Shooting suspect was under house arrest; fled state to avoid capture

by Chris McDavid
Staff Writer

Less than two weeks after an area resident was placed under house arrest, he was being sought by authorities for allegedly shooting a Floyd County woman and violating conditions of his home incarceration.

Crit Douglas Caudill, 38, was being held in custody at his home on a 60-day sentence for a third offense driving under the influence charge when he allegedly shot Laura Blackburn, 23, of Beaver, last week.

Kentucky State Police detective Lee Weddington said Tuesday that Caudill "got rid" of the device that monitored his house arrest and fled the state after he allegedly shot Blackburn and attempted to shoot another resident.

Caudill was not arrested or charged with the shooting or escape from house arrest incidents until the following day.

Weddington, who has been investigating the shooting, said Caudill was arrested last Wednesday by Ohio officials on felony warrants obtained by the state police.

The detective said the defendant waived his right to an extradition hearing on August 6 and that Caudill was transported Monday to the Floyd County Adult Detention Center.

Caudill is accused of shooting Blackburn in the left leg following a verbal argument with 22-year-old Stevie Mitchell, whose address is the same as Blackburn's, police say.

The defendant also allegedly shot at Mitchell, but he was not injured in the altercation.

In Floyd District Court Monday, Caudill was arraigned on charges of first degree assault, wanton endangerment and third degree escape.

Court records indicate Caudill's escape charge is a result of him leaving "the confinement of house arrest."

Floyd District Judge James R. Allen entered a not-guilty plea to Caudill's charges and ordered that he be held at the jail in lieu of a $20,000 cash bond.

A preliminary hearing is scheduled for 2:30 p.m. Tuesday, August 18, to determine if there is probable cause to refer the case to a grand jury.

Efforts began Wednesday to unify Floyd County school officials, employees and the community in an attempt to garner local support for the struggling school district.

State Education Commissioner Wilmer Cody arrived in Floyd County Wednesday to meet with local school employees the day before the start of classes for the 1998-99 school year.

More than 1,000 Floyd County school employees gathered at the Mountain Arts Center Wednesday morning, in part to hear Cody's remarks, plus attend an ethics and legal training session.

Cody told school employees that it is the beginning of a "new era in the history of the Floyd County Schools."

"Our concept of state management is a fairly simple one," Cody said. "While we have the authority to make policy and management decisions, we have no intention of casually or routinely exercising that authority. The decisions need to be made locally—by the local board and by local administrators."

Floyd board members approved a joint agreement with state education officials in January which calls for a three-year state takeover of the school system.

For over a decade, Floyd County's school system has drawn the attention of state education officials and, past efforts by the state to correct political interferences and mismanagement practices have failed.

Cody said Wednesday that Floyd residents "must take ownership" of the system if progress is to continue after state management ends.

Standards set by the state for the district operations include: children come first; school business will be administered according to law; spending will be within budget; fair and professional treatment of all employees; and community involvement plus professional teamwork is a must for success.

Also, Wednesday evening, the first of what school officials are calling a "center of influence" meeting was held at May Lodge to encourage civic and business leaders to become more involved in the school system.

Cody, state manager Woodrow Carter, interim superintendent Mike King and board chairman Terry Dotson were keynote speakers at Wednesday evening's dinner, sponsored by Dotson's company, Worldwide Equipment.

Federal officials have cited the mining company and contractor of a Floyd County mine for alleged violations which resulted in a mining-related death of a Salyersville man in May.

A report from the United States Department of Labor Mine Safety and Health Administration says the death of Robert C. Cooper, 30, at the Shop Branch Mine #2 in Ivel was caused by an inadequate braking system on Cooper's coal truck.

Cooper was killed on May 22 when he apparently lost control of a coal truck while driving down a hill at the mining site. Cooper died after he jumped from the vehicle and it landed on him.

Lodestar Energy Inc. and contractor Smith Patrick were each cited in June for not providing the Fiscal court meets today

Floyd Fiscal Court members will meet in special session at 11 a.m. Friday (today) in the old circuit courtroom on the second floor of the Floyd County Courthouse.

Items on the agenda for the special meeting include opening bids for fence work at the Garrett Park; the creation of the Floyd County Water Supply Planning Commission; and surplus property.

Other items for discussion are salaries and pay rates for jail employees; funding from the Administrative Office of the Courts for a new parking lot; transportation agreement; and the Ligon/Clear Creek water project.

State law requires that discussion at special meetings be limited to items on the agenda.

Civic center board holds first meet

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

A $12.5 million civic center to be built in Pike County will have input from community leaders from around the region related to the site and construction of the facility.

A seven-member board of area business, education and community leaders has been named by Governor Paul Patton and Pike County officials to oversee the building and operation of the center.

Floyd County businessman and school board chairman Terry Dotson; Toler miner operator Rex Fought; and Big Sandy Area Development District director Roger Recktenwald were among those named to the board.

"The creation of this board means that we are now very close to the realization of a longtime dream for Pikeville and Pike County," Pike Judge-Executive Donna Damron said in a news release. "It is truly an exciting time."

