

'Gas' Pinch Seen Later In East Ky. Diesel Quotas Have Already Been Set, Distributor Says

Relatively unaffected thus far by the current gasoline and petroleum products shortage which is being felt in many parts of the country, Eastern Kentucky's situation may be changing for the worse, later this year.

Marvin Music, Gulf distributor for this area, said last week there's "a good possibility that gasoline may be allocated in this section before the summer is over."

Mr. Music explained that, thus far, Kentucky has escaped the shortage that states of higher population density and heavier industrialization had experienced but cited figures showing significant increases in Kentucky gasoline consumption recently.

Information compiled by the Kentucky Petroleum Marketers Association shows an increase from 101,631,772 gallons of gasoline consumed in the state in January, 1970 to 129,529,684 gallons for the same month of this year, an increase of slightly over 25 per cent. Music explained that present oil refining facilities just cannot supply enough gasoline to accommodate the ever-increasing demands.

"As far as I know, no new refineries have been established in a 500-mile radius of this area in the past 10 years," Mr. Music commented. While most other industries are constantly expanding, he explained, the petroleum industry is finding it increasingly difficult to build new plants. This situation has come about because of the criticisms of environmentalists who demand expensive modifications and research to minimize the polluting by-products of the refining

Landfill Near, Countywide Job Of Cleanup Seen

A countywide cleanup period, outside Prestonsburg where such an effort is being made this week-end, will be undertaken in a matter of weeks, County Judge Henry Stumbo said Monday.

He said the county cleanup effort must wait till a landfill is procured to receive the tons of debris to accumulate when general cleanup comes.

The site near Stephens Branch earlier inspected by the fiscal court, representatives of the state and county health departments and Spindletop Research has been approved by Spindletop, Judge Stumbo said, and an engineer will survey the site to establish property lines within the next few days. A road to the landfill must also be built.

Federal funds are expected to be made available to the county for the purchase of machinery needed for a permanent countywide waste collection and disposal system. Three other landfill sites will be sought later, one for each magisterial district, it was indicated.

Once landfills and a waste collection system are established, littering, illegal dumping of garbage into streams and along highways will be penalized. Until these are established, however, rural residents contend they have no legal means of disposal.

Easter Week-End Campers Numerous

The Goble Branch camping area has not been improved to the extent expected by the beginning of the new camping season, but Easter week-end saw its primitive camping facilities in heavy use.

Sheriff Reviews Court Situation; 2 Cases Nulled

After two charges against him in Floyd circuit court had been dropped last week, Sheriff Frank Leslie commented that he had done his best as an official, "but it seems if you do your best you're a rascal, and if you don't you're a bigger rascal."

Dropped were the charges of failing to file monthly roadhouse reports and of destruction of county property. The malfeasance-nonfeasance charge against him has been set for trial June 9 on change of venue to the Martin county circuit court at Inez.

Circuit Judge Hollie Conley dismissed the roadhouse report case on the Commonwealth's motion after it had been determined that the law provides no penalty for a sheriff's failure to file such reports. Sheriff Leslie said he was never informed that such reports should be filed. He added that he will make the reports in the future.

"They were more than willing to drop the charge" (of disrespect for county property) he said, "when they learned it was not my car parked on the courthouse lawn."

Of the case remaining for trial Leslie said, "It was four admitted bootleggers who indicted me." He insists the charges were politically motivated. "They didn't want me there (in the sheriff's office), to start with. They rode me hard and put me up wet."

He claims the case against him is dragging along through no fault of his own. "I was ready then for trial, and I'm ready now," he said.

Food Stamps To Be Issued after May 1 By Postal Service

Food stamps will be issued tomorrow (Thursday) for the last time during the month of April and perhaps for the last time every by personnel of the state office of Social Services Administration, Department of Economic Security.

Ronald J. Wright, field office administrator for the state agency, said those who have not received food stamps this month and are eligible for stamps should visit the issuance office at the Prestonsburg post office by April 26.

Effective May 1, food stamps will be issued by the U. S. Postal Service at the Prestonsburg and Martin post offices, Mr. Wright said.

This Town . . . That World

It is reported that the Dread Event will take place at midnight Saturday, but this is by no means intended as confirmation of the date. I can, however, say this much without any hemming and hawing: You do not have to wait till midnight to set your clock one hour ahead.

VINDICATION

On my desk, which, I may say without fear of contradiction, has something on it, is a piece entitled, "The Desk with Nothing on It." This great bit of writing is by a man named Col. Harold Wellington Jones, and it appeared in "Green Fields and Golden Apples."

Besides taking gentle pokes at "the great one" who sits behind a spotless desk, looking the veritable "penguin in an ice box," the writer manages to unearth a halo from the mess and put it on the head of the fellow who works with "a million papers under his elbows" and gets things done.

It's a shame Col. Jones copyrights the article. I have been needing a defender for years, and that copyright prevented me from swiping his brain-child and hiding it in the fifth layer on this desk of mine till I could gleefully print it verbatim, in toto and with no end of satisfaction.

Murder Charge Against Woman Voided, Monday

The murder charge against Mrs. Barbara Newsome, 32, accused of the shooting death of her husband, Paul, at Teaberry last Jan. 6 was dismissed Monday in circuit court here because there was no prosecution of the case.

Disposal of the case removed from the court docket all murder cases except that of Mont Robinette, charged with the slaying at West Prestonsburg of his wife, and that case is near decision. The 70-year-old Robinette is ill in a Louisa hospital, but his attorney indicated recently that he will enter a plea of guilty if a 10-year pen term is agreed upon as the penalty.

Earlier in the term, Johnny Watson was sentenced to a 12-year term on his guilty plea on a charge of slaying his brother, Dennis, and to three years for shooting into a vehicle, and the murder charge against Adrian Burchett in the shooting death of George Kendrick ended in a court-directed verdict of not guilty.

The conviction of Larry Dean Brewer on a drug possession count ended last week in a reduction of his penalty to a $100 fine. Earlier, he had been given trial in absentia, fined $500 and sentenced to one year in jail. His motion for a new trial was granted, however, and on his plea of guilty the $100 fine was levied.

The grand larceny charge against Sonny Rister was reduced to petit larceny and he entered a plea of guilty. He was fined $300. Timothy Gray's guilty plea to a charge of cutting and wounding resulted in a $400 fine and three months in jail.

The charge alleging that Deputy Sheriffs Willie Hall and Dexter Hamilton had accepted a bribe to release a prisoner was dismissed for lack of prosecution, as was the cutting and

State, Federal Manpower Not Adequate, Said

The visitor to Dewey Lake this Spring may be entranced by the beauty of the reservoir and its mountain setting, but his eyes will also encounter a manmade addition to the scene that goes far to nullify all the natural charm.

From one end of the lake to the other, along both shores, high on the shoreline extends a "terminal moraine" of thousands of Clorox jugs, bottles, beer cans, jars, paper, driftwood—everything that might have been tossed into Johns Creek, far upstream, or into the lake by picnickers, campers, boaters and others. The tons of trash and debris were left along the hillsides, 20 to 30 feet above the present lake level, when the lake level rose during periods of heavy rainfall.

And nobody has any definite ideas about what to do about the situation. Jenny Wiley State Park Manager George Barker said Friday that clean-up plans for park personnel are limited at best and added that it was all park workers could do to dispose of trash in the lake area, near the lodge and boat dock. The monumental nature of the task of clean-up is evidenced in Mr. Barker's statement that, last year, 300 truck- and boatloads of garbage were collected from the Stratton Branch beach area alone. "We just don't have the men," Barker said.

The Army Corps of Engineers also faces the problem of limited personnel, according to Reservoir Manager Dean Murray, and he said that only an extended trash collection program would improve the appearance of the lake shores.

Murray said that, in addition to the 15 Corps employees who are presently

Clark Wonders What Will Convince HEW

Floyd county's schools are yet on the list of school systems put on notice by order of Federal Judge John H. Pratt, Washington, D. C., that they have a racial disproportion in one or more of the schools of their districts, and Floyd Superintendent of Schools was a picture of frustration this week as he sought to show HEW officials and others that this county's school system is completely integrated.

"We're on this list, we've offered every possible proof that we have no integration problem—and still we're looking for a way to get off," the superintendent said.

The districts listed were given 60 days to rebut or explain the alleged racial "disproportion" in their schools.

The federal court defined a racially disproportionate school as one in which a "20 percent disproportion exists between the percentage of local minority pupils in the schools and the percentage in the entire school system."

"Maybe they want you to do some busing," an interviewer jokingly suggested to Clark. It wasn't funny.

But, according to the court order, there may be a disproportion of more than 20 percent in one school of the county. The percentage of black pupils in the entire school system is only .3 of one percent. The percentage of black pupils at Wheelwright high school is almost 4 percent of the total enrollment there. So...

But there has never been any integration problem in Floyd county. Clark wrote Peter E. Holmes director of the Office of Civil Rights, HEW, Washington, at length on April 23, a week after he had received a new notice to the effect that the U. S. district court order is still in effect as pertaining to Floyd county.

Wrote Supt. Clark, in part:

"I am enclosing selected copies of our latest Form OS-CR 101 OMB No. 85-R0108, filed with Health, Education and Welfare, 10-2-72, which, if examined, will definitely establish the fact that our school system is totally integrated and should not be subject to federal court order issued by Judge John H. Pratt, recently. Our school system had, at the time of filing the above Health, Education and Welfare Form, 9,403 pupils and only 30 of the total were black. If my figuring is correct, the percentage of blacks is only .3 of one percent of the total enrollment. Of our 31 schools, only five have any black children enrolled. Schools with blacks enrolled are listed below with number of blacks in the left-hand column and total enrollment in the right-hand column.

Blacks	Total Enrollment
Betsy Layne Elem.	6 427
Betsy Layne High	2 517
Osborne Elementary	8 451
Weeksbury Elementary	1 139
Wheelwright High	13 342
Total	30 1,876

County-Seat Cleanup Slated for Week-End

A joint proclamation signed Monday by County Judge Henry Stumbo and Mayor George P. Archer, designated the week-end of April 27, 28 and 29 as "County Seat Clean-Up Week-end," and gave the official go-ahead to a beautification program spearheaded by the Prestonsburg Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Concurrent with Governor Wendell Ford's "Clean Up Kentucky Month" and the Boy Scouts' of America "Beautify America Week-end," the idea for the Prestonsburg area clean-up originated at a meeting of the Jaycees a month ago. At that time it was decided by the organization that some action should be taken to clean up city streets and parking lots and generally to improve upon the appearance of areas surrounding the community.

