Howell Advises Probe of Bolton's '85 Expenditures

Clerk Charges Personal Bias At State Level

Floyd Fiscal Court should "take much stronger control" of the county clerk's spending and may do well to have the state auditor or attorney-general investigate the clerk's books, an official with the state Department of Local Government wrote in a letter to the county judge-executive last week.

Al Howell, a supervisor in the department, cited as evidence of "questionable" spending a tripling in the cost of supplies for the clerk's office between 1984 and 1985 and a doubling in the cost of office equipment.

Although state law requires that items over $7500 be purchased only after advertising for bids, fiscal court minutes show no evidence of bids being taken last year for new equipment in the clerk's office, Howell noted in the April 28 letter, which also bears the signatures of state Local Finance Officer Robert L. Purdom and Local Government field representative Dan Tuttle.

As a result of the increase in spending, fees to be turned over to the county. which add up to only $13,113 for 1985, have dropped off sharply by comparison with recent years-Thomas Lafferty, Jr. turned in $70,357 over 10 months in 1983, and Bolton herself had $78,039 left over in 1984—and have embarrassed county officials, who drew up this year's budget expecting that they would receive at least $60,000 from the clerk's office in excess fees for 1985, Howell said. "The loss of anticipated revenue affects the county as a whole rather than the clerk's of-

Howell, who was the state official who first raised the questions that resulted in a lengthy state police probe of the 1982 county administration, also suggested that the clerk may be paying her employees more than she is entitled to and may be improperly listing part-time employees as fulltime workers for the (See Story No. 3, Page 4)

Moore Acquitted In Murder Trial

His client was not driving the car which plunged into Left Beaver Creek last January, killing one of the three men inside; and, in any event, the crash victim died only because he was too drunk to get out of the wrecked car. That was the argument put by defense attorney Jerry Patton last Wednesday to a Floyd Circuit Court jury considering a charge of murder against Basel Ray

Moore, 28, of McDowell, was acquitted, not only of the murder charge but also of the lesser charges of manslaughter and reckless homicide of which he could have been convicted.

Prosecutors Albert Burchett and J. Logan Griffith argued that Moore was responsible for the death of Timothy Dye, 22, who drowned around 6:30 on the evening of January 16, when the compact car in which he was a backseat passenger left KY 122 just above

No More Pamper Creek If Cleanup A Success

A "massive effort" to get the trash out of the ditches and keep the appliances out of the creeks will be launched next week under the auspices of the county's judge-executive, city mayors and a variety of business and civic groups.

A Prestonsburg fast-food restaurant will be handing out plastic bags and free pop to those who fill them up. A county dump truck will follow the trucks of Floyd County Solid Waste, Inc. on their regular routes to pick up larger junk items. Job Corps and Scouting groups will be scouring the county's highways and byways for bottles and cans. And, it is hoped, county residents will make an extra effort to clean up their own streets and hollows.

The solid waste landfill at Garth will be open daily from 7 a.m. until 4 p.m.

Board Meet Postponed

Because the state Board of Education meets this week, the scheduled meeting of the Floyd Board of Education will be held next Wednesday, May 14, at the Prestonsburg High School cafeteri beginning at 7 p.m. and on Saturday, May 17, from 9 a.m. until 6 p.m., and the normal dumping fee will be waived for those participating in the clean-up.

As part of the clean-up effort, junked cars will be taken away, as long as a written, signed release is obtained from

The trash removal is being organized as an annual event by a group called the Committee for a Cleaner Floyd County Householders with debris and junk appliances should put them out with their regular garbage next week or else take it to the landfill themselves. Thirtygallon and smaller litter bags are being supplied by Druthers of Prestonsburg and may be picked up there or at Prestonsburg city hall or fire stations. Organizers of clean-up groups may also get Druthers coupons for free pop for their workers.

For further information, call the judge-executive's office (886-9193), the Prestonsburg mayor's office (886-2335), Druthers operator John Carey 886-8602), or landfill manager David Cooley (285-5133).

Hager Hill Bridge Work To Close 23

The main road between Prestonsburg and Paintsville will be closed at Hager Hill for an extended period beginning next Wednesday to permit repairs to be made to the bridge that crosses the Big Sandy and the C. and O. railroad there.

The bridge will be closed to all traffic at midnight on Wednesday, May 14 for about three months, highways officials announced this week. Traffic will be detoured via US 460 and KY 114 by way of Salyersville, they said

Kirby Ison, Jr., chief district engineer at the Bureau of Highways' Pikeville office, said the relatively new concrete bridge-it was built in the early 1960shas been plagued with maintenance problems which cannot be corrected without redesigning the bridge deck.

Highways officials considered repairing the deck one lane at a time, keeping the other lane open for traffic, but decided it would be faster, cheaper, and safer to close the road entirely and repair the bridge in a single operation. It was estimated that doing the repair job

Suit Alleges RF Radiation Caused Death

Her husband died of the effects of radiation emitted from a radio transmitter, a Prestonsburg woman claimed this week in a suit filed in Floyd Circuit

In what is believed to be the first case filed here claiming damages for injuries caused by radio frequency (RF) radiation, Marie Slone Lafferty is asking for an unspecified amount from the manufacturer of the radio transmission equipment on which her husband, William Colonel Lafferty, worked for 22 years before his death of leukemia in August, 1983.

Lafferty, who was 41 when he died, was employed as a radio engineer by WDOC, Inc. and was responsible for maintaining the radio station's Abbott Mountain transmission tower, which was manufactured by Collins Radio and installed in 1981

Scam Nets Estill Man 3-Year Term

An Estill man pleaded guilty in Floyd Circuit Court this week to a scam in which he obtained mining supplies by calling in phony orders to National Mine Supply and then showing up to take delivery of the goods. Police said Jeffery David Titlow called in a $687 order and a $1297 order on two days last November, falsely claiming he represented the Three Oaks Mining Company. He allegedly repeated the scam, calling in a $1460 order on January 3 this year but, when he arrived to pick it up, he was apprehended by National Mine Supply security officer Frank Reffett

Police said Titlow told them the scam was hatched by a Mud Creek man in a Tackett Fork bar and that he was selling the stolen supplies to the man for $50 a "plug" and $1 per drill bit. State Trooper B.J. Woods said Titlow agreed to set up a sale to the man but fled the scene as the transaction was supposed to take place. The alleged buyer was not charged in connection with the scheme

After pleading guilty to two counts of theft by deception, Titlow was sentenced to three years in prison on each count, the sentences to be served concurrently. He will receive credit for the three months he has already spent in jail.

Also entering a guilty plea this week was John Weddington, of Stephens Branch, near Martin. Originally indicted on a felony count of trafficking in marijuana, Weddington pleaded guilty to possession of marijuana, a misdemeanor. He was sentenced to a year in jail, on the understanding that six months of the sentence would be probated. He was also ordered to reimburse Kentucky State Police for the money paid by an undercover officer for the marijuana Weddington sold him. Det. K.D. Felice said he paid Weddington

Florida Police Arrest Spouse In Boyd Murder

A former Dana man whose body was found floating in a Sarasota, Fla. drainage canal April 27 was buried here Friday and, shortly after the funeral, his wife was arrested by Sarasota County sheriff's deputies on charges of firstdegree murder and complicity to commit murder.

Also arrested on the same charges was a man who was neighbor to the couple, who lived in a rooming-house section on the outskirts of the southern Florida city.

Dead is Ireland Boyd, 33, who was employed by a roofing company. Sarasota Deputy Sheriff Darryl Brown said a fisherman found his body floating in a canal used to drain celery fields in the area. According to an autopsy report, he died of blunt-instrument blows to the back of the head.

Charged in the case are Boyd's wife, Mary Catherine Bontrager Boyd, 37, and John Edwards, 42. According to an affidavit filed by sheriff's deputies, Edwards is said to have agreed to Mrs. Boyd's request that he kill her husband, in return for sexual favors

Edwards was paroled in 1983 after serving eight years of a life sentence for a 1975 murder, according to court records.

A Sarasota deputy sheriff was dispatched to this county last week to interview Mrs. Boyd, who was here for her husband's funeral. She was arrested on

Appeals Court Voids Jeffrey Suspension

The state Court of Appeals last week ordered that the 1982 action of the Kentucky Board of Dentistry in suspending the license of Stephen Jeffrey II, a dentist with a part-time practice in this county at that time, be voided.

Jeffrey, 32, whose main office was in Lexington, practiced in this county on one or more days a week, first in Wheelwright and later at the Family Dentistry, Inc. clinic at Price, when his license to practice was suspended by the licensure board in October, 1982, for alleged unprofessional conduct and for allegedly "allowing unlicensed persons to practice dentistry in his office.

In a 1984 ruling, the Jefferson Circuit Court upheld the licensure board's decision. But that ruling was reversed Friday by the appeals court, which described it as "clearly erroneous" and which ordered the lower court to void the licensure board's action.

Repeating a charge made by Jeffrey during the circuit court trial, Jay Simmons, of Lexington, who was once Jeffrey's office manager, claimed this week that charges against the dentist had been trumped up by Prestonsburg dentist Garland Godsey in an effort to drive Jeffrey out of the county. Godsey, who has sat for the past five years on the state dentistry board and was one of those who voted to suspend Jeffrey, once called Jeffrey by phone and told him to 'get out of the county," Simmons

Godsey called the charge "ridiculous" and said that, prior to the circuit court trial in Louisville, he had never spoken to Jeffrey and has never called his office. The dentist's suspension was based on solid grounds and he is surprised at the appeals court's decision to undo it, Godsey said.

Simmons said his former boss has not practiced dentistry while his case was in court and has no intention of resuming his practice.

