

PRESTONSBURG, KENTUCKY

SPEAKING OF AND FOR FLOYD COUNTY

THURSDAY, DECEMBER 5, 1963

PROBE SEEKS CAUSE OF BURCHETT DEATH

An official probe into the cause of the death, early Tuesday night, of Fred Burchett, 45, on Cow Creek was initiated when death by poisoning was suspected.

An autopsy was performed at the Carter & Callihan Funeral Home, later that night, and contents of the victim's stomach and intestinal tract were sent to the U. K. Medical Center, Lexington, for analysis by a toxicologist. Dr. Morris, Pikeville pathologist, performed the autopsy.

Burchett, who was employed seasonally at pipeline work and regularly by W. W. Burchett, a neighbor, to do chores, died about 8 p.m. He was first reported ill by the victim's son, Raymond, and Arnold Hunt, who stayed at the Fred Burchett home.

The report that he was dead came soon thereafter, and neighbors found Burchett lying across a bed in a loggers' shanty, approximately 100 yards from his home. Hunt said he was at the shanty when Burchett told him he was feeling sick and asked him to help him to bed.

An almost-empty strychnine bottle was found in Burchett's pocket.

Earlier in the day, Hunt was quoted as saying, Burchett had told him he was sick, would probably not get well and had decided he might as well end it all. A daughter of the victim told of seeing her father with a small bottle in his possession. She said he told her he intended to take its contents.

Burchett's son, Raymond, said that as his father was en route to the W. W. Burchett home to do the Tuesday evening feeding of livestock he asked him to go to the shanty and see about some beans he had left on the stove. "Do that for your daddy," he quoted his father as saying. "I'll probably be the last thing I ever ask you to do."

Neighbors said Burchett had moved from his home to the shanty during the week-end following a family argument.

The pot of beans which Burchett had been cooking was brought here by Coroner James J. Carter for possible tests if the toxicologist's report holds that Burchett died, as suspected, of strychnine poisoning.

A. R. Workman, Prestonsburg, was re-elected president of the Floyd County Fish and Game Club at its annual election of officers held at Maytown Monday evening. Two new officers, John R. Baldrige, and Beverage Refett, both of Langley, were named secretary and director of archery, respectively.

Others named to official positions in the club for the ensuing year were as follows: Charles Patton, of Langley, director of fish propagation; Oval Howard, of Wayland, director of game propagation; and T. A. Combs, Langley, director of forestry.

Workman notes that the 1964 membership cards are now in the hands of the members and he urges they be purchased at once. The club envisions a highly successful year, he added. The club is affiliated with the League of Kentucky Sportsmen.

DR. LEETE IS VICTIM

Heart Attack Claims Prestonsburg Dentist At Court St. Office

Dr. Martin J. Leete, 73, a dentist here for 48 years, died at his Court street office late Saturday afternoon, victim of a heart attack. His sudden passing came as a shock to many relatives and friends here and elsewhere in Eastern Kentucky.

He was the son of the late Dr. Ralph H. Leete and Maggie Fitzpatrick Leete and was a native of Prestonsburg. Graduated from the Louisville College of Dentistry in 1915, he had practiced his profession here since that time and was the dean of Prestonsburg dentists. He was a former City Councilman and member of the Prestonsburg Board of Education and was a charter member of the Prestonsburg Kiwanis Club.

Surviving him are his widow, Mrs. Claudia Fugate Leete, one sister, Mrs. Claude P. Stephens, of Prestonsburg, and a granddaughter, Mrs. Judy Leete Morris, of Ashland. A son, Martin J. Leete, Jr., preceded him in death.

Funeral rites were conducted at 2 p.m. Tuesday from Fairfield Place, residence of his sister, the Revs. W. D. Jagers, Ira McMillen, Jr., and Paul Stenking officiating. Burial was made in the Mayo cemetery under direction of the Floyd Funeral Home.

TWO PERSONS KILLED IN AUTOS COLLISION

Honeycutt Urges Funds For Band Participation At Frankfort, Tuesday

The Prestonsburg band will have third place in the inaugural parade at Frankfort Tuesday, it was said this week by Franklin M. Honeycutt, director. The band and float from Governor-elect Edward T. Breathitt's home county of Christian will lead the parade, with Harry Lee Waterfield's home county band and float in second place. (See Story No. 5, Page 6)

MARTIN BOY, WOMAN DIE IN SMASHUP

Two Others Are Injured Late Wednesday Night At Community Airport

Two persons were killed and two others injured Wednesday night in a collision of automobiles on the new U. S. 23, a short distance north of the Prestonsburg-Pointsville Community Airport.

The dead: Harry James Gregory, 16, of Martin.

Miss Barbara Wells, age about 30, of Williamsport.

The injured are Curt Hughes, of Martin, driving companion of Gregory, and Miss Jo Pack, owner of the Kentucky Hills Handicraft Industries, Pointsville, driver of the car in which Miss Wells was a passenger. Young Gregory died of a head injury and a possible broken neck. Miss Wells suffered head and chest injuries.

Extent of Miss Pack's and Hughes' injuries were not immediately learned. Both were taken to the Pointsville hospital.

One report of the tragedy said the car owned by young Hughes and apparently driven by Gregory was travelling toward Prestonsburg. The side of the Floyd car was caved in, and the front of Miss Pack's auto was smashed.

The Martin victim of the crash was a son of Harry and Wanda Gregory. He is survived by one sister, Linda, and three brothers, Bill, Dave and Ronnie, all of Martin. Arrangements for his funeral are incomplete. The body was first taken to the Floyd Funeral Home here, later to the Ryan Funeral Home at Martin. Miss Wells, an employee of the Pointsville Grocery Co., was a daughter of Mrs. Ruby Wells and the late Willard N. Wells.

COURT OKEHS REALTY SALE

Purchase of Courthouse Property Is Contingent On Urban Renewal

When, and if, Prestonsburg's urban renewal development gets final approval, Floyd county will be paid $116,250 for the present courthouse property.

Federal approval of that price for the property has been given, and the Prestonsburg Municipal Housing Commission and the Floyd Fiscal Court last Saturday entered into an agreement for the Commission to purchase the property for that amount.

The agreement, however, is contingent upon approval by the Housing & Home Finance Agency, Atlanta, Ga., of Part II of the housing commission's application for loan and grant. In the event that that application fails, the agreement would be without effect.

The property involved includes the courthouse and jail and a lot approximately 200 by 210 feet.

Miss Trusty Named Snow Queen As Yule Season Opened Here; Junior Woman's Club, Sponsor

Several hundred persons braved last Saturday's cold to watch the colorful parade which heralded the beginning of the Christmas season in Prestonsburg.

The Prestonsburg Junior Woman's Club, sponsor of the parade and attendant Snow Queen contest, announced that it plans to continue the event as an annual opening of the yule season. This was the second year the club has sponsored the parade and contest.

Two Prestonsburg girls, Mary Lynn Combs and Marthann Archer, led the parade, followed by the Cub Scouts, the police car, fire truck and the Prestonsburg high school band. Band major-ettes were dressed in special Christmas costumes for the parade.

The float bearing the new Snow Queen, Miss Deborah Trusty, of Garrett, and her court composed of the five other contestants for the title, was decorated by the Prestonsburg Lions Club.

Six other gaily bedecked floats were features of the parade, each depicting a Christmas scene: the Prestonsburg Senior Woman's Club, the Nativity scene; the Junior Chamber of Commerce, Kentucky Governors; Mrs. Virgil Goble's Girl Scout Troop, Santa's Workshop; Mrs. Bill Harvey Howard's Brownie Scout troop, a choir group; the Kiwanis Club, Gathering of the Greens.

Last in the line of march was the float bearing Santa and his elves, and Santa ended the afternoon's festivities by passing out candy to the children.

The Snow Queen beauty pageant staged in conjunction with the Christmas parade, was held at 1 p.m. in the grade school auditorium. Danny Spurlock, master of ceremonies, presented the six contestants, gowned in white formals.

Miss Kay Milligan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. K. Milligan, was Prestonsburg high school's representative. (See Story No. 2, Page 6)

HEAVY INAUGURATION CROWD IS EXPECTED

FLOYD FLOAT TO BE THIRD FOR PARADE

Viewers of Breathitt Induction Will Miss Statue of Gov. Goebel

When Edward T. Breathitt is inaugurated Governor of Kentucky next Tuesday the Floyd county float will be No. 3 in the parade.

Christian county, home county of the incoming Governor, will be No. 1 in the line of march, with Hickman, home of the new Lieutenant-Governor, Harry Lee Waterfield, No. 2.

Frankfort is planning to entertain the largest crowd in the long history of inaugurations of Governors. The record crowd is expected because each inaugural, as time passes, is bigger than its predecessor.

