration because "I wanted to see what the children look like. I wanted to meet their parents and see what the children are doing."

For the unique reunion, appropriately named "A Celebration of Children," Dr. Chandra extended an invitation via the local news media to the families of children she delivered at two hospitals: Our Lady of the Way in Martin and Highlands Regional Medical Center in Prestonsburg.

The festive four-hour event, held at Allen Central High School, was replete with music played by the Allen Central High School band, Christ-

It was a time of rejoicing Friday night after the Prestonsburg Blackcats defeated Danville 16-15 and earned the right to go on to the state finals this Friday afternoon. Robert Elliott was caught hopping it up as the celebration began on the field as thousands of Prestonsburg fans covered Admiral Stadium. Elliott's son Ryan plays for the Blackcats. Cats claw their way to 2A championship game

The Prestonsburg Blackcats football team will make their first appearance in the state football finals this Friday afternoon when they face a traditionally strong Mayfield Cardinal team in a 4 p.m. kickoff.

Coach Bill Letton's Blackcats moved into the championship game by virtue of a 16-15 thriller over Danville last Friday night at Admiral Stadium. The win snapped the Admirals' 42-game winning streak and prohibited them from making a third consecutive appearance at Cardinal Stadium in Louisville.

A goal line stand in the second overtime ended the season for Danville at 13-1. Admiral quarterback Colin Rogers last run was stopped at the 1-yard line by Tim Lewis and the celebration began for Prestonsburg.

"I was laying on the ground on the last play," confessed halfback Jody Cornette. "I just held my hands over my eyes. I couldn't stand to look. I then looked up and everyone was yelling and I said, 'All right!'"

Danville had closed a 16-9 Prestonsburg lead to 16-15 on a 1-yard run by Rogers in the second overtime. The Admirals' second go for the win by running the two-point conversion rather than kick the extra point to tie.

What turned out to be a big play was the safety that Prestonsburg got in the third period to take a 9-6 lead. Danville had intercepted a Thomas Ratliff pass at their own 2-yard line. The Admirals were caught in the end zone for the safety.

"I've watched the game three times," said Dr. Don Chaffins, "and we won all three times. We were very fortunate to win that game. Looking at it again on tape, it appeared that Danville was disorganized at the line of scrimmage. On one play they were running into each other."

Dr. Chaffins has this week's sports

The Prestonsburg Blackcats and Mayfield Cardinals will meet for the state 2A title this Friday at 4 p.m. on U of L's Cardinal Field in Louisville saying: "We muscled Russell, invaded Danville and now we're going to shuffle the Cards."

Prestonsburg and Bardonia are the only undefeated teams that will play in the different classes at Cardinal Stadium.

Prestonsburg improved to 14-0. The Blackcats seniors will be playing their final game for their alma mater.

Mayfield will be going to Louisville for the third consecutive year, having lost to Danville in last year's state championship game. Mayfield defeated a good Fort Knox team 28-10 to earn a berth in this year's title game.

Mike Brown, a sophomore, is the Cards' leading rusher. Brown scored four touchdowns against Fort Knox last Friday night. The Cards are a hard-hitting defensive unit giving up an average of eight points per game. Mayfield scored 21 points in the fourth quarter to erase a 10-7 Fort Knox lead.

The contest will be televised by WYMT on a tape delay basis on Saturday at 6 p.m., following the Kentucky/Indiana basketball game.

Tickets for the championship game are on sale at Prestonsburg High School during school hours. For more information contact the school.

The game will be played at Cardinal Stadium, home of the University of Louisville Cardinals. The field is astro turf. A large Floyd County following is expected to attend the game.

Following 1-64, fans are to turn onto the Waterson Expressway and exit at the Fairgrounds exit. The stadium is behind Freedom Hall.

The championship game has caused two changes in Floyd County School system's schedule. Floyd County schools will not be in session Friday as Floyd Countians will be given have the opportunity to support the Blackcats in the Class AA state football championship game.

Also, the Floyd County Preseason Basketball Tournament that began Monday night will not be played on Friday night due to the championship game.

Rescue teams still searching for teen

The Paintsville Herald

Johnson County Coroner J.R. Frisby arrived about 10:45 a.m. on standby in case rescue workers had any success.

Forty-five minutes later, though, he learned that efforts at the College Street bridge to recover the body of a Paintsville boy believed drowned in Paint Creek would have to continue downstream.

Before dark the day before, two tracking dogs from the Kentucky Search Dog Association had detected a human scent near a waterfall under the bridge. Operations stopped for the night, with rescuers set to begin the next morning.

Efforts resumed around 11 a.m., but by 11:30 a.m., when the dogs were unable to detect the scent again, officials decided to move their operations down the creek.

It was Tuesday, November 30, Day Four in the search for 13-year-old Darrell Michael Preston, reported missing since he tried to retrieve a canoe that had capsized in Paint Creek Saturday night. Darrell and a 17-year-old boy had been in the canoe—one of two allegedly stolen from Johnson Central High School—when it overturned near the Johnson County Public Library on Main Street around 7:40 p.m.

After four days of dragging the

Overtaken Rig

Joseph Theriot, 26, of Napoleonville, Louisiana escaped injury Tuesday afternoon when the tractor-trailer he was driving overturned on Route 114 in Prestonsburg. Sergeant Jim Mullins of the Prestonsburg City Police reported the accident occurred at 2:13 p.m. when Theriot attempted to turn West on Route 114 from Route 23 at an excessive rate of speed causing the rig to overturn. check rescue workers from Paintsville and Prestonsburg had been unsuccessful in locating the boy's body. Six volunteers started to search for the boy, but they were not successful.

"I was in the water," Haneey said. "Darrell Michael was the typical boy who would have been knocked out of my door the next day if he was alive."

Drowning operations continued Tuesday down Paint Creek. Haneey said he will contact officials in Lawrence and Boyd counties today, Wednesday, to search their portions of the Big Sandy River for the missing boy.

is amounts to," Haneey said.

Haneey, who was attending Saturday night's performance of "Main Street America" at the 8 p.m. show, was notified about the accident.

Initially, the three boys in a ditch behind the school. Haneey said they had been walking through the ditch, which was about 10 feet deep, when they heard someone yelling for help.

Haneey said the three boys will be charged with the theft of the canoe. A relative said Darrell, an eighth grader at Paintsville High School, had always wanted to play football. Bad grades, however, prevented him from doing so.

The search

It was a question Paintsville Fire Chief Bob Dixon and others had been asked often since Saturday night.

"Any luck, Bob?" a man asked as he showed his pickup truck behind the Johnson County Public Library.

"Not yet," Dixon replied. "Have they checked under that rock down there?" the man continued, indicating one of many rocks that hang over Paint Creek.

"Yeah," Dixon said, "but they're going to look better today."

It was shortly after 10 o'clock Monday morning, and Dixon and other workers had gathered behind the library to resume the search for Darrell.

Following a swollen creek, strong currents and cold temperatures, rescue personnel had worked tirelessly since Darrell was reported missing. They had concentrated their efforts around a small waterfall behind the library.

By Monday morning, Dixon, who helped coordinate the operations, had sought assistance from the Kentucky Search and Rescue Association. One of the group's canines could locate Darrell's body.

A couple hours later, after the dog found a faint scent, personnel moved their operation to a few hundred feet downstream to the College Street bridge.

"We're not going to stop until we find him," Dixon told a family member.

The College Street bridge was backed off by city police. Haneey said this was necessary because the dogs could get confused when tracking a scent. That didn't stop dozens of onlookers to get as close as possible to the operations.

Around 8:30, the dogs detected a scent near the bridge. Although sewerage runs through the particular stretch of creek, an official with the dog search group said it was likely a human scent.

Between 2 and 3 p.m., the dogs moved the search to the College Street bridge. That was where Darrell was in the water. His body probably floated down the creek.

Personnel picked up their gear and continued downstream.

We are proud of the Blacks and we want to encourage them to continue to show their support," said Superintendent Stephen Fowler. "We are all proud of our community."

The school system's high school principal voted Monday to postpone Friday's scheduled games in the Preseason Basketball Tournament so that students will not have to choose between the game and the search for Darrell.

We have two rivalries here in this county, but this is a time when we should support the Blacks and support the search for Darrell," said Superintendent Stephen Fowler.

Games scheduled for Friday night between Betsy Layne and South Floyd will now be played Saturday night at 6 and 8 p.m. at Allen Central.

Correction

An article in Friday's edition of the Times incorrectly reported the time for the swearing-in ceremony for Kentucky Supreme Court Judge Janet Stumbo and the host of a reception to be held afterward.

Stumbo will be sworn in Saturday, December 4 at 1 p.m. on the Floyd County Courthouse steps. Stumbo and her husband, Ned Piltersdorf, will host a reception following the ceremony at the Jenny Wiley Convention Center where Federal Judge Joseph Hood will be guest speaker.

Floyd County Attorney Jim Hammond announced after last Tuesday's fiscal court meeting that Stumbo would be administered the oath of office at 11 a.m. and that the reception following would be hosted by Judge Hood.

said. "November's election showed that older people can't stand in line for an hour or an hour and a half to vote. We want to channel our energies to make elections better."

Another reason for the decision not to file a lawsuit, Danner added, is that the evidence he has of election law violations could lead to the prosecution of several area residents.

"The evidence we have could put a lot of people in jeopardy of prosecution," Danner said. "We're not interested in doing that. We need to get on to the important things in life."

Fannin will take office January 1 and he will serve a five-year term.

Reunion

mas songs sung by a soloist, raffling of door prizes, Uncle Sam traipsing around on stilts and Santa Claus sitting by a Christmas tree. Dr. Chandra played the perfect hostess, providing a variety of pizza and cake for her guests and a variety of group games for the children out on the gym floor.

The climax of the event was the announcement by Dr. Chandra and her husband Mahendra Varia, a veterinarian at Martin, that they are setting up a $25,000 endowment at Prestonsburg Community College and the University of Kentucky. The interest from the fund will be used to provide college scholarships for children of Dr. Chandra delivered.

The Varias and other members of their family also donated $1,000 to the Single Parent/Homemaker Program at PCC.

John Rosenberg, director of Appalachian Research and Defense Fund of Kentucky, was one of several guest speakers at the event. He accepted the donation for the Single Parent/Homemaker Program on behalf of his wife, Jean, who directs the Single Parent/Homemaker Program at PCC. Jean was out of town. In an interview, he explained Dr. Chandra's interest in the program.

Dr. Chandra has always done more than give medical advice. She has encouraged her patients to go back to school and get an education to shape their own choices for their lives.

This is not the first scholarship fund the Varias have endowed to PCC. In 1990, the Varias pledged $100,000 to PCC to be used for the college's nursing program, for student scholarships and for emergency loans to needy students.

The Varias also announced that afternoon a $500 contribution to the American Red Cross, and $250 each to Maytown and Martin volunteer fire departments.

Dr. Chandra said in an interview that she gave the endowment because she wants a brighter future for the children she helped bring into the world.

"There are so many dropouts in Eastern Kentucky," she said. "If you don't have a good education, you have no (financial) future. There is so much teen pregnancy, alcoholism, and drunk driving here..."

"I want the children to see that there is a bigger world out there. I want all the children to go to college. College is expensive. The children need financial help. I feel like they are family and I want to help them."

Chandra is family and the feeling was mutual. All afternoon families renewed acquaintances with the doctor who enthusiastically resumed their greetings with warm hugs. Many of the parents and their children, ranging from infants to adolescents, posed for pictures with Dr. Varia.

Nora Rowe and her son, Michael, 9, were among them. Nora said she was there "to celebrate with Dr. Chandra."

Roy and Shelia Harlow came to the reunion "to pay tribute to Dr. Varia," Roy said. "She delivered our three boys."

Over 2,000 children, parents and grandparents attended the reunion, some coming from California, Illinois and other states.

Floyd County School District purchases classroom computers

The Floyd County School District has purchased 163 EduQuest Model 40 computers for classroom use.

The majority of computers will be divided among the county's 15 elementary schools. These computers will be installed in a staff/student production center, which is primarily used for portfolio writing. The students will also be able to use the computers to produce the school newspaper in the center, and teachers will have access to electronic lesson plans.

Each school in the district will also be given one computer for use by special education teachers and students.

"As a former classroom teacher for 23 years, I've seen how computers can make students come to life in the classroom. It's a real motivator," said Floyd County Technology Coordinator Harold Burchell. "I might have been a more effective student and teacher if I would have had access to the technology that is currently available to our students."

According to Dick Murphy, marketing representative for EduQuest, Floyd County has been very aggressive in keeping up with the changing technology in today's schools.

"Technology is an effective tool in the classroom," Murphy said. "It's important for parents and teachers to see that children are given the opportunity to advance academically by using computers and software in the classroom, particularly when those same parents and teachers see technology play such a critical role in their workplace."

EduQuest, an IBM company, develops and markets education software, hardware and services for primary and secondary school administration and students.

Health care means jobs in Floyd Co.

How much does health care mean to Floyd County? For many parts of rural Kentucky, health care means more than good health. Health care means local jobs.

Between 1980 and 1990, 114 health care jobs were added in Floyd County. In the Big Sandy Area Development District, 926 health care jobs were added to the local economy. During this same time period, the area lost 6,758 mining jobs.

Health care is one of the fastest growing industries in rural Kentucky. Between 1980 and 1990, 15,000 new jobs in health were added to Kentucky's rural counties.

Liberty of thought is the life of the soul. —Voltaire

One for all and all for one. . .

by Scott Perry

As the Prestonsburg football Blackcats head to Louisville to stake a claim to the 2A state championship, they'll find a following of boosters that stretches beyond their usual line of support.

Eastern Kentuckians are like that.

When one of their own has the chance to make good, the mountain motto is one for all, and all for one.

The same is true in times of tragedy.

When disaster strikes close to home, the county lines that so often separate us tend to vanish with the first cries for help.

The floods, the fires, the seemingly endless parade of trials and tribulations that routinely plague our lives would likely give Job rise for intolerance.

But rather than succumb to despair, we are inclined to unite against it.

The latest example of our togetherness comes from Paints, where rescue teams from Floyd, Johnson and Magoffin counties braved the elements and considerable danger to search for a lost teen-aged boy.

Although the chances of finding him alive were next to nothing, the volunteers set about their task as if there was no time to waste.

We watched their efforts for quite a while before realizing just what it was they were doing. They were reminding us why we find these hills and hollows so precious, so extraordinary.

Because here we may be strangers to one another, but we're neighbors to one and all.

Letters may be edited for clarity and length.

Praise for the 'cats; but disappointed with the Times

Editor:

I am writing to congratulate the Prestonsburg Blackcats on that tremendous win over Danville last Friday night. That game was like a great movie. It was exciting, fearful and finally, joyous.

These Blackcats deserve all our praise for all their hard work. Their practicing twice a day in the scorching heat and spending long hours in the weight room has finally paid off for them. But there is one thing that is troubling me a great deal and it is the article in the Floyd County Times on November 17, telling you made the "All Big Sandy Football Squad."

The thing that troubles me is that Kevin Vaughn, who is a tremendous player and Thomas Ratliff, the quarterback, were not mentioned at all.

I was overjoyed that Coach Linton was named Coach of the Year. Coach Linton has had to live in the shadow of Coach Haywood ever since he came to Prestonsburg, and now he has finally excelled above Mr. Haywood's record. He deserves honors.

I would like for Coach Linton and all his football players to just think for a moment about what may have been this year. If Thomas Ratliff's parents would have been overprotective parents and would not have let Thomas continue to play football after he became so ill and was diagnosed with diabetes.

You know, Coach, most parents would have been terrified to let him play. Because they would have been afraid he would get injured and it might be fatal with his diabetes. I just want to say to Kevin Vaughn and Thomas Ratliff, keep your head held high because in my book, you both deserve more.

Anyway, what does Ed Taylor know about the Prestonsburg Football players anyway? He wrote, not once but two articles praising a Collins boy that did not even play football for the Blackcats this year.

Vickie Adams
Prestonsburg

Editor: I read in the "Selections to the All Big Sandy Football Squad" were made from the records of all sports teams in the Floyd County Times sports section. I did find a name Ratliff did because one vote for the All Big Sandy Team from Ed Taylor.

Thanks for concern

Editor:

The parents of Nathaniel Meade would like to thank everyone who has shown so much concern during his recent illness.

A special thanks to Dr. Percival Pajel of McDowell Appalachian Regional Hospital, Our Lady of the Way Hospital emergency room staff, P & B and Lifeline ambulance services and a most grateful thank you to doctors McDonald, Buechel, Broughton and the University of Kentucky Pediatric ICU nurses, Catherine, Solina and Beth and everyone involved in our son's care and recovery.

We would also like to thank all our friends and family for their concern and wonderful prayers.

Nathaniel was diagnosed with Cat Scratch Fever. He is recovering wonderfully and is near 100 percent recovered.

Once again, thank you all.

Thanks given!

Editor:

In the deepest appreciation for the Maytown Elementary faculty and students and the Family Resource Center, for your efforts in collecting food for the needy for Thanksgiving, I know your work was hard, but will be deeply appreciated. You can feel good knowing that many had food because you cared enough to help.

I am sure our Lord Jesus is proud of you for what you have done. We here at the Maytown First Baptist Church sure appreciate your labor of love. We were able to distribute 40 baskets. Thank again from the depth of our hearts.

Respect our flag

Editor:

On his show of Jan. 14, 1969, comedian Red Skelton closed with the Pledge of Allegiance to the Flag as he said he'd learned it as a child from a teacher in an Indiana school. He gave the Pledge because "he said he felt people—adults as well as children—had lost its meaning. He said he received 20,000 letters as a result of the presentation. Recordings of the Pledge were sent to disk jockeys, who reported enthusiastic response when they played it. The text of Red's

Pledge of Allegiance follows:

From the Red Skelton Hour, Jan. 14, 1969.

"I remember this one teacher. To me, he was the greatest teacher, a real sage of my time. He had such wisdom. We were all reciting the Pledge of Allegiance, and he walked over. Mr. Lasswell was his name. He said: 'I've been listening to you boys and girls recite the Pledge of Allegiance all semester and it seems as though it is becoming monotonous to you. If I may, may I recite it and try to explain to you the meaning of each word.'

"I—Me, an individual, a committee of one.

"Pledge—dedicate all my worldly goods to give without self-pity.

"Allegiance—my love and my devotion.

"To the Flag—our standard, Old Glory, a symbol of freedom. Wherever she waves, there is respect because your loyalty has given her a dignity that shouts freedom is everybody's job.

"Of the United—that means we have all come together.

"States—individual communities that have united into 48 great states; 48 individual communities with pride and dignity and purpose, all divided with imaginary boundaries, yet united to a common purpose, and that's love for country.

"Of America.

"And to the Republic—a state in which sovereign power is invested in representatives chosen by the people to govern. And government is the people and it's from the people to the leaders, not from the leaders to the people.

"For which it stands.

"One nation—meaning, so blessed by God.

"Indivisible—incapable of being divided.

"With liberty—which is freedom and the right of power to live one's own life without threats or fear of some sort of retaliation.

"And justice—the principle or quality of dealing fairly with others.

"For all—which means 'it's as much your country as it is mine.' Since I was a small boy, two states have been added to our country and two words have been added to the Pledge of Allegiance—"under God." Wouldn't it be a pity if someone said,

Coffee Break

by Scott Perry

Is the job stress killing you?
Count yourself lucky.

Five states, a national report notes, the leading cause of workplace deaths isn't stress, accidents or disease.

It's murder.
Of the 7,600 Americans slain on the job over the last ten years, 13 percent were killed in Alabama, Connecticut, Maryland, Michigan, South Carolina and in Washington, D.C.

By the dangerous nature of their jobs, police officers were naturally among the top three occupations on the most-likely-to-be-murdered-at work list. Surprisingly, though, retail workers were also among the big three.

We've noticed a dramatic change in shopper attitudes during the past ten years, but this is scary.

We newspaper types are often criticized for what some readers call "sanitizing the news," omitting something that we know to be true but which is not really critical to the gist of any particular story.

But should we just let it all and let the chips fall where they may?

Around the turn of the century, a Texas editor did just that after a continuous stream of complaints that his stories weren't completely truthful. Here's what he said.

"A lot of people in this town brand the editor a liar when ordinary human mistakes of life show up in his newspaper. You have a little charity for every man in town but your editor. You claim you want the facts, and I'll be damned if I won't give 'em to you!"

And he did, indeed, in these excerpts from his next issue.

"John Cordle, our groceryman, who voted with the Republicans in 1896 and consumes more mail-order whiskey than any other member of the Baptist church in this country, is doing a poor business. His store is dirty and dusty. It is a wonder he has any business at all."

"Marned, Miss Susie Scruggs and Horace Guffin last Saturday at the Methodist parsonage, the Rev. James C. Williams officiating. The bride is a very ordinary town girl, who flirts with all the traveling men she meets and never helped her mother three days all put together in her whole life. She is anything but a beauty, resembling a gravel pit in the face and walks like a duck. The bridegroom is a natural born loafer and a bum. He never did a lick of work until his stepdaddy ran him off from home last fall. He went to the county seat and just before starving to death accepted a job at the livery stable."

"Tom Spradlin married Miss Cordie Meador last trades' day at the county seat. It ain't generally known, but the marriage was brought about mainly by a Remington shotgun manipulated by the bride's father. Tom concluded that marrying was the healthiest thing to do until other arrangements could be made."

As you can see from those true accounts, sometimes our "sins of omission" are really blessings in disguise.

Dr. Chandra Varia may have been born and raised in a faraway land, but the Martin OB/GYN is as deserving as anyone to be called an Eastern Kentucky native.

Dr. Varia and her husband have contributed tens of thousands of dollars to causes which will improve the quality of life for scores of young people, many of whom she brought into this world.

She has demonstrated an unparalleled concern for the youth she considers to be part of her family by putting her money where her heart is. And there is no doubt that her heart is here, in the mountains.

We are fortunate to have her among us.

And the truth shall set you free.
Well, maybe.

Flea markets are prime source for gun dealers

At a roadside flea market in Johnson County, pistols, rifles and shotguns are bought and sold as freely as puppies, chickens and mining lights.

Because Kentucky does not regulate gun sales, flea markets are a prime source for big-time gun dealers from major cities, according to the agents with the Federal Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms.

The flea market in Staffordville, just outside Paintsville, offers weapons without a waiting period, which is required in a number of other states.