A four-man committee, consisting of Herschell Joseph, newly elected president of the Jaycees, and Chalmer

Howard, Jim Hammond and Dickie Hall, was appointed to organize a clean-up project with each committee member assuming a certain aspect of the organization of the undertaking. The four worked to organize church groups, various civic organizations and clubs, scout groups and schools and the resources of county and city government were procured.

Full support of the county came at an organizational meeting of the Jaycees held last Saturday night in the county courtroom when Judge Stumbo pledged his help and promised the group use of four county-owned trucks.

The efforts of the anti-litter crusaders will be directed in the city limits to the policing of right-of-way and parking lots. Prestonsburg citizens are urged by the Jaycees to clean up around their homes and property and leave the refuse in bags by the street for pickup. Jaycee representatives said anyone missed by the trucks can call the Floyd county Emergency and Rescue Squad and request collection service.

Among those employed in the week-end campaign will be the 810th U. S. Army Supply Company Reserves from Pikeville. Members of this unit will concentrate their efforts on cleaning up an illegal dump on Highway 114 (old Middle Creek road).

Jim Hammond, Prestonsburg attorney, and key figure in the project's organization, said the reason collection activities will not include the whole county is simply because there is no place to deposit the trash. Prestonsburg has one landfill where trash may be disposed of, he explained, while no such facility exists elsewhere in the county. (A landfill above Martin off of U. S. 80 is presently being prepared and a countywide clean-up is tentatively set for sometime in May.)

The Jaycees are depending primarily on donations to carry out the cleanup project and financial help from individuals is solicited.

The following organizations and churches are participating: Prestonsburg Woman's Club, Prestonsburg Chamber of Commerce, Prestonsburg Kiwanis Club, Independent Order of Odd Fellows, Prestonsburg Junior Woman's Club, Floyd County Emergency and Rescue Squad, Boy Scouts of America, Girl Scouts, Zebulon Lodge, 273 F & AM, 810th Supply Co. U. S. Army Reserves, Irene Cole Memorial Baptist Church, First Church of God, First Presbyterian Church, Lancer Baptist Mission, First United Methodist Church, Church of Christ and the Freewill Baptist Church.

Officials Issue Proclamation

County Judge Henry Stumbo signs proclamation jointly issued by him and Mayor George P. Archer (standing, right) designating the week-end of April 27, 28 and 29 as "Floyd County-Seat Cleanup Week-End." The designation was made in connection with Governor Ford's "Clean Up Kentucky Month" campaign and the Boy Scouts' "Beautify America Week-End." Others in photo, from left, are Herschell Joseph, president of the Prestonsburg Junior Chamber of Commerce, and Jim Hammond, of the Jaycees.

Sportsmen Support Wilderness Area

The League of Kentucky Sportsmen has endorsed legislation by U. S. Senator Marlow Cook (R-Louisville) to designate the Commonwealth's first wilderness area.

The area is the 7300-acre Pioneer Weapons Hunting Area in Daniel Boone National Forest in Bath and Menifee counties to be known as "The Cave Run Wilderness."

"We are asking each of our 350 affiliated clubs and our 40,000 membership to support the proposal of Senator Cook by interceding with their Congress members," Reid Love, Vanceburg, LKS president, said.

Thrust of the legislation, Senator Cook stated, is to establish the unique eastern Kentucky area permanently and thus to prevent its bisecting by a vehicular highway.

"The League of Kentucky Sportsmen has opposed construction of the bisecting road which will endanger wild turkey, deer and other wildlife species," Love declared.

An alternate route to the future Cave Run Reservoir Zilpo Point Recreation Area has been proposed by the LKS and will skirt the PWHA.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Wants Action, or Answers

Editor, The Times:

My gripe is the lack of road improvement in Floyd county. I am referring specifically to Doty Creek, a "secondary road" behind the McDowell Hospital at McDowell, Kentucky.

Who makes the decisions concerning road work and improvements? Assuming that county politicians do, what criteria do they use? Do they ever visit out in the county to assess need for improvement? I have not ever seen such a personal observation from one of our officials.

Our road at Doty Creek was paved a few years ago and we, the residents, were very appreciative. However, over a year ago, flooding cut the road, destroyed the pavement, and washed out a bridge. We were patient! Several months later, the bridge was replaced. The road remained one complete muddy mess, full of damaging holes. Mufflers have been lost and other damage has been done to our cars.

A few weeks ago I circulated a petition among the residents of our community. I easily obtained 53 signatures from people willing to demand something of their county officials. The petition, which was forwarded to the County Judge, got some response—a visit from the judge. A few days later, workmen filled in holes which have since been washed away. A pacifying gesture!

The decision to do nothing, or at least postpone doing anything until after the election, makes me realize even more the need for community involvement and participation. The devastation caused by strip mining can be partly attributed to citizen apathy and the power structure. (But stripmining is another matter). I, for one, would like to have my car still in one piece when it is finally paid for.

If there are reasons why we do not qualify for a paved road now, why was it permissible to have it paved a few years ago? Doty Creek is not the only neglected road in our county. There is just not enough being done and I would like to know why.

I believe politicians should communicate with the people during non-election times, too. Wanted: Action or Answers.

(Miss) CHRISTINE STUMBO
McDowell, Ky.

P. S. I still believe Judge Stumbo has done a tremendous amount for our county and will continue to do so. But some people need to speak out more.

Asks Stronger Meat Boycott

Editor, The Times:

I have become a vegetarian. Being an individual with only myself to support, I am able to afford to pay the price of meat, but when I pay 98 cents per pound for hamburger meat that is the ultimate end! That was the price I paid for it the last time that I purchased the "foodstuff" that is no longer a part of my nourishment and daily diet.

The memory (and that is just what is) of the smell and taste of meat is tempting to the senses, but when I sat down and figured out that I had to work over two hours at my job to buy a good cut of beef or pork I quit buying. (So far I have lived two months without any meat in my diet whatsoever.)

The physical body does not need meat to survive. There are plenty of protein substitutes! I realize, though, that trying to convince an individual to "boycott" meat is like a former cigarette smoker telling a present cigarette smoker the benefits of non-smoking. We just won't give up until there is an imminent "cause"—the "cause" here being MONEY. We are all in some way a slave to it, but we can relieve the pressure by denying the demand.

This is my plea for a stronger support for the "meat boycott" in Floyd county.

Rediscover the Patchwork Quilt

By HELEN PRICE STACY

There is more than beauty in a patchwork quilt. The many scraps of cloth that go into making a quilt often represent the history of a family, sometimes for two or three generations. "The Patchwork Quilt as a Painting" is an exhibit being shown in galleries throughout Kentucky. Sponsored by the Kentucky Arts Commission, the quilt exhibit gives many an opportunity to discover what mountain women have known for ages—that a quilt is pretty as a picture.

Some artists painted quilt designs on canvas as folk art, geometric and hard-edge paintings long before the style became popular as contemporary art today. But for the most part, the Crazy Quilts, the Dutch Dolls and the Flower Gardens made from tiny pieces of material have remained on beds or stored in brass-bound trunks.

There are exceptions to their use on beds and as cherished gifts for children and grandchildren.

Years ago, custom called for a patchwork quilt to be tacked to a wall when the family lined up stiffly in their Sunday best for once-in-a-lifetime photographs. Family albums hold these heirlooms of both photography and quilting with patchwork quilts providing a pleasing background for the picture-taking session.

When the "play party" or "Saturday frolic" was hill entertainment and when revival meetings lingered on for weeks, the "younguns" were placed on a pallet of quilts in a corner to sleep until time to go home.

Rarely, a heavy quilt or "comforter" was wrapped around the ice cream freezer to keep the ice from melting as a strong arm cranked the handle to make that favorite old-time dessert.

Quilts and hand-tacked comforters protected children in wagons and buggies—and in arms—during cold weather trips to church or the county seat. The coverings were placed over adults' laps when they rode in the wagon to visit neighbors or attend a program at the one room school.

Even today the primary purpose for making patchwork quilts is debatable.

Some prefer to think quilts were made because they were necessary as bed-clothes; others feel that quilts fall in the hill category of "Eat it up, eat it out; make it do, or do without" and evolved as a way of using every scrap of material left after a garment was made. Nothing was thrown away.

Often overlooked as a reason for a quilt is its fulfillment of a need for artistry and creativity. Mountain women have known this satisfaction for generations.

Even with trunks and closets already filled with her handiwork—the women of the hills continued to make quilts.

The process is simple but painstaking. The quilt top is pieced together to a particular size. A layer of fluffy cotton batting is placed between the top and the back which usually is made of muslin. A stitched design holds the three layers together.

One of the quilts in the Kentucky Arts Commission traveling exhibit is "Log Cabin-Barn Raising." Made of wool and silk in the early 1900's in the Lexington area, the quilt is an example of both beauty and utility. Quilts in the collection depict the Log Cabin motif, Lone Star, Grandmother's Flower Garden, New York Beauty and others. In the exhibit are crazy quilts, made of lustrous dark silk except for jewel like shapes in ruby, emerald and topaz, all edged with briar stitching—sometimes called turkey tracks.

One quilt that tells much about a community is the Friendship Quilt, a product of churchwomen that held names of friends on pieces of cloth that radiated from the center like spokes in a wheel.

When they were bright and new, patchwork quilts became a coverlet, or "coverlid," used in the manner of hand-woven coverlets. Today, whole rooms are decorated around a quilt used as a bedspread, and art galleries hang them on walls like paintings.

To rediscover the value and beauty of the patchwork quilt, be sure to visit the exhibit of quilts when it is in your area.

As of October 1972 about 19 percent of all blacks 16 to 21 years old dropped out before completing high school, compared with 13 percent for whites.