Missing from the inaugural scene will be the statue of the assassinated Governor Goebel. The statue was moved this week from its place in front of the Capitol, the scene of the formal taking of the oath of office, to the Old Capitol grounds where Goebel was shot.

Had Floyd county been the "baner" Breathitt county as it at first appeared to be, it still would not have been first in the parade, since priority is given the home counties of the incoming Governor and Lieutenant-Governor and the outgoing Governor, in that order.

But this county did not lead the Breathitt counties. It was No. 2, falling behind Franklin by 67 votes but not until after the absentee ballots were tabulated.

The vote total for each Kentucky county appear elsewhere in this edition of The Times.

Governor Combs at the conclusion of his term of office will not return to Prestonsburg. He has purchased a residence in Lexington, and he and his family already are making the transition to private life.

FLORAL FIRM SOLD HERE

Ramsey Will Continue Business At Pikeville; Appreciation Expressed

Frank Ramsey announced the sale Monday of the Norton Floral Company here to Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Osborn and Mr. and Mrs. Don Colvin. Mr. Ramsey will continue to operate the Norton Floral Company at Pikeville.

The new owners are residents of Eastern Kentucky, Mr. and Mrs. Osborn owning and operating two other floral businesses in the area—Joray Flowers at Jackson and Beattyville Florists at Beattyville. Mrs. Osborn is a niece of Mr. and Mrs. Okie Dorton, of Lancaster, and Mr. Colvin is a brother of Bert Colvin, of Prestonsburg.

Mr. Ramsey, who has operated Norton Floral here for several years, expressed his appreciation of the friendship and patronage of the people of Prestonsburg and Floyd county and commended the new owners of the business to the public. "Their experience as florists and their desire to be of service are of first importance," he said. "I am sure they will continue the same high type of service I have tried to give the people while I have been in Prestonsburg."

This Town ... That World

A SMALL WORLD

The Floyd County Times gets around, and even when it doesn't news which originated in it gets there just the same.

Billy Bradley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Eddie Bradley, of Prestonsburg, sends home a clipping from the Okinawa Morning Star which tells via AP our story of that hole-in-one spree Joe Wheeler Burchett and Arthur Hughes went on at the Jimmy Wiley golf course, a few months back.

And our story of that other Arthur Hughes and his dealings with chinquapins got into The Christian Science Monitor, and ever since, Mr. Hughes has been getting letters from folks in almost all parts of the country who would like to try their hand at growing them.

FISHERMEN'S LAMENT

Two friends write this week, and they are helping write this column, whether they intended to or not. Circuit Judge Edward P. Hill writes:

I have fished on and off all fall with only one keeper bass, tho a good many bream. Notwithstanding, I am consoled by the following words of Herbert Hoover, and shall try again, weather permitting:

"We have indeed made stupendous progress in physical equipment to overcome the mysteries of fish. We have moved upward from the rude social level of the willow pole with a butcher-string line, fixed with hooks ten for a dime, whose compelling lure is one segment of an angelform and whose incantation is spitting on the bait. Now we have arrived at the high state of a tackle assembled from the steel of Damascus, the bamboo (See Story No. 3, Page 6)

SEAL DRIVE IS LAGGING

Christmas Seal Funds To Fight Tuberculosis; New Cases Are Found

The 1963 Christmas Seal campaign is lagging badly in Floyd county, one of Kentucky's high incidence counties for tuberculosis. Mrs. Beecher Hardwick, president of the Floyd County Tuberculosis Association, reported this week.

"Christmas Seal funds are used to fight tuberculosis and other respiratory diseases. Last year 16 new, active cases of tuberculosis were reported in the county according to officials of the Floyd County Health Department.

Contributions to the Christmas Seal campaign are particularly important this year, Mrs. Hardwick said, because the association still owes $1,375 on an X-ray unit purchased for the health department. Total cost of the unit, purchased with Christmas Seal funds, was $4,375.

"We hope Floyd countians will be especially generous in their contributions in order that we may pay our debt and go forward with an active program aimed at the eradication of tuberculosis," Mrs. Hardwick said. (See Story No. 9, Page 6)

HEARING SET ON VETERAN

Allen Man Terrorizes Family, Resists Police, Is Allegation Heard

A hearing to determine the mental condition of a veteran of two wars who terrorized his family and later resisted State Police arrest is scheduled this week, county authorities said.

The accused man, John Estep, allegedly poured gasoline on the floor of his home near Allen, set fire to his son's clothing, caused the Allen fire department a hurried run, struck his son and killed his wife, then wound up by trying to fight off state troopers' attempts to arrest him.

The veteran of World War II and the Korean Conflict said Tuesday that he remembered nothing that happened. He suffers from "blackouts," officials were told.

Also jailed within the week: Homer Hicks, booked on a breaking and entering count by State Trooper Larry Hatton; Doug Hopson, striking and wounding, jailed Sunday by Constable Tom Adams, of District 3; Carl Reed, drunk driving, arrested by Deputy Sheriff Marion Martin.

WATER PLAN TERMS TOLD

Board, Water System Approach Agreement On Supply To School

The Floyd County Board of Education and the Prestonsburg Gas & Water System are at the point of agreement on a plan whereby the municipally owned system will supply water to the Middle Creek elementary school now under construction.

Although work of extending the city's water service to the school apparently is months away—mainly because an additional and costly water tank will be necessary—the job is expected to be completed in time for the opening of school, next September, Adrian Collins, chairman of the City Water & Gas Commission, said.

Originally, the two parties to the transaction were far apart as the board of education would agree to finance the cost of a water line of not more than four inches in diameter. Since that time, however, the board has agreed to spend enough—an estimated $23,000—to buy six-inch pipe to extend from the end of the present water system at West Prestonsburg to the school. Of this $23,000 total, $13,000 would be an outright consumer's donation. The remainder would be in the form of a loan without interest, the Board of Education paying half of each month's water bill at the school and crediting the remainder against the $13,000 advanced. The board would provide right-of-way for the line, which would be laid at water system expense.

The larger line will permit the water system to serve consumers between West Prestonsburg and the school.

Mr. Collins said engineers have advised the commission that a water tank of 250,000 to 300,000-gallon capacity must be installed in the vicinity of the Prestonsburg Community College to serve that institution and surrounding area, whether water service is extended to the Middle Creek school or not. That necessity having been fixed, the Water & Gas Commission has applied for federal funds to cover the esti-

New Lakes For Kentucky Communities

NINETEEN NEW LAKES have been completed, put under construction or approved for construction in Kentucky's Small Lakes Development Program, initiated in 1960. An additional five lake sites are being investigated by the State Highway Department. The location of these lakes is determined by an area's need for flood control, water supply and recreational water and by the absence of U. S. Corps of Engineers' dam projects. State Conservation Commissioner J. O. Matlock said the 19 lakes definitely scheduled will impound 2,485 acres of water and will all be completed and filled by the end of next year.

INK TERMS OF REMOVAL Engineers, Railway Agree On Relocation On Fishtrap Area Line

The Huntington district of the U. S. Army Corps of Engineers has announced the signing of a contract with the Chesapeake & Ohio Railway Company for the removal and relocation of the Levisa Fork branch railway at the Fishtrap Reservoir Project in Pike county.

Signing the contract in the Federal Building, Huntington, W. Va., were Colonel Harrington W. Cochran, Huntington district engineer, and M. I. Dunn, senior vice-president of the C. & O. Railway Company.

Under the terms of the contract the Army Engineers will be permitted to initiate construction at the Fishtrap Dam site in accordance with present schedules without the delay sometimes encountered in relocating a line of railroad severed by construction of a dam and reservoir.

The contract provides for the removal of approximately 18 miles of the C. & O.'s existing line in order to permit continued construction of the Fishtrap project without interference, and for the relocation of the railroad to serve the same general area by a route either outside the reservoir or at a higher elevation along the Levisa Fork. The contract limits the government's share in the cost of construction of such relocation to $11 million.

According to Colonel Cochran, this is the biggest single relocation contract in the 40-year history of the Huntington district.

This contract, between the Corps of Engineers and the C. & O. Railway Company, which has been under negotiation for many months, will permit the Engineers to complete the Fishtrap Project in 1968, it was said. In view of the accord, residents of the Big Sandy valley, below Fishtrap Dam, can look forward to flood protection two years sooner than would have been possible under any other arrangement.

Colonel Cochran said that the total estimated cost of the Fishtrap Reservoir Project is $56 million.

Construction on the project was initiated early in 1962. Work to date has consisted of acquisition of real estate and the relocation of affected highways and communities. The real estate acquisition program is presently about 50 percent complete and the highway relocation program will be completed this winter.

ASKS FUNDS FOR 2 DAMS President Requests Congress for Funds For Carrs Fork Job

Money to accelerate surveys and planning on two flood-control projects in Eastern Kentucky was requested of the Congress Wednesday by President Lyndon B. Johnson.