A wide range of guns is available at the flea markets. Recently, a thick-handled, .357-caliber Magnum pistol that once belonged to a police officer was offered for $250. Also on sale was a $500 AK-47, one of the most popular — and controversial — assault rifles.

The ATF said similar flea markets are held throughout Kentucky, including Shelbyville, Georgetown, London, Prestonsburg and Pikeville, and once a year at the annual Court Days swap market at Mount Sterling, where thousands of guns are for sale.

Randall Lacy, the agent in charge of the ATF's office in Lexington, said many of the sales at flea markets result in boxes of new weapons being shipped to large cities such as New York and Chicago.

Greenhouse effect and global warming

Changing atmosphere

- Burning of fossil fuel (coal, gasoline, other petroleum products) adds carbon dioxide and other gases to the atmosphere.
- The amount of these gases may be more than can be naturally absorbed by Earth's plants and forests.
- Widespread clearing of forests has decreased nature's ability to recycle carbon dioxide.

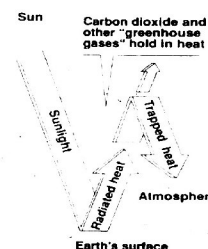

Trapped solar energy

- Increased carbon dioxide acts like the glass windows of a greenhouse, trapping the sun's energy and heating the air.
- Average temperatures rise worldwide ("global warming").

Altered climate

- Scientists fear that global atmospheric warming may have these effects:
- Sea levels rise
- Wind patterns change
- Ocean currents shift
- Rain, snow patterns change
- Severe weather increases

SOURCE: News reports

Possible long-term effects

- Global warming could produce these results:
- Flooding in coastal areas
- Shortage of water for irrigation
- Reduced crop yields
- Increased demand for electric power for cooling
- Damage to human health

A pistol that sells for $50 to $100 in Kentucky, he said, might resell in New York for $500.

"The people in Eastern Kentucky, they do not understand what New York's problems are or what Chicago's problems are," Lacy said.

Federal law permits gun collectors to sell accumulated arms, but it requires people who sell guns for profit to obtain a $10-a-year federal license," Lacy said. — Louisville Courier-Journal

Knott board votes on school's status

The Knott County school board has voted to change the classification of a remote mountain school — a move some think may jeopardize the school's future.

The board voted 3-2 to change the state classification of Cordia school from "permanently isolated" to "transitional." The state school board must approve the plan, and a public hearing on the changes must be held.

Cordia, which is partly financed through a private corporation, has produced students who became doctors, lawyers and teachers. But the school spends more tax money to educate its 275 students than larger schools in the area.

The State Education Department has said transitional status does not mean a school's days are numbered because some schools have been transitional for 30 years before being replaced.

But Alice Whitaker, head of the non-profit Lott Creek Community School Inc., which helps finance the school, is concerned that the board's vote will hurt fund-raising efforts. — Louisville Courier-Journal

Book describes plan by FBI to arrest Letcher County politician on drug charge

Using the wife of former Special Agent Mark Putnam as bait, the FBI was going to try to arrest a Letcher County politician on a cocaine charge, but the operation was quickly called to a halt by officials in Washington, D.C.

FBI agents in Pikeville and Covington decided to try to bring charges against the politician after he gave two grams of cocaine to Kathy Putnam at a Pikeville nightclub in November 1988.

With an FBI tape recorder hooked up to her telephone, Mrs. Putnam later called the politician and told him "that coke was really good." She then made plans with him to schedule a second meeting before FBI officials in Washington stepped in.

The allegations are included in the new book Above Suspicion, which examines the events leading up to Mark Putnam's arrest on a manslaughter charge in June 1990. The book, written by former Wall Street Journal reporter Joe Sharkey, was released November 12 by the New York publishing firm Simon and Schuster.

Putnam resigned from the FBI in June 1990 after he confessed to killing an informant from Pike County who said she was pregnant with his child. — Whitesburg Mountain Eagle

—Other Voices—

Director of JAMA

While Health Care, NAFTA, Somalia and other issues boil over on the front burner of the Clinton administration, simmering away on the back burner, almost unnoticed, is a trade issue of potentially shocking proportions. One that could have profound implications for thousands of Kentucky residents whose livelihoods depend on the investment of foreign automakers and auto parts suppliers.

U.S. policy makers, in their discussions with Japan on a trade framework agreement are being pressed by some special interests to move beyond trade promotion to negotiating guaranteed sales for certain U.S. companies — with the threat of trade sanctions for refusal unspoken but omnipresent.

In the next couple of weeks, U.S. negotiators will finalize demands on the Japanese government to reduce the $31 billion bilateral trade deficit in the automotive sector. Completion of the overall framework negotiations are under a U.S.-imposed deadline of early January, 1994.

Both governments have accepted the goal of trade deficit reduction, but the question is whether this is to be done by increasing competitiveness and expanding opportunities through promotion and cooperation, or by dictating sales through government edict. Trade promotion is a legitimate practice pursued by all governments. Pre-determined sales would be a dramatic departure from established U.S. and international trading principles. The "You buy this or else!" approach is bad policy certain to fail, increasing bilateral tensions in the process.

But if that is not frightening enough, voices within the U.S. auto parts industry are demanding that success be measured not only on numerical targets but on the basis of sales by "traditional companies" — that is, fully American-owned companies, only. Funneling sales to U.S. businesses according to who their owners are would involve the U.S. government in overt discrimination and an unprecedented intrusion into the American market place.

Excluded from the privileged group of auto parts companies would be, of course, the new competitors from Japan that invested in the U.S. according to U.S. demands of the 1980's. In Kentucky alone, at least 37 parts plants employing nearly 10,000 residents would be affected. Also excluded would be some 200 European parts manufacturers who have invested in the U.S. both to sell to U.S. companies and to supply European vehicle manufacturers here, specifically BMW and Mercedes. But worst of all, discriminating in this way would exclude those foot-soldiers of American competitiveness, the joint ventures. It is through joint ventures that U.S. and foreign technology combine at the leading edge of industrial advancement and job creation.

Markets are complex creatures. No matter how dedicated government regulators can never, and so should never, attempt to fine-tune them to the alarming extent now being discussed. While the subject of auto parts trade may seem arcane to many, it is a good example of a market not to be tampered with.

The auto parts industry is a complex fabric of companies from all over the world, shaped by the forces of competition and driven by an increasingly demanding consumer voice. In America it provides a strong, vibrant and resilient base for the U.S. vehicle industry—including the Big Three and foreign producers, alike. It would be impossible for governments to measure all the dimensions of this market activity, much less determine its outcomes in advance. The world is still littered with the dysfunctional economies of the failed nations that experimented with this statist approach in the recent past.

And do we in America really want to discourage foreign investment in this way, suffocating competition in the process? Do we really want to send the signal to other nations that they can and should do likewise? Do we want to tell successful U.S. companies that are selling to the Japanese and Europeans—having raised their standards, lowered their prices and focused intently on the customer—that their effort and investment were for naught? Next time, just ask the government to "fix it" for you?

The resounding answer of "No!" to all these questions may seem obvious to most Americans, but the pressure in Washington to say "Yes" is extraordinarily high. And yet, as industrial policies go, our approach with Japan in the auto sector, without these additional measures, has been extraordinarily successful.

The Carter Administration, in 1980, negotiated an agreement committing Japan to encourage automotive investment in the U.S. The agreement specifically called on the Japanese auto parts industry to dispatch a mission to the U.S. to seek viable factory locations. At the time, Japanese manufacturers produced no vehicles in the U.S. and exported some 2.4 million units here.

Today, seven Japanese companies roll their cars, trucks and motorcycles off U.S. production lines. In Kentucky, the Georgetown Toyota plant employs more than 4,300 people, produces about 240,000 vehicles a year and represents a $2 billion dollar investment. Together the vehicle manufacturers have invested $10 billion in U.S. facilities and employ 35,000 American workers.

The framework discussions must succeed for the benefit of the economies and consumers of both countries. But the remedies we find for the trade deficit must be market-oriented, not government-imposed, for progress to be made.

William C. Duncan, Ph.D., is an expert on U.S.-Japan auto trade issues, author of the book "U.S.-Japan Automobile Diplomacy: A Study in Economic Confrontation" and General Director of the Washington, D.C. office of the Japan Automobile Manufacturers Association (JAMA). His analysis and opinions are published regularly in the Japanese and American media.

Orpha C. Akers

Orpha C. Akers, 75, of Drift, died Sunday, November 28, at Highlands Regional Medical Center following a short illness.

Born March 23, 1918, at Carthage, she was the daughter of the late Col. Bert and Loney Collins Chaffins. She was a graduate of Pikeville College and a retired teacher, formerly employed by the Floyd County School System for 25 years. She taught at Drift and Seymour School and was tax commissioner of Floyd County for one year. She was preceded in death by her husband, Chive Akers.

Survivors include two sons, Kenneth Ray Akers of Drift and Chive Akers Jr. of Emerson, New Jersey; four sisters, Oretta Chaffins Meade, Lou Chaffins Thompson, Carmel Chaffins Martin and Avonell Chaffins Burchett, all of Lucasville, Ohio; ten grandchildren and nine great-grandchildren.

Funeral services will be Wednesday, December 1, at 11:30 a.m. at the Hall Funeral Home Chapel with the Rev. J. J. Shannon officiating.

Burial will be in Davidson Memorial Gardens at 1 p.m. under the direction of Hall Funeral Home.

Donahue Halbert

Donahue Halbert, 64, of Langley, died Saturday, November 27, at the McDowell Appalachian Regional Hospital following a long illness.

Born June 23, 1929, at Printer, he was the son of the late Ed and Rhoda Halbert. He was owner and operator of Donahue's Gunshop and a member of the Maytown United Methodist Church at Langley.

Survivors include his wife, Mildred Refett Halbert; one brother, Gary Ross Halbert of St. Mary's, Ohio; two sisters, Louella Halbert of Prestonsburg and Jewell Faye Sullivan of Louisville, Indiana.

Funeral services were Tuesday, November 30, at 11 a.m. at the Hall Funeral Home Chapel with the Rev. J. J. Shannon officiating.

Burial was in the P.D. Allen Cemetery at Langley under the direction of Hall Funeral Home.

Serving as pallbearers were Nathan Refett, Bryce Osborn, Calvin Osborn, Mike Refett, Mitchell Refett, James May, Greg Hall, Robert Refett and Bobby Jo Refett.

Ethel Hibbins

Ethel Hibbins Thompson Manns, 61, of Prestonsburg, died Wednesday, November 24, at her residence following a brief illness.

Born May 15, 1932, in Prestonsburg, she was the daughter of the late Tom and Hazel Hibbins. She was a member of the Pruitt Memorial Full Gospel Church of God. She was preceded in death by her first husband, Phil Thompson and by her second husband, Rawley E. Manns.

Survivors include four sons, Elgie Thompson of Warsaw, Indiana, Bill Monroe Thompson and Darvin Thompson, both of Prestonsburg, and John W. Thompson of West Prestonsburg; three daughters, Maritella Marslett of West Prestonsburg, Phyllis A. Sherman of Prestonsburg and Ethel Mae Jarrell of Hamilton, Ohio; ten grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

Funeral services were Monday, November 29, at 2 p.m. at the Nelson-Frazier Funeral Home Chapel with the Rev. Freddie Garrett and Rev. Kenny Marslett officiating.

Burial was in the Thompson Cemetery at Snickers Creek, Prestonsburg, under the direction of Nelson-Frazier Funeral Home.

Serving as active pallbearers were Stefan Jervis, Jeffery Jervis, James Thompson, Kevin Sherman, Eddie Dmtruk, Donnie Jarrell, Philip Thompson, Timothy Marslett, John W. Thompson, James Moore and Darvin Thompson.

You can work and still get retirement benefits

From Jim Kelly
Social Security District Director
For the Big Sandy Area

Social Security estimates that nearly 140,000 people will file for retirement benefits in September. But many of them will not be "retirees" in the true sense of the word because they'll keep on working. They also will receive Social Security checks.

If you are 62 years of age or older, you can continue to work and still get all of your Social Security benefits as long as your earnings don't exceed certain limits. If you earn more than the limit, your Social Security check will be reduced. For example, in 1993, you can earn up to $7,680 and receive all of your benefits if you are under age 65. For every $2 you earn over this limit, $1 is withheld from your benefits. If you are between age 65 and 69, the 1993 limit is $10,560. For every $3 you earn over this limit, $1 is withheld from your benefits. When you reach age 70, your Social Security benefits are not reduced, no matter how much you earn.

If you are under age 70 and continue to work, you must contact us promptly to give us an estimate of your earnings for the year if you expect to earn more than the annual limit. If you later find that your earnings will be higher or lower than you estimated, you should contact us again to change your estimate. And by each April 15, you must let us know how much you earned in the previous year if you receive some Social Security benefits. We will send you an annual earnings report form that you must file in addition to your Federal income tax return. There is a substantial penalty for not filing an annual report of earnings on or before April 15. If you are still working at age 70, you no longer have to report your earnings to us.

These types of income do not count toward the earnings limits: investment and interest income, Veterans or other government benefits, annuities, capital gains, gifts or inheritances, rental income (unless you are a real estate dealer or you rent a farm to someone and have an active role in managing the farm), income from trust funds, moving expenses, travel expenses, and jury duty pay.

If you have any questions about receiving Social Security benefits while continuing to work, contact your nearest Social Security office. You also may call Social Security's toll-free number, 1-800-772-1213.

Tuition deposit is required for MSU students

Students pre-registering for the spring 1994 semester at Morehead State University will be required to make a $50 nonrefundable payment to hold their class schedules.

The payment, which will be deducted from tuition, was implemented to curtail the number of students who pre-register when they are uncertain as to whether or not they will be returning to the campus for the next semester.

This semester, students may make the down payment between December 1 and December 17. A similar payment period will be designated for future advance registrations. Pre-registered students who neglect to pay will have to register again at the start of the semester as their schedules will have been deleted.

Students with fully processed financial aid in excess of $50 will be exempted from the down payment, but will receive a Notification of Intent card with their billing statement. The card must be signed and returned in order to hold their class schedule.

Weight Loss Puzzles Researcher!

WASHINGTON—A researcher at National Dietary Research was puzzled at how successful a natural food tablet had become in helping overweight people lose weight. Dr. William Morris was puzzled because the original chewable tablet formula was developed to help feed the world's undernourished people.

Some may say the weight loss is due to the natural plant colloids that Finnish scientists say interfere with the intestinal absorption of calories and Swedish scientists found to cause weight loss in spite of patients being instructed not to alter normal eating patterns. Others may say it's the patented ingredient developed by the U.S. Department of Agriculture that burns the fat. But not all scientists agree with these theories so they may be considered speculation in pending further study.

According to Dr. Morris, the improved formula's weight loss potential is no longer a mystery. The formula called Food Source II (FS II) contains a powerful appetite blocker that decreases caloric absorption.

FS II comes with a revolutionary diet plan that allows you to lose weight without giving up your favorite foods. With the FS II Plan there are no calorie restrictions and the special appetite control ingredient is one of the most effective available without a prescription.

Berkley Bioscience Labs has obtained exclusive distribution rights to FS II. FS II is available through Pharmacies and other health care professionals.

Food Source II is available at:

Christmas Tidings

Angel Christmas

By Krystal Kirk,
7 years old
Student at Betsy Layne Elementary
Miss Lela Layne, teacher

One Christmas, Santa brought me a baby doll. I named her Angel. I sleep with her and I take her every where I go. She wears a little hat and dress with flowers on it.

One day, I took a walk with Angel and I fell down. When I got up, she was gone. My brother took off with her and he did not give her back. I told mom.

She said: "Jamie give her back!" But I said, "Mom, Angel is up in that tree." Mom said, "Jamie go up the tree and bring her baby doll down."

When Jamie came down the tree and put Angel in my arms, I said: "Thank you, Jamie. I'm glad I have you back. I love you angel!"

There Really is a Santa Claus!

By Tasha Rice, 8 years old
Student at Betsy Layne Elementary,
Miss Lela Layne, Teacher
Daughter of Tim and Susan Rice
Betsy Layne

On the night before Christmas, I was watching a Christmas story on T.V. with one of my friends. I was almost ready for bed when my friend said there was no such thing as Santa Claus, but I knew she was wrong.

When I was in bed, I heard something that I thought I would never hear! It was jingle bells, and a voice saying, "Ho, Ho, Ho!" I got out of bed and there sat a slightly fat man with a white beard, wearing red and eating milk and cookies.

I rubbed my eyes and pinched my nose to see if I was dreaming, but I wasn't.

Then, when this guy left I looked out of my window and I saw a sled with reindeer and I heard him say: "Merry Christmas!" I woke up the next morning and went to the T.V. room to tell my mom and dad. They didn't believe me, but I know there really is a Santa Claus!

The Night Before Christmas

By Johnna Bryant,
Johnna is the 8-year-old daughter of Linda Bryant of Stanville. She is a student in Miss Lela Layne's class at Betsy Layne Elementary.

The night before Christmas the stockings were hung and the presents were under the Christmas tree. The fire place was bright. And the children were in bed asleep. Then, they heard a big thump.

It was old Saint Nicholas with a big bag of toys. Santa Clause saw the milk and cookies. After he ate his milk and cookies, he put some toys under the tree. Then, he got back on his sled and took off across the sky saying "Ho, Ho, Ho!"

The next day, the children woke up and they rushed to the Christmas tree to open their presents.

The Night Before Christmas

By Michelle Smith, 7 years old Betsy Layne Elementary
Miss Lela Layne's Room
Daughter of Bobby and Juanita Smith, Betsy Layne

On Christmas Eve, Santa's elves helped him make toys for all the children. Then, he loaded up his sled. He knew he had a long way to go that night.

All the children's stockings were hanging beside the chimney with care in hopes that Santa would come.

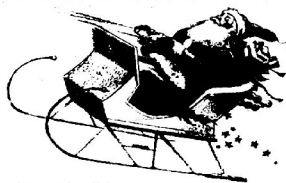

The children rushed off to bed. Finally, Santa came.

He filled their stockings with candy, and left lots of presents. The next morning the children looked in their stockings and saw all of the gifts Santa had left.

They knew that Santa would not forget them.

My Christmas List

by Lesley Stout

Here I am on December 24, and it is my first Christmas on the streets. After my mother lost her job, the streets became my home. I've been homeless now for about seven or eight months. People on the streets begin to lose track of time after awhile.

Christmas is tomorrow, and I will be alone.

No presents, no tree, no hot dinner, and no Christmas carols.

You may not believe this, but I would give all of those wonderful holiday traditions up just to be with my mother. We were separated in an old shelter last July. She just vanished. I never saw her again.

After awhile, I learned to survive on my own. In the beginning, I had my mother, but now I am alone and fending for myself. I must admit that it is hard.

I had gone from your average "middle-class" family to a life of terror and humiliation on the streets. My home is a box, in what the wealthy call "Peasant Park." I lie alone and pray each night the same prayer, "Dear Father, protect, love and comfort me. I am sorry for whatever I did to end up here. Please return me to the life I once had. Amen."

Tonight I pray for my mother to return and take me to a warm home.

As I walk along Coleman Street, I can see into the windows of the homes. Lights dance around the Christmas trees as children gather around, shaking boxes with excitement. The smell of ham and turkey with stuffing and homemade rolls seem to seep out from under the wooden doors.

Oh, how I wish that I could be with my mother at home celebrating Christmas.

Tonight seems so dreadfully cold. My nose, cheeks, and toes are beginning to sting with each step I take. I will sleep in Saint Mary's Cathedral tonight. They run a shelter for the homeless.

I don't like sleeping there, though. People always steal my belongings. I guess I don't have much to lose now. I have already lost my watch, my winter scarf, cap and, worst of all, my pride and dignity. I am always embarrassed. I used to look down on the homeless, and now I am one.

On my way to Saint Mary's, I find a couple of Coke and Pepsi cans. I can get a few cents for them downtown, tomorrow.

Dressed in a torn pair of jeans — at least a size too small — an old pair of rubber boots, and a faded red sweatshirt, I walk through the Saint Mary's shelter door. The heat feels so good. I have been on my feet for this never-ending day in the 30° temperature. At last, I can rest my aching body.

Two ladies, about fifty or sixty years old, sit at a table where I am supposed to sign in.

"Merry Christmas, son. Are you alone tonight?" one asked me in a kind voice.

"Yes, Ma'am," I say, looking down and away from them.

Yes, I am alone — all alone.

I walk into a large room filled with at least one hundred beds. Almost every one of them are filled. The floors around are dingy looking and the smell is terrible. Now, I know why I prefer my box in the park, although the temperature this Christmas night is too cold for anyone to endure.

In the right corner of the room, I see something that raises my spirits as high as they can go — Santa Claus! The shelter must have brought him in.

I am fourteen years old and, possibly, a bit too big to sit in Santa's lap, but I don't care. If anyone can help me, it will be him.

I don't really believe there is a real Santa Claus, but, for some reason, this Santa seems different. Maybe it is his long, white beard or his shiny black boots. He just seems so real.

I sit on his left leg. His red velvet costume feels warm. For once in a long time, I feel loved. Not necessarily by Santa, but by someone.

"Ho, ho, ho!" he laughs merrily. "What can Santa bring you?" he hears what I am saying. "Santa, please let me wake up in my old home with my mother."

"Well, son, I'll do what I can," he replies softly.

I am the kind of person who can read people by looking into their eyes, but this Santa has eyes that I cannot read.

Eleven o'clock rolls around. Lights out. A few people keep arguing, and they are thrown out. One pulls a gun from his coat. I'm not scared, though. Things like this happen every day.

I find a bed next to the window. I press my cheek against the cold glass and look up to the shining stars.

"Star light, Star bright. First star I see tonight. I wish I may, I wish I might, on the first star I see tonight. I wish for Santa to fulfill my Christmas list."

My head hits the hard pillow and I fall fast asleep, doubtful that my wish will come true.

"Silent night. Holy night. All is calm..."

I hear someone singing. I sit up and barely open my eyes just enough to see my mother sitting at the foot of my bed.

"Oh, mother!" I scream, as I throw my arms around her.

"My sweet Joey. How I have missed you!" she cries in that voice I have so longed to hear.

Tears fill her eyes.

Then I notice something. I am no longer in the shelter. I am in my old room with my own things. I don't ask questions. I already know the answer.

I think to myself, hoping Santa can read minds, "Thank you."