Other board members are Jean Hale, president and CEO of Community Trust Bank; Calvin Randall Tackett, an attorney from Letcher County; Charles Baird, a Pikeville attorney; and Terry Spears, executive assistant to Damron. Patton and state lawmakers approved the multi-million dollar project during the spring legislative session. A feasibility study sought by city and county officials in Pike indicated the facility will have a $10 million impact on the local economy and will support 85 full-time jobs.

The civic center is expected to accommodate a variety of events, including trade shows, concerts, basketball, soccer, banquets, boxing and wrestling events and equipment shows.

A seating capacity of 10,700 is expected for the proposed 108,000 square-foot center and there are plans to include a country and bluegrass museum with a gift shop.

The feasibility study said that there are 540,000 people living within 50 air miles of the Pikeville area and more than 1.5 million people are living within 75 air miles.

Damron said the area is in need of such a facility.

"The people in Pike County and Eastern Kentucky are currently traveling to Huntington, Charleston, Johnson City and Lexington for concerts and other entertainment events," Damron said. "This facility will provide our citizens the opportunity to attend family entertainment, sports and trade shows at home. Additionally, the center will attract visitors from neighboring counties and states into Pike County, bringing new dollars into our economy."

tunity to attend family entertainment, sports and trade shows at home. Additionally, the center will attract visitors from neighboring counties and states into Pike County, bringing new dollars into our economy."

According to the study, the center should be built in 18 months and support 92 full-time construction jobs.

The governor created the Eastern Kentucky Exposition Center Corporation on August 3. The board's first meeting was held Thursday in the conference room of the Pike County Judge-Executive's office.

Local EKU incoming freshmen at Tracy Vance, Van Lear, recently attended a summer orientation session for incoming freshmen at Eastern Kentucky University. ty."

Having enough money is not the central foundation for having a good school system, "civic infrastructure" is one key, Cody told the group.

"We can fix the budget and offer advice and information, but the district can't sustain it by itself," Cody said. "Get involved and ask questions. Pay attention to what's going on and express your feelings."

Civic and business leaders must be willing to become involved, in various capacities, in order for the school district to continue making progress, he said.

Efforts to bring the district back from the brink of financial ruin by King, Carter and the local board were applauded by Cody.

"The difference is having leadership that cares, no matter what the issue," Cody said. "I'm very high on Floyd County. I think you have a good board and a good staff. This is a very different place. Be part of the civic effort."

vehicle with adequate service brakes that would stop the truck in an emergency situation.

They were also in violation for not giving Cooper newly-employed experience miner training, federal officials said.

Floyd County Coroner Roger Nelson, who also conducted an investigation into the incident, says that Cooper had one year of experience as a truck driver and approximately five months on that job.

"This accident occurred because the service braking system on the truck was not properly maintained and was not designed for use with the payload being hauled at the time of the accident," the report says. "Failure to provide adequate training for the victim was also a contributing factor."

Investigators estimated that Cooper's coal truck was loaded with more than double the amount of the manufacturer's specified maximum payload of 26,080 pounds.

The amount of coal being hauled by Cooper's vehicle was estimated at 63,800 pounds at the time of the accident, the report says.

Nelson said in May that Cooper's family members apparently reported that the victim began having brake problems the day before the fatal accident.

The report says that maintenance records, maintained by Patrick, for Cooper's truck indicated a new air compressor and rear brake chamber were installed on the vehicle the day of the accident.

"The compressor appeared to be new but, the new brake chamber could not be readily identified," the report says, noting that a mechanic said he talked to the victim during the shift, but he did not report any mechanical problems with the truck.

"Ninety-five percent of what we receive goes straight to the kids of this area, only five percent goes to national headquarters," Blackburn said.

The Dream Factory's mission is to provide an avenue to dreams for ill children of this region that would otherwise go unfulfilled, Blackburn said.

The material and labor donations of local businesses have been instrumental in fulfilling the dreams of children and their families.

Plumber Jeff Slone, contractor Doug Boyd and Lee Boyd, an electrician, are providing their services on the Tackett project. Businesses donating materials include Lowe's of Paintsville and Pikeville, Brock McVey, Pauley Building Center, Wright's Lumber, Meade Construction and Kentucky Carpet.

Correction

An article in Wednesday's edition of The Times reported that Wayne Douglas Hayes and his son, Christopher D. Hayes, were partners in Hayes Drilling and Conn & Hayes Mining Company prior to a shooting incident between the two which resulted in the arrest of the elder Hayes and the death of the other.

Amy Heuke, Christopher Hayes' sister, said Wednesday that her brother had started his own company, C&C Drilling Company Inc. and that he was not affiliated with his father's companies.

Heuke said her brother's company was rapidly growing and that it was started for Christopher Hayes' 8-year-old son, Colby.

MILLION

•Crime bill passes The House

The House has passed an appropriations bill for 1999 that funds the bulk of the nation's crime fighting programs. The bill, drafted by Rep. Harold "Hal" Rogers, contains more than $16 billion for federal crime fighting efforts, including $4.8 billion for grants and other assistance for state and local law enforcement agencies.

Rogers, who chairs the subcommittee that funds the Departments of State, Commerce, Justice and related agencies, said the bill's number one priority is increased funding to fight crime and illegal drug use. "Without warning, crime can strike at anyone, anywhere, anytime," Rogers said.

This bill gives our law enforcement officials the money and resources they need to do their jobs and protect our citizens."