The President asked for $170,000 to complete advance engineering on the Carrs Fork Reservoir in Knott county, and $40,000 to finish flood-control studies along Tygart's Creek and two forks of the Little Sandy River in Carter county.

The proposed Carrs Fork Reservoir is a $14 million project aimed at curbing flooding along the North Fork of the Kentucky River above and below Hazard. Carrs Fork is a tributary of the North Fork.

The House Appropriations Committee has already recommended that Congress authorize $22 million for the construction of the Grayson Reservoir on the Little Sandy River.

The $49,000 the President has requested will be used to determine if additional impoundments are needed along forks of the Little Sandy and Tygart's Creek.

The budget request was the first made to the Congress by President Johnson, Senator John Sherman Cooper noted.

"I'm very glad that the first budget recommendation by President Johnson... recognizes the needs of Eastern Kentucky for flood protection," Cooper commented.

Cooper said the President's decision to seek funds for the region will be appreciated by the people of Kentucky.

If shipped simultaneously, it would take 90 ocean freighters to carry the 1,376,000,000 lbs. of U. S. farm abundance CARE will deliver overseas during fiscal year 1963-64. Contributions to the CARE Food Crusade, New York 10016, help bring this aid to hungry people, as gifts from Americans.

Child deaths due to measles are 25 times greater in Mexico than in the U. S., largely because underfed children have no resistance. Contributions to CARE's Food Crusade provide milk and other foods to nourish 350,000 youngsters at Mexican health clinics.

Each $1 CARE Food Crusade package sent by Americans contains 18 to 50 lbs. of food for the hungry in other lands. In Turkey, CARE Food Crusade packages help feed 43,000 children and adults, adding 500 to 900 calories a day to each person's diet—the difference between hunger and adequate nutrition.

Public school children in Karachi, Pakistan, come from homes with average incomes of only $13 to $32 a month, to support families of 7 to 9 persons. Contributions to CARE's Food Crusade provide daily milk or milk and a roll, for 285,600 underfed primary pupils at city and village schools throughout West Pakistan.

In Jordan, 50% of children examined in a recent survey suffered from vitamin deficiencies. Contributions to the CARE Food Crusade, New York 10016, provide a daily cooked meal for 9,900 persons, chiefly children, at Jordanian orphanages, schools and feeding stations.

In Korea, 19,000 members of 3,300 refugee families moved to new homesteads must clear the fields and build sea walls before they can even begin farming. To help sustain them until the land is productive, 45,600 of CARE's $1 Food Crusade packages are needed—enough to give each family a package a month, for 12 months.

NEW HEARING DATE IS SET

Talks On Development To Resume At Pikeville, Col. Cochran Says

The public hearing begun at Pikeville November 22 for the discussion of water-resources development along the Big Sandy River and its tributaries, which was broken up by receipt of the news of President Kennedy's assassination, will be resumed at 1 p.m., December 14.

Col. Harrington W. Cochran, district engineer, U. S. Army Corps of Engineers, said this week the hearing will be held at the original site, the auditorium of Pikeville high school.

Approximately 500 persons, representing this area of Kentucky and adjacent West Virginia, had gathered at Pikeville for the first hearing.

Said Col. Cochran: "Written statements and resolutions that have been submitted by groups or individuals will be recorded and made a part of the transcript of the public hearing. Those who have already indicated a desire to make oral statements will be invited to do so. Persons who have not made advance notification of intention to present an oral statement will be given full opportunity to give testimony following the scheduled presentations."

Methodist Editor Features Martin Opportunity Store, Work Of Mountain Minister

The Opportunity Store in Martin and five like it in as many counties of the Appalachian highlands is the counterpart of Goodwill Industries and Salvation Army stores in the city.

But such a store is unique in these mountains, writes Associate Editor Herman B. Teeter in the January TOGETHER, Methodism's midmonth family magazine. It is also the evidence of one man's concern for his neighbors.

Some 20 years ago, writes Teeter, Pastor John H. Lewis obtained permission to leave his substantial pastorate at First Methodist Church, Jackson, Ky., to begin a personal mission program in the remote, unchurched backwoods; where the specter of growing unemployment and want fed on the hearts and souls of a once self-sufficient people.

He began collecting used goods from Methodist churches, and the project got under way with the backing of a Nebraska woman who agreed to pay Pastor Lewis' salary for three years if he went ahead with Methodist Mountain Missions in Kentucky, now backed by the Board of Missions of the Methodist Kentucky Conference.

Since the beginning, Mr. Lewis has combined preaching and storekeeping, and, besides, founded three churches (the first he started in an old bus).

Despite an amazing material growth (total sales this year were $69,089), Methodist Mountain Missions' Opportunity Stores, though a business house, not a charitable institution, has one purpose: to spread the gospel of Jesus Christ in the mountains of Eastern Kentucky.

"The great need," says Mr. Lewis, "is better churches with better leadership. These mountain folk are good, Christian people. Many are unbaptized, to be sure, but they are good folks and good neighbors who have faith in Christ and read the Bible regularly, even though they are denied a church life."

Other Methodist leaders are attempting to help. They have set up an Appalachian Task Force led by Methodist Bishop Paul N. Garber, of Richmond, Va., which will propose a program of aid to the Appalachian region at the Methodist General Conference in April.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

TRIBUTE TO KENNEDY

On Friday, November 22, 1963, our nation was thrown into a state of shock when our beloved President, John Fitzgerald Kennedy, was felled by the bullet of a deranged, hate-filled assassin.

John Kennedy will be greatly missed, not only by his family and close associates in government, but by the nation as a whole.

No President, living or dead, has been more dearly loved or deeply admired than was he.

He was a friend to rich and poor alike; neither the color of a man's skin nor the place of his birth made any difference to him.

His radiant smile, his deep faith in God, his interest in the education of all people and his ability to be one of our nation's greatest leaders has made him a shining example of the great America he loved so much.

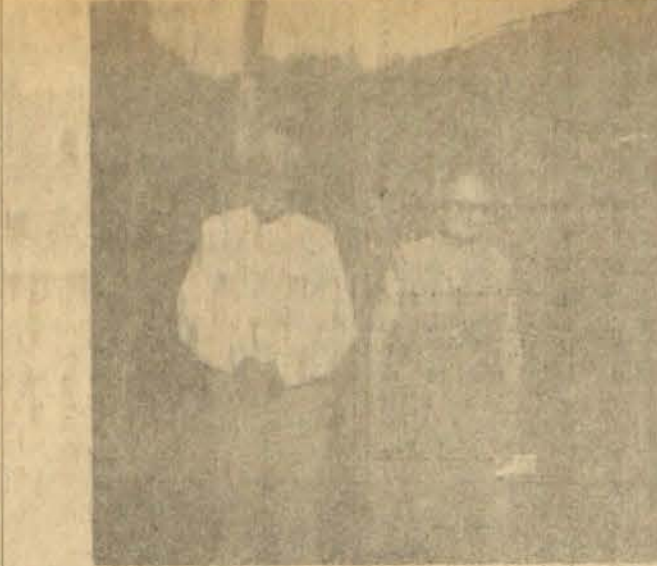

He was a deeply religious man, an obedient son, a faithful husband and a loving father.

To the weak he gave strength; to the hopeless he gave courage; and for his country he gave his life.

And, though we have lost him in death, we can still give thanks to God that we were permitted to share him here on this earth, even for a short time.

Peace be with him forever, and may the God whom he loved so well and trusted so fully, bless, protect and strengthen his loved ones and guide those who are now left to carry on his unfinished work.

MRS. CCRA S. MAY

Mr. and Mrs. Hiram Stephens, of Buck's Branch, near Martin, celebrated their 57th wedding anniversary, November 15. They were married November 15, 1906, at Spurlock on Mrs. Stephens' 16th birthday. Mr. Stephens was not quite 16.

They have lived for the past 50 years in the house where Mrs. Stephens was born. Having no children of their own, they took into their home children of Mr. Stephens' two brothers and those of a sister.

Mr. Stephens has been a farmer most of his life. They are both members of the Mormon Church. He is the son of the late Henry Stephens, of Risner, and is a brother of the Rev. Alex Stephens, of Prestonsburg. Mrs. Stephens is the daughter of the late Isaac and Sue Flannery, of Martin.

Miss Joyce Hall, Prestonsburg high school senior, won an award for outstanding work as chief justice of the international court at the recent sixth annual convention of the Kentucky United Nations Assembly held in Louisville.

The office of president, the only post open to election by the 478 high school delegates, was won by Peggy Rapier, Paintsville high school junior. The Assembly constitution was changed to make more offices elective next year.

Miss Hall is the daughter of Mrs. Woodrow Hurd, of Lancaster.