Transition Team

Floyd County transition team participate in workshop

Five Floyd Countians recently participated in a workshop at Jenny Wiley State Park to develop a community-wide transition system.

Brenda Mullins, Kentucky Transition Project Coordinator, conducted the two-day workshop which included presentations from several area communities.

The transition plan will help students moving from one program to another, such as from eighth grade to high school, from the hospital to home, from pre-school to primary or from private school to the public schools.

S.T.E.P.S. (Systematic Transition to Entering Public Schools) defines what is going to be done during a student's transition. Scott V. Vetter, Manager of Special Education, said the plan will help students move from one program to another.

The goal of the transition plan is to make things simpler and better for the students, parents and the community.

Floyd County's transition team includes Head Start Family Service Worker Juanita Stephens; Early Intervention Specialist Donna Dyer of Mountain Comprehensive Care; Early Childhood Coordinator Vivian McGarvey; Special Education Consultant Tom Wicker-Howard and Coordinator of Health Services/School Nurse Jennifer C. Martin.

Mullins said the Floyd County transition team did a great job with their plan. "It was a pleasure working with the Floyd County transition team. Their love for children and families plus a dedication to the transition process is what made this a successful workshop. This dedicated staff will lead Floyd County toward transition model site replication."

Bob Smith returns to speak at Student Writers' Workshop

Bob Smith, WSAZ news anchor returned for his fifth consecutive year to share with students in the annual high school student Writers' Workshop sponsored by Floyd County Board of Education held Monday, November 29, at the Wilkinson Shumbe Convention Center in Jenny Wiley State Park.

His presentation focused on the topic of "How to Put Together a Feature News Program." He shared some of his personal experiences with his work. In addition, his presentation allowed for young people to look ahead to the future, to set a goal and to plan the necessary education to reach that goal.

Smith, a native West Virginian, graduated from Marshall University with a degree in speech and journalism.

He experienced his first commercial broadcast of work while at Marshall. Bob WMLR Radio in Ashland, Kentucky and WAFB Radio in Huntington, West Virginia were among his first stations of work. Later, he was employed by WBOC Radio in Lexington, Kentucky where he was working when he was drafted into the U.S. Army in October, 1961.

After his stay in the army, he held the following positions: disc jockey, sales representative and program director for WYOW Radio; staff announcer, news reporter, news director, news assignment editor and news anchor for WOVA-TV (then called WFIN-TV). Finally, his present anchor position at WSAZ-TV.

Smith is a member of the Beverly Hills Baptist Church where his wife Patricia directs the children's ministries. The Smiths have two children, Scott and Sherril, and two grandchildren, Morgan and Nicholas.

Other presenters for workshop sessions held Monday, included: Angie DeBord, storyteller; "Dr." Don Bevins, WPRG television and radio;

Bob Smith

Paul McKinney, WMDJ radio; Anne Shelby, creative writing; John Kidd, layout and design; Steve Porter, photography and composition of design. Many of these presenters come annually to share with students.

Each Floyd County High School was represented in these workshops. A total of 160 students were expected to attend Monday's workshops.

Then, Tuesday, November 30, the second annual student Writers' Workshop for eighth graders was held. Presenters for the day included: Dr. Carolyn Turner, Appalachian writing; J.D. Hall, songwriting and mountain arts; Paul Brett Johnson, writing and publishing; Ernestine Meade, poetry; Shirley Williams, Louisville Courier Journal; Mona McKinney and Ron Shepherd, WMDJ radio; Jenn Robinson, writing focused to a purpose; "Dr." Don Bevins, WPRG radio and television.

Approximately 220 students from schools throughout the district were expected to meet with these presenters.

Workshop events were coordinated by Floyd County Schools instructional personnel, Patricia Watson and the Lema Spears who work with writing/language arts programs.

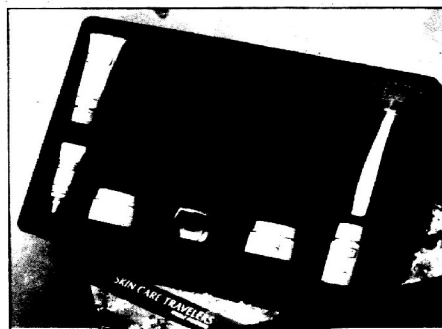

GED recipient

Wackerle & Klassen

Jessica Wackerle, daughter of Barry and Susan Woods Wackerle of Brownsville, Nova Scotia, Canada and granddaughter of Docia Woods of Prestonsburg and the late Carl Woods, and Timothy Klassen, son of Dr. and Mrs. Gerald Klassen of Halifax, Nova Scotia, were united in marriage on August 31. The ceremony was performed at the groom's parents home. Members of the wedding party included the bride's brother, Reuben Woods Wackerle and the groom's sister, Sonia. Jessica is attending graduate school in social work at the University of Oregon and Timothy is on the staff at the University's Library. The couple now reside in Eugene, Oregon.

Special people

Joyce Gore's kindergarten class participated in C.A.P.'s "I'm Special" program. Angie Hall and Kitty Frazier coordinated the event.

Duff Elementary site of special self-esteem projects

Duff Elementary has been the site of various projects and activities to promote self-esteem during this school year.

One area, in particular, all seven primary rooms and two kindergarten rooms have been engaged in "I'm Special" projects.

Angie Hall, a staff assistant for Community Health Programs, a division of the Christian Appalachian Project, in collaboration with Kitty Frazier, Duff Elementary guidance counselor, have given the classrooms stressing the importance of knowing that every person is very special. The goal of this program is to make sure every student feels good about him or herself, which will promote a better mindset toward learning and school.

Unique Ashland Oil program aimed at dropout prevention

"A Day on Campus" visits to Kentucky colleges and universities often provide students their first glimpse of campus life and insight into the relevance of higher education.

Now in its seventh year, "A Day on Campus" was initiated by Ashland Oil Inc. to provide children in the fourth through ninth grades an opportunity to spend one day on a Kentucky college or university campus. Nearly 40,000 Kentucky students from more than 670 schools have visited a college campus through "A Day on Campus" which includes every college and university in Kentucky. Tours are conducted by students, graduate assistants or other personnel and include visits to classrooms, labs and dorm rooms, as well as panel discussions with students.

Guidance counselors tell us that this program often is the first contact some of their students have with higher education, and Dan Lacy, vice president of corporate communications for Ashland Oil, "And they get to talk with students who help take the mystery and fear out of college."

Ashland Oil reimburses up to $100 per school for transportation and meal expenses for the one-day visit with two stipulations. The college visit must be properly arranged through the Council on Higher Education in Frankfort, administrator of the program. And at least one local business must contribute a matching grant to the participating school for the field trip. "This program works best when business, the public and education work together for the benefit of our children," Lacy said. "Then schools have a partnership that endures long after the campus visits."

"We developed the program to help reduce the state's high school dropout rate," Lacy said. "A Day on Campus" grew out of our dropout prevention advertising campaign in print and broadcast media in 1987. Reports showed that students' educational and success patterns frequently were set by the time they were in the late elementary through middle school years."

Funding of this program is first-come, first-served, and is limited to one matching grant per school.

"A Day on Campus" is endorsed by the Kentucky Department of Education and the Kentucky Education Association. The program is administered by the Kentucky Council on Higher Education and the Council of Independent Kentucky Colleges and Universities.

WIC 'prescriptions' provide healthy foods for women and children

Every month, 112,000 Kentucky mothers and children are healthier because of prescriptions.

"Food prescriptions," that is.

The WIC nutrition program, formerly called the Supplemental Food Program for Women, Infants and Children, provides vouchers that are redeemed at certain grocery stores for specific nutritious foods.

The voucher for each mother, child and infant is tailored to meet individual nutrition needs.

Marvin Miller, WIC director for the state Department for Health Services, says that WIC is another element of local health departments' emphasis on preventive health care.

"Just as a doctor might write a prescription to correct a health problem or help prevent one, nutrition counselors at local health departments write 'food prescriptions' to improve diets," he said.

"These 'prescriptions' can help a pregnant woman who is low in iron, or a baby who is not growing fast enough, or a breast-feeding mother who needs certain foods."

"Research increasingly points out how important our diet is," he said. "The WIC program provides both nutrition education and nutritious foods for pregnant and breast-feeding women, their young children and babies."

Miller said that eating right is one of the most important elements in proper prenatal care, thus a WIC emphasis on pregnant women.

"Counseling pregnant women about proper nutrition is part of the overall approach to prenatal care in health departments," he said. "That education, along with access to the proper foods through WIC vouchers helps to produce healthier babies."

WIC also helps in keeping babies and young children healthy.

"Most all parents know that their children need to eat right in order to grow and develop," he said, "but sometimes parents don't really understand what 'eating right' for children involves."

"Again, with the nutrition information plus food through WIC, mothers can be more certain that their children are eating properly."

Miller says that WIC also helps establish good eating habits in young children.

"Eating patterns can be established at a young age," he said. "If children learn at an early age to eat good food, they're probably more likely to continue these habits."

WIC is available to pregnant and breast-feeding women, new mothers, infants and children up to age 5 who are at 185 percent of the poverty level or below and are at nutritional risk.

Kentuckians interested in applying for the WIC program should go to the local health department in their county.

Floyd County man to serve as council for Ky. legislature

State Representative Gregory D. Stumbo, majority floor leader of the Kentucky House of Representatives, has announced that Mickey McGuire will act as legal counsel for the office during the upcoming 1994 General Assembly. Stumbo said he has employed an attorney for most regular sessions of the Legislature because of the mass number of bills to consider. As a General Assembly employee, McGuire will work only during the session and receive pay in accordance to days actually worked.

Stumbo said, "This practice is efficient and substantially more economical than maintaining a full-time attorney in the office."

McGuire is former President of the Kentucky Young Democrats and former general counsel to the Kentucky Workers' Compensation Funding Commission.

AYUSA holds picnic

AYUSA International, Eastern Kentucky region, held its first annual fall picnic at the Breaks Interstate Park.

Twelve foreign exchange students from different countries attended with their host families and friends. Nine of the students attend school in Pike, Floyd, and Johnson counties, and three attend school in Jefferson county. Each student prepared a dish from his/her country.

Many local businesses provided food and gifts for the students. AYUSA is enjoying a very successful school year. The organization is a student foreign exchange program that provides opportunities for students ages 15-18 to live in America with host families and attend high school. Local Community Counselors, Maria Conn, Stan Osborne, and Jefferson County Counselors, Teresa McGraff and Doug Trent attended. For more information about AYUSA, call 1-502-839-8477 or 478-5227.

Home schooling is meeting topic

Cheryl Cozort of Hager Hill has been teaching her three sons at home for the past six years and intends to go on doing so through their high school years. She and her husband, Keith, are not alone. A number of couples from the Big Sandy region have chosen home schooling as an alternative to public school instruction and many others are considering it for their children.

Speaking to about 35 people at a recent meeting at Prestonsburg Community College, Cozort listed the advantages of home schooling and discussed Kentucky laws. "(Home schooling) is legal in all 50 states," she said, "and Kentucky's laws are among the most flexible for those people who wish to school their kids at home."

Accompanying Cozort were two other home schooling mothers, Candy Conrotto of Hager Hill and Sandy Volk of Pikeville. Both have been educating their children at home for eight years with the support of their husbands.

"It used to be that my husband and I would ask each other if we should home school at the beginning of each school year," Conrotto said, "and then it got to the point where we no longer discussed it. We found we had taken it for granted that we would."

All the home schooling parents made one point in particular quite clear. They believe home schooling gives their children the one-on-one attention they would rarely get in a regular school and allows them to learn at their own pace.

"It also protects them from exposure to violence, drugs and emphasis on sex that is beginning to pervade our schools," one mother said.

"Despite all the advantages of home schooling, though," warned Cozort, "no one should attempt to do it without the full support of the husband or wife. This is a decision that affects the whole family, and couples must make it together or it won't work."

The meeting was held in conjunction with PCC's continuing education program "Topics of Human Concern," coordinated by Dr. John Shiber, associate professor of biology.

Blackcats reach state final...

Ratliff passes Prestonsburg to 16-15 win over Danville in double overtime

Hall scores 32 as Allen Central nips South Floyd 74-71 in preseason

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

The Floyd County Preseason Basketball Tournament was almost a doubleheader for the fans in attendance Monday night at the Prestonsburg fieldhouse. They not only saw a basketball game, but a punchout as well.

Allen Central posted a 74-71 win over a very good South Floyd team, but the game was blacked by a fight that broke out among the two teams in the second quarter.

Five players, three from South Floyd and two from Allen Central, were ejected from the contest and will face an automatic suspension for their teams' next game.

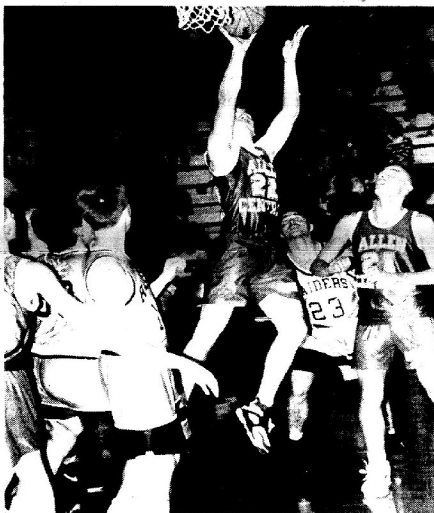

Jason Martin and Steve Turner were sent to the bench for the Rebels while Chad Sloe, John Hall and James Patton rested for South Floyd. A third player for Allen Central, Kevin Stumby, was later whistled for a flagrant foul in the fourth period and ejected.

The fight broke out when there was some bumping between Jeremy Hall and Chad Sloe. The other players got involved and found themselves ejected.

The ejection may have been a blessing in disguise for the Raiders. Coach Jim Rose was forced to go to the bench early and there he found a pair of players who turned the game up a notch for South Floyd.

Ryan Hamilton and Chris Hamilton entered the game and were

The football rested on the 3-yard line.

Two-time state champion Danville was in control of the football. A third consecutive trip to the state finals in Louisville weighed in the balance for the Admirals.

Danville had just scored a touchdown on a keeper by quarterback Colin Rogers who had plunged into the end zone from 1-yard out to narrow the Prestonsburg Blackcats' lead to 16-15 in the second overtime.

It was decision time for Danville coach Sam Harp. Do you go for the PAT to tie the game and send it into a third overtime, or "go for broke" to win the game?

There was no hesitation on the part of the Admirals. They lined up with the football at the Prestonsburg three with Rogers in charge. Their destiny was in Rogers' hands.

The snap went to the senior quarterback who went to the two, and then the 1-yard line, only to be met by 6'2", 260-pound junior lineman Tim Lewis. The lineman stopped Rogers at the one with assists from Kyle Fitzpatrick and Matt Porter.

Thus ended Danville's reign as Class 2A champions and their 42-game winning streak in the 16-15 loss to the state's number one defensive football team: the Prestonsburg Blackcats.

Thomas Ratliff was the man of the hour for Prestonsburg. He guided the Blackcats down field on two crucial drives.

It was only fitting that the game ended in double overtime since the state's top two teams were battling for the right to go on to Louisville this Friday to face the Mayfield Cardinals in the state finals.

"I've never been this happy before," said fullback Dwayne Garza. "It's the greatest feeling I've ever experienced," stated lineman Ryan Elliott.

The game was witnessed by a throng of Blackcat supporters who outnumbered those of the home team. The Prestonsburg sidelines lined from one end of the football field to the other and some stood in places four deep.

"It was the greatest high school football game that I have ever seen," said former Blackcat boy Blaine.

The game was great because it involved two great teams that deserve their No. one and No. two ranking in the AP polls. Both teams are outstanding defensively. Danville was considered the number one defensive team in the state, averaging just over 45 points per contest. Prestonsburg wasn't far behind with a 40-point per game average.

Prestonsburg had taken a 6-lead, but Danville tied the game 9-9 on a 36-yard field goal by Jonathan Vanderpool with 1:40 left in regulation play.

Prestonsburg went on top 7-9 just before the half after making 6-0 at the end of the first quarter. The Blackcats got their fourth safety of the season when they caught the Admirals' deep into their own territory. The safety made it a 9-6 score.

The Blackcats had final control of the football during regulation play but could not get beyond their own 40-yard line and the clock ran out.

Prestonsburg won the toss at midfield going into the first overtime and elected to give Danville the first attempt to score.

The ball was placed on the 10-yard line and the Admirals had four plays to score. Danville was flagged

The difference in the game, according to assistant coach Bill Bottoms, was that Prestonsburg wanted to win.

"There's nothing better than this," said the veteran coach, whose son Bill played at Centre College in Danville this past football season. "I'm very proud of our kids. They have worked hard all season and for immediately for a 5-yard penalty. Then on the second play from scrimmage, they fumbled the football and Prestonsburg recovered.

"Are you sure about that?"

Prestonsburg coach Bill Letton discussed a call that went against his team with the head official at last Friday night's semistate game. Letton's club disposed of Danville 16-15 and advanced on to the state finals this Friday afternoon in Louisville. (photo by Ed Taylor)

Fullback Seth Hyden carried the ball to the 5-yard line and the Blackcats were knocking hard at the door. However, Hyden was spilt for a 6-yard loss and then the Cats were hit with a 15-yard holding penalty. The ball was settled on the 22-yard line. In some confusion, the Blackcats were penalized again 5 yards for a delay of game, moving the ball back to the 27.

Thomas Ratliff was called upon to attempt a field goal that was way too short and the game went into the second overtime.

In the second overtime, Prestonsburg got first possession and Ratliff moved his team into the lead.

Ratliff hit wide receiver Jason Spurlock with a 65-yard completion placing the football at the 4-yard line. Hyden earned in the drive, which Ratliff found Garza in the end zone for a 3-yard touchdown pass. John Stout kicked the point after as the Blackcats led 16-9.

Danville still wanted control of the football in the second extra period, struck on fourth down, but the ball was at the 15-yard line after a Kane Bess had moved the ball to near yard line. Rogers on the keeper, found the opening and scored for the 16-15 game.

so long. They deserve it. They just wanted this one real bad.

Danville had the first possession of the game and kept the football for the first 8:49 of the first quarter. The Admirals were constantly being flagged by the officials, but they seemed to keep coming back and kept regaining the lost yardage.

Danville went on top 6-0 with 3:11 left in the first quarter as Rogers scored on a keeper from 1-yard out. The conversion attempt failed for the Admirals. The drive covered 68 yards on 22 plays. Danville was assessed four penalties in the drive but the Admirals found ways to make up the loss of yards.

Prestonsburg, who has been missed to piling up the yardage, found the Admirals' defense up to the occasion and found very little running room.

The Blackcats looked nervous at the onset but later got the wake-up call. With just over three minutes remaining in the second quarter, the Admirals tried a field goal that failed and the Blackcats, still looking for some yardage on the ground, took over the football.

On the first play from the line of scrimmage, Blackcat fullback Dwayne Garza struck on fourth down, but the ball was at the 15-yard line after a Kane Bess had moved the ball to near yard line. Rogers on the keeper, found the opening and scored for the 16-15 game.

A Look At Sports

IN RESPONSE TO...

We received a letter from Vicky Adams.

Prestonsburg who was upset because Thomas Ratliff and Kevin Vaughn were left off the Big Sandy All-Media football squad. Of course, Vicky wanted to place the blame on me for the two (who deserved to be on the team) being left off.

While I agree with Vicky that the two players were very deserving of being named to one of the two squads, she must realize that I had only one vote and that there were several others in the region and area who voted for the All-Media team, also.

I did not have the lone say so on who made the team. If I did, then every Prestonsburg player would have made it.

Kevin and Thomas have been two of the top players in the entire region this season and I have enjoyed watching both play.

As far as not knowing anything about the Prestonsburg football team - your misinformation that there was no Collins playing on the football team is incorrect. Paul Collins may take offense to that.

I know that you are referring to a baseball article that I wrote many months ago in reference to Ray Collins.

I have always tried to write about the Prestonsburg football team and to be as fair as I could ever be. I have tried to mention the excellent defense of the Blackcats without neglecting to write about the offense. I am a big Kevin Vaughn and Thomas Ratliff fan. These are two fine young men who have played hard all season, and I would do nothing to keep them off an all-star team of any kind. But, Vicky, I had only one vote.

But it seems that this has been the trend in Prestonsburg this year and a letter such as this has proven on what I have thought - there is no appreciation of what I, or this paper, have tried to do in supporting the Prestonsburg Blackcat football team.

If I run a player's picture, moms want to know why their sons weren't there. If I mention one name, they ask why weren't their sons mentioned. This is what I have gone through this season.

Covering sports in Floyd County is not as easy as some might think it is. I spend long hours here at my desk and then I head out to a game somewhere so that I can give a grade schooler or a high school player some press.

I get home late at night and get to spend very little time with my family. I hardly ever get to enjoy a meal with them. If I do eat, it is usually a ballpark hot dog or popcorn. Why do it? So I can give sons and daughters of parents like Vicky Adams some publicity. Is there any appreciation for it? No!

I don't know how the other parents, coaches or players of the Prestonsburg football team feel about me or the coverage I have given Prestonsburg this season, but there are teams in Floyd County that would love to have had the same.

But to Thomas Ratliff and Kevin Vaughn, I want you two fine young men to know that I support you and I voted for you. But, please understand, I had but one vote.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY TO...

Amy Tackett of Betsy Layne High School. Amy turned 18 this past Friday and we want to wish her a belated happy birthday. Amy is a varsity cheerleader for the Bobcats.

NOTE: TOURNAMENT CHANGE...

You will want to take note of the change in the Preseason Basketball Tournament for the rest of the week. Games scheduled to be played Friday night have been moved to Saturday night at Allen Central. Saturday night games will be played Sunday afternoon (2 and 4 p.m.) also at Allen Central. I want to wish the Prestonsburg Blackcats the best this Friday afternoon in Louisville. You're a real fine football team and you deserve to win a state crown.

Until, whenever, good sports everyone and be good sports!

Blackcats

A helping hand

Prestonsburg assistant coach Johnny Heinze helped Kevin Vaughn off the field after he suffered leg cramps against Danville Friday night. Vaughn returned to the game and helped the Blackcats to a 16-15 win over the Admirals. (photo by Ed Taylor) were assessed 5 yards moving the ball to the 15.

