Report blisters Floyd schools

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

Notice was given to the Floyd County Board of Education Tuesday by state Education Commissioner Thomas Boysen to either shape up—quick, or face possible removal from office.

The results of an investigation into the Floyd County School System in May by the state Department of Education were released Tuesday and investigators found that the system in catastrophic condition.

Commissioner Boysen held a press conference in Frankfort Tuesday to release the report and issued an apparent ultimatum to the board.

The investigation found major deficiencies in the district's governance and leadership; instructional management; planning, maintenance and operation of physical plant; facility construction; fiscal management; and federal programs.

Complete, unedited text of the Kentucky Department of Education report will be published in Friday's edition of The Floyd County Times.

"The Floyd County system is a catastrophe of leadership resulting from lackluster leadership," Boysen said. "No one wants to stand by and let this happen. This (report) is discouraging to all of us in Kentucky and it means, basically, that there's a leak in the lifeline going from the Reform Act to students of Floyd County."

Boysen put the blame on the system's condition on the school board and is apparently demanding that the board take immediate action to correct the system's extensive problems.

"The department is requiring that the board, within the next 30 days, develop a short-term corrective plan and, by November 15, to develop a long-term corrective plan for the next three years," Boysen said. "If the plan is acceptable to me and the state board the department will monitor its implementation monthly."

"If the (state) board determines (See Report, page eight)

Incentive package may help job project

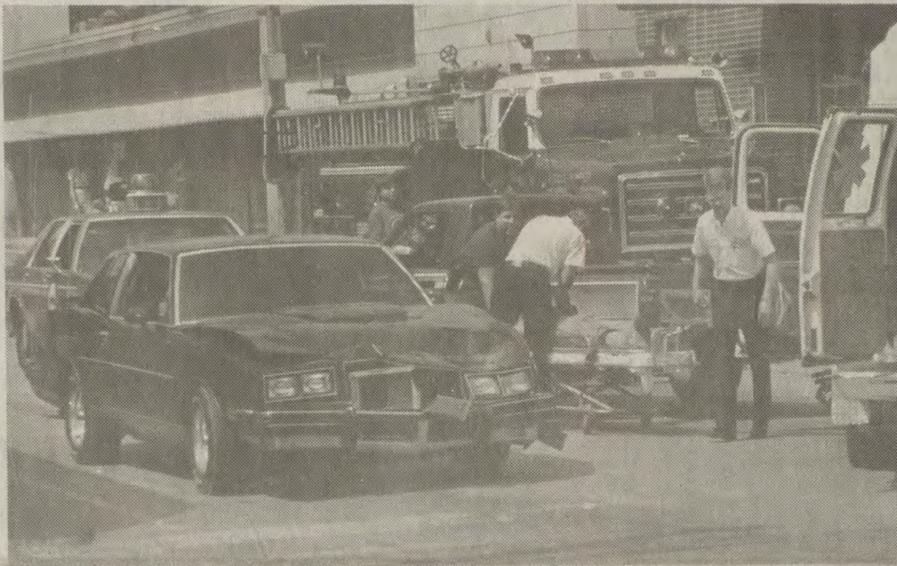

Prestonsburg's city council put the finishing touches on an incentive package Monday that could put the city in the running for a major economic development project that could bring more than 1,000 jobs to Eastern Kentucky.

Details of the incentives have been closely guarded, Floyd County Development Authority director Darrell Gilliam said Tuesday, because competition for the project remains heated. Several communities, he said, are being considered and a final decision will rely heavily on which can offer the lowest cost.

Gilliam outlined the project as a joint venture between the U.S. Postal Service and the subcontractor who could submit the lowest and best bid for performing telecommunications services.

Those services basically will involve computerized corrections on pieces of mail that have incorrect or improper addresses. The Postal Service estimates that one in every seven pieces of mail is improperly addressed.

Prestonsburg apparently is the only city in contention in Eastern Kentucky and it is expected to be included in a bid to be submitted to the Postal Service by Image Mark, a London, Kentucky corporation, next week. Final selections are to be made by the Postal Service in October.

Crash in downtown Prestonsburg

Three cars collided in downtown Prestonsburg at the intersection of Court Street and North Lake Drive Monday when one car attempted to run a red light. The driver of one of the vehicles complained that he suffered a head injury and was rushed to the Highlands Regional Medical Center, where he was treated and released. (photo by Geoff Belcher)

A brief agenda and the medical condition of the county's judge-executive made for a short and swift meeting Friday of the Floyd County Fiscal Court.

Judge-Executive John M. Stumbo has been hospitalized for over a week suffering from anemia and a high potassium level. Magistrate Gerald DeRossett said Friday that he was informed that Judge-Executive Stumbo will have to undergo kidney dialysis due to his illness.

Magistrates voted for DeRossett to preside over Friday's court meeting.

County Attorney Jim Hammond gave the court an update of Stumbo's condition Friday and said that he was expected to return to work on Monday.

"Judge Stumbo underwent minor surgery (Thursday) and it was a success," Hammond said. "His condition will require treatment but it will not interfere with his ability to conduct the county's business."

Hammond also held a moment of silent prayer for Stumbo and DeRossett's granddaughter who is hospitalized in Pikeville.

Drug suspect pleads guilty

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

The director of Big Sandy Health Care Board who was also a former Floyd County Deputy Sheriff pleaded guilty Monday in U.S. District Court in Pikeville to one charge of drug trafficking.

Larry Newsome, 45, of Mud Creek pleaded guilty to selling 75 tablets of controlled substances for $150 to state police on March 14, 1991. Newsome's plea was part of an agreement reached between his attorney, Ned Pillersdorf, and federal officials last week.

"I accept full responsibility," Newsome told Federal Judge Joseph Hood during his re-arraignment Monday.

Newsome was charged in a five-count indictment in June for distributing 261 tablets of Darvocet, Ativan, Xanax and Tylenol with codeine between February and March 1991. He pleaded not guilty to the charges in June.

U.S. Attorney Tom Self agreed to drop the other four charges under the agreement, but said the other charges would be considered when Newsome is sentenced November 4.

Self said prosecutors did not know where Newsome obtained the pills but said the drugs did not come from the Floyd County Sheriff's Office or the two clinics overseen by Big Sandy Health Care Board, the Mud Creek Clinic and the Magoffin County Clinic in Salyersville.

Judge Hood ordered that Newsome make restitution of $610 for the 261 pills he sold officers.

Judge Hood asked Newsome if he

Pick-up times change

The Prestonsburg City Council announced Tuesday that the residential trash collection schedule will change as of August 31 due to the temporary closure of the Floyd County Landfill.

According to the new schedule, trash pick-up will be on Monday for those living from the north city limits up to but not including Dingus Street; Tuesday for residents of the area between Calhoun's Garage and Goble Roberts, including Water Gap; Thursday for the area from Court Street up to Calhoun's Garage, and; Friday for those living at Dingus Street up to Court Street and West Prestonsburg.

Maps of the city which detail the new schedule are posted at the City Municipal Building; Mountain Heritage Arts & Crafts; Jenny Wiley Village; Carter-Hughes Toyota; Food Lyon, and; the West Prestonsburg Post Office.

Floyd man is cited for heroism in Gulf War

by Geoff Belcher
Staff Writer

A Floyd County native recently received a commendation from President George Bush and the United States Navy for meritorious service in Operation Desert Storm.

Lieutenant Timothy R. Collins, formerly of Prestonsburg, received the Air Medal (First Strike/Flight Award) for heroic achievement in aerial flight during the Persian Gulf Conflict.

Collins flew 75 mine warfare combat missions in Desert Storm while serving as the officer in charge of a flight crew of the U.S.S. Vreeland, a fast frigate in the fleet of the U.S.S. Theodore Roosevelt.

According to the commendation, Collins exhibited "superb airmanship, steadfast courage and unrelenting devotion to duty in the face of enemy fire," and "contributed materially to the success of United States-led multinational efforts against hostile Iraqi forces during the liberation of Kuwait...."

Collins graduated from both

McDowell man jailed on charge of extortion

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

A Floyd County man was arrested and charged Friday with trying to extort over $50,000 from Floyd County Sheriff Paul Hunt Thompson.

Sam Hall, 50, of McDowell was charged with theft by extortion for allegedly "agreeing to testify or provide information or withhold testimony or information with respect to another's legal claim for defense by trying to extort over $50,000 or more from Sheriff Paul Hunt Thompson."

Sheriff Thompson declined to discuss specifics of the case but he said Hall had been misinformed.

"Other than saying Sam got some bad information, I feel it's inappropriate to comment on this case because there is an ongoing investigation."

Court records show that the alleged crime was committed at Minnie Park near McDowell Friday afternoon.

Hall was released on an unsecured bond Friday and is scheduled to appear back in court on September 8 at 9 a.m.

Floyd County jury finds Frank DeRossett guilty of murder of Clive "Bubby" Case

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

A Floyd County jury found an Allen man guilty of intentional murder Friday and recommended he serve a 40-year prison term.

Frank DeRossett, 51, was found guilty of murder in connection with the September 1991 shooting death of Clive "Bubby" Case at the American Legion club in Martin.

Jurors deliberated just over an hour before returning the verdict and DeRossett showed no emotion when it was read by Circuit Judge Harold Stumbo.

During closing arguments, DeRossett's attorney, Ned Pillersdorf, claimed that DeRossett was under tremendous pressure because Case had threatened to kill him several times for firing him from his job at National Mines in 1980. Pillersdorf said Case had called DeRossett several times over the 11-year period and threatened to burn his home while he was inside.

"You don't have to be Einstein to get some gas and matches and set a house on fire," Pillersdorf said. "Are we a society that says you have to live your life barricaded in your house?"

"Fear is Dr. (Harwell) Smith's explanation why he snapped," Pillersdorf said. "I submit this is a case of self-defense. You can push people only so far."

Commonwealth Attorney Jerry Patton painted a different picture saying, "this is a classic, open and shut case of murder."

"Here was an innocent and unarmed man and he shot him down in co'd blood," Patton said. "This was more than just a shooting in a bar. He hated the ground Bubby Case walked on. That's murder."

DeRossett testified Thursday that he did not remember shooting Case five times, including twice in the back, as he was trying to crawl out the back door of the club.

Dr. Smith, a clinical psychologist, testified Thursday that the defendant suffered from a form of amnesia caused by the trauma of the shooting.

As DeRossett was led from the courtroom Friday, he called out to his ex-wife, "have a good trip baby. See ya."

Judge Stumbo set formal sentencing for September 4.

"Highway flasher" pleads guilty in Floyd County District Court

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

A Perry County man who was arrested in January and charged with four counts of indecent exposure pleaded guilty Monday to amended charges of menacing.

Edward Gayheart, 31, the prime suspect in what was dubbed as the "highway flasher" case, did not appear for his trial Monday and issued the plea agreement through his attorney, John Hanson.

Gayheart was arrested by Floyd County Sheriff's deputy Homer Neeley January 20 when Neeley observed the truck driver apparently trying to get an automobile to stop. The sheriff's department was investigating reports that a truck driver had been exposing himself to women traveling Route 80 near Martin.

Hanson told Floyd County District Judge Danny Caudill that his client could not attend Monday's trial because Gayheart had been hospitalized Sunday evening. The court nor Hanson, however, could verify Gayheart's admission to the hospital Monday.

After discussion in the judge's chambers between Hanson and assistant county attorney Bob Bishop, Hanson agreed to the guilty plea on four counts of menacing.

"My client is under a bad situation," Hanson told the court. "(Not) getting any verification from the hospital, my client would've been found guilty and a bench warrant issued."

Under the plea agreement, charges of possession of marijuana, less than eight ounces, and possession of drug paraphernalia were dismissed. Gayheart was sentenced to 90 days on each of the menacing counts which were probated for two years on the condition that he be evaluated and/or counseled at Mountain Comprehensive Care; that he commit no other crimes and that he has no contact with the prosecution's witnesses.

Judge Caudill issued a stern warning to Hanson.

"I will accept the guilty plea and set formal sentencing for August 31 at 2 p.m.," Judge Caudill told Hanson. "If your client is released from the hospital before then he has to be here. If he fails to do so, I will have him picked up."

The Prestonsburg Fire Department, P & B Ambulance Service and Respond Ambulance Service performed emergency treatment and transported the accident victims to the Highlands Regional Medical Center.

Moore was treated and released, Wilson was kept overnight for observation, and the juvenile was listed only as having been admitted to the hospital.

Foley, 46, of Martin, was air-lifted to the University of Kentucky Medical Center in Lexington, where he died at approximately 8 p.m. Saturday.

Services for Foley will be held today, Wednesday, at the Hall Funeral Home Chapel in Martin, with the Reverend Ted Shannon officiating. Foley will be buried in the J.H. Dingus Memorial Cemetery at Dinwood.

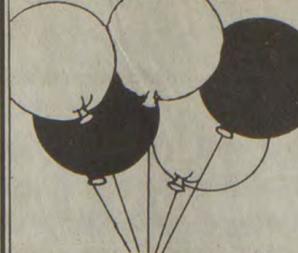

The accident is currently under investigation by the Prestonsburg City Police. No further details were available at press time.

Prestonsburg council okays incentive packages for jobs

by Geoff Belcher
Staff Writer

The Prestonsburg City Council made great strides Monday evening toward bringing two new facilities to the city, one of which could greatly boost tourism in the city and one which could bring over 1,000 new jobs into the region.

In a special executive session during Monday night's regularly scheduled meeting, the council authorized Mayor Ann Latta to offer a special incentives package to ImageMark, a joint-venture between South Central Bell and London, Kentucky-based TeleMark America, which plans to create a new telecommunications center in Prestonsburg. For more details on ImageMark, see page one.

The council also passed a resolution at Monday's meeting authorizing Latta to apply for a Community Development Block Grant from the Kentucky Department of Local Government.

If the city is successful in obtaining the grant funds, they will be applied toward the creation of a museum project in downtown Prestonsburg. The museum would contain antique cars, mining equipment and other Eastern Kentucky memorabilia loaned to the city by a generous antiques collector.

Anne Chaney, Project Developer for the Big Sandy Area Development District, said last week that Community Development Block Grant funds are administered nationally by the federal department of Housing and Urban Development. The funds are distributed to individual states for various local projects.

Henry Mayo, Main Street Manager for the city of Prestonsburg, submitted the project proposal. Mayo said that the proposal calls for the city to acquire the old Abigail and Cato's building in downtown Prestonsburg to contain the museum and to function as a permanent home for Mountain Heritage Arts and Crafts.

Mayo said that included in the project are plans to open a souvenir shop at the museum and to offer tours and nationally-touring arts and crafts exhibits.

In order for the city to qualify for the grant, it must also secure matching funds through some other source, such as a loan, which the fund-source would calculate on a sliding scale to determine the amount of the grant.

Among other topics discussed at Monday's city council meeting:

- the council passed a new emergency housing policy, adding new restrictions to gaining residency at the city's emergency housing facility. Among those restrictions are that no pets other than those aiding the handicapped will be allowed.

- The council adopted a new residential trash-pickup schedule that will take effect August 31.

- Plans for a new police impound lot at Stephens Branch are proceeding on schedule. Assistant Chief of Police Roy Roberts said Monday that estimates show that 476 feet of eight feet high barbed fencing, including posts and concrete reinforcement will cost $4,500. Roberts also said that Abco Security had submitted a $2,838 bid to supply a security system.

- The council adopted a new insurance policy for city employees. Councilman George Archer said that the plan, offered by the Principal insurance company, will save the city over $100,000 for the fiscal year and will offer better benefits for city employees than offered under the current policy.

- The council discussed options to help finance construction of the new home of the Kentucky Opry. Archer said that previous plans to cut funding to George P. Archer Memorial Park did not make sense. Archer and park director Randy Polk said that the park had greatly improved in the last five years and has become an important asset both to the city and to the five-county area, hosting family and class reunions and ball tournaments.

Archer suggested increasing by one percent the tourism and recreation taxes levied on city motels and restaurants.

Councilman Billy Ray Collins said that although he was against increasing the tax, he did agree that the park played an important role for the city.

"We've fought mud, water, crap and corruption over there..." Collins said, "but we have a park that everybody can be proud of."

Only Councilman Charles Vance was absent for Monday's meeting.

The Prestonsburg City Council convenes at 6 p.m. on the second and fourth Mondays of every month. The next meeting will be conducted Monday, September 14. The public is urged to attend.

Windfall

The good news at Friday's meeting came by way of bonding agent Terrell Ross, who proposed refinancing 1979 and 1982 county bond issues which could result in a $600,000 windfall to the county.

Ross explained that since interest rates have dropped, the bonds could be refinanced at a lower rate which would result in a cash residual to the county of $300,000 to $600,000.

"We want to move cautiously and do it right," Ross told the court. "Because we can only do it one time."

Ross said the county could expect a possible lump sum payment of $600,000 in January and an undetermined annual amount until the year 2002.

Hammond said the extra revenues could be used toward installing and extending water lines in the county and go toward upgrading the county's road system.

The court passed a resolution to refinance the bonds.

In other business Friday, the court:

- heard a report from Hammond that Phase II of the county's landfill should be opened in approximately four weeks;
- heard a report from Hammond that the county is working to acquire 28 Hollow at Wayland to be used for a park and walking track;

- was invited by Ivel residents to attend an August 27 public hearing on a proposed fly ash landfill at Ivel; and

- held first reading of an ordinance to enter into an interlocal agreement with the city of Prestonsburg to purchase land for a proposed harness racing facility.

The next regular meeting of the court will be Friday, September 18 at 10 a.m. at the Floyd County Courthouse Annex. The meetings are open to the public.

was under any pressure to plead to the charges and asked if he understood what he was doing.

Newsome replied that he did understand the plea and told Judge Hood that he was being treated for "anxiety."

Judge Hood asked Pillersdorf if there was enough evidence to support the plea and Pillersdorf conceded that there was enough evidence to support the indictment.

Newsome was suspended from his duties as an honorary deputy sheriff when he was arrested, but remained as director of the health care board.

Newsome faces up to five years in prison and a $250,000 fine on each count. He will be sentenced November 4.

Endangered species

by Scott Perry

The statistics say that one of every three American children today is the product of a broken home. By the turn of the century, the number will increase to one in two.

We'll admit up front that we carry no license to practice sociology, but we do have some insight on why these stats are so staggering.