Flu Dangers Greater For Heart Sufferers

The dangers from "flu" are far greater for patients with heart disease than for most others, according to the Kentucky Heart Association and the National Heart Institute. About the only other patients on the same high hazard level are those with lung diseases. The risk, according to the two agencies, is especially high for those with lung congestion due to a heart disease, and it has been shown that the influenza threat is continually recurring.

The hazard outlined above was suspected for some time, but a close study of the last several influenza epidemics confirmed the belief of the medical profession in this respect, the Kentucky Heart Association points out.

Evidence of the increased risk to heart and lung patients, and the even greater threat when these two illnesses are combined in one patient, was indicated by a more severe degree of illness and a higher death rate among such patients.

The use of influenza virus vaccine has proven its effectiveness in preventing flu and has shown also that side reactions from this method have been extremely few in adults, both agencies reported. The scattered exceptions were noted only in those patients that proved to be allergic to the various elements of which the vaccine itself is made up. It was emphasized that such allergies are comparatively rare.

To emphasize the conclusions, KHA stressed again the primary recommendation directed at those most susceptible to the effects of flu and most in danger from them: Immunization by means of the influenza virus vaccine is strongly urged as a protective measure, and this should be done annually because flu epidemics recur in unpredictable cycles and some flu occurs continually.

For those in the least doubt about such matters, there is again this unvarying advice from the Kentucky Heart Association: Consult your family doctor. He is the best guardian your health.

EAST KENTUCKY AREA NEEDS TOLD JOHNSON

Washington, D. C., Dec. 3.—The needs of Eastern Kentucky were reviewed by Representative Carl D. Perkins for President Lyndon Johnson today. Stressing the urgency of a massive road building and flood control program, Perkins advised the President that until adequate access roads and flood protection are provided in Eastern Kentucky, industrial development, tourism, and other commercial activities cannot progress.

The completion of reservoirs now under way and the authorization and construction of new reservoirs were called vital to the future of the Big Sandy, the Kentucky River, Licking River and Little Sandy River basins which include every county in the district.

Perkins repeated his previous requests that the Corps of Engineers be instructed to move quickly to dredge, clear, and widen smaller streams, creeks, and tributaries throughout eastern Kentucky. "Such action will remove flood threat and provide immediate jobs," Perkins said.

Perkins asked that a massive road building program be undertaken which would be in addition to regular federal aid highway programs. "Not only should attention be given to modernizing such through roads as routes U. S. 119, U. S. 23, U. S. 480, Ky. 80, and the proposed Allegheny Parkway, but also feeder roads should be rebuilt and modernized throughout Eastern Kentucky," said Perkins. He said that the extremely poor condition of roads and bridges throughout the Seventh Congressional District made it difficult, and many times of the year impossible, for children to maintain regular school attendance. Economic development and improvement without an adequate system of modern highways was termed impossible.

Perkins also called to the attention of the President the urgency of continuing a large program of federal funds for the construction and extension of water, sewer, and other public facilities in the communities throughout Eastern Kentucky.

Perkins expressed the hope that the President would recommend legislation for a special Appalachian program which would not only call for the appropriation of necessary funds to bring about these needed improvements in Eastern Kentucky, but also would help coordinate the construction of the facilities so as to assure the creation of permanent job opportunities utilizing the surplus manpower of the area.

Perkins called attention to the long prevailing high unemployment rates throughout the Seventh Congressional District which have consistently exceeded, by several times, the national rate. He also referred to previous pleas that he had made to federal officials and agencies in which he had pointed out that regular federal programs of resource development and public works construction were geared to economic cost ratios which operated to increase the economic disparity between Eastern Kentucky and more prosperous areas. The Congressman pointed out that the difficulty facing depressed areas rests in the fact that priority for federal funds is too often given for those projects having the highest cost benefit ratios which happen to be in areas where there was pronounced commercial and industrial activities resulting in high property values and greater per capita income. Perkins said this was one reason why it was essential that aid be given the Eastern Kentucky area and other portions of the Appalachian region greatly in excess of and in addition to other regular federal programs for public works.

(Continued from Page 1) order to expedite plans for this plant, Tackett has had diversified experience in the weaving industry for the past eight years. This experience has included job evaluation and wage incentive plans, manager of a bedspread factory in Georgia, and head of the industrial engineering department of a large corporation which manufactured items similar to what would be manufactured at the Paintsville plant.

The company will manufacture quality bedspreads with future expansion to the manufacturing of area rugs and monogram towels, Mr. Tackett said. At first, the company will concentrate on the bedspread line.

The new plant will employ or create direct employment for approximately fifty people during the first year of operation. It is estimated that this should create an annual payroll of approximately $170,000.00. The exact location of the plant has not been finally determined; however, the corporation has options on two sites that would be suitable for the location.

The building will be of concrete block construction and will have approximately 18,000 square feet of floor space. The machinery to be used will be the latest in automatic looms. These looms, in effect, will mechanically weave spreads similar to what were once hand woven in Kentucky. The total requirement from stock sales and loans to be invested in land, building, equipment, and working capital will be approximately $275,000.00.

Woodrow W. Smith, who is presently plant superintendent in a similar plant in Georgia, is planning to invest in the corporation and move to Paintsville to serve as plant superintendent of the proposed factory. A three-year projection of the operation indicates approximately eighty new jobs would be created by the end of the three-year period. A market survey is presently being made by the Small Business Administration to determine the potential market for products of this plant.

Stock sales will begin soon in order to raise the required amount of capital necessary for the corporation to fulfill its obligations under the proposed loan arrangement.

And the Rev. M. Robert Regan sends me, among other items, a clipping from an Arkansas newspaper showing a certain Mr. Eddie Ball, of Eureka Springs, holding—the lucky stuff!—a string of what they call in those parts "line side bass," which he caught in Kings River.

Having set me to consulting road maps and fixing my bearings on Kings River, my correspondent notes on the margin, "I learned to swim in this river about 65 years ago."

If Friend Regan will bring along a resuscitator and a couple of the boys from the Rescue Squad, I'll tell him about how I learned not to swim in Beaver Creek, around 45 years ago.

STATE, U. S. TECHNICIANS VIEW EAST KENTUCKY AREA

An on-the-spot check through Eastern Kentucky's hardship areas by a team of state and U. S. technicians, concentrating mainly on the school lunch program, food surplus distribution and housing, was completed recently.

Several officials from the U. S. Department of Agriculture, Department of Health, Education and Welfare, and other agencies were accompanied by John Whisman, special assistant to Gov. Bert Combs. Whisman is head of the Area Program Office.

James L. Sundquist, deputy undersecretary of the U. S. Department of Agriculture and senior member of the tour party, commented that the trip "has been extremely valuable to the team in figuring out ways we can contribute to the 'crash' program launched in this area."

James Adler, special assistant to Undersecretary of Commerce Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., also made the trip and will continue in both Washington and Kentucky to help fit federal programs to critical needs, where possible, Whisman said. Roosevelt is chairman of the President's Appalachian Regional Commission.

Whisman said other teams are working in Frankfort, Atlanta, Ga., Charlotte, N. C. and Washington, D. C. Overcoming problems in the health and welfare fields and ways of creating more jobs are their main goals, he said.

Whisman pointed out that the activities envisioned will involve state and local actions as well as the special use of many federal programs. The principal work of the group is to fit existing programs to defined priority needs.

"It must be stressed that there are two objectives," Whisman said. "This crash effort is to help Eastern Kentucky get through the winter. At the same time a permanent development program is being designed for the Appalachian Region on all levels."

Two days after accompanying the officials on their close-up of Eastern Kentucky, part of the crash winter program ordered by the late President, Whisman issued this statement on the future of the emergency program and the long-range development for Eastern Kentucky:

"One of the last major new purposes undertaken by the late President, John F. Kennedy, was his commitment for a solid, continuing program to meet the unique problems of Appalachia. In addition to his interest in supporting a permanent development program for this area, he had talked with Governor Combs and Governor-elect Edward T. Breathitt and had singled out Eastern Kentucky for a special and immediate effort to help these people through the problems of this winter. The President expressed his intention to see Eastern Kentucky first-hand and December 6 had been selected as the probable date. The President also expressed a desire to see some of the special winter programs in action in Eastern Kentucky."

"Both the permanent and special winter programs require most unusual efforts on the federal and state levels but both are continuing. These efforts would be impossible without special organization and top-level concern. We now have both of these. And although our remaining task is long and difficult, we are continuing a maximum effort to bring a successful program into reality."

"The Old Order Giveth Way to the New"

Prior to the next publication date of The Floyd County Times, a new Governor, Edward T. Breathitt, will have taken office, and the old, Bert T. Combs, will have returned to the role of private citizen.