Prestonsburg has never been a team to quit and the Cats didn't quit because of the setback. Just the opposite. The long run by Hyden seemed to make the Blackcats aware that they could run against the Admirals and 12 plays later that scored 85 yards. Hyden plunged into the end zone for a game tying touchdown with 35 seconds left in the first half. Short PAT gave the Blackcats the 7-0 lead which they carried into the locker room at halftime. Danville had the football not before the night ended but when Kevin Vaughn tackled Rogers time expired on Danville.

It was a defensive battle for both teams in the second half with Prestonsburg nursing the one point lead. The two teams exchanged turnovers with less than 10 minutes remaining in the third period. Hyden intercepted a Rogers pass and Ben Kintz intercepted a Rathitt pass.

Prestonsburg held the Admirals as they forced them to punt while deep into their territory. The punted football rolled as the players waited for the ball to come to a stop. Jody Compton then tried to pick up the football and run, but the ball slipped out of his hands and the Admirals recovered the football.

Danville then drove to the Prestonsburg 32 where the Blackcats defense stopped them and took over the first downs.

With 17 seconds left in the third, Danville tried a fake punt play that failed to materialize. The Blackcats ended the final stanza with the 7-6 lead.

Rathitt tried to hit Sparklock with a pass early in the fourth quarter only to have the pass picked off by Danville at the Admirals 2-yard line. The turnover finished up being a bright spot for the Cats. They scored a safety when the Admirals could not move the ball out of the end zone and the ball went sliding out of bounds. Prestonsburg led 9-6.

This is incredible," said lineman Kev Lippert, who has been a part of the strong defensive and offensive line the Blackcats have displayed all season. "There is nothing like it."

Rogers carrying the last play of the game came as no surprise to the Blackcats defense as they anticipated that.

We all had the feeling that he was going to get the ball. When I saw that I was not far from it, I knew it was the best decision that I ever had.

A short said that Danville's decision to run the football rather than to go for the tie was not surprising to him.

I wasn't surprised by the move," he said. "Every time they needed short yardage they went for it and usually Rogers carried the ball."

They made a decision to go for it and we arose to the occasion and stopped it."

I don't mind that they couldn't want to get out of us. We're going to go up there and take it to them. I don't know much about Mayfield but they've always had pretty good athletes."

Prestonsburg Athletic Director Gordon Pardo, labeled the game the best that he has seen.

I think that the fans who were down there saw the best high school football game that may have been played in Class 2A in the entire state," said the Prestonsburg coach.

I was by far the most enjoyable that I have watched since I have been at Prestonsburg. A lot of it is because we won. If we had lost that would have taken a little bit away from it."

Coch Pardo said that he was happy for the kids who make up the Prestonsburg football team because "they are a great group of kids."

They have worked hard all season and were a 20-point underdog going into the game. But they won it the underdog to Prestonsburg fans. We played good aggressive defense and shell-shocked Danville."

It was the best high school game that I have seen," said Joe Back, who has followed the Blackcats the past eight years. "There is no question about it."

This is a football team that is special. Their defense is the sole reason they are going to Louisville Friday. This team has special people on it and great teams are made up of special people."

The Blackcat crowd celebrated after the game. Admiral Stadium was covered with Blackcat fans. There were tears of happiness in the eyes of fans.

You get close to the players," said Back, "and you get excited about what they have accomplished and it causes you shed some tears. But they are tears of joy and happiness."

Danville's much heralded backfield did not fare so well against the Blackcat front line. Once they found the middle closed up the Admirals utilized their quickness and good speed to get outside on Prestonsburg.

Danville rushed for 207 yards on 54 carries. They had 43 yards passing for 250 total yards.

Kintz Bess led the ground game for Danville with 49 yards on 11 carries. Rogers finished with just 37 yards on 16 attempts.

Rogers had five completions for 43 yards. He was intercepted once. The Admirals fumbled the football twice, losing it once. They were assessed 80 yards in penalties.

Prestonsburg could only grind out 28 yards on the ground on 27 carries. It was the passing arm of Rathitt that moved the Blackcats offense as he was six of seven in passing for 76 yards. On a boot-leg play, Hyden had one completion as Ben Kintz made a sensational catch while being hit.

Rathitt was intercepted twice in the game and the Blackcats fumbled the football away twice.

Prestonsburg will travel to Louisville this Friday afternoon and will face the Mayfield Cardinals at 4 p.m. kickoff time.

the leading scorers for the Raiders. Chris Hamilton tossed in 17 points and Ryan Hamilton netted 14. Ryan Hamilton drilled three three-pointers in leading a fourth quarter comeback for the Raiders.

Allen Central held a 70-58 advantage on the strength of the play of Jeremy Hall and Ronnie Samons. Ryan Hamilton came out like a ball of fire and he scored the first eight points for the Raiders to start the period. He nailed a trey, a shot jumper and another three-pointer to make it a 58-55 game.

A 12-3 run by Allen Central with 2:42 left gave them the 12-point cushion. Allen Joe Moore hit two free throws and Chris Hamilton picked Hall's pocket in making a steal and was fouled by Hall. Hamilton connected on the two free throws to cut the margin to eight.

Following a Rebel turnover, Stumbo was whistled for the flagrant foul with Ryan Hamilton hitting one of two. Chris Hamilton scored on a short jumper following a Allen Central turnover to narrow the lead to five, 70-65.

With less than a minute remaining in the game, Ryan Hamilton buried his third three-pointer and it was a two-point game, 70-68.

South Floyd put freshman Beau Tackett on the line with 21 ticks of the clock left and the freshman sank both charity tosses for a four-point, 72-68, Allen Central lead.

South Floyd moved the basketball down court and found Chris Hamilton in the corner where he hit a three-pointer to make it a 72-71 game and the South Floyd crowd erupted.

But Jeremy Hall tied the charity stripe with just six seconds left and connected on both tosses to give his team a 74-71 lead.

South Floyd had the final possession with six seconds left, but Matt Rose was called for a carrying violation as the game ended.

After Allen Central had taken a 2-0 lead on a basket underneath by Samons, the Raiders ran off five straight for a 5-2 game.

A basket by Rose, a long jumper by Moore and Stone's free throw gave the Raiders the lead. John Hall's three-point basket made it an 8-4 game before the Rebels scored the next seven points for a 11-8 advantage.

The Rebels led 19-10 with 56 seconds left in the first quarter, but South Floyd scored the final four points to trail 19-14 at the first stop.

Down by six early in the second period, a three-point basket by Stone and two free throws from Charles Johnson cut the lead to one, 23-22.

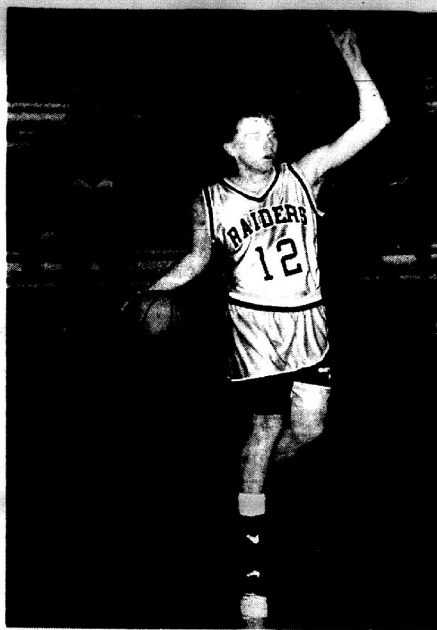

South Floyd took their first lead since early in the first period, 29-27, when Stone drilled his second three-point basket of the game with 2:34 left in the half. It was to be his last one as he and Hall got into a bumping match. A fight broke out between the two teams and ejections followed.

South Floyd shot four free throws on the two technicals against the Rebels and Allen Central shot six. Hall hit five of the six and a Stumbo layup gave the Rebels a 36-32 half-time lead.

Coach Rose was pleased with the effort the Raiders gave in the first game but noted that poor free throw shooting was the culprit.

"I'm well satisfied with the effort my kids gave," he said. "We're just now getting in all of our offenses and defenses."

"I'm pleased with the way they worked hard. If we could have just had a few more free throws it may have been different. We need to work on some fundamentals of not giving up the baselines. When we get things like that down, we'll be all right."

Hall led all scorers with his 32 points. He connected on 10 of 12 free throws and had two three-point baskets. Hall dazzled the crowds with his pointed passing in picking up (unofficially) nine assists.

Enough cannot be said of the inside play of Samons who finished with 20 points and 11 rebounds.

Coach Johnny Martin went to his young bench and got some good play out of Jason Bevins, Thomas Jenkins, Matt Crawford and Beau Tackett.

Martin, the Rebels' leading scorer last season, totaled only four points before his ejection. Stumbo finished with six while Turner netted two.

Bevins scored four points for Allen Central but worked the boards very well. Jenkins tossed in four points and Tackett had two points.

Rose added 10 points for the Raiders and played a good floor game in directing the South Floyd attack. Moore tossed in eight with Stone finishing with seven before being ejected. Hall and Johnson tallied six points and Bo Rogers had three.

Coach Rose said that his team performed up to expectations this early in the season.

"I didn't expect that we would be world beaters at this point in the season," he said. "We will be a competitive team by January. By then we will be able to play with a lot of folks."

The Raider coach saw a lot of positive things in players that came off the bench.

"Ryan gave us a big lift," he said. "Charles Johnson gave us a good effort tonight. I'm not disappointed in any of them. They gave everything they had and that's all you can ask of them."

Allen Central (1-0) faces Betsy Layne Thursday night. South Floyd will take on Betsy Layne Saturday night at Allen Central.

Jenkins edges Prestonsburg in Hall of Fame game, 88-85

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

The Jenkins Cavaliers went on a 10-4 run late in the fourth quarter and handed the Prestonsburg Blackcats a 88-85 loss in the Hall of Fame game played at the Prestonsburg Fieldhouse last Saturday evening.

A three-point basket by Jimbo Jarrell put the Blackcats on top 69-66, but Jenkins took advantage of some Prestonsburg turnovers and scored the next six points to go on top 74-69. Bret James' eight-foot jumper and a basket by Toby Robinson cut the lead to one, 74-73. Jenkins scored the next four and it was a 78-73 contest.

The Blackcats regained the lead with a 6-0 run that was started by Jason Burke's two free throws. Martin Newberry had a rebound basket with 2:35 left and Burke hit a 14-footer to give Prestonsburg the lead.

Four consecutive free throws by Robbie Royalty and Chris Stewart put the Cavs back in front 82-79 with Robinson fouling out. Royalty canned four more free throws to seal the game for the Cavaliers.

Prestonsburg grabbed the early 2-0 lead on a lay up by Robinson on a turnover by Jenkins to begin the game. It was 9-4 Prestonsburg on back-to-back baskets by Ryan Ortega. The score was tied at 9-9 and 15-15 before Prestonsburg took a 17-16 first quarter lead.

Prestonsburg's first big lead of the game came in the second period when they managed an eight point lead, 27-19. Jenkins scored the next six and it was a two-point game, 27-25.

Prestonsburg rolled back out in front by 10 points, 35-25, behind the shooting of Burke and David Gearhart. Prestonsburg took a 38-32 half-time lead to the locker room.

Prestonsburg maintained a eight-point lead throughout the third quarter. Jenkins scored six unanswered points to narrow the margin to one, 54-53. The Cavaliers took a 58-57 lead with 38 seconds left in the third period. However, a three-point basket by James gave the Blackcats a 60-58 lead at the end of three quarters.

Burke hit a three-pointer to start the final period and the Cavs led by five, 63-58. But the Cavaliers fought back and tied the game at 63-63.

Royalty led all scorers with 37 points as he connected on 14 of 21 free throw attempts. Charles Stallard added 20 points with Bill Hurst scoring 11.

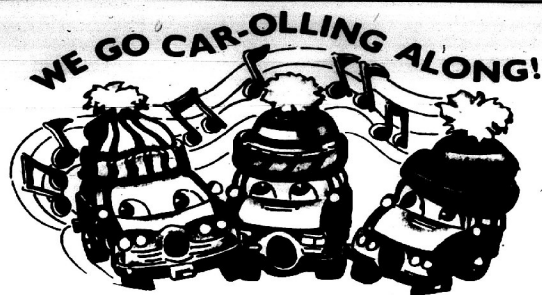

Burke led Prestonsburg with 19 points and Robinson netted 16. Robinson drilled four three-pointers in the game. James finished with 13 points with Gearhart and Ortega scoring 10 each.

Jarrell tossed in seven points and freshman David Turner had six points. Newberry finished with four.

In the junior varsity game, Prestonsburg had an easy time in winning over Jenkins JV's 89-30.

Turner tossed in 21 points with four three-pointers and Trell Farler added 20 points. Farler had two treys in the game. Jimbo Jarrell tallied 13 points.

WHO WOULD PITINO LIKE TO MATCH WITS WITH IN BIG GAME?

DICK PICK!

With whom would Rick Pitino like to go head-to-head in an NCAA title game? Kentucky's coach was asked last week.

Dean "Bust the Myth" Smith? Mike Krzyzewski? Bob Knight, maybe?

"Dick Pick," Pitino replied. "He could lay on the floor, do all those things. It would be fun."

How would Morehead State's coach feel about it? Could not reach him for comment last week, but let's put words in his mouth anyway.

"Gimme Dean Smith's players and prime time on CBS and let's do it."

Perfect way to begin a basketball season in Kentucky. Laughing. Heaven knows it gets serious soon enough.

PITINO POSITIVES

North Carolina's loss to Massachusetts last week does more than demonstrate how wide open the college game is going to be this winter. Makes UK partisans do a double-take at the schedule.

Wildcats could play as many as five Top 20 teams before Santa Claus heads south. (UofL, IU, Arizona, Ohio St. and Texas).

And, in the middle of what should be a dandy SEC schedule, UK plays UMass Feb. 6 at the Meadowlands.

Meanwhile, Pitino is busy trying to set a tone.

"I've loved the four teams I've had here, but I love this one the most because it plays with such heart," he said last week.

"We're a team that's going to be better in a month's time and better a month after that."

Pitino warned, however, "this team will not have a 30-4 record like last year. But, I do feel it can go as far. We simply have to peak at the right time."

WINSTON BENNETT

"It's good to be home again," Winston Bennett said as he strode into Rupp Arena last week.

Smartly dressed and with the straight-back bearing of a Marine lieutenant, or junior bank executive, which he is, the former UK star was on hand to work UK's Cat Calls radio show.

But the former Wildcat captain is being mentioned as a possible assistant coach to Rick Pitino when a vacancy comes.

The possibility raises a number of logic questions.

First, why would Bennett defect from the PNC Bank training program and a promising future in his hometown to become a recruiter?

And, accepting that Bennett could recognize the skills and style Pitino demands in a prospect, does he have the personality and stamina to 'court' high school hot shots?

Taking the second first, no, Bennett is stoic, serious and, it says here, would quickly grow weary of the road and playing kiss-up to teenagers and high school coaches.

And, only way Bennett would take a UK assistant's job is if Pitino could match and guarantee the money and future considerations equal to Bennett's banking future.

UK's coach can't do either.

Footnote: If Bennett is willing, UK basketball could benefit more if he stayed put in Louisville where he is well known, highly respected and can be a lasting community influence for his alma mater.

CAT CALLS SHUFFLE

Tom Leach is a solid choice for UK's restructured pregame Cat Calls radio program on the UK Basketball Network. The consummate radio professional, Leach comes prepared, is glib, quick thinker in the clinches, doesn't try to out-talk a talker, understands the game, and has his ego under control.

Winston Bennett?

Excellent choice also. That is if the former UK captain sticks to the straight-talk style that made him popular with fans and media during his playing days ('84-'88).

Too often such radio 'anoointments' transform appointees into cheerleaders. They fall into the trap of wanting to please the paymaster instead of remembering that sharing their ex-player views on tactics, strategy, player performance, as well as second guessing, are reasons why listeners tune in and call.

READERS (RIGHT) WRITE

Some readers took exception to questions raised about Rick Pitino's recruiting abilities.

(77-year old) Hazel Porter, Frankfort: "Your attitude toward Wildcat basketball makes me wonder if some surgeon operated on your brain and left nothing in there but the scissors. Happily, thousands of loyal Wildcat fans who stand in line for tickets, love Rick Pitino, Armani suits, gold cuff links, great recruiting and joyous Final Fours are satisfied. So, why don't you take a hike?"

COMMENT: Thank you for writing.

A.M. Futtrell, Lexington: "What's with you? In your last column (also my last) you trashed the (UK) basketball program, the football team, and the announcers. Have a nice day!"

COMMENT: Thank you for writing.

Carl Bible of Milford Oh.: "I hear Rick Pitino wants to back out of an agreement to play Cincinnati next year. Maybe Pitino doesn't think Allen Edwards and Anthony Epps can handle UC's vaunted fullcourt pressure. The most vicious press since Georgetown teams of the mid-80s."

COMMENT: Future schedules are normally guarded like gold at Fort Knox. But frankly I don't see why UK would schedule fast-rising Cincinnati anyway unless the payday was enormous.

COMMENT II: Since UK's coach and Xavier's Pete Gillen are good friends, perhaps more likely, a series with the Musketeers at Riverfront Coliseum.

Pitino said two weeks ago he would like to see "us play more games in Louisville and Cincinnati so our fans, non-season ticket holders, would have an opportunity to see us."

Jack Isen (native of) Mt. Sterling, said his hometown's inclusion on the list pleased several of the townies.

"Great tradition. It is one of the best," Doug Gibson, Elizabethtown writes. "I can't believe that a former St. Camillus standout like yourself would omit the (Corbin) Redhounds when listing the top sports towns in Kentucky."

COMMENT: Thank you for writing.

'DEAN' DEANED

A no-news item last week sustains this idea I have about myth making. North Carolina Dean Smith allowed All-American center Eric Montross

The Minutemen rallied and won in overtime. But Smith's decision to leave Montross in the game was reported with little or no fanfare in print, nor second guessed by TV reporters.

This, along with Froghorn Vitale, is how a dean of coaches remains one.

Fans turn out to support Blackcats at Danville

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

The rain was starting to fall as fans filed into Admiral Stadium for the semistate match-up between the two top teams, considered the best in the state, in Class 2A high school football.

The gates were opened on time and fans from Prestonsburg arrived early and found themselves a good place to sit. Their red umbrellas opened and one side of the field became a sea of red.

As game time slowly approached, the Danville side had yet to roll with fans. But Prestonsburg fans had rolled their side and some had to stand. A fence that surrounded the combination football/track and field complex kept the fans from spilling onto the field.

It was a noisy, excited Prestonsburg crowd. For the second consecutive week the fans were able to become part of the game and they were very much part of it. Their team was playing the undefeated and current 2A champions on Danville's home turf.

Memories lingered and discussions were heard about the licking that Prestonsburg took last year at home against the same Danville team. Nothing would please the Blackcat faithful more than to see the Cats claw their opponents and snap their winning streak, thus ending their third consecutive trip to the final game.

After the Blackcats posted the 16-15 win over the Admirals, the field at Admiral Stadium was covered with Prestonsburg fans. Tears mingled with the rain that was slowly falling. Joy and happiness over the accomplishment by a team that refused to quit were evident. Mothers with tears in their eyes — tears of joy — looked for their player sons.

It was good to see that a lot of pressure had been relieved. The players hugged each other and so did the fans. Coaches relished the thrill of victory because there was no agony of defeat.

Coach Bill Letton was wrestled to the ground in celebration and he let out a big yell of happiness while waving his arms. It was a happy Coach.

Goodman and Coach Hager who danced around the field.

James Stout had that "Stout smile" as he talked about the play of the Cats and his son John.

"He made them," he said with a big smile when asked about the two extra points that John had made during the game. "It was a great game. This is a great team."

Durward Hale had only one word when asked to describe the game. "Defense."

Prestonsburg High School Principal Karen Trivette was just bubbling over with happiness.

"We're all so proud of them (the Blackcat team)," she said. "We want to thank everyone who stood with us and supported this team."

"We'll try to have school Monday, but I don't know how much," she said with a laugh.

When it comes to high school football there are no fans like the Blackcat fans. Along the sidelines, as the game approached the last quarter and a half, the fans lined the outside fence and stretched the length of the two end zones.

Before the game, fans were nervous because they were unsure of the outcome. Sometimes to comfort them, they were saying, "We'll win it all to night," while confessing to the next person, "I'm not sure."

This team has been on a mission of sorts since day one of the football season in 1993. It all started at Clay County and will conclude this Friday afternoon in Louisville's Cardinal Stadium when they will play, for the first time in their school's history, for a state championship.

I remember Dwayne Garza asking me at the Clay County game when his team had built a 40-point lead, "Are you going to Louisville with us?" The hard-running fullback also stated that this team would go undefeated.

Again, the fans must face one more day of anxiety and wondering. Once again, they will be walking the sidelines and stands because they are not sure of the outcome. Again, they will be trying to console themselves with

"we can do it," while confessing once again, "I'm not sure."

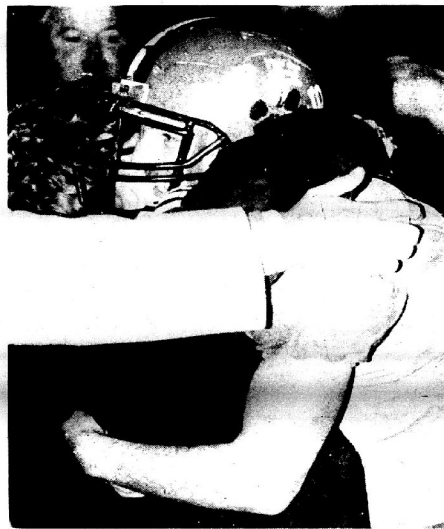

To all Blackcat fans, just think, just one more Friday of football and this one is for all the marbles -- a state championship. So, don't quit pacing yet. Don't quit wondering yet. Just let this team know that you are there and you can make it -- just one more Friday.

Win or lose, the Blackcats' season will end. It will be a memorable season for all who have been close to this program.

The players are to be congratulated on a great season regardless of the outcome Friday. But this ballclub has more than just great players. You can ask any of them why this team has been successful and they will tell you that it is because of the great coaching staff that Prestonsburg High School has put on the field with the kids.

Coach Letton has always held in high regard the advice of his assistants. They have worked hard since early August in getting this team ready for this one day in 1993 -- a chance to play for a state championship. I think they have done an excellent job and deserve the credit for a great season of coaching a great team.

A victory hug!

A Prestonsburg football player received a hug -- a victory hug -- after the Blackcats posted a 16-15 win over the Danville Admirals last Friday night at Danville. This scene was common as fans, parents and players celebrated after the game. (photo by Ed Taylor)

Happy times!

