

PRESTONSBURG, KENTUCKY

SPEAKING OF AND FOR FLOYD COUNTY

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 15, 1964

This Town... That World

We'll average two letters a week and more telephone calls than that from folks wanting to correct a paragraph or so that they had sent us for publication. And still some while away at us for making a few errors while writing and setting into type thousands of words.

Well, it did frost. So we now confidently predict that it will snow.

LOOKING TO NOV. 1

About the time the fishing should be getting good at Dewey Lake, if it's going to be good, they'll begin letting the water out. I'm not ready to toss in my chips, but it does begin to look as if the cards were stacked against some of us beneath whose wishbones hope springs eternal.

OF MEN AND CATFISH

Fred Meece, who has been bringing in some nice bass trolling, almost tangled with more than he bargained for, several days back. His bomber snagged something real big, and it was 45 minutes and a gear-stripped reel later before he got the big one in the boat. His catch was a 43-inch, 39-pound catfish. And this big cat was ornier than he ordinarily would have been, because he was hooked in the tail.

Hansel Honeycutt tells of his innocent bystander the last week-end when he watched a fisherman land a 43-pound catfish—this one also caught on an artificial plug—at Watts Bar. Said the guy was 45 minutes landing the fish on an eight-pound line. Hansel wasn't so much the innocent bystander after all, come to think of it. While the angler was fighting the fish he borrowed a landing net to help out.

CROP REPORT

Heard the one about the commissar who was checking with the peasants on their potato crops? Reported the first potato he encountered:

"Under the glorious regime of our Premier our potatoes, if piled up, would reach to the feet of God."

"Wait a minute!" rasped the commissar. "It's more training you need—there is no God, as our glorious Premier has said!"

"Right," said the farmer. "And there ain't no 'aters, either." (See Story No. 1, Page 8)

GROUPS MAKE PLANS FOR STUDENT CENTER

UK RESPONSE ENCOURAGES LEADERSHIP

Community Facilities Envisioned In Building By College President

The first step toward eventual construction of a Student and Community Center on the Prestonsburg Community College campus was taken Monday night at a meeting attended at the college by University of Kentucky representatives and local leaders.

An encouraging feature of the meeting, it was said, was the interest evinced by UK representatives.

Dr. Henry A. Campbell, Jr., director of the college, said the center would provide facilities not only for students but also for the community. "And the community we envision is not restricted to Prestonsburg or Floyd county, since this college is to serve as far as it can reach."

The structure would probably house a 750-seat auditorium, physical education facilities, a cafeteria and meeting rooms.

Attending the meeting Monday, in addition to those from the University, were representatives of the college, the student body, the college advisory committee, the Big Sandy College Development Corporation, church, civic and business groups.

First of all, a survey will be made covering every present student at the college and the several communities in order to determine exactly what facilities are needed. This completed, the findings will be studied for actual planning of the building.

The next meeting will be held October 28 when Dr. Campbell will appoint a steering committee which will meet with University recreational specialists, UK students and sociologists.

January 1 has tentatively been set for completion of preliminary plans.

Floyd Regional Library Dedication Is Slated

The Floyd County Regional Library, now nearing completion, will be formally dedicated November 22, it is announced. Plans are incomplete as of this time except for the dedication date.

Kentucky's share of federal funds from the recently-enacted Public Library Services and Construction Act has been set at $539,000, State Librarian Margaret Willis has reported.

The appropriation includes $510,000 for local library construction and $29,000 for improving library service in Kentucky. Both amounts are for the current fiscal year.

Blame It On Sputnik . . .

IT'S BACK TO SCHOOL FOR FLOYD TEACHERS

Most Floyd county teachers will start back to school soon to learn arithmetic all over again.

Having learned the new approach to mathematics in this technological world, they will then discard the old textbooks and start teaching youngsters methods of calculations that are far afield from the traditional course.

It's all because of Sputnik. To oversimplify, perhaps modern technology has advanced so much in the last decade or two that the old approach to mathematical calculations is becoming inadequate.

One of the first moves in initiating the teaching of arithmetic to teachers will be an organizational meeting at Betsy Layne high school this evening (Thursday). The federal government, under authority of the National Defense Education Act, will bear half of the instruction cost, with the county board picking up the other half of the tab. The class will cost teachers nothing but they will be unable to earn any college credit for their work.

In the future, perhaps as long as four years from now, all pupils will have the new arithmetics. This delayed action results from the inability of the Floyd county school system to discard textbooks only after four years of use. For instance, arithmetics bought in 1961 cannot be discarded until next year.

Allen Named President Of Floyd County Club

Dicky Allen, of Allen, was named president of the Floyd County Club at Eastern Kentucky State College, Richmond, Tuesday evening of last week. It was the first meeting of the year for the organization.

Mavis Palmery, of Martin, was named to represent the county at the homecoming queen contest scheduled later as a feature of college activities. Allen will escort Miss Palmery at the festivities.

Other officers of the club named for the ensuing scholastic year are Carolyn Crisp, vice-president; Eddie C. Hunt, secretary; Yutonia Woods, treasurer; Brenda Sue Seal, reporter; and Charlie Conn, student council. The club is sponsored by Carl Woods.

YOUNG DEMOS MEET AT PARK SATURDAY

Seventh district Young Democrats, more than 300 of them, Saturday evening heard Ex-Governor Bert T. Combs and Congressman Carl D. Perkins commend them for their interest in the current political campaign and at the same time denounce Barry Goldwater, Republican candidate for the Presidency, as opposed to progress and to those things which are so vital to Eastern Kentucky.

They spoke at the Young Democrats' district rally held at May Lodge, Jenny Wiley State Park.

Ex-Governor Combs pointed to the radical differences in the philosophies of Barry Goldwater and President Johnson, remarking that "Rip Van Winkle was a modern thinker, compared to Goldwater." Reminded that a few Democrats in the area will vote Republican, he quipped, "Well, even the best cow in the herd will sometimes get the hollow horn."

He and other speakers referred to Congressman Perkins as "the hardest working Congressman in Washington and the most valuable man to Eastern Kentucky."

Combs called for the election of Edward P. Hill to the Appellate Court. "If you could elect Combs," he said, referring to his own successful campaign for the appellate bench, "you can elect Eddie Hill."

Judge Hill himself spoke briefly, as did County Judge Henry Stumbo, who introduced Congressman Perkins.

Glenn S. Anderson, Jr., president of the Seventh district young Democrats, presided at the rally. County Attorney Barkley J. Sturgill gave the address of wel-

To Conduct Revival

PACT OFFERS AID TO MANY Area Healthy Residents To Be Used in Program At Bethesda, Maryland

Approximately 300 officials and representatives of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) gathered at May Lodge, Jenny Wiley State Park, last Thursday for the orientation meeting of the Hill and Watts fieldmen district. Twenty-six counties were represented.

Former Circuit Judge Edward P. Hill welcomed the gathering, speaking in behalf of Treva T. Howell, member of the state ASCS committee, who could not be present.

The district represented at the orientation meeting was so named for Bernard Hill and Ruby Watts, ASC fieldmen, who introduced county representatives.

Congressman Carl D. Perkins and Charles L. Frazier, Washington, D.C., assistant deputy administrator of state and county operations, spoke at the afternoon session. Both agreed that the Kentucky ASC representation in Washington is the best in the nation.

ASCS programs were explained by Homer Youts, Kenneth Sharp, Roger Thomas, Roger Karriek and Charles Allen, program specialists. R. O. Wilson, Kentucky ASC committee chairman, discussed duties and responsibilities of committeemen.

Freeman M. Hockensmith, state committee member, addressed the gathering at the close of the afternoon session. Roundtable discussion also figured in the one-day program.

Farmers in the 26 counties represented at the meeting received last year more than $45,000. (See Story No. 2, Page 8)

REDEMPTION IS ORDERED

Fiscal Court Directs Calling of $100,000 Of Courthouse Bonds

The Floyd fiscal court at a special meeting Tuesday night adopted a resolution and order directing the redemption of $100,000 of the $342,000 courthouse bond issue at the earliest redemption date, which is December 1.

Payment of this amount, representing the only bonds callable this year, will reduce annual payments on the bonds by approximately $4,500 a year, which will mean a saving to the county of about $90,000 over the 25-year maturity span of the entire bond issue, County Attorney Barkley J. Sturgill pointed out.

The $100,000 to be paid on the bonds December 1 comes from sale of the old courthouse property to the Prestonsburg Municipal Housing Commission in its urban renewal work. The property sold for $116,250, but only $100,000 worth of the bonds are callable this year. The remaining $16,250 will be placed in a bond redemption fund, to be used only for the redemption of other bonds when callable.

Codeco Weekly Meetings To Be Resumed Oct. 21

The executive committee of the Prestonsburg Community Development Council announced this week that it will resume its regular meetings with a 12:30 p.m. meeting October 21 at the Kentucky Motel Restaurant.

MUSIC WINS COURT STAY

Auxier Water District Subject of Litigation; Expenditures Told

Appeal to circuit court by Forest Music from the September 8 county court order which established the Auxier water district resulted last week in an order by Circuit Judge Hollis Conley who directed County Judge Henry Stumbo to stay all proceedings and to transmit all the original papers in the action to circuit court.