WAYLAND NEWS

DISCUSS MENTAL HEALTH

Sister Noreen Bentfield and Mrs. Brenda Kinder, of the Mountain Mental Health Services, Prestonsburg, were guest-speakers recently at the March meeting of the Lackey-Garrett-Wayland Woman's Club, which was held at the home of Mrs. J. T. Spillman, Lackey.

Among the many services of the Mental Health out-patient clinic, Sister Noreen listed a child psychologist to assist in solving children's problems, facilities for counseling and testing, and an alcoholic and drug abuse program. She explained that patients are picked up in the morning, three days a week, by bus and are involved at the clinic in various group projects in order that they may have the benefit of a variety of learning experiences, while at the same time learning to cooperate and get along with other people. Often they cook and then clean up after the meal; they go to town, they bowl and, occasionally, when weather permits, they have a picnic. On Tuesdays and Thursdays the nurses go to The Golden Years Rest Home, Lackey, to lead group social activities there. They pointed out that volunteers are always welcome to assist the nurses.

The Community Placement Program was also explained by the speakers. Many patients ready to leave the Eastern Kentucky State Hospital have no place to go. So, many persons out in the community have volunteered their homes for these patients. The nurses call at the homes at regular intervals and keep a report on the patients' progress. This program is a first in the state and one of the first in the nation.

During the business meeting all club officers were re-elected. They are President, Mrs. S. M. Martin; first vice-president, Mrs. Birchell Duff; second vice-president, Mrs. Don Hughes; recording secretary, Mrs. Otto Martin; corresponding secretary, Mrs. James Duff; treasurer, Mrs. J. T. Spillman; parliamentarian, Mrs. J. C. Wells.

Those attending the meeting were Mrs. Lula Coburn, Mrs. Beatrice Collins, Mrs. Patricia Duff, Mrs. Elizabeth Duff, Mrs. Alice Hornsby, Mrs. LaFaye Hughes, Mrs. Pauline Martin, Mrs. Maxine Martin, Mrs. Marie Mullins, Mrs. Imalee Spillman, Mrs. Libby Martin, and the guests, Sister Noreen Bentfield and Mrs. Brenda Kinder.

Consumer Comments

By ED W. HANCOCK

Attorney General of Kentucky

Have you ever stopped to think that certain groups of people can and do fall victims to selected consumer frauds more quickly than other persons? It is true.

One of the most vulnerable groups in our society today is often the target of super swindlers. The group in question is composed mainly of those who must live on fixed incomes—the elderly.

Unfortunately, elderly people are often taken by consumer frauds aimed directly at them. It seems that many of the elderly become victims, because, at their age, it sounds too good to ignore, when they are promised fantastic earnings in little time, or miraculous relief from the pain or fear of a serious illness.

While it is true that an elderly person may lose only a few dollars by investing in a fraud, the figure becomes staggering on a yearly collective basis. If you are or know of an elderly person, permit us to describe some of the frauds you should be on guard against.

One of the most frequently used frauds concerning the elderly is the health claim. We caution you to be extremely cautious of great claims for miraculous medicines or medical devices. There are no self-medication cures for cancer, arthritis, anemia, or a wide assortment of other ailments. These fake health claims and medical quacks can be injurious in two ways—financially and physically.

Another leader in the field of swindling the elderly is the promise of earning big money at home. Be particularly wary of ads that promise no risk of losing your investment or ads that promise net profits of 100 percent or more.

One other word of caution in this field is get rid of door-to-door salesmen who promise commissions for persons who refer them to who may buy the product the salesman is offering. This is known as "referral selling" and is completely illegal in Kentucky.

The infamous "Retire to the Sun" scheme is among the favorites of the professional super swindlers. Millions of

Proven Leadership Means Continued Progress For Floyd County

W. J. "BILL" REYNOLDS has served Floyd County in the Kentucky Legislature for 10 years. During this period of time he has served with distinction and has risen to be House Caucus Chairman, one of the five leadership positions in the 100-member House of Representatives. This is not an appointive position, but is filled through an election by House members. Bill Reynolds' colleagues in the House of Representatives, have honored him three times in electing him to this position of leadership. He is the senior House member on the Legislative Research Commission and serves on various interim committees between sessions.

HIS RECORD ON LEGISLATION AFFECTING FLOYD COUNTY:

1. He has the best record in the House on Education Bills.
2. He co-sponsored the coal miners' Black Lung Benefits Act and voted to improve the Workmen's Compensation Benefits for the working man in the coal mines.
3. He voted to remove the tax from medicine and food.
4. He co-sponsored the bill, and led the fight to pass the Homestead Exemption Bill, which gives a $6,500 tax exemption to our senior citizens.

It has been shown, that to get things done effectively at a local level, one must have a good working relationship with our leaders on the state and national level. Bill Reynolds has, through his years of service, developed this type of working relationship. Bill Reynolds knows our local, state, and national leaders. His experience of working with these leaders will be most beneficial as he continues to work toward a better Floyd County.

Miller Defends Endorsement

State Democratic Chairman J. R. Miller last week defended his endorsement of Representative W. J. "Bill" Reynolds, of Allen, in his primary campaign for the Democratic nomination for the legislative post, claiming his endorsement was made to stop a rumor.

Reynolds' opponent, James R. (Jitter) Allen, of Martin, had termed the endorsement improper and unfortunate, particularly in view of the fact that it came at a time when Democrats were being asked to contribute funds to pay off the state committee's indebtedness for a past state campaign.

Miller, in a statement issued by State Democratic Headquarters yesterday, said "Some time ago, James (Jitter) Allen, contacted me asking that I endorse him as a candidate for the 95th Legislative District. I told him at that time that Bill Reynolds was a party stalwart and that I could not consider endorsing him (Allen) or anyone else during the primary race.

"Allen then told me that some high level local officials had already endorsed him. I told him that if this was true, then I would like to see a copy of such an endorsement bearing their signatures.

"It is my understanding that Mr. Allen then told these officials that I had endorsed him. I heard this same story from several sources.

"The only way to squelch this rumor was to write the letter in question. At no time have I endorsed any other candidate in the Democratic primary. It will remain our position to be neutral until after the primary elections."

WISE-WALLEN VOWS SAID

Miss Gaye Robinson Wise, Frederick, Md., and Mr. Daniel Edward Wallen, Walkersville, Md., were united in marriage Saturday, April 14, at 2 p.m. in Trinity United Methodist Church, Frederick, Maryland.

The bride is the daughter of Judge and Mrs. James A. Wise, Denton, Maryland. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Curtis L. Wallen, Stanville, Kentucky. Rev. Thomas L. Brunkow performed the double-ring ceremony, with Mrs. Peg Russell providing the traditional wedding music.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length gown of white silk organza. The bodice was of venice lace with a scalloped neckline and the bishop sleeves were accented at the cuff with matching venice lace. The cap, also of venice lace, had a cathedral-length veil with a short blusher veil. The bride carried an old-fashioned bouquet of yellow and white roses surrounded by baby's breath.

Maid of honor was Miss Marcia E. Webb, Alexandria, Virginia, friend of the bride. She was attired in a floor-length gown of green and white accented with tiny yellow appliques. The dress featured an empire waist and a white organza bodice highlighted with a flowing ruffle trimmed in green. The green chiffon skirt was trimmed with a green satin ribbon which formed a bow in the back. She carried a nosegay of yellow roses with yellow streamers.

Bridesmaids were Miss Brenda A. Beachley, Frederick, Md., friend of the bride, and Mrs. Susan P. Wallen, Lexington, Ky., sister-in-law of the groom. Their gowns were identical to the maid of honor. Each carried a nosegay of yellow and white roses with green streamers.

Ronald A. Wallen, Lexington, Ky., served as his brother's best man. Ushers were Michael Baltzell, Thurmont, Md., and Gordon Glenn, Alexandria, Va., friends of the groom.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Wise wore a mint green dress and jacket of delustered satin with matching green accessories. She wore a white orchid with a gold ribbon. The groom's mother wore a mint green dress and coat of silk shantung with matching accessories. Her white orchid was trimmed with a yellow ribbon.

Immediately following the ceremony, a reception was held at the Holiday Inn.

After a wedding trip to Ocho Rios, Jamaica, Mr. and Mrs. Wallen will reside at 2 Dream Place, Walkersville, Maryland.

The bride is a 1971 graduate of Shepherd College and is employed by the board of education as a first grade teacher at East Frederick elementary school.

The groom is a 1970 graduate of the University of Kentucky and is employed as a systems engineer at Eastalco Aluminum Co. Buckeystown, Maryland.

Prior to the wedding, the bride was honored with a shower given by Miss Brenda Beachley, Frederick, Md. Another shower was given by Mrs. J. Owen Wise and Mrs. R. Dale Palmer, both of Denton, Maryland.

Picking Up After Other People Cost Roads Bureau $1.5 Million

Frankfort, Ky.—Every month is clean-up month in the Kentucky Department of Transportation.

Last year more than $1.5 million was spent by the Bureau in picking up after other people.

In some counties, crews were forced to devote more than three hours of an eight-hour day to this task. Since it's hard to do two things at once, this meant that patching holes, clearing ditches, repairing road shoulders, mowing grass and other important maintenance duties had to wait.

The purpose of a litter barrel is to provide motorists with a convenient dumping spot for the trash—like kleenexes, candy bar wrappers, and paper cups—that accumulate while traveling.

Litter barrels are not for garbage. People who live in counties without county-wide pick-up or dumping provisions often don't know what to do with the garbage so they deposit it at the nearest litter barrel, creating a major problem.

Naturally, if the litter barrel is full, they don't take the garbage back home; they just pile it alongside the rest. Soon an unsightly heap has developed and it may be several days before Highway crews are out again to recheck that location.

Sometimes the litter barrel site attracts so much garbage that the Bureau is forced to abandon it altogether, just one day forgetting to put the barrel back as an invitation for more garbage. Some states have discontinued the use of litter barrels altogether in order to relieve the problem.

Contrary to what might be expected, the nature-minded people who patronize the state parks and use the roads leading to them aren't one bit better at combatting the litter problem than the rest of the population, highway employees say. The volume of litter is worse along the right of way in the general areas of the parks than it is along other rights of way.