Defensive back Greg Jones was all smiles and he had reason to be happy. His Blackcat team had just defeated Danville 16-15 ending the Admirals' 42 game winning streak. Also, the win earned the Blackcats a trip to Louisville this Friday afternoon for the state championship match-up. (photo by Ed Taylor)

The fun of fishing

Picking the proper rod to fish with may sound simple and uncomplex and a lot of anglers give it little thought, but it is one of the biggest decisions you may make during your search for your day's catch. Once you get the fish on you certainly don't want to lose him and using the wrong rod is the reason we lose a lot of our fish. Although there are thousands of rods on the market today, I am going to give you some of my thoughts on selecting the proper rod to get the job done the most effectively that you can.

First let's talk about graphite rods. To me, graphite serves a lot of purposes, but usually when I choose graphite, I need sensitivity. Graphite rods are very sensitive and are very quick in reflex. What I mean by reflex is that they have a quicker return than glass rods and it is this quick return or reflex action that can cause you to lose fish while using certain baits. Graphite to me is great for flipping, worm fishing, or pitching and sometimes on spinnerbaits. It is also a must for Stugos or Top Guns. Here we need great power, sensitivity, and a quick return to get the advantage over the fish.

On other baits such as topwaters, crankbaits, jerkbaits such as the Rogue, Long A or rattin baits like the Milo, I choose glass rods. Here we have baits that the fish will usually explode on very aggressively. I also use glass rods on buzzbaits. With glass we can't set the hook as quickly as we can with graphite. We also won't lose as many fish with glass rods because its reflex is so much slower. While the fish may be trying to shake the hooks out of its mouth swinging side to side with furious power on the movement back and forth, a fish can create slack line with a graphite rod because the rod and fish will be moving at different speeds.

This slack line in the battle can give the fish an opportunity to throw the hooks and regain his freedom. With glass rods the fish and rod move together at closer speeds. This will keep the fish hooked so you can land him. The fish will also be able to inhale the bait deeper into its mouth because of lack of pressure on the rod.

As a simple rule, I use glass rods with baits that contain treble hooks and graphite rods with single hook baits. My exceptions to this rule will be discussed in my next article.

Keep a positive attitude, keep casting, and keep FISHING!!!

Q95 to hold pep rally in Louisville

Radio station WQHY 95 will host a pep rally for the Prestonsburg football team in Louisville this Friday afternoon just before the Blackcats will take the field against Mayfield for the state championship.

All Blackcat fans are urged to be at the rally that will feature free food. The rally will start at 2 p.m. and last until 3:30 p.m.

The Prestonsburg cheerleaders and school principal Karen Trivette will be present to lead the yell.

Q95 will have a live remote from the Executive West hotel, said station manager Gorman Collins, Jr.

Lady Rebels

The Lady Rebels led at the end of the first quarter, 16-12, after getting off to a slow start. The Lady Rebels took a 4-0 lead on consecutive baskets by Mullins, and they led 8-4 on back-to-back buckets from Samois.

South Floyd scored the next five points to go up 9-8. Thornberry had a rebound basket and a free throw for an 8-7 game. Two charity tosses by Isaac gave the Lady Raiders their only lead at 9-8.

Trailing 19-12 at the onset of the second quarter after Brown's trey, Tackett hit her first trey and cut the lead to four, 19-15. Allen Central then went on a 7-0 run and led 26-15 with 5:31 left in the half.

Coach Compton was pleased with her team's play.

"I felt like we played excellent team basketball. We moved better than any team I have watched play to be this young," she said. "At one time I had one senior out there that had any playing experience (Brown). The younger players stepped up and played a great game."

Coach Compton said that her team handled the pressure of South Floyd very well and especially down the stretch.

"I couldn't have asked for any better game. We had a breakdown on defense at times."

Coach Compton says there was a reason for the breakdown.

All season long we have practiced with Veronica in the middle. Now Drama Kilgore is asked to play a slot that she's never played before.

"We had some good block outs. There were a few times we had some lockdown there and didn't block out well on free throws."

Mullins came down and ran the team very well. She stepped in and took (Denny) Wiley's place. We don't have that three-point threat anymore that we had in (Staci) Moore last year. The girls know that and they are looking inside."

Lisa Stumbo had seven points in the Allen Central win. Fula Robinson finished with six. Kilgore had six points, also.

Samois led the Lady Rebels in rebounding with nine. Robinson pulled down six rebounds with Kilgore gathering in five.

Allen Central (1-0) faces Betsy Layne Wednesday night in pre-season tournament play. South Floyd (0-1) takes on Betsy Layne Saturday at 6 p.m. at Allen Central.

Ask Dr. Bubba

Editor's Note: Dr. Bubba is not a licensed, practicing therapist, but has studied with such geniuses of the twentieth century as Dr. Ruth Westheimer and Dr. Joyce Brothers, his fourth and sixth wives, respectively, and has also traveled extensively in the Orient, where he learned such ancient disciplines as Origami, the Japanese art of paper-folding; and intensive navel contemplation, during which he discovered that the human body does indeed produce its own lint and that he bore a striking resemblance to the great god Ho-Tai, better known to millions of worshippers as "Fat Buddha," only with a lot more body hair. Dr. Bubba now offers these divine truths and revelations of his faithful followers on videotape. That docu-drama, "It Ain't Easy Bein' Greasy: How To Survive Six Months On A Tibetan Mountain Without Goin' Spastic," will be available from BubbaFilmCorp Ltd. just in time for Christmas.

Dear Dr. Bubba: I have just one small question of overwhelming philosophical and metaphysical importance: Why? Just Wondering, Louisa

Dear Just: Because.

Dear Dr. Bubba: I'm a strong advocate of granting civil rights to turkeys (the kind with feathers, not the kind with titles like "Congressman"), and although it's too late to stop the needless Thanksgiving slaughter, Christmas is coming up and a whole new batch of poor little innocents will give their all to fill the bellies of big fat slobes like you. That being the case, my new organization—Turkeys Will Exact Revenge, People (TWERP)—is setting up picket lines this holiday season in front of all Louis Rich outlets. That's right, while all your so-called "fans" are going about doing their Christmas shopping, there will be TWERPs everywhere to get in their way and make them miserable. My question is, when I'm arrested, how do I tell the jail guards that I'm allergic to de-lousing spray without making all the other prisoners laugh at me? Turkey X. Somewhere Out There

Dear Turkey: Ah think that makin' yerself a laughin' stock because of an allergy is the least o' yer worries. Believe it or not, though, there is a twelve-step program to help ya git over yer problem. It's called "Dr. Bubba's Sure-Cure Fer All Yer Ailments." The first step is bein' real polite ta the nice men with the nets an' tranquilizer guns when they come ta transport ya ta yer lush penthouse suite at the Rubber Ramada. Thanks fer providin' me with yer name an' address. Now if all the other TWERPs out there would just do the same.

That's 'bout all the space we got fer this week, folks. Keep them cards an' letters pourin' in ta "Ask Dr. Bubba," c/o The Big Sandy News, P.O. Box 766, Louisa, Ky. 41230. In the meantime, good luck with yer Christmas shoppin' (ya can just send ME cash, so ya can avoid the crowds), an' as always, watch out fer them TWERPs.

Close to HOME

by Joe Adams
HIS NEXT STOP SURE TO BE CARNEGIE HALL.

If you are as musically talented as I am, you're lucky to tune in a radio station. You can listen to music. You can enjoy it. But you can't play it.

It hurts to sing, and people ask you to sing solo—that's as in "so low" that nobody can hear you. But something amazing has happened to give folks like us hope.

I'm turning into a musical genius.

I was playing with my 1-year-old daughter in her room recently when I came across her Little Tikes plastic piano. I had no intention of playing it. I wanted to move it to the wall so she wouldn't trip over it and cry.

Instead, I nearly tripped over it myself. Something moved me as I moved the piano so I heavily-handed a little key, and another, and another.

Moments later, my son ran in with an important revelation.

"Hey dad!" my 4-year-old said. "That's Jingle Bell Rock."

For the first time in my life, I had figured out more than one note to a song all by myself. Better yet, someone recognized what I was trying to play.

"Hey honey!" I said to my wife in another room. "You're not going to believe this."

I played more "Jingle Bell Rock" for her. I could tell she was stunned and impressed. In fact, about all she could say was "That's very good, dear." The music kept flowing from my fingers in the days that followed.

Before long I was playing parts of more Christmas songs—this time, "Little Drummer Boy" and "Joy to the World."

Just when I thought some kind of Christmas spirit had seized me, I peeked out portions of "Louie, Louie" and "Achy Breaky Heart."

And all this by ear. Who would have figured such an awakening could happen to someone at age 31?

Now I know how Grandma Moses must have felt.

HUMBLE BEGINNINGS
If I've lacked visible musical ability all these years, I come by it naturally.

My folks mostly picked beans, not guitars, and we weren't the kind of family that sang together. The singing and guitar playing my father used to do qualified for some musical influence. I don't remember a lot about it, except that his music sounded better with the door closed and the television volume on high.

On the other hand, my grandfather used to cut country music star Keith Whitley's hair and country star Ricky Skaggs did push me in the stroller when our dads worked together in the early 1960s. Maybe those ties rubbed off on me somehow.

Until now, though, music reminded me of some kind of mysterious foreign language that I couldn't crack. But I never gave up.

In high school, I vowed to learn to play the harmonica. I bought a half-dozen before I figured out that owning one didn't mean I would learn to play it.

So I bought a book. The record with it explained how to play and how the harmonica should sound. From what I could tell, I seemed to be making progress on my breathing. Then the crowns on my teeth started coming loose.

Eating suited me better than playing, so I put the harmonicas in my dresser drawer under my underwear and let them be.

SPECIAL TREATS: THEN AND NOW

At the risk of being accused of over-kill, I just can't pass this opportunity to underscore—one more time—how much things have changed over the years.

As a kid growing up in Muddy Branch, the big treat of the day, especially in the summertime, was a bottle of pop (usually Pepsi, RC or Spur, because they were the biggest) and a "banana flip."

I'm sure that "banana flip" wasn't its real name anymore than the vanilla ice cream covered with a crisp layer of chocolate and stuck on a stick was called a "chilly imp," but that's what we called them.

For those who called it something else, a "banana flip" was a little yellow cake folded over a thick layer of vanilla icing... and for 15 cents, we could sit on the steps of the Northeast Coal Company store and eat one and drink our pop and feel important.

Even grown-ups liked banana flips because miners who worked third shift would buy them and put them in their dinner buckets as, on those long, lazy summer afternoons, we boys would sit and eat and drink our pop while the miners would sit and chew and whittle and spit, and wait to head off up Number Three so they'd be at the mine when the day shift ended.

Anyway, what brought all this change to mind, was a couple of items that appeared in Parade Magazine earlier this month under the heading of "Food, Facts, Trends and Gadgets."

Poison Oak

Clyde Pack

The first thing that caught my eye was an ad for something that we certainly could have used back then: a capsule you can buy "at drugstores and supermarkets" to help stop stomach gas from "veggies, beans and fruit."

Had we had this product back then, perhaps those miners wouldn't have had also to pack a pack of Tums alongside their banana flips.

The next item was the dinger, though. It was a "new treat" for kids. It makes me sick to even describe it, but in case you missed it, I feel compelled to try. The ad begins "Your kids will love it. You may not!" Now, if there was ever an understatement in advertising, that last sentence was it. The new "goodie" is called "Super Nauseating Obnoxious Treat. (SNOT, for short.)"

The first candy to drip from a life-like nose.

Now, is that not about the sickest thing to come down the pike in awhile? There's even a color photo (I've clipped it just in case someone who didn't see it already, doesn't believe me) of a Calkin-like youngster holding the nose (which is definitely not lifelike, because it's green) high over his head, letting the slimy stream of—whatever it is, drip onto his tongue.

Mercy! Call me an old fogey, but I think goodness for memories of those days when Dad would scold me for chewing blow gum; for those days of banana flips and cold pop, and the front porch of the company store.

Passing the gavel

Ruby Akers, installing officer, presented the gavel of Jenny Wiley Chapter No. 3528, AARP, to the newly-installed president, Burieta Gearhart, at a dinner meeting held November 19.

AARP holds last meeting of year

Jenny Wiley Chapter No. 3528, American Association of Retired Persons (AARP), met for the last time in 1993 on November 19.

The meeting began at 5:30 p.m. with dinner in Highlands Regional Medical Center's cafeteria. A business session, led by president Nina Blanton, was held after the dinner.

The business session began with Orville Cooley leading the group in prayer and the pledge of allegiance to the American flag. Mary Gobie read the minutes and James E. Gobie gave the treasurer's report.

Among items discussed at the meeting was a fund-raising effort by the Prestonsburg Police Department to purchase clothing for needy children in the area. AARP members voted to contribute $100 to the project.

During the meeting, a card of thanks from Jack Fread, expressing his appreciation for the recent "love offering" received to assist him, was read. Also discussed was a letter from Dolly M. Sears of the Capital AARP Chapter encouraging members to join a campaign to contact senators and representatives in an effort to have long-term care offered now. Members of the Jenny Wiley Chapter were asked to contact these public officials and ask for long-term care to be available now and not sometime in the future.

Also during the meeting, Ruby Akers installed new officers for 1994 as follows: Burieta Gearhart, president; Orville Cooley, vice president; Marie Gobie, secretary; and James E. Gobie, treasurer.

Gearhart addressed the group and spoke about her plans for the coming year.

Orville Cooley had the group chuckling with his poetry reading. Attending the meeting were Nina Blanton, Flem Blanton, James E. Gobie, Marie Gobie, Mary Tingle, Lula F. DeRussell, Hager White, Gladys Allen, Matilda Johnson, Gladys Cooley, Orville Cooley, Larnest Hayes, Ruby Akers, Myrtle Allen, Otella Smiley, Burieta Gearhart, Maxine S. Bierman, Judy Johnson and Pearl Robertson.

Because this was the last dinner meeting of 1993, members were asked to attend the Christmas concert of the Community Chorus in lieu of a December meeting. The next meeting will be March 18, 1994. The meeting was adjourned with prayer.

Alvin's Turn

THE TABLE IS TURNED HA! HA! HA!

Countless are the times readers have read about me and others in this family. Now, it is time for one of us to share some of Kim's misfortunes.

Last week, she told you about that hairy virus that visited their household. And last Sunday that very bug took a bite out of Kim.

She had gone on a shopping trip with her mother when the virus bit.

Once they had finally reached her mother's home, Kim dashed up the stairs and headed for the bathroom.

Her mother, a lady with a fine taste in decorating, has one of those pretty fluffy combs she had years ago.

Well, Kim summed that fluffy lid up, then slammed that porcelain lid up, and "BAM," "SMACK," right between her eyes, the lid came crashing.

Hey, I know we shouldn't be laughing at this, she was really sick, and now she's got a purple-blue knot between the eyes.

Her mother came running up the stairs and said, "Kimberly Lynn, why is your nose bleeding?"

Of course moaning and groaning was all that was heard.

But when her own mother laughed at this situation, it's only fair the rest of us did, too.

And as our Kim told of the incidents I myself experienced a few weeks ago like her, I must share one more.

It all was happening this night as I was teaching Kim, helping her make her nightgown, always sleeping on the floor.

Suddenly, the next morning the curtains were open, and when daylight shined through the blinds of Kim sits straight up and screams, "Get up everybody, we've overslept!"

And down on the wrong end of the bunk beds she goes.

Or, should we say, she tried to go.

You see, the ceiling fan, which I'll have to have on high speed, was on, and Kim's hair which was standing on end and sort of like Atlanta's night around one of the blades.

The other three blades were bouncing on her head like basketballs as she hung on to the top bunk.

"Romme, Romme!" she screamed, "get me loose from the ceiling fan!"

Well, the spouse was no help, all he could do was double over and laugh.

Knowing I would appreciate hearing about these misfortunes, and I certainly did, Kim told on herself.

However, thanks to Scott Perry, I was able to share them. So, as Kim would say, till next week.

GET ME AN AGENT?

Who knows why my musical talent waited until now to surface, or where it will lead me.

Having this much ability is a particular way. I've wondered how other gifted musicians, such as Beethoven, Bocca, and Mozart, wrestled with their talents and decided the best way to use them.

And I built up in the concert halls, recording deals and talk shows that talent of my caliber will naturally attract. What would that kind of life be to my family?

Perhaps I am not the reason I've been able to sing.

But with my new found musical prowess, I see now that I am not singing.

Children lack musical ability just because their hearts blossomed yet.

Maybe I'll steer them toward music lessons now, maybe even so that the charts to play a real guitar.

After all, they might have the gift as well, without knowing it.

As for me, I think I'll stick with the keys on my computer keyboard and put what might have been behind me.

Besides, I would rather listen to Earth, Wind and Fire than kick his butt on the charts.

CLIFTON BRANHAM LIVES A LIFE OF VIOLENCE

There wasn't much law and order as Clifton Branhams grew up just after the Civil War in the mountains of the westernmost part of Virginia. Times were hard. Resentment existed between individuals and families. Killing was commonplace.

His mother, Mahalia, was half Cherokee. His father, John C. Branhams, had seen her at a Cherokee Indian camp and took her for his bride. Her skin was red-tinted and she looked very much like an Indian with her high cheekbones. Clifton was one of their ten children.

"Clifton was bad even when he was a young boy," Lee Greer said from his home near Pound, Virginia, in 1970. "I remember one time when Clifton kept throwing rocks at my brother. He never would stop until my brother cut him several times with a knife."

Clifton ran away from home at age 12 and hiked about 80 miles to the home of a brother in Johnson County, Kentucky. When he returned a few years later, his family had moved. After awhile he found them living on the top of Cumberland Mountain, near the state line, in Wise County, Virginia.

On a trip to see other "family" on the south side of Pound River, he met Nan Branhams, his second cousin. He would later describe her as "his sweet Nannie." After a short courtship they slipped off and were married. Nancy Branhams was described as "a good person who went around helping people and the sick."

Granville Cox, a brother-in-law who also lived on Cumberland Mountain, near Osborne Gap, was a notorious moonshiner. Clifton began making moonshine liquor and from that point on he was on the wrong side of the law. When the revenue officers got hot on his trail he crossed from one state to the other.

Clifton was arrested in Kentucky for killing Henry Vanover, the father-in-law of bad man Cal Fleming (Cal and his brother Hecan Fleming were later accused along with Dr. M.B. Taylor, "the Red Fox of the Mountains," for the murder of bootlegger, Bad Ira Mullins and several others.)

The slain Vanover had killed a man by the name of Roberts who was staying with Bad Ira at his place. Ira was a bad character who hauled whiskey from North Carolina and sold it in Kentucky and Virginia.

Mullins, in retaliation, hired George Johnson, Clifton Branhams and Clifton's brother, Tandy, to kill Vanover.

After they murdered Vanover, George Johnson started to leave the country but was waylaid and killed. Tandy and Clifton Branhams were arrested and tried in Kentucky for the murder and received life sentences at the Kentucky State Penitentiary at Frankfort.

Clifton became a heavy reader to fill the hours of free time. In reading the Bible he was "saved" after one year in prison and soon took up preaching.

After preaching in prison for 13 years, a parole law was enacted which allowed prisoners who had served ten years or more of their sentence, to be eligible for parole.

Although he and Tandy were paroled, neither became model citizens.

Tandy, who was raucous and mean, got into a brawl with several men in Kentucky and was killed about six months after his release from prison.

Clifton returned to Wise County where he became embroiled in a family squabble during which he shot and killed his wife with a .32 Iver Johnson pistol.

"I saw Clifton sometime shortly before he killed Nan," Lee Greer recalled. "He didn't look natural. He looked so wild I was afraid of him. He got on his horse and headed for Kentucky after the killing. I never saw him again until the trial."

rice destination, it is a painful way of life. Fortunately, for these, the Spirit of Generosity is alive and well in Eastern Kentucky. Not only does this spirit thrive because of caring people with the desire to use their resources for the betterment of others, but it thrives because of public and private organizations dedicated to reaching others with needs in an effort to fill those needs.

The Kentucky Benefits Counseling Program is one of those organizations. It began in March of this year exclusively for the care and welfare of senior citizens 60 years of age and older. It is supported by federal and state monies and is controlled by federal and state mandates.

The program's chief responsibility is to act as an advocacy on behalf of senior citizens to assure those people that they get what is legally and rightfully theirs. Like any new program, the KBCCP went through its early planning stages. Now the KBCCP has offices throughout the state. Each office serves several counties and has one Benefits Counseling Coordinator (BCC) in that multi-county or regional office.

This BCC is dependent on volunteers and trained Volunteer Benefits Counselors to reach and assist the senior citizens in all the counties. My office, at Prestonsburg, is locally sponsored by the Appalachian Research and Defense Fund of Kentucky Inc.

Together we strive to reach and assist senior citizens in a five-county area. Any senior citizen who lives in Floyd, Johnson, Magoffin, Martin or Pike counties is encouraged to call us, toll-free, at 1-800-536-3878. We also encourage you to call us if you know of a senior citizen in need. We cannot help if we do not know!

Now that the KBCCP has offices throughout the state, the Spirit of Generosity no longer has to seem so seasonal. We are here all year to serve our senior citizens.

Grace Greer, daughter of Lee Greer, then said, "My mother was running a store and post office at Pound. Clifton stopped at the store and told her he had killed Nan. 'Oh no, you didn't!' my mother said. Here are the exact words of his answer 'Yes, I left her stretched out in the road.'"

Knowing he must leave the area, Branhams crossed the mountain to Shelby Creek and soon went to his cousin John McCarey's home on Beaver Creek in Floyd County, Kentucky. He stayed there for three months during which time he became close with his young second cousin, Haley McCarey.

Her father had a long-standing feud with a Moore family. McCarey told Branhams that he would allow them to marry if he would rid him of Anderson Moore. Branhams lay on a hill and watched until he had the opportunity to shoot Moore. He and Haley were soon married—six months after he had killed "his sweet Nannie."

Following their marriage they boarded a boat at the mouth of Big Mud, planning to start a new life in Michigan and never return. A drummer, which is what traveling salesmen were called in that era, recognized Branhams and got off the boat at Prestonsburg and notified authorities. Police pursued them aboard a skiff, arrested Branhams, and took him to the Prestonsburg jail and soon thereafter on to Lexington.