The move for creation of a water district at Auxier was made by petition of residents there and was emphasized by a water shortage which temporarily closed the Auxier school. Judge Stumbo's order creating the district pointed out that it appeared to be "reasonably necessary for the public health, convenience, fire protection and comfort of the residents of Auxier." Water districts are formed under provisions of Kentucky Revised Statute 74.010.

Given time in which to submit a record of its expenditures toward providing an adequate water service for the community. Music reported he had spent $19,684.52, plus $8,000 borrowed on his personal note, toward a filtering plant, pumping equipment and other items necessary for a modern water distribution system.

CLUB AIDS CHILDREN

Boston Kiwanians Send Two Tons of Clothing; Distribution Planned

A Kiwanis project, "Hands Across the Districts," extended recently from Boston, Mass. (New England district) to Prestonsburg (Kentucky-Tennessee district), and it meant upwards of two tons of clothing for Floyd county schoolchildren.

"It's good clothing, too," said Judge Edward P. Hill, president of the Prestonsburg club. The shipment was placed in the hands of Mrs. Betsy Stephens for distribution to needy children attending school.

Dr. Harold Schneiderman, Boston, lieutenant-governor of Division 5W, wrote Judge Hill about plans of his district to supply this assistance, and had discussed the matter with Marvin Music, governor of the Kentucky-Tennessee district, at the Kiwanis International convention in San Francisco, earlier this year. But transportation costs hindered shipment. Finally, the Carling Brewing Company assumed the expense.

STREET JOB IS DELAYED

Martin Road Project Given Top Priority Over Street Work

Prestonsburg street-surfacing, drainage and sidewalk construction, completion of which had been predicted by the contractor for November 15, was at a standstill this week while the Adams Construction Company had its employees in Martin county completing a road project.

The work there was expected to require a week to 10 days, Mr. George P. Archer said he was told.

Street surfacing is the biggest phase of work remaining to be done. Mayor Archer said he is hoping to get the first coat of surfacing on all streets this fall, after which he will ask the contractor to wait till spring for the second. "The state srops black-top work around November 15, and I feel we'll get a better job if we follow that example and let the final coat wait till next spring."

"The first coat of surfacing will get us out of the mud," he added.

Construction of a storage building has been started on the recreation area to be developed at the upper limits of West Prestonsburg, and agreement has been reached with the Chesapeake & Ohio Railway Company on a long-term lease of six acres of its adjacent property. This makes available 28 acres of land for development.

Mayor Archer said the State Department of Highways has agreed to construct a road into the area to be developed.

Rapid development of the area may not be expected, Archer said, because of a lack of money. Materials from the old courthouse will be used in construction of the building and terrazzo floors of the building are being salvaged for use in construction of a picnic shelter at the recreation area.

Perkins, Frazier Speak At Orientation Session; 26 Counties Attend

SEWAGE PLANT JOB DRAWS ATTENTION

Wells Is Commended For Test Performance

Woodrow Allen, principal of Prestonsburg high school, has announced that Lawrence R. Wells, high school senior here, has been honored with a Letter of Commendation for his high performance in the National Merit Scholarship qualifying test given last spring.

He is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Jeff B. Wells, of Auxier, and plans to enter the Prestonsburg Community College to study pre-engineering.

John M. Stalnaker, president of the National Merit Scholarship Corporation, said:

"Letters of Commendation are being awarded to 39,000 students throughout the country in recognition of their outstanding performance on the qualifying test. We wish to call attention in this way to their high academic achievement."

"Although they did not reach the status of semifinalists in the current Merit Program, they are very capable students. The semifinalists and commended students together constitute about 2 percent of all high school seniors. This certainly signifies noteworthy accomplishment by all these bright young people."

LITIGANTS WIN SUITS

Williams Heirs Given $52,350 at Pikeville; Mrs. Purdy Gets Less

Federal district court juries last week rendered verdicts which gave owners of two tracts of land condemned for the Prestonsburg-Pointsville airport approximately $30,000 more than the value at which the land was appraised.

The Williams heirs, residents of Virginia, were allowed $52,350; Mrs. Sylvia Purdy, of Ohio, former of Prestonsburg, was given $19,375.

But the amount granted Mrs. Purdy is approximately $9,000 less than the offer made by the airport board, thus making the Williams heirs the big winners in the federal court action.

The cases were heard in U. S. district court at Pikeville. Four other condemnation cases remain to be heard in the Johnson circuit court. In these the airport board is the plaintiff, with Henry Burke, Polk Auxier, John E. Auxier and Mrs. Douglas Galbraith the defendants. Trial of these cases has been set for January.

Burl Spurlock, chairman of the airport board, said the federal court verdicts may be appealed. Joe Hobson, attorney for the defendants, said there is legal authority for the winners of the federal court cases, or other future winners of these condemnation cases, to sue the cities of Prestonsburg and Pointsville and force the two municipalities to levy a tax to pay the bill if the airport board does not pay.

ARCHER ASKS EXPLANATION BY PLANNERS

Municipal Authorities Take Watchful-Waiting Attitude Toward Job

Official Prestonsburg is marking time, waiting to see how the new sewer system and sewage disposal plant will work, and is admittedly not satisfied with the performance of either to date.

Mayor George P. Archer expressed some of this dissatisfaction this week, saying he had instructed the city treasurer not to pay Bell Engineers "another cent" until matters are explained to the city's satisfaction.

One of the points on which criticism is most often heard is the odor at the sewage disposal plant, which is in the vicinity of the new Prestonsburg Community College.

The plant installed there, city authorities and University of Kentucky representatives, were assured, is of a type which, except for two short periods a year, is odor-free. Areas around such plants, it was said, are often used as city parks or playgrounds, because they are so devoid of objectionable odor.

But that happy condition, it is pointed out, has not yet been reached at the plant. The odor is there, and it spreads, particularly when the fog hangs low or the wind picks up.

When bacterial action has been established in sewage at the plant, the objectionable features will be eliminated, officials have been told. And so they are waiting to see—or smell.

GUILTY PLEA IS ENTERED

Smallwood Sentenced To 30 Days, Fined $20 On Each of 2 Charges

Jake Smallwood, of McDowell, one of four persons arrested in liquor raids staged September 12, appeared before County Judge Henry Stumbo Tuesday and entered pleas of guilty to charges of possessing intoxicants for the purpose of sale and of selling intoxicants.

He was fined $20 and costs on each count and sentenced to jail for two 30-day terms. Peace bond for a period of 12 months also was required.

Stumbo said Mrs. Ercel Tackett, who promised to return here, Tuesday of last week, to enter a guilty plea, has not shown up. The Mud Creek woman, one of eight arrested by raiders October 3, appeared before Judge Stumbo to plead guilty, bringing her baby with her. When told that she would have to go to jail, she told Stumbo she would take the baby home and return later in the day to make her plea.

First Kentucky "Anti-Poverty" Funds Sought

MAKING HISTORY—"This is historic," Governor Edward T. Breathitt said as he signed his approval to the first application from a Kentucky county for Federal funds under the Economic Opportunity Act of 1964 (the Anti-Poverty Bill). The application for $210,993 was submitted by Leslie County with a proposal to provide jobs for underprivileged students on various conservation, recreation, and general public-interest projects in the county. Also signing are (from left) E. L. Ehresman, president of the Leslie County Development Association, and Leslie County Judge George Wooten. Why Kentuckians Need PRESIDENT JOHNSON In the White House

IN THIS ELECTION THE ISSUES ARE CLEAR CUT.
BOTH CANDIDATES HAVE GONE ON RECORD

WITH PUBLIC STATEMENTS AND PUBLIC
ACTIONS. LET THE RECORD SPEAK for ITSELF!

HERE IS WHERE THE TWO CANDIDATES STAND

THE WAR ON POVERTY

PRESIDENT JOHNSON:

"This administration declares unconditional war on poverty. Our aim is not only to relieve its symptoms . . . but to cure and prevent it."
The Economic Opportunity bill which will stimulate the economy of Kentucky has had President Johnson's all-out support.

GOLDWATER:

"Government must withdraw from social welfare programs."
"Let welfare be a private concern."
"$2,000 annual income permits reasonably handsome living."
Senator Goldwater has vigorously opposed and continues to oppose the War on Poverty.

OUR SCHOOLS...OUR YOUTH

PRESIDENT JOHNSON:

"Our objective should be . . . an education for every child to the limit of his ability."
President Johnson has consistently supported aid to education, and youth programs.

GOLDWATER:

"I do not believe we have an education problem."
Senator Goldwater has voted against legislation for education 11 times, including assistance for veterans. He referred to the Youth Employment bill as "a sham."

NATURAL RESOURCES AND POWER

PRESIDENT JOHNSON:

As Senator and President, he has strongly supported TVA and rural electrification. In his acceptance speech he repudiated "policies which threaten to undo all that we have done together."

GOLDWATER:

"We ought to sell TVA."
"The time has come to dissolve the Rural Electrification Agency."
"Rural Electrics have outlived their usefulness."

SOCIAL SECURITY

PRESIDENT JOHNSON:

"Every American family will benefit by the extension of Social Security."
"Those who sit in affluence . . . must not neglect the needs of their neighbors."

GOLDWATER:

"Social Security has been weakening individual personality and self reliance."
"Let welfare be a private concern."
"Chiselers" is the word Goldwater has used to describe welfare recipients.