Raising a family is hard work. It requires sacrifice, commitment, patience and determination.

These characteristics are rare combinations for today's Gotta Have It generation.

Sure, there are many mitigating factors contributing to the pressure cooker atmosphere families struggle through today.

Those struggles aren't exclusive to today's moms and dads.

Unfortunately for too many children today, when the going gets tough, too many moms and dads find they don't have what it takes to tough it out.

If the statistical predictions hold true, families that stick together may very soon be first on the list of endangered species.

No Sugar Daddy

Ken Cazalas, editor of the Delta Democrat Times, offered some suggestions this week to both political parties, including this "statement of principle" that both would do well to adopt:

"This federal government is not a Big Brother, Father Confessor, Dutch Uncle or Sugar Daddy. It is not in business to take from one segment of society to give to any other segment. It exists only to protect the public from outside aggression and to provide a legal system to settle disputes. This government will guarantee only the freedom to pursue individual happiness--not to attain it."

Add some music and we could make that a new verse to the National Anthem.

For and in behalf of all Volunteer Fire Department members and particularly for those of Auxier Volunteer Fire Department.

TO THE WIVES, MOTHERS, SISTERS AND CHILDREN:

Be very supportive of these people. Who knows each time they go on an emergency call, they may not return in the same condition as they left. By some gesture or action, let them know you love them and will be anxiously waiting their return. After all, they are voluntarily doing this to protect their loved ones and property as well as the loved ones and property of their neighbors. We depend on these volunteers 365 days a year.

You as wives, Mothers, sisters, adult daughters and sons can help their cause immensely by becoming members of an auxiliary to the Fire Department. This organization could help with cleaning around the fire department, scrubbing, painting etc. or have money-raising projects to help replace equipment and purchase new and better equipment so our firemen can continue to give the same level and hopefully a more efficient level of service.

With your help, I am sure the above can be accomplished. Thank you in advance for your response and actions.

After all is said and done, we are our brothers keepers.

Please open your attics and old cigar boxes and donate items for the National Boy Scout Museum located at Murray State University in far western Kentucky.

The museum is 25,000 square feet of state of the art electronics and displays of the Scouting movement from 1910 and is open for tours from March through November of each year and is the only museum recognized and supported by the Boy Scouts of America.

The Kentucky Weekly Newspaper Association (KWNA) project for 1992 is to promote and solicit items to be donated for display at the museum in Murray.

Mark A. Hunt, director of the museum, tells us they need for display, old camping equipment of all kinds (tents, hatchets, cooking gear, patrol boxes), old camp patches before 1965, old Order of the Arrow patches before 1965 (most have the letters W.W.W. on them), Indian costumes used in Scouting, neckerchiefs, especially with patches sewn on them, personal reminiscences, diaries, etc. There also is an interest in old Boy Scout uniforms from before 1945. They also collect old Girl Scout, Campfire Girl and Indian Guide memorabilia, and any old scouting photos.

Please ship your donated items to Scout Museum, c/o KWNA, 108 Court Street, Irvine, KY 40336.

Thanks, and come visit the museum and also see one of the nation's largest displays of original Norman Rockwell paintings at the museum. Please send what you can or call those you know who might have items to donate.

Last week I had the pleasure of meeting Aileen Hall who writes "Small World" for your paper.

We had a most pleasant conversation, primarily about her weekly column and I found her most interesting—her writing with wit and humor.

Her subjects go from the post office, doctor's office, to airports. These are humorous and I like laughter.

But this week's column was on a more serious note. The reporter from Western Kentucky coming to Pikeville to a convention and putting our area down. We read too often about such as that.

I want to commend Mrs. Hall for her response, she put it straight forward. Her August 19 column should be mailed to the Franklin Favorite to assure those people that all is well and good here and it is all in the eyes of the beholder.

I do hope Mrs. Hall will continue writing weekly. I like what she has to say.

Coffee Break

by Scott Perry

It would appear, in the wake of the GOP convention in Houston, that the national media doesn't intend to allow objectivity to get in the way of its coverage of the presidential campaign.

The networks and major newspapers (including Kentucky's top two) haven't even blushed at their blatantly biased coverage of the campaign, which has to date employed the broad-brush method to vilify anyone remotely associated with the Republican Party as uncaring Neanderthals.

And, no stone is left unthrown when the opportunity to bash Bush presents itself. He even gets it in the lifestyle pages of the newspapers, where Monday's jab was at the President's clothing, which pundits felt obligated to describe as "boring."

Good grief.

Media coverage of the campaign has become so prejudicial, in fact, that it has become a campaign issue itself.

The American public deserves even-handed coverage of issues on their front pages and telecasts and newswriters and telecasters need a quick refresher course on objectivity.

Until the media rediscovers its roots, it will remain ranked right up there with road kill on the public's acceptability scale.

"Family Values" are collecting the lion's share of the spotlight in this campaign, with each party claiming their's are best.

For crying out loud, when have family values, or any values for that matter, been a priority for politicians?

The Democrats' idea of family values is to throw welfare checks and food stamps at problems, while Republicans suggest we toe the moral line and get right with God who, folks like Pat Robertson will tell us, is the "G" in GOP.

Meanwhile, we poor slobs caught in the middle are wondering if there's anything about our current political system left to value.

Speaking of values, here's a good example of the lack of them...

Monday's line-up for the morning talk shows included these topics of general interest:

- Donahue—"Transvestite Prostitutes."
- Oprah—"Good Twin, Evil Twin."
- Sally—"Women Whose Husbands Patronize Topless Bars."

Where do they find the people for these shows? More importantly, where do they find people to watch them?

When you go to the polls November 3, you may want to pack a lunch.

That way you'll have something to do while you try to decipher Constitutional Amendment No. 2, a 242-word sentence which asks nine separate questions.

That's right, nine questions. But you only get to answer yes or no once.

There will be three proposed amendments on the November ballot and all of them use a lot of words to explain pretty simple proposals.

We'll talk about each of them later, as soon as we figure them out.

In politics today, wives can be issues

by Judith Clabes
Scripps Howard News Service

The Wife Factor is more and more a part of the equation as we assess presidential candidates. Why all this attention on someone who isn't running for office and who isn't being elected? The answer lies in the changing times.

Margo Perot, wife of disgruntled ex-candidate Ross, told the nation in a televised interview that she didn't give her husband advice. That wasn't her place, she implied.

Sorry, Margo, but nobody bought it. That may be some handler's idea of good image-making, but it doesn't ring true. Then, sure enough, when Perot gathered his closest advisers to discuss withdrawing from the race there was Margo in the small group.

Perot himself has urged that presidential politics be issue-oriented and not personality-oriented, but in reality it's impossible to separate the person from the ideas.

Political leadership is personality-based: Can the would-be leader persuade, convince, cajole, sell his or her ideas to others who will then choose to follow. A leader without followers is no leader at all. Being president isn't the same as being boss.

And in today's politics, wives can be issues.

Perhaps we're more aware of the Wife than ever, simply because attitudes toward marriage have changed dramatically. Today's couples expect a true partnership in marriage. Whether or not the wife has a career, she expects her contribution to that partnership to be recognized and appreciated.

The stay-at-home wife of a busy corporate executive once remarked to me that she hoped she didn't die before her husband: He wouldn't be able to find his shoes in the morning. This was reality speaking, not sour grapes. In addition to managing the personal affairs that allowed him to devote his time and energy to his high-powered corporate success, however, she is also his closest adviser and confidante. A sounding board he depends on in significant ways. She is as much a factor in his success as anything.

Today's young marrieds approach their partnerships on equal footing, with expectations to match. To convince them that a man running for president is immune from the influence of his spouse is a task too large for any known campaign guru. So the natural tendency is to look at the whole package.

The political system hardly knows how to respond.

The first lady, after all, is as symbolic as Britain's royal family, though not paid as well. In fact, she isn't paid at all while being expected to perform any number of quasi-official duties as the wife of the president.

The moment he becomes president, she has a job she may not even want. Or that she may have to redefine in her own way. Rosalyn Carter chose to be openly influential; Nancy Reagan wanted to be quiet about it. When the surface is scratched away, what was the real difference?

Every first lady in recent history has chosen a "cause" to champion, with varying degrees of commitment and success: Arts, beautification, saying no to drugs, literacy. For the most part they are "safe" causes of the kind suitable for executive wives, like garden clubs and hospital auxiliaries and charity balls. How will we react when a first lady, having given up a lucrative and successful career of her own to live in the fish-bowl White House, chooses to champion a cause like spouse abuse AIDS research or children's rights?

Ask us to name a most-admired first lady and Eleanor Roosevelt will surely come to mind. She was a strong influence and a powerful presence. No shrinking violet, she is also a kind of first lady with whom many of today's women can identify.

The first lady stakes have begun. As surely as the presidential race is now a two-man race, the first lady race is a two-woman face-off.

On one side is Barbara Bush. Her image is traditional: She's likable matronly, non-threatening, supportive, smart, self-effacing. Her handlers are confident she'll win the popularity bake-off.

On the other side is Hillary Clinton a thoroughly modern woman. Her image is the new tradition: Outspoken, self-confident, independent, professional, efficient and tough. Her handlers apparently think she needs a softer image, as if successful women lawyers aren't first lady material.

There's plenty to like and admire about both these women. As more and more women are running for political office on their own merits, the political landscape is undergoing dramatic change.

Someday, we may even be trying to reconcile the idea of a "first gentleman" in the White House, and won't that be fun. In the meantime, it would be nice if the two would-be first ladies could just be themselves, minus the image-makers, and the rest of us could accept them for the individuals they are.

Escapee turns himself in

The last of three inmates who escaped four months ago from the Big Sandy Regional Detention Center has turned himself in.

William Mollett, 21, of Kermit, W.Va., surrendered Sunday afternoon at the jail. He broke out May 2 along with James Hickman, 18, of Beauty in Martin County, and Richard Bailey, 28, also of Kermit.

All three were being held on burglary charges. Mollett also faces a felony theft charge. — The Courier Journal

Couple pleads not guilty to extortion charge

A Paintsville man and his wife pleaded not guilty in federal court Monday to trying to extort $20,000 from Johnson County Commonwealth's Attorney Leo Marcum.

U.S. District Judge Joseph Hood scheduled trial November 23 for James Robert Ferguson, 39, and his wife, Robin Ferguson, 32. Both remain free on bond.

An August 6 indictment charged the couple with one count each of extortion and conspiracy to extort. The husband was also charged with carrying and using a firearm during the alleged offense. — The Lexington Herald-Leader

What are the Dead Sea Scrolls?

A newly released section of the Dead Sea Scrolls bears striking similarities to the New Testament's Gospel of Luke, according to Michael Wise, a University of Chicago scholar.

■ The scrolls: They are leather and papyrus manuscripts that are the oldest known copies of the Old Testament, other religious writings and laws.

■ Written: From 200 B.C. to 50 A.D. in Hebrew and Aramaic, a Semitic language commonly spoken in Jesus' time.

■ Significance: Among the most important discoveries in archaeology according to biblical scholars, they have pushed back the date of a Hebrew Bible to no later than 70 A.D. They potentially clarify the relationship between Judaism and early Christianity.

■ Discovered: In 1947 in a cave near the Dead Sea in what is now the Israeli-occupied West Bank; some scrolls were found later at nearby sites.

■ Housed at two sites: Shrine of the Book and the Rockefeller Museum in Jerusalem.

Illness delays Magoffin Fiscal Court meeting

The absence of Magoffin Judge-Executive Charles Allen, seriously ill with cancer in a Lexington hospital, is affecting a long-running landfill dispute, a top aide said yesterday.

For a year now, Allen and the Magoffin Fiscal Court members have been at the center of a volatile controversy about the proposed 300-acre landfill. Opposition surfaced last August after residents learned Allen had quietly included the project — which would include out-of-state garbage — as part of the county's required solid-waste disposal plan.

Since then, the dispute has been blamed for one shooting, a brawl during a fiscal court meeting and at least four lawsuits.

With a magistrate absent and Allen in the hospital, the scheduled fiscal court meeting last Thursday was canceled. As a result, no action was taken on agenda items that included payment of current landfill bills or a proposal to raise the rate for residential garbage pickup service, from $6 a month to perhaps $12 a month.

Judge-Executive Pro-Tem Henry Clay Sizemore believes that if Allen resigns due to illness or dies, Dr. Charles Hardin, the county's Democratic Party Chairman, will ask Governor Jones to appoint someone opposed to the landfill as judge-executive. — Lexington Herald-Leader

Fertilizer spill results in evacuation of 15

About 15 people who were evacuated early Saturday because of a chemical fertilizer spill on U.S. 23 in Pike County were allowed to return home after about 7 1/2 hours.

The spill occurred just south of Pikeville around 2:30 a.m. when a tractor trailer carrying ammonium nitrate apparently ran off the road and into the mountainside, said a Pikeville police dispatcher, who did not give his name. Between a quarter- and a half-ton of the fertilizer spilled onto the rain-slicked road and mixed with diesel fuel leaking from the truck, he said. The driver was not injured.

The road runs along the Levisa Fork of the Big Sandy River, but officials said no chemicals leaked into the river or surrounding streams. The highway was reopened around 9:55 a.m. — The Courier-Journal

Bush keeps inflating Saddam Hussein

By Leonard Larsen
Scripps Howard News Service

As a tin-pot dictator in decline, Saddam Hussein presides over an Iraq still devastated by Allied bombing, an economy in shambles and a population weakened by illness and starvation while rumors persist of internal plots against him.

For help in saving him, for propping him up and portraying him to his forlorn people as a powerful world figure, Saddam can thank President Bush, the leader of the world's reigning superpower.

It is Bush who keeps Saddam pumped up like a sideshow balloon, returning Saddam's petty nastiness with name-calling unworthy of the American presidency and wasting the nation's attention on a Third-World bully whose global boast is that he's the top priority enemy of the United States.

The dispute with Saddam now involves suspicions that he's violated terms of the United Nations peace settlement that ended the Gulf War.

Bush, in effect, has pushed the United Nations aside, diminishing U.N. authority to discipline small nation thugs and converting the Iraqi debate into his own personal argument with Saddam.

The president has warned he might order new bombing raids if Iraq continues to ignore terms of the war settlement. And he makes it clear he's fed up with Saddam's bad attitude and all-around sassiness.

It must be said that Bush is aided in the election-year foolishness by Arkansas Gov. Bill Clinton, the Democratic presidential candidate.

Clinton, whose peaceful personal instincts leaned toward American non-intervention in his draft-age years during the Vietnam War, unleashed his warrior instincts in his current presidential campaign.

An early proponent of negotiations and use of economic sanctions against Iraq after Saddam's invasion of Kuwait, Clinton later pronounced himself in favor of the Persian Gulf War, once American land forces were committed to the fighting.

And in this latest round of election-year insults and military threats against Saddam, Clinton has made his own contribution to assuring the world that Saddam is a global menace and a bipartisan American concern.

Clinton has endorsed Bush's renewed military threat, declaring his support for "being firm with Saddam Hussein," while adding his campaign complaint that Bush lacked toughness in the months leading to the 1990 Iraqi invasion of Kuwait.

So the dictator who crawled out of the wreckage after his military was easily beaten and his nation was reduced to ruin still endures as a worldwide symbol of contempt for American force and American policy.

And across the globe, everywhere America is not loved and respected, in every nation and place where hurts have become hates, American preoccupation with a minor-league tyrant only inflates the tyrant.

While it boosts his ego, it must also amuse him, too.

The president of the United States in a world littered with U.N. resolutions that are ignored and unpunished, is threatening to send planes and missiles back on the attack, charging Saddam is guilty of violating other U.N. resolutions.

The immediate Bush complaint was that Saddam blocked U.N. investigators in their pursuit of what—so far—has been a phantom supply of Iraqi armaments of massive destruction, including nuclear weapons.

When Saddam backed down, allowing U.N. inspection of a building in Baghdad, the tyrant was typically vexing, choosing what inspectors he would allow in and barring Americans and other allies in the Gulf War.

When the inspection was over, the U.N. officials said they'd found no evidence of the suspect weapons.

A fascinating footnote suggested a grim comedy of errors. A U.N. official, speaking anonymously in Washington, said the standoff might have started as a "misunderstanding."

The U.N. inspectors, he said, at first didn't realize they were demanding entrance to the Iraqi Agriculture Ministry. He said there never was "irrefutable intelligence" that weapons materials were inside. He said it was his "personal view" there never were any such materials inside.

Health care reform gets high marks

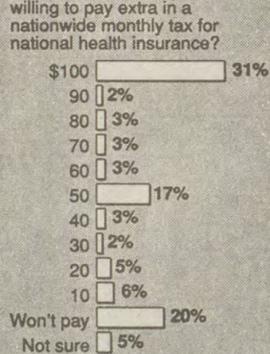

A new survey on health care reform indicates people want a new system and are willing to pay extra for it.

■ Cost of health care is a very serious or fairly serious problem: 60% said yes

■ Need to overhaul system to one of national health insurance: 59% said yes

■ Should keep current health care structure, but control costs: 35% said yes

■ How much would you be willing to pay extra in a nationwide monthly tax for national health insurance?

Housing institute elects new secretary

Kentucky Manufactured-Housing Institute announces the election of Morris Hylton, Hylton Homes, Inc., Ivel, as the new Secretary for 1992-93. Hylton has been a member of the association for many years. He will be helping to establish and implement new goals and objectives for KMHI.

Lasting impression

Dr. Charles Wethington, president of the University of Kentucky, and Dr. Ben Carr, chancellor of the Community College System, visited the PCC campus at Prestonsburg and Pikeville on August 6. Dr. Wethington, who had influenced the placement of buildings on the PCC campus when he was chancellor of the Community College System, was especially impressed with the new science building at PCC. When he discovered that Dr. Roger Goodwill, head of the natural science project, had raised about $5,000 for the project, Dr. Wethington generously agreed to match those funds with money from his own discretionary account. If you're planning a project that requires digging, you can save yourself a lot of trouble — and maybe even your life — by calling Before You Dig (BUD), a service of Kentucky Underground Protection, Inc.

Contact utility companies before excavation begins to make certain you won't hit any electrical, telephone, gas or water lines. BUD will handle the details for you, free of charge. Just call the toll-free number at least two days before you begin your project, and they'll notify member utilities to mark any lines in the work area. No surprises.