We hail Mr. Breathitt as he undertakes the most difficult job the Commonwealth can delegate to one of its citizens, and we extend our sincere best wishes for his success.

The task Edward T. Breathitt as Governor of Kentucky will tackle is doubly difficult, because he follows in the footsteps of a great Governor. However hard he may work, and however successful he may be in carrying out needed programs, the effect will not appear to be so great as it would, were he following a plodding, ineffectual failure in office.

We are not given to button-bustin' pride or the traditional Chamber of Commerce claims of superiority for our region, county or hometown. But for these last four years we have been downright proud—you can call it nothing else—when strangers, learning that we call Prestonsburg and Floyd county home, remarked, "That's where Governor Combs is from, isn't it?"

The Little Judge from the Mountains has done things. Big things. Education, highways, parks—those things which are basic to a greater Kentucky; more schools and teachers for the retarded, increased aid to the aged and otherwise handicapped, —those smaller items which reach down to the individual.

He has dared to risk criticism and has drawn his full share of it with a bold stand on civil rights which he could have ducked. His affiliation with the "little fellow" has drawn fire.

His worst enemy cannot truthfully say that Bert Combs was a do-nothing Governor.

Mistakes he made, and he has readily admitted them. Of his successes he has been entitled to boast, but his inborn humility and natural disdain for the braggart have caused him to leave these matters to others.

Governor of all Kentucky, and fully aware of, and responsive to, that duty as he has been, Bert Combs has been a better friend to Eastern Kentucky, the place he still calls home, than most of us realize. But that realization will come—late to many of us, but it will come.

Kentucky's Mountain Governor has been on the move, these four years. Kentucky, too, has been on the move. And Eastern Kentucky, gripped for generations by despair and somnolence, has awakened to improvements few had dared to dream of and has found itself—mirabile!—free of the shackles of isolation and neglect.

We repeat a statement made on other occasions: The Combs administration will take its place as the most progressive in the long history of Kentucky; history, with the perspective of time in its favor, will give Bert Combs his rightful place among the greatest of Kentucky Governors.

Governor Combs entered upon the duties of his office, and our prayers went with him. He leaves office, his full stature as a Kentuckian and as a leader realized, and that same interest goes with him into private life.

And no less is our interest in Governor-Elect Edward T. Breathitt as he moves in to begin a work which will demand—and which we believe will get—the best that is in him.

Are We Ashamed To Be Moral?

BY J. EDGAR HOOVER (Director, The Federal Bureau of Investigation)

Are we Americans ashamed to be identified today with decency and morality? Are we forsaking the time-tested principles upon which our great country was founded for a sub-standard, more accommodating code of conduct?

There appears to be a preponderance of evidence to indicate a truthful reply to these questions has to be in the affirmative. However, here a true answer is the "wrong" answer, and it is high time righteous, freedom-loving people take a closer look at what is happening to our moral standards.

Morality is one of the more perplexing and controversial problems facing our Nation. Why? Primarily, it is because of individual and collective moral cowardice on the part of our society. We do not have the courage to stand in conflict with the mad rush for material wealth, indulgence, and social prestige. We are condoners and appeasers of a practice which we distrust and disapprove but which we will not overtly oppose.

The lack of morality and integrity stems from a false sense of values. Many persons are so preoccupied with selfishness and greed they no longer know—nor care for that matter—where honor stops and dishonor commences. Others are simply confused. Rationalization and double standards have so clouded some moral principles that right and wrong are no longer clearly distinguishable.

Moral retrogression is not confined to any one group or sector of our country. This social illness is universal. Immorality rears its ugly head in every American institution and profession. None is free from its stigma. It is reflected equally as much in corporate price-fixing as in teen-age vandalism; in payoffs to politicians as in classroom cheating; in sports world bribes as in law enforcement scandals; and in income tax returns padding as in voting frauds.

Immorality itself is not the only danger of the crisis. Some theorists suggest our moral standards be scrapped for a less restrictive code by which our moral delinquencies can be justified. Such thinking is a flight from responsibility and an accelerator to further moral decadence. If the destruction of our great Nation itself were the goal of these advocates, they could not devise a better means to achieve it.

With the approach of the Joyous Holiday Season, let us as God-loving people shoulder our moral responsibilities, not flee from them. Let us stand proud and erect, champions all, for morality, integrity, and godliness. Let us assure that it may always be said of our country, "America is great because she is good."

"Let's get some more Christmas Seals with the money you're not spending on our date tonight!"

TIDBITS of KENTUCKY FOLKLORE

By GORDON WILSON, Ph. D. Western Kentucky Teachers' College, Bowling Green, Ky.

DOING SOME DIGGING

If I have ever had a "call" as a folklorist, it has been a realization of the significance of setting down certain customs that are still alive, in actuality or in memory, before some other era somewhat obscures what we used to be. Archaeology has done some great things in the great T.V.A. area in digging into burial places of prehistoric peoples in places that would soon be covered by lakes.

Years ago I took exception to a really great book on Kentucky customs because it was too general. Such statements as "The mountaineers believe thus and so" struck me as thrilling as "Man is mortal" or "you can't get blood out of a turnip." What I want to know is "Who says this or believes that?" not some generalized statement. If possible, I want to know the circumstances behind the custom or the saying. To be a saying reveals the sayer; the quaint custom, the person or persons who have kept it alive.

It would be hard to overestimate the value of genuine folk documents, like letters, diaries, efforts at writing stories or poems. The old, old way of keeping all the letters received by a family seems to have passed as a custom. But, when I was a small boy, every home had a package or more of just such letters, usually simple, rather bleak letters, but full of information about relatives and illnesses and births and deaths. The few that have survived those old times are almost priceless to the families concerned and are of great value, too, to scholars seeking genuine knowledge of former times.

Most human customs have seemed to those who live by them as so perfectly natural that they do not require explanation. Sometimes it is nearly impossible to reconstruct some well-known institution from the inadequate accounts or fragments of sentences that tell of it. Don't you wish that somebody with the gift of gab had set down just what a party was like in pioneer days? Or the funeral of some ordinary person, not a celebrity? Or the actual happenings when some family came together for a reunion? Imagine trying to tell youngsters of today of the complicated and standardized manners of the rather stiff old days when ladies were ladies and gentlemen were gentlemen. We can find some stiff old pictures for some of these, but antiques somehow fail to make the people real. An anecdote, a saying, a scrap of conversation, remembered and set down in writing, or, in our time, tape-recorded, would bring back to life many a person who was somebody in his day and deserved some evidence of his having been here for a while.

Year by year I have tried to rescue a few of our former ways, but I am beginning to feel swamped by the number of things that I have yet to write about. I am beginning to record on tape some of the voices of my own time, voices that no amount of writing can explain. What I want in these records is speech as it is, alive and useful, not something found in a dusty old book; maybe I have taken on too great a task, but I am willing to let these recordings speak for themselves after the speakers and I are gone.

GOLDEN HAWK SIZEMORE James A. Sizemore, 219 Cisco St., Ridgecrest, California, inquires if there is a picture in existence of Golden Hawk, sometimes referred to as Golden Hawk Sizemore. Interesting inquiry, indeed! If there is a picture of Golden Hawk extant, The Times would be glad to use it. If anyone has any information, write this column.

This column would like to do a story on Golden Hawk. If any of his descendants have information on him, would they write? My California correspondent calls him Chief Golden Hawk, the Cherokee, who lived "near Big Creek, Kentucky." Interesting question, again. Where did Golden Hawk live?

HAGER FAMILY A Capt. John E. Howes, in Germany, writes about the Howes and Hager families of Johnson county. He sends a long excerpt on the two prominent Eastern Kentucky families from THE BIG SANDY VALLEY, by William Ely, published in...

The excerpt follows: "Rev. J. H. Hager, son of Harmon Hager, will compare with the ministers anywhere in logic, choice of strong language, and general ability. He is of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South. "Rev. Charles J. Howes, whose father and grandfather were both preachers, is an able preacher, standing among the leaders of the Kentucky Conference, Methodist Episcopal Church. Mr. Howes not only represented his church in a General Conference, but was made one of the secretaries of that august body.

"Mr. Howes's younger, Rev. G. Winn Howes, although prepared for and having practiced law for a few years, is now, though young in the ministry, an able expounder of the word in the Methodist Episcopal Church. "The Hager family of the Sandy Valley, like the Auxier and Moore families, is of the German race. John Hager and Mary Schaefer, his wife spoke the German language, and used the German Bible to find out God's ways to man. We first hear of them in Amherst county, Virginia, where their sons, Daniel, George and John were born, as well as their daughter, who became the wife of James Layne, the father of Judge Lindsay Layne, they moved to Floyd county and settled on John's Creek, when their son Daniel was but a few years old. Their other sons grew up to be useful citizens. "George, the eldest, living to a great age, died several years ago in West Virginia. He was the father of Mrs. Van Horn, recently deceased. He was a very religious man, and a great Methodist. Another son was also numbered among the leading people of the valley. But Daniel, by his energy and superior mental endowments always ranked the leader of the house of Hager. When he came to manhood, in 1820 or 1821, he married Miss Violet Ventres Porter, daughter of...