The serger, also known as the overlook sewing machine, has hit the market in a big way, said clothing and textile expert Bette Jo Dedic. "The machine is revolutionizing home

The University of Kentucky Extension specialist said the serger stitches, trims and overcasts in one step almost twice as fast as a conventional machine. Sergers duplicate ready-to-wear seaming and finishing that cannot be done with regular machines.

They are a must for anyone who sews for profit," Dedic said. She added, "You can complete a top or a pair of sweats in just minutes. The serger can be used for everything from ribbing on tops to side-seaming skirt or pant pockets to the finishing on lingerie and scarves. It is fantastic for children's clothing, sweater knits and aerobic and swimwear, too.

The lightweight, box-like machine has rods that extend above to hold from two to four spools of thread. Several knobs and dials are attached to the front to adjust tension. Unlike its conventional cousin, the serger uses special thread which is available in large cones. Heavier threads, yarns and ribbons can be used for decorative stitching.

The serger has a knife to trim the seams while you sew. That's another time-saving feature.

Sergers aren't intended to replace your conventional machine, Dedic said. Some seams made by the serger have to be reinforced with the regular machine, but it is still worth the money. The machine is expensive but anyone

Planned March To Beat Drum For Schools

In a unique display of support for academic progress in Kentucky, a coalition of representatives from businesses, government, and civic organizations will sponsor A Celebration of Kentucky Schools. The ceremony will be an olympic-style marching event preceding the May 17 Louisville Redbird baseball game in Redbird Stadium.

KET will present live coverage of the event in half-hour program, "Flags of Excellence: A Celebration of Kentucky Schools," airing Saturday, May 17, at

According to Rebecca Brown, associate superintendent for Research and Planning in the state Department of Education, the event will showcase schools that received either Flags of Excellence or Flags of Progress awarded by the state education department for

The pre-game ceremony evolved from a common goal and desire on the part of both the business community and education leaders to give more recognition and visibility to the many outstanding schools in Kentucky, Brown explained. "The planners wanted to come up with something festive, upbeat, and positive," she said, "which would call attention to the gains made in education

The Flags of Excellence/Flags of Progress program was instituted in 1984 by the Kentucky Educational Foundation under the leadership of Superintendent Alice McDonald. In 1985, Flags of Excellence were awarded to 61 schools. Flags of Progress were awarded 182 schools. Both flags were awarded to 38 schools. The awards are based on achievement test scores, and rates for dropout and attendance.

Each of the 250 schools invited to participate will be represented by two adult and two student marchers and one student banner carrier identifying the participating school. Participants will receive A Celebration of Kentucky Schools T-shirts, free passes to the ball game, a free dinner, and entertainment for the evening as well as recognition for Sponsors for the event include Pepsi Bottlers of Louisville; A. Ray Smith, owner of the Louisville Redbirds, Kentucky's only AA professional baseball team; and The Louisville Courier-Journal and Times Co. Also assisting will be staff from the Redbirds, the University of Louisville athletic program, and the education department's Research and Planning Division.

'We see this ceremony," said Brown, as a positive ending to a positive school

"Flags of Excellence: A Celebration of Kentucky Schools" is produced by the Kentucky Department of Education.

Although he was previously in excellent health, Lafferty began complaining of a "burning or boiling sensation" under his skin in 1983 and consulted a doctor in July of that year, the suit says. His condition quickly worsened, however, and he died in a Lexington hospital the following month. In addition to his wife, he left two sons. The lawsuit claims that the kind of leukemia Lafferty contracted is known to result from high doses of RF Continental Electronics Manufacturing Co., the Dallas, Texas firm that bought out Collins Radio in 1980, is named as defendant in the suit. Mrs. Lafferty claims the company should have warned her husband that he was in danger of exposure to high levels of radiation.

Mrs. Lafferty said she began making inquiries about the alleged hazards of RF radiation after reading about it last May. In April, 1985 the Floyd County Times publicized an EPA report which suggested that an FM radio transmitter in Prestonsburg was among a number suspected of emitting radiation at levels above those widely accepted as safe. High dosages of RF radiation had been associated with elevated internal body temperatures, the report said. Of Prestonsburg's two FM transmitters, the 100,000-watt WDOC tower is by far the more powerful.

Suits filed in court give only the plaintiff's side of the suit in question. This one was filed on behalf of Mrs. Lafferty and her two children by Prestonsburg attorney C.V. Reynolds and Washington attorney J. Stuart Lemle.

NEXT TIME, MAYBE

Every time I go to North Carolina, I go convinced that I will come back leaner of body, brighter of eye, sharper of wit. In brief, I will be the old self I have, in fact, rarely if ever been.

The first time, I went on what I gleefully described to one and all as "a diet you can live with." You can, but yours truly didn't lose any excess baggage en route. In fact, my son-in-law wondered if maybe he should bring his coal truck to haul me back home.

This year, I bought two cartons of cottage cheese upon arrival, then promptly went on a high calorie cooking spree. Julia Child might not have approved the end product, but she could not have disdained my culinary enthusiasm. Betcha she never even heard of cornbread and

Anyway, I stuck the cottage cheese in the freezer, and next time..

A NICE PLACE

The ebb and surge of the tide is to me one of the most compelling reminders of the awesome power of nature, but the wailing of the wind down the mountainside to the valley below runs a close second. This wind soughing through the trees is but one of the many charms of the Little Switzerland-Spruce Pine section of North Carolina. Right now, there are carpets of trillium, the familiar dogwood is in full bloom, and the wild azalea is just beginning to show its flamelike color here and there. Close by are Mount Mitchell and Grandfather Mountain. There are prime trout streams for the fisherman, and, I am reliably informed, challenging courses for the golfer. But being a sedentary, if not downright slothful type, it's the simple beauty of the place that I love; the peace; the away-from-it-all calm and quiet-except for the wind, of course. Thank you, Brenda.

AN AVALANCHE OF SORTS

After a week's vacation, I returned to find my desk buried under a small avalanche of mail, most of which are entries in the Not an I.Q. Test which ran in the April 23 issue of The Times. The response has been somewhat surprising, to say the least. Some, not all, winners will begin receiving their Times this week. Give me a break! In my weakened condition, I just haven't been able to get through them all. By next week, Deo volente, I'll have it all together. Honest, I promise.

Complaint Cites Duel Challenge

Curtis Hughes, of Martin, threatened to burn his restaurant down and later kept calling on the phone, challenging him to fight a duel, Jack Absher, Jr., proprietor of Sam 'n' Tonio's, claimed in a complaint that led to Hughes' conviction last week on a charge of terroristic threatening.

A 30-day sentence was handed down by District Judge Harold Stumbo, who also ordered the defendant to pay $72 in fine and court costs. A bench warrant was issued for Hughes, who did not appear in court.

In other district court cases, Charles Shepherd was given a three-month sentence after pleading guilty to criminal mischief, the sentence probated on condition he make $100 restitution to Japalene Bentley. Frank Stephens was ordered to pay $82, put on a month's probation, and ordered to stay away from the Herrin-Johnson Pharmacy, after pleading guilty to receiving stolen property. Sue Crace was given five days, fined $62, and ordered to make restitution to Price's Midnite Market, after being convicted of theft by deception.

On a complaint of Trooper C.T. Henson, who said he clocked him driving at 90 m.p.h., Dale Wayne Gleason, of Albany, Oregon, was ordered to pay $112 for speeding and having no license. On a complaint of Homer Johnson, Mollie Bryant was convicted of making harassing communications, given a suspended $100 fine, and ordered to pay $57. Convicted of drunk driving:

sake of receiving county-paid fringe

In a telephone interview later, Howell elaborated on the charges, claiming that the jump in expenditures on office supplies-from $20,070 in 1984 to $59,545 in 1985—suggests that the clerk "just went wild." The cost of office equipment purchases rose from $16,716 to $31,935 over the same period.

The auditor or attorney-general should be asked to find out who sold the supplies and equipment to the clerk's office, said Howell, who implied that the vendor in many instances would turn out to be Joe Bolton, the clerk's husband. Although he conceded it was more a matter of concern for Harp Enterprises than for county or state government, Howell raised again allegations initially made by Harp's attorneys several months ago that Joe Bolton was added to the county clerk's payroll while he was still being paid by Harp, a Lexington firm that supplies clerks' offices with ballots and other printed materials.

"Wait for the audit," which should be completed within the next two weeks, Mrs. Bolton cautioned last week in response to suggestions of improper spending. The audit, which is being done at her request by J.W. Bryan, of Lexington, will show that all expenditures have been for legitimate needs, she said. The clerk said earlier that the sharp rise in expenses last year resulted largely from the need to refurnish the office and microfilm county records.

Mrs. Bolton denied she is paying her workers more than they are entitled to or that she is listing part-time workers as fulltime workers for the sake of receiving fringe benefits from the county. While she is paying some employees overtime despite the fiscal court's refusal last July to authorize overtime payments, this is only a matter of fairness and she has an attorneygeneral's opinion to back her up, the clerk said.

The clerk acknowledged earlier that she had overlooked state bidding law in making purchases during the past two years, including the purchase of nearly $40,000 worth of microfilming services from a firm represented by her husband. But she said she misunderstood the law until it was explained to her by state auditors last year.

While Joe Bolton, then still a Harp employee, worked earlier this year as a $1300-a-month deputy clerk, he insisted he was working two jobs, not being paid two salaries for the same hours. He has since been dropped from the clerk's payroll.

In the face of Harp's insistence that he work exclusively for them, Bolton split with his old firm, setting up a rival firm of his own, Kentuckiana Election Service Company. The two firms are apparently competing keenly for business in eastern Kentucky counties, including Floyd.