Rogers said the bill also funds the Economic Development Administration (EDA), which has provided millions of dollars to distressed communities in Southern and Eastern Kentucky. Rogers' subcommittee funds the EDA's assistance programs at $368 million for 1999, an increase of $28 million over current funding.

"Grants from the Economic Development Administration are critical to many of our communities, because they support critical economic development projects," Rogers said. "From waterlines to industrial parks, these grants are 'helping hands' for many of our towns."

The bill also funds the National Weather Service, which supports the weather station in Jackson.

Pack advances to Showdown

The local edition of the world's largest talent contest reached an exciting conclusion Tuesday night, August 4 when Jo Pack swept the voting at the "True Value/Jimmy Dean Country Showdown" held at a sold-out Mountain Arts Center in Prestonsburg.

A winning combination of musical talent, stage presence, charisma and originality caught the attention of enthusiastic fans and a panel of judges.

Jo Pack will now advance to the state Showdown scheduled for September 26 at the Mountain Arts Center to vie for a $1,000 cash prize and the opportunity to perform at one of six regional competitions in the fall. Regional winners will be flown, expenses paid, to the televised National Finals to compete for the Grand Prize of $50,000 and the National Title.

Sandra "Jo" Pack is from Drift, and has been performing since early childhood. Jo will be a senior at South Floyd High School this year.

Now in its seventeenth year, the "True Value/Jimmy Dean Country Showdown" is designed to find the most promising country music talent in America, giving performers a chance to launch their professional careers.

Over 100,000 aspiring artists compete for cash and prizes totaling $150,000 each year.

Nationwide, four million fans will experience Showdowns in 1998, via hundreds of live shows and through nationally-syndicated television and radio broadcasts.

Tickets for the state competition are on sale now by calling the Mountain Arts Center at 1-888-Mac-Arts. Tickets are $10 each.

Floyd County community blood drive set for Tuesday

The Floyd County community has the opportunity to join together to save lives on Tuesday, August 25. McDowell ARH and Central Kentucky Blood Center will sponsor the next community blood drive from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., on the bloodmobile at McDowell ARH.

meet the needs of patients in area hospitals.

At this time, only five percent of the American population are blood donors.

All donors will receive a free t-shirt. For more information about the community blood drive on Tuesday, August 25, contact Mickey Bowling at 606-439-2173.

Coffee House series continues at Paramount

The Coffee House Series, staged in the Marquee Room of the Paramount Arts Center, Ashland, has proven to be very popular, according to its promoters. In fact, Open Mic Night was so well received by the public that it has been incorporated into the remain-Marquee Room Manager Deborah Blevins, continues to grow and shape itself in the process.

"We have received some very positive feedback," Blevins said. "I've had people call and beg for us to continue."

"Rather than comment cards, patrons are encouraged to leave their suggestions on the table coverings in the lobby, which also contain various types of reading material."

The Coffee House Series, borrowing from the popular concept which has swept the U.S., is being offered in order to provide the community with entertainment options while the Paramount stage is dark for the summer.

It also serves to introduce young artists and musicians to playing for a live audience.

ing schedule. Poets, readers, and others are encouraged to attend.

Featured on the bill for Friday, August 14, will be entertainer Steve Free and Shay, personal reader and psychic. Singer and songwriter Steve Free is well-known in the tri-state area and was recently awarded a Popular Music Performance Award by ASCAP at its annual meeting. Shay is also well-known and respected in the tri-state for her personal readings. She will give a short talk, then do private mini-readings for those interested.

Precious cargo on board

by Janice Shepherd
Managing Editor

Thursday, school buses opened their doors to load and unload some precious cargo that comes in small packages — our children.

Because of their size, young children are hard to spot by people in the driver's seat. Because of their age, these young children are also prone to dash out in front of a vehicle without paying attention to whether it's stopped or on the move.

The children are so excited about their first days at school that they're eager to rush home and tell their parents all about their new friends or their new teachers.

In their eagerness, they forget to stop, look and listen; so, we adults must pay extra attention when we're sharing the road with school buses loaded with children.

Buses stop often; so drivers need to be prepared to stop suddenly. Don't tailgate a bus, but follow at braking distance.

Motor vehicle accidents are the number one cause of injury deaths for children 5 to 18, according to the Blue Grass Auto Club Safety Foundation.

School campuses, too, are potential sites for injuries from motor vehicles.

Drivers approaching the flashing lights at school entrances need to note that the yellow light means it is a heavy traffic area and potential danger exists. Parents picking up their children from school can be distracted by their children's enthusiasm or complaints and may not see approaching vehicles as they pull into the traffic flow; a young child can dart into the road as he hurries to his parent's vehicle; or a bus driver can be temporarily engrossed in bringing under control children released from the confinement of classrooms.

School's in session. It's time to ease off the gas pedal and slow down.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Writer urges support for Wellstone Amendment

Editor:

The 1996 federal welfare law created new barriers that have forced many student-parents to leave behind their hopes and efforts toward education and job skills. The law restricts recipients to only one year of post-secondary education before they must also work 20 hours a week, in addition to being full-time students and parents.

I am a student at Morehead State and have met many parents who are struggling with the stress of classes, jobs, daycare, commuting, and parenting. Many have been forced to quit, always with the words, "I'll finish someday."

