

THIS ROCKSLIDE which blocked US 23, near the Ky. National Guard armory Monday afternoon, was described by Denton Billiter, district engineer, Department of Highways, Pikeville, as "the largest I've ever seen on a road." The rockfall which was estimated to be 20 feet high, blocked traffic both north and south of the site for several miles. Because of the size of the rock, drilling and blasting will be necessary to move it, and heavier equipment has been brought in. Billiter said removal of the rock will require the remainder of this week and could extend into next. Although the highway is one of the most heavily travelled in Eastern Kentucky and traffic was heavy at the time of the fall, nobody was injured.

Pike Jury Names Grid Coach Hall

An indictment handed down last week by a Pike Circuit Court grand jury names a Betsy Layne High School football coach on a 3½-year-old charge of sodomy.

The grand jury charges that Jack Hall, 52, forcibly engaged in "deviant sexual intercourse" with a 15-year-old girl student at Elkhorn City High School, where Hall was then teacher and football coach, on March 3, 1982.

Hall, a coach for 25 years, continued to teach at the school until this year, when his coaching contract was not renewed. He was employed by the Floyd Board of Education this summer to fill a vacancy created at Betsy Layne by the resignation of Bobby Phillips.

Arraigned Friday before Pike Circuit Judge Will T. Scott, Hall pleaded not guilty to the felony charge. His attorney, Al Brooks, said Hall was "absolutely" innocent of the charge.

Acting Superintendent Ray Brackett said Floyd administrators conducted a background check on Hall before hiring (See Story No. 5, Page 4)

Boyd Reelected DeRossett, Owens Are Magistrates

A cold, daylong drizzle put the damper on a general election yesterday (Tuesday) that began without much fire in the first place and ended without surprises.

In the race generating most interest countywide, County Clerk Carla Boyd fended off a strong challenge by Prestonsburg merchant Ron Frasure, the Republican candidate, by 6076 votes to 4220. (All vote totals are unofficial and do not include absentee ballots, which number about 230.)

In the closely contested first magisterial district race, Democratic incumbent Gerald DeRossett managed to outrun radio broadcaster Gorman Collins, Jr., 1899 votes to 1760. In the three-way second district race, Democratic nominee Jackie Edford Owens (1410) came in ahead of Birchell Duff (967), who ran on the independent ticket, and Republican William E. Flannery (278).

His recent conviction on a forged check charge did not prevent Third District Magistrate Edward Caudill from outdistancing Republican Curtis Hall by 1363 votes to 988. In the fourth district, which incumbent Lowell Samons lost in the primary, Ernal Tackett polled 1543 to Rofolo Newsom's 359.

In the non-partisan race for 31st district judge, incumbent Harold Stumbo beat back a challenge by former public defender Ned Pillersdorf, 3953 to (See Story No. 6, Page 4)

Ex-Teacher Seeks Action On Suit Against Co. Board

The Floyd Board of Education is going to find no easy way out of its legal tussle with a former special education teacher. Once described by ex-Supt. E.P. Grigsby, Jr. as "brassy," Mary Pamela Precht is at least a determined fighter.

In a recent letter to the chairman of the state Board of Education—with copies sent to no fewer than 17 different politicians, bureaucrats and news organizations—Precht noted that her lawsuit against the Floyd board is now in its second year, is costing the taxpayer a bundle, and will cost a lot more if the board does not offer her an honorable settlement soon.

The special education teacher taught severely handicapped children for four years at Dwale, where the program was then located, and was eligible for tenure when, in June last year, then-Supt. Grigsby told her her services would no longer be needed.

There had been complaints from parents, the superintendent said, that the teacher had slapped in the mouth one of the eight youngsters in her care. She was said to have had words with Danny Branson, principal of Allen Elementary School, with which the Dwale unit was affiliated, over the scheduling of lunch periods. And she had an "attitude" problem, Grigsby said, that flared up in a telephone conversation in which she was so abusive he had to hang up on her.

In his 27½ years as a school employee he had "never been talked to more disrespectfully by any teacher," Grigsby said of the phone conversation in a court deposition.

Harmon and Betty Leedy, parents of the 11-year-old girl Precht allegedly slapped, see things differently. Not only was the slapping incident blown out of proportion, they said in a deposition, but charges of insubordination made against the teacher stemmed, in their opinion, from her candor in defending the educational rights of handicapped children.

"It is our observation," they said in a joint statement, "that (Precht) was outspoken in demanding things for the children in her unit and that, as a result, Superintendent Grigsby took offense and labeled her as a troublemaker."

"We sincerely wish that Mary Pamela Precht was Jackie's teacher now because she progressed so much under her... It is evident that our daughter loves (her) dearly," said the Leedys, who added that they felt their child's handicap—she suffers from cerebral palsy—was "being exploited in order to substantiate unfounded charges" against the teacher.

The bulky court record in the case includes testimonials from a parent and a teacher cited by Grigsby as sources of complaints against Precht, the parent contending that Grigsby was "mistaken" in his interpretation of her complaint and the teacher accusing the former superintendent of making "gross misstatements" in presenting the case against Precht.

In questioning Grigsby about the circumstances of his decision not to rehire Precht, John W. Mann, the teacher's attorney, noted that a May, 1984 evaluation by Audrey Pratt, then special education coordinator and Precht's supervisor, described her as having "improved greatly" in the area of respect for administrators and included a recommendation that her contract be renewed. But Grigsby noted that the supervisor fell short of recommending the teacher for tenure and insisted that, in any case, the decision whether or not to rehire her was his.

In her October 19 letter to the state Board of Education, Precht claims that (See Story No. 2, Page 4)

Take Part in 'Operation Child Rescue'

City Manager David Evans, daughter Emily, wife, Rella, and older daughter, Bethany, accept a decal to be affixed to their door by Fire Inspector Larry Adams as part of a new safety program, "Operation Child Rescue."

The program is designed to make fire fighters aware of the number of children or disabled persons within particular households, and to let them know where these people might be, in the event of a house fire.

Adams said families can sign up any time at the municipal building. When they join the program, they tell the fire department the number of children in the household and are issued an equal number of Operation Child Rescue decals, which are then affixed to the children's bedroom windows. An additional decal is issued for the front door. There is no charge for the service.

"This is a really good program," said Adams. "I'd like to see it catch on here and spread across the county."

Hallowe'en Pranks Said on Quiet Side

Though no mishaps were reported in Floyd county this Hallowe'en, the tradition of minor vandalism was perpetuated in some sections.

At Kentucky State Post 9 in Pikeville, Trooper Kenneth Frost said reports of vandalism had come in from all over the county, with the Mud Creek, Garrett and Wheelwright areas supplying "by far" the most complaints. He said these areas accounted for the most calls to the post every Hallowe'en. Among the more common pranks were trees being cut and used for roadblocks, with burning tires being used for the same purpose. Rock-and-egg-throwing was (See Story No. 3, Page 4)

This Town...That World

Beginning with "Tick-Tack," it has been the rain that won't go away. If I wasn't old enough to know better, I would say that the Hallowe'en witch's cauldron is boiling over.

But don't knock the weather. If you need a positive thought on the matter, consider that there hasn't been a forest fire and its disgraceful destruction.

What became of Indian Summer?

Don't tell me the departed warriors trekking the ghostly trail to the Happy Hunting Ground have stopped building their campfires along the way.

GROUNDHOG RELIG

I have, as happens all too often, lost something that I wanted to keep and will have to rely on what I remember of a hasty once-over. But this bulletin-type thing from the University of Kentucky hints at future research that is downright intriguing.

It deals with hibernation, the long winter's sleep of certain animals, notably the groundhog, the chipmunk and the bear. This UK researcher, or scientist, who wondered about the matter conducted some experiments that could lead to human hibernation.

He took blood from a groundhog and a chipmunk that were in this comatose state and transfused it into the veins of a rhesus monkey. And, almost immediately, the monkey began yawning, its pulse slowed, the blood pressure lowered. The first stages of hibernation were apparent.

Next may be experiments with humans.

School Board Meeting

In keeping with a policy of making Board of Education meetings more accessible to county residents, the board meeting scheduled for tonight (Wednesday) will be held in the cafeteria at Allen Central High School at Eastern. Board meetings begin at 7 p.m.

Woman Is Victim Of Gunshot Wound

Beatrice Justice Gillespie, 34, of Grethel, died last Friday, the victim of a gunshot wound to the chest.

According to coroner Roger Nelson, though the case is still under investigation, details of the death are consistent with suicide.

Mrs. Gillespie was at the home of her former husband, Rick Newsome, of Branham's Creek, when the incident occurred. He had picked her up earlier in the day at Long John Silver's restaurant where she was employed, and brought her to his home where she was to stay the night. Newsome said he was awakened at about 4:50 a.m. by a noise, and found Mrs. Gillespie shot. A .22 caliber derringer was nearby.

Mrs. Gillespie is survived by one daughter, Kathie Lynn, at home; four brothers, Palmer Justice, of Powell's Creek, Bruce Justice, of Phillippi, W. Va., James L. and Tracy Allen Justice, both of Justiceville; four sisters, Edna Bishop and Wanell Belcher, both of Nels; Rhoda Belle Murphy, of Indianapolis, Indiana; and Linda Lou Nichols, of Pikeville.

Funeral services were held Monday at the Powell's Creek Revival Center, under direction of Justice Funeral Home.

Blasting Damage Placed at $7000

Fred Johnson, 30, of Rough and Tough, won a judgment last week against a coal company whose blasting operations were held to have damaged his house.

Ten members of a Floyd Circuit Court jury—it took nine to render a verdict for the plaintiff—agreed with Johnson that blasting from the nearby Wolverine Mining Corp. operation was responsible for cracks that appeared in the foundations, two concrete porches, siding and ceilings of his home in the summer of 1982.

Pikeville architect James Ellis put at $10,000 the cost of repairing the ranch-style home in which Johnson lives with his wife and two children. The jury award was for $7000.

Mitchell Kinner, attorney for the Salyersville coal firm, suggested that damage to the house could have resulted from faulty construction. Johnson built the house himself between 1975 and 1977. He was represented in the case by David A. Barber.

Meanwhile, Tram residents James and Margaret Steffey filed a suit last week against Prater Creek Processing Co., a Pikeville firm with a large mountaintop removal operation nearby.

The Steffeys, residents of the Stanley-Powell Addition, claim that the daily rumble of coal trucks past their home creates a dust problem and has caused the house to crack and leak.

They are represented by Miller Kent Carter, Pikeville attorney, who filed the action on their behalf in Floyd Circuit Court last Wednesday.

One Arrested, Second Sought In Liquor Store Holdup Here

A juvenile suspect was arrested Monday afternoon in connection with the armed robbery Saturday of Cumberland Spirits liquor store on South Lake Drive here.

The suspect was charged with first degree robbery and lodged in the county detention center after the arrest was made by Detective Sgt. Mike Ormerod.

The hold-up took place at around 4 p.m. Saturday as Mrs. Terry Branham, one of the owners of the store, was working there alone. According to Mrs. Branham's mother, Mrs. Patricia McClung, also part owner of the business, two young men, described as being in their late teens or early twenties, of average height, with dark hair and wearing dark clothing and stocking masks, entered the store. One of them carried a small-caliber pistol.

"Terry knew immediately what was happening," said Mrs. McClung. "She just said, 'Please don't hurt me,' and one of them came behind the counter and opened the cash register." One of the intruders then taped Mrs. Branham's hands behind her back and put her in the restroom, securing the door with a dolly and several cases of beer. The other emptied the cash register, reportedly taking $390.

Mrs. McClung said the two then took off their masks and left the store on foot. "I pulled into the parking lot just as they were walking down the bottom step," she said. "They weren't running; just looked like normal customers." She went inside and saw that her daughter wasn't behind the counter.

Meanwhile, Mrs. Branham was freeing herself from the restroom. She told her mother what had happened, they locked the entrance to the store and tried to phone the police. The telephone was dead.