Empty bottles constitute a high volume of the litter found along the roadside. In Southeastern Kentucky, for example, people who have bought beer in Virginia try hard to dispose of their empty bottles before a state policeman stops them. Not only are these people a litter nuisance, they are a dangerous adversary, particularly on two-lane roads.

Campaigns against litter by various businesses, civic organizations and the news media do help some. But, there are still too many deaf ears in the world.

PTA Honors Veteran Teacher

Mrs. Pauline Burchett was honored at a recent P. T. A. meeting at the Clark elementary school where she served as librarian. She was presented an engraved silver tray by Larry Jervis on behalf of the P. T. A. Mrs. Burchett served as a teacher in the Floyd county school system for 34 years.

The Clark elementary P. T. A. met last week with Mrs. Juanita Ousley presiding. The business included the announcement of the Spring Carnival planned for April 28 at the school, also the Gospel singing event, planned May 19 at the school. Proceeds from both events will go towards the air-conditioning fund.

Mrs. Ousley also announced that the Clark P. T. A. has received an award from the Floyd County P. T. A. Council for increasing its membership last year and for paying its dues on time.

The decision for purchasing Little League Uniforms was delayed until next meeting.

The evening's program was dedicated to Mrs. Pauline Burchett, now retired, who served as the school librarian. She was presented an engraved, silver-footed tray in appreciation for her years of service to the school.

Pictures, slides and movies of the recent Book Fair were presented by Mrs. Louise Howard and Larry Jervis.

A special music program was presented by the Clark school band. The band is made up of 28 members and many are beginning students. The P. T. A. expressed its appreciation to Roger Johnson for the time he has given it.

The meeting adjourned, with 90 members and students being served punch and cake. The next meeting will be May 15, the program to be presented by Gene Prater.

Environmentally Speaking

by
THOMAS O. HARRIS
COMMISSIONER
Kentucky Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection

The Office of Planning and Research in the Kentucky Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection is really in the space age. That office is studying earth with space satellites. Remote sensor data from satellites may be used to supplement conventional methods for finding and evaluating surface mining and other environmental problems.

Communication and weather satellites have shown us the direct benefits of space exploration. This appears to be only the beginning.

Now, we in the environmental protection field are looking with great interest into new tools which may be provided by satellites. We may be able to use satellites for environmental impact studies, for inventories of disturbed land reclamation, for planning efficient sequences for surface mine development and for developing historical ecological data. We may be able to use satellites in litigation involving environmental disputes, in making analyses of landslide and storage pond hazards and in monitoring water and air pollution.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) currently has a research satellite in earth orbit. This Earth Resource Technology Satellite (ERTS) program is a major first step in the merger of space and remote sensing technologies into a research and development system for developing and demonstrating the techniques for efficient management of our resources.

Several types of remote sensors are being considered for use on satellites. Photography, radar and radiometers have proven to be valuable devices on the ERTS satellite.

At first glance, the satellite research program that I have described seems far removed from the Commonwealth of Kentucky. However, when we think of the unsolved environmental problems and potential loss of our natural resources, we cannot afford to overlook any possible solution to the preservation of our environment and our resources.

Grant Will Help Former Drug Users

Frankfort, Ky.—The Kentucky Program of Rehabilitation Services has received a $100,000 grant to expand vocational rehabilitation services to drug abusers.

The grant provides for continuation of a three-year program begun last year to help former drug abusers find jobs. The Department of Health, Education and Welfare is granting $90,000 for the program while the Kentucky Department of Mental Health is supplying an additional $10,000.

"The bulk of the money will be used to supply counselors throughout the state to work strictly with past drug abusers and their prospective employers," said Bill Wilson, assistant director of Rehabilitation Services. "They will concentrate on job development, placement, follow-up, and long-term evaluation."

The placement counselor will act as a liaison between employer and employee. He will work closely with the employee to help him make necessary adjustments.

"The first year of the program has been spent organizing and finding the right counselors for specific areas in Kentucky," said Wilson. "We've made some progress and we expect a lot more to be made this year."

TO COOL THE KEYS

I've seen my part of zany happenings, around newspaper offices, and so am what you might call blasé about these odd incidents that pop up. But when I approached the old Underwood, the other morning, and glimpsed a faucet attached to it (see photo), the hair that isn't on the top of the old head began rising. It later developed that the gadget is one of these fun things which attaches to any plain surface by suction cup. The only thing missing was a sign which might have read, "For the Old Drip."

GLAD TIDINGS

This report, direct from the headquarters of Poke Warden Watt Hale:

One of his deputies showed up, the other morning, with the most woebegone expressions on this face that had been seen thereabouts in years. When Watt inquired what was the trouble, the man opened grim lips to intone, "It's gone."

"What's gone?" Watt inquired. "The poke. What the freeze didn't get, the frost has."

Warden Hale immediately summoned his staff and sent his top men out to inspect the damage. The bad news got around, and he himself was busy reassuring everybody that, somehow, we'll pull through, dark though the outlook may be, and so on.

Then the field agents began filing in with their reports, and for days Watt has been evaluating the information. And only now does the sun break through yon dark clouds as Watt issues the following official statement:

"Save your bacon grease, folks! Some of that poke will pull through. All is not lost."

IT'S SAFE TO GO—MAYBE

My neighbor, Roy Ramey, exacted a promise from me, the other day.

"Are you going fishing next week?" he wanted to know, and when I assured him I was not, he almost demanded that I sign the pledge. But when I finally convinced him I would be home this week, he said, "Then I can go."

The aforementioned Ramey has designs on the bass at Kerr Reservoir, and I am fighting the temptation to blackmail him. I could show up, you know, about the time he's ready to fare forth on the lake, bringing with me the kind of weather that is spelled with a capital W.

Health Program In Knott County To Get $10,000

Beth-Elkhorn Corporation, a subsidiary of Bethlehem Steel Corporation, will contribute up to $10,000 to the Eastern Kentucky Health Services Center, Inc., D. A. Zeeger, division superintendent of Beth-Elkhorn, announced this week.

EKHC, a non-profit and privately funded organization, is developing a health care delivery program at Mallie, Knott county. A county with a population of 16,000, Knott has never previously had a hospital or clinic.

Mr. Zeeger said that $5,000 will be given immediately to the program. Payments of $3,000 in 1974 and $2,000 in 1975 are contingent upon the center's ability to maintain an effective health care program.

"It is a pleasure to indicate in this way our confidence in your efforts to deliver improved health care to the people of Knott County," Mr. Zeeger told Benny Ray Bailey, executive director of EKHC.

The center is the realization of a long-time dream of its founders, Dr. Grady Stumbo and Mr. Bailey. Both are natives of McDowell and are sons of coal miners.

In June 1972 Dr. Stumbo graduated second in his class academically from the University of Kentucky Medical School, and Mr. Bailey completed course requirements for a Ph. D. in administration.

The center began initial operations recently following more than three years of in-depth studies of the problems associated with delivery of health services in a rural area and the organization of medical manpower to deliver the services.

They have negotiated a contract with Our Lady of the Way Hospital, 40 miles away, whereby EKHC physicians will have full staff and hospitalization privileges there.

The University of Kentucky has agreed to allow its personnel to conduct field clinics at the center, to permit senior medical students to spend part of their internship at the center and to give physicians associated with the center "visiting faculty" appointments.

Mr. Bailey said that following financial feasibility studies of the program made at Stanford University, EKHC believes that the program can be self sufficient in two to two and a half years.

process. The present tax structure also discourages "wildcat" drillers in exploring for new oil reserves, Music said. He added that the refineries themselves are taxed to capacity.

Mr. Music said his distributorship received a diesel and home heating fuel allocating last January 17. Distribution of this fuel was restricted to no more than the amount used in the previous month, and Music said "we had to run new customers away," adding that some customers ran out of home heating fuel before the end of each month.

Dealers hardest hit by the current shortage are those in the extreme southern states and "up east," farthest from supply lines.

If gasoline allocation becomes a reality in the near future, dealers would be given fuel quotas not exceeding the amount used by the dealer during the same period a year ago. Thus, if a particular service station sold 30,000 gallons in a certain month of last year, it would be allocated exactly that amount this year, working on the presumption that refineries can at least continue to produce the same amount of fuel as in the past.

Mr. Music stressed the point that this would not represent rationing by the federal government.

"Blacks as well as white attend the school nearest their own home by choice, not by arbitrary assignment, a fact that would be made obvious by even a casual examination of the situation. We feel that if there is a single school system in the United States where there are minority children enrolled and fully, totally integrated, it is Floyd County. Including this school system in Judge Pratt's order puts us in a position where we doubt the judgement and efficiency of the whole system, including Health, Education and Welfare Department and the court system. If the court order makes no more sense in the other school systems cited than it does with us, then we must conclude that the whole matter is a manifestation of total inefficiency on the part of those who is responsible for enforcing the laws of the land.

"We by our annual reports, prove that we are integrated, we repeatedly state by letter that we are integrated and further we issue invitations to all Doubting Thomasas to come and take a look, and yet we are repeatedly embarrassed through national news releases through no fault of our own."

Still, Floyd county's position may be better. This week, Clark was promised by HEW that its attorneys will soon ask that this county's school system be removed from the list of those challenged.

concentrating on public use areas, Boy and Girl Scouts are expected to help after April 28 (Keep America Beautiful Day), and expressed the hope that at least two Army Reserve units could be brought in to help out. He promised that the Corps "will do what we can with limited personnel."

Murray commented that the only way to remedy the situation is to take measures to see that such loads of litter do not reach the reservoir in the first place. A suggestion of his own, which he has submitted as part of his budget but which has as yet not been approved, would see the construction of a levee above the German bridge area that would trap the debris before it enters into the lake proper. The trash would be concentrated in a restricted area, thus greatly facilitating its removal.

EASTERN, WESTERN WIN

The 6th U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals has ruled in favor of two Kentucky universities. The court said an Eastern Kentucky University student's constitutional rights were not violated by the school's policy of setting dormitory hours for women, and said Western Kentucky University officials acted within their rights in refusing to show a certain film as part of the university-sponsored program. In ruling, the appeals court affirmed two lower-court decisions.

Professional Auto Thieves' 'Take' Last Year $1.2 Million

By MARY VINCENT QUILL

Frankfort, Ky.—Professional auto theft rings stole cars valued in excess of $1.2 million in Kentucky last year. According to Major Billy Sherrard, head of the state police criminal investigative command, at least five gangs of car thieves are operating within the state now.