KEEPING THE PEACE

PRESIDENT JOHNSON:

"No single act of mine is going to be in the direction of provoking war."
"Let us reason together."
"Our military power has never been more powerful. We are strong enough to win any war . . . wise enough to prevent one."

GOLDWATER:

"I would put nuclear weapons in the hands of local commanders of NATO."
"Send in the Marines."
"I think that a general war is probable—I don't see how it can be avoided."

LABOR AND WAGES

PRESIDENT JOHNSON:

"Most Americans want a job for every man who wants to work . . . a continuing and growing prosperity—and so do I."

GOLDWATER:

"The only way business can survive is . . . (by) cutting employees."
"I'm against . . . minimum wage."
"Labor unions seriously compromise American freedom."

TAXES AND TAX REDUCTION

PRESIDENT JOHNSON:

"We passed the largest tax cut in history."
"I pledge a progressive administration which is efficient, honest and frugal."

GOLDWATER:

He opposed and voted against the Johnson tax cut. He also opposes the graduated income tax . . . believes "a man with five million a year should pay the same rate as a man with five thousand."

HELPING KENTUCKY FARMERS

PRESIDENT JOHNSON:

"They (farmers) should receive prices that will bring a reasonable return on investments and their labors."
With tobacco representing 40% of Kentucky's total farm cash income, President Johnson's support of fair prices for this commodity is vitally important to the state economy.

GOLDWATER:

"I would get rid of the Agricultural Act."
"And if farmers find they are not getting high enough prices, some of them will move into other kinds of activities."
Goldwater has continuously favored the repeal of price supports for farm products.

Congressman Perkins At His Strongest

The Times does not make this statement with any thought of minimizing the merits of his opponent, but the plain truth of the matter is that the opposition to Congressman Carl D. Perkins this year is facing an uphill battle that is more uphill than usual.

He seeks to unseat the present Congressman at a time when the incumbent is at the height of his popularity and during a campaign when warring or dissident factions of the Democratic party are at peace, at least for the moment, while they battle in common cause.

Congressman Perkins' popularity is well deserved. He won it on his own, by hard work and by dedication to his job and the people he was elected to serve. His recent achievements as a leader in the fight for education, particularly in the field of vocational training, have earned for him national recognition. His reputation as the hardest worker in the Congress, as one who does not shrink from becoming involved with the interests and needs of the people and the communities back home, and as a representative who will literally "go to bat" for the people—these qualities have won for him and hold for him at this time support from many who in other years were not his political friends or who were forthrightly opposed to him.

We believe Carl Perkins will lead his ticket in the district. Certainly he deserves such a vote of appreciation and confidence.

SOCIAL SECURITY QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Our questions this week pertain to earnings received after a person starts to receive a social security check.

A man from Paintsville, inquired:

Q. I am ready to apply for social security benefits. My wife is still too young to receive here and she is working and earning $3,600 a year. Do her earnings affect my benefits?

A. No. Only your own earnings can affect your benefits. You may earn up to $1,200 yearly and still receive all of your social security checks.

From Belfry, came the following question:

Q. I am completely retired and receive social security. I also get a VA pension, and interest from my savings in the bank. Do my VA payments and interest income count as earnings?

A. No. Your VA pension and interest income from savings do not count as earnings in figuring your total yearly earnings. You count wages you earn from work as an employee and any earnings from self-employment. For specific information about what is considered wages and self-employment earnings, get in touch with your social security office.

A man from Hendricks, Ky., has asked:

Q. My wife and I both receive social security benefits on my account. She doesn't work but I do. I understand that each of us is entitled to earn up to $1,200 a year and still get all our social security benefits. Since she doesn't work, does that mean that I can take the $1,200 she is allowed to earn and add it to mine so that I can earn $2,400 a year and still get all our benefits?

A. No. Each beneficiary can earn up to $1,200 a year while receiving social security benefits but the $1,200 allowance cannot be combined.

Beneficiary from Hurley, West Virginia, inquired:

Q. I have been told that a person can earn all he wants to earn after he is age 72. Is this true?

A. Yes. However, his total yearly earnings during the year of his 72nd birthday can affect any benefits he may be entitled to receive for the months before his 72nd birthday. For more specific details about how this works visit either your social security office or the representative who comes to your area.

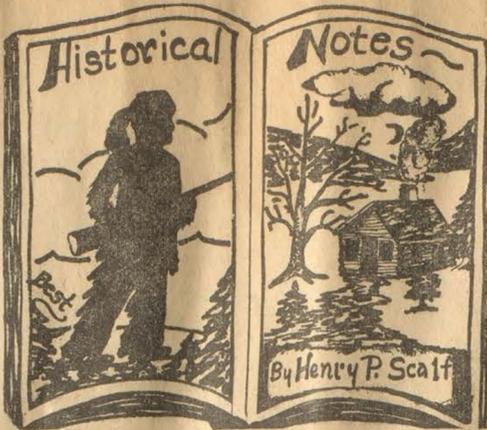

From Pikeville a beneficiary asked:

Q. I receive social security benefits. I work for a church and the wages of employees there are not covered by social security. Since these wages are not covered, do I have to count them as earnings in figuring whether I earn more than $1,200 this year?

A. Yes, all wages and income from employees' work are counted even when the work is not covered. Visit your social security office if you have further questions about how your work affects your benefits.

From Grundy, Virginia, the following inquiry:

If you have questions the staff at your social security district office in Pikeville, Kentucky, will be glad to assist you; or, if it is more convenient for you, our representative is in the Employment Office in Prestonsburg, Kentucky, every Tuesday.

Kentucky Families

A letter from Mrs. Gordon M. Deen, 259 Tungsten, Henderson, Nevada, asks about four Kentucky families.

She writes: "Abraham Batterton, my great-grandfather, was born in Virginia about 1775 and married Susannah Henline, Feb. 16, 1804. She was from South Carolina. They both died in Madison County, Kentucky.

"His was a tragic death from violence by the hands of Carpet Bagger (Regulators?), Feb. 16, 1858. It has been told that he knew they were coming and he ran into the orchard where he buried his life savings. Before he could get back into the house he was slain.

"It could have been his son Andrew J., born 1818, in Madison County, Ky., who married Beth Ann Christopher, August 27, 1847. After her death he married Mary Jane King.

"I would like to contact anyone with the surnames of Christopher, Batterton, King or Henline."

O'Hair and Miller

Another letter from Nevada is an inquiry on the O'Hair family of Eastern Kentucky. It is from Mrs. Charles Cummings, 2337 Las Vegas Blvd., No. 56, North Las Vegas, Nevada.

"I would appreciate corresponding with any of your readers having any information on Michael O'Hair and his families. I have found:

(1) Michael O'Hair and wife, Botetourt county, Virginia, with children, Michael, 1774, John, 1778, Jess, 1780, and Eisberry, 1782.

(2) Michael O'Hair and wife, Elenor Hawkins, married 1783 in Botetourt county, Virginia. Children were Thomas, 1785, Sally, 1787, Betsy, 1789, and Kathy, 1792.

(3) Michael O'Hair and Elizabeth Tribbett, married 1793, with 11 children, in Wolfe county, Kentucky.

"I understand No. 2 and No. 3 are the same person but how about No. 1? Did my Michael O'Hair have three wives or are there two different Michael O'Hairs? Anyone having any information, please contact me."

Mrs. Cummings sends a genealogical sheet on the James Miller family. He married Sarah O'Hair, daughter of Michael O'Hair, Dec. 21, 1809, in Montgomery county, Kentucky. Mrs. Miller was born in Botetourt county, Virginia. She died in Edgar county, Illinois, in 1875. The James Miller family were pioneer settlers of Illinois. They had ten children, all born at Hazel Green, Kentucky.

Sons and daughters of James and Sarah Miller were Daniel Miller, born 1810; Robert Miller; Martha Ann (Patsy) Miller, born Dec. 20, 1814, married Isaac Edge, died Oct. 9, 1869; William Miller; Betsy Miller, married James Nickell; Eliza Miller, married a Mr. Porter; Evaline Miller; Silby Miller; James Miller, born 1825, married Cordelia Sims, 1857, died 1905; and Mary Ellen Miller, married Sims.

Sarah O'Hair on the chart must be the Sally O'Hair, born 1787, on the list in the letter. Sarah or Sally was a daughter of Michael O'Hair and Elenor Hawkins.

Michael O'Hair, according to meager records was born in Ireland, September 11, 1749. He died in Kentucky in 1813. He probably came to America with his parents at the age of eight years. For many years he resided in Virginia.

He was probably married three times, although genealogists of the family are uncertain. His first wife's name is unknown. Their children were as Mrs. Cummings states. He served through the critical period of the Revolutionary War in a Virginia regiment.

In 1784 O'Hair is noted as a taxpayer in Botetourt county, Virginia. His wife is now Elenor or Elinor Hawkins. They had four children.

His second wife died and Michael married April 4, 1793, Elizabeth Tribbett in Montgomery county, near Mt. Sterling. Michael and Elizabeth did not

MAKING THE HONOR ROLL

The old school bell is ringing again, and kids by the hundreds of thousands are flocking back—some reluctantly, others gladly—to the classroom. All told, the U. S. Office of Education says there will be more than 82 million Americans in schools and colleges this September.