In March, Harp Enterprises submitted an unprecedented $2077 bid to print ballots and set up election machines for the primary election here this Mayelections have traditionally cost three or four times that amount, but Harp claims wiy automated printing plant has cut their costs dramatically-but the county clerk said she had already awarded the election contract to her husband's firm. While no contract price had been agreed on, it would not be cheaper than the price offered by Harp, the clerk acknowledged.

Mrs. Bolton attributed Howell's criticism of the clerk's office to hostility between Jay Harp, president of Harp Enterprises, and her husband; Harp and Howell are friends, she claimed. But Howell denied there was anything personal in his questioning the clerk's performance and insisted his relationship with Harp was strictly professional.

I tried to give an objective report, to tell the county what we recommend," Howell said, adding, "I think the court is probably going to turn it over to the attorney-general. There has been just too much discrepancy over the past two

Of the clerk's claim that the probe was motivated by personal animosity, Howell said, "I think she's grasping at straws. I don't know what they're trying to hide."

The state official was especially critical of the clerk's claim that she was ignorant of state bidding laws. "I think that's a pretty lame excuse," he said. 'She's been taking the minutes at fiscal court meetings for 41/2 years. They do bidding all the time. She's got to have known you have to bid.'

In any event, ignorance is no excuse for violating state law, Howell said. "It's her responsibility as an elected official to know what the law is."

In urging the judge-executive to exercise greater control over the clerk's spending, Howell said, "It's all county money. I want the fiscal court to say how much she can spend. She can't spend it anyway she wants to. The court should put a lid and cap on it."

Judge Executive John M. Stumbo agreed Monday that the court should exercise tighter control over the clerk's spending but said the county would take no specific action before studying the clerk's audit.

One of the many services provided by the Pike County Chapter of the American Red Cross is service to the military and their families. When there is any emergency, illness or death the family may contact the local chapter, as the Red Cross is mandated by Congress to be the liaison between the military and home. It is very important that families have the name of the person in service, branch of service, rank, social security number and complete military address, so that the messages can get through more quickly, as time is of the essence in getting the service person contacted. If you have a loved one in service, please send a postcard with this information as well as the name, address and phone number of the family at

Due to the recent terrorist problems around the world, the local chapter has been flooded with calls inquiring about their loved ones in service. There is no charge for this service and as you know our local chapter is supported by the voluntary contributions of its citizens. The Red Cross receives no money from the government. Due to the fact that the Pike county chapter is the only active chapter in southeastern Kentucky we receive many calls from our surrounding areas. This service is an added expense. In answer to the article about the trucks going through the city, I have a few things to say

First, the stop lights at the bottom of the hill coming into Prestonsburg create a dangerous situation for everyone. That's the reason a few trucks go through town-not to save time.

Next, if you are going to stop one set of trucks, then stop them all-the supply trucks, the beer trucks, the grocery trucks, the car-carriers, etc. Don't discriminate against the coal trucks. Besides, for a city that depends on coal to survive, to say they don't want the coal carriers in their town is ridiculous.

Last, if the coal trucks aren't welcome in town, then neither is my money. I'll do my shopping elsewhere. My money comes from coal

Offended By Bagge

While reading about the keynote address to the ninth annual meeting of the ment Club sponsored a clean-up cam-Big Sandy-Elkhorn Coal Mining Institute at May Lodge by Mr. Bagge and of how he called all of us who are concerned about the environment of our country everything from vigilantes to malcontents, I couldn't help but remember those long years I shoveled coal under a mountain for twenty cents a ton and people like Mr. Bagge told me how lucky I was to be doing it. Then I remembered those hundreds, perhaps thousands, who were murdered by coal company guards for trying to help bring the union to the hills of Kentucky coal mines. They were called vigilantes, zealots, guerrillas, malcontents, and I'm sure, many other equally derogatory names by people with a lot in common with Mr. Bagge. And I also remembered there were, once upon a time, fish in the Big Sandy River. The voice of my cousin rang clear. At my mother's funeral he told me not to worry about our grandfather. That he dug him up and buried him in his backyard where the strippers could not get to him.

It seems to me, somebody turned Mr. Bagge's brain off and went away, leaving his mouth running. But he's not a total waste. How could there have ever been a Boss Hog in Dukes of Hazzard if there had not been a model for the writer to work from?

There are many good, honest, coal companies mining coal in Floyd county who are just as concerned about the future of our country as any of us. Thank God for these people. I love all of them for what they bring to a county that certainly needs all it can get for its people.

It is not my aim to keep Mr. Bagge from talking. I want him to talk. I want to know all about what he is saying. Not just his keynote speech, but whatever else he has said. I want to help him reach as many legislators as I possibly can. I will expand upon it-explain his words. I want the entire country to know exactly what he's saying and who he is saving it to

A Remedy For Firebugs

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN, and I think it concerns us all, it is an awful shame that we have to have the careless and willful firebugs in our state, especially in the eastern part of the state, especially in Floyd county and surrounding counties, that seem bound and compelled to set fires out and destroy our forest and wildlife, also other people's property, such as their homes, barns, other buildings and fences on their property.

What do we have—a careless, don'tcare bunch of people that doesn't want anything, and doesn't want anyone else to have anything. Our forest land and wildlife is going fast enough in front of the bulldozer blades, without having a bunch of firebugs setting fires and burning everything up.

The good Lord gave us a great, wonderful, beautiful land-seems people should appreciate it more than to go out and willfully destroy it.

There should be a remedy against this willful act. I have a good one in mind. Why not put a thousand dollar ($1,000) reward for anyone setting out a fire, let the firebug pay the thousand dollars, or serve it out in jail at $5 per day. It would only take them two hundred (200) days to serve it out and give them plenty of time to think whether or not to set out another fire and he-haw about it.

The people must try to save and preserve our natural resources, as they are not going to last long at the longest.

I am willing to put a portion of the reward, if I can get some help, we will get the ball rolling for action.

Rate Increase Cuts Fire Subscriptions

Last year, over 300 out-of-town businesses and residences each paid $24 and up for protection by Prestonsburg's fire department. Though their protection officially ended May 1, the city has granted a 15 day grace period for this year's fee-$100-to be paid. As of Monday evening, 38 people had resubscribed.

Prestonsburg Fire Chief Tom Blackburn said Monday that the higher rates are still a bargain. He said the $24 rate had been chosen "off the top of somebody's head" at a city council meeting when the subscription service was implemented two years ago. "But $24 per year is ridiculously low," he said, adding that people living inside the city pay a much higher rate through property taxes. "Personally, I thought $100 was ridiculously low," he said.

Blackburn can make such statements without fear of subscribers saying he would feel differently if he had to pay the fee. The fire chief lives outside the city limits. He said he wasn't overjoyed to part with the money, but realized it was necessary, and a good deal.

"I live in the county; I have to pay," he said. He disdained those who ignore the service. "If they're not willing to pay $100 a year for the subscription, their property probably isn't worth much, anyway.

A major reason for the hike, said Blackburn, is the proposed upcoming cut-off of revenue sharing funds. With the wear and tear on the fire trucks and equipment, and the time-and-a-half paid to fire fighters on out-of-town runs, the costs mount up.

"Our hoses cost $1.17 a foot," said Blackburn. "Every time we unroll one, it shortens its life. We just had to replace a $2,000 clutch in one of the trucks, and we'll have to spend $50,000 for a complete overhaul of one of the trucks sometime between now and 1989.'

Couple these expenses with pay for six men fighting a residential fire and ten fighting a business fire, and Blackburn says the need for the higher rates becomes clear. "The county people have to know we're operating in the red because of the $100,000 (federal revenue sharing) cut. The city has to operate in the black. It is stupid to knowingly operate a service in the red."

The money collected from fire subscriptions goes into the city's general fund. While it is not specially earmarked for fire department use, it does help to pay for salaries and equipment.

Though Blackburn stresses the importance of the subscription, he admits the protection they provide is more limited than protection enjoyed by city resients.

"The city of Prestonsburg is our first priority," he said, adding that city trucks would not respond to a subscriber if the department was involved in fighting a fire within the city limits or if a fire truck was broken down. The fire department also can refuse to fight a subscriber's fire if the condition of the burning building is deemed too hazardous.

Significant at present, the fire department won't respond to brush or forest fires behind a subscriber's home, either. Blackburn said he had received a number of such calls in the wake of the current outbreak of forest fires. He said homeowners are responsible for making sure the fire does not reach their home.

Blackburn advises all subscribers to read their contracts and call the fire department if they have questions. He said that those without contracts should not even bother calling if they have a

"If they're not on the subscription rate, there's not one reason for them to call. The mayor informed me that those people on the subscription rate are those who will receive the service. Those who are not will not get it.

Thanks!

Was "The Virginian" ever referred to by name in the television series? - S.M., Butternut, Wis.

No. The real name of "The Virginian," played by James Drury, was never revealed in this Western, which aired from 1962 to 1971. Imagine being nameless for all those years.

This 1947 melodrama starred Edward G. Robinson, Lon McCallister, Allene Roberts, Judith Anderson, Rory Calhoun, Julie London and Ona Munson and was directed by Delmer Daves. Why were the dates of many old movies written on the screen in Roman numerals? Was it done deliberately to confuse, or was it because many early films had to do with ancient happenings? - L.C., Rochester, Minn.

At the time that the motion picture industry began cranking out silent films, Roman numerals were commonly used for such things as page identification, filing systems and dates. Their use also lends distinction to a date and a bit of a sense of drama.

I would like to know what happened to a particular old movie. The plot developed around the bombing of a dam in Germany. I think it was called "Dam Buster." I haven't seen it for more than 10 years. - W.L., Detroit Lakes, Minn.