They may be "mechanized cannibals" who chew up a car by stripping and selling it to a salvage operation or an out-of-state dealer. Or, they may run a "special order" racket. "Special order" means that the prospective customer orders a particular year and model, and the thief then steals, paints and delivers it.

Sometimes the special order thief uses a drive in restaurant for his base of operations. There, his client may enjoy a snack while dickering over the price for a set of slightly-used mag wheels or an almost-new seat for his Volkswagen. Once the price has been agreed upon, the customer returns a day later to pick up his order.

"Always know your sources when buying bargain parts. It will save you from the possibility of embarrassment and expense later," warns Sherrard.

Another method currently popular in car heists makes thefts frustratingly simple. It utilizes a crooked garage laborer who makes a wax depression of your ignition key and passes it to the thief, along with your address. Later, the crook simply strolls over to your house and drives your car away.

Thieves will pay premium prices to salvage dealers for wrecked late model cars. They remove the license plates and registration certificate, put them on the stolen car and sell it to an unsuspecting client somewhere else in the state.

Naturally, according to the law of supply and demand, the thieves vie for cars that will bring the best price. One knowledgeable source says the survival rate for Corvettes on New York City streets is 30 minutes. While Kentucky is not quite such lethal territory, Corvettes, Lincolns and Cadillacs are definitely the "rip-off's choice." Volkswagen specialists are also doing a land-office business these days.

Approximately 80 percent of all stolen cars are recovered, but the theft-recovery rate has been getting worse in recent years. In 1969, only 12 percent of all cars reported stolen in Kentucky were recovered by state police. Since then, the annual recovery rate has dropped to about nine percent.

The lowered recovery rate is one sure indication that professional car thievery is on the rise. Cars stolen by joyriders or for transportation are nearly always recovered, says Sherrard.

State police, local and federal authorities have racked up a monumental case against one suspected theft ring specializing in Volkswagens. A 25-county federal indictment has been returned against 28 persons. The ring is thought to have operated in Ohio, Tennessee, Kentucky and Arizona. The trial will involve 800 witnesses and take about three months.

"It is conceivable that 2,000 to 4,000 cars passed through this ring," says Sherrard.

The tedious and time-consuming task of nailing professional car thieves could be considerably aided in Kentucky by an adequate title law, says Detective Sergeant Richard McQuown, head of the auto theft section for the state police.

State police, who have long requested such a law, say that the revenue saved on investigating stolen cars would more than pay extra help for county clerks who must register state vehicles.

Currently in Kentucky, a person may register a vehicle using a fictitious name and sell it in the same day. The crook may give his victim, often a car dealer, some story about being "shipped out," said McQuown.

If the applications were checked and a mailing address required prior to registration as is necessary under a title law, law-breakers would be greatly hampered and fewer innocent purchasers would be duped.

"Usually, no thief waits around a mailbox for title papers," says McQuown.

The proportion of black and white high school graduates going on to college was 47.6 percent and 49.4 percent, respectively, in 1972.

The unemployment rate for women high school graduates not enrolled in college as of October 1972, was higher than for men with similar backgrounds.

School Construction Considered Legal Use Of Revenue Sharing
 The office of the Kentucky Attorney General has issued an opinion stating school construction can be a legal expenditure for Revenue Sharing Funds. The opinion was based on the following premises: (1) That such construction be ordinary and necessary in the particular school board program; (2) That the expenditure of the county funds follow the usual budgetary practice set forth in KRS Ch. 68; and (3) That the fiscal court exercise its sound judgment in integrating such proposed expenditure for school construction with a responsible program of county governmental priorities.

Health Dept. Warns Of Tetanus Threat

Summer is a time to be especially careful to avoid tetanus, according to Jane Wallace, Public Health Nurse for the Floyd County Health Department. Increased outdoor activities such as camping, gardening and outdoor sports raise the odds for suffering cuts, abrasions or burns that may be infected with tetanus germs.

These disease germs breed harmlessly in the intestines of humans and many farm animals, remaining harmless until they are introduced into the body through an injury. The germs are carried in dust on people's shoes; they adhere to vegetables like potatoes; they are carried on people's unwashed hands.

Tetanus is characterized by painful muscle spasms which cause the jaw to become rigid or "locked." If not treated promptly it is usually fatal. Even when medical measures are taken immediately, one patient in three dies. Since tetanus germs may remain inactive for a long time before causing lockjaw, a tetanus shot should always be given when a severe injury occurs.

Tetanus can best be avoided by active immunity. This can be assured by giving infants four introductory toxoid shots and boosters at age 12 and every 10 years thereafter. After an injury an additional shot will ensure complete safety. A patient who has had toxoid shots should carry a card stating that he is thus protected.

People who are not actively immunized and who have been injured should have a preventive injection of anti-tetanus serum. This type of injection gives the patient a passive immunity to the disease.

Immunizations are available at the Floyd County Health Department Monday-through-Friday, except when special clinics are held, and these dates will be announced in the local paper and radio stations.

Floyd Co. Health Dept. To Close May 1, 2

Due to the Early, Periodic and Diagnostic Screening Program, the Floyd County Health Department will be closed Tuesday and Wednesday, May 1 and 2. Regular business will resume Thursday, May 3.

Grigsby To Coach 15th Region For All-Star Game Set June 1

The newest of all-star basketball events will pit the top players of the Fifteenth region against the Fourteenth region all-stars, and Floyd county's Pete Grigsby, Jr. has been selected to coach the 15th region's best.

The game, to be played June 1 at Hazard's Memorial Gym, will be the first truly all-Mountain all-star basketball game ever. It is being sponsored by the Hazard Jaycees and the Martin Kiwanis Club, all proceeds to go to charity.

Coach Grigsby has just concluded a highly successful season by leading McDowell high school to the championships of the 58th district and the 15th region and to a trip to the state finals. The Daredevils ended the season with a 25-12 one lost record, under Grigsby's leadership, McDowell has compiled a 315-113 won-lost record over a period of 12 years. This includes three 15th regional championships in 1966, 1971, and 1973, plus two regional runner-up spots in 1963 and 1968. All 12 of his McDowell teams have won 20 or more games each year.

Mike Terry, head coach of the Elkhorn City Cougars, has been chosen as his assistant coach for the all-star event.

U.S. Coal Production Generally Down, But Kentucky Has Gain

The nation's up-and-down coal production took a nosedive at the beginning of April, but the Kentucky production picture was not a part of that drop. Actually, Kentucky coal production for the week ended March 31 was 2,558,000 tons, and that 328,000 tons the state's mine did in the first week of April, 1972, according to U. S. Bureau of Mines estimates.

The total production of bituminous coal and lignite for the week ended April 7 is estimated by the bureau at 10.1 million tons, a drop of 14 per cent from the previous week. Production in the corresponding week one year ago was 11,680,000 tons.

The total production for 1973 as of April 7 was estimated by the bureau at 152,460,000 tons, 6.8 per cent short of last year's cumulative total of 163,625,000 tons as of April 8.

Here are the bureau's estimates of weekly coal production in Eastern states for the weeks ended March 31, 1973 and April 11 1972, respectively, in thousands of tons:

Library Notes

(Floyd County Librarian)

Spring, forward; Fall, back. With those four words, the mystery of adjusting to daylight savings time is solved for the layman, as long as he remembers to turn his clocks forward on April 29 this year.

But, according to records at the Floyd County Public Library, credit for the idea goes to Benjamin Franklin who made the suggestion in 1784. The first country to put it into effect, however, was Germany, which began the practice in 1916 during World War I in an effort to conserve electricity.

In fact, War Time was the original name for daylight savings time throughout most of the world during both World Wars.

At present, the United States is operating under a 1966 law which says all states must set their clocks ahead on the last Sunday in April and turn them back on the last Sunday in October. That is, of course, unless a state decides it wants to say on Standard Time throughout the year.

But if you want the whole story, check the public library. The last word in mysteries can always be found there.

A project involving 95 eighth graders teaching 1,400 fourth graders has been carried off successfully in the Bethlehem area school district in Pennsylvania. The eighth graders volunteered to serve as craftsmen and, in committees of four or five, researched and perfected techniques in demonstrating 200-year-old crafts such as candle dipping, leather tanning, barrel making, spinning and weaving.

The 47 seniors, including those pictured above, listened to Oral History tapes and visited with five ALC teachers, including Al Stewart, editor of Appalachian Heritage magazine. The Tennessee students were particularly interested in the historical and social significance of Mrs. Alice Geddes Lloyd to the region.

Sports Afield

By Ted Kesting

Power and plenty of it is rocking the once-seclude and small world of electric outboards. Almost all the big electric names have come out with new motors which utilize 24-volt operation to deliver power that must measure in the three- to four-hp range. What's important is that electric power has shucked its image as only auxiliary power. One company has a prototype motor behind which it claims a 12-year-old can water ski.

"These big power packages can be utilized in any number of ways," declares Zack Taylor, Boating Editor of Sports Afield, "No longer will fishermen be restricted to 'electric only' lakes, or have to team up two smaller machines to gain reasonable boat speed from spot to spot. One of the big boys will more than double speed because drag is reduced. I'd estimate that if you hook a 24-volter onto a 12-foot johnboat loaded with two guys and gear, fish, etc., you'd still have speeds in the seven-to-nine-mph range. Not much by gasoline standards, to be sure, but infinitely more satisfactory than the former tortoise crawl."

There's no doubt you can thank those finny fellows with the big mouths and evil dispositions for these new machines. Bass boats, largemouth-bass boats and foot-controlled electrics form one of the all-time-great triumvirates. The fantastic popularity of bass boats across the South, Southwest and now the Middle West, has hauled electric motors into the 20th century—and these boats have been getting bigger. Starcraft recently launched a new line, for example, with an 18-footer as the top choice. You take a vessel that size, and a smaller electric motor will control it if there's not much wind, tide or current. Apply any of these to-be-expected natural forces, and you'll require real authority to combat them. To all of you boatmen who own 18- to 20-footers that you've hesitated to equip with an electric-power plant for just this reason, your time has come.