Wheelwright Council drops housing option from prison lease requirements

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

Wheelwright City Commissioners met in special session Monday and voted to amend a lease agreement submitted to the state Corrections Cabinet for companies competing to build a prison in that city.

The commission voted 4-1 to exclude a requirement that the company which received the bid buy a house on the access road to the site.

Commissioners purchased the house in July for $15,000 with funds borrowed from the Wheelwright Utility Commission.

City attorney Greg Isaac recommended the stipulation be removed from the lease agreement after being contacted by the Corrections Cabinet.

Most of the discussions concerning amending the lease were held in closed session. Bob Meyer with the Big Sandy Area Development District, joined the city leaders in the closed discussion.

Mayor Kenneth Johnson recommended the commission approve amending the lease and everyone agreed but commissioner Andy Akers. Akers left the closed session about 15 minutes before commissioners emerged.

The motion to remove the purchase of home also included keeping open an option to negotiate with Mountain Housing for the purchase of the home.

Mayor Johnson also announced that the deadline for companies to submit bids on building the prison facility had been extended until September 9.

In other business:
• first reading was held of an amended ordinance to lower city gas rates;

• first reading was held of an ordinance to change the commission's regular monthly meeting from the third Thursday to the third Monday of each month; and

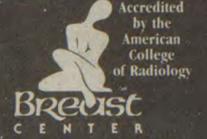

• first reading was held of an ordinance to set the city's tax rate at 35 cents per $100 evaluation.

The next regular meeting of the council will be Thursday, September 17 at 7 p.m. at city hall. The meetings are open to the public.

Report

not enough progress is being made, they will review the possibility of removal of the board," Boysen said.

Boysen will hold a public forum in Floyd County in October to discuss the findings of the investigation.

Local reaction to Boysen's condemnation of the system ranged from feelings of vindication to feelings of surprise.

"I feel vindicated," board member Eddie Billips said Tuesday. "For almost two years I've been saying we needed direction toward a five-year plan for financing, building maintenance and renovation. In general, the system needs to be operated as a business.

"We've got their (taxpayer) money, we've got their kids and now we've got to be accountable," Billips said.

Superintendent Steve Towler said in a television interview Tuesday that of the findings were surprising.

"Overall, the report was not surprising," Towler said. "But some of the details were surprising. I hope to use this report as a springboard to improvement. A lot of practices have got to change."

An overview of the findings include:

• Governance and leadership—"The total educational program in Floyd County is in deep trouble because of a fundamental breakdown in the governance and leadership of the school district. The governance and leadership of the district has been marked by bad decisions, which appear to have been made because of: lack of planning; lack of indepth investigation of specific issues; erroneous information; a lack of purposeful systematic monitoring; and inappropriate political influence. Our analysis indicates public confidence in the board has been eroded."

• Instructional Management—"Improvement efforts in recent years, either state directed or internally developed, have made no substantial difference in the schools programs or the dynamic surrounding them."

• Planning, Maintenance and Operation of the Physical Plant—"The overall quality of the maintenance of the buildings in Floyd County is poor. There is no central office emphasis on the proper maintenance of the buildings; the condition of the facilities indicate a serious lack of staff leadership in the central office."

• Facility Construction—"The construction program in Floyd County is plagued by many problems. The lack of purposeful careful planning is manifested in many questionable practices that promote outcomes that are often problem-ridden, unnecessarily costly and that produce undesirable products."

• Fiscal Management—"The fiscal management system is dissatisfactory and ineffective. The budget needs to be redirected and appropriate accounting and business procedures need to be developed and properly monitored."

• Federal Programs—"The Floyd County school district has not provided the staff assistance (or proper training) necessary to appropriately administer the special education program. As a result, the district risks non-compliance with the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act."

The only area investigated that appeared to have the least problem was the transportation department.

"The student transportation program was adequately managed in most key areas of operation, however, there was a serious lack of student loading supervision at the school sites, a potentially dangerous situation," the report found.

The unedited 31-page report will be printed in Friday's edition of the Times.

Clement Moore's poem was not entitled "Twas the Night Before Christmas," but was instead called "A Visit From St. Nick."

Babbage announces amendment ballot order

Floyd Countians will have an opportunity to vote on three amendments to the state constitution when they go to the polls on general election day, November 3, according to Secretary of State Bob Babbage.

The amendments propose to change 13 areas of the state's present constitution which was enacted in 1891, Babbage explained.

"The first amendment will ask voters if they are in favor of charitable lotteries," Babbage said. The question will appear on the ballot in the following form:

Are you in favor of allowing the General Assembly to permit the conduct of charitable lotteries and charitable gift enterprises by charitable organizations provided the General Assembly passes statutes to assure the proper functioning, honesty, and integrity of charitable lotteries and the organizations which conduct them?

The second question will ask voters if they favor successive terms for statewide constitutional officers. The single amendment addresses nine topics. The amendment language is:

Are you in favor of (1) permitting the Governor and other state officers elected in 1995 and after to be eligible to serve two consecutive terms; (2) electing the Governor and Lieutenant Governor by casting one vote for both offices; (3) giving the Lieutenant Governor duties as assigned by the Governor and the General Assembly, with the Senate selecting a senator to act as President of the Senate; (4) allowing the Governor to retain power while absent from the state, and transferring power to the Lieutenant Governor only if the Governor cannot discharge the duties of office; (5) removing the provision requiring an election to fill a vacancy in the Governor's office that occurs in the first two years of the term; (6) if the Governor and the Lieutenant Governor cannot act, transferring power to the Attorney General and then to the Auditor; (7) eliminating the offices of Register of Land Office and Superintendent of Public Instruction as elective offices; (8) permitting the General Assembly to require the Senate's consent to the selection of inferior state officers and members of boards and commissions; and (9) moving all elections (except elections for state constitutional officers) to even-numbered years by adding one year to the terms of all officials regularly elected in 1993, adding one year to the terms of local officials elected in 1995, and subtracting one year from the terms of circuit judges and judges of the court of appeals elected in 1999?

The third amendment asks voters if they would like to have the governor appoint three of the statewide constitutional officers which are now elected. This amendment proposes to change three parts of the state constitution and is worded as follows:

Are you in favor of (1) beginning in 1995, having the Commissioner of Agriculture, State Treasurer, and Secretary of State appointed by the Governor Instead of elected, and allowing them to be appointed for successive terms; (2) permitting the General Assembly to require the Senate's consent to the selection of inferior state officers and members of boards and commissions; and (3) beginning in 1995, eliminating the Railroad Commission and offices of Register of Land Office and Superintendent of Public Instruction as elective offices?

Among the 500 occupations for which projections were developed, 30 will account for half of total employment growth over the 1990-2005 period, according to the Bureau of Labor Statistics' Occupational Outlook Quarterly, Fall 1991.

According to a press release issued by Caldwell's office, the indictment charges that between March and August 1987, Turner made unauthorized withdrawals from the credit line of the Drifco Coal Company, Incorporated and made the funds available to other parties, including J & S Battery, located at Hippos; Lanny and Brenda Hamilton, of Prestonsburg; and Robert G. Smith.

None of the above parties have been charged in the indictment or accused of any improper transactions.

The indictment, Caldwell said, resulted from an investigation conducted by the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

Turner has not been arrested, Caldwell said Tuesday, but is expected to appear in court in accordance with an official summons.

Prosecuting attorney in the case will be Assistant U.S. Attorney David P. Grise.

If found guilty, Turner could face up to five years in prison on each count and/or a $5,000 fine per count, with a Mandatory Special Assessment of $50 per count to offset court costs.

The indictment of a person by a grand jury or the charge of a person by information or otherwise is an accusation only and that person is presumed innocent until and unless proven guilty or otherwise pleads guilty.

Turner was unavailable for comment.

Meeting to provide opportunity to identify future needs of disabled

Older persons with developmental disabilities, their families, and local advocacy groups from Martin, Pike, Floyd, Magoffin and Johnson counties will have the opportunity to discuss their current service needs, barriers to receiving services and projected future needs during an open town forum meeting, Tuesday, September 8, at 7 p.m., at the Mountain Comprehensive Care Center—Outpatient Office, 18 South Front Street, Prestonsburg. The meeting is being conducted by the University of Kentucky Interdisciplinary Human Development Institute's Partnerships in Aging and Developmental Disabilities Project.

A developmental disability is defined as a severe, chronic disability of a person which is attributable to a mental or physical impairment or combination of mental and physical impairment; is evident before the age of 22; is likely to continue; and hampers functioning in at least three of these important life areas: self care, speech and language; learning; mobility; self-direction; living on one's own; earning a living. Developmental disabilities may include cerebral palsy, blindness, deafness, mental retardation, orthopedic handicaps, multiple disabilities and other life-long conditions.

The Partnerships in Aging and Developmental Disabilities Project, is designed to develop networking and collaborative efforts among older people with developmental disabilities, their families, advocacy groups, and service agencies in their local community. In an effort to develop these partnerships, town forum meetings and service agency workshops are being held across the state throughout August and September.

A workshop will be held for service agencies staff on Wednesday, September 9, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., at the Mountain Comprehensive Care Center—Outpatient Office. During the workshop, participants will examine the issues raised by participants during the town forum meeting and share information on the unique needs of the growing population with developmental disabilities. Participants will also discuss current community resources and the availability of nontraditional funds that could be accessed to develop new programs specific to the needs of older individuals and their family units.

A host of volunteers

Host volunteer Arnita Snavelly of Prestonsburg works at the host information desk to assist patients to make their stay at Highlands as comfortable as possible.

"Host" service at HRMC will assist hospital patients

Highlands Regional Medical Center has introduced a new "host" service to assist patients, visitors, and departments within the hospital. Hosts greet patients in admissions, provide information, and arrange for transport within the hospital. The hosts' primary duty will be to make each patient's visit to the hospital as relaxed and comfortable as possible.

In Highlands Volunteer Program, each volunteer completes an application form listing work experiences, hobbies, interests, special skills or training, and preferred volunteer services. After being interviewed, the volunteer is matched with a hospital department which can best utilize his or her special skills.

Volunteers range in age from high school students to retired workers. High school students are part of the "candy striper" group and are expected to maintain a grade point average of 2.5. Hours are arranged around school schedules. High school graduates enter the adult volunteer program.

Volunteers assist in departments such as the laboratory, outpatient surgery, cardiac catheterization laboratory, medical records, and the respiratory department. While volunteers do not provide direct patient care they do assist hospital staff members with special needs.

Thirty-five adult volunteers make up a special group called "Auxilians" who devote many hours to the hospital by operating the gift shop and providing the surgery waiting area with a coffee service and assist in various hospital departments. Auxilians have been responsible, through their donations, for the purchase of special pieces of equipment for the nursery, cardio diagnostics, and other areas of the hospital. Auxilians donated thousands of hours of volunteer service and are a valuable part of Highlands Volunteer Program.

To show its appreciation, Highlands honors its volunteers annually with a special awards dinner.

Anyone interested in joining this distinguished group may contact Kathy Allen, director of Volunteer Services, at Highlands Regional Medical Center 886-8511, ext. 105.

Wanda Hall performs at Renfro Valley

Wanda Hall, a local singer from Boons Camp, Johnson County, participated in the Talent Roundup at Renfro Valley on August 15. She performed in the county and gospel categories.

Hall has appeared at all area festivals and many local activities. She donates a lot of time to entertaining senior citizens, Carl D. Perkins Rehabilitation students and area grade schools. She most recently completed a contract with Jenny Wiley State Park where she performed to tour groups that visited Eastern Kentucky.

She will also be singing at Septemberfest in Louisa, Pumpkin Festival in Inez, Sorghum Festival in West Liberty, Red, White and Blue Days in Martin, Jenny Wiley Festival in Prestonsburg and the Apple Festival in Paintsville.

Presently Hall has been a weekly guest on the Willard Holliday show on the Salyersville TV station.

She works with the Department of Employment Service in Johnson County and is married to William Hall and has one son, George Marion.

Three join WOWK-TV

Dave Parker, weathercaster, and reporters Traci Mitchell and Pat Glynn will join the WOWK-TV Action News Team, according to Steve Dant, vice president and general manager.

Parker, formerly of WSLV-TV in Roanoke, Virginia, will become the weather anchor on the 6:00 and 11:00 p.m. newscasts. An experienced weather and environmental reporter, he plans to build an extensive weather-watcher network here in the Tri-State. WOWK-TV News Director Ken Selvaggi commented, "Dave is knowledgeable about weather patterns in the region and will be able to relate very well to our viewers."

Mitchell has been reporting for WCVB-TV in Boston and previously worked as a broadcast intern for CNN in London.

Glynn, a graduate of Ohio University in Athens, worked for WOUB-TV and WOUC-TV in Athens. He has spent the last two years as a reporter for WCJB-TV in Gainesville, Florida.

"Pat and Traci are two of the brightest young reporters in the country. They will enable us to more comprehensively cover the region and deliver a more substantive product for our viewers each day," Selvaggi said.

Mr. and Mrs. Brian Wallace

Exchanged vows June 6

Meredith Lynn Click and Brian Douglas Wallace were united in marriage June 6 at 4:30 p.m. at the First Baptist Church in Prestonsburg. The ceremony was conducted by Rev. Robert Varney, minister of the First Baptist Church at Langley.

The bride was escorted to the altar by her father, Barry Click. Her maid of honor was Holli Harrill of Paris. The bridesmaids were Kelly Orndorf of Dublin, Ohio, Tonya Colegrove of Greenup, Leslee Toy and Kim Whitt both of Morehead, Traci Hicks of Langley, Maria Hicks of David and Robin Burchett of Prestonsburg. Sarah Prater of Kendallville, Indiana, served as flower girl.

The best man was Dr. Ken Wallace of Caribou, Maine, brother of the groom. The groomsmen were Braci Stai of Lexington, Mike Coleman of Georgetown, Ron Cox of Cumberland, Kevin Wallace of Garrett, Kris Click, brother of the bride, of David and Jim Frazier and Johnny Ray Harris both of Prestonsburg. Brandon Hicks of Langley served as usher and Shane Gregory Allen of Martin was the ring bearer.

The wedding was coordinated by Jeanie Hicks and Evelyn Howard both of Langley. Julie Hunt of Cincinnati, Ohio, and Jessica Breyenton of Dayton, Ohio, greeted guests at the guest registry. Programs were distributed by Jennifer Burchett of Prestonsburg and Amanda Prater of Kendallville, Indiana.

Jeanie Hicks of Langley was the pianist and was included with John Goble of Lexington and David Livingston of Smithville, Tennessee, as soloist. The reception was held at the church fellowship hall and was catered by Linda Adams and Janice Adams of Prestonsburg. Sandy Burchett and Rhonda Burchett assisted with serving.

Flowers and decorations were provided by Jenny Wiley Florist. The wedding cake was created by Judy Cochran of Paintsville.

The bride is the daughter of William Barry and Deborah Click of David. She is the granddaughter of Clifford and Rose Hicks of David and Bertha Click of Langley and the late Jim Click.

The groom is the son of Frank and Virginia Wallace of Prestonsburg. He is the grandson of the late Ora K. and Ruby Wallace of Garrett and the late Tom and Rebecca Burchett of Prestonsburg.

The groom is a 1987 graduate of Prestonsburg High School and a 1991 graduate of Georgetown College. He is currently a student at the University of Kentucky School of Dentistry.

The bride is a 1988 graduate of Prestonsburg High School and a 1992 graduate of Morehead State University. She is currently employed at Cardinal Hill Hospital and is a graduate student at Eastern Kentucky University.

Mr. and Mrs. Wallace spent their honeymoon in Florida. The couple now resides in Lexington.

MSU spiritual care workshop planned

Morehead State University's Continuing Education Program for nursing and allied health professionals will sponsor a workshop on Wednesday, September 2, at the MSU-Big Sandy Extended Campus Center in Prestonsburg.

The one-day session is entitled "The Provision of Spiritual Care in a Health Care Setting." Serving as the faculty will be Sharon A. Denham, a doctoral candidate at the University of Alabama in Birmingham.

Registration begins at 8 a.m. with class to start at 8:30 a.m. The cost of the workshop is $36 which includes handout materials and refreshment breaks. Nurses attending the session will receive contact hours as approved by the Kentucky Board of Nursing.

Additions information is available from MSU's Department of Nursing and Allied Health Sciences at (606) 783-2632.

Hunting reminder on the Paintsville Lake area

The Corps of Engineers at Paintsville Lake in conjunction with the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife has designated a few areas on the Paintsville Lake wildlife management area as "No Hunting Zones".

The Corps has posted a map and description of these areas along with a list of appropriate hunting dates for the wildlife management area on outdoor bulletin boards located at the Corps of Engineers office, Rocky Knob Marina, Paintsville Dam Overlook and Paintsville Dam Downstream Area.

Those hunters wishing to hunt on the Morgan County Section of the wildlife management area can do so without any hunting zone restrictions.

Those hunters wishing to hunt on the Johnson County Section are urged to check this map as a few areas close to the dam have been designated as "No Hunting Zones".

The Corps reminds all hunters that they are responsible for knowing the proper hunting zones and hunting regulations before hunting on the wildlife management area.

The Corps also posts these bulletin boards with park regulations and general hunting and fishing information. For additional information, contact the Resource Manager at Paintsville Lake, Monday through Friday, 7:30 a.m. to 4:00 p.m. at (606) 297-6312 or write: Resource Manager, Paintsville Lake, P.O. Box 520, Staffordsville, KY 41256.

In Loving Memory of Etie Slone

On September 4, 1991, you were gone from us. You left behind you, on this earth, many family members and friends who loved you and whom you loved in return. We lost you, but we live on each day knowing the blessings we had in having you with us. You have made our lives so much richer with your quiet and gentle ways of loving. We miss you deeply, but are assured in knowing that you are at peace in a better place. Your memory and presence will live forever in each of us you left behind.

We love and miss you,
Your son John and family

In Loving Memory of Claude P. Hagans

Who passed away September 2, 1991

Oh, loved one, I saw a garden of flowers blooming today. Each one making the world a more beautiful place in their own colorful way. I thought of you. I thought of your life and the many things you saw and did in it. You had your own special way of living and touching others with it along your way. So much like the flowers we were to you. You planted a garden full of love and caring for us. For ground, you used the firm foundation of faith, heritage and family. For seeds, your zest for life and your love of laughter. For sun, the warmth of your smile you shone on us. Though dark times did come, the tears, like rain, only served to make us grow stronger and appreciate the brighter times of our lives together. You were tireless in cultivating us with your kind and gentle touch... And then, too soon it seemed, you were gone from us. You will forever be missed by those who knew and loved you. From your presence here with us, we have received a bountiful harvest of loving memories.