This 1954 British drama was titled "The Dam Busters" and starred Richard Todd and Michael Redgrave. It has probably gone the way of many old films and ended up in film libraries and in some station rotations. Write to the local stations in your area and let them know you'd like to see it.

Tiles Make Great Mother's Day Gift

If you are tired of getting your mother the same perfume, lingerie, or flowers for Mother's Day, Highlands Regional Medical Center offers a unique solution -a signature tile. When the Breast Center at Highlands is constructed, the walls of the waiting area will be covered with ceramic tiles. Each tile will bear the signature or name of the person or organization who gave at least twenty-five dollars to the Breast Center. A signature or message will be silkscreened on the tile so each one will be different from all the others. There are three different sizes of tiles also: a 41 1 x 41 4 inch for a $25 donation, a 41 1x6 inch for a $50 donation, and a 6x6 inch for a $100 donation. Individual arrangements will be made for donations over $500.

'The tiles are a very special way of thanking those people who are helping us build the Breast Center," said Carol Blevins, HRMC's Public Information Officer. "People often give money to organizations and only get a receipt in return. Giving twenty-five dollars or more to the Breast Center will give you a lasting receipt that everyone can see when they walk through the door.

Susan Martin, HRMC's Director of Development, added, 'The tile program won't stop after the Breast Center is complete. We hope people will continue to 'buy' tiles for themselves, for gifts, or in remembrance of a special person.'

If you would like to buy a signature tile as a Mother's Day gift or for yourself, contact Susan Martin at Highlands Regional Medical Center, 886-8511 or 789-6548, ext. 104.

Donations to the Breast Center, including the purchase of a tile are tax

Allen Central Gym Closed, Prom Moved

Allen Central High School seniors held their prom Saturday in the school foyer as one result of the closing of the school gymnasium last week. Supt. Ray Brackett confirmed this week that he had ordered the 12-year-old gym closed as a safety precaution after Principal Don Daniels reported seeing cracks in the walls of the building.

Brackett said he was confident the cracks do not indicate major damage but that a firm of consulting engineers is making daily observations to see if they can detect any shifting in the foundations of the building. Their report is expected to be ready in time for the May 14 board meeting, he said.

'Caney Girls" and "Caney Boys," members of the Floyd County Alumni Association of Alice Lloyd College, held their annual dinner-meeting at May Lodge, Jenny Wiley State Park. Monday evening, April 28, at 6:30. The president, Arthur Haywood, gave the blessing and welcomed representatives of the college, members and their guests. Dr. Jerry C. Davis, president of Alice Lloyd College, discussed "The Status of the School, and extended an invitation to have next year's event at the college in celebration of the 100th birthday of Caney's grand lady, Dr. June Buchanan, Dr. Davis thanked Mrs. Maxine Bierman, director of the Jenny Wiley Festival, for selecting "Miss June" as last year's Parade Marshall, and the A.L.C. Alumni Planning Committee for the reception which was held for her here.

President Davis said that the first June Buchanan School graduation would be held at Cushion Hall at Alice Lloyd in May and urged everyone to attend.

Arthur Haywood, president, Floyd County A.L.C. Alumni, thanked Harmison Hale for the pictures displayed in the hallway of the lodge, depicting many Caney scenes. Mr. Haywood presented Adrian Hall, of the Admissions Department of the College, who briefed the group on enrollment there, including a large number from Floyd county. Mr. Hall presented Mrs. Ann Tackett, (who was remembered by Caney students as "Ma England," during the time when she was house-mother and a student there), who proudly stated that she is now 90 years old. He also recognized Dr. Palmer L. Hall, who most alumni agreed "Comes as near to personifying Caney as any alumnus we know." Pope Jr., Courier-Journal Magazine, retired; Al Smith, Park Newspapers of Kentucky, Inc., London; and Louisville friends and colleagues Lois Musselman and John S. Moremen.

Pearce, a native of Norton, Virginia, is a graduate of the University of Kentucky. He did graduate work at Columbia and Harvard, where he was a Nieman Fellow. Govt. Officials Launch Clean-Up Week

City and county officials gathered here Monday to designate next week as the time for Floyd countians to clean up the litter that too often mars this county's natural beauty and fouls its waterways. On hand to sign the proclamation were, from left, Wheelwright City Clerk Katie Newsome, Martin Mayor Raymond Griffith, Prestonsburg Mayor Ann Latta, and Judge-Executive John M. Stumbo.

Engle Quits Mayor's Post To Head W'wright Police

The city of Wheelwright last Thursday lost a mayor but gained a chief of police. For Tommy Engle it was the reversal of a switch he made four months ago, when he resigned as police chief in order to take office as mayor.

The former mayor cited only "personal reasons" as the cause of his quitting the office he won last November, but his brief tenure as mayor was believed to be frustrating for Engle, who often found himself in a minority of two on the city's five-member commission. Moreover, police duties are "the work he loves best," an associate said of him this week.

Engle's old job as city policeman fell vacant recently when Danny Bates quit that post.

The city commission will appoint a new mayor, probably from among the present commissioners, and will then appoint a new commissioner if necessary, perhaps at its May 15 meeting, to fill out the mayor's unexpired two-year term, said City Clerk Katie Newsome this week.

Kentucky's children need your help. And a simple stroke of the pen will do it.

The problem is child sexual abuse and exploitation. Estimates place the number of sexually exploited and abused children at one in ten. Imagine. One in every ten children. But there is an answer.

Stronger laws punishing child molesters is one way and we've taken that step. But there is more to be done and that's where you can help.

The Child Victim's Trust Fund was created specifically to deal with this growing problem.

Its job is to assist individual communities in their efforts to prevent child sexual abuse. Before it happens. And in cases where it has happened, to repair the damage.

Here's how you can help. This year, if you're getting a refund on your Kentucky state taxes, simply check Box 21-B on the first page of Form 740. $2.00 of your refund (or $4.00, if you're filing a joint return) will then be automatically channeled to the Child Victim's Trust Fund. If you're not receiving a tax refund but wish to make a contribution, we will gladly accept your check.

You'll never miss the money.

And you'll be helping to break the cycle of child sexual abuse.

Please, Check For The Kids. If it means only one child will be saved, it will be worth it.

If you wish to make a contribution, please send your check to:

Time Capsule Reveals Bit of '40's History

STEVE HOPKINS, pastor of Irene Cole Memorial Baptist Church, displays the treasures uncovered, recently, when workers tearing down the old church building found a time capsule, encased in the cornerstone since 1948.

Ingrid Bergman was the toast of Broadway, the U.S. ambassador to the United Nations was declaring America would remain fully armed until all nations outlawed atomic weapons and the Inez Indians were expected to meet Meade Memorial in the quarter-finals of the Big Sandy Conference high school basketball tournament.

Thanks to a time capsule found in the cornerstone of the old First Baptist Church, currently being razed, we know these were some of the prominent issues when the church was under construction

It was on the evening of January 11, 1942 that a fire broke out in the original Irene Cole Memorial Baptist Church on the corner of Court Street and Lake Drive. Thinking it minor, firefighters extinguished the blaze. Or so they believed. As they went on their way, the stillsmouldering embers reignited and, before help could arrive, the building was engulfed in flames. It burned to the

It took six years before the church was rebuilt and rededicated on Front Street. Once again the congregation is rebuilding, but this time without the specter of adversity. They decided the time had come to replace the old building and, while tearing it down, workers came across the time capsule encased in the church's cornerstone.

Rev. Steve Hopkins said he knew of the capsule, as his step-grandfather, Rev. Everett L. Branham, was the pastor there when the church was built. But he didn't know what would be in the small, copper box.

The contents represent a slice of foundation.

There's a Newsweek magazine, proudly proclaiming itself "The Magazine of News Significance," complete with a picture of Ingrid Bergman as Joan of Arc on the cover, above a caption reading "Bergman: Queen of the Broadway Season." There's the January 29, 1947 issue of the Louisville Courier-Journal, with a lead story about a House Committee probe of U.S. diplomatic conduct, and the pledge by government officials that the U.S. would not do away with its atomic arsenal. There's the January 23, 1947 edition of the Floyd County Times, extolling the virtues of the Inez high school basketball team. And there are World War II era rationing coupons, including a booklet of gas coupons belonging to Norman Allen, founder of the Times and editor for more than 50 years.

Other treasures include a roster of church members, deacons, the building committee, church clerk and Sunday school superintendent. There is a list of businesses here in 1947 (there were 13) and the names of then-current city and county officials. There are three copies of the Western Recorder, the official publication of the Southern Baptist Convention. One of the more unusual items is a New Testament written in Japanese, a stark reminder of conflicts raging around the world while the church was under construction.

The time capsule was officially opened at the close of church services last Sunday, though Hopkins said the contents had seen the light of day before that. The men tearing down the church found the box, he said, and broke it open. But the pastor said he immediately took the time capsule to his office, where it stayed until Sunday, so the congregation could share the opening together.

Hopkins said he wasn't sure what the church would do with the time capsule, though several suggestions have come from church members. One such suggestion, he said, was to include it in a similar time capsule to be placed in the cornerstone of the new building, which should be under construction by the end of the month.

Transplants Could Be Source Of Garden Woe

Carless selection of tomato transplants can result in the introduction of several diseases and pests into the

'Septoria leaf spot is one disease home gardeners should be especially watchful for," said John Hartman, plant pathologist in the University of Kentucky Cooperative Extension Service.

"This disease will spread to other tomato plants in the garden and cause significant reductions in yield," Hartman said.

In shopping for tomato transplants, gardeners should be on the lookout for roughly circular brown spots primarily on leaves, but also on stems and petioles.