After two months, Kentucky agreed to release him to Virginia authorities, and Emmett Swindall and John Wesley Hillman were sent to bring him back to Wise to be tried for the murder of his first wife.

Murder is nothing new in this mountainous area. Too often, even today, we read where individuals take the law into their own hands and become accuser, judge, jury and executioner. That is, if they consider the act of its consequences at all. For centuries before Dr. Thomas Walker's discovery of Cumberland Gap, Indians fought and killed each other over the bountiful hunting ground.

In an earlier series I recounted the life and times (and hanging in Wise County, Virginia) of Dr. M.B. Taylor, the "Red Fox of the Mountain," who inspired some of the famous works of author John Fox Jr.

Clifton Branhams' impudence during the trial did not aid his cause as he was uncooperative and sassed the lawyers when he was questioned. Haley McCarey, his new wife, attended the entire trial and Clifton's father sat nearby.

Editor's Note: Clifton Branhams is sentenced in Jason's From the Mountains next week in the Floyd County Times.

Local resident to participate in Morehead crafts market

Floyd County craftsman Chady Hardwick will participate in Morehead State University's Appalachian Christmas Arts and Crafts Market which is set for Saturday, December 4, from 9 a.m.-6 p.m. at the Laughlin Health Building.

Hardwick, a Betsy Layne resident, will display a variety of Christmas decorated sweats, hats and pins.

The annual market draws more than 100 crafts people who exhibit and sell their work.

"Because of this success, each year it becomes more difficult to top the previous efforts," said Georgia Sammons, coordinator.

The Spirit of Generosity is in the air. It is prevalent now more than at any other time of the year. It is a national phenomenon we joyfully experience in our country between the Thanksgiving and Christmas holidays. This "spirit" or "caring" attitude affects almost everyone, young and old alike.

Our senior citizens—those beautiful people of Eastern Kentucky 60 years of age and older, are affected by it. Some, because of their fortunate circumstances, perpetuate it. These people have the love, the desire to help, and the resources to keep the Spirit of Generosity alive. Some, because of unfortunate circumstances, benefit from it. These people may have the same love, and the same desire to help others, but they simply do not have the resources to contribute.

Their hearts are in the right place but their needs for basic survival dominate. They cannot afford to help others because they are in a situation where they cannot afford to help themselves. In a recent study it was determined that 28 percent of our senior citizens in Eastern Kentucky live at or below the poverty level. This means that in the five Eastern Kentucky counties served by the Kentucky Benefits Counseling Program (KBCCP) at the Prestonsburg office, at least one in four senior citizens are in direct need of assistance in one form or another.

This is alarming, to say the least, but to those who are forced to expe-

BLACKBOTTOM EGGNOG CHIFFON PIE

1 9-inch frozen pie crust
3 tbs. water
2 tbs. rum
2 tbs. brandy
1/2 envelopes unflavored gelatin
2 1/2 cups dairy eggnog
1/4 cup sugar
1/4 tsp. salt
2 squares (2 ounces) semi-sweet chocolate
1 cup whipping cream
Whipped Cream
Chocolate curls
Bake pie crust according to package directions; cool. In small bowl combine water, rum and brandy. Sprinkle gelatin over mixture to soften. Combine 1 1/4 cups eggnog, sugar and salt in a small saucepan; heat just to the boiling point. Add softened gelatin; stir until gelatin is dissolved. Remove from heat. Add remaining 1 1/4 cups eggnog. Pour 1 cup eggnog mixture into heavy saucepan. Pour remaining eggnog in a bowl; cover and refrigerate until partially set, about 50 minutes. Add chocolate to eggnog in pan; stir and heat until well blended. Pour into a bowl and chill until partially set, about 40 minutes. When chocolate mixture is nearly set, heat until smooth. Spread in bottom of pie crust; refrigerate until set. Whip cream until stiff. Fold into plain eggnog mixture. Turn into pie crust on top of chocolate mixture. Allow to set, then cover and chill 4 hours or overnight. Serve garnished with whipped cream and chocolate curls.

EGGNOG CHIFFON PIE

1 9-inch cookie crust
3 tbs. water
2 tbs. rum
2 tbs. brandy
1/2 envelopes unflavored gelatin
2 1/2 cups dairy eggnog
1/4 cup sugar
1/4 tsp. salt
1 cup whipping cream
Mix together water, rum and brandy in a small bowl. Sprinkle gelatin on mixture to soften. Combine 1 1/4 cups eggnog, sugar and salt in a small saucepan; heat just to the boiling point. Add softened gelatin; stir until gelatin is dissolved. Remove from heat. Add remaining 1 1/4 cups eggnog. Pour into a medium-size bowl; place plastic wrap on surface to prevent a skin from forming. Refrigerate until partially set, about 45 minutes. Whip cream until stiff. Fold into gelatin mixture. Turn into pie crust. Allow to set, then cover and chill 4 hours or overnight. Garnish with additional whipped cream.

EGGNOG MOUSSE

2 envelopes unflavored gelatin
1 cup sugar
1 cup cold water
8 egg yolks
3/4 cup good Kentucky Bourbon
2 tsp. vanilla
8 egg whites, stiffly beaten
Ground nutmeg or grated chocolate
Mix gelatin and sugar in the top of a double boiler; add cold water. Place over boiling water and stir until gelatin is thoroughly dissolved. Remove from heat. Beat egg yolks until light and fluffy; stir in Bourbon and vanilla. Pour in gelatin mixture and mix well. Chill until slightly thickened. Fold into egg whites, turn into mold or bowl. Chill until firm. Unmold and garnish with nutmeg or chocolate. Serves 6 to 8.

EGGNOG

6 eggs separated
1 cup sugar, divided
1 cup Bourbon whiskey
1 pint whipping cream
1 cup milk
Grated nutmeg
Beat egg whites until stiff but not dry, gradually add 1/3 cup sugar, beating continuously. Beat egg yolks; add 1/3 cup sugar, beating until well blended. Add whiskey very slowly; fold in beaten egg whites. Whip cream until almost stiff; add 1/3 cup sugar and beat until cream holds a peak. Gently fold into egg mixture; stir in milk. Serve very cold with grated nutmeg as desired. Makes 5 pints.

COFFEE EGGNOG

1/2 gal. ice milk
2 cups hot coffee
1 bottle bourbon
nutmeg
Place ice milk in punch bowl; pour coffee over ice milk. Add bourbon and several ice cubes. Stir until ice is melted. Sprinkle nutmeg over top. Yield 24 servings.

SOUTHERN-STYLE EGGNOG

12 eggs, separated
1 cup sugar
1 tsp. salt
1 cup vanilla
1 tbs. nutmeg
2 cups bourbon
2 oz. rum
1/2 cup powdered sugar
4 cups heavy cream

4 cups milk
Beat egg yolks until creamy; beat in sugar, salt, vanilla and nutmeg. Beat in bourbon and rum slowly. Whip egg whites until stiff peaks form, beating in powdered sugar. Add cream and milk to yolk mixture; fold in egg whites. Refrigerate for several hours before serving. Yield 20 servings.

EGGNOG ROYALE

2 pints coffee ice cream
2 1-quart cans eggnog

3 cups cold coffee
2 cups whiskey (optional)
1 pint heavy whipping cream
Nutmeg
This before serving:
Scoop about 10 large ice cream balls; refreeze on cookie sheet. Chill eggnog.

Just before serving:
Into chilled large punch bowl, stir eggnog, coffee and whiskey. In medium bowl, with electric mixer at high speed, beat cream just until soft peaks are formed; fold into eggnog mixture. Place ice cream balls on top and sprinkle with nutmeg. Serve at once. Makes about 30 1/2-cup servings.

HOLIDAY EGGNOG PUNCH

In large pitcher combine:
2 qts. eggnog
1 cup water
2 6-ounce cans frozen orange juice, thawed and undiluted
Blend well; chill. Pour into punch bowl and garnish with scoops of orange sherbet.

DIVISION NO. II

First Commonwealth Bank of Kentucky, Plaintiff

VS. NOTICE OF SALE

Glenn R. Fugitt, Nancy Fugitt, Glenn R. Fugitt, Nancy Fugitt, Intervenor-Defendants

By virtue of a Judgment and Order of Sale of the Floyd Circuit Court rendered at the November 2, 1993 Term, in the above styled case, I shall proceed to offer for sale at the Courthouse door in Prestonsburg, Kentucky, to the highest and best bidder, the following described property, to-wit:

A certain tract or parcel of land lying on Right Beaver, Floyd County, Kentucky and more particularly described as follows:

Beginning at corner of lot number 4 at a dogwood bush, thence running north to the top of the hill and center of the ridge, thence going southeast and following center of the ridge a distance of approximately 300 feet to marked ash; thence going south and going down the hill to a marked oak at the lower edge of the road, thence going west a distance of approximately 160 feet to beginning.

Being a part of the property conveyed to Carl Duff by deed dated May 15, 1986, and of record at Deed Book 301, Page 200, Floyd County Clerk's Office.

Above described Lot No. 5 description was supplied by Parties of the First Part. All the coal, oil and gas and other minerals and mineral substances are hereby reserved, excepted, and not hereby conveyed.

Starting at Southwest corner of Glen Fugitt's line and running east up hill to center of ridge and turning south and running 175 feet to W. H. Webb and turning west downhill to a marked beech at the end of the flat and the turning north 205 feet back to the beginning.

Being the same property conveyed to Carl Duff and Wanda Duff, his wife, from Anna M. Duff, by deed dated June 17, 1985, and recorded in Deed Book 293, Page 30, records of the Floyd County Clerk's Office; and being the same property conveyed to Glen Fugitt from Carl and Wanda Duff by deed dated July 6, 1987, and recorded in Deed Book 311, Page 437, Floyd County Clerk's Office.

The above description for Lot #6 was supplied by the Parties hereto.

All the coal, oil and gas and other minerals and mineral substances are hereby reserved, excepted, and not hereby conveyed.

The Parties of the Second Part shall have free and open access to the road running along the center of ridge and to the main entrance road.

The property will be sold first as two separate tracts and then as a whole in order to obtain the highest price. This property is sold subject to property taxes due Floyd County, Kentucky.

The amount of money to be raised by this sale shall be Fifteen Thousand Eighteen Dollars and Ninety-Seven Cents ($15,018.97), plus attorney's fees in the amount of $1,000.00, and Seventy-Three Cents ($0.73). Interest shall continue to accrue at the contract rate of eleven percent (11%) per annum until entry of this Judgment, and thereafter at the contract rate of eleven percent (11%) until paid in full. The costs of this action including the advertising of this sale and the fees and commissions for conducting this sale.

For the purchase price the purchaser must execute bond with approved surety or sureties, bearing legal interest at 11% until paid in full, and having the force and effect of a judgment with property retained upon said property as a lien in favor of the seller.

Given under my hand, this 12th day of November, 1993.

James R. Allan, Master Commissioner, Floyd Circuit Court.

We conducted our audit in accordance with generally accepted auditing standards. Those standards require that we plan and perform the audit to obtain reasonable assurance about whether the general purpose financial statements are free of material misstatement. An audit includes examining, on a test basis, evidence supporting the amounts and disclosures in the general purpose financial statements. An audit also includes assessing the accounting principles used and significant estimates made by management, as well as evaluating the overall financial statement presentation. We believe that our audit provides a reasonable basis for our opinion.

In our opinion, the general purpose financial statements referred to above present fairly, in all material respects, the financial position of the City of Martin, Kentucky as of June 30, 1993, and the results of its operations and changes in financial position of its proprietary funds for the year then ended in conformity with generally accepted accounting principles.

Our audit was made for the purpose of forming an opinion on the general purpose financial statements taken as a whole. The supplemental information listed in the table of contents are presented for purpose of additional analysis and are not a required part of the general purpose financial statements of the City of Martin, Kentucky. The information has been subjected to the auditing procedures applied in the audit of the general purpose financial statements and, in our opinion, is fairly stated in all material respects in relation to the general purpose financial statements taken as a whole.

New horizons in pet health insurance

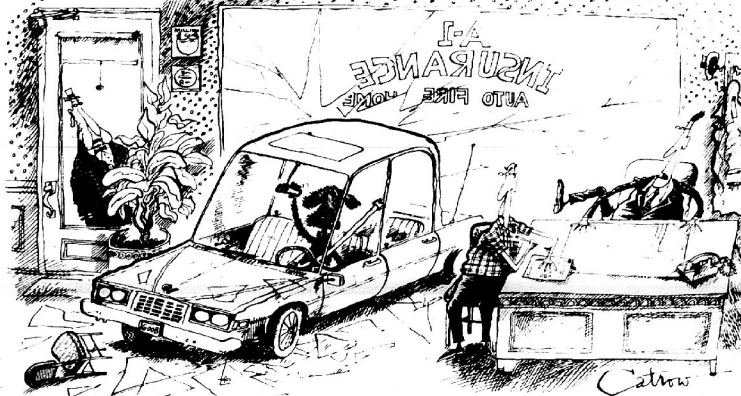

By Mike Capuzzo

"Wild Things" is loath to burden Bill and Hillary with yet another health-care crisis, but do they realize that fewer than one American pet in a hundred has health insurance? Sure, Socks, being First Cat, gets absolutely free, top-flight medical care from government veterinarians. But 110 million ordinary cats and dogs are living with no coverage, exposing their owners to catastrophic medical expenses, such as $2,000 for a canine hip replacement, a $100,000 bill for some very advanced dog-cancer care, or costly new pet dialysis treatments, which unfortunately did not prevent a glamour symbol of the '80s, Spuds MacKenzie, from going to that great doggy tavern in the sky.

Yes, Spuds, the famed Anheuser-Busch party animal, has succumbed to kidney disease at the age of 10 at his home in Riverside, Ill., despite the best care medical science had to offer. Make that HER home. Spuds turned out to be female, despite being draped by the curvaceous Spudettes in Bud Lite ads.

"We were crushed," said Bud Lite marketing director Bob Lachky, confirming the death last week. "Spuds was one of the most powerful advertising ideas in the last 25 years." Like Greta Garbo, Spuds lived reclusively in her final years, and her death was shrouded in secrecy. Not only was Spuds not male—Spuds wasn't Spuds. Her real name was Honey Tree Evil Eye, or Evie for short.

Evie in fact died this past spring, but owners Stan and Jackie Oles were so sick of reporters camping on their front lawn snooping out Spuds stories that they didn't inform a shocked and mournful world until October. "Stan and Jackie are devastated," Judy Hamby of Columbia, Ill., former editor of Barks, a bull-terrier magazine, told me. "They would have done anything to save Evie."

This is the impeccable logic most "Wild Things" readers use when confronted with agonizing medical-ethics dilemmas, such as, Should we take our vacation in France, or should we let Lucky live? "Paris—maybe next year," they tell each other, huddled moist-eyed outside the recovery room, waiting for Lucky's vet to come out of the OR.

For these true Animal Lovers, a major insurer, Fireman's Fund Insurance Co., has recently launched its nationwide Medipet pet-insurance plan with the slogan "Because they're family, too!" The $59-a-year Gold Tag plan buys you up to $3,000 coverage per illness, with a $300 deductible. If the pet is older than 9, the rate rises to $99 a year.

Armed with cable-TV infomercials aimed at 20 million viewers and a direct-mail campaign targeting another 600,000 households, Medipet is going to war with our nation's largest pet insurer, Veterinary Pet Insurance of Anaheim, Calif., which claims more than 90,000 policies in 37 states. Both insurers cover most medical treatments and hospitalization, but not pre-existing conditions. Coverage is most helpful for catastrophic-illness care. (No pet hit by a car limps out of the ER these days for less than a grand.) But there are limits: Medipet refuses to pay for dog or cat psychiatry, root canals or dental capping. VPI will not cover pets injured during war while "resisting attack," or during insurrection, rebellion or revolution. Acupuncture, however, is covered. (For more information, call Medipet at 1-800-528-4961 or VPI at 1-800-USA-PETS.)

Dogs and cats are better risks than people, notes Michael Walters of the American Veterinary Medical Association. "They don't smoke as a group. They rarely travel by automobile. And they are less likely to be victims of street crimes. So a lot of things that put people in the hospital don't put animals there."

SPECIES WATCH

The arctic peregrine falcon, which makes astonishing 200-mph dives, was making an alarming plummet toward extinction 20 years ago because of DDT poisoning. But protection since 1973 under the Endangered Species Act and DDT restrictions have allowed the bird to make such a recovery in Alaska, Canada and Greenland that U.S. officials are proposing to remove it from the endangered list. The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service is soliciting public comments on this proposal for the next 90 days. To comment, write the service's Endangered Species Branch at 1412 Airport Way, Fairbanks, AK 99701.

Send your animal and pet questions to Mike Capuzzo, "Wild Things," P.O. Box 63, Riverton, NJ 08077.

Flora and Fauna

Reindeer

Rangifer tarandus
On, Comet! On, Cupid! On, Donner and Blitzen! Now, dash away, dash away, dash away!

When reindeer dash away, it is to find greener pastures. They eat grass and leaves from willows and birches. During the short Arctic summers where reindeer are found, plants grow slowly and the vegetation cannot stand much grazing. So, reindeer move frequently to a new place. Reindeer may migrate several hundred miles in a year. During migration, several thousand reindeer may gather into one herd.

Male reindeer are known as bulls. Females are called cows. In the fall, the bulls fight with one another to gather their own group of cows, called a harem. Offspring are called calves.

Adult reindeer stand about 3 to 4 feet high and weigh up to 400 pounds. They have large antlers and their heavy coat is grayish-brown to almost white. Their large hoofs prevent them from sinking into the snow during winter.

They are a member of the deer family, closely related to Caribou, and live in the northernmost regions of Europe, Asia and North America.

Reindeer make a variety of noises, including snorting when they are frightened. Young reindeer bawl. When reindeer walk, their feet make a clicking sound.

A nomadic people in northern Scandinavia, Lapps, train reindeer to serve as pack animals and to pull sleds and sleighs.

Mistletoe

Phoradendron serotinum
Stand under the mistletoe and forfeit a kiss.

This Christmas tradition probably evolved from the Druids, ancient priests of the Celts. Druids cut the mistletoe that grew on the sacred oak and gave it to the people for charms in Teutonic mythology. An arrow of mistletoe killed Balder, son of the goddess Frigg in mythology. Early Europeans used mistletoe as a ceremonial gift and decorated their homes with it to ward off evil.

Mistletoe is a parasite that grows on trunks and branches of various trees, most often on apple trees. They also grow on lime, hawthorn, sycamore, poplar, locust, fir and, sometimes, oak trees. The dwarf mistletoe is a small variety that grows on pines in the Eastern United States.

Mistletoe, the state flower of Oklahoma, is an evergreen with leathery, oblong leaves. It has tiny yellow flowers that bloom in February and March. Birds eat the white, shiny fruits (berries), but people don't, because the berries may be poisonous to people.

Birds help to scatter the seeds of mistletoe. The seeds cling to the beaks of birds and when the birds sharpen their bills against the bark of trees, the seeds are scattered.

During the mid 1700s, Capt. Matthias (Tice) Harman and his relatives, of Walker's Creek, Virginia, made periodic hunting trips through an area that became Floyd and Johnson counties in Eastern Kentucky. These hunters, called "long hunters" because of the time spent on the trips, hunted buffalo, bear, mink, elk and game.

They built crude three-sided hunting lodges, usually near waterways or near cliffs for protection. This temporary lodging later became the site of Harman Station, thought to be the first Eastern Kentucky Settlement.

In 1789, on land near today's Combs airport in Johnson County, Harman Station was built to protect settlers against violent Indian attacks by tribes living in the country northwest of the Ohio River and South of the Cumberland. The settlers had invaded the hunting grounds of these Indian tribes, and the Indians wanted to drive them out.

Henry P. Sealf described the area and the fort in his Kentucky's Last Frontier.

"The site selected for the fort was almost half a mile below the mouth of John's Creek and about one hundred yards back from the east bank of the Louisa River. The fort was about 20 feet square and two stories in height.

"The upper story projected beyond the walls of the lower story about two feet on every side and this extra space was floored with heavy timbers in which loop holes were cut through which to fire down upon besieging Indians should they

"The roof sloped up from each of the four sides of the fort to a

the hills back of the bottom and passed close by the fort, and upon it the settlers relied for water. The timber about the fort was cut off close to the ground and burned back the full space of land from Matthias Harman in 1787 and the family settled there until Jenny Wiley's capture by Indians. When the Indians captured Jenny Wiley, they murdered her three children. Most historians agree that the Indians thought they had captured Matthias's family. The Indians were retaliating against Matthias for the murder of some members of their tribe in a November 1788 battle at the head of Tug Fork.

Harman Station was the miracle in the wilderness to which Jenny Wiley found her way about eleven months after she was captured. After several weeks of Indian siege, Matthias Harman escorted Jenny and other settlers up John's Creek back to Walker's Creek where she was reunited with her husband.

A second Harman Station was built around 1791 during the early summer. Some historians say that Matthias and his family came back to blockhouse bottom in 1791. Samuel Auxier and family lived in one blockhouse; the Harmans lived in the adjacent blockhouse, the usual pattern of frontier forts.

When Johnson County was formed out of Floyd County in 1842, Harman Station was cut off in that county, and as Henry Sealf pointed out in his Kentucky's Last Frontier, "the bottom became known as Blockhouse Bottom and the name of Harman Station was relegated to the records of history."

Two natural resources — salt and coal — played prominent roles in the development of David.

Salt — a valuable resource

The story of the small community began in 1767 when Daniel Boone and William Hall explored Middle Creek and discovered a salt lick or spring where the town now stands. The explorers built a small cabin and spent the winter there, feasting off the wild game which frequented the salt lick. When Boone returned home to North Carolina, he told others about his find. At that time, salt was a valuable commodity and sold for as high as $5 a bushel.

The salt spring proved to be a valuable resource for early settlers.

Settlement began later when Kentucky statesmen Henry Clay and John Breckinridge purchased a great deal of land in the area and sold the land in parcels to early settlers. Some of those early families included the Hamiltons, Harrises, Huffs, Fitzpatricks, Tusseys, Neals, Shepherds and Stones.

In 1795, the first salt work in the Sandy Valley was begun in the area, which was appropriately named Lick Fork. The salt works provided salt for settlers and later for Civil War troops. Salt was road. The last three miles to the mining center were impassable in the winter. In 1943, the road was gravelled and, a few years later, the entire road was blacktopped.