An important bill is moving through Congress which could improve the chances for low-income Kentuckians to get the education and training needed for living-wage jobs.

On July 9th, the Senate passed an amendment sponsored by U.S. Senator Paul Wellstone to the Higher Education Act. The amendment says states may allow welfare recipients to go to school for two years before they must also work an additional 20 hours a week. It would also remove teen parents from a 30 percent cap on recipients who can take part in education. Since teens are required to be in school, this cap limits the number of non-traditional students who can count college or vocational training as their work activity.

In September, a committee of senators and representatives will negotiate the final version of this bill. Our own Senator Mitch McConnell is on this conference committee. He voted against the Wellstone amendment in July. Citizens of Kentucky should contact Senator McConnell and urge him to reconsider his position.

Please support the Wellstone Amendment to the Higher Education Act! For more information, call Kentuckians For The Commonwealth at (606) 633-5803.

REPORT TO KENTUCKY

Building roads for the future

by U.S. Congressman
Harold Rogers

There is nothing like a good road to take you where you want to go, and for the people of Southern and Eastern Kentucky, good roads will be critical as we move our region into the 21st century. Not only do good roads help us get to our destinations safely, but modern transportation routes attract business and industry, spur jobs, help ensure that health care and education are more accessible, make it easier for tourists to enjoy our beautiful landscapes, and connect us to the outside world.

Because of the rugged nature of our Appalachian mountains and hills, it has always been difficult, not to mention costly, to build and maintain good roads. The Congress, however, passed, and the President recently signed, a major highway funding bill that will bring a great deal of assistance to our area. The highway bill provides Kentucky approximately $2.7 billion over the next six years (approximately $455 million per year) to improve our roads and bridges. This is a 70 percent increase over the highway funding we were getting!

Under the old highway law, Kentucky received only 77 cents in highway money for every dollar we sent to Washington in gas taxes, but under the new law we get back at least 91 cents on the dollar. We fought to get Kentucky a larger share, and we won!

This will go a long way in helping us address Kentucky's transportation needs. In fact, tapping into the gasoline tax gives us a leg up on finishing the nation's 3,025-mile system of Appalachian roads!

The bill also provides $11.3 million to begin preliminary engineering work and environmental studies on the first stretch of the new I-66 corridor, between the Cumberland and Daniel Boone Parkways from Somerset to I-75 at London. I-66 will create thousands of new jobs in our region, and I'm very excited about this funding.

Over the last few years, there has been a lot of talk in Washington about "building bridges" to the future. This highway bill means real roads and real bridges in Southern and Eastern Kentucky, and these are roads that will help ensure a better future for our region by enhancing safety and opening doors of economic opportunity for all our people.

Quote of the week...

The aim of argument, or of discussion, should not be victory, but progress.

TELEMARKETERS:

Driving us all crazy

Do these companies that do their business primarily over the telephone have some kind of warning device that lets them know exactly when we are ready for a meal or have settled in for a nice nap? That's when they hit me. On a good day. On a bad day, I am called to the phone from mowing the lawn to listen to some guy trying to persuade me how much I need his product which has nothing to do with making lawn mowing any easier (or anything else that is beneficial).

I wouldn't mind telemarketers if they could get the grasp of the meaning of "no" or "I'm not interested." Have you received the one from the company that excitedly informs you that you are entered in their sweepstakes and will receive a watch for doing their little survey? If you haven't, just wait. They intend to sell everyone on the face of the earth four magazine subscriptions over a four-year period that will come to over $600. They are not amused when I tell them that I can read U.S. News and World Report at three different locations: the school of my choice, the public library, or the internet. They try to shame me by hinting that such actions are a mark of stinginess. I tell them that doesn't bother me in the least—I was stingy (and knew it) before you called. Oh, by the way, after you turn down this terrific deal on magazines, you don't get the watch.

Telemarketers' favorite trick is to give you a three-month trial period for free. Of course, I forgot to cancel and here comes a bill for $40 or $50 for some items that I don't even want on my credit card. I wouldn't mind it so much if these people didn't get so gushy about the junk they are pushing.

Every now and then there is some item on television that we order. The only trouble is they try to sell you additional items. It's somewhat like the fast-food people asking, "Would you like French fries with that Neil Diamond album?" Not a word from you Neil Diamond bashers.

The credit card companies must think we all need a dozen or more credit cards. The truth is we don't need any, but we have to have one or carry a large sum of money around with us. Either that or sleep out on the streets when we visit a town or city more than half an hour from our homes. I try to tell them that I do my best to pay off my card each month so there will be no interest (back to that stingy thing again), but they don't want to hear that. The next day they call (or some person they have informed) to tell you that you need insurance on the credit card that you didn't need in the first place.

I have always thought that it was best to be polite and cordial to everyone. That will not work with telemarketers. If you don't stop them, they read on and on (and not very well most of the time). So at some point you have to be forceful and say, "I really don't need your product," and hang up.

Or, you can have some fun. When the telemarketer goes into his pitch, simply tell him that, yes, you will have two of the hogs' heads and a batch of sallet greens. Use a deep southern drawl and mention how much granny loves those sallet greens. After that little trick gets old, you can start talking about how wasteful your wife (or husband) is with money. Both tricks work. I know this is not very ethical. There is no room for ethics when dealing with telemarketers.