Another weakness to watch for is wirestem. Look for a narrowing of the stem at the soil line. Wirestem is not a threat to other plants in the garden, as is Septoria leaf spot, but plants afflicted with it will not produce satisfactorily.

When purchasing bare-root transplants-bare roots are a sign that the transplants were grown in a field rather than in a greenhouse—Hartman suggested being very careful to watch for lumpy roots. Lumps on the roots indicate the presence of root knot nematodes. Root knot nematodes are very much more common on field grown transplants.

"Plants infested with root knot nematodes will contaminate your entire garden with the nematodes, which also feed on the root systems of virtually everything else you might want to grow in a garden.

"One thing root knot nematodes will not eat is tall fescue. If your garden becomes infested with root knot nematodes we suggest you plant it in tall fescue for a year or two, and garden another portion of your backyard. You need not move the garden across the yard. The nematodes do not travel far, so you can plant the new garden near the old one," Hartman said.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of John Ellis Although God took you home a year ago today, you're still with us each step of the way. Your strength, wisdom, and courage guides us every day. For having known and loved you makes us what we are today. Even though you had so much suffering and pain, you always found sunshine amidst the rain. The rain certainly fell for us who loved you so when God started slowly taking you

How our hearts ached to see you go. We know you're with God now and there's no more suffering and pain, but oh how our hearts ache from the sadness, loneliness, and emptyness of your being away, but the love we have for you will never dim and your memories will go on and on in our hearts until God brings us all together again.

THE JOHN ELLIS FAMILY

CARD OF THANKS

The family of Clarence Wilburn May wishes to express its gratitude for the kindness and friendship shown to his wife, daughter, and grandchildren at the time of his death.

A special thanks to the Presbyterian Church for all the preparation made in our behalf. The food served to us after the funeral was very much appreciated. The fellowship of each one present and the expressions of sympathy were very consoling in our hour of sorrow

The beautiful song rendered by Rev. and Mrs. Jessen was a special request of Wilburn's and its message will be long remembered. Thanks to the staff of Carter Funeral Home for all their arrangements

We will always be grateful to Paul Gene Williamson, Densil L. Lester, Neil Clevenger, Levi Ratliff, Larry Short, Barkley Sturgill, Arnold Herald, Bill Fannin, former classmates of Wilburn's, who served as pallbearers.

SHOULD MY WIFE HAVE A WILL, TOO?

If your wife owns property, solely or jointly, or if she is heir to an estate, she should have a will of her own. This applies in quite a few other cases, too

Husband and wife may be double victims of a fatal accident. The husband may have designated his wife as major beneficiary in his will. Without the wife's having a will of her own, distribution of her share of the estate will not have been provided for. Her share may be subject to state laws, tying it up for long periods right when it may be needed.

If the wife is a business partner in a family business, it is to the firm's advantage to have its business continuity assured by her having a will.

After the man has made his will, he should discuss with his lawyer a separate will for the wife. Above all, be sure to consult your attorney. We've seen bad situations arise because no wills were made or because they were drawn up by amateurs.

This spring Carl Hall seeded two acres of hillside pasture on Rice Branch near Banner. The land was steep so he took the added precaution of mulching with straw to protect from erosion. When the weather turned dry, the mulch also helped to conserve moisture. One of the benfits Hall liked most was that by seeding and mulching his access road to the pasture he protected the land from gullying and also saved on maintenance.

ASCS and the Floyd County Conservation District assisted with the seeding and the Extension Service provided soil testing at a modest charge. If anyone has a seeding project, they may call conservation officer at 886-3128

The ravages of forest fires which continue to plague Eastern Kentucky are causing widespread concern, officially and unofficially

County Judge Executive John M. Stumbo this week has issued a proclamation naming May 4-11 Forest Fire Prevention Week in this county, and Charles M. McCoy, of Prestonsburg, is this week seeking to organize others so concerned into a group to actively support the prevention of forest fires.

Judge Stumbo, in proclaiming Forest Fire Prevention Week said, in part, 'Whereas, every year Floyd county landowners suffer irreplaceable loss in value of their timber resource due to forest fires, loss in quality of firedamaged timber averages 60% of the timber's value and may run as high as 75%... Once a tree is infected through a fire scar, it never recovers, gradually losing its value... Now, therefore, I John M. Stumbo, county Judge Executive for Floyd county, do hereby proclaim May 4-11, 1986 Forest Fire Prevention Week in Floyd county, and urge all citizens to be aware of the importance of maintaining timber values for all landowners of Floyd county by protecting their woodlands from the damage of wild-

Phillip Casnoff is back (and still power-thirsty) as Bent

By Constance Pace

ABC's two massive Civil War-era miniseries, "North and South" (presented last November) and "North and South, Book II" (concluding Sunday, May 11), brought viewers a lot of big name talents in cameo roles (such as Elizabeth Taylor in "Book I" and James Stewart in "Book II").

Phillip Casnoff

They also have introduced some interesting new talents in major roles. One of these new talents is Phillip Casnoff, who played Elkanah Bent, one of the most darkly evil villains television has ever seen.

"There's no question that he was blackly evil, and that's what has made him so interesting to play," says Casnoff. In "Book I," Bent, the rejected illegitimate son of Senator Starkweather (played by Gene Kelly), spent most of his time plotting against classmates George Hazard (James Read) and Orry Main (Patrick Swayze), who had him kicked out of West Point. In "Book II," a still power-thirsty and vengeful Bent becomes a war profiteer and plots to assassinate Jefferson Davis.

"I had to work from the inside with him, because I didn't want him to be a one-dimensional cartoon," says Casnoff. "I think everyone feels like they have that kind of evil in them. But very few viewers get to look into the face of hell like Bent does. I've known some sick people in my life, but none as bad as Bent."

In "Book II," Bent has a fiery affair with the miniseries villainess, Ashton (played to the Scarlett O' Hara hilt by Terri Garber). "There were lots of sparks flying between the two of us, and I think the result was kind of sexy," Casnoff says. "But what the characters were really doing was using each other — manipulating and just being all-around oily."

The Philadelphia-born actor, whose prior acting experience was primarily in Broadway musicals (he also played Lafayette in CBS's "George Washington"), feels that the role of Bent has strengthened his career. "After 'Book I' aired, people recognized me in the street. Well, kind of. They said, 'Hey, don't I know you from somewhere?" But they wouldn't be able to place me. What they did remember though is that I had played someone bad — very, very bad"

Lou Reed

It starts with a very long close-up in which Reed appears to be doing a clumsy job of lip-syncing. Near the end of the song, however, we see hands taking his face apart, piece by piece, and we find out that what we thought was Lou is really a robot.

The most amazing thing about this clip is that the camera only cuts away from the Reed close-up once in the entire clip. Only the most videogenic performers would attempt something like that

THE JONES LOOK -For some strange reason, Grace Jones doesn't want to shoot new material for her videos anymore. Her latest, "Love Is the Drug, consists of reused material, along with some animation to pick up the pace.

It's not original, but Grace, in any form, is well worth watching. HOWARD CHECKS IN His "No One is to Blame" is full of player-piano images. The player piano, which plays music by itself so a piano player is not needed, was, in a sense, the precursor of the synthesizer. These images are particularly apropos, since Jones is a keyboard-/synthesizer player.

EYES HAVE IT erywhere You Go," from the Call, is a straight performance clip directed by lead singer Michael Been. Been uses a simple but effective technique for his close-ups: overexposing the film so his face is all washed out, except for his eyes In this way, Been guar-antees that the viewers' eyes will be directed to his.

JOINING HANDS —

What, you may ask, makes "Hands Across America" different from all the other good-cause videos shown this past year?

Well, not much, except that only a few celebrities (Mikhail Baryshnikov, Lily Tomlin, Whoopi Goldberg, Mickey Mouse) are fea-tured. The real stars here are the American people. Dozens and dozens are shown: cute kids, teenagers, adults and everyone in between.

The makers of this video deliberately steered away from using too many stars, in the hope that the message would outshine the performers. The message, of course, is that you should cough up your $10 and stand up and be counted on May 25. What does most effectively, however, is to make view ers feel good about being American.

Organized in 1980, the honor choir has consistently received superior ratings, including one at the Kentucky Music Educators Association Festival in April. The group is led by Elizabeth Frazier, who is in her seventh year as choral director at the school

Soil Conservation Sign-Up Under Way

A second signup for the Conservation Reserve Program (CRP) began May 5 and extends through May 23. Applications will be taken at the Floyd County ASCS Office.

CRP provides farmers an opportunity to take highly erodible soil out of production and put it into trees or vegetative cover. In return the farmer will receive not only cost-sharing on the establishment of the cover but annual rental payments from USDA which will be based on a "bid" submitted to a 'pool'

The land must be highly erodible (either class VI or VII) or soil which is eroding at three times the erosion tolerance for the soil. The land must have been cropped at least two years during the past five. Cropping means the land must have been planted to produce an agricultural commodity other than orchards, vineyards, or ornamentals. The land must be in physical condition for continued production of a crop. Producers wishing to put land into CRP must provide a cropping history covering the 1981-1985 crop years at the time of sign up. If available, they should also bring a conservation plan for their farm. Set-aside or diverted acres under price support programs are not eligible for CRP

To apply, the producers must submit bids at the time of application for annual rental payments they would accept to enroll their land in CRP for the 10-year period required by CRP. Bid acceptance will be based on the rental rates per acre offered. Producers in one county will be bidding against producers in other counties. Rental payments will be made after October 1 each year the land is under contract. There is a $50,000 per person, per year limitation.

The local Soil Conservation Service will be responsible for determination if the land meets erosion eligibility.