A grade school principal recently said, "I get all kinds of calls from anxious parents, wondering why their children don't make better grades or why they're not in superior classes. But not a single father or mother has inquired how his boy or girl is learning to get along with the other children."

He went on to explain that the happiness of children twenty years from now will depend not so much on grades, but how they learn to adjust. This will pay off in happy marriages and congenial working relationships with others.

My friend was not discrediting good grades—far from it. He was merely saying that making the honor roll every six weeks is not the only purpose of an education. A fellow who has never finished the third grade can throw a hand grenade and kill a couple of persons. With a good education, he may develop a missile that can kill two million.

As our population grows and rapid transportation shrinks the world, it becomes increasingly important that we learn how to live together. This, too, is education. Basically, it is also the heart of religion.

PUPIL ENROLLMENT DECLINES IN FLOYD

Enrollment of first grade pupils in the Floyd county school system has been declining slowly but steadily for 12 years, it is noted by figures compiled by Herbert Prater, director of pupil personnel. In 1952, 2,415 first grade pupils enrolled. This year the number dropped to 1,195.

Contrasting this declining enrollment on the first grade level is the number of high school graduates. In 1952, 361 students were graduated but last year the number had risen to 536. This occurred despite the gradual lowering of the number of children in the school census. In 1952, 14,941 pupils were in the census. This year there are 12,683 pupils.

Prater, in commenting on the rise in high school graduates, said that this was indicative of the holding power of Floyd county high schools. The department of pupil personnel has concentrated for some time on the problem of retarding high school dropouts and the figures reflect that this was having a salutary effect. Contrasting the two years, 1952 and 1963, there were 476 high school graduates. Last year there were 110 more, or 586.

School enrollment figures reflect changing population trends and the last two censuses show the downward slide of as Floyd county residents. In 1950 the population was 53,500. By the time of the next decennial count it was down to 41,642 persons. A study by the University of Kentucky released for the year 1962, showed Floyd county's population as little over 30,000. The report of the University said it was calculated that approximately 1,600 persons were leaving annually.

Observers think now that the Floyd county population loss may have been stopped or that there even may have been a slight gain. However, school population figures do not bear this out as yet but may do so next year.

Twenty-two years ago the total school census of the county was 17,158. In the decade ending in 1952 the figure had dropped to 14,941. This year it is down to 12,683, based on figures as of September 30.

AMERICA'S FIVE MOST FAMOUS WILD FLOWERS

America's five most famous wild flowers are: The fringed gentian, trailing arbutus, the moccasin or pink orchid, the red loachla, also called cardinal flower, and the Black-Eyed Susan. Two of these, the fringed gentian and trailing arbutus, have played great roles in the early literature and history of America. The fringed gentian, long regarded as one of the ten most beautiful wildflowers of the world, so enraptured our first great American poet, William Cullen Bryant, he would spend long hours walking the New England countryside, worshipping at the shrine of its beauty. His admiration of this flower inspired him to write the famous poem: "To a Fringed Gentian," which made this flower immortal.

All five of these wildflowers belong in different flower families, and three of them are very hard to transplant and grow. It is almost impossible to transplant the trailing arbutus with any degree of success, as it prefers light, sandy soil saturated with the acid from decaying pine needles, where it thrives best.

The fringed gentian (western species) has been for over thirty years, the official flower of the Yellowstone National Park. It is a member of the Gentian family (Gentianaceae), and grows about two or three feet high. The plant stalk puts out several branches and on the end of each appears the lavender-blue four-petaled flowers, and around each petal there is a fringed border, which enhances its beauty and gives it the look of having been designed by some expert outdoor decorator. The petals form a bell-shaped tube. This flower blooms late in the season, September and October, and glorifies the countryside as no other flower does. But it is one of the most unpredictable wild flowers. One season it may appear abundantly in a given region, and the next season it will completely disappear. It is feared that this beautiful wildflower is disappearing in many regions, where it formerly flourished. It seems the wind-borne seeds sometimes all blow away in late fall winds and completely disappear in a single season. Wherever the fringed gentian is found today, there are often signs erected, urging people not to pluck any of its blooms. The seeds of fringed gentian must be kept moist all the time, or they won't germinate; all of which makes it exceedingly difficult to grow it in any wildflower garden.

The fringed gentian was once abundant on a few farms in Greenbrier county, West Virginia, but it has now completely disappeared from West Virginia. Flora, according to Dr. Earl L. Core.

The trailing arbutus belongs to the Heath Family; its botanical name, Epigaea repens, means to trail along on the ground. Its leathery leaves resist winter's severe cold and remain partly green all winter.

The trailing arbutus is the state flower of Massachusetts, and played a part in the early history of the Plymouth colony. The Pilgrims had almost given up hope of establishing a successful colony in the New World, after their first hard winter there had brought about the death of over half the colonists, as well as the governor, John Carver. Their number so reduced by starvation and death, as soon as the long winter broke, the remaining Pilgrims were so out of heart, they planned to quit the bleak New England shores and sail back to their native land. But one day, just as the winter snows were melting in the first warm spring sun, one of the Pilgrims found the pink and white blooms of trailing arbutus smiling up at him from the melting snows. This old settler called to the others to come and see this beautiful flower that was bravely defying the cold and giving the land new hope of another spring. The Pilgrim fathers fell on their knees and looked at the flowers and smelled at the sweet perfume. They gave thanks to God and named the plant, "Mayflower" in honor of their ship, and regarded the flower as a sign from God that they should take new courage and remain in the land. Time has shown that this brave wildflower inspired the Pilgrim fathers aright. The trailing arbutus, abundant on high, dry south-facing slopes of our mountains, is among the first wildflowers to usher in the spring. It is often found growing under clumps of pitch pines. The blooms are waxy, white or pink, very fragrant. They grow in large clusters on the rusty haired stems of the vines. I have often scratched the blooms out from under the old winter leaves covered with melting snow.

The Black-Eyed Susan, more widespread than either of the above, belongs to the Daisy, or Composite Family, and is in the genus, Rudbeckia, which includes the coneflowers. It is the state flower of Maryland, and has been the subject of many songs and poems. The petals, called "rays" by botanists, are a brilliant orange-yellow, about 12 in number, and they form a crown about the central cone, or disk; as this cone matures, it turns from brown to black and this gives the wildflower one common name of "niggerhead." This flower forms large clumps in old clearings and fields along roadsides, and blooms in early summer, and is usually at its best around July 4th. The stalks are densely hairy. The dark cone in the center of the flower gives it the common name of "Black-Eyed Susan."

WILEY, HARMAN MARKERS TO BE DEDICATED SUNDAY

Historical markers honoring Jenny Wiley and Mathias Harman, Kentucky - Virginia border pioneers during the years immediately following the Revolutionary War, will be dedicated Sunday at Combs Airport in Blockhouse Bottom, where Harman's Station once stood.

The Kentucky Highway Department, the Kentucky Historical Society, and the Johnson County Historical Society are cooperating in the effort to honor the most widely known Eastern Kentucky pioneers.

The markers are of special interest to Eastern Kentucky and Southwest Virginia. At the time the band of eleven Indians captured Jenny Wiley, she and her husband Thomas Wiley and their four children lived on Walker's Creek, in the present Blaine county, Virginia. The frontier scout, Mathias Harman, lived on the same creek, about a mile from the Wiley cabin.

Thomas Wiley, a native of Ireland, married Jenny Sellards, daughter of Hezekiah Sellards, in 1779. He purchased a site for a cabin home from his good friend, Mathias Harman. The Wileys and their four children and Jenny's 15-year-old brother lived in the cabin when the savages attacked, some eight years after the couple started house-keeping. The Indians killed and scalped the three older Wiley children and Jenny's brother. Following the massacre, the Indians burned the cabin. Jenny and her youngest child, an infant of about 15 months, and the family dog were taken by the savages from the Walker's Creek settlement, over Brushy Mountain, down the dividing ridge between the Tug and Guyandotte Rivers, across the and Levisa Forks down the west side of the latter stream to the Ohio River, then westward along the south bank of the Ohio to the mouth of Little Sandy River, their intention to take her to the Indian town at Chillicothe was thwarted by the flooding Ohio, which was too high to cross.

In the meantime, Mathias Harman had organized a party to follow the Indians and attempt the rescue of Jenny. The rescue party followed the Indians to the crossing of the Big Sandy River, south of the present Latisa, before giving up the attempt. Harman and his party then returned up the river to the mouth of John's Creek, where frontiersmen had built a hunting lodge as early as 1755.

Plans had almost been completed for a settlement in Eastern Kentucky when the Indians raided the Wiley home before

Mathias Harman led the rescue party from Walker's Creek, he selected his brother, Henry Harman, Sr., to lead the settlement party to the mouth of John's Creek. Since the settlement party could not travel rapidly, Mathias Harman's rescue party reached the settlement site several days before his brother's. And while the Indians held Jenny Wiley captive, Harman's Station, the first settlement in Eastern Kentucky, was established.

The Indians, not being able to cross the flooding Ohio, took their captive up Little Sandy River, crossed the dividing ridge to the valley of the Cherokee Fork of Big Blaine Creek, where they spent a good portion of the winter.

From Cherokee Fork, they went to Little Mudlick Creek, in the present Johnson County, from where, after spending the summer, Jenny escaped to the newly-founded Harman's Station, some 15 miles distant. Mathias Harman and his frontier associates accompanied Jenny back to the Virginia settlement.