PCC professor has book published

Jack May's War, Robert Perry's book about Colonel Andrew Jackson May, has just been published by The Overmountain Press of Johnson City, Tennessee. A slick-cover paperback, it sells for $14.95 and can be purchased at Readmore Books in Prestonsburg and Pikeville.

Robert Perry is associate professor of English at Prestonsburg Community College, where he has taught since 1989. Before coming to PCC, he worked as a research historian at the Stuhr Museum of the Prairie Pioneer in Grand Island, Nebraska. During the 1992-97 period, he led the effort to restore the Samuel May House, Jack May's birthplace, and one of this region's most important Civil War landmarks.

Perry served as president of Friends of the Samuel May House from 1993 to 1997. Since then he has devoted his time to writing this book and developing the Samuel May House Photo Archive.

He is also in the process of developing an on-line archive, which can be accessed at www.geocities.com/heartland/9999.

Jack May's War challenges the widespread assumption that the battles fought in Southwestern Virginia, Eastern Kentucky, and Eastern Tennessee had no impact on the outcome of the war. Focusing on May's military career, Perry shows that the victories which the Confederates won in this theater, allowing them to retain control of Preston's Saltworks and the Virginia-Tennessee Railroad, preserved the integrity of the Confederacy and thereby prolonged the war. Using letters, diaries, battle reports, and other primary sources, he fashions an absorbing narrative that finally does justice to long-neglected subjects like the Battle of Ivy Mountain, the Battle of Princeton, Marshall's three invasions of Eastern Kentucky, Toland's Raid on Wytheville, and the Battle of Saltville.

Although Perry's main focus is the battles and the part Jack May played in them, he also tells us about Solomon May, David May, Reuben May, Mary Matilda May, and other members of the May family. Solomon May, oldest son of the so-called "Second Samuel May," grew up on the May Farm and came of age during the war period. In June of 1863, according to his brother Bascom, Solomon fled Prestonsburg in order to escape the Northern draft.

When Federal soldiers stopped at the May Farm and inquired about Solomon's whereabouts, his mother stalled them at the front door while he fled out the back door and up May's Branch. At the top of the branch he mounted a horse that he kept tethered there and rode to Bowen's Cove in Tazewell County, Virginia, where he joined his uncle's regiment, the 10th Kentucky Cavalry. Solomon's story is a tragic one, and on June 9, 1864, he was killed in action at Mount Sterling, during one of the battles that marked General John Hunt Morgan's Last Kentucky Raid.

Among other things, the book documents the role played by the May Farm during the war period. As Perry shows, the farm served as headquarters for all confederate activity in the region during the fall of 1861. In September, 1861, Jack's regiment, the 5th Kentucky Infantry, conducted its first drills in the meadow below the May House, on land now occupied by the Highlands Shopping Mall. Another thing that attracted the Confederates to the farm was Samuel May's steam-mill, which stood at the mouth of Abbott Creek.

Jack May's War is a fast-paced, action-packed narrative written for a general audience. Though the scenes and characters which Perry presents are based on solid research, the book reads like a novel. Here is a passage describing the Battle of Princeton. The speaker is George Washington Noble, a private in Colonel May's Fifth Kentucky Infantry:

"The Fifth Kentucky was in the advance, and every now and then we would pass a dead man. The soldiers would pull off his boots, take his watch, and search his

The Homemaker and Single Parent Career Development Program at Prestonsburg Community College formally recognized their OWEP placement worker with a plaque of appreciation, gifts and a reception on July 15.

Berthy Carr was assigned to the program through the Kentucky Department of Employment Services as part of their joint project with the Cabinet for Families and Children. The program requires Carr to work 80 hours a month. She regularly volunteered her services well beyond 150 hours each month.

Her dedication to the program that assists in making career plans through workshops and related activities was the focus of the remarks made by PCC's President Deborah L. Floyd at the reception.

This outstanding example of the work ethic by a cash assistance recipient sets a positive example for others.

Morris to open for Kentucky Opry; releases first album

by Monica Morris
Contributing Writer

On Friday night, August 14, Kentucky Opry fiddler David Morris will expand his regular role and become the show's opening act. This event is a first for Morris, sparked by the recording of his first album, "Overworked and Underplayed."

Performing is not new to the 30-year-old Prestonsburg man, who is a native of the Owingsboro area. After beginning to learn guitar at age 13, then fiddle at 14, he began to play at local nursing homes.

"They (nursing home residents) are the best audience. They're so pleased to hear you play," Morris said.

The fiddle player came to Prestonsburg in 1991, where he attended Prestonsburg Community College and did maintenance work for St. Martha Catholic Church while trying to decide what to do with his life. The decision was quickly made for him when Billie Jean Osborne happened to hear him play the fiddle and asked him to audition to join the Kentucky Opry. He joined the troupe that same year and has since become assistant director of the Kentucky Opry Junior Pros.

When the Mountain Arts Center recording studio became a reality, it provided Morris with the opportunity to realize a lifelong dream—making an album of his own. "Overworked and Underplayed" is Morris' own album in more ways than one. Twelve songs on the tape are original, and Morris wrote nine, including the title cut which tells the story of a coal miner/fiddler. Not only did he play fiddle on the album, but he also performed the lead vocals.