They found that outside wires had been cut. Mrs. McClung said her phone wires had been cut twice before, and she believed the incidents to be related. The women called the police from a gas station, and Ormerod was dispatched to the scene.

Based upon evidence at the scene and information supplied by the women, Ormerod arrested a 17-year-old Salyersville youth here Monday. The suspect denied robbing the store.

Police Chief Stan Fletcher said at least one, and perhaps two more, juvenile suspects are being sought.

VOTER TURNOUT WAS LIGHT IN TUESDAY'S ELECTION, but a surprising number braved the elements to cast their vote. Unofficial election returns are listed elsewhere in The Times.

Space Program Set For High Schools

Floyd County's high school students will be able to design an experiment to be conducted in outer space if they participate in Project Challenge.

"The program was created to involve Kentucky high school students in science and technology, particularly space technology", according to Lieutenant Governor Steve L. Beshear.

Project Challenge is an educational program co-sponsored by IBM and "Kentucky Tomorrow: The Commission on Kentucky's Future," created and chaired by Beshear.

The contest is open to all students in grades nine through 12 in Kentucky's public, parochial or private schools.

The state has been divided into six contest regions and a winning and runner-up experiment will be chosen from each region. The six winning experiments will be flown aboard a NASA space shuttle in the spring of 1987.

"Project Challenge information has been sent to all Kentucky high schools", Beshear said. Experiment proposals are to be submitted by January 15, 1986 and the winners are to be announced in March, 1986.

Technical advisors are available in each of the six regions to assist students and teachers with the development of their experiments.

"NASA has agreed to reserve VIP passes for winning students so they can see their experiments launched from the Kennedy Space Center", Beshear said.

More information about the contest is available from high school science teachers or by writing Project Challenge, 612B Shelby Street, Frankfort, Kentucky 40460.

James Campbell, of Prestonsburg, a senior chemistry major at Eastern Kentucky University, Richmond, is serving as a student senator of the EKU Student Association for the current academic year.

To be a senator, students must be enrolled fulltime and have at least a 2.0 grade point average on a 4.0 scale. Senators are elected in the fall and serve one-year terms.

Woman's Sentencing Scheduled Feb. 21st

Sentencing of Alma Castle, of Hueysville, originally scheduled for last Thursday in Pike Circuit Court, has been rescheduled for February 21.

Mrs. Castle, one of 16 Floyd countians indicted last December as a result of a state police probe of county government in 1982, pleaded guilty in July to a charge of criminal facilitation and is expected to testify for the Commonwealth in the February trial of her son, Anthony Castle.

The younger Castle was indicted on charges of criminal possession of a forged check and theft by deception.

Notice to the Public

Because very few people have come in to the Circuit Clerk's office on Saturday to take advantage of special hours, we will no longer be open Saturdays, beginning this week. We will, however, be open from 8 a.m. until 6 p.m. on Fridays for the convenience of those who work or who otherwise cannot transact necessary business from 9 to 5. These hours will be effective this Friday, November 8.

Serious researchers see varied benefits from induced human hibernation—in surgery, for example, or to control hypertension.

And then there are some non-scientific minds that nonsensically turn to the thought of how great it would be to skip a long, hard winter in this way instead of making a trip to Florida. Others may wonder if the groundhog may not be of invaluable help to the individual who would otherwise seek relaxation and rest by drinking himself or herself into a stupor.

Look—no hangover!

reported as well as window-soaping. Frost said some people had car windshields broken by thrown rocks, though no injuries were reported, or arrests made.

Though the KSP was kept busy, Frost said patrols were not beefed up for Hallowe'en. "We just had our normal, routine patrols," he said, adding that a good deal of the post's manpower was occupied in dealing with problems resulting from a strike at Massey Coal Company mines in Pike county. Sheriff Henry Hale said his department had it "pretty rough" during trick or treat, especially at Slick Rock and Corn Fork. "We had a lot of tick-tackers—one or two arrests," he said. In Prestonsburg, Police Chief Stan Fletcher said greater police visibility resulted in fewer problems than in past years. "We had a few windows soaped, some eggs thrown," but no real incidents," he said.

At Highlands Regional Medical Center, spokesperson Susan Martin confirmed the police reports of a safe Hallowe'en. "The emergency room staff told me it was pretty much a typical night," she said.

In an effort to help make sure Hallowe'en stays safe and fun for youngsters, Martin said the hospital again for the third year x-rayed bags of candy to detect foreign objects. Nothing was found in any of the candy.

2786. In a lackluster race for county judge-executive, the Republican contender, Prestonsburg physician Dr. Larry Leslie (3062), trailed Democratic incumbent John M. Stumbo (6520).

A question asking voters whether they favored a commission form of county government appears not to have generated much interest or else to have been overlooked by many voters. In any event, it was answered in the negative, with 2415 voting for the proposition, 3358 against it.

In city races, Ann Latta (804) easily defeated Harry W. Short (275), to succeed Harold Cooley as mayor of Prestonsburg. The eight top votegetters, who will take their place on the next city council, were William R. Callihan, 611, William O. Goebel III, 572, Bobby Ranier, 558, Frank A. Adams, 548, Gary D. Brown, 546, Harry Ray Porter, 518, Margie N. Osborne, 508, and Thomas "Rube" Tackett, 507. Eunice Shepherd, with 431, has apparently lost her seat on the council. Other candidates were Ashland Joseph, 462; Roy Dean Roberts, 431; Burl C. Shepherd, 362; Harold A. Baldrige, 327; Chuck B. Akers, 325; and Robert G. Carpenter, 250.

For Martin city council, John L. Maddox polled 118, Earritt Hayes 117, Denzil (Hoss) Halbert 111, Frank Rudder 102, E.P. Grigsby, Sr. 101, William (Bill) Eden 91, and Donald Sexton 62. All but Sexton will take their place on the council.

In Wheelwright, Thomas L. Engle, Jr. upset Mayor Elmer Ferguson, 113 votes to 59, with Oval Pack polling 44. For the city commission, Dennis Harris, 112, Dennis Holbrook, 95, Delmas R. Johnson, 90, and Glen Thornsberry, 83, were successful. Also running were Joe Stewart, 70, Elva Wnek, 69, Blanche Vance, 63, Don "Booty" Hall, 61, Jerry Hamby, 42, and Billy T. Meade, 39.

Wayland mayor Patricia Murphy held onto office, with 78 votes to challenger Ralph Stephen Banks' 68. Elected to the city commission were Hobert Webb, Sr., 98, Mack Stewart, 84, Dan Juett, 83, Joseph Banks, 67, Eynonne Hughes, 58, and Linda Webb, 58. Leon "Doc" Murphy polled 57 and Michael Jones 33.

Obie Crisp, unopposed as mayor of Allen, received 40 votes. The four who ran for city commissioners are all elected. They are Elmer "Fudd" Parsons, 44, Vernon Porter, 43, Willard Adkins, 39, and Eugene Jarrell, 24.

Wanda Hutchinson, the teacher now in charge of the multi-handicapped unit here, is not fully trained for the job and, for that reason, is being assisted by a $200-a-day consultant from Lexington. Moreover, as a result of parent complaints, at least six "due process" hearings are in process or pending, each at a cost to the public of $1500, Precht charges.

Acting Superintendent Ray Brackett has indicated a willingness to rehire her, even with tenure, as long as the Floyd board is not forced to admit liability in the case, including liability to pay her salary for the 1984-'85 year. But the teacher has rejected the offer. "It's not right just to say, 'It's all over.' It's not right for the kids, who have had a year and more of teachers without training. Some assurance has to be given that this does not happen again," she said this week.

Defendants have twice been granted an extension of time for filing an answer to plaintiff's motion for summary judgment, filed in September. Time ran out on the second extension October 11. A decision on the motion was still pending this week.

him, believed him then to have been of good character, and have not yet found reason to believe otherwise. The background check turned up the 1982 morals charge but school administrators here were told the charge had been dropped, he said. The coach is "highly respected by the kids and parents," Brackett said.

A March, 1982 story about the case in the Appalachian News-Express prompted a $4.5 million suit against the newspaper, Hall charging that allegations made by the reputed victim's father were false and that the newspaper libelled him in printing them. The libel suit was scheduled to be tried next Monday, but will probably be postponed now until the criminal case is settled, according to Joe Childers, attorney for the newspaper.

Still pending in Floyd District Court is the trial of Melvin Cooke, 45, who was a counselor at Betsy Layne High School until he was charged in May with sodomy on a 17-year-old male student. Cooke had been employed in the county for three years after coming here from Millard High School in Pike county. He voluntarily submitted his resignation after the charge was made public.

Cooke failed to show up for scheduled court appearances here in September and October. His attorney and County Attorney Arnold Turner, Jr. proposed a plea bargain in the case several weeks ago, but the deal was rejected by District Judge Harold Stumbo, according to a court worker.

P'burg Named Warn Against Certified City Possible Scam By Ky. C of C

Prestonsburg has been named a "Certified City" by the Kentucky Chamber of Commerce, one of only 19 communities across the state to receive the designation this year. The award will be presented November 15 at an awards luncheon at the Radisson Plaza, Lexington.

According to Chalmers Frazier, who spearheaded the local certification drive, this program replaces the old "All Kentucky City" awards given by the Chamber. And Frazier says the new title is a little tougher to come by than the old one.

"It's harder to get now than it used to be," he said. "We had to grade ourselves in numerous areas regarding quality of life here, and then they sent in people to go over our results with a fine tooth comb. We were tougher on ourselves than they were." Frazier said the city scored higher in many areas on the state score-card than on their own.

Richard K. Boyd, Jr., chairman of the board of the Kentucky Chamber of Commerce, issued a statement on the selecting process and potential benefits to selected communities. "The Certified Cities Program is a tool to help prepare Kentucky communities to successfully compete for new jobs and increased investment. It provides a rigorous self-evaluation which any community, small or large, can use to increase its economic development potential and distinguish itself as a progressive and forward looking community," he said.

The Certified Cities program is built around an extensive questionnaire called "Standards for Quality Growth." This questionnaire was developed by Wayne Foster, the Kentucky Chamber's director of economic and community development. It polls each community's organization, facilities and operations in the areas of industrial development, education, public facilities, tourism, transportation, municipal administration and other services and amenities which make up the quality of life in the community. The community and questionnaire are then evaluated by a team of experts who rank the level of local performance in each area. The communities which score over the minimum acceptable standards are then certified.

William T. Hackett, assistant secretary, Office of Commerce and Industry, Louisiana Department of Commerce, will be the featured speaker at the awards luncheon, and Governor Martha Layne Collins has been invited to present the awards.

Cities to be honored include Prestonsburg, Calvert City, Central City, Corbin, Florence, Franklin, Georgetown, Harrodsburg, Hopkinsville, Lebanon, Lexington, London, Madisonville, Mayfield, Owensboro, Paducah, Pineville, Radcliff and Versailles.

The Earth's protective ozone layer, which absorbs high levels of radiation from the sun, is at serious risk from worldwide chemical use, reports International Wildlife magazine. While aerosol spray-can use of chlorofluorocarbons has declined by 82 percent over the past decade, their use as refrigerants, insulating material and solvents has increased by more than 70 percent. The EPA estimates a 20 percent depletion of the ozone layer, possible in less than 40 years, would result in 3.7 million more cases of skin cancer each year in the U.S.

Perhaps the longest of all living worms is the Lineus longissimus. One found in Scotland measured more than 180 feet.

"We have not authorized anyone to solicit money for, or in the name of the Prestonsburg Fire Department," was the reply given by City Fire Inspector Larry Adams, Tuesday, concerning a man who is soliciting donations from area businesses to support local firefighters.

According to state police detective K.R. Deboard, who is investigating the matter, the man has been asking local merchants and doctors to purchase advertisements in a quarterly magazine. The cost of the advertisements run anywhere from $40 to $100, with a portion of this money returned to the local fire departments. "The problem is we can't locate any of our local fire departments who belong to this organization," said Det. Deboard.