Your daughter, Eileen, and family

A Look At Sports

HERE'S ONE REDS FAN THAT HASN'T GIVEN UP

I received a letter this week from Paul R. Jordan of Lebanon, Kentucky, and he has been a Cincinnati Reds fan for many, many years. I would like to share his thoughts on the Reds and their chances of winning their division this year.

Dear Ed,

This letter is long overdue, but as I read your column today (August 19 issue) I'm here to praise you and disagree agreeably.

First off, welcome back. I miss your column, especially when you assess the latest Reds do's and don't's. As you know I have been a Reds fanatic for, lo, these past 56 years. So, I like to think I know whereof we speak — usually realistic or optimistic.

Ergo, my only two disagreements (I agree with you about 98 percent of the time which isn't bad):

Bip (Roberts) and (Barry) Larkin are big league talent, for sure, but so are (Paul) O'Neil, (Hal) Morris, (Chris) Sabo, (Bill) Doran and possibly (Glenn) Braggs. The others have potential, but that means you must be consistent for a reasonable period of time, go into a slump time, then bounce back by doing the job you're being paid big bucks to do.

You're right, the Atlanta Braves do have a fine pitching staff. The only weakness being a former Red, Charlie Leibrant (John Smoltz at times).

Even so, the Braves will not be world champs! They just don't have the tradition and the spark that the Reds seem to have lost at the moment (six games down).

Nonetheless, I predict the Reds, minus major injuries, which you didn't mention, will come back strong in September and maybe win (tradition counts you know). I said in May the race comes down to Reds and Braves, mostly because of the latter's outstanding pitching. Albeit, the hitting of the Braves has exceeded my expectations to a remarkable degree. More power to them!

But forget about the Padres, they will fold in the stretch despite (Tony) Gwynn and company.

The Reds will not finish third — first perhaps.

Now, about (Lou) Piniella. I hate to kick a guy when he's down, but I must agree with you. Regardless of the skipper's skill, it comes down to psychological coherence. If the players hate his guts, as some do, you have incoherence and thus failure. Human beings love to be recognized and appreciated, which is understandable. But when you're in the big bucks game of winning or losing, you forget about personal feelings and go with those who can get you where you want to go!

I know you will continue your fine work. You may use this anyway you wish but please make my point that you are a credit to the Floyd County Times and the mountain country that I love so much.

My best to you always
Paul Jordan

Paul Jordan has probably forgotten more about the Cincinnati Reds than most people will ever know. I appreciate the words of kindness as well as rebuke.

There is no one who would like to see the Reds pull out a division title more than me, but I was being realistic in saying that a third place finish was going to be their fate.

As of this writing, the Reds are 5 1/2 games out from the Braves and losing with consistency to last place ballclubs. A division or pennant contender must, I repeat, must beat the lesser clubs if they are to continue to contend for a championship. The Reds have failed, in the last month, to do that.

Furthermore, there doesn't seem to be any indication they are ready to turn things around. What

Trojans tough on both sides of the line

The Wheelwright Trojans are 2-0 in preseason scrimmage games and are anxiously waiting for this Friday night when they will play for real. If there were any indications that the Trojans are going to be pushovers this year, those thoughts were dashed after the Trojans handed a highly regarded Elkhorn City team a 21-14 setback in the EKMC Conference panorama at Jenkins Saturday night.

It was the defense of Wheelwright that made the difference in the game as the offense was allowed to rest between possessions — a luxury that Wheelwright hasn't been afforded in past years.

It was "The Muntu Oden Show," although the coaching staff of Wheelwright will tell you that it was a team effort. It was that but the performance of Oden cannot go unnoticed in his outing against the Cougars.

The fleet-footed running back scored two touchdowns and rushed for 111-yards (unofficially) to lead the Trojans to their second preseason victory. Wheelwright defeated Allen Central in an earlier scrimmage game at Wheelwright.

The Trojans accumulated 241 offensive yardage with 196 coming on the ground. Trojan quarterback, senior Steven Shelton had one completion in four attempts for 45-yards in the air. The lone completion was a big one as end Charles Johnson gathered in the football on a well disguised play. Johnson trotted into the end zone untouched as the Cougars defense was crossed up.

It was the defense that shined early for the Trojans as they caused the Cougars offense all kinds of problems. The Cougars fumbled the football three times in the first half with Wheelwright recovering all three mistakes.

It didn't take Wheelwright long to get on the scoreboard as Oden took the opening hand off from Shelton and broke two tackles and found open field in the race to the goal line. Oden trotted 70-yards from the line of scrimmage to give Wheelwright a 6-0 lead amidst the cheers of a large Wheelwright following. Shelton added the extra point and it was 7-0.

Elkhorn ran two plays on their first possession before the Trojan defense, who was hitting as hard as previous years, caused Eddie Morton to fumble the football with Cruise Caudill recovering the fumble on the Cougars 33-yard line.

Wheelwright got inside the 20-yard line (actually down to the 14) (See Trojans, B 4)

A FLYING TACKLE by an Elkhorn City defender was not enough to stop Wheelwright's Muntu Oden from scoring a touchdown on this carry in the EKMC panorama at Jenkins Saturday night. Oden scored two TD's and rushed for 111-yards in Wheelwright's 21-14 victory. (photo by Ed Taylor)

Blackcats impressive against Boyd County

The scrimmages games are all over and now it is time for the Prestonsburg Blackcats to get focused on the upcoming season that kicks off this Saturday night when they face a good Johnson Central Golden Eagle squad in the first game of the Big Sandy Bowl at Johnson Central.

Friday night, the Blackcats faced

Boyd County in what was to be their final practice game before playing for real this weekend. The Cats are rated highly this year and are favored by many to win their district this year.

Although the scoreboard was not lit up Friday and no official score was kept, the Blackcat varsity outscored Boyd County 12-7 and, in some way, was declared the winner.

Both junior varsity teams squared off after the varsity played and each team ran a series of 10 downs each.

Prestonsburg scored first in their opening series of plays when full-back Dwayne Garza ran the ball in from 4-yards out for a touchdown. Exchange student, Marcus Araujo attempted the extra point but the kick failed. Araujo is from Brazil and has played soccer.

Garza's touchdown was set up on a Jody Cornette 71-yard romp. In fact, Cornette was very impressive in the first series of downs for the Blackcats rushing for 86-yards.

Sophomore Thomas Ratliff got a start at the quarterback position due to an injured Aaron Tucker, who did, however, play in the game. Ratliff is one of the promising young players on this already talent-rich team.

Tucker ran the second series of plays for Prestonsburg hitting his receivers once in three attempts. Tucker was suffering with bruised shoulders. The Blackcat starting quarterback looked impressive in the way he handled the offense making several fakes that even brought positive comments from the Boyd County coaching staff.

Prestonsburg coach Bill Letton saw some good things that his team did.

"I thought that our lines made several big plays for us," said the Prestonsburg mentor. "They did good identifying the plays. Our backs ran hard. We didn't throw the ball a lot but what we did I thought we did fairly well."

While there were the positives there also has to exist the negatives.

"We didn't play our third downs the way I had hoped we would," continued Letton. "But we did a lot of other things well. Overall, I think we played well."

Boyd County scored late in the game for a 7-6 lead on a scoring drive that covered 59-yards. A drive that took nine plays.

The lead was short-lived though as Prestonsburg came back to regain the lead at 12-7.

Starting on their own 30-yard line after the Boyd County score (there was no kicking off), it took only three plays for the Blackcats to strike with their second TD. Garza took a Tucker hand off, found an opening up the middle, moved to the right side and

Golf is a family affair for the Duff trio

For the past 25 years Burchell Duff has been enjoying the game of golf and has played in many local tournaments. Now, Duff has been joined by his wife Pat and son Todd on the golf links and has made it a family affair.

"I've been playing for a long time, about 25 years," said Duff, who just competed in his third fourth of the year this past Saturday in the Kiwanis Open Tournament at Jenny Wiley. Duff heads up the Floyd County Board of Education maintenance department but finds time in the evenings and on weekends for the game that he loves.

His wife, Pat, has been playing for just two years and finds the game her husband loves so much, appealing also.

"She started playing a couple of years ago and wonders why she didn't start playing before then," said Duff with a laugh. "She loves it. Now she plays a lot of golf when she doesn't have to work."

Pat works at the Our Lady of the Way Hospital in Martin and, as Duff puts it, "helps deliver those little future golfers."

Joining mom and dad on the course is son Todd, who worked two summers at the Jenny Wiley Golf Course and is currently attending Morehead State University. Todd played basketball at Allen Central High School and was part of the school's golf team.

"We play a lot of golf together," said the elder Duff. "He has been playing about six years now."

BURCHELL DUFF

PAT DUFF

TODD DUFF

Duff said that he plans to play in his fifth tournament this year at the Jenkins Golf Course and "that probably will be the last one this year."

Pat and Burchell have two daughters, Sandy Duff and Sheila Allen. "Sandy has played some golf but Sheila plays quite a bit," explained Duff.

Duff is a former basketball official and was part of the Allen Central booster club for several years. He and his wife continue to support the Rebels athletics as well as some of the youth programs in the county.

Duff said that the best game he has shot was a 29 at Jenny Wiley and he has gotten his coveted hole-in-one.

"I got my only hole-in-one on the number three hole at Jenny Wiley," said Duff. "There are some who have played a long time and never had a hole-in-one."

So, if you are at the Beaver Valley Golf Course at Stumbo Park or at the Jenny Wiley course and you notice a golfer with a funny looking straw hat and wearing Bermuda shorts, that's Burchell. The lady driving him around in the golf cart is his wife Pat. Todd is probably somewhere close by because, you see, all three love the game of golf and that is why it has become a family affair.

Prestonsburg Kiwanis Golf Tournament decided by playoff

The foursome of Larry Knott, Van Slone, Bill Dugan and David Jude shot a 15-under par 53 to capture the Kiwanis Golf Tournament at the Jenny Wiley Golf Course this past Saturday afternoon. The winners shot a 26 in the first nine holes and then finished with a 27 on the back nine.

But there occurred a three-way tie for second place and a playoff had to be held to determine the runners-up in the event.

The dramatic finish caused tournament director Teddy Hall to remark that it was the best tournament that the Kiwanis Club had held.

"It, no doubt, was the best that we've had," he stated after the tournament. "We had to worry about the rain some but it did hold off enough to get all 18 holes in. I believed that it was the most successful one that we've held also. There have been others that made more money for us, but everything went so smooth and everyone that played seemed to have a lot of fun."

The three teams that tied for second started on the number one hole in hopes of settling the matter there. However, the team of Glen Turner, Neil Mitchell, James Slone and Elmer Slone birdied on the first hole and Ted Hall, Stewart Hall, Hobert Webb and Kevin Webb did likewise. But the team of Johnny Ray Turner, Sam Bentley, Tommy Hall and Steve Hall, did not fair so well as they parred the hole and were dropped from further competition.

Blackcats

galloped 61-yards for the touchdown. Araujo PAT was blocked by Boyd County.

Unofficially, Garza carried the ball for 124-yards and Comette rushed for 115-yards. Garza was thrown for losses of five and three yards on his first two attempts but just could not be contained after that. Todd Clark (5-9, 173) showed a strong running game, also.

Prestonsburg will face Johnson Central in a 6:30 kick-off time this Saturday night. According to Letton, the Golden Eagles will be a formidable opponent.

"Johnson Central will have a good ballclub," Letton explained. "They are a big team and solid. They have a strong running game and they throw the ball good."

The Blackcats will head to Middlesboro, a team they lost to 30-0 last year, on September 11.

Each team of the two teams left also birdied on the number two hole with each shooting a par on hole three. It was at hole four that second place was determined when the Glen Turner team birdied on hole four and the best Hall's team could do was to par the hole.

"We were all tired," said Hall of both teams. "We had already voted to just flip a coin to determine the winner if someone did not win on the fourth hole. We just wanted to go home after playing 18 holes."

Sixty-eight players, including two women golfers, made up the field of participants who formed the 17 teams that played. The rain was light in falling, keeping the greens slow.

Each hole produced a winner of one of the many contests that was being held throughout the day. Neil Mitchell had the shortest drive, something no one wanted to claim. In fact, Mitchell did it twice and on the second time his teammates made him log it in. Chris Cornette (Cornette and Eric Cathers were the youngest golfers at the event) won the closest to the flag in the circle on the number two hole. David Jude won the same event on hole three.

The longest drive was on hole four and Craig Coleman had the longest drive. Rick Meek claimed the closest to the hole on second shot on hole five. It was James Slone who sunk the longest putt on green six.

Teddy Hall claimed the closest to the white line on hole seven when his ball went up a bank and rolled back down and stopped on the line.

"I had 20 witnesses," said Hall. Kevin Webb was the winner on green eight and Wesley Case came closest to the flag in the V. Case won a box of Avon and a box of baseball cards.

"I can always chew the gum," said Case.

For ladies only, Orella McGuire won the closest to the hole on green six and had the longest drive on hole nine. Pat Duff was the other woman participant in the tournament.

The tournament saw three father and son teams play. Teddy Hall and Stewart Hall made up one team while Hobert Webb and son Kevin took part. John Cornett and Chris Cornett also played the toumey.

"The mechanics of the tournament and the cooperation we received was great," added Hall. "Oh, we had some that was not satisfied with the teams that we picked, but you always have that."

After the completion of the tournament, players returned to outside the clubhouse to enjoy some pizza and Pepsi while several prizes were raffled off. Hall had praise for the Kiwanis Club helpers who came out and gave of their time.

SET TO PUNT is Wheelwright's Arnold Adams in football action at Jenkins Saturday night where the Trojans faced a good Elkhorn City team. Wheelwright came away with their second preseason victory and will face Betsy Layne in the season opener Friday night. (photo by Ed Taylor)

but was unable to cross the goal line before having to punt the ball over to Elkhorn. The Cougars still had problems finding any holes in the Trojans' defense and on a second-and-four play, Joe Williams fumbled the football with Arnold Adams and Todd Daniels falling on the ball.

Wheelwright took over and, six plays later, Oden scored from 3-yards out for the second Trojan touchdown and Shelton added the extra point.

"We executed real well on offense," said Wheelwright head coach Donnie Daniels. "We made very few mistakes in taking care of the football. I think on both sides of the football we play good. It was just a great effort by this team."

After the second Trojan score, Elkhorn City still could not solve the Trojans defense and for the third time in the first half Elkhorn fumbled away the football after moving for the first time into Wheelwright territory. Morton fumbled for the second time on the Trojans' 30-yard line as the Cougars were faced with a second-and-18 situation.

This time Wheelwright returned the favor and back up quarterback Justin Ray took a bad snap and coughed up the ball with Elkhorn recovering just before the first half ended.

Shelton connected with Johnson for the 45-yard TD pass and Shelton kicked his third extra point for a 21-0 Trojan lead.

Daniels, with his team in the driver's seat, sent in some younger players and the Cougars found them more to their liking as the first group. The Cougars marched 70-yards for their first score that came on a 12-yard run by Morton. With Joe Williams holding, quarterback Jason Dales kicked the extra point.

Elkhorn got the football back with 5:34 left in the game and sent some anxious moments in the direction of the Trojan fans when Jeff Bailiff crossed the goal line for a touchdown and Dales added yet another PAT for a 21-14 game and 2:29 remaining.

Wheelwright controlled the football as the clock ticked down and came away with the 21-14 victory.

The Trojans totaled 241-yards on offense with 196 on the ground led by Oden's 111-yards. Elkhorn had a total of 150-yards with all being grounded out on the ground. Williams rushed for 74-yards for the Cougars.

"Our defense was very aggressive," said assistant coach Keith Smallwood who works with the defensive line. "We were quick and we hit as hard as a late season team."

"The players are excited about the season and are playing with a lot of desire. We still have some things to work on. We have a few weaknesses that we hope to work on before next Friday's game."

"I'm proud of this team and they came out and showed that they were ready to play."

"It was just desire on the part of this team," said assistant coach Robert "Bobcat" Jackson. "We came to play and we executed very well on offense. We played with a lot of heart out there tonight and showed some confidence."

Jackson said that the coaching staff got out of the players "what we asked them to do."

Daniels told his ballclub that they played with a lot of pride and did a good job on both side of the lines and that Monday the team would get back to the basics as they prepare for the season's opener against Betsy Layne next Friday.

The Bobcats and Trojans are scheduled to kick off their game at 8 p.m. at Brackett Field.

$2,000 up for Grabs

Some lucky fisherman will become $1,000 richer Monday, September 7, as a result of the Second Annual Carr Fork Lake Take Pride in Your Lake Committee's Fish-N-Fun Bass Tournament.

Last year's fortunate winner not only won the $1,000 first place money, but was also the winner of the "big bass pot." This netted him another prize of just over $1,000. Therefore, that totaled to $2,000 and it could very well happen that way again this year.

The Take Pride in Your Lake Committee is made up by four local civic organizations: the Carr Fork Lake Clean-Up Committee, the Carr Creek Lions Club, the Knott County Gingerbread Festival Committee, and the Carr Creek Fish and Game Club.

The tournament will be held from 8 a.m.-4 p.m. Registration will take place at the Irishman Creek Marina starting at 6 a.m. that morning. The registration fee is $40 per boat with a limit of two people per boat. Fishermen/women who would like to enter the "big bass pot" may do so for an extra $10 per boat.

As last year the prizes will be $2,000 cash: $1,000 for first place, $600 for second, and $400 for third. In addition to the prize money the first, second, and third place finishers will receive nice double trophies. And don't forget the "big bass pot."

A free kids tournament will also be held from 12 noon-2 p.m. for kids 12 and under. This tournament will take place along the bank in the immediate area of the Irishman Creek Marina. This tournament will feature two classes: age six and under and ages seven - twelve. Trophies will be given away for each class, plus a trophy will be awarded for the most fish caught and for the biggest fish caught. Kids fishing this tournament must supply their own pole, bait, and it is advised that they bring a bucket in which to put their catch.