Other instrumental parts were provided by some of the Kentucky Opry band members, namely Ray Salyer on bass, James Whited on lead guitar, and Tony Whited on drums; and by other musicians Morris has befriended since moving to Eastern Kentucky.

To provide a true "home-grown" sound to one song in particular, David had his mother come all the way from Whitesville, to provide rhythm guitar. That song, a traditional fiddle tune called "Black Mountain Rag," and "Ashokan Farewell," the popular theme to the PBS Civil War series, are the only songs on the album that are not original.

The songs from "Overworked and Underplayed" which David will perform Friday night, are a mixture of vocal songs and instrumentals. Although the album is country-based, the musical style of the songs vary, and some reflect the influence of Morris' musical heroes, Benny Martin, Vassar Clements, Buck Owens, and Ray Price, while in others one may hear a faint echo of the trademark sounds of Alan Jackson or even Dwight Yoakam.

Tapes will be for sale at the Friday night show at the Mountain Arts Center, which begins at 8 p.m. For information on ticket prices, or for reservations, call the Mountain Arts Center ticket office at 886-2623 or toll-free 1-888-622-2787.

"Overworked and Underplayed" can be obtained from the Mountain Arts Center gift shop, or directly from David Royce Morris, at 606-874-4179.

THE GOSPEL ACCORDING TO ME

God's perfect timing

by Paul Prather

Ecclesiastes 3 begins: "There is an appointed time for everything. And there is a time for every event under heaven."

This well-known biblical chapter goes on to say there's a time to be born and a time to die, a time to plant and a time to uproot — and so on.

I can't seem to locate my rock 'n' roll reference book today, but if memory serves me the Byrds adapted this passage into a 1960s pop song called,

"Turn, Turn, Turn." Or something like that.

I guess I've always read Ecclesiastes 3 with my rock-music goggles on. (Or should that be, with my yellow-lensed granny-glasses on?)

But when I hit that passage the other day, I happened also to have read recently books by Grant R. Jeffrey and Paul Meier which discuss auspicious time-periods, numbers and dates that appear frequently in the Bible, and in history.

These matters likely have spiritual implications, although I'm often uncertain what the intended meanings are.

Anyway, here's a sampling of biblical times and numbers:

* THREE: In Christianity, God has three manifestations: Father, Son and Holy Spirit. Humans have three dimensions: spirit, mind and body. In the Old Testament, Jonah is trapped within a great fish for three days. In the New Testament, Jesus lies in the earth three days.

* SEVEN: The creation cycle lasts seven days. Enoch, the man taken into heaven without dying, is born in the seventh generation from Adam. Israel is told to temporarily stop plowing the soil every seventh year. Joseph's famine follows seven bountiful years and lasts seven awful years. The furnace in Daniel is heated seven times hotter than normal. The Great Tribulation lasts seven years. Revelation mentions seven churches, seven bowls of wrath, seven seals, seven trumpets.

* TWELVE: Israel has 12 tribes. A year has 12 months. In Exodus, 12 spies go into Canaan. Jesus chooses 12 original apostles. The New Jerusalem has 12 gates, 12 angels and 12 foundation stones.

* FORTY DAYS: Noah's flood lasts 40 days. Israel mourns 40 days for Jacob. Twice, Moses is on Mt. Sinai for 40 days. The Hebrews' 12 spies search Canaan 40 days. Goliath challenges Israel 40 days. Jonah tells Nineveh it will be destroyed in 40 days. Elijah fasts 40 days. Jesus fasts 40 days. There are 40 days from Jesus' resurrection to His ascension.

* FOURTEEN YEARS: Moses lives in Egypt 40 years. Moses lives in Midian 40 years. Israel wanders the wilderness 40 years. (There are many others.)

* SEVENTY: Seventy elders are appointed over Israel. Daniel sees a prophetic vision of 70 weeks. The Babylonian captivity lasts 70 years. The restoration of the Temple takes 70 years. Jesus sends out 70 disciples to minister.

* SEVEN: The creation cycle lasts seven days. Enoch, the man taken into heaven without dying, is born in the seventh generation from up a lot in the Bible, such as 6, 30, 49, 50, 430, 490. But you get the idea.

Finally, here's one example of God's apparent fascination with dates:

Moses declared 3,500 years ago that two days on the 360-day Jewish calendar would be bad for the Jews: the 17th of Tammuz and the 9th of Av.

I don't have room enough here to deal with both, so let's just look at events that later took place on the 9th of Av:

In 587 BC on the 9th of Av, the Babylonians destroyed Solomon's Temple. In 70 AD the Romans destroyed the Second Temple; a year later, on the same day, they plowed Jerusalem under. In AD 135 Simon Bar Kochba led a tragic Jewish uprising against Rome. All on the 9th of Av.

In 1096 on the 9th of Av the Crusades began with the killing of many Jews. In 1290 the Jews were expelled from England. In 1306 the Jews were expelled from France. In 1492, the Jews were expelled from Spain.

In 1648 on the 9th of Av, Polish Jews were massacred. In 1882, Russian pogroms against the Jews began. In 1914, World War I broke out in Russia and the Jews were again persecuted.