Authorities were alerted to the scheme by Paintsville Fire Chief Randall Hayslett after his department issued a citation to an Indiana man for "soliciting money without a city permit." The man had approached several Johnson county businesses asking for donations. Hayslett said the man had in his possession checks and other donations from Prestonsburg merchants, as well as numerous businesses in Pikeville.

Deboard will continue to check on the validity of the solicitation program.

"Local fire departments personally handle their own fund drives, to support themselves," Deboard said. "Instances like the one we are investigating give fund-raising drives a bad name, and hurt legitimate efforts by fire departments and rescue squads to raise money."

Anyone approached to participate in this type of scheme should call their local fire chief or the Kentucky State Police, Post 9, Pikeville.

WYMT-TV Is Now On Air From Hazard

134 days from shovel to switch. That time-span marks a milestone in the broadcasting industry. On June 7 of this year, Kentucky Central television executive Vice-President Ralph Gabbard led a shovel-wielding group of dignitaries in breaking ground for a new television station designed to serve the mountains of Eastern Kentucky, and beyond. Four and a half months later, on October 19, Gabbard threw the switch that marked the birth of WYMT-TV. In between those two dates, technology tackled terrain, perseverance overcame problems, and "vision" became television.

Construction crews worked long hours, sometimes double shifts. Television engineers frequently worked around the clock, and as the 15,000 square foot building which would house studios and offices took shape in Jacklot Hollow, overlooking Hazard, other crews began an assault on Buffalo Mountain, where the antenna would sit atop a 1,000 foot tower and push 1.3-million watts of effective radiated power through the mountains and valleys.

Another tower was being constructed on Furnace Mountain between Hazard and Lexington, to complete a two-way microwave link between WYMT-TV and its sister station, WKYT-TV.

Saturday, October 19, it all came together. With management and staff from both stations on hand along with family members and friends, Gabbard rolled the sign-on video tape, and WYMT-TV was off and running.

"Actor's Nightmare" At PCC

A one-act play, "The Actor's Nightmare," will be presented this weekend at Pike Auditorium of Prestonsburg Community College, by members of the Prestonsburg Community Theatre.

The comedy details the plight of a stranger (played by Mike Rosenberg), who wanders on stage only to find that he must replace one of the leading actors. Whenever he seems about to catch up to his role, the other actors shift to a new scene.

"It's the nightmare every actor has," said Audrey Hudson, who directs the production.

The play, by Christopher Durang, will be presented Friday and Saturday (Nov. 8 and 9) at 8 p.m. Admission is $1.

Also appearing in the cast, are Stephanie DeRossett, Vicky Archer, Keith Horn and Miss Hudson. Lighting and sound are under the direction of David Stanford and costumes were donated by the Jenny Wiley Summer Music Theatre.

The Community Theatre is sponsored by the Prestonsburg Community College Continuing Education Program, directed by James Ratcliff.

Anyone interested in drama and the theatre is invited to join, Miss Hudson said. Meetings are on Sundays, at 2 p.m., and the next meeting will be November 10, when work will begin on a new production.

Speaking Of Small Business...

Not long ago, a member firm called the president of our association in Washington to relate an incident that unfortunately is becoming a nightmare for more and more small businesses today—skyrocketing, unaffordable insurance rates.

The member, a manufacturer in Pennsylvania, said he opened his mail one morning recently to find his annual liability insurance premium was being raised from just over $25,000 to $126,000 despite the fact the company has never had a claim, does not make products for consumer use and is in a non-hazardous industry.

It's a classic "Catch-22" situation: he cannot possibly afford to buy what he absolutely cannot afford to be without. He has the option of course of going "bare," risking his firm's assets against the possibility of a law suit.

Congressman James J. Florio (D-NJ), chairman of a House commerce and energy subcommittee with jurisdiction over the insurance industry, noting that liability coverage is either prohibitively expensive or totally unavailable for certain risks, says the greater danger is that the trend is limiting the availability of essential services ranging from child care to hazardous waste cleanup.

The insurance industry claims the basic cause of the problem is the rise in litigation and punitive awards in the courts. This is not totally without foundation. We have found that a claimant could win a suit in one state and lose an identical case in another. And there are records of astronomical punitive awards.

Conversely, a former Federal Insurance Administration director, J. Robert Hunter finds evidence that puts the onus on the insurance industry itself. He told Congress recently that "at the top of the cycle the (insurers) cut prices and at the bottom they cancel everyone, even businesses that never once had a claim."

One of the nation's largest liability insurers admits that the magnitude of its losses (the industry as a whole suffered record-breaking losses in 1984) has forced it to reduce coverage, set rates that have resulted in policy cancellations, or simply refuse coverage to certain risk groups.

The National Small Business Association has led the fight to eliminate the problem by introducing the product liability issue to Congress and serving as the leadoff witness at the first hearings Congress held in 1976.

While the Risk Retention Act of 1981, provided some short-term relief, the multi-faceted problem keeps rearing its ugly head.

Manufacturers are being sued for equipment that may have been resold several times and over which they have no control; original manufacturers are being sued by injured employees of other employers and whose injuries have already been compensated under State Workers' Compensation awards; product liability laws vary so greatly that of 30 states with such laws, no two are identical, none are comprehensive and states view Congress' attempts to write federal statute as an intrusion of states' rights.

What's the answer? NSB believes a uniform federal product liability law with a clear definition of responsibilities must be enacted and serve as the foundation from which final resolution of the problem can evolve.

One thing is certain. Although the problem is no less onerous for big business than it is for small business, there is one very important difference: while the problem may be critical to large corporations and big businesses, it can and is proving fatal to small businesses and must be solved.

The Congress is once again considering product liability legislation. If your company is adversely affected by this problem write the National Small Business Association, 1155 15th St. NW, 7th Floor, Washington, DC 20005.

"Speaking Of Small Business", is issued monthly by the National Small Business Association (NSB) a private-bi-partisan association of business owners.

Daniel L. Blair, son of G.C. Blair of Tram, Ky., has been specially identified for early promotion to senior airman in the U.S. Air Forces.

The airman was awarded the new rating ahead of other Air Force members by a "below-the-zone" promotion board which considered job performance, military knowledge, bearing and self-improvement efforts.

Blair is a communications computer specialist at Elmendorf Air Force Base, Alaska, with the 11th Tactical Control Group. His wife, Jeanne, is the daughter of Allen and Jean Guthrie, of Du Bois, Pa. He is a 1980 graduate of Betsy Layne High School.

Allen Woman's Club Conducts Survey

The Allen Woman's Club conducted a survey of Allen residents concerning the use of seat belts as part of the G.F.W.C. community improvement program.

The group interviewed 115 people of whom 30 percent use seat belts, 41 percent sometimes, and 29 percent never. The 78 people interviewed with children, reported that 36 percent used seat belts, 42 percent sometimes, and 22 percent never.

Information according to age is listed as follows: 17 people interviewed, ages 16-25 years, 29 percent used seat belts, 59 percent sometimes; 51 people interviewed, ages 26-39, 31 percent used seat belts, 41 percent sometimes; 36 people interviewed, ages 40-60, 25 percent used them, 47 percent sometimes; 11 people interviewed, ages 60, 18 percent used seat belts, and 27 percent used them sometimes.

During the past five years, the report showed that 20 people had been in an auto accident, and only 25 percent were wearing seat belts.

The Allen Woman's Club urges everyone to use their auto seat belts for themselves and their families. Please "Buckle up and stay alive in '85."

Come to our OPEN HOUSE and see some unique features of the building:

- A stage for plays and other cultural events
- A carpeted gymnasium
- A satellite receiver dish

At the OPEN HOUSE you will also learn about:

- The oldest organization for women in the world

- The largest sponsorship of scouting in the United States
- The world's most extensive genealogy program
- Our programs for the youth—basketball softball, dances, public speaking, leadership

B. F. Reed Reflects On 60 Years in Coal

By JIM JORDAN
(In The Lexington-Herald)

B.F. Reed was very thirsty. He had arrived at the home of a fellow coal company employee after riding a hot, crowded train up the Big Sandy valley from Ashland. He craved a cool drink of water, and there was a tall glass of clear liquid on the dinner table.

"It was moonshine," Reed remembered. "Boy, oh boy—that was a rude awakening."

He might have said "a rude welcoming," because the Pennsylvania native who would become a patriarch of Eastern Kentucky coal was making his first trip to the mountains of Floyd County—where creek beds doubled as roads, moonshine vied with coal as the chief export and almost everyone carried guns.

Reed returned three years later, in 1927, to take over a failing mine and continue a 65-year career that would span some of the best and worst times in the coal industry's history.

He made his mark as co-founder of Turner Elkhorn Mining Co., but Reed also has been president of the Kentucky Coal Association and director of the National Coal Association.

And his work with the Eastern Kentucky Regional Planning Commission inspired construction of the Bert T. Combs Mountain Parkway and other highways that made the region less isolated.

"From the reports and recommendations of that commission, I first came to recognize the great need for a modern highway that would connect Eastern Kentucky with the Bluegrass section of the state," wrote former Governor Combs in the introduction to Reed's autobiography, My Life in Coal, published recently by American Printing Center in Lexington.

The Mountain Parkway could "very appropriately" have been named after Reed and Harry LaViers, another Eastern Kentucky coal operator, Combs added.

Reed, 88, who moved from Floyd County to Lexington in 1984, said: "Bert, in my opinion, was one hell of a governor. He's the one who built the Mountain Parkway."

"It scared me at first. I thought he was going to spend all the money and get Kentucky in trouble. It worked out all right, though."

But coal is Boyd Frederick Reed's favorite subject, next to baseball, and he offered some observations during a recent interview:

—On the next coal boom: "I don't think anyone can predict that. The only time you knew a boom was coming was when the war came along in 1941."

—On why he sold his coal company in 1974: "I sold it because I had been in the coal business since 1914 (in Pennsylvania, Ohio and Kentucky), and I knew every boom would be followed by a bust. I didn't sell at the peak (of the boom), but I did all right."

—On the United Mine Workers: "They are having a hard time. I hope they'll make it. I have no feeling for the union, but I have great feeling for these people who have (UMW) pensions and medical cards. If the union goes out of business, Lord help them."

—On the disadvantages of the union: "These days when you have a coal mine and you have the union, you have a strike pretty often....The union adds at least $5 a ton (to the cost of mining coal), and you simply can't overcome that."

—On the UMW dispute with A.T. Massey Coal Co.: "When I read the newspaper today about what's going on in Pike County... it brings a lot of memories back to me"—memories of 1963, when labor problems made Reed the target of dynamite and bullets.

The first incident occurred on a Sunday night when "two tremendous explosions" rocked his house at Drift, where Reed and his family lived from the early 1930s to 1984.

"From that time on we maintained a guard of three to five men around our house every night," he wrote in his autobiography. "There was an attempt to repeat the dynamite blasts, but... the people with the dynamite were greeted with a hail of rifle shots and left in a hurry."

On another night, rifles were fired at his house. "Several bullets came through the walls... but no one was injured. I tried to get my wife to take a vacation, but to no avail."

Ruth Maurer Reed, whom he married in 1920 in their hometown of Shamokin, Pa., has been Reed's constant companion for 65 years.

The violence continued; the dispute lasted several more weeks. "I didn't know when my family and people I had spent my life with would get shot, and I didn't want that," he said. "My brother (C.D. Reed, who died at age 92 in 1972) and I never carried guns."

Except for the violence, "I've enjoyed my life in Eastern Kentucky. This state has been good to us. We're real fortunate."

Born in 1897, Reed grew up in the Pennsylvania coalfields and completed eight years of public schooling. He also graduated from Shamokin's Bliss Business College after a one-year course.

(His lack of higher education was a disadvantage only "when I would get in a meeting with people who were much better educated than I," Reed said. "Then I would keep my mouth shut.")