Thomas and Jenny Wiley lived in Blaine county, Virginia, for about twelve years. Then, about 1800, they moved to the present community of River, Johnson county, where they spent the remainder of their lives, Thomas dying in 1810, Jenny in 1831. Their descendants in Kentucky and West Virginia are in the thousands.

Descendants of the pioneer Wileys and Harmans will take part in the dedication. Attorney J. N. Harman, III, will discuss his pioneer relative, Mathias Harman.

Edward R. Hazelett, president of the Johnson County Historical Society, has invited all those interested in Big Sandy history to attend. The History Club at Meade Memorial high school is helping with the dedication.

- Twenty-one new classrooms added to older school buildings.
- 15 old classroom completely renovated in old buildings.
- A new vocation school at Garth where two hundred boys are trained each day.
- Construction already started on 22-room Wheelwright Elementary school.
- Sanitary sewage disposal plants provided at Betsy Layne, Wheelwright, McDowell, Clark Elementary and Harold.
- Rural school lunchroom program providing 223,000 lunches last year.
- Provided two teachers to visit homes for classes for physically handicapped children.
- Ten new contract buses and seven additional buses to improve transportation.
- Adult Education program providing training for over 200 adults.
- Seventy percent increase in salaries to best qualified teaching staff in Eastern Kentucky.
- Percentage of attendance increased to point where we gained 32,375 school child days in attendance.
- Driver training added to seven high schools.

After over a year of sunnity and bickering all concerned agreed that the school children deserved these goodings which come from working together. If all these improvements came through cooperation during a short period of three years just imagine how far we could travel educationally during the next three or four years.

John M. Stumbo, Bill Blair and Ross Cooley have been a very important part of the team during this period of very great improvement. We therefore wish to urge all citizens of Floyd County to rally around, vote for, and support Stumbo, Blair and Cooley in their efforts to be re-elected to the Board. Superintendent Clark was given a new four-year contract starting July 1, 1964. Let's keep the action team together so that the Great Move Forward will not grind to a sudden stop. One anti could stop the whole program. OUR CHILDREN ARE REALLY WORTH THE EFFORT.

SPORTS AFIELD

By TED KESTING

The first lesson in the field should consist of allowing the young dog to do as he pleases. If he has been brought up in a kennel, almost everything will be strange to him, and care must be taken to prevent him from becoming frightened. He should not be forcibly led up to any object toward which he shows fear, but the trainer should attempt to impart confidence to him and allow him to find things out in a natural way. He should not be allowed to get into mischief or injure himself, however, for a bold puppy is a trusting individual, and once his confidence is shattered, much harm is done.

Every effort should be made to encourage him to hunt, although no attempt to force him to do so should be commenced. He may show no inclination to hunt at all on his first few trips afield and merely be content to trot along beside you. Do not be too discouraged unless he continues to be uninterested over an extended period in which he has been given numerous opportunities. "A young field dog possesses an investigative nature, and this should be allowed to develop naturally," recommends Henry P. Davis, Sporting Dogs Editor of Sports Afield Magazine. The instinct to hunt is highly developed in some dogs at a very early age. Others are slower to start, so the trainer should not become dismayed if his charge shows little interest in finding things out for himself the first trip afield. If the puppy is particularly tardy in this respect, an older dog should be taken along for training by example.

The best way to encourage a young dog to hunt is to hunt yourself. He believes that what you do is the proper thing for him to do. If you adopt an indifferent, careless manner in your trips afield and dodge the difficult cover, he will be inclined to take his cut from your actions. But if by your actions you show him you are seriously interested in the job at hand, he will be more likely to settle to his work in a businesslike manner. And this applies not only to field training but to everything you try to teach him.

HAZE, GREAT SILENCES MARK AUTUMN SEASON

By Neville Shackelford
(In The Lexington Leader)

Autumn, which began a few days ago, is a time of haze and great silences. This does not mean there are no sounds and maybe it would be more accurate to say "periods of great silence." In spring and summer, for hour or hour, in daylight and in darkness, the air is strident with the hum and whir and buzz of cicadas, grasshoppers and bees; the shrill twitter, honks and croak of birds and frogs, and the barking of squirrels and foxes. In winter there is the sound and fury of the incessant wind. In these three seasons there is scarce a silent moment, but in autumn there are natural hushes. Even in the lively woods where green leaves, loosening their hold on twigs of the upper story, reel and sway to the ground with scarcely a lip to mark their descent.

Although there are natural hushes in autumn woods, these sounds are subdued. The swift, joyous note of a spring woodpecker on a dry limb gives way to a low, measured peck, peck, peck for unlike in spring, the woodpecker isn't making noise for the sake of noise or in hopes of a nut. The sound results from its tire efforts to overcome the resistance of a hickorynut. Although a woodpecker has never been known to crack a walnut or hickorynut by its own efforts, members of this clan never stop trying—an endeavor that casts some doubt upon the intelligence of the whole group.

In autumn nights, as in autumn days, the sounds of nature are mostly quiet and subdued. At a time after dusk falls and the sun goes down, katydids and the cricket chirp. Then as the temperature drops, they cease and all is still until the ghostly owl starts cackling in un-holy glee and starts foxes barking on woodland slopes and sets of yelping in neighboring farms. Then all settles down and for a long spell there is deep silence until midnight when whoosters awake and crow and until dawn when Carolina wrens begin to sing. Speculating with a friend on this phenomena of autumn silences, he hazarded a guess they resulted from the reverence of soundmakers of nature for kindred things that were dying — flowers of the meadow, cornstalks on the hill, and katydids in the treetops. These will come again, of course, but not the same flowers or the same cornstalk or the same katydid. Not such a happy subject for contemplation because it brings to mind the painful awareness of the swift passing of our own existence and a time when silence will be not seasonal, but eternal.

Up bright and early the other morning — at the "crack of dawn," as the old folks used to say when the job of making a living required every minute of daylight — I heard a Carolina wren, a year around resident, singing in high jubilation from the top limb of one of my old apple trees. With the austerity of winter immediately impending; when spiders and other insects this little troglodite loves to eat will be hard to find, I wondered why it was so happy. Just one of those anomalies of nature, I reckon—something beyond human kind.

In the face of coming adversity, the happy song of the wren, which sounded like somebody saying "teakettle, teakettle, teakettle," right fast, caused me to compare human life with wren bird life. This comparison provoked the thought that perhaps the wren had the best of it.

BOXELDER BUGS

These are small bright red bugs. They usually congregate on trunks of boxelder trees but in cold weather will try to get into residences. Use the 45 percent strength emulsifiable concentrate of Chlordane, one-half cup for each gallon of spray water, for outside treatments on tree trunks or window sills. Inside, use the pyrethrin aerosol bombs. Best control of these pests is in the spring, with DDT or Malathion, Miller says, applied to tree foliage.

100 YEARS AGO THIS WEEK

The Civil War in Kentucky
By JOE JORDAN
(Kentucky Civil War Commission)

One hundred years ago this week, an officer of Maj. Gen. Nathan Bedford Forrest's Confederate cavalry corps addressed a letter to Maj. Gen. Stephen G. Burbridge, the Union Army's military governor of Kentucky, threatening six-for-one reprisals if Burbridge thereafter retaliated for guerrilla outrages by ordering the killing of Confederate soldiers who were prisoners of war.

Capt. W. H. Harrison dated the letter "Headquarters Confederate States Army, Department of Kentucky," but did not state the geographical location. It could have been Ft. Heiman, on the Tennessee River in southern Calloway county, which Forrest held at that time. "I have heard with pain and regret," he wrote, "that you have thought proper to have two Confederate soldiers shot, for depredations committed by bands of guerrillas—who prowled through the state, depredating alike upon friend or foe... If Confederate soldiers are hereafter shot for acts of guerrillas and thieves, retaliation will be visited six-fold upon any Federal soldiers who may be taken prisoners by this command... I indulge the hope that it will not be necessary for this command to adopt the retaliatory measures your cruelty and inhumanity suggest."

Burbridge was widely unpopular, even among the Union men of Kentucky, and there must have been a great deal of disappointment that he was not on a Kentucky Central train that was captured nine miles north of Lexington during the same week by men who said they acted on a tip that he would be on board. Some said the band of thirty men was a guerrilla outfit; others said it was a detachment of Confederate cavalry.

"Passengers were not robbed and were permitted to remove their baggage before the baggage car was burned," said a story in the Lexington Observer and Reporter. "A number of our citizens were on the train, none of whom were maltreated. Some of the band recognized Mr. Hiram Shaw, Sr., and carried him off a short distance with the intention, they declared, of shooting him, but they were dissuaded from their murderous purpose by the ladies who were present, and he was released with the other passengers, all of whom were allowed to leave in any direction they saw proper." About $1,200 was taken from an express-company safe on the train.

During the week under review forty guerrillas captured Irvine, Estill county, and plundered the town after releasing four prisoners from jail and then burning the jail. On the same day, another gang robbed citizens of Bethel, Bath county, and whipped the county judge with a strap. In Meade county, twenty-two guerrillas plundered the town of Brandenburg. These three attacks all took place on October 13. Two days later a gang that attacked Hardinsburg in Breckinridge county was driven off by the citizens and the guerrilla leader was killed.