If you're not up for fishing on Labor Day, how about eating. Big Keith of Mullins BBQ will be at the Marina the day of the tournament and will be cooking up BBQ chicken, ribs, baked beans, coleslaw, hot dogs, and naturally plenty of cold Pepsi Cola. These dinners will be available throughout the day at a very reasonable cost.

If you're interested in this tournament and would like more information, you can call the Carr Fork Lake U.S. Army Corps of Engineer's Office at (606) 642-3308.

Depth, backfield, line keeps Prestonsburg seniors optimistic

When you ask the Prestonsburg Blackcat senior football players for the reasons they are so optimistic this season, they are ready with the answers. Consider these:

- Prestonsburg returns last year's entire backfield with the exception of John Goble, who decided not to play his senior year.
- An average of 250-pounds on both sides of the line.
- More depth.
- Desire and determination.

It doesn't take long to realize that this group of seniors feels like they are on a mission.

"We have too much talent on this year's team not to be able to win," said four year starter Aaron Tucker, who will be calling the signals again this season. "In order for us to win this year, I think we need to run the ball more. We have too many good players in the backfield not to run the football."

Tucker stated that Prestonsburg will be a 70/30 percent offense. That is they will probably run the football 70 percent of the time, although that doesn't mean that Tucker cannot throw the football. He tossed for over 1,200 yards as a freshman and last season had over 1,000 yards. Tucker tries to dismiss the image that was painted of him as a freshman at quarterback.

"A lot of people put me up to be something I wasn't," explained the veteran quarterback. "We just had good players that year and they deserve all the credit, not me."

"This year we have the most talented and biggest lines we have had since I have been playing at Prestonsburg," continued Tucker.

"We have Dwayne (Garza), Jody (Cornette) and Seth (Hyden) back there this year and we will run the ball more."

Tucker added that the big offensive line of the Blackcats should open up some holes for the backfield to run through.

"We just want to give the ball to Seth, Jody and Dwayne and let them go," said Tucker.

Glen May firmly believes that the Blackcats are the team to watch this year in their district but also sees some strong competition coming from Shelby Valley and Sheldon Clark.

"We (seniors) have played together since we were in the fourth grade," said May of his teammates. "That makes about nine years that we have been together. We have an awful lot of talent on this team and we want to win our district, then a regional title and then get a state championship ring."

May just wants to do what he needs to do to make Prestonsburg a winner. He feels that the backfield for the Blackcats is loaded with some very talented players coming out of it.

Dicky Johnson echoes the same sentiments of May with regard to the players who will be returning for Prestonsburg.

"We are going to be a better team than last year," said Johnson. "Our lines are stronger as well as our backfield. We are going to be real strong in the backfield."

Johnson explained that the Blackcats just need to pull together and work hard to accomplish their goals. "We need to play as a team," he said.

Johnson views M.C. Napier as being a darkhorse in the district race this season, although he feels the Blackcats will be hard pressed by Sheldon Clark and Shelby Valley. "Whitesburg always has a good ballclub and they are going to be tough," Johnson stated.

"We just want to go to the state this year and I feel that we have as good shot as anyone to go. We have the talent and the potential."

The same feelings can be heard from one of the big linemen the Blackcats will have this year. Bill Bottoms doesn't see anyone in Class 2A that the Blackcats cannot compete with.

"That includes the Danvilles and Corbins," said Bottoms. "We're an upper class dominated team, and I feel the time has come to go with it. We have the talent to beat any other 2A schools in the state."

Bottoms feels that Prestonsburg's chances of a state title are legitimate chances and feels the Blackcats are deserving of the high ratings they have received from around the state.

"We'll find out more after we start playing," he said. "The talent is certainly here with the experience we will be returning in the backfield. We average around 250-pounds on the lines and we have never had that kind of size before since I have been here."

All the hype about this year's team doesn't bother Bottoms any. He just feels that Prestonsburg is finally getting the respect they deserve.

Bottoms has a personal goal for the coming year that gets started this Friday night.

"I would like to make all-state," he said. "I would also like to get a state championship ring."

Putting all the talent to use is going to be important for this Prestonsburg team said senior Todd Clark.

"We need to know our goals and that is to first win our district and regional titles and then head to the state," he stated. "I just want us to go out and play as hard as we can."

Clark is quick to notice the talent that also returns for the Sheldon Clark Cardinals. He feels that the Cardinals, along with Shelby Valley, will be in contention for the district title, also.

"Any team in this district could surprise you," said Clark when asked if he saw any sleepers in the district. "If they work hard and play hard they could surprise you. You just don't know."

Clark said that he would grade this year's Prestonsburg team a B+ working toward an A. "We have a great backfield coming back and a quarterback (Tucker) who knows all about the teams we have to face. Our line is big, the biggest in the four years that I have been here."

"I just want to go this year and play hard and hit hard," Clark continued to say. "We are a confident team and we want to get off to a good start."

Clark remembers the 0-4 start of last year's team and said that he and his teammates "don't want that to happen again."

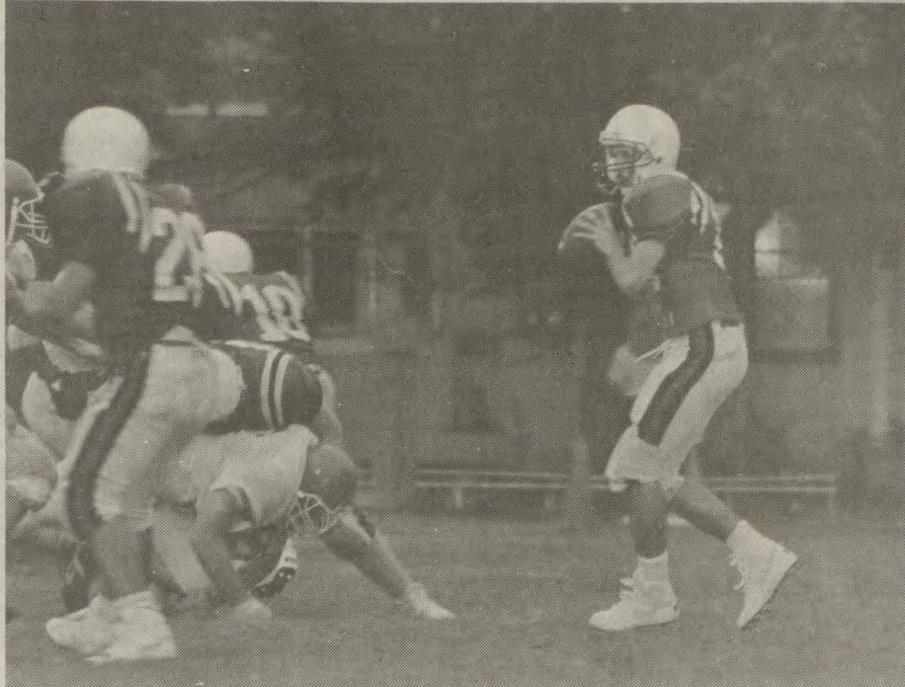

"The first four games are going to be tough games for us," said Clark, "but we have to have confidence in our ability entering the games."

To go farther than last year's team is a goal that Brian Horn believes is obtainable for the Blackcats this year. "We have bigger and better players than last year," he commented. "We have confidence we can be a better team and go farther than last year."

Last year, Prestonsburg won the district title but fell 38-30 to Mason County in a regional game.

"We have worked hard to get in shape for this season," said Horn. "Mentally we are not getting tired and we are able to pick it up when we do get that way. Our line has worked hard during practice and we are much bigger than before."

For Your Eyes Only

EYEGLASS LENSES

by Marcus Minix, FNAO

It is believed that glass was discovered by the Phoenicians when sand was fused by fires on the beaches of the Mediterranean Sea around 2000 B.C.

Roger Bacon included spectacle information as early as 1268 A.D. But it was only until the 1700's when lenses were ground on the principles known as refraction or the "bending of light."

It was the 39th trial batch of a plastic resin made at a glass company, Pittsburgh Plate Glass, for research of material now used for the lenses known as "plastic lenses".

The advantages of plastic lenses over glass is that they are half the weight of glass lenses, are more impact resistant, and are easily tinted almost any color or made ultra-violet absorptive.

Plastic lenses can be molded in the factory, or like glass lenses, ground to the curves required for the desired amount of magnification or minification by successive finer grades of abrasive while oscillating on aluminum tools of the required curvature. Calculation for the curves and thicknesses required for magnification, minification, and astigmatism, are now more accurately and quickly produced by computers. Thus eyeglass lenses, although made by traditional grinding procedures, are more accurately ground and available to patients with less delay.

For eyeglasses, a single lens focuses light on the retina; in cameras, lenses focus light on the film; as hand magnifiers, they enlarge print. Multiple combinations of magnification and minification lenses are used for microscopes, telescopes, and binoculars.

When the curves of the lens surfaces are such that the lenses are thicker in the center they magnify and are used to correct farsightedness. When the curves of the lens surfaces are such that they are thicker at the edge they minify and are used to correct nearsightedness.

Now more than half of the population in the United States own a pair of eyeglasses. Most of the eyeglasses today, bifocal, trifocal, invisible blended, and progressive, are made out of plastic.

The use of glass lenses in eyeglasses remains popular in the photochromic sensor tints which get darker in the sunlight by reaction to the sun's ultra-violet radiation. Although sensor lenses have in recent years been introduced in plastic lenses, the reaction time and color vary from the ones made out of glass.

Shelby Valley and Sheldon Clark loom as the stronger contenders with Prestonsburg for the district championship this year. "We can't worry about them," said Horn. "We just need to go out and play hard. I just want to go to the state this year. That's the goal for all of us."

Horn said that the Blackcats' defense is getting stronger with each practice and with a strong backfield and solid defensive line the Cats should roll.

Horn has memories of last year's start and wants very much to avoid that again. He recalls losing the first four games last season and, with a win over Betsy Layne in their fifth game, it was sort of a wake up call to the team.

"We started winning after we defeated Betsy Layne," said Horn, "and then we won over Magoffin County. That seemed to give us the boost we needed."

Horn also credits the Blackcats' coaching staff for keeping them in tune after a drastic start last season. He believes the team has learned from the experience and they are going to be more ready for this season.

"When we got down, our coaches would motivate us and we would rally back," explained Horn. "We have a strong coaching staff here at Prestonsburg."

Out for two weeks with a cracked wrist is Jason Crisp, who will be expected to fill a vacancy at one of the end spots. Crisp cracked his wrist in the Boyd County scrimmage game but is expected to miss only this Friday night's game.

"I'm out for two weeks," said Crisp, "and, hopefully, I will be able to play then."

Crisp, like the rest of his teammates, says that the Blackcats are a solid team that should go further than last season.

"We have a very strong quarterback in Aaron and we have our running backs returning also," he explained. "Our line is real big — the biggest that I have seen here at Prestonsburg."

Crisp said that the attitude in the Prestonsburg camp is very positive and that a positive attitude is very important for a football team.

"If you think positive, you are going to do well," said the senior end. "It helps you to keep things in perspective."

Crisp said that he hasn't forgotten the dismal start his team had last year and that this year's team has worked hard to avoid any of those pitfalls this year.

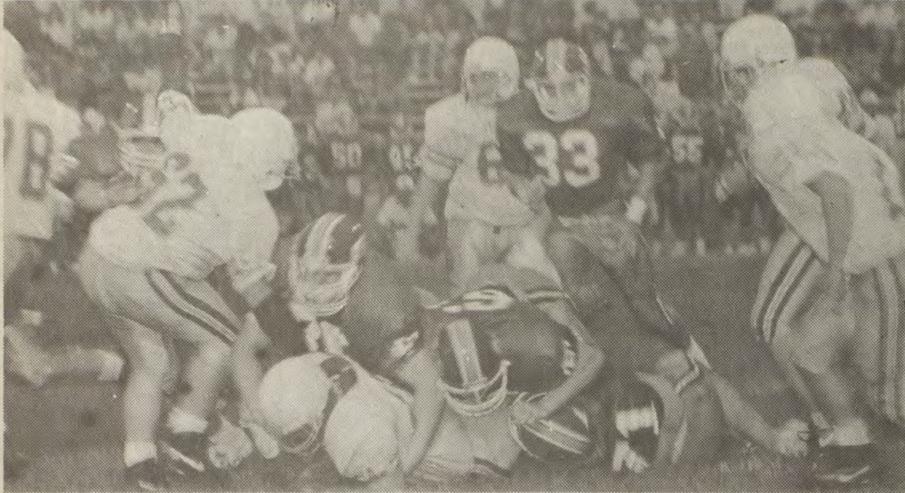

"Last year Coach (Bill) Letton sat us down and said that we were 0-4 and that was yesterday," explained Crisp, "that we had six games remaining and they were district games and that's what counted."

"We have just set last year aside. This is a new year for us and we know we are going to do better this time and not think too much of what happened last year."

Crisp said that working hard in a winter and summer program has helped this team plus that some very talented players return for the Blackcats.

"Aaron's back along with Dwayne, Seth and Jody. We have experience at all the skill positions on this team," said Crisp. "I haven't really set any personal goals this year. I just want to do what I can for the good of the team."

Needless to say, there is a lot of excitement in the Prestonsburg camp this year and not with just a group of seniors but with fans alike. 1992 could be "The Year of the Cat."

WOWK-TV's high school football show returns Aug. 28

"The Point After Show" returns for the second big season as WOWK-TV Action Sports will begin airing the program on Friday, August 28, at 11:30 p.m. following Action News Nightbeat, according to News Director Ken Selvaggi. "The Point After" is a wrap up of high school football scores, highlights and interviews from the Tri-State.

This is the second year for the program. It will be hosted by Dave Maetzold and Keith Morehouse. "Last year we covered 120 separate high school football games from all over the Tri-State. We interviewed coaches live on the set with different features every week. This year we plan to out do ourselves," Maetzold said.

"The Point After" will air on WOWK-TV, Channel 13 for 14 weeks ending November 27.

CHANGES IN EARLY WATERFOWL SEASON TO INCLUDE TEAL

During the five-day, September duck season in Kentucky, Sept. 16-20, hunters will be permitted to take teal and wood ducks, according to Lauren Schaaf, wildlife director for the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources (KDFWR).

The daily limit for the early duck season will be two teal and two wood ducks of either sex. Shooting hours for the season will be from one-half hour before sunrise to sunset local time.

"In the recent past, teal were not permitted in the harvest during the September season. However, their populations are much improved which prompted the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service to permit hunting the species during this experimental season," said Schaaf.

As always, waterfowl hunters are cautioned to positively identify the species before firing, and that steel shot is required for all waterfowl hunting statewide.

Hunters interested in information on the status of waterfowl populations and imputing their thoughts about the late duck and goose seasons may attend meetings held by KDFWR wildlife biologists at the following places and times:

August 6, 7 p.m. at the Lloyd Wildlife Management Area in Crittenden, KY, one-half mile southeast of town; August 11, 7 p.m., Room 133 of the Agricultural Exposition Center of Western Kentucky University on Hwy. 31W south of Bowling Green, KY; August 12, 7 p.m. at the Henderson Community College Student Center in Henderson, KY; and August 13, 7 p.m. at the Village Green Room at Kentucky Dam Village State Resort Park in Gilbertsville, KY.

EARLY SEASON DEER HUNTING

Early season deer hunting means archery most everywhere, but a few states have special early rifle and muzzleloader openings. Early seasons have warm weather making it enjoyable and comfortable to be afield. Early season hunting perhaps offers the first chance to roam the woods in months, and the opportunity to scout for deer sign, deer movement patterns, prime feeding and bedding areas—before the more serious and crowded hunting begins some weeks later.

Early season deer hunting presents some of its own challenges. How can you best take advantage of these initial autumn opportunities?

One way is to consider outfitting yourself in one of the new, modern camouflage patterns. For warm weather hunting it won't be expensive to purchase a lightweight shirt and pair of pants. Or perhaps you'll be interested in a lightweight coverall. Top such an outfit off with a matching cap, and you'll go a long way toward blending in with the deer's early autumn environment. Check local blaze orange requirements for these early autumn hunts.

Since deer depend so heavily on their sense of smell to keep them out of danger, go overboard to both minimize the amount of human scent you give off and maximize the scent(s) that will make deer feel comfortable, as opposed to alert.

Numerous soaps for both your body and your clothing are made to minimize or eliminate human odor. Coverup scents and high tech scents are made to fool a deer into thinking you're another whitetail. These are sold in virtually every sporting goods store.

One of the major enticements that encourages hunters into the woods during the early season is the lack of hunting pressure. Other sportsmen are into couch football, raking leaves or garage cleaning.

When you enter the deer's woods make your intrusion as silent and unobtrusive as possible. The more you move around without arousing suspicion on the quarry's part, the more you're going to learn about where deer live, how they move and where their escape routes are. Think of early season hunting as a puzzle, and you're trying, one at a time, to fit the pieces of the puzzle together—to learn the overall picture after a few weeks of scouting.

When serious rifle season starts the philosophy is different. Most hunters shoot the first buck that walks into range. Early season hunting and its philosophy are unconventional, however. There's little or no pressure to shoot.

In fact, almost the antithesis in mind-set prevails. Sportsmen don't want to shoot too soon in the early season, lest they end their deer hunting quest for the year. So the attitude is to pussyfoot around, see how far you can move without spooking even a blue jay. Successes are not graded by the length of the antler, nor the distance of a telling shot during the early season. Successes that are particularly gratifying at this time can be locating the hoof print of an outside buck...or a fleeting glimpse of a waving whitetail's flag. And, you are almost certain to spot the biggest buck you've ever seen.

There are the minor successes too—the sweet song of a thrush, the rat-a-tat-tat of a woodpecker getting a figurative headache as it hammers a tree trunk for food inside, the barely perceptible ripple of a tiny rivulet making its way to bigger things. This is early season hunting, a great time to become re-acquainted with nature, and a great way to extend your hunting season.

Bobcats fall hard to good Johns Creek team, 30-0 at Betsy Layne

SHAWN THACKER OF Johns Creek was stopped by the Betsy Layne defense in Friday night's scrimmage game at Betsy Layne. Johns Creek rolled to a 30-0 shutout of the Bobcats. The season opens for real this Friday night when Betsy Layne travels to Wheelwright. (photo by Ed Taylor)

In just two short days the Betsy Layne Bobcats football team will board their bus that will take them into Trojan country to face a very promising team in the Wheelwright Trojans. In those two days, first year coach John Derossett will have to get some kinks out of the Bobcats offense and put some strength in the defense after their outing against Johns Creek in a scrimmage game last Friday night.