For more information contact either the Floyd County ASCS Office (886-2802) or the Soil Conservation Service

Merchants Day Called Success

Merchants in downtown Paintsville and Prestonsburg donated over $2,700 to the Breast Center at Highlands Regional Medical Center, according to Carol Blevins, HRMC's public information

"We felt the Merchants Day was very successful," said Blevins. "Not only have we raised nearly $3,000, so far, we did over 300 free blood pressure and blood sugar tests that Saturday.

Blevins explained that the total for the Downtown Merchants Day was not complete because about ten businesses had not given yet due to corporate channels or bookkeeping procedures.

"I think we'll easily go over the $3,000 mark," Blevins commented, and I'd like to see us get closer to $4,000.

Right now the overall total donated to the Breast Center is nearly twentytwo thousand dollars. Over eighteen thousand of that came from Highlands employees, which is a tremendous effort, but we are still fifty thousand dollars short of our goal.

A Merchants Day for the shopping plazas is being planned for May 10. HRMC personnel will be on hand again in those locations to provide free blood pressure and blood sugar tests on that

Abandoned Mine Sites Can Be Potential Death Traps

As a 14-year-old Indiana boy plunged friend drowned trying to resuce them. into an abandoned ice-filled quarry last December, his fall was slowed when his foot struck a protruding ledge. Breaking his ankle and heel, the boy continued falling head first. Extending his hand, which further broke as fall, he suffered wrist and head injuries when he landed.

Although the Indiana youth survived the fall, a 19-year-old Nevada resident was not as lucky in March 1986. He plunged some 400 feet to his death down an abandoned mine shaft where he and his two friends were exploring last

Every year, abandoned mines and quarries claim the wes of teenagers. adults and children according to the Department of Labor's Mine Safety and Health Administration (MSHA). These hazardous sites have caused suffocations, drownings, and head, neck and back injuries or fatalities in accidents involving trespassers at abandoned or intermittently idle mining properties.

Sand pits and rock quarries also present special problems for inexperienced individuals. In 1985, two young sisters drowned in an abandoned quarry in Illinois during a family picnic, and a In several states, children have been buried in sand pits they apparently thought were large "sand-boxes," according to accident reports.

David A. Zegeer, Assistant Secretary for Mine Safety and Health, emphasized that families, amateur prospectors. hikers and others should become familiar with the potential dangers associated with these types of properties.

"Abandoned properties may be especially dangerous during the spring when thawing from winter storms occurs and there is a danger of falling rock and loose dirt associated with pits and quarries," said Zegeer.

'Additionally, idle or intermittently operated underground mines may have oxygen-deficient air, an explosive atmosphere or poor roof conditions. Everyone must stay away from these life threatening properties.

MSHA has alerted mine operators to the dangerous consequences which threaten trespassers on their mining properties. But the Agency warns that the mining community, the general public and state and local governments must devote their efforts towards spreading the word about the hazards of these abandoned death traps so that death and injuries can be eliminated.

American Playhouse Tells Roanoak Story

The events surrounding the establishment and disappearance of the first English settlement in the New World will be dramatized in a three-part "American Playhouse" presentation. "Roanoak" premieres Tuesday, May 27, at 8:00 p.m. on KET. The remaining two episodes will air June 3 and June 10 in the same time slot.

Between 1584 and 1580 a team of approximately 250 Englishmen landed on Roanoak, located on the mid-Atlantic coast of North America. The group was on a reconaissance mission for explorer Sir Walter Raleigh.

The area where the Englishmen landed at that time was inhabited by more than 7,000 Algonquin-speaking Native Americans.

"Roanoak" unfolds the tragic story of the first meetings between these two very different cultures. The Elizabethans arrived in the New World during the height of the English Renaissance. The Native Americans were at the height of their cultural achievements.

"Roanoak" was produced for "Amercian Playhouse" by South Carolina ETV and First Contact Films. "American Playhouse" is produced by South Carolina ETV, KCET/Los Angeles, WGBH/Boston, and WNET/New York

To Sponsor JWT Production

Inez Deposit Bank has agreed to sponsor Jenny Wiley Theatre's production of Shenandoah this summer. The announcement was made by Mark Haertzen, Marketing Director of the bank.

In return for its contribution, the bank was listed as co-producer of the show. The bank was the co-producer for the theatre's 1985 production of The Sound of Music. Bari Kazee, president of the Jenny Wiley Drama Association's Board of Trustees, praised Inez Deposit Bank's support of the theatre. "We deeply appreciate Inez Deposit Bank's continuing commitment to the arts in general and Jenny Wiley Theatre in particular, Kazee said. "Without our co-producers, the shows really couldn't go on.'

Shenandoah, the story of a strongwilled Virginia farmer's unsuccessful fight to remain neutral during the Civil War, will open at Jenny Wiley Theatre on June 18. It will run in repertory with productions of Cotton Patch Gospel, Oliver! and Sweet Charity. For more information about Jenny Wiley Theatre's 22nd season, call the box office at (606)

YOU'RE WELL-EOUIPPED

Fortunately, natural gas leaks are rare. But if one should occur, you have everything it takes to spot the telltale signs...the ability to see, hear and smell.

INSIDE

The most obvious sign is the smell. Natural gas by itself usually is odorless, so gas companies add a distinctive odor to gas.

If you smell this telltale odor in your home, 1) check to see if a pilot light is out, or a burner control valve is not turned completely off; 2) open doors and windows; 3) don't use matches, electric switches or appliances. If the odor is strong, leave the house, call the gas company from nearby and stay there until a representative arrives.

OUTSIDE

You may detect a natural gas leak anywhere gas lines or facilities are located. Sometimes, the sign may be the odor. But in rural areas, natural gas pipelines may contain non-odorized gas. A leak of non-scented gas means little or no odor will be present. So count on your other senses as well.

Look or listen for these signs. Anywhere a gas line is located, a leak may cause:

· a blowing or hissing sound

- · dirt being blown into the air
- · water bubbling or being blown into the air at a pond, creek or river brown patches in vegetation on or near
- a gas line right-of-way · fire coming from the ground or burning above it

If you detect any sign of a leak, follow these steps quickly: 1) shut down any motorized equipment or other sources of ignition in use; 2) leave the area at once, and warn others to stay away; and 3) find a telephone away from the area to call the gas company, and the fire and police departments. DO NOT try to extinguish a gas fire or operate any pipeline valves.

Chances are you'll never need to recognize a natural gas leak. But just in case, we think it's important for you to be able to detect signs of trouble. Together, we'll keep natural gas service safe and efficient.

NUMB ARMS, LEGS Warning Signals

There may be misalignment of vertebrae in the spine caus ing pressure on nerves, yet the patient experiences no pain in the back. Instead, a variety of sensations may be felt in other parts of the body. Variables of Spawning spring is not only challenging, it's downright impossible at times!

And Weather Fronts

Bassin' with the Pros...

"I prefer summer or fall fishing because I think in the spring the fish are just so lovesick that they're screwy, that they don't know what they're doing, states Bill Sparks, Johnson Outboards Pro Staff member

What do the pros tell us to look for in the spring pre-spawn and spawning

Spawning from the nothern part of the country all the way to the southern part of the country seems to go on moon phases and water temperature," points out Jerry Rhyne, another member of the Johnson Outboards Pro Staff. "When the water temperature in the north reaches 65° to 67° they spawn. The farther south you go, the warmer the water needs to be. When you get to Florida, the water sometimes needs to be 72° to 74° before the fish really like to go on the beds, where your bigger spawns take place.

Moon phases seems to play an important part not only in sparking the spawn cycle, but also in ushering in specific weather fronts. Rhyne ties the spawning urge into moon phases:

"A new moon usually brings bad weather, and the fish don't seem to want to go on the bed right around a new moon. But just after a new moon they will get active in their bedding procedures. A lot of people say that a full moon is when (the bass) are going to the bed; but its seems to be that more fish will get ready to start trying to bed just after a new moon-just after that front comes through from the new moon.'

Sparks agrees with Rhyne on moon

'We found that, based on the full moon and the water temperature, bass are going to move up on the bank," Sparks said. "We've also found, surprisingly, in the middle of the summertime those fish will also move back into the bedding area during a full moon. The full moon, I think, triggers an instinct in warm water. In cold water during the winter you don't have that (instinctive triggering). Not only will the male fish do it, but the female fish will also move up on the

Some anglers believe that fishing hours prior to a front is very productive; other insist that fishing days before the front is the best time to catch bass. Another debate involves whether a front affects the bass or the angler most. In taking a positive approach toward weather fronts, the smart angler can have a bountiful harvest.

"Weather fronts are more severe in the early springtime, February and Establishing a fishing pattern in March in my area," says Rhyne of North Carolina. "The front, whether it's very subtle or very severe does affect bass at that time. They're looking for pretty days, the nice warm days when the water is beginning to turn warm and they're going to feed better. When a cold front passes through, whether it's small or severe, it just totally shuts them off-'gives'em lockjaw' is the way we put it.

'As the weather warms up into the summer, these fronts affect the bass less and less, all the way up until it gets to be hot weather. At that time, when a cold front comes through, it starts to work in reverse and activates the fish. If you've had a two-week or month period of super hot weather and all at once a cold front passes through, and it drops to 80° and you've got cloud cover, it activates the fish and it'll turn them

Why not fish the day after the front passed through?

The best day not to fish would be the day after the front," explains Sparks, "when the barometric pressure is rising, suddenly rising, and it's at its highest

When is the best time to fish? Sparks says it's under "either a falling or stable barometric pressure. This is critical in winter and spring.'

Lung Cancer Will Be Major Killer

The American Cancer Society estimates that 15,300 cases of cancer will be diagnosed in Kentucky this year and that an estimated 7,800 Kentuckians will die of the disease during the same period of time. These projections were made in the organization's statistical survey. Cancer Facts & Figures, released today by the Society's Kentucky Division.