In 1942 on the 9th of Av, Hitler and his henchmen met in Wannsee, Germany, to produce plans for the final extermination of the Jews.

As I said, I don't know for sure exactly what these numbers, eras and dates mean, but if nothing else they give a new twist to that old cliché: "There is an appointed time for everything."

Social Security office to be closed August 20-21

The Big Sandy Social Security office at Prestonsburg will reduce operations on Thursday and Friday, August 20 and 21, according to Jim Kelly, Social Security district director.

Kelly said the office will be installing a new computer system during that time, and service will be temporarily disrupted.

Kelly noted, however, that Social Security services will be available by calling 1-800-772-1213, or by visiting the Social Security office located at 421 Second Street in Auxier.

Lafferty passes state board

Brian Lafferty of Hueysville, recently was notified by the Kentucky State Board of Embalmers and Funeral Directors that he had successfully passed the examination required by Kentucky to be a licensed embalmer and funeral director.

Lafferty is an employee of Hall Funeral Home of Martin.

He earned a Mortuary Science Diploma from the Mid-America College of Funeral Service in February of 1996, and is a member of the National Morticians Fraternity. He is a graduate of the Allen Central High School Class of 1992 and also studied at Prestonsburg Community College for two years prior to entering the funeral service profession.

Lafferty is the son of Katheryn Lafferty of Hippo, and the late Carlos "Huck" Lafferty. He is married to Amanda Brooke Salyers, the daughter of Hall Funeral Home Pikeville. The phone number for the Pikeville office is 606-432-2177.

Kelly said the office will be open and fully operational by Monday, August 24.

Sandra Slone, a teacher at McDowell Elementary, dressed as Tom Sawyer's aunt, Polly.

Thomas Tackett, Kimberly Mead, Kelli Johnson, Paul Neal, Amanda Samons, Blake Stumbo, Kyle Brown, Joshua Compton, Eddie Taylor and Jacobs Johnson brought the book, "The Adventures of Tom Sawyer," to life at McDowell Elementary.

Thomas Tackett as Sid Sawyer

The Adventures of Ms. Slone's P3-P4 Class

"I... I think he's dying," stammered Sid.

"Rubbish! I don't believe it," snapped Aunt Polly. But she ran up the stairs as fast as she could. By the time she reached Tom's bedside, her face was white with fear.

"What's the matter with you, Tom?"

"Oh Aunt Polly, it's my sore toe. It feels as if it's about to fall off."

Aunt Polly sank into a chair with relief. She laughed a little, then cried a little, and then did both together. This made her feel so much better that she snapped at Tom, "Stop this nonsense, get out of bed, and get off to school immediately!"

THE ADVENTURES OF TOM SAWYER

Classrooms of today are never as quiet as they were in Tom Sawyer's day, but when Ms. Slone began to read, her P3-P4 class at McDowell Elementary sat quietly as they tried to imagine the next bit of trouble Tom and his friends would be getting into.

The characters seemed to come to life, especially the day Tom traded Huck a tooth for a tick and took it to school. Joe Harper and Tom were enjoying themselves on a boring Monday, tormenting the tick when all of a sudden, the Head Master swatted them about the shoulders with his stick, dust flew ending their fine game.

It took two reading sessions to get Tom and Joe out of that trouble. Ms. Slone would laugh so hard that she couldn't read—the students would laugh at Ms. Slone laughing and both together could be heard three rooms down the hall.

The class appeared sad as the last page was read and the book was closed.

"Good morning, everybody!"

"Good morning, Sid!"

"Good morning, Aunt Polly!"

"Today Mary Sawyer and Joe Harper are class helpers."

"Becky, would you care to pass out the reading workbooks?"

"Amy Lawrence, would you ask Mrs. Hamilton if her class is ready to change, please?"

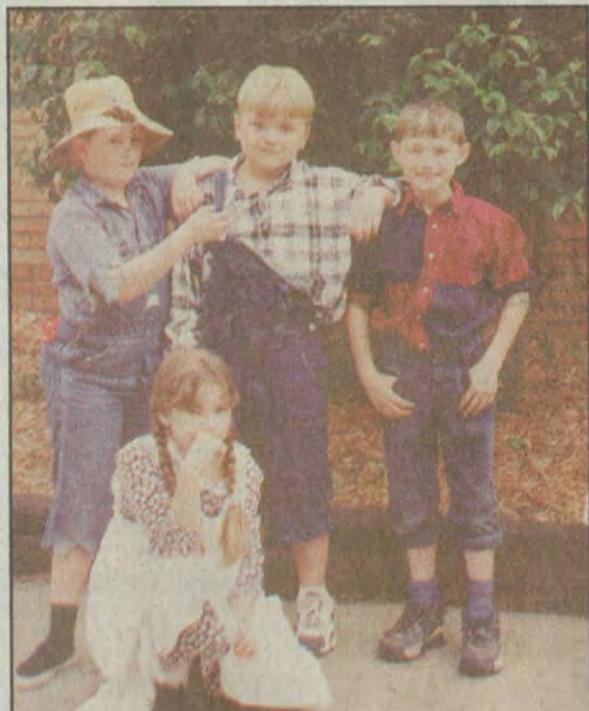

"Tom, did you think about bringing pencil and paper today?"