The Bobcats looked impressive in the first period of play as they played the Bearcats to a scoreless stand-off. However, Johns Creek exploded for touchdowns in the final two quarters and posted a 30-0 shutout of the Bobcats.

But scrimmage games such as this one is for the purpose of finding out what a team needs to improve on and things to add or subtract before playing for good during the regular season.

After the first quarter, it was a happy Derossett who was cheering his squad on as what looked like a young team came to play. But in the second period, the Bearcats struck early to take a 8-0 lead with 11:33 left in the period (the two teams played three 15-minute quarters). Shawn Thacker scored the first TD for Johns Creek on a 4-yard run after the Bearcats marched 64-yards on nine plays. Thacker also scored the conversion play.

The Bearcats weren't finished as they crossed the goal line again in the second period for a 16-0 game. Kerby May ran the ball in with 1:31 left in the quarter from nine yards out. Jerry Thacker ran the conversion play for the 16-0 score.

Betsy Layne was only able to run 14 offensive plays in the three period game and could only manage one first down. The Bobcats only successful play came on a pass from Bobcat quarterback Bryan Combs to halfback Doug Hammonds. The play covered 16-yards, though Hammonds fumbled the football after the completion and Johns Creek recovered.

The Bearcats scored their final two touchdowns in the third period. Jerry Thacker carried the ball into the end zone from three yards out with 9:06 showing on the clock and Freddy Varney running the ball in on the conversion run. Mike Runyon trotted in from 9-yards out for the final TD at the 1:34 mark. Quarterback Hamilton Harris' pass was incomplete on the conversion attempt.

It was the second preseason loss for the Bobcats who fell to Magoffin County earlier at Wheelwright.

Betsy Layne ran 14 plays in the game with Johns Creek running 38. The Bearcats picked up 10 first downs compared to one for Betsy Layne. Betsy Layne failed on moving the ball on the ground as well as in the air when they carried the football eight times for only 17-yards. Johns Creek rushed for 156-yards on 24 carries.

In the passing department, Combs was one of six with two interceptions for just 16-yards. Harris completed four of 11 passes for 50 yards, May connected on one of two for 15 yards and Runyon tossed the football one time without a completion. Johns Creek had 65-yards passing. Harris was intercepted once.

Jason K. Taylor carried the football three times for 31-yards to lead the ground game for the Bearcats. May carried four times for 30-yards and Thacker had 20-yards rushing on three attempts.

Clyde Bush carried twice for 12-yards for Betsy Layne and Hammond had 5-yards on three carries.

Betsy Layne fumbled the football three times losing on two. Johns Creek lost the ball once on a fumble.

Betsy Layne was penalized one time for a total of 15-yards and Johns Creek was flagged for two penalties for a total of 15 yards.

Kick-off time for the game with Wheelwright is scheduled for 8 p.m. at Brackett Field.

BETSY LAYNE COACH JOHN DEROSSETT went over second half strategy with running back Doug Hammonds when the Bobcats faced Johns Creek in scrimmage play Friday night at Betsy Layne. The Bobcats dropped a 30-0 decision. (photo by Ed Taylor)

Fleming-Neon has easy time with Allen Central in 42-0 romp

It's back to the drawing board for the Allen Central Rebels football team. The Rebels stumbled hard against Fleming-Neon Friday night in the EKMC Panorama at Jenkins. The young Rebel team fell by the score of 42-0 after failing to generate any kind of offense.

One bright spot for the Rebels against Neon was the passing of sophomore quarterback Brad Blackburn. Allen Central totaled only 60 offensive yards in the game and Blackburn passed for 46 of those. The Rebel signal caller was four of nine attempts and he was intercepted once. Blackburn's longest pass was a 35-yard pass completion.

While Fleming-Neon was zero for four in the passing department, the Pirates had their running game in gear as they massed 371 offensive yards through the Rebels defense. Jeremy Gross led the Pirates attack with 133-yards but got some help from other teammates. Chris White carried the ball six times for Fleming-Neon for 61-yards rushing. Scott Caudill rushed for 41-yards on three carries.

Mike Quillen had a 75-yard touchdown run after intercepting a Blackburn pass. Freshman Doug Mullins got to show his ability when the game was locked up. Mullins carried the ball four consecutive times for gains of 4, 8, 8 and 20 yards. The latter was a touchdown run.

For Allen Central, things did not start out too well when Kevin Patton, stopped for no gain on his first carry, fumbled on the second attempt and the Pirates recovered on Allen Central's 13-yard line. On the next play, Caudill scampered the 13-yards for the touchdown. White ran the extra point for a 8-0 lead.

On the Rebels second series of downs, they managed only four yards and punted the ball over to Neon. It took only one play for the Pirates to light up the scoreboard again. Gross broke tackle and raced 65-yards for pay dirt and the PAT was off to the right in a 14-0 game.

Allen Central just couldn't run through or around the Pirates defense and had to turn the ball over again to Neon. However, some good defense on the part of Allen Central caused the Pirates to cough up the ball with the Rebels recovering on their own 35-yard line. On three attempts to carry the ball, Allen Central lost 14 yards and had to punt.

After Gross carried for 17-yards, White ran into the end zone from 22-yards out for a TD. Gross added the extra point for a 21-0 Neon lead.

After Allen Central was forced to give up the football on their next possession, the Rebels' defense stripped the ball from Neon and a fumble ensued with Allen Central once again recovering at midfield. However, the Rebels failed to move the ball as the first half ended.

Neon scored on their first possession to start the second 15 minutes of play. White moved the ball to the 2-yard line on a carry of 14-yards where Hall plunged across the goal line for a touchdown. Gross added the extra point and extended the Pirates lead to 28-0.

Allen Central picked up their first first down on a 35-yard pass completion. But the Rebels offense bogged down and they were forced to give up the ball.

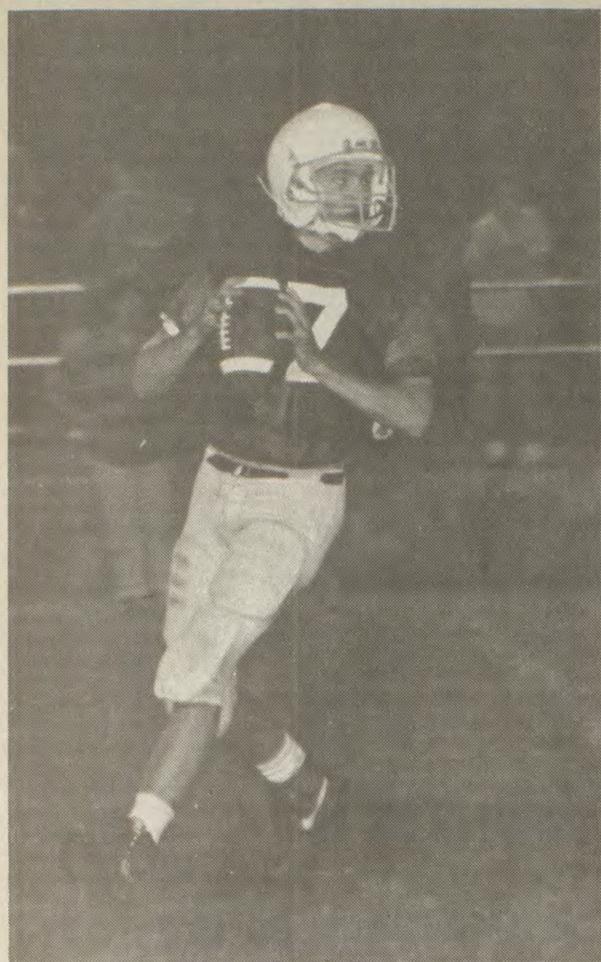

Mullins scored the final touchdown for the Pirates when Coach Jack Hall gave the freshman the ball in the closing minutes of the game. Gross kicked his fourth extra point.

"We didn't get to do some of the things that we wanted to," said Coach Hall of his team's performance. "We played well but we were going mostly with our ground game."

Allen Central will face the Elkhorn City Cougars this Friday night in their home opener for the 1992 season.

A Look At Sports

must happen are two things:

- The Braves are going to have to hit a slump. They have been fortunate they have not had any injuries to key people. Their pitching staff continues to mow down the opposition.

- The Reds are going to have to play with some "guts" and play harder, and yes, play hurt. Tim Belcher will have to rebound and quickly if the Reds are to have the quality pitching they need so bad in the final month of the season. The pitching staff that was to be challenge, at the start of the season, the Braves staff has been nothing but a picture of inconsistency all year.

Greg Swindell has been a bright spot, but he will option for the "big bucks" at the seasons end and take his talent elsewhere rather than stay with a ballclub that doesn't seem to want to win.

The Reds (trailing by 5 1/2) cannot afford to fall behind anymore than they currently are. They have five games remaining with the Braves (two away and three at home) and they cannot count on the rest of the league to help them because they haven't thus far. The Reds will have to do it themselves.

Every game for Cincinnati now is a big one. They must approach each game as though the title depends on it — and realistically it does. I know they have had nothing but an injury prone year and perhaps the reason for it is more spring training conditioning.

Now, Greg Swindell, the team's leader in wins, has a stiff back and will miss a start; Chris Hammond has a possible broken nose and Bip Roberts is pulling the same old thing he pulled at San Diego, prompting the Padres to send him packing elsewhere.

It has to be a frustrating year for the Reds after holding a six game record over the Braves to see it evaporate just before the All-Star break. But that is Cincinnati baseball. Play good until the classic and then dismantle. During their pennant winning year in '90 and even last year it was the same ordeal. In 1990 they won the thing the first two weeks of the season before trying to give it to the Dodgers down the stretch.

How about the contract that Cal Ripken signed recently? Ridiculous isn't it. $32.5 million for five years for a player who is hitting a mere .247 with 10 home runs. Ripken is definitely an outstanding baseball player but not worth over $6 million a year.

When will the owners wake up and stop the war of big bucks. It has gotten completely out of hand and there seems to be no end. I'll tell you when it will end — when they price themselves out of business.

Until, Friday, good sports everyone and be good sports. Have a great day, Paul.

Weeksbury team captures Dorton softball tournament

Nine teams gathered at the Dorton softball field in a double elimination format that saw Weeksbury waltz through the tournament en route to the title.

Weeksbury pounded Rowes of Virgie 10-0 in a mercy win behind the pitching of Gene Tackett. Ronnie Little drilled a home run in the game as Weeksbury also got a strong game from Strong Berger and Tony Hall.

In the second game, Weeksbury saw Alleghany jump out to a 12-0 lead after two innings and looked to be ready to blow the local team from the field.

"We played better after the second inning and came back," said coach Gene Tackett.

Comeback the Weeksbury team did and went on to post a 17-16 win over Alleghany. James Tackett and Chris Caldwell picked up triples in the game with Lonnie Johnson coming on in relief of Gene Tackett to secure the win.

"I couldn't get anyone out," Tackett explained. "They were hitting everything I tossed up and they were hitting me hard."

Pikeville was the next opponent for Weeksbury and the Left Beaver team mercied their opponents 16-6 in five innings. Lonnie Johnson was the hitting and pitching star for Weeksbury in hurling the complete game and picking up two hits. Wayne Allen collected three hits for Weeksbury.

Weeksbury climbed out to a big lead against Alleghany in the championship game as the two teams met for the second time. Weeksbury built a 10-3 advantage only to see Alleghany comeback. Weeksbury won the contest and the title with a 13-10 win. With two out in the fifth inning, Bill Hammond singled with two out and drove in the go ahead runs that gave Weeksbury a 12-10 lead. The winners added an insurance run in the sixth when Eugene Tackett scored. Larry Johnson had two RBIs in the championship game.

Alleghany left the bases loaded in the bottom of the seventh inning.

"It was just a great team effort on the part of all the players," Tackett said of this team's victories. "It was the first time that we have played together as a team."

Each player for the winning Weeksbury team received individual trophies for their win. Tony Hall was voted the tournament's Most Valuable Player.

Members of the championship Weeksbury team are Lonnie Johnson, Larry Johnson, Gene Tackett, Tony

B. Hall, Strong Berger, Ronnie Little, Bill Hammonds, James Tackett, Wayne Allen, Chris Caldwell, Eugene Tackett and Joey Robinson. Bat boys for the squad were Dusty and Rusty Tackett.

Many anglers have learned to tune a crankbait by adjusting the line-tie eye. Others know that "fine-tuning" is also possible.

One way to "fine-tune" is by changing lines to alter the plug's maximum depth. Let's use, for example, a plug that runs at a known depth when fished on 10-pound line. Switching to eight-pound line will increase that maximum depth a little while stepping up to 12-pound line will decrease it a little.

“I've been putting coal ashes on my garden all my life... What's the big deal?!”

The question we've heard most about our coal ash facility in Stratton Branch is: “What's the big deal?”

“What's all the fuss about?” asked one of our neighbors in our recent public meeting. “I've been putting coal ashes on my garden all my life.”

Well, for Costain Coal, doing business without jeopardizing the environment is always a big deal. The peace of mind of those living near industrial activity is always important.

That's why Costain Coal and its highly-qualified engineering consultants have gone to great lengths from the start to make sure the Stratton Branch site is safe.

Kentucky now has some of the most stringent environmental protection requirements in the nation, especially for processing high-volume, non-hazardous materials. The Stratton Branch facility is designed to exceed these requirements.

Here are a few of the many safeguards that have been designed into this facility—all this for handling a material that is scientifically recognized as non-toxic and non-hazardous:

- ✓ Pelletizing the ash—Ash in pellet form reduces dust and, when compacted, is highly resistant to the flow of water through the material.
- ✓ Restricting the materials deposited—By law and by Costain's insistence, only ash from our own coal can be returned for deposit at the site.
- ✓ Testing of returning coal ash—Costain will test returning coal ash on a regular basis to ensure that it complies with our permit requirements.
- ✓ Isolated drain systems—Two drains separated by a clay barrier will protect the water flowing in the creek from the small amounts of rainwater trickling through the ash.
- ✓ Routing of water to holding ponds—Both rainwater runoff and water seeping through the ash will be routed to ponds where it will be monitored.
- ✓ Clay lining—A layer of compacted clay will act as a tight barrier against water from the ash reaching the groundwater beyond the site. Clay not only slows the flow of water dramatically, but also traps trace elements. Clay is a self-healing material that closes up any gaps resulting from shifting soils.
- ✓ Groundwater monitoring—Costain will install more wells than required by law to monitor groundwater quality.
- ✓ Dust control—Despite the small amount of dust from ash pellets, the ash unloading area will be enclosed.

THE KING IS DEAD

The pilgrims trickle along the asphalt current to the south side of a Southern city. They arrive at their Mecca and tour the home of their fallen idol. A misty-eyed fortysomething woman, dressed in a Harley-Davidson t-shirt, kneels in front of his grave. Her husband, his matching shirt sweaty across his beer gut, leans down beside his wife and tells her that he'll always love her tender.

Elvis Presley.

The name alone brings back memories for some, makes others wince, makes some say, "Yeah, wasn't he the guy that died and was married to the chick from 'The Naked Gun'?" Myself, I've never been much of an Elvis fan, but since I was going through Memphis, I couldn't pass up going to Graceland.

Quite a collection of people there. The tourists ranged from the couple I described earlier to graying folks to preppie teens to (my personal favorite) a tour group that had traveled from Sweden to visit the King's lair. They even had shirts made up with the lyrics to "Hound Dog" in Swedish on the back.

I always sort of overlooked Elvis. I knew he was very influential, but his style of music never really appealed to me. (My rock 'n' roll interest picks up in the sixties, but that's another column.) I never realized just how extensive his popularity was. This man has sold over one billion records, according to our tour guide.

Think about that—if you lined up all the records side by side, they'd circle the earth almost three times.

And my generation thinks Guns 'n' Roses is big.

The mansion itself seemed a lot smaller than I was expecting. I was looking for something on the scale of Richie Rich's mansion. It was a big place, and very garish. Seventies art deco gone insane. Green shag on the ceiling in some rooms and mirrors everywhere.

Got to keep it in historical perspective, my English prof would say.

Still, just the sheer luxury of everything in the house (and out—I'm not going to mention the cars and jets on display) made me realize that was the man who shaped modern music.

I wish that the Elvis fascination would die, though. I've seen too many articles claiming he's still alive and people waiting for his return—making pilgrimages to Graceland in the hope the King will return to take his place on the throne.

One of my friends did an internship at Memphis Baptist hospital—the place they took him when he died. He met a woman who worked in the E.R. the night they brought Elvis in. In her words:

"Let me put this to rest. They wheeled the King in on a stretcher. He weighed 300 pounds, he was stinkin', and he was a great shade of blue. The King is dead."

But as long as people will buy postcards of a bloated Elvis in a fur jacket reading "Elvis Presley, A Touch of Class," I guess he'll never truly die.

Long Live Rock.

Later days...

Matthew is three

Matthew Lee Tackett, son of Larry and Glenna Tackett of Grethel, celebrated his third birthday on August 3. He is the grandson of Levi and Inas Tackett and Cecil and Hazel Hamilton, all of Grethel. He received gifts from family and friends.

Small World

by Aileen Hall

SALT OF THE EARTH

I had an opportunity this past week to meet some fine people for the first time, and just getting to know them made my small world a little bigger.

Dr. Deborah Floyd is president of Prestonsburg Community College, and just talking with her makes you a little more proud to be a part of this area.

She is truly a gracious lady who is both interesting and interested—interested in her surroundings and in her work of leading the college that now has a record enrollment of about 3,000 students. She is warm and friendly, and we are very fortunate to have her here.

Another fine lady I hadn't known before is Mrs. Olga Trusty of Garrett, and it pleased me to have her say she reads this column each week. She said, "I'm just a country person who stays home a lot," but we know it's people like her and Dr. Floyd who are the salt of the earth. I'm sure the friends who know them best are aware of this.

We soon learned we had some mutual friends and some common interests, and now I'll be looking forward to having our paths cross again.

THE DRIVE-THROUGH

Mrs. Trusty and I talked about a young lady who grew up in Garrett. She was Suzanne Martin, the daughter of Alice and the late Jennings Martin.

Suzanne is married to John Rasnick now and they live in Pikeville with their three children, Katie, Joseph and Will. Since she is my dear friend, I get to hear about some of the things the children do.