There is no penalty for the added power. The new capacitor discharge ignitions largely eliminate the problem of motors fouling-out under sustained trolling conditions as the spark blasts the plug clean even at slow speeds. With a variable-power electric motor, however, the problem of too much speed (and consequent need for a troll plate) never arises. You can dial the dude down to a whisper, and all it will do is run longer.

For a long time, there has been smoke that Johnson Outboards and Evinrude, leaders in the gasoline-outboard field, were planning to enter the electric field. As we go to press, flames are crackling. Apparently, they will each introduce a single 12-volt electric motor, available at all their dealers.

Computer To Hold Registration Of Voters After September 24

By JEANNE BECKETT

Frankfort, Ky.—The name of every registered eligible Kentucky voter will be a part of a computer memory bank when the re-registration deadline of September 24 is reached.

"There may be errors and problems this year, but after this year it will be the greatest thing that ever happened in Kentucky," Mrs. Thelma Stovall, secretary of state, commented as she explained the operations in the new Board of Elections offices.

Reregistering of the state's estimated one and one-half million voters begins in the clerk's office with registrations entered on new cards. The cards are then forwarded in groups of 300 to the data control office for a general checking for completeness and correct entries.

"The clerks have done a fine job, mistakes are few and minor," said Mrs. Stovall.

Information on the cards is then fed into the computer bank by 24 machines. The end result will be a complete list of every Kentucky voter, by precinct and in alphabetical order.

But, it is the fringe benefits that will be the most help. Print-outs of the precinct lists will provide space for the voter signature. When returned to the state office, these will offer a running check on the registration lists and provide automatic purging.

Cards also place the sex, color and occupation of each voter in the computer printouts. These stipulations brought some initial objections, but when clerks were made aware of the immediate tabulation possible if this information were included, they endorsed the inclusions on the cards. National organizations and news media repeatedly request voter registration breakdowns on such things as black and white voters, white or blue collar voters, male or female. This will now be available.

The State Board of Elections has not even had a thorough check on how many precincts were in operation in Kentucky. Reports were requested from fiscal courts when changes were made, but these were not compulsory.

Mrs. Stovall anticipates the most problems this year with precinct breakdowns. Many voters who have continued to vote in the same precinct despite an address change will now have to vote in proper precincts.

Another problem clerks are finding is in social security numbers that end in letters. Those ending in A, M, T or JL are acceptable. Some letter endings, however, deal with persons utilizing social security numbers of others for some fringe benefit. These are therefore not the actual number of the registrant and are not valid.

The computer will eliminate the need for a local purgation board. Instead, the board of elections will hold the hearings for purged voters when necessary.

New voter cards are currently being held by the clerks because of the proximity of the May 29 primary. "April 5 was the deadline for new voters and they will not be able to register again until five days after the primary," Mrs. Stovall explained.

Mailing of these records into the state office and back might result in the only record of the new voter being held up, so these cards are being held until after the primary election day.

Persons reregistering may continue to do so daily until September 24. They are being urged to take this action as quickly as possible because the initial flow of forms has cut back to a trickle and only 189,000 cards have now been processed.

"This is a far cry from the estimated one and one-half million Kentucky voters that must reregister this year," Mrs. Stovall said.

Unless reregistered by the deadline, Kentuckians will be deprived of the right to vote in the November election when most state legislators and county officials are to be elected.

Water Co. Ordered To Improve System

The Public Service Commission has ordered the Auxier Water Company to make major improvements to its system to solve the problem of inadequate water service.

Improvements ordered by the Commission are:

1. Addition of a 20,000-gallon storage tank with an overflow elevation of 780 feet above sea level.

2. The two-inch main from the tank site to the intersection at the beginning of Executive Estates subdivision to be reinforced with an additional four-inch main (a line approximately 1,300 feet in length).

3. The booster pump station to remain at the present location on US 23 at the Johnson-Floyd county line. The pump station is to be enclosed and protected from the elements and contain a dual pump system to prevent interrupted service in case of breakdown. The pumps also must be capable of delivering at least 17 gallons per minute and provide sufficient head to fill the storage tank with an overflow elevation of 780 feet above mean sea level at a rate of flow of 17 gallons per minute.

The Commission has ordered the improvements to be completed in not more than six months, and the company must file monthly progress reports.

TEACHERS WIN SALARY SUIT

Four Akron, Ohio, teachers have been awarded back pay totalling $21,029.15 from a suit filed in 1969 claiming they should be paid on the "master's degree or equivalent" scale, as stated in the district's policy. None of the four had a master's degree, but all had at least thirty semester hours of credit which the court ruled met the requirement. The Common Pleas Court decision was recently upheld by the Ninth District Court of Appeals.

Free Help Available For Kentucky Youth

Frankfort, Ky.—"I think it's important that young people in Kentucky know they have someone to contact when they have a problem, regardless of its nature," said Bob Arnold, co-director of the Office of Youth Affairs.

Arnold was speaking to the Kentucky Youth Assembly, gathered in Frankfort recently to learn more of governmental procedures.

If you pick up your phone and dial 1-800-372-2973, on the other end will be the Office of Youth Affairs (OYA), an agency Gov. Wendell Ford created last July by executive order.

The OYA was established to serve

Kentucky's young people and their needs, a broad responsibility assigned to the office's co-directors, Ken Foree and Bob Arnold. The office primarily acts as an informational clearing house for the many opportunities federal, state, and local governments offer Kentucky's youth. "If you need information but don't know where to receive it, you can call us toll-free and we'll put you in contact with the proper agency or program if we can't answer your questions," Arnold said.

Arnold, Foree and administrative assistant John Schlich have been visiting schools and colleges across the state to publicize the services of OYA. Arnold stressed the fact that the legislature would determine next year whether to continue OYA and it could be continued only if Kentucky's youth made use of this service.

The office has moved to its new home at 854 East Main Street and young people are invited to drop in, call, or mail in their problems to Box 123, Frankfort Ky., 40601.

LIBRARIANS CHANGE

Miss Margaret F. Willis will retire July 1, 1973 as state librarian, a post she has held since 1957. Gov. Wendell Ford has announced that Charles Franklin Hinds, Murray, will replace Miss Willis. Hinds has been director of libraries at Murray State University for six years and will continue there until July 1.

KENTUCKY YOUTH ASSEMBLY—Bob Arnold, co-director of the Office of Youth Affairs, tells the Kentucky Youth Assembly about the services available through his office. The students were in Frankfort learning more about governmental procedures in a true-to-life situation.

If you are one of several hundred sportsmen who annually go out to hunt wild turkey, it may occur to you that you are engaged in an almost forgotten Kentucky sport.

There are many vivid stories told by the grandfathers who hunted this majestic bird in the early 1900's. The last statewide season was held during the 1915-1916 season. Then the season was closed until 1960, when a special wild turkey hunt was opened for a short period in what is now known as Land Between the Lakes.

Of all the game species that Kentucky's ardent hunters pursue, none is more elusive or more prized than the wild turkey. It is considered by many to be the most intelligent of all North American game species. This year Kentuckians will again be seeking this coveted trophy in designated counties and special areas of the Commonwealth during the latter part of April and the first part of May.

The Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources started a stocking program back in 1946. Over the years it has been successful in reestablishing this great bird in several areas of the Commonwealth.

Turkey flocks require areas of ideal habitat, 2,000 to 5,000 acres of mature hardwood forest in order to thrive. Their main food is wild fruits and seeds. Beech and acorn mast are two of the prime items of their diets. Each season there are some 10-20 turkey gobblers harvested from the open hunting areas. These trophies will average close to 20 pounds each.

Department game biologists estimate that today's overall turkey population is approximately 1,300-1,500 birds.

The turkey season runs from April 28 through May 6 in the following designated counties or portions of counties: that part of McCreary County east of U. S. 27 and north of Ky. 92, Pulaski, Clay, Leslie, Jackson, Owsley, Wolfe, Bath, Menifee, Powell, Laurel, Rockcastle, Lee, Rowan and that part of Whitley County north of Ky. 92. That area known as Robinson Forest Wildlife Management Area in Breathitt, Knott and Perry Counties is closed to all hunting. All other portions of these three counties are open to turkey hunting.

Only one turkey gobbler with visible beard may be taken by a hunter per season. A successful hunter cannot assist any other hunter in taking turkey. The use of dogs in turkey hunting is prohibited. Any person hunting turkey must have in his or her possession a valid Kentucky hunting license. Residents of states that do not allow residents of Kentucky to hunt turkey during open seasons in those states are prohibited from hunting turkey in Kentucky.

Turkey may be taken with the aid of hand-operated or mouth-operated calls, or both. Electronic calls are prohibited. Turkey hunters may use shotguns, muzzle-loading shotguns, muzzle-loading rifles and modern breech-loading rifles. Shotguns must not be larger than 12 gauge nor smaller than 20 gauge. Only shot shells are permitted. Slugs are prohibited. No sidearms are permitted. Bow hunters must use barbless arrows with broadhead points at least 3/8 inch wide. Crossbows are legal only on the Pioneer Weapons Hunting Area in Bath and Menifee Counties. Crossbows must be of at least 80 pounds pull, and arrows must be barbless with broadhead points at least 3/8 inch wide.

In addition to the above designated counties, there are three special areas where turkey hunting will be permitted: Fort Knox Wildlife Management Area, Land Between the Lakes Wildlife Management Area and the Pioneer Weapons Hunting Area. The special regulations for the Fort Knox and Pioneer Weapons hunts are available from the Department of Fish and Wildlife, Frankfort 40601. Special regulations for Land Between the Lakes may be obtained from the LBL office, Golden Pond, Kentucky 42231.

Perkins Bill Would Repeal Fee Levying By Army Engineers

Congressmen Carl D. Perkins last week introduced legislation to repeal the Corps of Engineers' authority to levy fees for the use of recreation areas at lakes and reservoirs under its control.

The measure, H. R. 6810, was referred to the Committee on Public Works for study.

Perkins' bill followed a Corps announcement earlier this year of a system of user charges for camping areas and other developed locations. That was based upon a provision of the Land and Water Conservation Fund Act of 1965, which requires all federal agencies having jurisdiction over recreation areas to make comparable charges.

The Perkins bill would exempt the Corps of Engineers from that requirement.