100 YEARS AGO
THIS WEEK

The Civil War in Kentucky
By JOE JORDAN
(Kentucky Civil War Commission)

One hundred years ago this week a detachment of 150 Confederate cavalrymen took M.L. Sterling, burned the Montgomery county courthouse and a separate building housing the clerks' offices, released prisoners from the jail, and "captured" 100 horses. (The word "captured" is quoted from Collins' "History of Kentucky.") That was all accomplished without a fight although, as newspaper accounts emphasized, an entire regiment of Federal troops was quartered "a mile and an eighth" from town.

That was the fourth time during the calendar year 1863 that M.L. Sterling had been in Confederate hands. On one of the previous occasions, in March, Col. Roy S. Cluke of Morgan's command had taken it after four hours of hard fighting during which several buildings were set on fire to drive out their defenders.

Six officers of Kentucky regiments of the Union Army were dismissed from the service "on orders from Washington City." They were a major, a captain, and four lieutenants. Two had been accused of disloyalty; the others were charged variously with cowardice, drunkenness, or "abandoning company in the face of the enemy."

Brig. Gen. John Hunt Morgan and Capt. Thomas H. Hines, two of seven Confederate officers who during the previous week had escaped from Ohio state penitentiary at Columbus, were making their way through Kentucky, assisted by Confederate sympathizers in every county they passed through. A contemporary wrote of Morgan and his progress through his home state, "Everybody vied with each other as to who should show him the most attention . . . and young ladies of refinement begged the honor of cooking his meals." Among those who did not recognize the general traveling in civilian clothes, he sometimes passed as a government contractor buying cattle; at other times he said he was a quartermaster or inspector.

Back at Columbus, the Kentuckians who had not escaped from the prison when Morgan and his six captains left were put under stricter rules. Formerly they had been permitted to be together during the day and locked up in individual cells only at night. Now they were kept in their cells all the time except when they were marched to their meals and back, and they could not speak while at the table. The cells were so small that in each of them the bed took up half the floor space. Basil Duke, who was there, later wrote: "The only method we had of exercising was to step sideways from one end of the cell to the other. It was intensely cold."

Union Army soldiers were put on duty inside the prison, replacing civilians who had been prison guards when criminals were confined in the building and had stayed on when Confederate officers were sent there. Duke wrote: "None of us had imagined that we could welcome the presence of Federal soldiers with so much satisfaction. The difference in the tone and manner of the soldiers . . . made it a relief."

One hundred years ago this week, Confederate Brig. Gen. John Hunt Morgan of Kentucky and six of his officers, all captains, escaped from the Ohio state penitentiary at Columbus through a tunnel which let them out of the building into the prison yard. They still had to scale a wall twenty-five feet high. They had provided for that by plaiting a strong rope from strips of bed-clothes, to one end of which they attached a hook made by bending a poker.

Thrown over the wall and pulled back, the hook caught the coping; the seven men went up the rope hand-over-hand. When all were on top, the hook was transferred to the inside of the coping, the rope was let down on the outside, and they slid down. An attempt was made to shake the hook free, but it was unsuccessful. So they had to leave the rope dangling; at daylight it betrayed the fact that there had been an escape, a fact which otherwise would not have become known for two more hours.

All seven soldiers had of course been in uniform when they surrendered. All had obtained civilian clothes while in prison. Basil Duke, Morgan's brother-in-law, who was in the same prison but was not among those escaping, says in his "History of Morgan's Cavalry" that Morgan had a Little Miami Railroad time-table which had cost him $15, "the only money used in effecting his escape." A century later, nobody knows whether there was any basis for rumors in 1863 that a large sum spent bribing guards had facilitated the escape. If so, all who knew about it, on both sides, would have denied it.

Once outside, the fugitives separated, no more than two walking together, to keep from attracting attention. Morgan and Capt. Thomas H. Hines went to the railway station, bought tickets to Cincinnati and boarded a train without incident. Morgan purposely sat down beside a Union Army officer and engaged him in conversation. As the train rolled past the penitentiary, the officer pointed it out and remarked that Morgan was being kept there. The Confederate general produced a flask, offered the Union officer a drink and proposed a toast, "May he never be as closely kept as he is now."

At the edge of Cincinnati, Morgan pulled the bell rope to signal an emergency stop. He and Hines went to different platforms and applied the hand brakes. When the train slowed enough, they jumped off, walked to the Ohio River and paid a boy $2 to set them across in a skiff. In Newport they found friends, soon were riding south on good horses, headed for Confederate territory in Tennessee. They covered 28 miles that day, spent the night with friends at Union, in Boone county.

The five others who had gone over the wall also managed to get safely away from the vicinity of the prison, but Capt. Sam Taylor and Capt. Ralph Sheldon were caught four days later near Louisville. Ohio's governor offered a $5,000 reward for Morgan.

Kentucky's expanding vocational education program is a vital part of the development effort that is bringing new industry to the Bluegrass State and creating new jobs.

When an industry considers what a community has to offer, a supply of skilled workers is often an important factor. By providing well-trained workers, Kentucky's vocational education program has helped open the door to new plants in many areas of the state.

Steadily increasing enrollment in vocational training is a part of the pattern of progress in Kentucky. A statewide network of vocational schools has been expanded in the past four years and has won national recognition. This program is not only helping Kentuckians secure new and better jobs, it is also making a valuable contribution in dealing with the problem of school drop-outs.

Kentucky was one of the first states to set up area vocational schools and among the first to take advantage of federal funds for job training and re-training.

During the past school year, ending last June, a total of 101 job retraining projects were approved for Kentucky with federal aid. More than 2,600 jobless persons were enrolled in vocational training under these projects.

During the past four years, four and a half million dollars in state funds have been allocated to expand vocational education facilities. There are currently fourteen area vocational schools. Six new school buildings costing more than two and a half million dollars are planned or under construction at Ashland, Hazard, Somerset, Madisonville and in Harlan and Jefferson counties. New facilities costing $2 million have been completed for area schools at Covington, Paintsville and Paducah.

Eight extension centers, plus courses offered in high schools and in some cases at industrial plants, round out Kentucky's effective vocational education system. Plans call for construction of an additional six to eight extension centers during the next two years.

Enrollment for the first quarter of this school year showed substantial increases in all areas of the vocational education program which served almost 75,000 persons during the 1962-63 school year.

During the past school year, enrollment in fulltime courses for adults, youths who have completed high school, and high school students rose by 46 per cent. Enrollment in industrial arts courses in the area schools was up by 25 per cent during the month of September of this year.

The program's flexibility makes it possible to change curriculum to keep pace with Kentucky's expanding economy. Special courses are set up to meet the need for workers of specific skills for any new or expanding industry.

Historical Notes

John Porter of Russell county, Virginia. His wife was a lady of great kindness of heart, and strength of character.

"Six sons and six daughters were born to them, all of whom are still living but John J. Henry G., and Ventrees. The sons and daughters, without an exception, married into families of the highest respectability; and the descendants of Daniel Hager, to the third generation, maintain the reputation of their ancestors for intellectual vigor and great energy.

"Captain Elijah Patrick, of Magoffin, Captain Frank Preston, Dr. Turner, William Stafford, of Johnson, and Dr. Martin, of Ashland, are all sons-in-law of General Daniel Hager and wife—all foremost men in their community.

"Ventrees was the wife of E. W. Brown, of Morgan. She died some years ago. The sons all grew up to manhood, and entered the busy race of life; and each one of them, to this day, has never, by any wrong act, stained the fair escutcheon of the House of Hager. They all developed into wise businessmen and sterling citizens. John J. went South with the Confederate Army, and lost his life. Captain Henry G. was a merchant and steamboat owner, and died in the prime of his busy life. He left three sons, and a daughter, who reflected the image of his person and the strength of his mind. The daughter is the wife of Captain D. M. Atkinson, a prominent citizen of Salyersville. The second son, John F. Hager, is one of the most prominent lawyers of East Kentucky. He lives in Ashland, and is recognized as one of the leading men there. Milton, the younger brother is a fine business man at Salyersville, and is a man of intellectual force.

"General Hager became comparatively wealthy, and did nobly by his children, not so much in a pecuniary sense as in raising them to think and act for themselves, and to depend on their own efforts to succeed in life. He was for years a Brigadier General in the Militia, was the first sheriff of Johnson county, and served in the Legislature of the state, and in many other places of trust and honor, with great intelligence and integrity.