They are a lively bunch and young Joseph, especially, has no reluctance about expressing himself. He was about four-years-old when I ran into Suzanne one day and asked what was new with them.

She said she had needed to run an errand to the bank and invited Joseph to go along. She decided to use the drive-through and of course he was familiar with this facility. At least he thought he was.

He waited until his mother completed her transaction, then he leaned over and called out, "And I would like a hamburger and French fries!"

INTERRUPTION

Another enterprising young man is Evan Justice, also of Pikeville, who would be about twelve now. But when he was much younger and in kindergarten he committed some indiscretion that put his mother, Martha, in a foul mood.

Evan was starting to eat an apple and had taken about two bites when his mother landed into him with the old "how many times have I told you?" routine.

Evan stood with his mouth open and the apple in his hand while she went on and on about her displeasure and what she expected.

Finally she slowed down to take another approach when he interrupted her. "Do you mind," he asked, "if I eat my apple—before it rots?"

Dancing feet clog to the Achy Breaky beat

Indiana who are interested in participating.

Noted clogging instructor Charlie Burns, from Richmond, will conduct the workshops. Burns holds workshops annually at the Sands in Las Vegas, in Florida and Canada. In addition to Achy Breaky Heart, Burns will teach dance steps to two of his most famous clogging routines, Shakin' and Bonanza.

Sparks hopes to make the jamboree an annual event to help preserve mountain culture. Sparks said he fears that some of the old-time calls, such as Chase the Rabbit, will be lost. In order to keep those traditions alive, more people need to get involved, Sparks said.

Clogging is also a lot of fun and is family-oriented, according to the Sparks family. Margie Sparks, Jim's wife and clogging partner, said that she enjoys spending the extra time with her husband and daughter, Tammy, who got her family interested in clogging.

"Clogging has helped us," said Tammy. "We didn't spend a lot of time together. They were bowling or I was out, but now we spend a lot of time together."

Clogging is also a way to relieve stress, said Jim Sparks, and builds energy levels. It's also a great way to exercise and no one is too large to participate, Sparks said. "No one can say I'm too big," he said. "I'm not a small fellow."

Clogging developed through the years from traditional Irish folk dances, French, and Indian dances, said Sparks. Styles of clogging range from the old flat-foot style to Buck clogging, a fast-paced clogging that keeps the clogger on his toes.

Eight basic steps: double toe, brush, drag step, heel, slide, rock step, stomp and kick are taught to beginners. Then the steps are choreographed to create movements, such as Michael's, a beautiful combination of kicks and steps.

A beginners workshop is tentatively planned for Saturday morning if enough interest is shown, Sparks said. Those interested in attending a beginners workshop, or for more information about attending the event should call him at 886-1396 or 886-8612.

Members of the Good-Time Cloggers, in addition to Sparks and his family, include Betty, Pete and 11-year-old Joe Harless, Doris Fannin, Carol Morrison, Jerry Jones and Betty Bush.

The Good-Time Cloggers have performed at Natural Bridge, Breaks, and with the Kentucky Opry. They have also performed during the Apple Festival, Jenny Wiley Festival, Festival of FACES and Red White and Blue Day, and are making plans to appear at the Renfro Valley Barn Dance.

Wedding anniversary

Rev. Henry and America Crider of Endicott celebrated their 64th wedding anniversary on Saturday, August 15, at their home. Rev. Crider had preached the word of God for 57 years. He is an ordained minister in the Free Will Baptist Church. The couple have five children, Millard Crider, Lillian Blackburn, Erwin Crider, Margie Maynard and Hattie Maynard. They have a total of 12 grandchildren and nine great-grandchildren.

Poison Oak

by Clyde Pack

IT WORKED FOR MY OLD GRANNY

A big wad of chewing tobacco can ease the pain of minor wounds.

Chew honey comb to get rid of nasal allergies and hay fever.

Silly? Mere superstition? Don't be so sure.

An article in this month's McCall's magazine might just add a little credence to the validity of many such old-time cures that we've been dispensing through our Poison Oak column and cartoon for the past several years.

While we've been approaching this subject in fun and as being more of a curiosity than anything else, Catherine Clifford, a New York City freelance writer, in an article entitled, "Home Remedies Even Doctors Use," has taken the subject a little more seriously.

While we've relied on everyday, ordinary folks to provide us with old home remedies—many of which have been handed down from generation to generation with no apparent reason as to why they work—she, on the other hand, has taken a more direct approach and consulted several real-life doctors from across the country.

Take warts, for instance. One of our readers told us that these nasty little growths can be removed by bathing them with castor oil on a regular basis. Another, more complicated, suggestion was that they'd go away if you'd scratch them with a gravel, wrap the gravel in a white handkerchief and throw the handkerchief away. The contention being here that whoever found the handkerchief would get the warts.

According to Clifford, a Cleveland doctor told her that warts will go away if you'll apply four layers of adhesive tape on them, leave it for six and a half days, give it a half day off, then do it again. The doctor said it might take from two to ten weeks for this to work, however.

Over the years, some of our readers have suggested that itch, like from a rash or chicken pox or poison ivy, can be cured by rubbing it with such things as milkweed or a banana peel or white shoe polish or the saliva from a suckling calf. A Los Angeles pediatrician told Clifford that the same affect can be achieved by simply putting baking soda in your bath water.

Yet another California doctor recommends baking soda mixed with water into a paste for insect bites and bee stings.

We've received letters from folks who've suggested that these same pesky little afflictions can be relieved if you'll apply either a slice of onion, some clear fingernail polish, some meat tenderizer, or secure a Tums or Rolaid to the affected area.

Anyway, I guess it's safe to say that home remedies are not just limited to our rural, so-called, backwoods environment.

So, whether it's an educated, highly-trained doctor recommending eating garlic for a sore throat, or some retired coal miner's wife suggesting the juice from a baked onion as a remedy for curing the croup, apparently, for whatever reason, some of these old-time cures do actually work. The only difference, of course, is that if a doctor can identify your health insurance company, he may also be able to identify the medicinal properties of some of the ingredients in these old home remedies. Our housewife, on the other hand, can only state: "It worked for my old granny and it'll surely work for me."

Clifford's article was accompanied with a sort of warning label, though, and suggested that if side effects occurred from any of these natural substances, one should discontinue their use immediately.

Of course, there are some of these old-time cures from which I personally have no fear of side effects because I wouldn't touch them with a ten foot pole, regardless of who prescribed them. I mean, would you drink tea made from sheep manure just because you had a bad case of measles?

THANKS TO SOMEONE IN DETROIT...

Someone in Detroit, Michigan, sent me a page of the July 9 Detroit News.

by Kim Frasure

On this particular page was an article entitled, "An Appalachian Odyssey," by Carrie Dowling.

An interesting article it was—I just wish whoever sent it would've included their name.

However, it seems that during the World War II years about 300,000 Appalachian whites headed north in search of what one gentleman conceived as a "better way of living," after crawling out of a mine.

This individual hooked up with relatives and found work in Ypsilanti, Michigan, at the Ford Motor Company.

The article described Appalachians receiving "fresh attention" from scholars who consider the Appalachian an "invisible minority," distinct from the mainstream but unattached to any other ethnic group—and often stereotyped.

I can relate to that statement, how about you guys?

It seems there is a survey taking place in Detroit, as well as other cities, to find out if Appalachian's are victims of discrimination. Wow, that's exactly what's been happening to us, "discrimination."

I just never realized it until now. I actually thought those who chose to undermine us Appalachians were simply cruel hearted individuals trying to make themselves look better—so they in turn make fun and downgrade Eastern Kentuckians.

I honestly never once considered it discrimination, till now.

It also seems a movie entitled, "Deliverance" has indeed had a powerful effect on how some people perceive us.

Myself, I've never seen this movie and after reading the article I can't say that I want to either. This movie seems to introduce folks as not only "dumb and lazy" but "murderous and inbred," too.

Michael Maloney of the Urban Appalachian Council, which is based in Cincinnati, and his organization, "hopes to generate wider awareness of mountain people as worthy of respect and fair treatment, not necessarily federal recognition as a minority," Dowling wrote.

Way to go, Maloney! I've never considered us an ethnic group, actually, I've never given the consideration a thought.

But according to Maloney, Appalachians are indeed considered an ethnic group. "The heart of the ethnic claim is that Appalachians have a distinct heritage—rooted in English, Scottish and Irish traditions—that survives in music, folk dances and dialect."

Thank you, Detroit and thank you Michael Maloney. May your efforts in generating an awareness of "Mountain People" as worthy of respect and fair treatment be an absolute success.

Till next week.

Bishop and Mrs. Roy C. Clark visit with relatives here

Miss Maurine Mayo had as her houseguests recently, Bishop and Mrs. Roy C. Clark of Nashville, Tennessee, who also spent some time while here visiting with other relatives and friends.

Jenny Wiley Chapter 3528 AARP holds regular dinner-meeting

Members of Jenny Wiley Chapter 3528 AARP held their regular monthly dinner-meeting on Friday evening, August 21, beginning at 5:30, at the cafeteria of the Highlands Regional Medical Center. Mrs. Gladys Allen, president, presided.

The devotions were given by Orville Cooley. Due to the absence of Mrs. Shirley Callihan, secretary, this report was postponed until the September meeting. James E. Goble, treasurer, gave the financial report.

"Happy Birthday" was sung to the club's president, Mrs. Allen.

Mrs. Allen introduced Bill Music, president and several members of the Paintsville AARP Chapter, and asked that they introduce themselves to the group.

The local president presented Cindy Scott, one of the dietitians at HRMC, who gave an in-depth discussion on food and its relation to diabetes. She talked of the various types of this disease, and gave many worthwhile suggestions regarding prevention and treatment. Following her emphasis on the importance of diet to diabetes, Mrs. Otela Smiley was prompted to add, "In other words, as the saying goes, 'We are what we eat.'" The speaker agreed with Mrs. Smiley's statement.

The president presented a "Certificate of Appreciation" to Jack Freed, who led the movement to establish the local AARP and along with several other leaders, has contributed to its remarkable success.

Present for this event were Gladys Allen, Jack Freed, James E. Goble, Marie Goble, Orville Colley, Sina Blanton, Flem Blanton, Emma Jean Music, Bill D. Music, Doug Lawson, Cleda Lawson, Arnold Crider, Roberta Crider, Tilden Collins, Goldie M. Collins, Elizabeth Evans, Hager White, Otela Smiley, Herbert Spradlin, James D. Fitzpatrick, Lucy C. Regan, Fannie Runnels, Margaret Ackerman, Mabel Donahoe, Anna Lee Van Hoose, Lola Slone, Jean McLaughlin, James Elam, Amanda Hall, Pearl Robertson, Pauline Foley, Bill Foley, Cindy Scott and Docia Woods.

The next dinner-meeting of this group will be on Friday, September 18, at 5:30 p.m. at this location and members and those who may wish to become members are urged by Mrs. Allen, president, to attend.

Prestonsburg Masons attend Jackson Lodge

Several members of Prestonsburg's Zebulon Masonic Lodge No. 273 attended the meeting of Breathitt Lodge No. 649 at Jackson, on Saturday evening.

Those attending were Kevin H. Mullins, master; James E. Goble, secretary; Donald A. Willis, junior deacon; and Toufic A. Saad, Bill K. Risner and Howard Q. Bacon.

Mrs. Vivian Fraley has family with her here recently

Mrs. Vivian Fraley had as her houseguests here during the past weekend, her brothers and sisters and members of their families.

Enjoying this family get-together were her sisters, Eloise Frady, and her husband, Dr. Claude Frady, of Bowling Green, and her sister, Ruth Burke, of Frankfort; her brothers, James Edward Hall, and his wife, Ruth of Warsaw, Indiana, and Howard Hall and his wife, Mildred, of Paintsville.

The group was entertained to breakfast and lunch at the home of Mrs. Fraley, after which they celebrated the birthday of her sister, Mrs. Eloise Frady. A period of family fellowship and reminiscing was enjoyed, and gifts were presented the birthday honoree.

The families left for their respective homes on Sunday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Wallace now at their home here

The many relatives and friends of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wallace will be glad to know that they are now at their home on Riverside Drive, following a stay of nearly two weeks in Lexington where Mr. Wallace underwent major surgery at St. Joseph Hospital.

With them during the day of his surgery were their pastor, Rev. Russ Holland of the First United Methodist Church; their daughter, Mrs. Zella Faye Wells of Paintsville; their son, Dr. Gabriel Wallace of Huntsville; and family friends, Mesdames Mabel Jean LeMaster and Hope Whitten, both of Prestonsburg.

Many friends and relatives visited with them during their stay there and since their return home.

Mr. Wallace's condition is now showing improvement. Mrs. Wallace, an RN, has been with him throughout this time.

Brennan Donahoe's name should be added

The name of Brennan Donahoe, of Lexington, should be added to the list of family members who recently visited Mrs. Mabel Donahoe here.

HAPPY (BELATED) BIRTHDAY TO MEDICARE: The bill establishing the Medicare system was signed into law by President Lyndon B. Johnson on July 30, 1965. According to Robert M. Ball, one of the people who helped to bring the landmark legislation about, the idea was first raised in Harry Truman's administration, but voted down several times in Congress.

John F. Kennedy worked for a bill to protect older Americans in need of medical care. But he was assassinated before it could happen. President Johnson was determined to fulfill Kennedy's promise. Previously one of the Senate's most powerful leaders, he used his influence to persuade Congressional leaders to put pressure on their members to pass the bill. To make sure Congress got the message, LBJ appealed to the country, reminding people that this bill was part of Kennedy's legacy to them. Americans rallied to the cause—and Congress rallied to their constituents. (An interesting sidebar: Much of the early resistance came from the insurance companies, hospitals, and the American Medical Association. Ronald Reagan did radio spots for the AMA—whose head, at the time, was Dr. Davis, Nancy Reagan's stepfather.) Robert M. Ball says, "The American Nurses Association moved over and supported Medicare. The nurses were the only health professionals that did."

MEDICAID AND MALPRACTICE: A recent article in Advances, the newsletter of the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation, cited two reasons doctors tend to shy away from taking on Medicaid patients. The first is purely economic: Medicaid reimbursements are often lower than the fees the doctors would get otherwise.

The second deals with a perception among physicians that people on Medicaid tend to sue more often than other patients. While no one can argue the facts about the first statement regarding Medicaid payments, research has shown the second cause is unfounded; that malpractice suits brought by Medicaid patients were proportionate to claims brought by other patients.

ADULT "KIDS" COMING HOME:

I still get letters from many of you whose grown children have moved back home, largely because they've lost jobs in the current economic climate. Most of you say the readjustment isn't easy, especially in establishing house rules with adult children. But, based on your experiences, you also say it's better to lay down those rules and have them respected from the start. As one writer put it, "I think my daughter was secretly pleased to have some kind of structure to deal with (since) her life has come so unglued in recent years."

Nothing could be better than a cold, creamy milk shake for an after-school snack or a mid-afternoon break—especially if it's chocolate! Chocolate lovers come in all ages, so these shake recipes will be popular with young and old alike.

Chocolate milk is the basic ingredient with fruit, flavorings and ice cream or sherbet added. A quick whirl in the blender makes them ready to serve in a jiff. Garnishes such as whipped cream, chocolate curls, crushed candy or spices add visual and taste appeal.

Mom is sure to find such a treat appealing during her break from gardening or household chores. And when the children rush home from school with a snack on their mind, chocolate shakes are sure to please.

Use the extra space in the refrigerator or freezer to keep a few tall glasses or cups stored. This way you will always have a chilled glass for keeping the shake cold longer on hot afternoons. Keep a box of butter cookies on hand—they're perfect with chocolate shakes as well.

BANANA SPLIT MILK SHAKE

makes 4 1/2 cups

- 2 medium-size ripe bananas
- 2 cups cold chocolate milk
- 1 quart vanilla ice cream
- Whipped cream
- Banana slices
- Maraschino cherries

Place banana, chocolate milk, and 1 pint of the ice cream, cut into cubes, in blender container; cover. Blend until smooth and frothy. Pour into 4 chilled 12-ounce glasses. Scoop remaining 1 pint ice cream into glasses. Garnish with whipped cream and a maraschino cherry.

CHOCOLATE-PEPPERMINT MILK COOLER

makes 4 1/2 cups

- 3 cups cold chocolate milk

- 1/2 teaspoon peppermint extract
- 1 quart vanilla ice cream

Crushed peppermint stick candy

Place chocolate milk, extract and 1 pint of the ice cream, cut in cubes, in blender container; cover. Blend until smooth and frothy. Pour into 4 chilled 12-ounce glasses. Top each drink with a scoop of remaining ice cream. Sprinkle with crushed candy.

DOUBLE-CHOCOLATE MILK SHAKE

makes 5 1/2 cups

- 1 quart chocolate milk
- 1 pint chocolate ice cream, softened

Peppermint, strawberry or coffee ice cream

Place chocolate milk and chocolate ice cream in blender container. Cover. Blend until smooth. Pour into 5 or 6 chilled tall glasses. Top each with one or two scoops of ice cream, as desired.

CHOCOLATE ORANGE MILK SHAKE

makes 4 1/2 cups

- 3 cups cold chocolate milk
- 2 pints orange sherbet
- 1/2 cup whipping cream, whipped

Cinnamon

Place chocolate milk and 1 pint of sherbet in blender container; cover. Blend until smooth and frothy. Pour into 4 chilled 12-ounce glasses. Top each drink with a scoop of remaining sherbet and a dollop of whipped cream. Sprinkle with cinnamon.

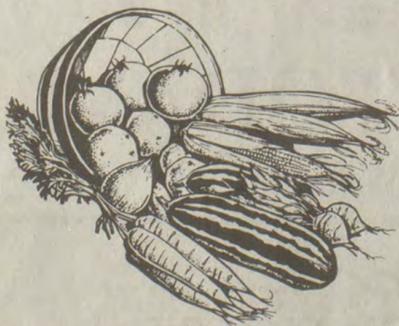

CHOCOLATE COOKIE MIX

Approximately 11 cups.