In 1914, the women of Shamokin worked in the city's now-defunct silk mills and the men mined coal, he said. "I graduated (from Bliss) on Friday and went to work on Monday" as a clerk at Katherine Colliery.

Reed was promoted to treasurer of the colliery's parent company in Cleveland in 1921, and his brother—C.D. Reed had worked for Katherine Colliery since 1909—was named general manager of the Shamokin mine. The mine was sold in 1924, and C.D. was sent to manage a mine at Burton, Ky.

Three years later, the brothers borrowed $25,000—"it was a lot of money at that time," Reed recalled—and bought a mine at Jacks Creek near Burton.

The company was nearly bankrupt, but "I knew my brother was the best coal operator in the world. My end (of the business) was financial, and we worked together. If the two of us hadn't been together, we wouldn't have made it."

Eastern Kentucky was soon locked in the Great Depression. Coal prices tumbled and demand fell sharply. "The (home) heating business stopped in March (each year)," Reed said. "After that you had a hell of a time getting orders."

"Things were tough, tough as hell." The company was rescued by Phil Swing, a coal broker who had worked with B.F. Reed in Cleveland. Swing, who died in 1985 at age 90, ordered 10,000 tons of coal from Turner Elkhorn at 85 cents a ton.

The UMW, led by John L. Lewis, began organizing Eastern Kentucky mines in 1933. "We cuss him (Lewis), and fuss about him, and we tried to hate him but he was the best labor leader in any union I know of," Reed said in Our Appalachia, an oral history published in 1977.

The coal industry in Eastern Kentucky "was almost non-existent," and the surviving coal operators were "looking for a way out," Reed explained. They hoped the union would stabilize coal prices and wages.

Unlike the way it came to Harlan County, the UMW arrived peacefully in Floyd.

Lewis thought unions should not interfere with the operation of the mines, Reed said recently. If later union leaders had kept that philosophy, "my outlook (for the union) might be different today."

Turner Elkhorn began expanding in 1935, acquiring nearly a dozen mines or coal properties in the next 20 years. The company shipped more than 46 million tons of coal between 1927 and 1981, Reed said.

Although he sold his coal interests in 1974 and left the active management of Turner Elkhorn in 1979, Reed remains loyal to his former employees, especially those who stood by him in hard times.

Writing of the violence of 1963, he said: "I have retained a list of names of people who were in that (loyal) group. I continue to examine the list at intervals and check to learn the whereabouts of those men and to be sure that they are doing well and are satisfied with their employment."

Peat Moss Is Peat Moss, Right?

On any visit to a garden center or nursery you can find bags and bales of soft, fluffy, tan to dark brown organic matter generically referred to as peat moss. Everything we commonly refer to as peat moss isn't necessarily such, however, and the difference can be important.

The term peat refers to plant material that is partially decomposed. The type of peat depends on the plant material it comes from. The degree of decomposition depends primarily on two factors: how cold winter temperatures are and whether water covers the plant material all year or just part of the year.

The major uses for peats are as part of potting mixes, for growing transplants and rooting cuttings, for amending landscape planting beds and for mulching ornamental plants. These peats are generally classified as either moss peat, reed-sedge peat or peat humus.

Moss peat is formed from two types of mosses—sphagnum and hypnum. The product we purchase as "peat moss" is generally composed of sphagnum moss, particularly if it is of Canadian origin.

Many of us recognize sphagnum moss as the light tan, shaggy material used to line hanging baskets and pack mail order plants, or milled or shredded to use in seed germination mixes. When we buy it as further decomposed "peat moss," it is generally brown in color, with a fairly acid pH (3.0 to 4.5).

Sphagnum moss peat is the most general purpose moss peat because its large fiber content provides good aeration and drainage, and because it is the slowest to decompose when mixed into soil. It is the most disease and weed free of the moss peats, and has the greatest water-absorbing capacity (up to 15 to 30 times its weight).

Some confusion exists about the risks in handling sphagnum moss. The undecomposed moss can carry a fungal disease that can cause skin and internal disorders. Fungal spores usually enter through a cut or scratch, first causing an insect bite type swelling. The swelling can become a blister, and if not properly diagnosed and treated with potassium iodide, can spread to the lymph system, bones and various internal organs. When handling sphagnum moss, wear gloves or wash your hands thoroughly.

These precautions do not apply, however, to handling the moss once it has undergone decomposition in a peat bog to produce sphagnum moss peat or "peat moss." The major problem in handling sphagnum moss peat relates to possible breathing discomfort due to inhaling fine particles and dust.

If you want to buy hypnum moss peat, look for a bag labeled as such. Hypnum moss peat is a darker brown, less acid peat (5.0 to 7.0) used for top-dressing lawns and conditioning planting beds. Swamp plants such as reeds, sedges, cattails and marsh grasses make up reed-sedge peat. Most of these peats are rather matted and fibrous, brown to reddish in color. Their pH range is from 4.0 to 7.5, and their best uses are in potting soil mixes and planting bed amendment.

The final peat type, peat humus, is often referred to as Michigan peat. Harvested in Michigan and several other northern states, this peat is extremely decomposed, making it low in moisture retention and of little value in potting mixes or for soil conditioning. It is moderately acid to neutral (5.0 to 7.5), and dark brown to black in color.

Before you buy peat again in the future, check the bag for origin and plant composition. There is a peat for every job, but each type will not do each job equally well.

Timely Tip: All peats are difficult to wet initially. To make water "wetter," or to flatten the contact angle of the water drops so they'll penetrate better, add a few flakes of powdered detergent to the water.

ARC Funds Fight On Dropout Rate

The Appalachian Regional Commission has begun a major attack on one of the region's most serious problems: a school dropout rate that is chronically higher than the nation's, and 25 to 58 percent higher in the central and southern Appalachian states.

In the region's poorest, most rural counties, the school dropout rate often exceeds 50 percent.

Citing Appalachia's high dropout statistics, ARC Federal Co-Chairman Winifred A. Pizzano said: "Much progress has been made in recent years, to the point that half of our students now graduate from high school. But the gap that remains between Appalachia and the rest of the nation is still critical."

During the past year, the Commission funded the first research project ever undertaken to define the dropout problem in Appalachia. The resulting report found that currently only about 25 percent of Appalachian school districts have active programs to address the dropout problem.

Last February, ARC awarded a $1 million grant to the private, nonprofit Appalachian Foundation to be used in matching grants for innovative dropout prevention projects undertaken by schools working in cooperation with local communities. The foundation is preparing to announce the first round of grants from these funds.

In June, the Commission sponsored a "Regional Workshop on School Dropouts" in Atlanta, Georgia, which was hosted by ARC States' Co-Chairman Governor Joe Frank Harris. Some 200 Appalachian school officials and representatives of other organizations reviewed the study's findings and heard firsthand accounts of successful dropout prevention programs now being conducted in the Appalachian states.

Speaking at the workshop, Pizzano said, "According to the National Center for Education Statistics, eight of the eleven states with the highest dropout rates in the country are in Appalachia. If this region is to realize its full economic potential, these statistics must be changed."

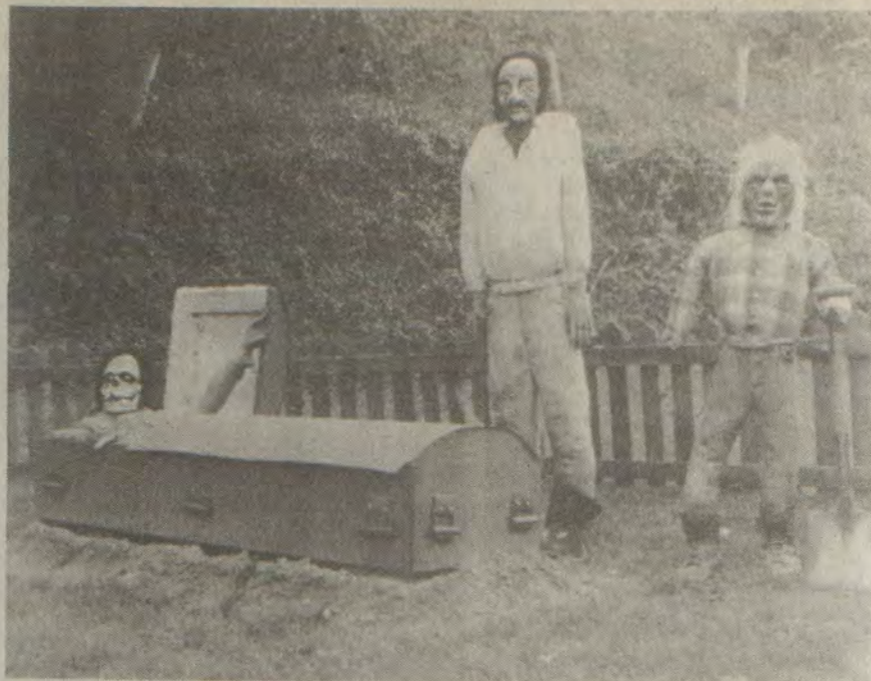

Federal Co-Chairman Pizzano joined with Kentucky Governor Martha Layne Collins October 10 to announce a major grant from ARC to the Commonwealth of Kentucky for a comprehensive program aimed at reducing one of the highest state dropout rates in the nation.

A total of $782,750 in ARC funds will be used for such approaches as special counseling, alternative education classes, special teachers and tutors and computerized basic skills instruction in 24 of Kentucky's 49 Appalachian counties, plus a Kentucky Educational Television documentary combined with a local outreach effort.

For this project, the ARC funds will be combined with $454,869 in local funds, $36,250 from the Commonwealth and $40,000 from the Appalachian Foundations, for a total cost of $1.3 million.

Pizzano said that, in undertaking this program, Governor Collins is "betting a sizeable share of her state's federal economic development dollars on the proposition that an investment in the education of Kentucky's children today, is an investment in Kentucky's economic growth tomorrow."

Governor Collins, who successfully guided a statewide education improvement program through the Kentucky legislature this year and who serves as Kentucky Secretary of Education, said of the ARC grant, "Instead of spending the money on bricks and mortar, we're going to invest it in our human resources." She noted with concern that Kentucky ranks 50th among the states in the percentage of adults who are high school graduates.

THIS TERRIBLE TRIO was on hand to greet trick or treaters who called at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Lafferty at Cliff, last Thursday.

Food Prices Drop To Five Year Low

Retail food prices in Kentucky posted their largest one-month decline on record during October, falling 3.3 percent, according to the latest Kentucky Farm Bureau marketbasket survey.

The price plunge, paced by beef and poultry, dropped the average cost of the 40-item marketbasket by $1.98, from $59.21 to $57.23. It was the lowest level recorded by Farm Bureau's surveyors since September 1980, just over five years ago.

All six food groupings in the survey recorded price declines during the month. Beef cuts led the pack with a 7.5 percent drop, while poultry/eggs fell 5.2 percent. Other categories were fruits/vegetables, off 3.4 percent; dairy products, 2.4 percent lower; grain based foods, down 1.3 percent; and pork, which showed just a fractional decline.

The list of bargains for October food shoppers was long, surveyors found. Beef cuts were substantially cheaper, from the 19-cent drop in average ground beef prices to the 40-cent cut in the cost of T-bones.

Chicken breasts, the most prized poultry cut, fell by 16 cents a pound, while ice cream prices followed the seasonal temperatures downward, marking a 17-cent decline. Lettuce was 11 cents cheaper by the head, as summertime salad consumption fell, and cheap farm-level wheat prices pushed flour down 7 cents a bag.

On the up side, potato chips cost 9 cents more by the bag, bacon rose a modest 7 cents per pound, and tomatoes and peppers gained 5 cents each, concurrent with the end of the local gardening season.

Kentucky farm prices showed little change during the month, but commodity futures prices for cattle and hogs rebounded from their previous lows giving rise to speculation that a price turnaround in the livestock sector was at hand.

If the analysts are correct, consumers could see meat prices start climbing rather quickly. Retail meat tabs usually reflect farm level changes within a month.