Once again more Kentuckians will develop lung cancer than any other form of cancer, with 2,900 new cases anticipated in 1986. The Society said cigarette smoking has long been linked as the chief causative factor in developing lung cancer.

Behind lung cancer in incidence is colon-rectum cancer, with 2,200 persons in the state estimated to get this form of cancer. Persons with a family history of colon and rectum cancer are somewhat more likely to get this cancer than those with no family history of colon-rectum cancer. The American Cancer Society recommends three tests as valuable aids in detecting this cancer.

In order to alert the public to the risks of tobacco, to promote lifestyle changes to reduce cancer risk and to encourage the early detections of cancer, the ACS will spend nearly $51 million nationally in 1986 on public education. This includes a new program, "Taking Control," designed to help people develop new habits to foster over good health.

"The liberty of the individual must be thus far limited: he must not make himself a nuisance to other people." John Stuart Milli

EVA

COPYRIGHT 1986 KVMA Kentucky Veterinary Medical Association

EVA! Two years ago the initials sent a shudder into the horse industry, which was threatened with economic loss because of it. Equine viral arteritis is the proper name and the Merck veterinary manual describes it as "an acute contagious viral disease characterized by fever, catarrh, edema and abortion.

Though the disease recurs in sporadic outbreaks, when it strikes it can cause abortion in up to 80 percent of the infected mares-hence it is a serious threat in a breeding industry, though it is seldom fatal.

The good news is that this year EVA seems to be under control.

Several precautionary measures are responsible for the quick response against the disease, including a vaccine which is now commercially available.

Because EVA in the past was usually attributable to the movement of horses (an infected horse would spread it rapidly among uninfected animals by way of body fluids), the first measure was strict control of infected animals.

The State Veterinarian's Office issued strict guidelines which included strict quarantine of stallions known to shed (spread) the virus as well as quarantine of breeding sheds, paddock facilities, personnel, transportation vehicles and such used by shedding stallions. Teasers used in breeding shedding stallions were also isolated.

Mares bred to known shedding stallions were also isolated, sent to farms designated to accept mares bred to shedding stallions. These farms were kept separate from other breeding operations, as was all equipment used on these farms, including the protective outerwear farm personnel who handled the horses were required to wear.

The State Veterinarian's Office maintained diligent inspections and modified guidelines as needed.

A vaccine was developed at the University of Kentucky, and became commercially available this year, lessening even more the risk of the Regulations concerning management of the disease are changed from time to time, and your veterinarian is kept-upto-date on the incidence of this disease in Kentucky.

Actually, the disease is not new, and there is a considerable body of information available concerning its cause, its spread and treatment. The quick and successful response to the presence of the disease is the new part, an excellent example of how the veterinary health profession can assist in the management of potentially disastrous consequences

If you have questions regarding EVA, call your veterinarian. All large animal practitioners are kept current on the management of this disease in Kentucky, and their job is to help you.

THE THREE LITTLE ANALGESICS

With headache, back pain, or fever, the advice generally has been to take aspirin. Acetaminophen and ibuprofen now are available as well. All three analgesics are available without prescription. Which to take? A 200mg. tablet of ibuprofen is equal in effectiveness to 650mg. of aspirin or acetaminophen. If two pills are taken, they offer more pain relief than extra-strength brands of aspirin and acetaminophen. Acetaminophen will lower fever and relieve pain, but it will not reduce inflammation. Ibuprofen does all three as does aspirin. However, those who experience stomach problems with aspirin probably will not be able to tolerate ibuprofen. For these people, acetaminophen should be the pain reliever of choice. Similarly, 90 percent of those who are allergic to aspirin probably will be allergic to ibuprofen. Their choice is acetaminophen.

An order of orchids to Mayor Ann Lat ta for her courage, truthfulness in regard to the size of the population of Prestonsburg, and her determination that righteousness prevail. Through her efforts Mayor Latta prevented liquor being sold by the drink in our county. With only a few days of the legislative session remaining she headed for Frankfort, leaving no stone unturned until sure of victory, which showed what one individual can do. Once Edmund Burke, renowned British statesman and philosopher of the eighteenth century said, "The surest way for evil to triumph is for good men to do nothing." Mrs. Latta is not in that category of laziness negligence and indifference. Our sin ridden nation needs more of her caliber especially in some public offices.

Upon reading and hearing of the tragic death of the little adopted daughter of the Qadhafis one feels deepest sympathy for the parents, likewise for others who experienced fatalities when the United States bombed Libyan terrorist targets in April. But isn't it a trifle odd that a majority who condemn America for what some call "murdering little children" seldom if ever mention the saddened and distraught father who lost his only child, his wife, and the latter's mother when a bomb exploded on the plane they were aboard? Is that what you call bias, prejudice, or what is it?

Isn't it a bit astonishing that many critics of almost anything the President does want something done to make travel safe but rarely offer any solution to the worldwide problem? Is it possible that regardless of what course Reagan pursues they likely will continue to find fault? Most countries look to Uncle Sam to choose the method, do the job, AND pay the bill! Remember those who declined to help by imposing stringent sanctions, and suggested no better way to solve this horrible international crime spreading over the world at an unbelievable rate.

Prime Minister Thatcher spoke the truth when she reminded her constitutents what they owe American military, and taxpayers who provide supplies, weapons, etc., to protect Europe today, at heavy cost, so why all the flack against her and Reagan, particularly in Britain? Our country has spent billions for years, to help many abroad, incurring the most staggering national debt in all history, meeting every need when possible-food, clothing, medical facilities, agricultural items, schools, hospitals-you name it-when instead every dime of it might easily have been kept at home. No one in his right mind is likely to oppose charity, but God does not expect the U.S. to keep up any continent or the universe any more than he requires Floyd coun ty to meet all the needs of this state!

The EPA will soon conduct a nationwide survey of homes for radon-a dangerous gas emitted from uranium deposits in the earth that seeps up into homes. National Wildlife magazine reports that up to a million homes may have "significant" levels of radon gas, which is known to cause cancer among uranium miners. Extremely high concentrations have already been found in southeastern Pennsylvania, New Jersey and New York.

The Floyd County Times

Food stamps may be used to purchase vegetable and fruit seeds and plants for a garden, according to Joe Padgett, manager of Kentucky's food stamp program in the Department for Social Insurance. Once the garden is harvested, the resulting crop can provide more food than might have been purchased if the original food stamps had been used in the usual fashion at the grocery.

"Most people don't realize they can stretch their benefits in this manner. said Padgett. "Not everyone has space for a garden, of course. However, a significant number of the 179,000 Kentucky households receiving food stamps could grow vegetables or fruits in a backyard plot or in pots on the porch."

Padgett pointed out that there is no expiration date on food stamps. Thus, food stamps not needed immediately could be saved for use later.

that ARH is a self-supporting, not-for-profit institution. We exist only to serve our central Appalachian communities. We generate no money for investors. All revenues go directly back to improving either our community facilities or the wages and benefits of our employees.

We at Appalachian Regional Healthcare know that ARH is a fair employer. You will find a table below that shows wage rates for many ARH collective bargaining positions, including the very lowest wage rate we pay. Along with these wage scales, we offer all employees at least two weeks paid vacation, nine paid holidays, paid health insurance, paid sick leave, and a paid pension plan.

ARH Wage Rates for Collective Bargaining Positions

Position	Start Hourly Rate	Standard Hourly Rate	Standard Weekly Rate	Standard Yearly Rate
Maid, Janitor, Kitchen & Cafeteria Helper, Dishwasher	$5.88	$6.18	$247.20	$12,854.40
Nurse Aide	$6.22	$6.52	$260.80	$13,561.60
Clerk Typist	$6.56	$6.86	$274.40	$14,268.80
Cook, Admissions Clerk, Business Clerk	$6.90	$7.20	$288.00	$14,976.00
Plant Maintenance Mechanic	$7.41	$7.71	$308.40	$16,036.80
Licensed Practical Nurse	$7.58	$7.88	$315.20	$16,390.40

These rates, by the way, are the ones in effect at the end of our last collective bargaining agreement! The proposed contract would have increased wage rates on average of 3.9% the first year, 3.7% the second year, and 3.5% the third.

At issue in this contract negotiation is not pay, but ARH's ability to manage its well-paid workforce flexibly, including limited reduction of hours (and those hour reductions are limited, with very careful constraints written into the proposed contract). Payroll and benefits account for over 62 percent of ARH operating expense, and totalled $66,700,000 last year! Without management flexibility, the survival of ARH hospitals will be jeopardized. Then everyone will lose.

Patients who need care will lose.

Communities that need hospitals that care for everyone will lose.

Local economies that depend on million dollar payrolls will lose.

Employees that depend on those hospitals for their livelihood will lose.

We thought, since it affects your community, that you ought to know.

Donations Sought For Perkins Statue

Coordinators of the project to erect a life-size, bronzed statue of the late Congressman Carl D. Perkins in front of the Knott county courthouse need to raise $20,000 to pay for the statute.

The Rose of Sharon Chapter, Order of Eastern Star, is coordinating the project to honor the late 7th District Congressman. Perkins died during his 17th term in the U.S. House of Representatives in August, 1984.

Dean Craft, one of the four committee members on the project, said that the statue should be erected during the Knott County Gingerbread Festival unless some unanticipated problems develop. The festival is scheduled for Sept. 4-7.

"Our biggest problem is to raise $7,500 by mid-May to pay the artist and sign the contracts," Craft explained.

Sam McKinney, a Fleming-Neon native, will sculpt the statue at Morehead State University under the professional guidance of MSU art department chairman Thomas Sternal, Craft said.