The attractive town became known as a model coal camp, and was featured in an instructional movie called "Life in a Model Coal Camp." A few years later, the town would also have the distinction of being the first in Floyd County to have a city water system and an airport.

In 1941, 250 men worked in the David mine. By 1949, there were 600 employees. Much of the company's success was due to its high quality of coal, known as "Patsy" coal, which contained little impurities.

The town 'David' built

The coal camp was named after David L. Francis, the son of James Francis who was a partner of LaViers in Princess Elkhorn Coal Company. In April of 1946, David Francis, a graduate of Yale and Harvard, became president of the company. Although he lived in Huntington, West Virginia, and had other business interests and obligations, he spent three to four days a week overseeing the operations of the mines and the welfare of the coal town he helped develop.

At the height of its glory, the community had a church, theater, school, recreational facilities, a club house, Boy and Girl Scout cabins, an active Woman's Club, a swimming pool and bathhouse and a general store. A glee club, the "Patsy Teenagers," performed on television and brought additional recognition to the town. Dr. John Archer was the popular town doctor. Another noted figure was the Reverend J.E. Durham, a coal miner who was also pastor of David Community Church.

The end of an era

Life in David was idyllic until the mid-sixties. In 1967, the miners felt uneasy about the permanence of their jobs. The winter of 1967-68, there were a number of strikes and the spring market opened at lower prices. In addition, equipment at No. 1 and No. 2 mines needed repair. There were rumors that the company would be sold.

On March 26, 1968, fifty-six of the three hundred miners lost their jobs. Three days later notices were posted that the mines were closed. With the abrupt departure of the company, all public services were halted and the school, theatre, and swimming pool were closed. Many residents moved out when they found jobs elsewhere. Others stayed on, reluctant to leave the community that had become their home.

On October 15, 1968, the town was sold by David Francis to John Allen. Ten days later, Allen sold the town to Woodrow Brannan. By 1972, the once-modern town looked like an abandoned, decaying coal camp. The neglected houses, sewage and water system were in disrepair, and residents were discouraged and frustrated. Change was soon to come.

A new era

With the assistance of Brothers of Charity, a small religious community that had established St. Vincent's Mission in David in 1970, and the Appalachian Research and Defense Fund of Kentucky, the David Community Development Corporation was formed. The corporation bought the town from Brannan on May 14, 1975 and set about to make the town livable again.

The corporation, spearheaded by the late Ashland Howard, a former David coal miner, sold the houses to residents, who repaired and renovated their homes. By this time, the town had only 22 houses, but a spirit of optimism prevailed. A town clean-up program made the community attractive again and, in 1976, David was the winner of a state-wide community beautification award.

The community became well-known in the 1970s as a dying coal town that rebuilt itself.

Today, David is known for David Appalachian Crafts Center, a business that provides a national market for local craftspeople. The center is sponsored by St. Vincent's Mission, which is still actively involved in social and charitable work in Floyd County.

The David School, a nationally recognized school which provides alternative education to drop-outs, recently moved from its facilities in the old general store building to a new campus on Reservoir Hollow. The story of David is that of transformation: from a farming community to a coal town; a town built by a coal company and, later, saved by a corporation and preserved by its people.

DAVID

produced by filling large kettles with the salt water, which was then boiled down over huge fires.

The Civil War was the demise of the salt works. Raiding parties from both sides of the war repeatedly destroyed the salt works and, after the war, the works was abandoned.

The buying of mineral rights

Up until the 1940s, farming and logging were about the only livelihoods for residents on Lick Fork. The families grew apples, corn, beans, and sorghum, among other crops, on the cleared hillsides. They also raised cattle, sheep and hogs. Game was plentiful and the clear streams were filled with fish.

Logging provided extra income. Loggers felled valuable virgin timber which was sold for $1 a tree. Money was scarce, and when the unexpected opportunity came along to sell the mineral rights to their land for cash, many landowners did.

Around 1916, Henry LaViers purchased 1,500 acres of mineral rights in the David area from pioneer coal developer John C. Mayo. Years earlier, Mayo had the foresight to buy about 30,000 acres of coal land in Eastern Kentucky to lease to major coal companies.

In May of 1917, representatives of coal companies and investors, including LaViers, began buying up mineral rights from landowners on Lick Fork.

The purchases, some at only $10 an acre, gave the buyers all coal, oil, gases, salt, mineral, rock and timber rights to the land. To the landowners, the $3,000 to $4,000 they received for their mineral rights must have seemed a small fortune. However, they did not realize that they had sold control of the land and its wealth to outside interests.

Coal development begins

Up until the 1940s, Lick Fork was still a remote area with rutted paths accessible only by horseback, mule or wagon. This lack of accessibility delayed the development of coal reserves in the area for over two decades. But on December 4, 1940, the formation of the Princess Elkhorn Coal Company was announced by company president Harry LaViers. The company had 3,000 acres of land on Middle Creek in Floyd and Magoffin counties ready for development. Lick Fork would never be the same.

Princess Elkhorn Coal Company

In 1941, the quiet farming community underwent rapid change. In April, a C & O rail line from West Prestonsburg to the rich Lick Fork coal field was completed, a coal tipples was built and construction of workers' homes at the railhead had begun.

The first of May, 1941, Princess Elkhorn Coal Company shipped its first load of coal. And Harry LaViers announced that an annual production of 50,000 tons of coal was expected from the coal operations.

The small coal town that had quickly sprung up was soon populated by families who moved into the camp houses before they were finished. The coal company maintained the houses, which eventually numbered 100, and kept them painted and their surroundings neat. The company also built a church and a general store. Also in 1941, a post office was established.

The Lick Fork road was gradually improved. Although the road had been strangled out in 1941, the first seven miles from Prestonsburg was a WPA

Businesses have stake in educating Kentucky's children

By Marilyn Bailey

When the Kentucky Education Reform Act passed in 1990 it was hailed as the most comprehensive reform in the nation's history.

And while the thrust of the business community was not mandated by KERA, employers all over the state were involved in support of educational change and continue to show that they too are committed to improving the educational system.

It's not an entirely selfless task. Statistics show that Kentucky has one of the least educated work forces in the United States. Kentucky has had one of the highest drop-out rates in the country.

A better educated work force means better workers.

Three years ago the Business-Industry School Partnership Program began in Fulton. Members of the school system and the business community formed an advisory board which looked at ways businesses and schools might better work in partnership.

"The business leaders felt it was important to recruit industry to our town and so many of our young people were leaving or just simply not prepared to enter the work force," said Dianne Owen, Fulton's technology coordinator and a member of the advisory board.

One of the programs initiated at Fulton High School involved bringing in community business leaders to instruct these potential employees on how to fill out a job application, how to respond to questions in a job interview, what questions they needed to ask.

Several businesses such as a local dental association have actually joined in partnership with the high school marketing class to produce a brochure. Interdisciplinary studies involving math and technology classes have worked with a local contractor, architect and engineers to design a bridge.

Fifth graders in Fulton hear Rotary Club speakers who come to classes once a month and talk about specific careers.

"The business community has been very supportive of this project and hopes the students will be more career oriented and develop better work attitudes," said Owen.

Partnerships with schools aren't the only way businesses have increased their support of education. Many businesses around the state have developed programs at the job site for educating employees.

Brown bag sessions at UPS in Lexington and Louisville have been held with employees and spouses to inform them about primary school assessment and school based decision making. UPS started a program which encourages employees' involvement in the schools. In Jefferson County 90 UPS volunteers give an average of one hour per week to work with 12 Jefferson County public schools.

"In many ways we are also seeing a revolution in the ways in which businesses are interacting with schools. We are gradually moving away from the check-writing mentality that has characterized business involvement for so long and moving toward a real partnership between business and school."

In this new partnership each utilizes the resources of the other to improve what they do. Schools and businesses are realizing their individual success depends on the other," said Kent O'Neil, Nelson-United Parcel Service CEO.

Commitment to this education revolution doesn't necessarily depend on size either. Small family owned businesses can get involved in a more personal way such as BikeWorld, a small bicycle shop in Paducah.

Students who work at the store owned by Martha Emmons and her husband Hutch Smith must maintain a C average.

"We found a lot of people who wanted to work here were students and we thought that was an advantage for us since those are the ones who are most interested in bikes," said Emmons. "But we had real reservations about school and work and as we thought about what we'd want for our own child we didn't want work to interfere with school or extracurricular activities."

Schedules for student workers also are made flexible enough to work around extracurricular activities such as baseball or band practice. One student worker knowing his grades were marginal adjusts his work schedule around a tutoring session.

Advocates of the arts, the Paducah couple also gives free tickets to student workers for the performances at the regional theater.

"We really do bend over backwards sometimes," said Emmons. "Other business owners ask us why we go to this much trouble but we really do feel it's important."

For information on ways businesses and schools might work together contact The Partnership for Kentucky School Reform at 1-800-929-2111.

SPECIAL STUDENTS

By Willie Elliott

South Floyd High School has many students with a diversity of talents. By the end of the year, we hope to showcase all these students and their talents. On this occasion I would like to say a few things about two students whom I work with on a daily basis. Neil Moore, a sophomore, just has turned his first year as a full time high school student, and Sheldon Compton, a senior finishing his high school career. These two students have contrasting personalities, but the work they do have several parallels.

Neil Moore, comes to South Floyd at the age of twelve. Last year he took a combination of high school/elementary school schedule at McDowell High School and McDowell Elementary. Neil showed such strong aptitude especially in math and sciences that the administrators at the Floyd County Board decided it would be in Neil's interest to take high school classes.

Neil is especially interested in technology that the computer affords. He has a lap top at his home which the Floyd County Board of Education provides for him. Neil does not take the trust and confidence the board has given him lightly. Neil has written a booklet entitled Computer Experts' Journal (Neil Moore and MN² Soft). Wendell Wilson of the Mountain Christian Academy also contributed to this publication which was published with the assistance of the Kentucky Telecommunications Writing Program. Bud Reynolds, coordinator, South Floyd High School, Hi Hat, Kentucky 41636. Neil is also enrolled in the Technology class taught by Mr. Fletcher at South Floyd. He seems to be gaining valuable experiences in this class. There has been talk of having Neil take college classes as soon as next semester at Alice Lloyd College. (Obviously someone will need to drive him over—we can't have twelve year olds driving to Knott County and back.) Neil would still attend South Floyd on a part-time basis.

Whereas Neil is interested in the technical aspects of computer, Sheldon Compton uses the technology in his writing and sharing ideas with others. Sheldon really became interested in writing after his work in the American Studies Class at Wheelwright High School last year.

At the beginning of this school year, he started writing a column in the Floyd County Times entitled "Think About It." I have had several people to comment favorably on Sheldon's writing. Sheldon is in the journalism class where he does an assortment of writing projects. Some of these also appear in the Floyd County Times.

Sheldon reminds us that it is nice to have his work published, but he realizes that the important thing is to keep writing. He knows that his writing has room to grow, and he accepts constructive criticism as well as anyone I have ever worked with. I can hand him a paper back with several mistakes and he simply will say, "Good. I want this to be really good." He is one of the few who really look at all those marks we put on the paper.

Sheldon also uses the computer to send and receive messages via the computer network. He works for the Kentucky Telecommunications Writing Program at South Floyd sending and receiving messages via the computer and modem.

He has not decided definitely where he wants to attend college, but he does want to go some place where he can hone his skills as a writer. Next fall some English 101 teacher is going to have a pleasant surprise.

is also working with The Gheens Academy in Louisville to develop a leadership training institute for principals.

Ashland Oil has held day-long events at company sites in Ashland and Lexington in which strands of the reform act were explained. Troyer Clinie in Madisonville uses the company newsletter to explain facets of reform. The clinic also provides time off for employees to work in classrooms or to attend parent-teacher conferences.

Harper Industries in Paducah distributes check stuffer that address questions, such as, "What questions do I ask when I go in for school conferences?" President Billy Harper, whose avocation is drag racing, has developed a series of materials and incentives around the theme of drag racing aimed at improving attendance of middle school students.

Should we lower the voting age?

NO

by Rick Nunnery
Prestonsburg High School

Suffrage for eighteen year olds was granted twenty-two years ago. This was fine to the people of the United States. It was not an unreasonable request. I mean they were legal adults, and they could be sent off to die for our country, so why couldn't they vote. Suffrage for eighteen-year-olds was by far an excellent decision.

Now though, they want to lower the minimum age to sixteen years of age. Personally, I think that they are crazy. I am a seventeen-year-old senior in high school, and I would hate to think that my peers are in control of our city, state or nation.

I feel that sixteen years is just too young. These people have just finished puberty, and they have very impressionable minds. I have seen them vote for the biggest fool, in class elections, just because he make jokes or goof off. If we allowed these young minds to vote, we could have Beavis, Butt-Head, or Bart Simpson as our next president. Now how would you like that?

This, however, does not mean that we should be treated as invalids. We are not dumb. I believe that we need those two years of maturation. Those aren't many years, but it is a lifetime to people of the mid-twenties. I truly believe that we need them.

In closing, I would like to say that I think the legal voting age should stay at eighteen-years-old. Sixteen is just too young, and those two years of maturation will make a large difference on our young impressionable minds.

Allen Central High School

To really determine the answer to this question, we must first think as a 16 year old thinks.

At 16, your mind is still in a state of development. Your opinions are easily swayed to coincide with what your parents or your friends believe. A 16 year old is more preoccupied with learning to drive a car than elections on the local, state or national level.

Eighteen is a better voting age because this is the age people in our country recognize as being a legal age. At this age you are able to make decisions without the supervision of your parents. You begin thinking about the future.

You are also starting to make choices about your career and are becoming more independent every day. You are making your own decisions about your life and it is at this time, you start to realize you need political leaders who will make good decisions for your future.

In conclusion, I feel 16 is too young to vote because of the lack of interest shown by 16 year olds in making independent choices without the influence of their parents or their friends.

Although some 16 year old teens may be mentally mature enough at this age to deal with voting, the majority have not even completely developed their own moral attitude. They would not be able to decide what type of leader would be best to serve their needs and the needs of the nation.

The voting age used to be 21, but 18 year olds joined their older comrades on the field of war to protect the nation and the world from anarchy. Some lost their lives.

Our country felt that if you could fight at the age of 18, then you should be able to vote about what you're fighting for. To lower the voting age to 16 would be unrealistic.

YES

by Emily Damron

I believe that sixteen year olds in our society are capable of making intelligent decisions as voters. In the eyes of the law, they are considered old enough to endanger themselves and others by obtaining a driver's license and responsible enough to get a job, but they are seemingly not mature enough to make decisions that affect their lives in their own communities and nation.

The voting age in this country was lowered to eighteen in 1971 by the Twenty-sixth Amendment. Raging debates ensued over the issue until Congress was finally convinced that eighteen year olds were mature enough to vote. The sixteen year olds today are equally ready to accept this civic duty. In today's world, teens face a harsher everyday life than did their parents. Dealing with wars on foreign soil was the reality of twenty-two years ago, while today we deal with the wars that rage in the streets of our cities and towns. In order to survive, young people today have had to become mature beyond their years by necessity, not choice.

Television has helped this generation mature. From "Mr. Rogers" and "Sesame Street" in early years to MTV in adolescence, the "boob tube" has been friend and baby-sitter and introduced today's teens to ideas that their parents would never have thought of years ago. By being exposed to so much, the younger generation plays a major role in today's progressive society.

Giving power to the people is what our great nation is all about. The time has come to allow the next generation to take responsibility for what happens in their world. It is time to give them the right to vote.

Lisa Burchett
Prestonsburg

I think the age limit to begin voting should be lowered to age 16. Since most of our 16 year olds are currently driving, they should be allowed to vote for the people who could make changes regarding traffic regulations and auto insurance, which not only affects you and me, but it affects them also.

A lot of these teenagers are already out there working in the community and paying taxes — or soon will be. They should be allowed to vote for the candidates who will still be holding offices that will affect their lives long after they reach age 18.

These teenagers are young adults who are being taught the judicial system while in school. What better way to encourage them to vote while this information is still fresh in their minds. As many of you who have listened to the election returns know, a lot of people who are registered to vote do not vote. I think that if these young adults were encouraged to vote at a young age, they may keep on voting in the future long after they reach age 18.

If these young adults are given the right to vote, I think campaigning on school grounds should be regulated. Although having a debate scheduled through the principals would be an excellent learning experience for these future voters to help them make the proper decisions for whom to cast their votes.

In the past, minorities and women were not given the right to cast their ballot. Their future lay in the hands of others. Women's futures were controlled by their husbands, fathers and brothers. In time, that changed. Maybe it's time to change the voting regulations to include 16 year olds.

All in all, if you didn't have the right to vote for the changes that could affect your future with regard to taxes, job opportunities, laws, traffic regulations and health, how would this make you feel?

Medication Mistakes and Kids: America's Other Drug Crisis

(NU) - Every year, medicine misuse leads to the hospitalization and even death of thousands of children. In fact, medication mistakes could be seen as America's other drug crisis.

Experts say that of the 200 million prescriptions dispensed for children each year, nearly half are taken incorrectly.

When children don't take enough of their medicine, or stop taking it too soon, they may not control such serious diseases as cancer, kidney failure and epilepsy.

When they take too much of a medication, they may experience such annoying and dangerous side effects as diarrhea or stomach upset, loss of consciousness or fatal breathing problems.

What's a Parent To Do?

It's important for parents to understand their children's medications. Here are some of the things you need to know.

- Find out the name of the medicine and what it's supposed to do.

- Ask how much medicine the child should take, when it should be taken and for how long.

- Find out about possible side effects and what to do if they occur.

- Ask if there is written information about the medicine that you can take home.

When talking with your children about medicine, explain the difference between using illegal drugs and taking medicine in order to get well. It's important to get the child involved in the correct treatment.

And be sure baby sitters and relatives who take care of the children understand a child's medication routine. If the child must take medicine at school, be sure to notify teachers and the school nurse.

Also discuss your children's medications with your pharmacist. That way, you can be sure your kids get all the benefits of their medicine.

Five Questions to Ask About Your Medicine

(NU) - The National Council on Patient Information and Education suggests asking these five questions every time you get a prescription medicine:

1. What is the name of the medicine and what is it supposed to do?

2. How much of the medicine should I take, when should I take it and for how long?

3. What foods, beverages other medicines or activities should I avoid while taking it?

4. What are the possible side effects, and what should I do if they occur?

5. What written material is available about the medicine?

If you've answered these questions, then you will have the information you need to take your medicine safely.

Chip off the old block

by Polly Ward
Times Feature Writer

For six weeks this fall, Sonny Buter and Daniel Mikes climbed highway cut-through outcrops along U.S. 23 between Prestonsburg and Pikeville, and Route 80 near Martin, studying the rock formations and collecting valuable data for an oil company in the Netherlands. The pair are petroleum geologists who are working on a research project to earn their doctorates in geology from the University of Technology in Delft in the Netherlands.

"Sometimes we think people wonder what two boys are doing along a road looking at rocks," Buter said.

"Girls toot their car horns and wave," Mikes added, smiling. "People recognize us now. They blow their horn when they see us. They are probably thinking, 'What are those guys doing?'"

"Most people who are coal miners know what we are doing," he continued, "because they work with geologists in mines. Geology students from different states come here to study and look at rocks."

So why are two geologists from the Netherlands studying rocks in Eastern Kentucky?

"In the Netherlands, we have the same kind of rocks you have here, only they are off-shore and we have difficulty getting to examine them," Buter, 27, explained. "The beautiful thing here is that the outcroppings are very large and you can see them in their real shape. It's a paradise for geologists."

Mikes, 26, agreed. "There is so much more information here than what you normally find in the field."

Both men speak excellent English with Dutch accents. Buter is a native of the Netherlands and lives in Amsterdam. Mikes is a native of Czechoslovakia, but his parents, who were pilots for the Soviet Union, moved to the Netherlands when he was two years old.

One reason the two chose to become geologists is the opportunity for travel. Mikes has studied the Mediterranean Sea as a marine geologist, and has made excursions to Spain, Switzerland, Great Britain, Germany, France and Belgium. In the United States, he has been to Oregon (where his uncle lives) and California. This trip was his first to Kentucky.

Buter, too, has traveled extensively as a geologist. In fact, this research trip makes his fourth in three years to Eastern Kentucky. Three years ago, Buter was among a group of assistant researchers from the University in Delft who began the outcrop study in Eastern Kentucky. The last three trips, including this one, Buter has stayed with Claude and Ruth Meade who live at Goble Roberts Addition in Prestonsburg. "I met the family at Hillbilly Days in Pikeville, during the first trip," Buter said.

The meeting was a stroke of luck. In preparation for his second research trip to Kentucky, Buter said, "I wrote the family a letter and asked them where I could rent a place and they invited me to stay with them."

Buter said that he is still "not quite used" to the contrast in cultures. "In the beginning I thought people here were kind of rude and not interested in people. Now I know a lot more people and know how to get along. When we go to different shops, the people are friendly and helpful."

So every day, from early October until their departure on November 15 — except when rainy weather kept them indoors studying their collection of data — the young geologists have been out scaling the outcrops from about nine in the morning until dark, examining the rock formations and, along the way, unlocking mysteries of the past.

The Appalachian Mountains were formed by a between 435 years ago during the Paleozoic Era, when geological processes discovered the roots, trees and growing organic deposits. As piece their geological picture, deposits it collected.

"We make said, "and mountains, looking ourselves, "Most of formed like entirely forming mountains are deposited by Other sedimentary examined in coal, clay and geologists' sandstone.

"To know look at the explained. "I know how the stones in the through shale what's in better important to so we can ca there.

"Also, when stone, how do That's Daniel of oil."

Facts about the Netherlands

•The Netherlands is a small country on the North Sea in northwestern Europe. The Netherlands is often called Holland.

•The capital is Amsterdam and the official language is Dutch. Many English words, including brandy, skate, skipper, and yacht, have been adapted from the Dutch.

•Most of the Netherlands is flat, though it has some uplands. Many canals cut through the country. They not only drain the land, but also serve as waterways.

•The country has large deposits of salt and natural gas, and some petroleum.

•Dairy farming is the most important form of agriculture, but the country is also known for its exportation of fresh flowers and flower bulbs, especially tulips and daffodils.

•The Netherlands has produced some of the world's greatest painters, including Rembrandt, Jan Vermeer, and Vincent Van Gogh.

formed by a folding of the Earth's crust between 435 million and 250 million years ago during the last half of the Paleozoic Era, which makes for some interesting geologic sleuthing.