Other farm prices show little cause for alarm by consumers, however. Grain prices continue to plummet as a bumper harvest adds to an already bulging worldwide surplus. Speculators say that cheap grain-based livestock feed often-times leads to a quick build-up of meat animal numbers. If that happens over the next several months, the prospect for higher cattle and hog prices could fade quickly.

Among the local marketbasket averages for October, Morehead posted the lowest tabulation and Frankfort checked in at the high mark. Overall, volunteer surveyors working through Kentucky Farm Bureau Women canvassed grocery store prices in 22 Kentucky communities.

NUMB ARMS, LEGS Warning Signals

There may be misalignment of vertebrae in the spine causing pressure on nerves, yet the patient experiences no pain in the back. Instead, a variety of sensations may be felt in other parts of the body. These include tingling, tightness, hot spots, cold spots, crawling sensations, electric shock sensations, stinging, burning, and others.

The following nine symptoms involving back pain or strange sensations are often the forerunners of more serious conditions. Any one of these may spell back trouble

- (1) Paresthesias (see above) (2) Headaches (3) Painful joints (4) Numbness in the arms or hands (5) Loss of sleep (6) Stiffness in the neck (7) Pain between the shoulders (8) Stiffness or pain in lower back (9) Numbness or pain in the legs.

These signals may indicate your body is being robbed of normal nerve function. Until this function is restored, you will, in some degree, be incapacitated. The longer you wait to seek help, the worse the condition will likely become. Don't wait! Should you experience any of these warning signals...call for in depth consultation in Layman's terms.

November at the Appalshop

Emmy award-winning video artist Skip Blumberg will be present to screen and discuss his videotapes on November 11th at 7:30 p.m. at the Appalshop in Whitesburg, as part of the Southern Circuit tour of independent media artists.

Blumberg is "one of the original New Journalists of video, producing thirty-minute pieces on offbeat America." (Esquire, 1984 Register of Outstanding Americans.) He is best known for his video about unusual competition such as elephant racing in Thailand, the Eskimo-Indian Olympics in Alaska that includes the four-man-carry event, and extraordinary double dutch teams at the Annual World Invitational Double Dutch Jump Rope Championship held in New York City.

In Blumberg's most recent video, Elephant Games, 150 elephants are gathered in northern Thailand for one of the most spectacular events in the world—the Elephant Round-Up featuring speed and agility races, soccer played from elephants' backs, the elephant tug-of-war against 100 soldiers and the elephants walking-over-men event.

The 21st Annual World Eskimo Indian Olympics set in modern day Alaska shows unique ancient arctic sports such as the blanket toss, knuckle hop, high kicks and whale blubber eating contests.

In Pick Up Your Feet: The Double Dutch Show, the competition consists of speed jumping—with champions jumping five steps a second during a two minute sprint—and freestyle routines including acrobatics, dance steps handing off the ropes midjump, and turning and jumping at the same time. Highlights are dazzling demonstrations by the Fantastic Four (former world champions), the Dynomos, the DD Tigers and The Jumping Joints.

November 16th, the Metropolitan Blues All-Stars will be performing. Although they call themselves a blues band, the All-Stars play a wide variety of music, including of blues, rock and roll, country, folk and even a little gospel thrown in for good measure.

The All-Stars also have a top line show. The songs flow smoothly, held together by a series of jokes and stories.

The Metropolitan Blues All-Stars are coming to Whitesburg, Saturday, November 16th at 8:00 p.m.

Braids, a play by George Ella Lyon, will be performed Saturday, November 23 at 8 p.m. Braids is about three generations of one family, bound by blood, and marriage, by love and silence. They are the Buckners and the Perkinses—loving, angry, funny, caustic—braided tight for life.

CARD OF THANKS

The family of Paul Parsons thank all those who helped any way during our recent loss. Thanks for the lovely flowers, the silent prayers, and for the words of comfort. A special thanks to the minister, John Adams, for his kind words, the singers, and the Hall Funeral Home for their kind and efficient service.

Window Display Award Winners Recognized

B.F. Casual was credited with exhibiting the oldest item, a 124-year-old spinning wheel, passed down in Baldrige's family.

Astrological Forecast..

You're Just Lazy, Libra

ARIES (Mar. 21-Apr. 21)—Use your innovative and organizational abilities, you could get a break. You will be receiving many invitations and one will make up for a past slight. If you want your marriage to be a true partnership, try being a partner. Get involved with church activities this weekend, it will be a lot more interesting than you expect.

TAURUS (Apr. 22-May 22)—Spectacular financial gains (or losses) can occur now so move carefully. Turning your home into a show place will take lots of work and patience, but it will be worth it. Work for your favorite club or charity, you'll be excellent at raising funds. Do a good deed, it will make you feel great.

GEMINI (May 23-Jun. 21)—You can create the public image you desire if you'll make a plan and stick to it. An unexpected visitor will cost you some dough and you may rue the loss. You can gain a position of responsibility at work if you'll move deliberately. What is scheduled as a boring meeting could turn out to be the most exciting event in your life.

CANCER (Jun. 22-Jul. 20)—Institute non-traditional techniques for helping those in need. Plan to pay your mother a visit even if you know it will mean hard work. Ideas for your home could materialize suddenly if you're willing to make adjustments. You are very cold, not only to your lover, but to practically everyone—warm up!

LEO (Jul. 21-Aug. 20)—You will need to look after someone this week and it will be inconvenient—don't beg off! Helping out a brother or sister will also put a crimp in your plans—maybe important ones. Mercury has moved into your "party" house and it would be a good time for a neighborhood get-together. Don't skimp or it could spoil the whole thing.

VIRGO (Aug. 21-Sep. 22)—You will change from hardworking to social to introspective this week—take a good look at your plans. Hard work can produce promotions or raises on the job and you'll need the extra money to pay for those things you are planning to buy. Beware of any involvement with a Taurus-from-afar.

LIBRA (Sep. 23-Oct. 25)—You are charming and diplomatic and should get exactly what you deserve, but in a strange way. You are extremely intuitive, if not psychic, about job matters—follow your instincts. You're going to blow some big bucks on yourself if you're not very careful—it will be difficult as you are in such an expansive and optimistic mood.

SCORPIO (Oct. 26-Nov. 23)—You will be working hard now—to tear down the "institution" you've built and get ready for your next one. Get involved with a selfless group, you'll feel better. And don't be hesitant when you're asked to work for the cause. This is the time to investigate the Mysteries of Life, you will have great insight.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 24-Dec. 21)—It's time you started living and promoting your philosophy, and you may have to work overtime to be "all things to all people"—especially those in need. A

Virgo can help you organize your career plan so that you can put it into effect. But you must be very careful not to give the boss the idea that you are trying to take over.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-JAN. 17)—If you get a raise, don't spend the money, start an investment program. Entertaining is on your mind but it won't be solely for pleasure—"there's method to your madness". If you want to take charge at work, you'll have to become more diplomatic. A Libra may charm you into taking on a civic job and it will take patience to accomplish.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 18-Feb. 16)—Devote your energy to taking charge of your career and getting it headed for "big time". Lend your support to the church or other organization while you're waiting. You will be thinking of the exotic vacation you missed—plan it again, it will happen. An old romantic interest will resurface and you'd better be ready if you're interested.

PISCES (Feb. 17-Mar. 20)—Your prime goal this week will be a love affair—what are you going to do if you get one? You'll be better off spending your time looking for a business partner, at least this is a possibility. A Virgo has the idea you need to expand your public image. But if you get too involved with public matters your career may suffer.

How to predict your electric bill in an unpredictable world.

Your electric bill is different every month because it varies with the changing seasons. Usually it's up in the winter, down in spring, up again in the summer and down again in the fall. But the weather is even more unpredictable with cold fronts and heat waves coming and going all year round.

The Equal Payment Plan can make your electric bill predictable. With it, you pay the same amount every month. You know in advance what your monthly payment will be and your bill won't change with the seasons.

Your monthly bill is based on your average yearly usage. Your account is reviewed every six months to make sure that your budget payment is still as close as possible to your average use. At the end of the twelfth month, you'll receive a settle-up bill or a credit.

If taking the surprise out of your electric bill sounds like a good idea, give us a call. We'll take it from there.

Marine mammals suffer from some of the same diseases that affect people, reports the National Wildlife Federation. For example, a microbiologist at the University of California at Berkeley has noted that an increasing incidence of "Salmonella gastroenteritis" among California sea lions accompanied a dramatic increase of the same disease among California state residents.

Conservation Officer Post Open in County

One of two positions being opened to applicants this month by the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources is that of conservation officer trainee in Floyd county.

And Dalton Ray Conley, the county's veteran conservation officer, is hoping some applicant will qualify and take the job. Help is needed, he says.

For the last five-six years Conley has been doing the conservation work in Floyd county that normally is assigned to three men—Dewey Lake patrol, creel clerk and conservation officer for all parts of the county.

Every county in Kentucky that has a major lake, such as Dewey, Conley said, has an extra officer for lake patrol and another as creel clerk.

Applications must be received by Lida Durell, Personnel Administrator, No. 1 Game Farm Road, Frankfort, Ky. 40601 not later than Nov. 13. To qualify, the applicant must be 21 years of age, or older, and a high school graduate. The salary ranges from $1139 to $1826.

Idle Rate Edges Upward

Unemployment rates rose in 67 counties between August and September as the state recorded a slight increase in rates between the two months, according to figures released by the Cabinet for Human Resources. In 47 counties the September rates were lower than August's, while in six counties the rates were unchanged.

Sixty-four counties reported rates of 10 percent or above in September, compared to 60 in August and 42 in September 1984.

Compared to September 1984, 84 counties had higher rates, 32 had lower rates and four counties reported the same rates.

The local jobless figures reflect an unexpected increase in the statewide rate from a revised 8.7 percent in August to a preliminary 8.9 percent in September. Nationally the 6.9 percent rate recorded in August remained unchanged in September. The comparable state and national rates are not seasonally adjusted.

Increases in education employment were offset by fewer jobs in trade, manufacturing, real estate and construction, pushing the rate up, according to state labor market analyst Ed Blackwell.

Seven counties reported rates below 5.0 percent. Woodford county's 3.1 percent rate was the lowest, followed by Trimble county's 3.2 percent, Scott county's 4.0 percent, Fayette county's 4.3 percent, Jassamine county's 4.6 percent, Carroll county's 4.7 percent and Oldham county's 4.8 percent.

Menifee county reported the highest rate, 25.2 percent, followed by Letcher with 19.6 percent and Harlan with 19.2 percent.

Jobs in state and local education increased by 10,000, and agricultural jobs grew by 4,600. Meanwhile, wholesale and retail trade businesses registered a decline of 3,100 jobs. "Most of these job losses were in restaurant trade as a result of the end of the vacation season," Blackwell said. Manufacturing and real estate jobs were down by 1,100 each, construction by 600 and coal mining by 400.

The number of Kentuckians working in September totaled 1,566,300, down 6,400 from the August figure of 1,572,700 and 23,400 fewer than the September 1984 report of 1,589,700.

Jobless Kentuckians numbered 153,300 in September, 3,700 more than the August figure of 149,600 and 15,800 more than in September 1984, when 137,500 were out of work and the unemployment rate was 8.0 percent.

The state's civilian labor force estimate for September was 1,719,600, down from 1,722,300 in August and 1,727,200 in September 1984. The civilian labor force includes non-military people who are working and unemployed people who actively are seeking work. It does not include anyone who is out of work but not looking for a job.

In the Big Sandy district the jobless rate inched upward from a revised 11.2 percent in August to a preliminary 11.3 percent in September. Martin county's 5.5 percent rate was the district's lowest and only single-digit rate. Floyd and Magoffin counties each reported a 13 percent rate, the district's highest.

The monthly sample of claimants of unemployment insurance benefits showed 47.2 percent had worked in mining, 17.4 percent in trade and 9.4 percent in manufacturing.

A Legislative Perspective...