Mrs. Verna Perkins, widow of the late congressman, will have the final say on the likeness of the statute, Craft added.

McKinney, a professional artist, showed his preliminary sketches of Perkins to the Rose of Sharon group last week. The sketches will be used to sculpt the facial features. McKinney also presented a preliminary small but of Perkins and a miniature full-length statue of Perkins.

McKinney's work will be on display at Morehead State University as he completes the project.

The statue will be mounted on a marble stand that is raised about three feet. "It will be top quality, that's why we are going with this New York foundry," Craft said. "It will be a statue that the people in the 7th Congressional District can all be proud of.' McKinney is talking to Mrs. Perkins' about casting smaller busts or miniature statues, sketches, or water color prints that the public may purchase, Craft said. The statue's pose will be a familiar one-Perkins large right hand will be outstretched as he is about to shake someone's hand while the thumb on his left hand will hold on to his back pocket.

Donations can be sent to the Carl D. Perkins Statue Fund, P.O. Box 315, Hindman, Ky. 41822. Donations are tax deductible, Craft advises.

For additional information contact the following committee members.

Dean and Debbie Craft, of Mallie, 785-3888, Arnold Webb, 785-3611, and Audrey Compton, 785-5241.

The Rose of Sharon membership consists of Master Masons, their spouses, widows, daughters or orphans.

Despite popular myth, bats are far more appealing than people imagine. They are gentle, intelligent, clean and almost never transmit rabies. As the only major predators of night-flying insects, bats are especially helpful to people. As a result, a renewed respect for bats has developed in some countries, including England, where as many as 10,000 bat boxes have been placed in public parks since the 1930s.

Kentucky Fishing Report

Warm sunny days and cool nights during the past week stabilized surface water temperatures into the upper 60s at most lakes. While bass appear to be headed for the nest, crappie fishing activity remains heavy. At Lake Cumberland, walleye fishing has been excellent, and reports indicated that quite a few anglers were focusing their attention on bluegill during the May 3-4 period covered by this report. The lake-by-lake rundown is as follows:

WEST: Bass were being caught on buzzbaits cast across shallow banks in 1 to 3 feet of water at Kentucky Lake, and crappie by drifting tube jigs over stump beds in 5 to 7 feet of water. At Lake Barkley catfish were being caught on trotlines and jug rigs baited with live leeches over rocky banks and rip rap, white bass by casting slab spoons at the mouths of tributaries.

KENTUCKY: Clear to murky, rising slowly at summer pool, 70 degrees. BARKLEY: Clear, rising slowly at summer pool, 68 degrees.

WEST CENTRAL: At Barren River Lake, crappie were hitting minnows fished around brush piles in 3-5 feet of water, bass by casting plastic worms over rocky points in 3-8 feet of water. In the tailwaters, white bass were hitting spinnerbaits, early in the morning and late in the afternoon. At Nolin Lake, crappie were being caught on minnows and jigs over flooded treetops in 3 to 6 feet of water, bass were hitting spinnerbaits and topwater lures fished across shallow banks at the heads of coves. At Rough River Lake, bass were being caught on crankbaits and jig and pork rind combinations fished across rocky points and stump rows, crappie on minnows and jigs in 2-6 feet of water over summer pool, 70 degrees. ROUGH RIVER: Clear, stable, 11 feet below summer pool, 68 degrees.

CENTRAL: At Taylorsville Lake, bass were being taken on jigs fished over shallow banks and wooded inlets in about 5 feet of water. At Herrington Lake, bass were being caught on crankbaits fished across points, and crappie on minnows in 6-15 feet of water around stickups. At Green River Lake, bass were being taken on spinnerbaits and crankbaits fished over points and stump beds in 8 feet of water, and crappie on minnows over drop offs and brush piles in 3 to 14 feet of water. At Lake Cumberland, walleye were being caught on crankbaits and nightcrawlers fished over rocky points and the heads of embayments in 10 to 15 feet of water, bass on spinnerbaits fished over brushpiles, flooded willow trees, and deadfalls in 4 to 8 feet of water. At Dale Hollow Lake, bass were hitting spinnerbaits fished over brush piles on shallow banks, and catfish on trotlines baited with minnows set along tributary creek channels.

Summer is great! Sipping a cool drink while stretched out on the porch swing. backyard sunbathing, fishing in your favorite spot. Then along come those darned mosquitoes! Drive you crazy, don't they? Well, we know something that will soon have you forgetting what a mosquito even looks like! A sure-fire cure for summertime bugs that won't leave a greasy film on your skin-purple

Purple martins, the largest member of the swallow family, eat flying insects of many types. In one day, a purple martin can eat 2,000 or more mosquitoes and other bugs. If you have eight martins around your house and they each eat 2,000 bugs a day, that's 16,000 a day gone from your yard. That's better than spraying every day or zapping with a bug light-and cheaper, too! In 1962, the small town of Griggsville, Illinois, situated near many ponds and sloughs, decided to do something about its terrible mosquito problem and, because they feared an increase in the use of pesticides, put up 28 martin houses. That was the beginning of the end for the mosquitoes. Now Griggsville is the "Purple Martin Capital of the Nation," and the town has 120 martin houses-and no mosquitoes. The Greater St. Louis Veterinarian Medical Association has urged dog owners in their area to put up martin houses to help control mosquitoes, the most common carrier of the parasite causing heartworm infection in

So you say you're interested in this inexpensive method of mosquito control, and you want to know where to get some of these handy birds? Just provide them with a place to live and keep your fingers crossed. A good home for purple martins is an apartment-type dwelling with four to 24 rooms for the separate pairs. Each compartment should be six inches square with a two and half inch entrance hole cut one inch above the floor level. (There are building plans for martin houses available at your library.) The house should be placed on a pole about 15 feet high, in direct sunlight and in an open field. They also like being close to a pond or stream. But martins are rather unpredictable settlers, and if they are not known to nest in your neighborhood and you are making your first attempt at housing them, start with just one or two single boxes. If you want to try an apartment house, make it onestory then put up additional floors later. Martins also enjoy nesting in hollowed gouards hung in groups from trees or poles (make sure the wind won't bang them into each other.) Some American Indian tribes kept these martin gourd communitieis. It is thought that the In-

Social Security

By JIM KELLY

Social Security District Director For the Big Sandy Area

A person first eligible after 1985 to both a pension from a job not covered under Social Security and a Social Security benefit will have his or her Social Security benefit rate figured under a new Social Security benefit formula. This will result in a lower benefit, Jim Kelly, District Director for the Big Sandy Area, said recently,

The pension from the job not covered by Social Security is not reduced. In addition, it does not affect Social Security survivors benefits, nor is a person affected by it before 1986, if the person:

•Reaches 62: ·Becomes disabled and remains entitled to a Social Security disability benefit in any of the 12 months before the month he or she reaches 62, even if it is

•Receives, or is first eligible to receive, a pension based on employment

after 1985; or not covered by Social Security A person is considered eligible to receive a pension if he or she meets the requirements of the pension plan before January 1986, even if the person continues to work.

The new benefit formula applies to all workers who reach 62 or become disabled after 1985 and first become eligible after 1985 for a monthly payment based at least in part on work not covered by Social Security

This new method of figuring benefits does not apply to several groups of people even though they meet the above conditions. They are:

•Federal workers who were newly covered under Social Security on January 1, 1984;

• Employees of nonprofit organizations that were mandatorily covered under Social Security for the first time on January 1, 1984;

•Workers who have 30 or more years of coverage under Social Security;

 People whose only employment not covered by Social Security that resulted in a pension was before 1957. Since military service was not covered by Social Security until 1957, this exclusion applies to people who receive a military pension based in part on military service before 1957. The exclusion applies, however, only if this is the only pension the person receives that is based on service not covered by Social Security.

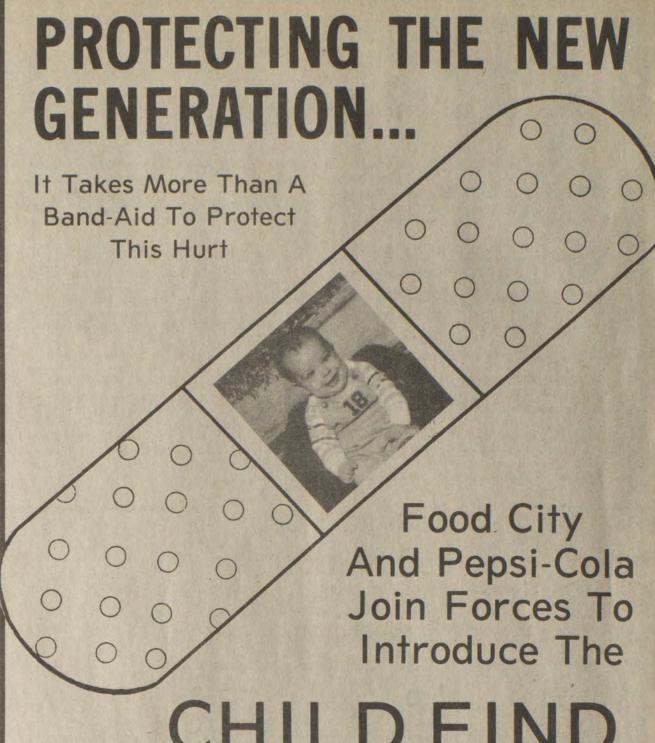

For more information about the new Social Security benefit formula, contact the Social Security office and ask for the free leaflet How your Social Security check is affected by a pension from work not covered by Social Security. The Big Sandy Area Social Security Office is located on U.S. 23 between Prestonsburg and Paintsville. The telephone number is listed in your local telephone directory under U.S. Government.