"When the war came upon the country in 1861, General Hager, having all his life been a Jefferson Democrat, logically took sides against the General Government, and expressed his sympathies that way. But when his own state refused to go with the South, he quietly settled down in charity to all, and awaited the result. His sons, save the oldest, were either Union men or had the good sense to follow the example first set by their state, and remained neutral.

"Daniel, the youngest son, served a term in the Union Army. Dr. Martin acted as surgeon in the same cause. Captain Reuben Patrick, another son-in-law, was active as an officer in the war. Captain Henry C. did service, also, as a carrier of supplies during the struggle.

"General Hager has always been a decided Democrat, and most of his sons follow in his footsteps, though Daniel the youngest, is a Republican. Four of his sons-in-law are Republican—Captain Patrick, Dr. Martin, Dr. Turner, and E. W. Brown.

"William Stafford and Captain Preston are Democrats; but the family never let politics destroy personal friendships.

"The Hagers are Methodists in religion, and favor all reforms calculated to raise the race to a higher plane of happiness. They are all sober, temperate people. The General and his male descendants are great masons.

"When General Hager was in middle life, he was fond of fine horses as were two friends of his, Dr. Hereford and Samuel Porter, and the trio often engaged in testing the bottom of their fast horses. Sometimes hundreds of people would be in attendance at these places of amusement; and those three determined men kept down everything like disorder, which speaks well for them and for the people who attended the early-time races.

"General Hager grows quite feeble, being now (1887) in the eighty-sixth year of his life; but he is happy in the consciousness of having faithfully discharged his duty through his long life. Death has no terrors for him. His noble wife died in 1876."

Christmas Is Sad

In Memory of A Loved One, T. Y. Martin, Who Passed Away February 1, 1960.

I have lost my life companion, A life linked to my own; And every day I miss him more As I go through life alone.

It won't be long till Christmas day, A day that used to be so good and sweet; Little did I know that one day I would be giving you a bunch of flowers Instead of a Christmas cake.

If all the world was mine to give, I would give it all and more To see the face I love so dear Come smiling through the door. I sit alone and think Of your smiling face I long to view.

Our boy is all I have to love, My treasures are so few; I hope some day to meet you, dear, Somewhere beyond the blue. In the sweet bye and bye We shall meet on that beautiful shore.

Sadly missed by his wife and son

NEW METHOD TO BE TRIED

State To Experiment With Foster Homes For Retarded "Cure"

Frankfort, Ky., Dec. 3.—The State will begin a three-year experiment aimed at "curing" certain mentally retarded children through a new environment in foster homes.

United States Representative John C. Watts announced Tuesday that Kentucky would receive an $80,357 grant for this purpose from the U. S. Children's Bureau of the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare.

The demonstration project calls for moving a selected number of children—ages 4 to 8—into foster homes fitted for special care and treatment.

Welfare Commissioner Richard Clendenen said the children chosen would be victims of "mental malnutrition or cultural blight" rather than hopeless cases with organic defects who need institutional care.

He said the demonstration will help the child whose slowness is due to the influences of an unstable and insecure home.

"All his examples are bad ones and usually his lot is squalor, both physical and mental," Clendenen said. "Usually it is not until he gets to school—if he does—that the extent of damage shows up and then it is too late."

He said the Kentucky project hopes to prove that if the child is moved early enough into favorable surroundings, the condition can be overcome.

"This cycle of mental starvation and cultural blight must be ended," Clendenen said. "We believe the 'substitute-home' program will point one way."

The program is beginning with a review of approved foster homes in the Louisville, Lexington, and Frankfort districts.

These areas were picked because of nearness to the Child Welfare Department's central staff and specialists. Also close at hand will be special teachers, speech therapists, psychiatrists, and psychologists.

About 25 children will be selected from throughout Kentucky for placement in foster homes during the first year.

The state has at least 4,500 retarded children, Clendenen said, and most probably come from substandard homes.

The studies and treatment will not be confined to the children. The commissioner said foster parents will be brought together for training and an exchange of experiences as the demonstration goes along.

In the original homes, welfare workers will keep up guidance and counseling.

"The aim is to work also for rehabilitation of the natural parents and their circumstances," Clendenen said, "so that if after five years the best plan calls for the child's return home, he will not slip back into the same influences."

The federal money will support State funds. It was authorized under a recent amendment to the Social Security Act which finances new means to attack social problems.

Surviving are one daughter, Mrs. Chaddie Dingus, of Printer; two sons, Frank Martin, Jr., of Russell, and Tom Martin, of Port Heron, Michigan, and one brother, Ex-Jailer Will Halbert, of McDowell.

HORN NOTES STAMP AID

To Three-County Area; $174,366 In Coupons Issued In November

Carl R. Horn, representative of United States Department of Agriculture, reports that approximately 19,500 persons were certified by state and local welfare agencies as eligible to participate in the food stamp program in Floyd, Knott and Perry counties last month.

The food stamp program is a new method designed to assist low-income and public-assistance families in purchasing additional foods through normal retail food channels. This not only gives the needy families a more nourishing diet, but stimulates the economic conditions in the areas.

To insure that the program actually results in increased food purchases participating families are required to purchase an amount of coupons about equal to what they had been spending for food, Horn said. The families then receive additional food coupons free of charge to help them buy more and better food.

A total of $174,366.00 worth of coupons was issued for the month of November to food stamp recipients in the three counties.

Horn said also that 627 retail and wholesale grocers are participating in the program.

All retail and wholesale grocers must be authorized by the United States Department of Agriculture before they can participate in the program. The retail grocers in turn redeem coupons through local banks or authorized wholesalers. The banks in turn pass them through the Federal Reserve System for payment at face value by the United States Department of Agriculture.

Harlan Cities Told To Hold Option Vote

The Court of Appeals ruled Tuesday that Cumberland and the City of Harlan must participate in the Harlan county local-option election December 16.

The high court said that the two cities, which protested against their inclusion, should have asked for relief in a Circuit Court from the county judge's decision. The case should not originate in the Court of Appeals, Chief Justice John Moreman said.

The high court said that under the law, when an application for a local-option vote is made, the cities within the county should take part in voting.

Cumberland is wet, Harlan dry, and the remainder of Harlan county dry.

The cities contended they did not have a sufficient number of signers on the election petitions to justify any role in the election.

PRE-SEASON TOURNEY HERE IS HIGHLIGHT

The Floyd County Pre-Season Tournament now under way in Prestonsburg's spacious field-house highlights the week's high school basketball play in the 15th region.

This 20th annual affair looms as one of the outstanding tournaments in the long history of the event, with three or four teams capable of winning.

John Campbell's Garrett black Devils, defending regional champs, are the heavy favorites in the lower bracket, while Don Wallen's Wheelwright five is the choice in the top bracket.

The Wayland Wasps, despite losing to Garrett this past Saturday night, could win the trophy, provided they get by host Prestonsburg Thursday night.

In first round play, Wednesday night, Maytown, with all-around scoring ace Bob Tallent, tangles with McDowell in the 7 p.m. opener, and in the second game of the evening Martin (3-3) vies with Wheelwright (3-0).

Thursday night in the first game at 7 p.m. Jack Wells' Prestonsburg Black Cats (2-0) battle Wayland (6-1), and in the final game of the first round Garrett (7-1) meets Betsy Layne (3-4).

Garrett's only loss has been a two-pointer to Wheelwright, while Wayland's only setback was to Garrett. The semi-finals will be held at 7 p.m. Friday night, and the consolation and championship games Saturday night.

Garrett added to its regional prestige over the past week-end as they ousted Martin, 77-57, Friday night with stellar guards, Keith Lawson and Johnny Cox, tallying 35 and 23 points, respectively. Stevie Halbert, son of Martin's veteran mentor, Denzil Halbert, was high for Martin with 14.

Then in the all-important Saturday night tussle, the Black Devils pinned the first defeat on a good Wayland club, 82-69, with Lawson and Wayland's Bronley Williams netting 32 and 31 points, respectively.

In the region's highest scoring game this season, Betsy Layne outran Maytown, 115-95, with the veteran Bob Tallent dropping in 49 points to bring back memories of the fabulous-scoring "King Kelly" Coleman. Four Bob Cat starters scored over 20 points each, with Tommy Hall and Carter King hitting 28 each, Curtis Boyd and Benny Lewis each registering 21. Betsy Layne led throughout with a 58-40 halftime margin and a 90-64 command at the start of the final period.

Meade Memorial rolled to its fifth consecutive win in dropping county rival, Oil Springs, 94-71, and Phelps upped its season's slate to 6-2 with week-end tri-

SPORTS CHATTER

By GORDON MOORE

The Eastern Kentucky Mountain Conference had three of its members named to the second and third all-state high school football teams.