Radio WPRT Increases Power to 5,000 Watts

Radio Station WPRT, Prestonsburg, which had been operating on 1,000-watt coverage for several years, increased its power to 5,000 watts Friday, according to David Stephens, manager. The station went on the air at 1:15 p.m. with the new coverage, he said.

Authority for the increased power was granted by the Federal Communications Commission, Washington, D.C., a few weeks ago.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

CORRECTS MORGAN ACCOUNT

Editor, The Times:

In your September 24 edition, page 5, you ran an article on the death of General John Hunt Morgan captioned, "100 Years Ago This Week, The Civil War in Kentucky."

Mr. Joe Jordan, the author, quoted liberally from General Basil Duke's splendid History of Morgan's Cavalry. While we do not want to take anything from the gallant Duke, the romantic version of Morgan's betrayal supposedly by young Mrs. Williams has, in the opinion of some great historians, been discredited. Cecil Fletcher Holland in his book, Morgan and His Raiders, published in 1942 by the Macmillan Company, page 347 says "actually there was no betrayal. The younger Mrs. Williams left Greenville before Morgan arrived, and returned the following day without knowing he had been killed." A few days after Morgan's death the newspapers published the report that he had been betrayed to the Federals by a woman. On September 3, 1864, The Abingdon Virginian stated "Young Mrs. Williams (daughter-in-law of the lady at whose house Morgan had his headquarters) disappeared and as she returned with the enemy she had ridden all the way to Bull's Gap, and had given information of Morgan's whereabouts and strength of the guard."

This version was accepted by Harper's Weekly, Richmond Examiner, and was believed by all the officers on Morgan's staff. George Dallas Mosgrove in his Kentucky Cavaliers, published by McCowat-Mercer Press in 1957 and edited by Bell Irvin Wiley, the noted historian and author, says "Giltner's brigade and the Fourth Kentucky were encamped beyond the limits of Greenville when the Federals attacked." Hence, Mosgrove was not an eye witness to the shooting or the events immediately connected with it. This helps to explain his inclusion of a number of details, such as the betrayal by Mrs. Lucy Williams, that had wide acceptance at the time Mosgrove wrote his account but which was later discredited.

General Basil Duke, "arriving in Greenville a few days after the tragedy, also heard the story of Mrs. Williams' disappearance and believed it."

Further evidence was furnished when "Senator Henry, of Tennessee, set the record straight in a letter to the Richmond Whig, October 1, 1864. From a Miss Nancy Scott, a writer and a friend of Mrs. Williams, the Senator had obtained a first-hand account of what had taken place in Greenville. Miss Scott was visiting Mrs. Williams at the time of Morgan's death and a statement from her was quoted by the Senator. We arrived at Mrs. Williams' on Thursday (the first of September). We were looking constantly for the Yankees on Friday and Saturday morning but they did not come. Saturday afternoon, however, General Morgan and his staff rode up to Mrs. Williams' gate. No one was here but Mrs. Williams and myself, Lucy (Mrs. Joe Williams) having gone into the country about five miles, and did not return until about 11 o'clock next day."

There is much more evidence from reliable sources to support my contention that Morgan's betrayal by Mrs. Williams should be discredited in the interest of tomorrow's citizens.

Very truly yours,
B. L. GREER,
Chairman
Wise Co. Civil War Centennial Commission

BOW AND ARROW SEASON NOTED BY COMMISSIONER

Frankfort, Ky. (Spl.)—Approximately half of Kentucky's 39,864 square miles of land will be open for bow and arrow hunting for 32 days, beginning October 15 and continuing through November 15. Minor Clark, commissioner of the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources, has announced that counties open to this type hunting this year total 38 of the 120, and indications are, said Clark, that this increased hunting area will result in additional hunters taking to the field with indications of a better-than-average deer crop to hunt. Right now the deer population statewide is estimated at upward of 60,000 and the herd is described by biologists as being in excellent condition.

Most counties open to hunting this year have been stocked during the past two decades by the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources and with the cooperation of the hunters and sportsmen's clubs in protecting the deer, excellent results have been obtained. The deer kill in Kentucky, in the gun season, ranks near the top in the eastern part of the United States in ratio to the numbers of hunters.

Last year almost 2,500 bow and arrow hunters harvested 259 deer in a similar 32 day season and more hunters with a greater kill are anticipated this year. Only one deer may be killed by a hunter, either gun or bow and arrow, during the combined seasons and in addition to a valid hunting license the deer hunter must also have on his person a deer hunting permit, cost of which is $10.50 for both residents and non-residents.

Other rules that must be observed by the archery hunter include: Long bows only. Arrows must be barbless with broadhead. Points must be at least 1/8 inch wide. Archery hunters may not carry firearms. Floyd county, except for the Dewey Lake game refuge, is open to bow-and-arrow hunters. Other counties open are Green, Letcher, McLean, Monroe, Ohio, Todd, Wayne, Whitley, Crittenden, Lyon, Caldwell, Livingston, Lee, Breckinridge, Hardin, Meade, Bullitt, Nelson, Christian, Hopkins, Edmonson, Hart, Trigg, Barren, Metcalfe, Pulaski, McCreary, Laurel, Leslie, Fleming, Jackson, Lewis, Rowan, Letcher, Rockcastle, Clay, Breathitt, Knott, Estill, Greenup, Powell, Harlan, Owsley, Menifee, Wolfe, Bath, Union, Perry, Morgan, Adair, Logan, Marion, Hancock, Taylor, Warren, Woodford and Anderson. Management Areas open: Knob State Forest, October 15-November 15; West Kentucky Wildlife Area, October 15-October 31; Blue Grass Army Depot, October 17-October 18, October 24-October 25 and October 31-November 1; Ft. Knox, October 3-November 1; Ft. Campbell, October 15-November 15.

RIVER PICTURES
Several months ago Stuart Stephens copied a dozen or more old photographs of Big Sandy River steamboats and other river scenes. These are now for sale, he says.

Anyone desiring to collect some fine pictures of old steamboats should contact Stephens at The Times. Good pictures of steamboats, logging and rafting on the Big Sandy are rare and getting more so with the years.

AN OLD MAN AND HIS DOG
The old man stroked the dog roused at his side.

"The sun feels mighty good to id bones, doesn't it, boy?" he mumbled. "But you, poor, dumb thing, you just feel—you don't know where the warmth comes from and, what's more, I don't suppose you care. I wonder, boy, just how much you do know . . . you feel, you hunger, and thirst, you seek shelter from the wind and the cold—but what do you sally know?"

"But if you know nothing at all, wherein are you the loser? You have no worries, because you simply don't have the worry-in' apparatus. Yesterday, to you, s as if it never was; today, you leep, bark, eat, but a minute hat's past is gone into nothingness. And tomorrow—you have never heard of such a time, much less worried about what it holds.

"You must be nappy. And I an old dog, look backward to my yesterdays and I am filled with regret, and long for things that were and are no more. Today, this very minute, has its anxieties—why don't the children come? are they well? should I go, see, or should I wait here with you? And tomorrow—for both of us it may not come, but only I care.

"But why did I call you happy, you who have no yesterdays and look to no tomorrows? You have seen a thousand sunsets, but they belong to your yesterdays, which are nothing. You and I have heard the people down at the church sing sweet, old hymns; we have heard mothers croon lullabies to sleepy tots. But the words meant nothing to you, and now there isn't even an echo of melody and love to warm you as they warm me. The cool, green woods over there hold only the unsee for you. . . . provoke a growl or a bark—and their beauty you can't see.

"But that's all right, old fellow. Go to sleep. Only so can you dream. But I—m a y b e, after all, I'm the happy one—can dream even as I sit here in the sun."

PLEASANT REMINDER

Telephones are valuable gadgets. They get a-body out of bed, sometimes when he should be up and going. And most telephone people are wonderful folks. Just now I have received this letter from Roy L. Atherton, Southern Bell manager at Paintsville: "It has come to my attention October 11-17 is National Newspaper Week. Most of the year we take for granted something for which our forefathers fought and died—a free press. As National Newspaper Week is set aside to honor the men and women of the press, I feel it only appropriate to state that in the short time I have been a resident of Eastern Kentucky I have found your publication to be very enlightening. Too, there are many enlightenings that are informative as well as interesting.

"Please accept this as congratulations for a job well done, and I am looking forward to many more hours of reading your news, views, and tidbits in the future." And do you know, if Mr. Roy L. Atherton hadn't been thoughtful enough to write that letter, I would have forgotten all about National Newspaper Week? Floyd county newspapering, week by week, is enough for me.

What happens when a chicken crosses a state line? It gets inspected for wholesomeness by the U. S. Department of Agriculture before it can be offered for sale to consumers—that's a law. Of all poultry sold off farms in fiscal 1964, 87.5 percent was inspected for wholesomeness by USDA.

"Actual proof of the interest of Eastern Kentucky stations in the Kentucky Broadcasting Association is shown by the number of newly-affiliated stations in the area," Halyard said. "Two stations have affiliated recently. These are WLSI, Pikeville, and WNKY, of Neon. Only ten stations are unaffiliated. All television stations are members. With the associate members added, K.B.A. has 119 members, the highest in the organization's history."

PERK UP RICE DISHES

Rice, an October plentiful food, can be served in many ways. Perk up cooked white rice by adding such ingredients as grated cheese, chopped peanuts, parsley, onion, mushroom, favorite spices, or herbs, USDA home economists suggest.