Cost Cuts Talked For Special Fund

By REP. GREGORY D. STUMBO
House Majority Floor Leader

In East Kentucky, workers' compensation is practically synonymous with the "black-lung" special fund. And, realizing what a vital role coal plays in the economic development of the mountains, it is understandable to note that a large portion of the claims presented in the mountains are involved with the "special fund."

One major thrust of a seminar I attended recently was how to reduce the liability of the special fund. As this issue could have a major impact on East Kentucky, I spent a major part of my time at the seminar pursuing this topic.

Currently, the special fund is a party in 80% of all contested workers' compensation claims for injury and occupational disease. Secondly, the special fund pays an average of 50% of each injury claim of which it is a party. These statistics account for the tremendous liability of the special fund and the fact that Kentucky's special fund is reported to be the most utilized and expensive fund of its type.

But an argument against limiting special fund involvement in claims would be that many employers' workers' compensation premiums would increase substantially if the special fund participation in the payment of awards was decreased.

Another idea generating plenty of discussion was the concept of reducing special fund liability by revising Kentucky's black lung provisions. It must be realized that Kentucky's black lung eligibility criteria are more liberal than the federal black lung provisions and those in existence in other coal producing states. The award rate for federal black lung claims is around 5% compared to 80%-90% in Kentucky. Also, Kentucky's black lung benefits are greater than federal black lung benefits.

Another suggestion might include limiting the duration of state black lung benefits to 425 weeks which was in existence prior to 1976.

Also discussed was the feasibility of encouraging or requiring the workers' compensation board to render more permanent partial awards for black lung.

Disclosed at the seminar, several coal interests are proposing an entire revision of the workers' compensation statute because as their spokesman stated, "We believe problems of this magnitude cannot be resolved by piecemeal solutions, but rather monumental measures are required."

Her dress was made by her aunt, Grace Taylor, of Wayland

State Idle Rate Shows Increase

Increases in education employment were offset by fewer jobs in trade, manufacturing, real estate and construction, pushing Kentucky's unemployment rate up by two-tenths of a percent between August and September, according to figures released by the Cabinet for Human Resources.

The rate rose from a revised 8.7 percent in August to a preliminary 8.9 percent in September. "This is only the second time since we have been keeping records that the state's unemployment rate has gone up between August and September," said state labor market analyst Ed Blackwell. "In 1974, the rate increased from 4.0 percent in August to 4.1 percent in September. And in 1982, the August and September rates were the same—10.1 percent. In every other year the rate has declined between the two months."

Nationally the 6.9 percent rate recorded in August remained unchanged in September. The comparable state and national rates are not seasonally adjusted.

Jobs in state and local education, which include hourly jobs at public and private schools and colleges, increased by 10,000, and agricultural jobs increased by 4,600. However, the number of Kentuckians working dropped by 6,400 between August and September.

Wholesale and retail trade businesses registered a decline of 3,100 jobs. "There was a seasonal decline in restaurant trade as the vacation season ended," Blackwell said. "We also saw less employment at supermarkets and grocery stores, automobile dealerships and automotive supply stores, clothing stores, and furniture and home furnishings stores."

Manufacturing industries reported 1,100 fewer jobs. "There were 500 job losses in manufacturing of non-electrical machinery and 200 fewer jobs each in transportation equipment; textiles and apparel; paper, printing and publishing; and chemicals," Blackwell said.

Real estate jobs declined by 1,100 and construction jobs were down by 600, reflecting a decrease in home-building, Blackwell said. Coal mining jobs were down by 400 from August and 2,200 from September 1984, he added.

The number of Kentuckians working in September totaled 1,566,300, down from 1,572,700 in August, and 23,400 fewer than the September 1984 report of 1,589,700.

Jobless Kentuckians numbered 153,300 in September, 3,700 more than the August figure of 149,600, and 15,800 more than in September 1984, when 137,500 were out of work and the unemployment rate was 8.0 percent.

The state's civilian labor force estimate for September was 1,719,600, down from 1,722,300 in August and 1,727,200 in September 1984. The civilian labor force includes non-military people who are working and unemployed people who actively are seeking work. It does not include anyone who is out of work but not looking for a job.

Will Work To Put "Lie Detectors" Out Of Business

A Perrysburg, Ohio man who spent two years in jail for a crime he didn't commit says he's not angry, but he is determined to do something about the circumstances that put him behind bars.

Floyd Fay, 28, was convicted in 1978 of murdering a Perrysburg store owner and served more than two years at the London Correctional Institute.

His attorney, his own investigation and mounting evidence led Wood County investigators to arrest two other men for the crime last week.

Fay was cleared and, after apologies from a judge, became a free man without a criminal record.

Fay, who is trying to get his job back at Conrail, indicated he is considering another avocation: working to outlaw or limit the use of lie detectors.

Ohio is one of 23 states that allows lie detector tests to be used as evidence.

Court officials said two polygraph examiners interpreted Fay's results backwards when they said they thought he was lying about the murder. Their misinterpretation figured heavily in his guilty-verdict, Fay said. In prison, he read "virtually a truckload" of information on lie detector tests, and he's prepared to work for legislation outlawing them.

"I want to somehow effectively use the facts of my case to help prevent someone else from getting in the same situation," he said.

"Ninety-five percent of my friends—they turned their back on me," he said.

"Nobody believed me. The bank repossessed my house. I'm not angry at the jury or the prosecutors, but that polygraph examiner hasn't seen the last of me."

TRANQUILIZERS

Tranquilizers are medications designed to relieve anxiety and nervousness. A physician knows of many potent medications that can be prescribed for "nerves" or simple tension. Medications, however, are usually only a temporary measure in the treatment of nervous disorders. Professional counseling often is more therapeutic than taking medicine. No over-the-counter drugs are marketed as tranquilizers and over-the-counter sleep aids should not be used as tranquilizers. One must visit a physician to obtain a prescription for a tranquilizer. The physician can also provide for or arrange professional counseling for problems that are the cause of anxiety or tension. There is no long-term shortcut to peace of mind.

COOLEY APOTHECARY takes great pride in the role we play in promoting the health of members of our community. Whether you have a prescription for a tranquilizer to be filled or need an over-the-counter remedy for a cold, learn why your friends refer to us as "The Drug Store With a Difference." We maintain complete patient profiles so we can check for drug interactions and as an added convenience for you in obtaining proper credit at income tax time and for insurance purposes. We are located at No. 2 Town Center Bldg., 886-8106. Open: Mon.-Fri. 9-5:30, Sat. 9-4.

Don't Get Burned Buying Firewood

As cool weather sets in many Kentuckians will be laying in a supply of firewood to help offset the chill. For some who purchase their firewood it will be they, and not the logs, that get burned.

Most of the firewood sold in Kentucky is sold as cords of seasoned, mixed hardwoods. There are various methods used to determine what is a cord, and the term "seasoned" means different things to different people.

John Shelly, Extension forester in the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture, said the idea of a mix of woods is a good one, since some types of wood burn more quickly and produce heat sooner, and others burn more slowly and provide a constant, less intense source of heat. The potential for disappointment comes from the terms "cord" and "seasoned."

"Some confusion exists over the term cord. Some people use it interchangeably with the measure 'face cord'. Also, wood is sometimes sold by the truck load. The amount of wood you get depends on what the dealer means by each term, and also by the way in which the wood is loaded or stacked," Shelly said.

A cord of wood is a well-stacked pile four feet high, four feet deep and eight feet long. A face cord is usually a stack of wood measuring four feet high and eight feet long, but only as deep as the average piece of firewood is long. To some dealers that is 24 inches, others calculate it at only 20 inches, 20 percent less. A 20-inch face cord at $41.67 would be worth the same as a 24 inch face cord at $50, or an actual cord at $100.

"Be sure to take a look at how the wood is stacked. A cord of randomly stacked, round pieces of wood will contain about 70 cubic feet of wood, while a carefully stacked cord of split logs will contain about 100 cubic feet of wood."

The type of wood being purchased also has a bearing on how much heat will be provided per cord of wood. Generally the denser the wood the more heat it will produce, but very dense wood can be difficult to start and keep burning.

"Ash, oak, hickory, Osage orange, and black locust are dense woods, and unless they have been thoroughly air dried they can make a fire difficult to maintain," Shelly said.

Medium density hardwoods such as maple, elm, sycamore and yellow poplar will start and burn more easily than the very dense woods.

"Don't buy a cord of all very dense woods, and when you get a mix of hardwoods be certain that less than half of it is of the very dense woods. A very dense log atop a fire of logs of medium density can provide evening-long warmth and glow, but too much of the very dense wood can result in an evening of constant poking and prodding to keep the fire going," Shelly said.

The matter of "seasoning" also can greatly affect the amount of heat and enjoyment a fire will provide. A cord of properly dried wood will provide about 10 percent more heat than a cord of freshly cut wood. Most reputable wood dealers will allow wood to air dry for one year before they claim it has been seasoned. Many will use a moisture meter to be certain the moisture content

Fair Tax Coalition Honors Floyd Man At Annual Session

Passage of unmined minerals tax legislation, promoting the rights of surface owners and the protection of the state's water resource will be among the top goals of the Kentucky Fair Tax Coalition for the 1986 legislative session and throughout the new year.

That was decided at the organization's annual membership meeting held October 19 in Hazard. In addition, the group's members voted to give high priority to local control over the locating of hazardous waste facilities, placing sales and property taxes on horses, and a greater return of coal severance tax revenues to mineral-producing counties.

"It's going to take citizens' continued pressure on state government to get them to do anything," KFTC Chairman Sidney Cornett told the gathering. "What really gets the job done is for people who live in affected areas to stand up and tell what's really happening."

Everett Akers, of Martin, was presented a special plaque at the meeting in appreciation of his outstanding service to KFTC over the years.

Workshops during the gathering focused on the issues in the KFTC platform as well as on leadership development skills and holding government officials accountable. The meeting also provided KFTC members throughout the state a chance to gather and renew acquaintances and exchange ideas.

Those attending from Floyd county, in addition to Akers, were Mr. and Mrs. Johnny Lafferty, Oakey Harless, John Burgess, Beth Siegel, Adis Akers, Jerry Martin, Linda Martin, John Rosenber, Miriam Silman, and Terry Keleher.

The farthing, once a bronze coin of the lowest value in English currency, was first issued by King Edward I in 1279 and was not withdrawn from circulation until 1961.

D.A.V., Auxiliary Hold Fall Meeting

Disabled American Veterans and Auxiliary members met at Allen Central High School for their 7th District Fall meeting. The D.A.V. auxiliary was called to order by Commander Grace Hicks, and acting Chaplain Earnestine Hicks opened the meeting with prayer.

Reports were given by visiting unit representatives, Ina Watkins, of Bath Co.; Anna Hatton, of Stanton; Jewel Elom, of Pikeville; Opal Tackett, of Salyersville; Edith Gum, Emma Mullins, of Stanton; Geneva Watkins, of Pikeville; Emily D. Mullins, of Stanton; Essie Wright, of Salyersville; Zella Moore, of Prestonsburg; Barbara Salisbury, and Mildred Halbert, both of Langley; Avonelle Hall, of Hueysville; Carolyn Stacey, of Estill, and Anzie Martin, of Langley.

Alice Hayes was elected vice-commander of 7th district followed by round table discussion on ways and means of persuading members to take a more active part in meetings and in supporting our veterans.

Charles Ward, Chapter 89, Louisville, addressed the meeting urging those assembled to contact Congressman Chris Perkins to defeat the bill now pending to reduce benefits by 3% for veterans and veterans' families who have already given to the utmost. It would be in the interest of all veterans to urge their representatives to defeat this bill. The following men attending the 7th district meet, presided over by Commander Cecil Hicks:

Monroe Vanderpool, Russell Roberts, Willard Fuller, Graham Phillips, Paul Bradford, Robert Compton, Perry T. Hall, J.T. Maynard, Forrester Campbell, Robert W. France, Marion Hatton, Charles Ward, John Speck, Marcellous Stacey, James Cook, General A. Castle, Floyd Tackett, Everett Wright, William M. Quinn, Blake R. Meade, Sterling Wright, Rev. Mitchell Shepherd, Stanley Willard, Charles E. Hicks, Lee Arnold Salisbury, James Martin, Earrit Hayes, and Lee Hall.