"Personally, I don't think it is right to charge the public a fee for the use of recreation facilities that the public's money paid for in the first place," the Seventh District Congressman said.

 After talking to numerous people in Floyd County, I have found much resentment because six of your precincts have been added to Pike County. I can understand your concern about this situation, and the fear that you will not be represented.
 I would like for the people to know that if I am elected I will do everything I possibly can for them as we are both Eastern Kentucky
 counties in which I am greatly interested. I further promise to make every effort to have their precincts returned to Floyd county as under the law it is now possible and should be done.
 If my opponent is elected, he will not want to see this happen as he is expecting his largest number of votes from them and will do nothing to have it changed back for the people.
 So I hope you will give this matter some serious thought and decide how you want your precincts to remain.
 Again let me reassure you that you will not be let down in representation if I am elected.
 Thank you,

Pol. Adv., 4-25-5t.

Friends, Relatives, Politicians . . .
I state plain facts. In our last Magistrate's race our present Magistrate defeated me by only 44 votes, including absentee votes.
YOU HAVE BUT ONE CHOICE. This race for Magistrate is between Edward Caudill and TED H. SALISBURY. All the candidates for this office are my friends, and this race won't change that.
YOU ARE FOR ME OR FOR EDWARD C. CAUDILL. A vote for the other candidates is a vote to keep Eddie Caudill in office as Magistrate. He has had the office for years—let me serve you, just once.

Vote for
TED H. SALISBURY
Magistrate, Dist. No. 3
(Pol. Adv. paid for by the candidate)
To The People of Magisterial
District Number 2
As all of you know the election is drawing near. It is in your hands to choose the one that will be your next Magistrate. I am a democrat candidate for reelection to the office.
I have worked very hard and tried to make your tax money do as much good as I could for you people.
If re-elected my only promise is to do all the good I can to help everyone.
I have been informed that there's a rumor going around that if I am elected I will give the office to some one else. That is not true. That never did enter my mind. If elected I will be your Magistrate.
So if I don't get to see you between now and election day I hope you will come out and vote for me.
Again, I want to thank you for your vote of confidence you have had in me in the past.
FOR BETTER ROADS, A SOBER AND HONEST ADMINISTRATION, PEACE AND GOOD WILL TO ALL. VOTE FOR ZEB OUSLEY, FOR JUSTICE OF THE PEACE. No. 3 on the ballot.

THIS IS MY PLATFORM:
1. I am for the county to be voted wet with package stores, in order to stop the bootlegging and to help stop the dope peddling to our school children; 2. I will give the young men a chance! I will use young men from 21 to 30 for my deputies. For every four young men, there will be an older man to teach him law and order; 3. Uniforms for deputies; 4. Deputies for all ballgames and school programs; 5. Escorts for all funerals; 6. I will have traffic deputies for all large churches and gatherings (if asked for); 7. I will support all organizations; 8. Equal and honest law enforcement to all!

JOE W. LEWIS AND HIS RECORD
(The following is a copy of a Page 1 news-story published in The Floyd County Times on Jan. 8, 1970)
Circuit Judge Hollie Conley, in his instructions to the grand jury empaneled Monday for the first court term of the new year, called for strict enforcement of the "dry" law in this county.
He pointed to the overwhelming dry vote cast at last year's local option election and told the jury it should work to see that the people have what they obviously want.
"For the past three or four years," Judge Conley remarked, "our county has been in pretty good shape." He commended outgoing sheriff, Joe W. Lewis, for a job well-done. "I'm sure the new sheriff will do an equally good job," he added.
"Whiskey violations," the judge told the jury, "are not the worst crimes to be brought before you, but many times when there is a murder, a breaking and entering, a child desertion or a broken home, whiskey is involved."
For four years of honest, impartial enforcement of the law, vote for Joe W. Lewis for Sheriff
Democratic primary, May 29

Who Does Bill Reynolds Really Represent In Frankfort?

1. DOES BILL REYNOLDS REPRESENT FLOYD COUNTY—THE SIXTH LARGEST COAL PRODUCING COUNTY IN KENTUCKY? OR DOES HE REPRESENT THE OIL AND GAS INTERESTS OF HIS EMPLOYER, UNITED FUEL GAS COMPANY? Bill Reynolds has had 10 years in Frankfort to represent the people of Floyd County. If he really has our interests at heart, why did he vote to put a severance tax on coal, while leaving it off oil and gas and all other minerals produced in Kentucky? More than 2000 Floyd Countians depend on coal for their means of livelihood, yet Bill Reynolds voted to put a crippling tax on this industry.
2. IS BILL REYNOLDS TRYING TO GET THE BEST LAWS FOR CUSTOMERS OF PUBLIC UTILITIES, OR THE BEST DEAL FOR HIS CRONIES IN WEST VIRGINIA AND WESTERN KENTUCKY WHO RUN THE PUBLIC UTILITIES? Bill Reynolds has been a member of the Public Utilities Committee in the House of Representatives every year since he went to Frankfort. This committee has total legislative power over water, telephone, electricity and gas services to Kentuckians. In all those ten years, Bill Reynolds has had the power to see that laws favorable to big business utility companies got passed, and those unfavorable (or which might help the utilities customers) were kept in committee—never getting to other members of the House for a vote. Check your own phone bill . . . electric bill . . . gas bill . . . water bill. Have they been going up or down? Yet Bill Reynolds brags about being the Frankfort "roommate" of J. R. Miller, the Western Kentucky czar of rural electrification, who makes million's from this so-called "public" utility. Could this explain why J. R. Miller, a citizen of Owensboro (by way of Mississippi) has entered into this Floyd County Representative race with a vengeance—writing letters to all precinct committee men and women, urging the re-election of Bill Reynolds? This is the same J. R. Miller who is Chairman of the Democratic Party of Kentucky—a man who should by all means remain neutral in a Democratic Primary Election.

IN MEMORIAM

In memory of Mrs. K. F. Hall (Maggie), who passed away April 23, 1972:

A Mother from us is gone,
A voice we loved is still,
A place is vacant in our home
Which never can be filled.
Oh, dear mother, how we miss you,
We all did love you so.
Jesus called you to heaven,
We know you had to go.
And we hope someday we will meet you
Where we shall part no more.

Missed by her children,
sisters and brother.

Ropes Director Tells School Leaders Cooperative Buying Advantages

Reo Johns, director of ROPES Region 11, encouraged superintendents at the April 19 board of directors meeting to sign the agreement between local school districts and the State Department of Finance in order to take advantage of state price contracts. It was pointed out that a savings of 58 percent could be realized on some items.

The meeting was held at Allen Central high school, and Charles Clark, regional board of directors chairman, presided.

Virgil Porter, superintendent of Johnson county schools, reported on the importance of buying from the state contract price list and told of the savings that could be realized. Oran Teater also reported that the Paintsville city schools are taking advantage of state price contracts and realizing a great savings.

Bronelle Skaggs, assistant director of ROPES Region 11, and regional director of Vocational Education Programs, told the board that vocational schools in Kentucky, in order to meet the guidelines of federal legislation, are accredited by either the State Department of Education or an accrediting association. Kentucky vocational schools will be accredited by the Southern Association of Schools and Colleges, Division of Occupational Education. On April 2, 3 and 4 a state evaluation team visited Mayo, Garth, Millard, Belfry, and Martin county vocational centers and gave a good report on these institutions. The Southern Association team will be asked to come to Region 11 in October and evaluate these schools in order that they may be accredited by the Southern Association.

The board of directors went on record as supporting the Eastern Kentucky Concentrated Employment Program and requested that this program be funded again.

Shirley Beard reported in the absence of Harry Eastburn, executive director of the Big Sandy Community Action Program, on the Region 11 Music Educators Association prospectus. Mr. Beard said that it was suggested that Mrs. Helen Colley, chairman of the region's Music Educators Association, select a committee to work with the Big Sandy Community Action Agency and the ROPES staff in developing a music program for the disadvantaged within the federal guidelines.

The board of directors went on record as supporting three project applications. Two project applications were submitted by the City of Prestonsburg asking for the paving of .2 mile of access road and 30 campsite pads at Archer Park, and acquisition of a park site to be developed to serve public housing residents and the general populace of the Goble-Roberts Addition, subdivision of South Prestonsburg. The third project application, submitted by the Kentucky Bureau of Vocational Education, asked for the purchase of two lots, approximately 1.2 acres, that are adjacent to the Mayo State Vocational-Technical School campus at Paintsville to provide for the expansion of facilities in the future.

Ray Brackett, Title I director, Floyd county schools, and chairman of developing the proposal Project Lead, reported that the project proposal would be submitted to Dr. Stella Edwards, Division of Special Education, in Frankfort, April 20. This project consists of a regional supervisor to work with teachers of the handicapped in the seven school districts. The total proposed budget for this project is $17,875. This project was developed by the ROPES staff and local school superintendents and approved in December by the ROPES board of directors.

Mary Music reported on federal funding for Manpower Training in Region 11 and gave the board copies of a report she had prepared showing regional Manpower programs.

Don Burchett, regional guidance supervisor for the State Department of Education, announced that a regional guidance conference at Jenny Wiley State Park, April 23 and 24.

Garlena Pool, regional lunchroom supervisor, reported on lunchroom reimbursement.

Frank Hamilton, assistant director of Eastern Kentucky Education Development Corporation, asked the seven school superintendents to decide by the next board meeting if they want to continue with computer assisted instruction in Region 11.

Dr. John Duncan, dean of graduate studies, Morehead State University, and a member of the ROPES board of directors, gave a brief report on the possibility of establishing extension classes in the vocational and general education fields.

Dr. Kenneth Hansson, Eastern Kentucky University, also a member of the board of directors, gave a report on the Veterans Outreach Program. He said that hopefully a veteran's representative can be placed soon in the Region 11 office here to work with veterans in the five-county area.

After the meeting lunch was served to the Board of Directors, visitors, and members of the ROPES staff by David Hensley, principal of Allen Central high school. Supt. Clark conducted a tour of the new high school.

The next board of directors meeting will be held at Porter elementary school, Johnson county, May 24.