HAZARD AND PIKEVILLE HAVE UNMARRIED RECORDS

Hazard high has its sights set on the Eastern Kentucky Mountain Conference championship, now that Jack Carey's Bulldogs have won the KHSAA Class AA, Region 4, District 2 title.

The Bulldogs walloped Jenkins, 33-0, last week-end to annex their fourth title in five seasons and can wrap up the nine-team conference title by winning over Fleming-Neon, Friday.

The Pikeville Panthers took a big step toward the Class 3, Region 3 district title by bouncing Paintsville from the undefeated ranks, 21-6. Pikeville leads its district race with a mark of 4-0 as compared with runner-up Dayton's 2-1-0 slate. Overall, the Panthers are one of the two undefeated football teams in the area. They are 7-0 for the season, as is Hazard.

The Fleming-Neon Pirates pulled the biggest upset in the area this season as they erupted for 33 points in the second half to overpower Whitesburg, 45-7. Halfback Willis Tolliver led the Pirates' attack with three touchdowns and two extra points. Roy Yonte added two TD's while Doug Yonts and Jim Moore scored one each.

William Wright, the state's leading scorer, scored the only Whitesburg six-pointer in the fourth quarter.

In other games, Belfry bested Prestonsburg, 51-12. Lynch whipped M. C. Napier, 47-0. Boyd County stopped Wheelwright, 38-0, and Rowan County nipped Morgan County, 13-0.

Paintsville took a first period 6-0 command over Pikeville as Leonard Meek sped 17 yards to paydirt. Pikeville came back in the second quarter on a one-yard plunge by quarterback Neill Smith. Barry Runyon, who kicked all three conversions, put Pikeville ahead, 7-6, at halftime.

Smith returned a punt 55 yards in the fourth quarter to ice the victory, and halfback Jim Hurt added the final marker late in the game on a dive of one yard.

Hazard built up a 20-0 halftime margin over Jenkins as halfback Houston Hogg scored on 11 and 21-yard runs and Morty Perkins' eight-yard sprint. Jimmy Walker and Freddie Hogg also got in the scoring act in the last half.

SPORTS CHATTER
By GORDON MOORE

The Kentucky Broadcasters Association will hold its annual convention at Jenny Wiley State Park next Monday and Tuesday, and one of the subjects on the agenda is sports coverage.

Bob Wright, president of the Kentucky High School Coaches Association and Ashland high basketball mentor, will serve on the panel, along with Oran Teater, president of the Kentucky High School Athletic Association, and Joe Billy Mansfield, assistant commissioner of the KHSAA.

Broadcasting athletic events in the eight Floyd county high schools has been a controversial subject among the coaches and principals every year.

Football fans are offered a double treat this Saturday, as they can stop off in Morehead and watch the undefeated Eagles meet the Austin Peay Governors in a 2:30 Ohio Valley Conference clash and then go on to Lexington in time to view the U. of K.-L.S.U. game.

The game in Morehead is expected to attract 10,000 fans as it is the Eagles' Homecoming in addition to dedication of the new Breathitt Sports Center by Governor Edward T. Breathitt, in whose honor the center was named.

Wheelwright and Prestonsburg, both suffering miserable football seasons, hope to get back on the winning trail this Friday night. Ray Brackett's Trojans are expected to annex win No. 3 over Leslie County, while the Black Cats are host to Whitesburg.

Fish & Game Club News

SCHOOL PROGRAM
Conservation education supervisors and conservation officers launch their junior club programs at the schools throughout Kentucky October 1. A lesson on some phase of conservation education is brought into the participating schools once each month. Officers and supervisors are in complete charge of the instruction.

FISHERY
Two traps were made to Paint Bank, Virginia, to obtain 4,225 pounds of rainbow trout from the federal fishery. A total of 9,964 trout was imported to Kentucky and stocked in Lake Cumberland at the old Rowena Ferry site and Blue Wolf Creek dam.

The fall yegall delivery to farm pond waters began October 6. It will take an estimated three weeks to deliver the fish to all sections of the state.

Next year, Wheelwright will drop from Class AA in football to Class A.

Lennie Harris, senior halfback, was named "Black Cat Player-of-the-Week" in the Belfry game. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Harris, of Lancer.

Next year, Wheelwright will drop from Class AA in football to Class A.

BOBWHITE OR INSURANCE RISK

Canton, O. — If bobwhite quail could sue out life insurance policies they probably couldn't afford them. John L. Steel, Jr., an Oklahoma Conservation Department biologist, estimated it would cost a bobwhite $995 for the annual premium on a $1,000 insurance policy. "This premium is high," he said, "on the fact that 8 out of every 100 quail will live 1 year, two may live three years but only one in 1,000 will live 5 years." These mortality figures are based on Steel's quail study which also reached the conclusion that hunting does not reduce quail populations.

CLUB'S ACTIVITIES

Work is progressing nicely on the property recently purchased by the Floyd County Fish & Game Club for club activities.

FISHING REPORT

Some nice bass and catfish have recently been seen in the Game and Fish Club Fishing Contest. Though De Lake is muddy and murky spots, fishing should be imprug within the following two or three weeks.

RECORD COAL PRODUCTION CELEBRATED IN KENTUCKY

Representatives of Kentucky's coal-mining industry, the state's largest single employer, will celebrate on October 16 their greatest year of production since 1950.
 The Kentucky Coal Association, announcing plans for its 18th annual meeting in Lexington, reported that in 1963 Kentucky mines produced 78,139,040 tons of coal.
 This coal had a value of $350 million, and the tonnage was the fourth largest in the Commonwealth's history. The record was 88,695,527 tons in 1947. The 1963 output was topped last in 1950, when 82,176,693 tons were mined.
 The 1963 production by districts was: Harlan, 6,153,693 tons; Hazard, 11,538,664; Manchester, 4,409,344; Martin, 5,361,000; Pikeville, 14,957,226, and West Kentucky, 35,718,613.
 Fred B. Bullard, president of the Association, said that mine owners and executives from most of Kentucky's 43 coal-producing counties are expected to attend a one-day session in the Phoenix hotel, Lexington. An attendance of 200 persons is expected.
 National leaders in the coal industry and officials of the Kentucky state Departments of Mines and Minerals, Natural Resources, and Revenue will speak at the meeting and work with the coal producers in appraising their progress and planning for the future.
 "The progress of the Kentucky industry, which is the second largest bituminous coal producer in the nation, is indicated by the increase of more than 3,000,000 tons just in the last year," Bullard said. "Employment also increased, and at the end of last year 29,717 persons were working in the mines."
 William B. Sturgill, of Hazard, chairman of the Association's board of directors, said, "This progress brings on added responsibilities, which will be considered along with other problems at our meeting."
 Other topics at the meeting will be: the projected effect of atomic power on future uses of coal; what Sturgill described as "the unfair competition of imported residual oil"; progress in strip-mine reclamation in Kentucky and the nation, and an appraisal of the coal industry's public image.
 Speakers will include: Joseph E. Moody, of Washington, president of the National Coal Policy

100 YEARS AGO THIS WEEK
The Civil War in Kentucky
By JOE JORDAN
(Kentucky Civil War Commission)

One hundred years ago this week, a Louisville newspaper carried a report from Bloomfield, Nelson County, that of the men of that town and the vicinity whose names had been drawn for induction into the Union Army, "nearly all" had gone south and enlisted as volunteers in the Confederate Army. After a man's name had been drawn for the draft, he had to be notified, and he had ten days after notification to report at a designated place. Thus by the time anyone in authority started looking for him because he had not reported, he might be serving in the other army.

A month before the presidential election, Kentuckians favoring the re-election of President Lincoln and those supporting his Democratic opponent, Maj. Gen. George B. McClellan, were stepping up both the tempo and the temperature of the campaign. It had already become fairly certain that McClellan's supporters in the Commonwealth outnumbered Lincoln's, but the latter had the advantage of having the Union Army on their side — and in previous elections during the war the troops had not hesitated to interfere with the voting.

Capt. Theo C. Bowles was quartermaster at Jeffersonville, Ind., across the Ohio River from Louisville. He employed many civilian workers, and a high proportion of them resided and of course voted in Kentucky. The Louisville Journal charged that he had called a meeting of the civilian employees and made a pro-Lincoln political talk, in which he equated loyalty with support of Lincoln. The newspaper said he asked one man how he intended to vote and when the man replied that that was a private and personal matter, and declined to answer the question, Bowles discharged him.

The Journal, referring to the quartermaster, asked: "Has Mr. Lincoln clothed him with office to decide upon the loyalty of the people and pronounce all traitors who refuse to endorse the policy of the Administration? Does the government pay him to elector for a particular candidate and clothe him with power to exercise in the most arbitrary manner? What right has he to pronounce judgment upon the loyalty of McClellan and those who support him?"

The Lexington Observer and Reporter said a large crowd gathered at Lancaster to hear Col. Shanklin of Jessamine County speak for McClellan and M. L. Rice of Garrard County for Lincoln. The newspaper's account would by today's standards be considered somewhat one-sided. The McClellan advocate spoke first, it said, and at the conclusion of his address, "the house came down with such a shout as left it little doubtful who held the key to the hearts of the audience."