An average dinner eaten by King Louis XIV of France: four plates of soup, a whole pheasant, a whole partridge, two slices of ham, a salad, mutton with garlic, pastry, fruit and hard-boiled eggs.

"No One Ever Asked Me..."

By BARBARA WHITT
"No one ever asked me to." This is a frequent answer when you ask someone why they haven't donated blood. What a sad statement to hear when a donation is an easy, yet vital, procedure.

Registration, medical screening, donating, and relaxing with refreshments make up the steps in donating blood. During medical screening, the Blood Center staff gives you a mini-physical. They assist you as you answer questions about your medical history and check your pulse, temperature, blood pressure, and iron count. After medical screening, you lie on a comfortable cot while the medical staff does a sterile arm scrub and then inserts a hollow needle in the bend of your arm. Your pint of blood flows into a sterile plastic bag in about 5-8 minutes. Then you are ready to relax with other donors and enjoy refreshments. In about 45 minutes, you have made a lifesaving contribution to patients in local hospitals.

The Prestonsburg Community College and Central Kentucky Blood Center are asking you to donate on Tuesday, November 14, from 9:00 a.m. to 3:00 p.m. at the Martin Student Center. For more information, call Mazola Salmons at 886-3863.

Prepared Childbirth Class

A Prepared Childbirth series will begin Nov. 14 at 7 p.m. at the Prestonsburg Community College, Building A-1. The class is for those with December or January due dates. To register for class, call Vikki McGuire at 886-3863.

'ColorFall Kentucky' Reaches Estimated 15 Million Visitors

The Kentucky Tourism Cabinet reached at least 15 million potential visitors during the first year of a program promoting fall-foliage trips, Secretary G. Wendell Combs announced.

The campaign, called "ColorFALL Kentucky," concluded Oct. 21 with the last of five weekly reports about the changing of leaves in Kentucky's hardwood forests.

"We're elated with the response to ColorFALL Kentucky," Combs said. "We reached potential tourists not only in our region, but throughout the United States."

Among national media that used the cabinet's fall-foliage information were USA Today, NBC's "Sunrise" program, and The Weather Channel in Atlanta.

Overall, more than 50 newspapers representing a combined circulation of 7.5 million carried the foliage publicity. A total of 15 TV stations in nine major markets carried foliage reports each week, as did an undetermined number of radio stations.

The campaign was recognized Oct. 25 when it won an Award of Excellence from the Kentucky Tourism Federation, during the organization's fall conference in Bowling Green.

ColorFALL Kentucky also provided a boon to the state's toll-free travel-information line. Operators answered more than 1,000 fall-foliage calls during the campaign's duration.

Close interagency cooperation helped make the campaign a success, noted Combs. Staff members from three cabinet agencies—the Office of the Secretary, the Department of Travel Development, and the Department of Parks—worked together to produce the reports and maps each week. Only current staff was used for the program.

"It is only because we are a cabinet-level agency that we were able to tap the talents of so many people," he said.

The cabinet has taken steps to evaluate this year's campaign and is considering resuming it next year.

The Kentucky Historical Society has announced plans for a full day of special activities to be held in Frankfort on Friday, November 8. In a departure from the past, the Society is inviting the public, as well as its 8,000 members, to participate in its annual meeting.

Announcing the plans, KHS assistant director Edna Flowers explained: "This is being done as part of our continuing effort to acquaint the public with the Society and the services we provide."

The all-day program begins with a business meeting scheduled for 11 a.m. in the Old Capitol. At noon, luncheon will be served at the Capital Plaza Hotel. Featured speaker for the occasion will be Wayne Perkey, popular morning radio personality of WHAS, Louisville.

"Getting the Word Out: Local Societies and Media Support" will be the subject of an afternoon panel discussion featuring Herbert Sparrow, former newsman, now with the lieutenant governor's office; Russell Hatter of Radio Station WKY, Frankfort, and Sheryl Morris of Storer Cable Systems, Bowling Green. The program will take place in the Old Capitol beginning at 1:30.

A bus tour of historic Frankfort to include the New Capitol, Governor's Mansion, Kentucky History Museum, Old Capitol, and Military History Museum will begin at 3 p.m.

A dinner meeting will feature Dr. Helen Matthews Lewis, media consultant for Appalshop in Whitesburg, who will speak on "Appalachia and the Media." "Coffee and Conversation," an informal get-together in the Hall of Governors, Old Capitol Annex, concludes the day's activities.

IN MEMORIAM

In memory of Ronnie D. Dotson on his birthday Nov. 2, 1950. Ronnie died September 24, 1972. We think of you in silence. No eye can see us weep, But many silent tears are shed While others are asleep. We are sad within our memory. Lonely are our hearts today, For the one we loved so dearly Has forever been called away. And we think of you in silence And your name we often recall. There is nothing left to answer But your picture on the wall. No one knows the many heartaches, Only those who have lost can tell Of our grief that we keep in silence Of the one we loved so well. We miss the kind and willing hand, The fond and earnest care. Our home is dark without you. We miss you everywhere. We so lonely feel without you, But it was God's blessed will. While we loved you, oh so dearly, God loved you even still. Sadly missed by parents MR. AND MRS. GREILEY DOTSON AND FAMILY 1t.

VIDEO SCENE

Villechaize and Osmond 'try out' for new Beck clip

By Barton Weiss

The most entertaining new clip has to be Jeff Beck's "Ambitious." It starts with a group of people giving their names and being assigned numbers. It seems that these folks are auditioning for the vocal part in the clip viewers are watching. The off-beat lot includes Herve Villechaize ("Fantasy Island") and Donny Osmond, who explains that he has singing experience: "I've been singing with my family and a chick named Marie."

Jeff Beck

Singer after singer goes through the song, but Jeff Beck pretty much ignores the whole process and plays his guitar. You get the idea: Everybody else is looking nervous and working hard, but he's having fun.

The pastoral look

Video director Zbigniew Rybczynski (better known as the Big Z) certainly is dedicated. When Hurricane Gloria terrorized the East Coast, Rybczynski wasn't hiding behind taped windows. He was out by the streams, woods and hills of Woodstock, N.Y., (yes, that Woodstock) directing the new Simple Minds video, "Alive and Kicking."

The pastoral settings give it a look that is similar to Tears for Fears' "Shout," but the shots give it a greater sense of urgency. The group-by-the-river shots are interspersed with a string of fast-moving shots through the forest.

This clip isn't up to the Big Z's usual standards (he has won two MTV awards), but it's watchable and pleasant.

Lovable Howard

Howard Jones, the HoJo Man, has a new one. "I'd Like to Get to Know You Well" uses a heavy amount of black-and-white xeroxed film with hand-painted colors. Howard wears a multitude of costumes and comes off as his usual lovable self.

Tunes on Your TV

MTV recently has been airing several clips from the Farm Aid concert in irregular rotation. Clips airing include the Beach Boys' "Help Me Rhonda," Neil Young's acoustic "My My, Hey Hey" and a powerful rendition of "Everytime You Go Away" from Daryl Hall, Bonnie Raitt and Billy Joel.

It's good to see these songs out of the context of the long and not so well produced show. Here's hoping some clips from Live Aid, which was shot better, eventually make their way to television as well.

 EVERYONE WELCOME

MIXTURE
 By WILMA Y
 When asked how he felt as a new Christian the old Indian said it was like having a white dog and a black dog inside of him, each fighting the other. His inquirer wanted to know which won. The aged man replied, "Whichever I say 'sic him' to." Jesus puts a new man inside each believer. Col. 3:10; II Cor. 5:17; Eph. 4:24; Eze. 11:19. The winner in daily battles of life is the one to whom the host hands the reins!

God's purpose of that plan is well expressed in this beautiful anonymous poem: "All of self and none of thee, Some of self and some of thee, Less of self and more of thee; None of self and all of thee." That goal should be ours, for it explains many passages that puzzle some of us, and because we know that salvation is instantaneous, but achieving Christian maturity is a lifetime job.

It helps to know there are means whereby Christians can grow. Chief among them are: Daily prayer, and scripture study, attending worship and other services in godly churches; fellowship with the saints; accepting responsibility in the church, to grow and to assist others; service to humanity; since we are saved to help win others, and—as James says—faith without works is dead. Only God knows the heart. He alone can judge, but the world judges by the outward life. If there is no fruit, no good works with godly motives, no visible distinction between the saved and the unsaved, some naturally wonder.

A newly-saved young woman was discussing her joy with her mother, who remarked, "I'm so glad I'm a Christian." The daughter gasped, "Are you? Mom, I didn't know it." She did not say that because her mother was not a good woman, for the lady was. But she had never told her children about the Savior, the plan of salvation. She rarely attended services, had not united with any church, never sent her brood to Sunday School. The daughter never saw her praying or studying the Bible, whose wealth of stories had not enriched her childhood.

(Incidentally one authority says Protestants spend 52 hours a year teaching their children; Catholics, 200 hours; and Jews, 375 on the average.) Seeing the look on her daughter's face, the mother turned over a new leaf, which is something many of us need to do frequently, by taking spiritual inventory and planning more dedicated lives. Spiritual development is impossible without prayer and study. In addition to the Bible the Christian diet improves when commentaries, concordances, Bible dictionaries, encyclopedias, plus numerous good books are included in the menu. Even then, years of study can never compare with one day of obedience. God rewards faith and obedience more than any other desirable attributes of his children; hence, it behooves us to pause often and ask, "If every member were like me, what kind of church would this be?" No organization is stronger than its weakest link.

Unfortunately, this century in the U.S.A. has been so characterized by crass materialism—love of success and status—that Christianity is suffering, though gaining, and our great land is still going downhill rapidly, when it comes to honesty, godliness, morality, etc. Once a visiting Englishman who admired America and her greatness said, "If America ever ceases to be good she will no longer be great." He was in a fair position to judge. Look at his native land, queen of the seas for decades, long after Rome had lost their crown. Have we reached the point of return? God forbid! Time will soon tell.

Halley's Comet On KET
 After completing its regular 76-year tour around the solar system, our most celebrated celestial visitor, Halley's comet, will return to the earth's skies late this year. "Comet Halley" will examine the lure of comets, focusing on this, the most famous of all. Filmed in observatories, laboratories, and historical sites in Europe, the U.S., and Japan, the program will be aired on KET Tuesday, November 26, at 9:00 p.m.

"Comet Halley," which will be aired shortly before Halley's comet will first be visible to the naked eye, traces man's often fearful fascination with the comet from its discovery in China in 240 B.C. to the present.

The program looks at the sweep of comet science beginning with Edmond Halley (1656-1742), who first predicted the comet's return at 76-year intervals. His contributions moved comets from the realm of mythology into real science. That process continues this time around as Halley's comet is the focus of the largest coordinated astronomical event in history: the International Halley watch. This effort by thousands of astronomers, both amateur and professional, will coordinate worldwide sightings of the comet to ensure as complete a record of the comet's return as possible, with the findings shared by all.

Cats End Season with Win, To Meet Hazard in Playoff

The 1985 football regular season came to an end Friday on a happy note for the Prestonsburg Blackcats as they travelled to Morgan County to face the Cougars. The Cats came away with a 36-0 victory in a contest that was hampered by a constant downpour of rain which turned the playing field into a huge puddle of mud.

The 'Cats, who had already clinched a playoff berth in the Class AA Region 4, District 2 championship game to be played this Friday against Hazard, put their first points on the scoreboard with 6:14 showing on the clock in the first quarter. Senior standout B.D. Nunmery capped a six-play, 37-yard drive when he went around left end for a five-yard TD run.