- 4 c sifted all-purpose flour
- 4 c granulated sugar
- 1 1/3 c Hershey's Cocoa
- 2 teaspoons baking powder
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 1/2 cups butter or margarine

Combine thoroughly flour, sugar, cocoa, baking powder, and salt in a large bowl (an electric mixer on slow speed can be used for mixing.) Add butter or margarine; cut in with pastry blender or with hands until mixture resembles coarse corn meal. Store in an airtight container in refrigerator.

Note: After refrigeration, measure amount of mix needed; bring to room temperature for easier blending.

Fulton County Schools have discovered a cure for absenteeism.

Family Ties Resource Center Health Care Coordinator Joyce Smith works with the kids and parents of Fulton County every day, to resolve problems that might be getting in the way of a child's learning. She performs initial screenings for eye problems or disease, puts parents in touch with agencies and community organizations who can help provide needed services, or simply administers a little TLC.

By providing these on-site services, kids can be treated quickly, then sent back to class. The Family Ties Resource Center stands for a simple truth: kids learn better when they're in better shape to learn.

DON'T EAT WILD MUSHROOMS — NO IFS, ANDS, OR BUTS

Wild mushrooms have abounded this summer because of the cool, wet weather. But if you're tempted to eat a wild mushroom, don't; you might get more than you bargained for, according to a plant pathologist at the University of Kentucky.

"There is no good rule of thumb to distinguish between a poisonous and non-poisonous mushroom," said Paul Vincelli, extension specialist with the UK College of Agriculture. "It is hard to tell the difference between the two because they look so much alike. To determine if a wild mushroom is safe to eat, you have to identify it correctly to the species level, and that requires mycological training."

"Even if you've eaten wild mushrooms in the past with no problems, it doesn't mean you can continue without eventually consuming poisonous ones."

Vincelli said eating a poisonous wild mushroom can cause symptoms ranging from an upset stomach to permanent liver, heart or kidney damage, perhaps death. "Some poisonous wild mushrooms are so potent that near fatal liver damage already has occurred by the time a person realizes something is wrong," he said.

"Some people believe wild mushrooms taste better," Vincelli added. "But many of them have a flat flavor — like cardboard."

Some of the cultivated mushrooms, like shiitake, that you buy at the grocery store rival just about any wild mushroom for flavor."

When it comes to not eating wild mushrooms, Vincelli practices what he preaches. "My grandmother was a great Italian cook," he said. "But I never took a bite of her fried wild mushrooms. It just wasn't worth the risk."

Do pot-bellied pigs raise a stink?

DEAR BRUCE: I have a pot-bellied pig and wanted to build a pen for it. When I started to build it in the backyard, my neighbor immediately called the board of health, which told me there are community laws against keeping farm animals within city limits.

As you know, a pot-bellied pig is not a farm animal, it's a pet. They are cleaner than a lot of dogs and cats. When I took the matter further, I was told that while there was some controversy as to the true description of a pot-bellied pig, our community had yet to act on it, and until they did, the pigs were out.

I still have the pig, but I keep it in the house. There's not much they can do about that, or so it seems. But I do want to make a run for her. What do you suggest? — Mid-Western Pig Lover

SMART MONEY

BRUCE WILLIAMS

DEAR READER: The pot-bellied pig thing has really caused a huge amount of controversy around the country. There are those who say a pig is a pig and they belong on farms. And there are those like yourself, who believe the pigs to be as much of a house pet as a dog or a cat.

Some communities have recognized this by changing their ordinances, and that's probably where you'll have to begin. Talk to your community council and ask them to consider passing an ordinance allowing pot-bellied pigs within the town limits. But until they do, I think your neighbor has the upper hand and there will be no pig run in your backyard.

A year or so ago, I did a contest on my radio program about pot-bellied pigs, with Dick McDonald, the cofounder of the McDonald's chain, as the judge of the pigs. We all had a lot of fun and I was overwhelmed with the number of people, like yourself who think pot-bellied pigs are way ahead of dogs and cats.

DEAR BRUCE: There is a tract of land of approximately 30 acres for sale in an area that I have been familiar with for many years. I believe that it is ripe for development.

I determined that I can get about 60 building lots out of this (taking into account property for streets, a small park, cul de sacs and a site for a school), which the small community involved, has insisted upon. All my friends have said I'm crazy. What do you think?—A.B., Chatanooga, Tenn.

DEAR A.B.: I'm not prepared to say you're crazy, but I do think right now, you're treading where angels fear to do the fox-trot.

Right now, the real estate market at best, is tenuous. Many, many developers have been forced to have auction sales and sell properties at a fraction of what they had hoped to receive. Lenders are extremely wary of loaning money to developers who are building homes on speculation.

If you told me that this property was available, and that you were in a position to hang on for anywhere from 10 to 15 years (with no impact on your standard of living or business enterprises), I might say this could make an interesting speculation.

Overall, I would be inclined to walk the other way if you are considering getting into the development business just now, unless there was something particularly alluring about this property, such as a piece of ocean property that still can be built upon. Even there, I think I would work up an ulcer.

In short, this is a very difficult time, and only the highly skilled and well-financed professionals have a reasonable chance of success.

Check Your Home

by Ray F. Cawood

Q: We have double-hung windows in a home we bought in 1971. I see that more efficient windows are on the market. What should I check or consider in a decision to replace them?

A: The first thing to check is whether your windows are right. Close and latch the window, then try to shake it. If it is loose, the window may waste energy (heat in winter, coolness in summer) and make the house more uncomfortable.

Insulating glass — several layers — helps.

Check any manufacturer claims and warranties for a window. Make sure the manufacturer will approve the installation.

Criterion Engineers writes in its "Your Home" newsletter: "When choosing a window, we recommend sticking to the basics. Look for a window that is well constructed, tight and comprised of time-proven components. High-tech windows, poorly assembled and installed will usually perform worse than a more basic, quality-manufactured, time-proven window."

Ray F. Cawood is a civil and structural engineer. He can answer general-interest questions in his column but cannot make personal replies. Send your questions to him at Cawood-Criterion Engineers, P.O. Box 1560, Harlan, Ky. 40831.

People, Places and Thingsby Beth Jones

MILLER'S BARBER SHOP

Not only is Miller's Barber Shop the only place for a man to get his hair cut in McDowell, it is also a place to hear all the latest gossip. For some, the barber shop is a place to sit around and wait for the mail to be put up.

Phillip Miller is the operator of Miller's Barber Shop. Miller's career began on a farm in Indiana. It was a long way from town, so he began to cut his family's hair. Pretty soon, cousins from all around were coming to have their hair cut, as well.

After working in a toy factory in Indiana, Miller decided to become a licensed barber. He went to stay with his uncle and enrolled in Ashland Barber College. "I always liked to work with hair, so it just seemed like a good idea," he said.

Upon graduation, he began cutting hair in Indiana. This was during the winter of 1967. After working there for six months, he decided to move back to the hills of Kentucky and began working for Eric Hayes at Wheelwright. A year later, he decided to open his own shop. He rented a space in the Jerry Fonce Howell building at Price. Three years later, he moved a short distance down the road to a shop he stayed in for seven years.

In '76, Miller put in his own barber shop at McDowell. Goble Martin built it for him. He was and still is the only barber in town. Last year, Phillip moved to a new shop just behind his old one. He had to move; he needed the space.

The new shop seats twelve people. Many times, however, there are a few men or boys standing. "I look for them to be lined up out the door the Saturday before school starts," Miller said. "That's what happened last year."

Phillip has just about the cheapest prices around. He only charges $4 per cut. Miller remarked that he could charge more and probably should, but there are many people who just can't afford to pay more for a haircut. He will also travel to invalid's homes and to the hospital to give cuts. Sometimes, he is even called to the funeral home to give a last trim. For all this work, beyond the call of duty, he doesn't charge one penny extra.

Not only does he just cut the hair of McDowell's males, he has customers that travel from all around. Some come from as far away as Pike, Knott, and Johnson counties. Some say they travel so far because the others cost too much; others can't find a barber to suit them. Others just liked the friendliness of Miller's Barber Shop.

Just this March, Miller began another business. In Drift (where he lives), he opened Miller's Corner Store. "The people in Drift didn't have anything," he said. "The older people had to travel to McDowell or Martin just to get a loaf of bread. I thought it would help them and me both."

Probably Miller's greatest asset is that he believes he should treat everyone as he wants to be treated.

Perhaps that is Phillip Miller's key to success. He truly appreciates all the business local customers give him and it really seems that the public appreciates him, too.

On The House

Managing Your Biggest Investment

by Dorothy Harris

A FEW EASY WAYS TO TAKE THE HEADACHE OUT OF MOVING

Moving from one house to another is always a challenge, but it doesn't have to be a nightmare. Here are some simple tips on how to get it done with minimal stress and strain.

•Look at all the alternatives: hiring a moving company, for example, versus renting a truck and doing it yourself. Whichever alternative makes most sense for you, get bids from more than one vendor.

•A few days before the moving company is scheduled to arrive or you're supposed to pick up your rental truck, call to confirm that everything is on track to happen when it's supposed to.

•Prepare your change of address cards in advance and send them out as soon as it's appropriate to do so. The post office, utilities, companies and people you do business with, city hall, friends, relatives—all should be notified of your move.

Lowe's new store to hire 40-50 employees

Lowe's Companies, Inc. will hire 40-50 additional employees to staff their new super store opening soon in Mayo Plaza in Paintsville. Lowe's Companies Inc. operates 307 stores in 19 states.

The new super store will have 50,000 square feet of space which is seven times larger than the existing store at Paintsville. Lowe's customers will be able to browse well laid out self-serve aisles for products, select those items they want, place them in a convenient shopping cart and pass through a quick checkout to pay for them. "Lowe's employees will still be available to offer assistance and advice to our customers," according to Michael L. Belcher, store manager. A great assortment of home improvement items, home decor products, appliances, carpet and home entertainment products will be available. Also a new item will be a complete live nursery department, a first for this area of Eastern Kentucky.

According to Deborah Allen, field office manager, Department for Employment Services, Prestonsburg, job applications will be taken September 1-2, from 8:30 a.m.-3 p.m., at the Paintsville Community Center on Preston Street. It is the policy of Lowe's to provide a safe and healthful environment for employees and customers. A pre-employment drug screen will be administered to all qualified applicants.

"All of our employees are really excited about opening this new super store and we look forward to serving our many customers in Eastern Kentucky," declared Michael Belcher, store manager.

•Get an early start on packing by concentrating on seldom-used items first. Each box should have its contents and the room those contents belong in written on it clearly.

•Take a hard look at the things that you seldom or never use and throw away as many of them as you can. The more you throw away, the less you'll have to move. Every item you throw away is one less item to clutter up your new home.

•Use your extra towels and linens to protect breakables. When your supply of these things is exhausted, crumpled newspapers make an excellent substitute. Write "Fragile" on all appropriate boxes.

•Put your valuables (such as jewelry) and important documents (birth certificates, car titles, etc.) aside in some safe place where they won't be misplaced.

•When the house is empty, go back for a thorough final inspection. Check closets, crawl spaces, basement, attic, out-of-the-way nooks and crannies of all kinds. Have a second person make the same inspection separately.

•Clean your new home thoroughly before moving in (it's infinitely easier that way!)

•Decide in advance where you want the heavy furniture. Changing your mind after the movers have departed is no fun—especially for your back!

•Locate all fuses, circuit breakers, and water/gas and electrical valves. Record the meter reading and check the smoke detectors.

•List the phone numbers of the local police and fire stations, doctors, nearby hospitals, etc. Put a copy of your list near each phone.

Above all, plan, plan, plan, and plan some more. Make a schedule you can live with, and then stick to it. Preparation and forethought will help you to keep everything under control and finish the move with your sanity and your nervous system intact.

NOTICE OF INTENDED PASSAGE AND SUMMARY OF ORDINANCE #92-001

Notice is hereby given that the Fiscal Court of Floyd County, Kentucky, at a meeting held at 10:00 A.M., E.S.T., on August 21, 1992, at the regular meeting place of the Fiscal Court at the Courthouse Annex in Prestonsburg, Kentucky, considered and gave first reading to Ordinance #92-001 relating to the execution of an Interlocal Cooperation Agreement with the City of Prestonsburg, the creation of the Prestonsburg-Floyd County Public Properties Corporation, and the creation of The Mountain Entertainments Commission; and such Ordinance will be given its second reading, and will be considered for final passage and enactment, at 5:00 P.M., E.S.T., on August 31, 1992.

The Ordinance authorizes the execution of an Interlocal Cooperation Agreement with the City of Prestonsburg for the purpose of establishing The Mountain Entertainments Commission to operate facilities in Floyd County and the creation of Prestonsburg-Floyd County Public Properties Corporation to issue and sell its revenue bonds, the proceeds of which will be applied to pay the costs of the acquisition, construction and equipping of such facilities and related parking areas.

The full text of the Ordinance is on file in the office of the undersigned Fiscal Court Clerk in the Floyd County Courthouse in Prestonsburg, Kentucky, where it is available for inspection.

COMMONWEALTH OF KENTUCKY AUDITOR OF PUBLIC ACCOUNTS

144 CAPITOL ANNEX
FRANKFORT 40601

A. B. CHANDLER III

To the People of Kentucky
Honorable Brereton C. Jones, Governor
Honorable John M. Stumbo, County Judge/Executive
Members of the Floyd County Fiscal Court

Independent Auditor's Report

We have audited the statement of receipts, disbursements, and excess fees of the County Clerk of Floyd County, Kentucky, for the year ended December 31, 1991. This financial statement is the responsibility of the County Clerk. Our responsibility is to express an opinion on this financial statement based on our audit.

We conducted our audit in accordance with generally accepted government auditing standards and the Audit Guide for County Fee Officials issued by the Auditor of Public Accounts, Commonwealth of Kentucky. These standards require that we plan and perform the audit to obtain reasonable assurance about whether the financial statement is free of material misstatement. An audit includes examining, on a test basis, evidence supporting the amounts and disclosures in the financial statement. An audit also includes assessing the accounting principles used and significant estimates made by management, as well as evaluating the overall financial statement presentation. We believe that our audit provides a reasonable basis for our opinion.

The County Clerk is required to prepare her financial statement on a prescribed basis of accounting that demonstrates compliance with the cash basis and laws of Kentucky, which is a comprehensive basis of accounting other than generally accepted accounting principles.

In our opinion, the accompanying financial statement referred to above presents fairly, in all material respects, the receipts, disbursements, and excess fees of the County Clerk for the year ended December 31, 1991, in conformity with the basis of accounting described above.

As required by Government Auditing Standards, we have reported on the Floyd County Clerk's statement of receipts, disbursements, and excess fees for the year ended December 31, 1991, her internal control structure, and compliance with laws and regulations.

Respectfully submitted,

A. B. Chandler III

AFFORDABLE HOUSING

Starts with Jim Walter Homes

INTRODUCING OUR NEWEST MODEL

NO MONEY DOWN
Instant Fixed-Rate Financing
No "Points" or Closing Costs

Jim Walter began building AFFORDABLE HOUSING in 1946. Nothing has changed. What's more, we still offer NO MONEY DOWN to qualified property owners... and 10% A.P.R. FIXED-RATE financing to ensure that your payment remains the same throughout the term of the mortgage.

JIM WALTER HOMES builds from the ground up, to almost any stage of completion. We'll build the shell home, completely finished outside, unfinished inside, to one that is 90% complete. You tell us where to stop, then finish all or part of the inside yourself to save money.

So, if you want to build on your property, we'll start right away. Financing approval, in most cases, is within 48 hours instead of days or weeks required by many others. And, when Jim Walter builds and finances for you, forget about the additional payment of points and closing costs.

CAMBRIDGE
3 Bedrooms • 2 Baths
1,737 Sq. Ft.

Over 30 Models
2 to 4 Bedrooms • 1, 2 & 2 1/2 Baths
1 & 2 Story Models

*In addition to offering convenient financing and lowest possible prices on the homes we build, we offer a COMPLETION ALLOWANCE of up to $2,000 toward the purchase of items of permanent improvement such as well, floor covering, septic system, etc. A Jim Walter representative will gladly give you details.

For cash payment, either down payment or total price, made at the time you agree to purchase one of our homes, we'll offer you an additional credit of 15% of the amount paid.

These offers may be withdrawn without notice.

Cambridge floor plan subject to minor changes. Artwork depicts actual home and may include additional and personal items provided by the customer and/or options not part of our standard offering. Shrubs and landscaping have been added. © Jim Walter Homes, Inc., 1992. Copyright strictly enforced.

Railroading Into Pennsylvania's Past

All aboard...for a journey into yesteryear on one of the more than 20 old-time railroads located across Pennsylvania.

The Strasburg (PA) Railroad, founded in 1832, is the oldest, regularly scheduled, standard gauge steam passenger train operating in the nation.

Visitors to the world-famous Horseshoe Curve in Altoona can explore the Railroaders Memorial Museum and an exciting new Visitor Center at one of America's greatest engineering feats which paved the way to western expansion.

Find the largest collection of steam locomotives in America at Steamtown National Park in Scranton. And, railroad buffs will enjoy the Strasburg Railroad as it journeys through the beautiful Amish countryside in Lancaster on "The Road to Paradise."

The monumental Civil War battle sites of Gettysburg are part of the tour on the Gettysburg Railroad, while the East Broad Top in Rockhill overlooks the breathtaking sights of rolling hills.

Imagine traveling on the second-highest railroad in the United States on the Knox, Kane, Kinzua Railroad as it meanders through the peaks and valleys of the Allegheny National Forest, or exploring picturesque Bucks County on board the New Hope and Ivyland Railroad. "Pennsylvania, America Starts Here" for a trip into the past to rediscover the nation's industrial heritage.

For a free Pennsylvania travel package that includes information about railroads and hundreds of other sites and attractions, call 1-800-VISIT-PA, ext. 299.

Where in the World?

Can you guess where in the world this major city is? Here are some clues that may help:

CLUES—linked with Seoul by a two hour ride aboard the Saemaul Express train, this city is the home of Expo '93, an exposition which will focus on traditional culture in harmony with modern technology. In preparing for Expo '93, the city completed a Science Park, International Exhibition Area and an Outdoor Performance Area. It's also the capital of Chungchongnamdo province, a scenic area with hot springs and gently rolling hills.

ANSWER:
If you guessed Taejon, Korea, you're right. The Expo opens on August 7th 1993. For a free booklet on the area and the Expo write: Korea National Tourism Corp., 3435 Wilshire Blvd., Suite 350, Los Angeles, CA 90010.