"Mr. Rice followed in a speech of an hour and a half, and the contrast between the clear, masterly, convincing argument of the first speaker and the ingenious but fallacious reasoning of Mr. Rice was particularly noticeable."

MAYTOWN

Several small friends helped Angela Combs celebrate her fifth birthday Monday afternoon, October 5. The highlight for all were rides in a pony cart pulled by Angela's pony, "Gerontimo." Refreshments were served indoors at a long, low table decorated with nine painted squash and gourd faces. Soon after, Angela opened her gifts, and she thanked Sherrie Bitter, Mark Asbury, Kimberly Hall, Sharon Martin, Ann Rankin Pollard, Mary Nolan Pollard, Janet and Brent Reed and brother, Paul, for making her party be such a happy one.

Mr. and Mrs. Miles Gibson, Jr. and children have moved into their new home on Turkey Creek. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Patton and granddaughter, Tanya, spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Sparks in Lexington. Mr. and Mrs. Edgel Moore and son, of Mason, Ohio, met their parents at the Sparks home, also.

Mr. and Mrs. Ronnie Allen and son have returned to their home in Cromwell, Indiana, after visiting Mrs. Allen's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bud Hagans.

Mrs. Theodore Gibson, Mrs. George Patton and Mrs. Hubert Halbert were visiting Mrs. Mildred Osborne in Hindman last Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Halbert, of Melbourne, Florida, spent last week with Mrs. Luma Halbert.

Mrs. Ed Sutton is visiting Mr. and Mrs. Jack Crowe in Covington, Kentucky.

Mr. and Mrs. Otto Pratt, of Paintsville, Misses Claudena Lowe and Carol Ann Pratt, of Virgie, and Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Lowe gathered for a picnic at the Breaks, Sunday.

Dial Salisbury, of Lucasville, Ohio, was visiting his daughters, Mrs. Ed Stewart and Mrs. Claude Webb, here Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Stewart and children enjoyed a day's outing at the Breaks, Sunday.

It takes 1000 tons of coal to build just 1 mile of concrete highway!

That totals approximately 700,000 tons of coal if Kentucky uses concrete to complete its Interstate Highways. Kentucky needs new coal markets, new highways. Concrete brings the two together. The result? Better business. Better highways.

Today's new-type concrete is smooth and solid all the way . . . is laid flat to stay flat. It actually has a life expectancy of 50 years and longer, with upkeep expense 75% less than for asphalt (based on Kentucky records). This is vital because the Federal Government pays 90% of initial construction cost—but not a single cent for maintenance. Add it up. Concrete means greater coal usage, greater driving comfort, and greater maintenance savings.

Fred Bullard, President of the Kentucky Coal Association, says: "Cement and reinforcing steel are two basic ingredients of the modern concrete highway. With their high consumption of coal during manufacture, we believe that paving Kentucky's Interstate Highways with concrete would be an invaluable aid to the state's coal industry."

CHEESE SAUCE

Serve a cheese sauce over your favorite fresh vegetables during October Cheese Festival, suggest USDA home economists. Here's an idea for you. Cook fresh or frozen spinach until well done; then drain and stir in shredded brick cheese. Transfer to a serving dish and add a scattering of buttered bread crumbs.

TIDBITS of KENTUCKY FOLKLORE

By GORDON WILSON, Ph. D.
 Western Kentucky Teachers' College, Bowling Green, Ky.

ELOCUTION AGAIN

Long ago in this column I gave some samples of elocution as it used to be practiced and told how a woman who had been trained in this art came with a group of business and professional women to our college chapel. When she was asked to say a "few well-chosen words," or some such rigmarole, she arose and really put on an act. The students thought that she was trying to be funny and, therefore, laughed at the end of almost every one of her sentences. Really she was not trying to be funny but was elocuting, if that is the verb, in the approved manner of yesteryear. We old-timers knew that and refrained from laughing, then.

Though old-time elocution and oratory seem to have suffered a small eclipse after ages of being in style, I rarely recently had occasion to remember what they were once like. For weeks, early in 1963, I sat on juries and thus had a chance to compare and contrast the oratory of the present with that of my earlier years. Nearly all the lawyers made rather matter-of-fact speeches, actually seeming to regard the jury as being reasonably well educated and better than usual in their information. One lawyer from another county reintroduced us to the old-style pleading that became funny and then almost tragic. In the words of one of my former teachers, when he would describe what some high-tempered person said and did, he "horned the ground." His voice got louder and louder, drowning out the air-conditioner's constant buzz and the roar of the traffic in the busy streets outside. Suddenly I recalled that the lawyer, one of my former students, had had some very severe heart attacks; I whispered this to someone near by, for we were not actually on the jury at that time. Maybe the lawyer himself remembered his bad heart, for he came down off his loud and piercing harangue and almost whispered the rest of the time. He lost his case. I still wonder whether his fireworks paid off.

One of the results of that plea with its fiery delivery and its picturesque figures of speech, was that I was back in a littered storeroom in Fidelity, sixty years ago, when the very majestic magistrate's court was in session. Several cases, including the one of the young man who had run his horse on the public road, came up that afternoon. One of the county-seat lawyers spoke gravely and somewhat in the manner of a serious preacher; it would seem that he felt that he must support the majesty and dignity of the law. He made it plain, to me, at least, that theft, for example, is theft, whether, in the words of Peck's Bad Boy, it is of a pin or of an elephant. The other county-seat lawyer apparently regarded his client as a sort of martyr to freedom and human liberty. Therefore, he put on an act, with homely references and with slightly-queered literary references, too. He acted out his part, pacing back and forth on the dirty, littered floor, while we spectators sat around on goods boxes or leaned against the wall. I am surprised still that his oratory failed to convince the unwashed, bewildered jury, for he lost both cases; law was upheld by the dignified, pious middle-aged lawyer.

Recently I have gone back over some of the famous books that dealt with pronunciation of our language. It was almost as good a show as any comedy. Most of the writers took the stand that every syllable is equally important, that one's standing in society might easily turn on the quality of the vowel in any ordinary syllable. Some of the writers, with utter ignorance of the actual history of the English language, spoke in a learned way about the Anglo-Saxon background, no better and no worse than some of the learned whittlers at the country store at Fidelity. What learning they may have had was purely classical, and they were, therefore, making English fit, willy-nilly, the most literary Greek or Latin. I wish I had a record of two of the overweight pronounciations of some of the early speakers I knew; I would be saved the trouble of turning on a television program of humorists.

Soil Conservation

SOIL SURVEYS

As of July 1, 1964, standard soil surveys were completed on 21,377 acres in Floyd county. Soil surveys tell a landowner the name of soil, slope, amount of erosion which has taken place and other physical characteristics such as drainage, depth of root zone, etc. By knowing the name of your soil you can determine its production capabilities and what is best suited for that area of land. In some areas soil surveys are being used to locate highways and subdivisions. Soil surveys form the base for developing a sound soil and water conservation plan. Floyd county has 30 different soils and 97 different soil mapping units. Soil surveys are furnished free of charge to any farmer or landowner in the Floyd county soil conservation district by the Soil Conservation Service. If you are interested in a soil survey or a soil and water conservation plan, contact Gerald Hart, Soil Conservation Service, Prestonsburg, Kentucky.

All Right... Let Us Judge CATHOLICS BY THE BIBLE!

Many sincere people regard the Bible as the sole authority for Christian belief.

And they reject the teachings of the age-old Catholic Church because these teachings and forms of Catholic worship are not mentioned by name in Holy Scripture.

"Where... some will ask, does the Bible say anything about the Mass or Purgatory? And how about Confession to a priest, praying to Mary, and those seven Sacraments you Catholics talk about? They're not in MY Bible."

Although everything contained in the Bible is true, yet the Bible is not the sole source of all truth. For example, we know that Christ established His Church... that the Church existed long before the Bible was completed... that millions lived and died in the Savior's truth without ever having seen a Bible.

But we are willing to set aside these historical truths for the moment and judge Catholic beliefs and practices by the Bible.

Take first, for instance, the fact that the Bible does not mention the Mass or Purgatory by name. Well, neither does it mention the word Bible by name. Furthermore, nowhere within its covers is it stated what are the writings which contain the inspired Word of God. The only authority you have for this is the word of the Catholic Church, which preserved and collected the Scriptural writings and put them between the covers of a book.

The word "Sacrament," meaning a sacred rite, is not used anywhere in the Bible. But Holy Scripture does make clear the sacredness of such Catholic rites as Baptism, Confirmation, the Eucharist, Matrimony, Penance, the Last Anointing, and Holy Orders, the latter rite being the deputizing of the successors to the Apostles.

The Sacraments were in possession of the Church and in daily use before a single line of the New Testament was written. People were being received into the Church by Baptism long before there was a New Testament. They were receiving Confirmation, were being married according to Christ's teaching, and praying over and anointing the dangerously sick.

Christ definitely did establish His Church. He did depurize His Apostles, and their successors, to continue His teaching. He did promise that His Church would endure forever, and could not fall into error. But He never did say: "All My teachings shall be in a book. Read and believe nothing else."

An interesting pamphlet explaining the Catholic teaching concerning such things as the Sacraments, Purgatory, why Catholics do not eat meat on Friday, why we call it Catholic Church instead of "Roman" Catholic, will be sent immediately on your request and nobody will call on you. Write for Pamphlet No. KC-28.