Faking the extra-point attempt, place kicker Brent Hackworth threw a pass to quarterback John Goble, who, lined up on the left side of the field, ran the ball into the end zone, making the score 8-0 in favor of the 'Cats.

The Cougars were unable to mount any type of offense on their initial possession, giving the ball back to Prestonsburg.

Taking over on the Morgan County 26-yard line, the 'Cats began a six-play drive which ended with tight end Stacy Marshall logging his first touchdown reception of the year. With 1:50 left in the first quarter, Marshall hauled down a 6-yard pass from Goble as he cut across the Cougar secondary. Greg Shepherd's extra point kick was good, giving the Blackcats a 15-0 lead at the end of the first stanza of play.

The 'Cats' next score came after recovering a Cougar fumble on the Morgan County nine. On the first play from scrimmage Nunmery rambled nine yards for his second touchdown of the evening. Shepherd then ran for the two-point conversion giving Prestonsburg an impressive 23-0 halftime lead.

The 'Cats were able to put two more touchdowns on the scoreboard in the second half, while the Cougars were hampered by turnovers, losing the ball three times on fumbles.

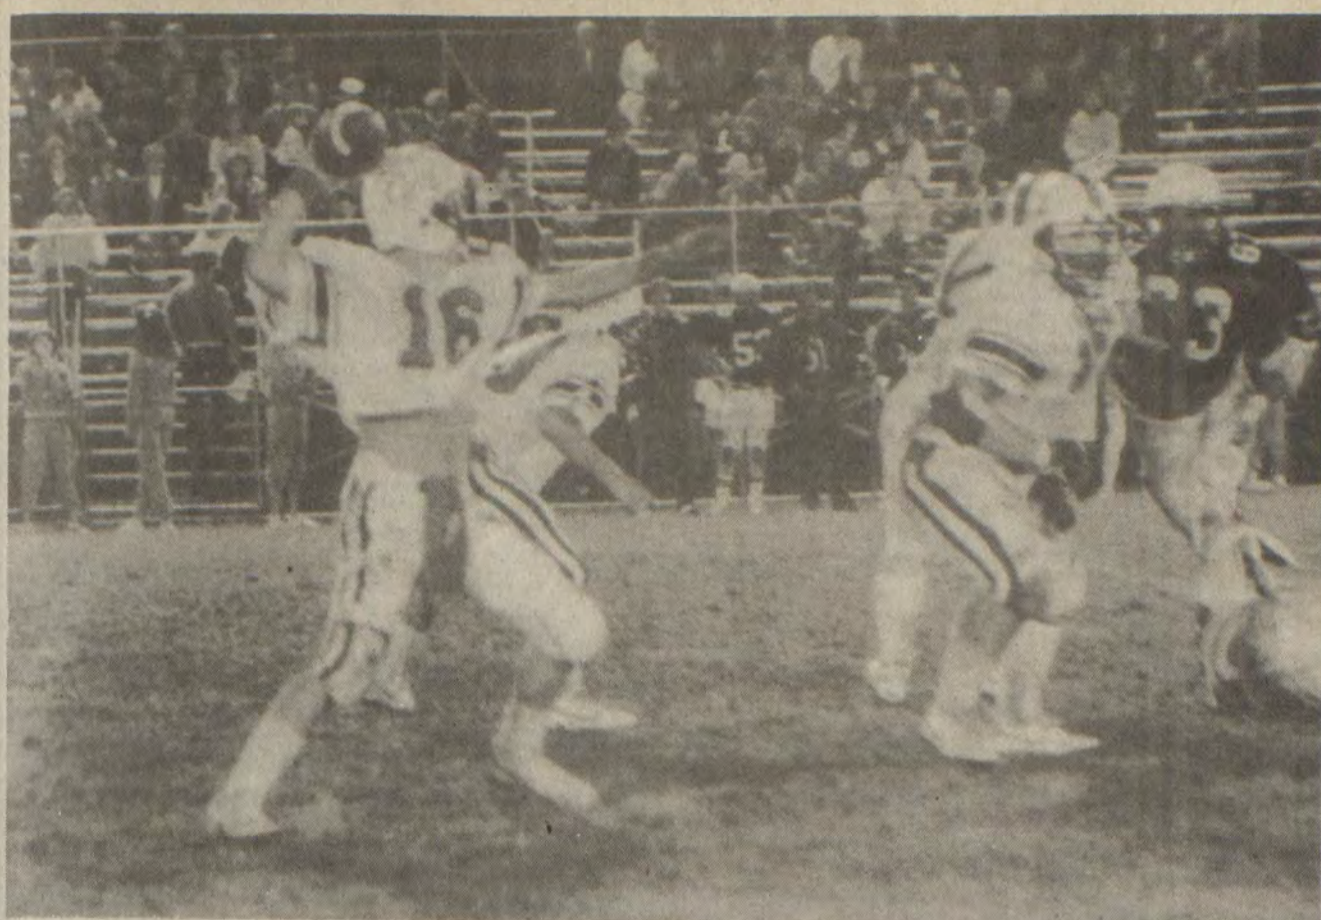

Prestonsburg opened up a three-touchdown lead with 6:18 left in the third quarter when Shag Branham concluded a seven-play, 50-yard drive, with a five-yard carry off right tackle. Branham's number was called again on the extra point try as he took a pitch from Goble and went racing around left end. Branham, cut back toward the end zone and lost his footing, preventing him from converting the effort into two more Blackcat points.

The final scoring drive for the Cats was their best offensive effort of the night, as they marched 69 yards in eight plays for the score. Faced with a third down and 19 yards to go situation, Goble dropped back to pass with 11:52 showing on the clock. Senior wide-receiver Peter Greene, who Coach Chuck Williams considers "one of the best all-around high school football players I have ever seen," managed to shake free from the Cougar secondary, and was wide open for a 31-yard strike from Goble. Upon catching the ball, Green raced into the end zone for the final touchdown of the evening. A successful point-after kick by Shepherd gave the Prestonsburg squad their final margin of victory, 36-0.

Even though the weather was terrible, the 'Cats were guilty of turning the ball over one time on a third quarter fumble, while their opposition lost the ball on four occasions.

Prestonsburg did not have its best offensive performance of the year against the Cougars, due to the inclement weather and the sloppy field conditions. As a team the Cats had a total of 141 yards rushing. B.D. Nunmery upped his season rushing total to 1080 yards, picking up 41 yards on eight carries. Ronnie Slone gained 35 yards on seven tries; Wendell Burke picked up 33 yards on five carries and Shag Branham, alternating with Slone at fullback, ran for 30 yards on three carries.

Near the end of the game, Coach Williams gave some of his linemen an opportunity to run the ball. Bryan Griffith, the team's center, ran the pigskin one time for a five-yard pick-up, and Donnie Ray gained three yards on his only rushing attempt.

An amazing statistic that should not go unnoticed is that all of Prestonsburg's running backs finished the season with a five-yard per carry, or better, average.

The air attack on Friday was up to par as John Goble threw for 128 yards and two touchdowns. Pete Greene was Goble's favorite target, catching four passes for 84 yards and one touchdown. Goble was 7-12 on the night for an impressive 58% completion average.

The 'Cats closed out their regular season with a 10-1 won-lost record, with their only loss to Harrison County on Oct. 18 in their final home game of the season.

The Cats' next foe will be the Hazard Bulldogs this Friday night at Hazard. It was the Bulldogs who came to Prestonsburg last year and upset the Cats in the District 2 championship game. "We aren't taking Hazard lightly," commented Williams after the Morgan County game. "We are going over there and play heads-up ball."

The winner of Friday's game will probably play the undefeated Corbin Redhounds, the state's top ranked team in Class AA.

There will be a pep rally at 6 p.m. Thursday in the municipal parking lot to cheer the Cats on as they begin post-season action.

The first building to employ a steel skeleton for support, and thus the first true skyscraper, was the Home Insurance Company building, erected in Chicago in 1885.

Trojans Lose To Paintsville, Betsy Layne to Pikeville

The fans, the teams, and the coaches were ready to play football Friday night as the Wheelwright Trojans travelled to Paintsville to square off against their sub-district rivals. The only problem was, the officiating squad was not. It seems that there were no officials assigned to referee the contest by the Kentucky State High School Athletic Association, leaving everyone in the lurch.

The only thing to do was to call the game off and replay it on Saturday night, which was done this time with a full complement of the men in the striped shirts.

The Trojans came up on the losing end of the tally, 32-6, as they closed out their 1985 football season.

The Tigers from Paintsville proved to be too strong for the Trojans, holding the Floyd county squad scoreless until the waning minutes of the fourth quarter when David Hall ran in from the two-yard line. Hall was the Trojans leading offensive force, as he has been all year, picking up 208 yards for the game. Trojan quarterback Jack Hall completed 10 of 13 passes for 93 yards, finding David Hall five times for 50 yards and Johnny Isaac three times for 30 yards.

In their final home game of the year the Betsy Layne Bobcats took on the Pikeville Panthers in a game marked by bad weather and horrible field conditions.

By the 5:15 mark of the first half, the Panthers had a 12-0 lead and it seemed that the weather was hurting the Bobcats more than the visitors. Two impressive Bobcat drives in the final minutes of the first half were stifled by two interceptions of junior quarterback Bud Newsome's passes.

The Bobcats managed to put their only points on the board midway through the fourth quarter when Todd Sturgill ran for a six-yard score. A successful two-point conversion followed, leaving the final score at 30-8.

Mr. and Mrs. Chalmer Frazier spent the weekend in Shelbyville with their daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Steve Wilborn, and son Christopher.

Hunting Season Requires Planning By Land Owners

The public demand for hunting rights on private land increases every year, but questions of legal liability and the potential for property damage cause more and more landowners to turn hunters away.

For those landowners whose objections to hunters are based on the fears mentioned above, there are a few simple steps that can reduce the potential problems.

It is important for landowners to decide ahead of time what rules and standards they will expect hunters to honor.

"It's easier to be certain that you have covered all the important considerations if you make the rules in advance. This also lets you be sure you have clearly explained the rules to hunters you allow on your property," said Craig Huegel, Extension wildlife specialist in the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture.

Another important concern is the clear marking of property lines. By clearly posting property boundaries, landowners remove any confusion on the hunters' part as to where permission to hunt has been granted.

"Having done these things the most important step is for the landowner to talk with each hunter, on a one to one basis, before permission to hunt is granted. This way you know who is on your land and you know that they know the rules," Huegel said.

The pre-hunting interviews are important not only for the landowner, but for the hunter as well. Warnings about dangerous areas and clarifications about the difference between post-harvest corn stubble and emerging winter wheat crops can be made clear.

"Not all hunters are familiar with agricultural practices, and some might unknowingly trample a crop that is just coming in," Huegel said.

In addition to telling hunters where they can hunt, the pre-hunt interview should include instructions on where the hunter is not to hunt, or even point a gun.

"Landowners should make sure the hunters know how close to building and livestock they may hunt, what fields they may drive across and where and how they should cross fences and gates, and whether the gates should be closed behind them," Huegel said.

Landowners in some area, especially where trespassers have been a problem, have begun to issue written permission slips to those whom they are allowing to hunt on their land. These slips can specify the dates for which permission to hunt has been granted as well as the type of game the hunters are permitted to go after. This will help game wardens as they try to help landowners keep trespassers off their property.

Landowners frequently are worried about their liability should a hunter get shot or injured while on their property.

"Landowners are not liable for such accidents unless the hunter can prove willful injury or, willful or malicious failure to warn against a known hazard. By making a careful list of all dangerous areas on the property, and being careful, through their written list of rules, to warn hunters about them, landowners can protect themselves from liability for injury to hunters," Huegel said.

Most hunters appreciate the opportunity to hunt on private land, and are happy to abide by the rules of common courtesy when landowners tell them what is expected of them and where they may and may not hunt.

"All it takes in most instances is for the landowner to take the time to give the hunters a list of do's and don'ts while hunting on their property," Huegel said.