During their exploration, the two have discovered trace fossils, the remains of roots, trees and leaves, evidence of burrowing organisms, and all types of bone deposits. As they study the outcrops, they piece their data together and formulate a geologic picture of the whole area, the deposits it contains and how it was formed.

"We make photos of all rocks," Mike said, "and make a drawing of the outcrops, looking at the rocks. Then we ask ourselves, 'How did they come here?'"

"Most of the outcrops here were formed like the Mississippi Delta is presently forming," Mike continued. "The mountains are composed of sandstone deposited by a river."

Other sediment material they have examined in the outcrops are layers of coal, clay and shale deposits. But the geologists' particular interest is in the sandstone.

"To know what's going on, we have to look at the outcrops in detail," Buter explained. "The oil company wants to know how the oil will flow in the sandstones in the Netherlands. Oil won't flow through shale... So we have to find out what's in between sandstone. It's also important to know how big a sandstone is so we can calculate how much oil is in there."

"Also, when we do find oil in sandstone, how do we get the oil out of there? That's Daniel's part, figuring out the flow of oil."

An oil company based in the Netherlands is sponsoring the Eastern Kentucky research trip. Buter said that it is much cheaper for oil companies to pay geologists to study the potential for oil production here for application in the Netherlands than for the company to perform core drillings at the cost $10,000 a well.

That being the case, the two geologists are willing to exchange their research data with core drilling data collected by Eastern Kentucky coal companies.

"We'd like the core drilling data that is available. We are not interested in the coal," Buter emphasized. "If there are core wells left, we would like to look at them, too. If any coal companies are interested, there is a possibility we can exchange our work. We have really good data, and we can give, in return, a roof rock analysis."

The geologists have already made plans to return to the area in the spring to continue their work. Coal companies that wish to exchange geologic information can write to Mike and Buter at this address: University of Technology, Delft, Faculty of Mining and Petroleum Engineering, Mignbouw Straat 120, 2628 RX, Delft, The Netherlands.

Facts about geology

Geology is the study of the Earth and comes from Greek words meaning earth and discussion. Geology tries to explain how the Earth was formed and how it changes. Geologists are scientists who study rocks, soils, mountains, rivers, oceans, caves and other parts of the Earth. They may specialize in many areas. Petroleum geologists explore for deposits of oil and gas on land and on or beneath the ocean floor. Mining geologists often work in underground mines where they search for materials other than gas and oil.

Specialists called paleontologists study fossils to learn about prehistoric life. There are also petrographers, who classify rocks; mineralogists, who study and identify minerals in the Earth, among other specialists.

Many geologists teach, do research, or work in museums.

How are fiscal court meetings conducted?

A fiscal court meeting is conducted either by the county judge/executive or by a magistrate or commissioner elected by a majority of the others present to preside at a meeting when the county judge/executive is absent. Each court has its own process, but they generally follow Robert's Rules of Order. Some may invite or allow citizens to speak first; some may not allow citizens to speak at all.

Sometimes there is a work session earlier on the day of the regular meeting, or even on a day prior to the regular meeting, where discussion of issues occurs, and the actual regular meeting consists primarily of formal voting. These work sessions are subject to the Open Meetings Law, and citizens who wish to participate in the discussion should attend the work session.

The court may go into closed (executive) session to handle certain matters.

The agenda does not have to be followed, and the court decides what will or will not be addressed at a particular meeting. To find out just how your particular fiscal court operates, attend some of its meetings.

How do I bring an issue to the attention of the court?

In most communities, the best way to get the fiscal court to consider action on an issue is to meet informally with the county judge/executive, or with a magistrate or commissioner and ask him or her to bring it up.

Other issues may be acted on by the fiscal court only upon petition by a certain number of voters. For example, if a special district subject to KRS 65.166 (Fire Protection, Urban Services, Public Road or Sanitation) fails to provide services for which it was created, the fiscal court may dissolve it, but only after receiving a petition from 30 percent of the affected voters.

A fiscal court may create a taxing district (KRS 65.182) or a sewer collection district (KRS 76.300) only after receiving a petition from 25 percent of the affected voters, and may create a non-taxing special district pursuant to KRS 65.810 only upon petition by 20 percent of the affected voters.

A fiscal court may, upon petition by 50 percent of the affected voters, levy taxes in or expand "service districts"—areas within counties that can be subject to a higher tax rate because they receive some special services not available to other portions of the county (KRS 67.650).

May I speak before the fiscal court votes on my issue?

There is no legal requirement that fiscal courts allow comments at their meetings, but many do allow interested members of the public to bring matters to their attention or to comment on issues pending before the court. Before going to the fiscal court meeting, call or visit the county judge/executive's office to find out how to illegal, it can reverse it.

Fiscal court members are, of course, subject to reelection, and many citizens' groups have found that large public meetings to protest a fiscal court action, or other forms of political pressure from the public and the press, have caused fiscal courts to reverse their decisions.

What has to be shown in order to convict a county elected official of official misconduct?

According to the statutes, a governmental officer is guilty of official misconduct when he or she knowingly:

- fails to perform a duty imposed by law;
- performs an unauthorized act of his or her official functions; or
- violates any statute, rule or regulation relating to his or her office (KRS 522.010-522.030).

In addition, fiscal court members can be charged with neglect of office if they fail to attend 50 percent of the regular meetings over a six-month period, or two consecutive fiscal court meetings (KRS 61.170).

The statutes also define a felony called "misuse of confidential information" (KRS 522.040). A public official is guilty of this offense if he or she, based on confidential information gained through his or her office:

- accepts an interest in a property which may be affected by such information;
- speculates or wagers on the basis of such information; or
- assists another person in doing one of the above.

What can voters do if they disagree with the fiscal court's action or inaction?

In most cases, a fiscal court action, whether by order, resolution or ordinance, can only be changed by another action of the fiscal court. However, it is possible to challenge a fiscal court action by filing a lawsuit. If the court holds that the action is

by Ann Hall

"Are you ready to go, Antonio?" Senora Borja asked her only son as she pushed her shiny black hair out of her face.

"Yes, Mama," he said, eager to get out of the unfriendly doctors' office. It was Christmas Eve and the doctors' didn't think he'd ever walk anyway.

On their way home, Antonio looked out the car window into the tiny adobe homes of the less fortunate. Antonio wondered how they could sleep on a thin straw mat between them and the hard, mud floor.

Senora Borja stopped at the market to buy some tortillas and frijoles.

"I also need to buy spices for our Christmas turkey sauce," she added.

Antonio spotted Santa as his mother wheeled him into the store. "May I see Santa?" Antonio pleaded.

"Si," Senora Borja said with a smile.

"Mi nombre es Antonio Borja."

"Have you been a good boy this year?" Santa asked heartily.

"Si, si!" replied Antonio.

"What would you like for Christmas?"

"For it to snow," Antonio exclaimed remembering the letter his penpal sent him.

"Well, we'll have to ask God about that," Santa said.

"It hasn't snowed in Ojinara in decades."

As the Borjas pulled in the driveway, Antonio took a good look at his house. He never realized how grateful he should be. He lived in a beautiful Spanish style house with white columns in front, an open balcony on its second story, and an inner courtyard where his family ate and entertained amidst flowers and vines of all types. His siesta, they had a fiesta at their house. Everyone gathered around the ornate Christmas tree and sang songs. They all talked and laughed and had a good time.

After everyone left, Antonio went to bed

About the author

Ann Hall is the 13-year-old daughter of Camer and Gwen Hall of Prestonsburg. As an eighth grade student at Adams Middle School she is involved in basketball, band, TAG, chorus, forensics and KYA. She also enjoys reading, drawing and writing. Her winning Young Authors' book, The Basketball Dream, appeared in the Floyd County Times September 24, 1993. Ann has considered writing books for children as a possible career.

When little Antonio got inside, he reread his Missouri penpal's letter. How he longed to see and jump in the snow as the Missourians did!

"Mama, I wish it would snow here," Antonio sighed.

"Hito, one of these days, I'll take you to Mexico City where you can see the beautiful snowcapped peaks of our famous volcanoes, Popocatepetl and Ixtaccihuatl. It snows there often," Senora Borja said softly.

When Senora Borja woke Antonio up from with the help of his mama. In his prayers to God, he asked for snow.

Early Christmas morning, Senora Borja greeted Antonio enthusiastically. "Come on, I'll help you get out of bed and we'll go see what Santa brought you."

But Antonio was more interested in looking outside. "No snow," he said with great disappointment.

When they reached the living room, he looked at all the colorful, wrapped gifts under the tree. There were gifts from his mama, the maid, the cook, his friends and his mama's friends. He slowly opened them one by one with a small smile on his face. No gift, no matter how big or small, could be as special as the snow he was hoping for.

Antonio's mama went to the kitchen to check on the turkey. Antonio just gazed over the glass doors and wished it would snow. Then a small, sparkling snowflake fell. A few minutes later, another flake fell.

"Is it snowing?" Antonio asked himself as he glanced away from the window. "No, it's just my imagination," he decided.

But when he looked out the glass doors again the ground seemed to be covered with a white blanket. Instantly, he realized that it was snow!

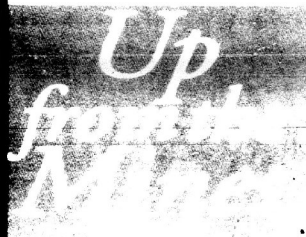

Snowflakes filled the air. He wheeled over to the glass doors and couldn't think about anything except jumping in the snow. Forgetting he couldn't walk, he slowly raised up out of the wheelchair and made his way out the door. He began to laugh with excitement as he stepped into the snow.

The snow was almost up to his knees. He fell down. But he didn't care. He rolled over and kicked wildly. He loved the feel of the soft, cold snow. It made him feel secure, just like he felt when his mama rocked and held him tight.

Senora Borja realized that Antonio was outside and she panicked. Thoughts raced through her mind. "How did he get out there? Was he all right?"

When she reached the glass doors, Senora Borja looked out and tears filled her eyes. She couldn't help but be pleased, for she had never seen him enjoying himself so much. Antonio grinned widely and beckoned for her to join him.

Autographing

A book of poetry, contains more than fifty photographs. Features experiences of the Appalachian coal miner. Miners observations of nature, knowledge of history, ability to deal with adversity, awareness of their connection to a larger world, commitment to religious principle, and wonderment about how they fit into this immense universe are part of this unique book.

Author: James Goode (Professor at South East Community College) will be autographing his book at the Bookworm, December 4th, 1993 from 11:00 a.m. to 1:00 p.m.

This book would be a perfect gift for that special coal miner in your family. Reasonably priced at only $19.95.

Is there life after death?

Does God really exist?

For those who have asked or wondered, Tom Sawyer, the subject of What Tom Sawyer Learned from Dying, has some answers.

In the book, author Sidney Saylor Farr, tells how Sawyer, an avowed agnostic, had a near-death experience in 1978 when his pickup truck fell on him and crushed his chest. Sawyer was clinically dead for 15 minutes, but came back to tell about a strange experience of going through a tunnel, meeting a "light that was God," and being sent back to tell people about death and the unconditional love of God.

Sawyer, a Rochester, N.Y. resident and former Olympic bicycle racer, has told his story to thousands and has appeared on such television shows as Phil Donahue, Oprah Winfrey, Unsolved Mysteries and Good Morning America. Farr tells about the experience in detail and how it has affected Sawyer's life, changed his personality and gave him abilities and knowledge that he could use in many ways. Sawyer brought back with him information on a variety of topics and Farr also provides details about them. Such things, for example, as reincarnation, healing, heaven and hell, and the power of love.

AUTHOR AND SUBJECT—Sidney Saylor Farr, author of What Tom Sawyer Learned from Dying, is shown with Tom Sawyer, who survived a near-death experience in 1978. Sawyer's near-death experience provides comfort to those wondering what's on the other side.

Friday, December 3rd; 12:50 p.m. at Prestonsburg Community College, Seminar

For Tom Sawyer, What Tom Sawyer Learned from Dying, is a book that will give you a new perspective on life and death.

Local students included in Who's Who

A total of 10 students from Floyd County are included in the 27th Annual Edition of Who's Who Among American High School Students®, 1992-93.

Final selection of students is determined on the basis of criteria which include high achievement in academics and leadership in school activities, athletics or community service. Traditionally, 99 percent of Who's Who students have a grade point of average of 'B' or better and 97 percent are college bound.

Local students selected include Valerie Slone of Bevinville; Darnella Bradley of Eastern; Michael T. Cecil of Harolt; Susie Tackett of McDowell; Kimberly A. Robinson of Martin; Patricia C. Anosike, Susanne Dawson, Darinda L. Lovely, Michelle Y. Thompson, all of Prestonsburg; and Danita D. Johnson of Teaberry.

Appointed

Elsworth H. Stumbo of Harolt has been appointed to the Institute for Aging by Gov. Brereton C. Jones. The appointment became effective in October.

Stumbo will serve until September 1994. The Institute for Aging advises Gov. Brereton Jones and Cabinet for Human Resources administrators on the development and delivery of services to Kentucky's aging citizens.

Education: The Key to Justice

Circuit Judge John David Caudill, representing the 31st Division II judicial circuit which includes Floyd County, attended the 1993 Circuit Judge's College held at Lake Barkley State Park, October 24-28.

Seminars and workshops addressed topics including capital cases, evidentiary questioning of children, Kentucky Court of Justice sexual harassment policies, contempt, fourth offense DUI's and effective listening skills.

In addition, judges learned how the penal system works first-hand, as they toured the Kentucky State Penitentiary. Highlighting the tour and educational endeavor was a panel discussion with the inmates, which examined the interests and concerns of both the system and those in it.

Instructors included Professor Martin Huelsmann, Chase College of Law; Anne Graffam Walker, Ph.D., Forensic Linguist; Ann B. Oldfather, Oldfather and Morris; and Greg Strouse, University of Kentucky Counseling and Testing Center.

The judicial college, was sponsored and conducted by the Administrative Office of the Courts Education Services Division.

Sherrie W. Slone, a counselor at Prestonsburg Elementary attended the statewide conference of the Kentucky Counseling Association in Louisville, from October 5-8.

The conference theme was "Changes-Choices-Challenges" and featured a variety of sessions to assist the counselors in helping individuals, families and organizations. The four-day event included pre-conference workshops on a multitude of subjects such as Counselors and KERA, Dealing With Conflicts, and others.

The conference itself included more than 50 topics from which the counselors could choose. The state-wide conference of the Kentucky Counseling Association is dedicated to providing timely information and professional networks for school-based and agency counselors in Kentucky.

Homecoming court

Susan Sawning of Hi Hat was a member of Morehead State University's 1993 Homecoming Court.

The homecoming court was presented during half-time ceremonies of MSU's homecoming football game. Sawning is a sophomore at Morehead.

Shepherd promoted to rank of captain

Glenda S. Shepherd, daughter of Ruie Mae Shepherd and Ballard Shepherd of Auxier, granddaughter of Pearly Howard of Prestonsburg, has been promoted to the rank of Captain in the United States Air Force.

Captain Shepherd is a 1984 graduate of Prestonsburg High School. She is a graduate of Lindsey Wilson College, Columbia, Kentucky, and the University of Kentucky.

In 1989, Captain Shepherd completed the Air Force Reserve Officer Training Corps as a distinguished graduate and received a regular commission as a Second Lieutenant in the United States Air Force.

In July 1989, Captain Shepherd was assigned to MacDill Air Force Base, Tampa, Florida, as Squadron Section Commander, 56th Aircraft Generation Squadron (F-16 fighter aircraft).

In May 1991, she performed temporary duty as the Executive Officer, Air Force Forces, Joint Task Force-Bravo, Honduras.

Upon return to the states in May 1992, she was assigned as Squadron Section Commander, 56th Civil Engineering Squadron, MacDill Air Force Base, Florida.

In June 1993, she assumed her current position as Executive Officer, 347th Support Group, Moody Air Force Base, Valdosta, Georgia.

While at MacDill AFB,

Captain Shepherd was directly responsible for effectively overhauling administrative programs for the two largest squadrons on base.

She was also selected to be the civil engineering officer for the 1993 Air Show which had an attendance of over 800,000 during a two-day period and was rated as one of the largest in the Department of Defense.

Additionally, during the first week following Hurricane Andrew, she volunteered over fifty hours of off duty time as officer-in-charge of a hurricane evacuation center.

Her dedication and effort provided proper guidance which expedited the evacuees' transition.

During temporary duty in Honduras, Captain Shepherd brought the Air Force Forces administrative and staff functions to never-before-seen heights of efficiency and effectiveness.

Her ability to organize both people and process made her an excellent ambassador in the interservice and international arena.

Captain Shepherd's military awards and decorations include: Joint Service Commendation Medal, Air Force Commendation Medal, Air Force Achievement Medal, two Air Force Outstanding Unit Awards, National Defense Service Medal, and MacDill AFB Military Athlete of the Year for 1989, 1990 and 1992.

Fashions By AIRWAY®

...Designed especially for you.

All Airway breast forms are realistic and lightweight.

Over thirty years ago Airway introduced a product that completely changed the way that women viewed post-mastectomy breast forms. "Companion," as it was (and still is) called, was the very first silicone prosthesis that truly felt life-like, allowing the wearer a previously unknown sense of comfort and well-being.

Since that time, Airway has grown to become the largest distributor of mastectomy products in North America. All of Airway's prosthetic forms are made from silicone, the best possible material available for manufacturing. Silicone is kind to the skin, well tolerated by the body and resembles the natural breast in weight and consistency. In an externally worn product it is completely safe.

Airway provides a full line of products for women with special needs, from leisure forms and bras to swimwear.

Education should start sooner than you think.

Even for very young children, drugs, and alcohol are an all-too-common fact of life. That's why it's so important to teach them the dangers of drug and alcohol abuse early—before it can become a problem.

Fortunately, there are anti-drug and alcohol efforts going on in every town. Do your part to help save lives. Get involved.

Christmas Origins

The word "Christmas" brings up images of brightly colored lights, decorated evergreens and jolly Santa Claus. But Christmas is more than a season of festivity. It is the day that Christians all over the world celebrate the birth of Jesus Christ.

During the Christmas season many churches display a variety of Nativity scenes. Not fortunate. Ancient children are in an exciting day of gifts, sparkling Christmas trees, red and white candy canes and tangerines.

The word Christmas comes from Cristes massae, an early English phrase which means Mass of Christ.

The word Xmas, the Spanish Navidad, and the Italian Natale, all refer to the birth of Jesus.

Germans call the season Weihnachten, which means "the night of the birth of Christ."

Colors

The traditional colors for Christmas are green and red, which represent the life and the blood of Jesus through the winter and the Christmas beliefs in eternal life through Christ. Red also represents the blood that Jesus shed for mankind.

The Birth of the Savior

According to the Bible, Jesus Christ was born in the town of Bethlehem in the Holy Land and told them of Jesus birth. Mary was told by the Wise Men, called Magi, followed a bright star that led them to an humble stable where the infant Jesus lay in a manger. From that humble birthplace, the Child brought new faith and hope to the world.

It is said that the first Christmas is not known. For the first two centuries, when Christians were being persecuted for their faith, the Christian church did not celebrate the birth of Jesus Christ. It was not until the fourth century that the birth of Christ was celebrated as a religious holiday.

Christmas becomes a religious holiday

In the late 300's, Christians became the official religion of the Roman Empire. By 1100, Christmas had become the most important religious festival in Europe. By the middle of the 14th century, the church in the West was celebrating Christmas on December 25.

Many of the customs now associated with Christmas go back thousands of years when the people of Europe worshipped pagan gods. They celebrated the winter solstice, December 21 or 22, as the birthday of the sun — heralding the beginning of longer days. The early Christian Church took the ancient festival time and gave it new meaning for the Christmas season.

Christmas in American colonies

Not until the middle of the 19th century did Christmas generally become a day of festivity and gift giving in the United States. The stern Puritan colonists believed such festivities were pagan and forbade them by law. During the 1800s, however, the Dutch colonies brought the custom of the Christmas stocking and the Santa Claus figure to America. These customs and traditions are still celebrated today.

Customs

Most American customs were brought here by colonists, such as the Dutch, from their various homelands. Feasting, decorating and singing carols were three customs. Traditional Christmas carols probably began in the early church. Children carol singing seems to have started in the Middle Ages when groups of people went house to house singing to bring light.

Gift giving goes back to the ancient Romans, who distributed gifts during their midwinter festival. In the Bible story, the Wise Men brought gifts to Jesus the twelfth day after his birth.

In the 1800s two more Christmas customs became popular — decorating Christmas trees and sending Christmas cards. Many well-known Christmas carols, including "Silent Night" and "Hark! The Herald Angels Sing," were composed during this period.

The Christmas tree was first mentioned in colonial American writings in 1685. By the beginning of the 19th century, it became an American tradition. The Christmas tree. The custom soon spread to other countries of Northern Europe, but it is still unusual in Asia, Spain and Latin America.

The date of the first Christmas tree in the United States is 1822 in Cambridge, Massachusetts.

The use of evergreens as Yule decorations began in Northern Europe. The use of holly arose because its prickly leaves symbolize a thorn in the crown of Jesus and its scarlet berries suggested drops of blood.

Christmas in other countries

People of different countries celebrate the holiday in various ways, depending on national and local customs. Many Christmas customs that are observed in the United States and Canada originated in the British Isles.

In Britain, most families watch their monarch give a special Christmas message. In Ireland, people put a lighted candle in the window to welcome Mary and Joseph. Some Scottish families decorate a Christmas tree and sing carols.

In France, children put their shoes in front of the fireplace so Père Noël (Father Christmas) can fill them with gifts.

In Australia and New Zealand, December comes during the summer. Schoolchildren have a six-week summer vacation at Christmas time.

In Mexico, families feast and celebrate. Children enjoy trying to break a piñata filled with gifts and candy.

Relatively few numbers of Christians live in Asia, so Christmas is not widely celebrated there. Where the holiday is observed, families sing carols, decorate trees and attend worship services.

In Africa, the celebration is not widespread because there is only a small Christian population. People in Christian communities follow Western traditions. They sing carols and form in their language.

Hanukkah

Another significant religious holiday in December is Hanukkah, the Jewish feast of Lights or Feast of Dedication. The Hebrew word Hanukkah means dedication. The Hanukkah holiday begins on the eve of the 25th day of the Hebrew month of Kislev (approximately December) and lasts eight days.

During Hanukkah, gifts are exchanged and contributions made to the poor.