—SPORTS AFIELD

At a press conference in Washington, D. C. the official announcement has been made that Kentucky will be the showcase state at the annual Smithsonian Institution Folklife Festival. During July 3-8 over one million visitors are expected to view the state's industrial and cultural contributions to the development of America.

State Improves Highway Safety

Frankfort, Ky.—Kentucky has made significant advances during the past year in its effort to meet federal highway safety standards, according to a report just released by the Kentucky Department of Public Safety.

The report was prepared by the department's Office of Highway Safety Programs and backed by an earlier evaluation from the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration (NHTSA). It puts Kentucky in the middle third or "average" performance group for 1972. All 50 states were represented in the ratings.

Public Safety Commissioner Ron L. Johnson said, in releasing the report, that the position earned by Kentucky contrasted markedly with an earlier evaluation released by NHTSA only one year ago. "At that time, we were one of six other states at the bottom of the 'below average' scale," he said. Johnson pointed out several factors which, he said, had an important bearing on Kentucky's improved position.

Federal spending for traffic programs at state and local levels in Kentucky has risen from $304,000 in 1968 to $1.2 million during 1972. The total federal outlay over that four-year span was in excess of $6.2 million.

Johnson said driver education was one factor in Kentucky's improvement. The percentage of teen-aged youths registered for driver education has jumped from ten per cent in 1967 to a projected 58 per cent for 1972-73. In addition, the number of high schools equipped to meet driver education enrollment will reach 293 within the year.

Another program getting increased attention during the year was a three-part plan to overhaul emergency medical services in Kentucky. As a result of this plan, work is expected to begin in about two months on the development and installation of a statewide ambulance-to-hospital communications system.

Johnson said 650 persons have been enrolled in 21 courses for training and certification as emergency medical technicians. A total of 25 courses is planned.

Finally, an Emergency Medical Services Committee has been organized to oversee a proposed Comprehensive Emergency Medical Services Program by providing technical aid to, and coordinating the efforts of, all agencies involved in emergency medical services. The committee will also administer the licensing of ambulance services.

Knott County's First Majorettes

These youngsters have the distinction of not only being Knott county's first majorettes but they are the only majorettes in the county. The girls range from the first through the fourth grade. They have performed before packed houses of Knott county fans at both grade school and high school basketball games. The Junior Majorettes have also performed on different occasions at Alice Lloyd College basketball games. The majorettes are sponsored by Patti Rose, reading teacher at Alice Lloyd College, and Ruth Thornsberry, reading teacher at Caney elementary school.

East Kentucky Strip Damages Held Severest

The Congressional sub-committee on mines and mining toured parts of Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Kentucky and Ohio last week to see the effects of strip-mining, and the chairman of the committee found that the situation is bad in West Virginia but not comparable to the ravages inflicted on Eastern Kentucky. Congresswoman Patsy Mink (D-Hawaii), who heads the subcommittee, said Saturday at the end of the tour that "no amount of pictures and slides can tell you to what extent the land has been abused."

Her comment on the greater damage done in Eastern Kentucky followed visits to surface mining operations in Knott, Perry and Breathitt counties. Most of the tour was by helicopter.

Mrs. Mink and Reps. John F. Seiberling, D-Ohio; Philip E. Ruppe, R-Mich.; Morris K. Udall, D-Ariz.; Keith G. Sebelius, R-Kan. and William M. Ketchum, R-Calif., made the tour of strip mined lands.

Following the tour, Mrs. Mink said she is convinced that federal legislation must be stronger and more strictly enforced than present Kentucky and West Virginia laws.

Seiberling said earlier in West Virginia that a law abolishing strip mining is the only solution unless Congress imposes adequate controls on the practice.

"The burden should be on those who want to tear up the land, not those working to save it," said Seiberling.

W. S. C. S. MEETS

The Women's Society of Christian Service of the Betsy Layne United Methodist Church met April 5 at the home of Mrs. Eliza Blackburn. After the business meeting, a short program was presented by the president, Mrs. B. C. Caldwell. Refreshments were served to Mrs. Curtis Wallen, Mrs. Dale Meade, Mrs. Bob Lawson, Mrs. Glen Blackburn, Mrs. Kelse Elliott, Mrs. Emory Osborne, Mrs. Edward Lykins, Mrs. Dean Osborne, and Mrs. Eliza Blackburn, and Mrs. B. C. Caldwell.

Kentucky Welfare Association Reacts Unfavorable To Cutback

Frankfort, Ky.—Charles Cain, Department of Health, Education and Welfare assistant regional administrator from Atlanta, recently spoke to about 450 members of the Kentucky Welfare Association at their spring conference at Lake Cumberland and outlined projected federal budget plans which call for the elimination or reduction of several social service programs.

"There is an erroneous impression that the outlay for human services is a bare bones budget," said Cain. "Actually, HEW will get an increase in dollars and percentage of the total federal budget." Cain disclosed that requested appropriations for social services in fiscal year 1973 will be reduced from an already controversial $2.5 billion to $2 billion.

He said an estimated 25,000 letters protesting the proposed guidelines for social services have apparently caused HEW to postpone implementation until their effect on existing programs are reassessed.

Visibly concerned, Economic Security Commissioner Gail S. Huecker reacted unfavorably to Cain's remarks, saying that the "new federalism" is telling people what they can and cannot do with their own tax money.

"We at the state and local level are intelligent enough to determine what Kentucky's priorities are," she said. "And I urge all KWA members and interested citizens to write their congressmen."

Commissioner Huecker said the "pressure must be put on Washington." Further reductions in general and special revenue sharing monies, she said, will have disastrous consequences throughout Kentucky and the nation.

"There is encouragement from those people who are attempting to decide how to best use the resources we have available in the Commonwealth to serve needy and deserving people," she said. "But we have to continually let our elected officials know that the money coming from revenue sharing must be used for those programs which are now in danger of being eliminated or slowly phased out."

KWA President Ted Issing labeled the administration's "new federalism" as a "strategy to divide and conquer." "This plan," he said, "will inevitably put interest against interest in the fight to secure funding for individual programs and projects presently under attack by HEW."

Part of the Kentucky Welfare Association's plan to turn back the siege of threatened poverty programs is a two-pronged counter-attack of canvassing candidates for public office and writing letters to local, county, and state officials.

Questionnaires to be used by members when interviewing candidates for office were distributed at the conference. Information obtained from them will be published before the November election to allow voters to see where candidates stand on priority issues.

Some of these priorities, said Issing, include population control, improved welfare programs, strict enforcement of strip mining laws, voluntary family planning, sex education in the schools and greater consumer representation on state and local boards of health.

"We have no desire to support any particular candidate or specific political doctrine," said Issing. "But we do intend to exercise our right to inform the public through the democratic process."

CARD OF THANKS

We would like to express our appreciation to all friends, neighbors and relatives who were so kind and sympathetic to us in our time of bereavement. The many beautiful flowers and expressions of sympathy are truly appreciated. We want to extend a special thank-you to Rev. Henry Crider, C. R. Vote for
FORREST McCOWN
For District 30, UMWA, President
My opponent last week made some remark about me that is not true. He said, in effect, that my qualifications are based only on the fact that I voted for and supported President Miller in the national election.
I served as Vice-President at WHEELWRIGHT Local Union for some time, as Mine Committeeman for many years and on the Safety committee. My opponent worked in a truck mine in Perry county where they had about 15 or 20 members and served as Vice-President over that many men. I serve from 1,200 to 1,400 men, and I think I am more qualified than he is.
At Wheelwright Local 5899 my opponent received 76 votes. I received 63. Mr. Feltner, you got 5.
Vote for a man who can and will help the disabled miners, widows, pensioners and active miners.

Martin To Have Part

Marham, England—U. S. Air Force Staff Sgt. Chalmers R. Martin, son of Mrs. Nora Martin, Langley, Ky., has been selected to participate with the Strategic Air Command (SAC) in the Royal Air Force Strike Command Bombing and Navigation Competition in England, April 29 through May 5.

Sgt. Martin, an avionics instrument systems technician with the 17th Bomb Wing from Wright-Patterson AFB, Ohio, will help provide support for his B-52 Stratofortress bomber crew flying in the competition. Four B-52 crews will be competing and will fly their missions from Marham RAF Station.

SAC units, competing in their seventh Royal Air Force event, will be after their fourth straight Blue Steel Trophy—awarded to the crew with the best combined bombing and navigation score—and their second consecutive electronics trophy, given to the best navigation crew.

"The Living Bible" 1972 Best Seller

"The Living Bible," a paraphrase of the Bible in modern English, was the country's best-selling book in 1972.

It tops Publishers Weekly's non-fiction list on the basis of nearly 2 million sales through Doubleday & Company, Inc. An additional 5 million copies were sold by Tyndale House Publishers. Dr. Kenneth Taylor, who paraphrased "The Living Bible," is president of Tyndale House.

"Jonathan Livingston Seagull," best seller in the fiction category, sold approximately 2 million copies to move to the top of the best-selling fiction books after a slow start.

"The Living Bible" has out-sold such non-fiction books "I'm O. K., You're O. K." (Harper & Rowe) by Thomas Harris; "Open Marriage" (M. Evans) by Nena and George O'Neill, and "Harry S. Truman" (Morrow) by Margaret Truman. Lower on the list was Ruth Montgomery's "A World Beyond" (Cowan, McCann, Georghegan). "The Living Bible" also has outsold two cook-books and a book on weight loss.

It has outsold the fiction list—including Alexander Solzhenitsyn's "August, 1914" (Farrar, Straus & Giroux) and two best sellers by Frederick Forsyth (Viking Press), "The Odessa File" and "The Day of the Jackal."

In fifth place on the fiction list was Irvin Wallace's "The Word" (Simon & Schuster). The book deals with the fictional discovery of an ancient manuscript in Biblical times. "Two From Galilee," Marjorie Holmes' "Love Story" of Mary and Joseph (Revell) ranked eighth. Lower in fiction was "My Name Is Asher Lev" by Chaim Potok (Knopf) and "Semi-Tough" by Dan Jenkins (Atheneum).

Sculpin cottidae or "bullheads" (a misnomer) are all names for a small, brown, stickle-spined minnow, which indeed, looks like a small bullhead. They're found throughout the country, and amount to the finest minnow bait for trout.