Buch Greene, Hazard's senior halfback and the area's leading individual scorer, was named to the backfield on the all-state second team, and Belfry's fine center, Paul Dotson, was also named to the second team.

On the third team in the backfield was Phil Greer, Jenkins quarterback, who was one of the best in Cavalier grid history.

In the final statewide football ratings, Hazard was tabbed No. 9 in the state, followed by these teams and their rank: Jenkins 25th, Elkhorn City 52nd, Belfry 54th, Fleming-Neon 70th, Prestonsburg 118th, Wheelwright 132nd, M. C. Napier 145th.

Greer and Dotson appear headed for the University of Kentucky next season along with Paintsville's D. B. Kazee, but Hazard's Greene has shown interest in attending V.P.I., which now has six former Hazard football players on its squad.

Maytown's ace guard Bob Tallent has now scored 216 points in his first five games for a nifty 43.2 per game average, despite the fact that his team has won only one game. The agile 6-2, 185-pound, 17-year-old youth has had individual game efforts of 49, 39, 33, 42 and 42 points.

If he continues at his present pace, he will surpass Kelly Coleman's all-time individual season mark.

Four teams of the 15th region's 32 are all that remain in the undefeated basketball ranks. All are in the 58th (Floyd county) district and the 59th (Johnson-Lawrence-Martin county) district.

Meade Memorial paces the group with a 5-0 mark, followed by Wheelwright with a 3-0 slate, Prestonsburg (2-0) and Paintsville (1-0). The cage season is less than a month old.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

A VIEW OF NATIONAL TRAGEDY

Editor, The Times:

Millions of words will be written as well as spoken and millions of thoughts unspoken, throughout the nation and the world, in regard to the malicious, vicious, dastardly attack and assassination of the most distinguished official of the world, the President of the most powerful nation on earth, the United States of America. Every citizen throughout our land is grieved and saddened to the depths of their heart by this vicious act. Of course, except such kind of people as Oswald.

It has been approximately one hundred years since another martyr has gone down at the point of the gun of the lowest, corruptest kind of human being, the scum of the earth, a treacherous, worthless being, the worst that could possibly be born of man. Yet, as it is written in the most high book of all the ages, there is a time for every purpose and a time for every thing, so it be in this generation another of the most deplorable acts has to take place. And it does not stop at the life of one man. The vicious, brutal killing continues like wild men.

Of course, we are living in a far different time than the days of Lincoln. The great stage is set and the drama unfolds with worldwide effect, and our great leader is caught in the swirling tide of corruption that flows against the true American way of life.

Mr. Kennedy vainly sought peace and equality for all men, and did so in the light of our constitution, yet in his earnest endeavor he ran afoul of the evil forces against our ideals of life.

Out of bitter sacrifice and loss something is learned; something is gained in knowledge of things we never felt or knew before. First, the heartrending pang of the impact of the sudden, unthought-of tragedy, that so suddenly and sweepingly came to our leader. First, our anger against all evils of the fate. Next, the subversion of the anger being replaced with reasoning within us, then to shut out the wrong spirit to be replaced with most powerful of all, the spirit of God. In our crises we always turn to God. This in itself is one great lesson. Next, we turn to more unity and solidarity. The family may have its differences, political or otherwise. The family may have its fights and feuds, but let some outside force inflict a wrong or an injury upon one of them and see how quickly they instantly turn together upon the foe. I think we all forget God at times. Some of us longer than others. Some stray away a little way, some a long way. Yet, with some calamity hitting us, or at us, we immediately turn for help and guidance of the Lord. This is another lesson.

As is said in this writing, we are living in a far different age and circumstances than did our forefathers. Our calamities, misfortunes and oppressions are of greater magnitude. We, of course are living in a day of high speed communication and transportation, which brings the scope of the world in general to a much smaller globe than it was to man one hundred or five hundred years ago. A man could not sit in his home and hear, every second, every event taking place during some terrible disaster—all this coming through a little wooden box; or, better still, see the actual pictures of history being made right before his very eyes, even though the event is taking place many miles from him. We take all this for granted, yet it is a startling dream of our forefathers which has come to pass. We also witness through this fast communication the "great birds" bringing in the dignitaries from capitals of the world from many lands, thousands and thousands of miles in just a few hours, whereby it used to take days and days or even months. We witnessed the most heinous crime. We witnessed a martyr go down. We witnessed the swiftness of a government in action. We witnessed a fearless one take the reins of power. We witnessed the most distinguished and lavish interment in eloquent splendor. We witnessed a very great lesson from our first lady—composure, serenity and sublime endurance.

We beheld the most touching events. The graceful kneel of the first lady beside her husband's casket and the admirable kiss of the flag that covered it; even more, to see the little girl walk up, place her little hand against the flag as she stood beside her kneeling mother. And at another instance, see the little boy saluting, as if giving his father a farewell salute.

All this we witnessed is the manifestation of love, which, of course, is our most powerful element of mankind. Love will sustain us. Hatred will wreck us. This is another of the great lessons we witnessed.

The President in this instance, did not give his soldiers in battle, instead we gave our President in battle. He was going out in the cause of what he believed in. Should he have been wrong, he was still in earnest in our behalf. This is the sadness of seeing a wave and a smile turned to a shattering, blood-stained, sudden death. All this is a lesson to long remember.

We further witnessed diplomacy in action. We saw the distinguished friends of foreign lands of our late President, being received by our new President, which was superbly done, even after he had gone through three terrible, distraught days. We could see the kindness and extreme courtesies shown our visiting dignitaries, the good right arm extended in a most welcome handshake, with a smile and a good word to each of them in a very diplomatic way. This, itself, is the lesson of extended friendship. We could readily see our new man was setting the right foot forward. This lightened the days of grievance.

I am thankful to know I live in a country where we always have great men to pick up and carry the torch of freedom.

I am thankful to the broadcasting companies showing us what America really is in love, freedom, strength and endurance.

I am thankful to the editors throughout the land for so well relating this tragic event.

I appreciate the sympathy of my fellow Americans and the freedom-loving people throughout the world for the good and warm feeling toward America.

I am thankful to be an American.

When buying knives, be sure the rivets that hold them together are solid. Three rivets are a minimum for good service.

Why not give gardening friends a "living" gift for Christmas? Many nurserymen have gift certificates for roses, evergreens, shrubs, shade trees or other plants for early spring planting.

Which is the best buy, fresh or canned mushrooms? If the price of a 4-ounce can is one-third that of a pound of fresh mushrooms, they are equally good buys, USDA reports. The logic behind this: one pound of fresh whole mushrooms will yield six servings. A 4-ounce can of whole mushrooms yields two servings.

Harmon Is Speaker As Club Entertains "Daughter" Groups

"Kindness, neighborliness and sympathy for the underdog are characteristics of the American people," commented Frank E. Harmon, manager of the Floyd Federal Savings and Loan Association, Prestonsburg, speaking recently to the Lackey-Garrett-Wayland Woman's Club on "The Cultural Heritage of America." Mr. Harmon emphasized that "when we lose these characteristics it will be the beginning of the decline of our nation."

Mr. Harmon explained that Americans have a unique heritage made up of many elements. He traced the course of American history in the various sections of the nation to show what effect the different nationalities have played in developing our culture. "In no other nation is there so much opportunity given to so many people," he continued. "It is not that we have excelled in literature and art, but we have excelled in the things that bring the most good to the most people." Mr. Harmon also pointed out that "our government works the best of any government in the world."

Prior to Mr. Harmon's talk, Mrs. Richard Vinson conducted a brief devotional period on the Thanksgiving theme. She emphasized that "if we have faith in God, we have cause to rejoice." A turkey dinner was served prior to the program, which was the occasion of the Lackey-Garrett-Wayland club entertaining its daughter clubs of Wheelwright, Drift and Salyersville.

More Freight Business For Railroads Predicted In Report To Gov. Combs

Frankfort, November 29 (Spl.)—More freight business for railroads in the state was predicted in a two-year report of the Kentucky Railroad Commission submitted this week to Gov. Bert Combs.

Frank L. McCarthy, Lexington, is chairman. Other members are Wayne Freeman, Mayfield, and Robert Damron, Ivel.

Noting that "there is today little railroad passenger service available in the state," the report added that "the same is true, of course, in varying degrees in all other states."

Railroads operated 3,121 miles of track in Kentucky, as of December 31, 1962.

A total of 168 matters were handled by the Commission in the two-year period from July 1, 1962, through June 30, 1963. Five of these were pending July 1, 1963.

These include such items as discontinuance of trains, offices, stations and certain services; various complaints and applications; and changes in rates.

The Commission reported it had spent 8 per cent less for personal services and 15 per cent less in operating expenses during the last biennium.

Accidents totaled 71 during the period, 29 of these resulting in injuries to trespassers, six in injuries to employees, and 36 of these mishaps occurring at rail crossings.