"Huckleberry!"

Boring Monday, "I don't think so," Ms. Slone said. She was surrounded by children dressed in the costumes of the book's characters.

A Look At Sports

Round two goes to Coach Pack

In an appeals ruling, Circuit Judge John David Caudill upheld the findings of a tribunal and ruled that Prestonsburg's head basketball coach, Jackie Pack, be reinstated as a teacher and basketball and golf coach.

This means that round two goes to Coach Pack, after he had little trouble winning round one. Whether there will be a round three or not remains to be seen.

Jackie Pack is one of the best bench coaches in the state of Kentucky. No one can deny that the man can coach the game of basketball. The unpleasant situation has been a distraction from the program, and the people who suffer the most from things like this are the kids. Many times we fail to take that into account.

In talking with some of the returning players, there are mixed emotions over the whole situation. What happens now is anyone's guess. But, for now, Coach Pack is back at the school, teaching and is the school's head basketball coach as well as golf coach.

I don't know if the case can be taken any higher, but I would hope the school board and everyone else would just let it rest and get back to what is most important, restoring some integrity to the program.

I hope Coach Pack will prove wrong all involved (who questioned his integrity) and show that he can be that example every coach needs to be. Sometimes when we think we are down and about to be counted out, a new opportunity presents itself. The people who get that second chance need to take it and make the most of it and demonstrate they are capable people.

Jack Pack The ball is in Coach Pack's court and I, for one, am rooting for him to showcase his ability to lead and be that positive example. I believe that everyone deserves a second chance. I hope from all this that both sides can say let's forget yesterday, last week, last year and go on for the betterment of our kids. I would hope both sides would be adult enough to do that and learn something from all this.

COULD THE LIGHTING HAVE CREATED A MONSTER?

The South Floyd Raiders' football team experienced a storm when they hosted Shelby Valley last Saturday night. The Raiders were dragging and not playing too well. Even up to the storm in the second half, the Raiders looked like a team that was nervous. But, after the storm, they were a different team. I wonder if there were some electronic jades around the ears?

SOUTH FLOYD GRID

South Floyd will host Knott County Central this Friday night in their final scrimmage game before the real season begins. Game time is set for 7:30 p.m. at Brackett Field.

BLACKCATS AT HAZARD

Coach John Derosett will take his Prestonsburg Blackcats on the road to Hazard where they will play Estill County in grid action.

ALLEN CENTRAL GRID

The Rebels final scrimmage game will take place this Saturday at 5:30 at the Don Daniels Athletic Complex. The Rebs face McCreary Central.

BETSY LAYNE AT PHELPS

Coach Ted George and the Betsy Layne Bobcats will be at Phelps Friday night in a 4:30 p.m. start.

$15,000 purse awaits drivers at Thunder Ridge

Harris leads late model class points standings

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

The fall season is before us and the second half of the racing season is winding down. While the weather begins to cool down, racing continues to be hot at the Thunder Ridge Speedway and there should be plenty of noise tonight as the purse swells for all classes that run. All total, drivers in different classes will total $15,000 in purses.

In the late model feature, the winner will take home the $3,000 first-place prize money in the 30-lap feature. It has been three weeks since the late models have run at the track.

The super bombers will race for $600, while bombers run for $500. It will be a $200 purse for the road hog winner. The total amount of the purse is based on how far back each class pays.

Paul Harris

Brad Martin

Paul Harris continues to lead the late model points standings with 921, a 152 lead over second place runner Shannon Thornsberry. Brandon Kinzer is third with 601 points. Fourth place belongs to Stanley Haddix and Eddie Carrier, Sr. is fifth.

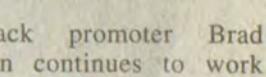

Kurt Hoffess holds slim margin over second place Jerry Wicker in the modified division. Hoffess has 1,277 points to Wicker's 1,217. Jason Johnson is third with 876 points. Gary Combs and Jeff Jones round out the top five.

Greg Ison had 1,272 points to top the super bomber stock car drivers. David Paris is second with 818, and Billy Stumbo is third with 795.

In the bomber points standings, Johnny Layne leads with 1,239 points, followed by Tandy Spurlock with 1,223, David Chaffins (960), Clint Shutt (785) and Mike Howard (709) complete the top five.

John Henson continues to top the road hog drivers with 910 points. In second place is Jimmy Arnett with 666, followed by Anthony Johnson (633), James Ramey (384) and Randy Cook (232).

Shannon Thornsberry

Track promoter Brad Martin continues to work hard in keeping the track in good condition.

"Right now, the track is in great shape," he said. "We had very little dust last Saturday night. We are disk-ing the track up and continue to do so each week. We have been putting plenty of water on it. Things are moving along real good."

The late model purse will grow when racing gets the green flag on September 5. A

HUNTERS, WANT TO TAKE MORE DEER THIS YEAR?

You may have heard talk at the sporting goods store about some changes in deer hunting regulations this year. While the hunting stories you usually hear aren't always true, there truly are some big changes for the upcoming deer hunting seasons.

First of all, hunters will have the opportunity to take more deer by using bonus deer permits. Hunters that buy their regular statewide permits can also purchase as many as three bonus deer permits at $10 each. The first permit is an antlerless archery permit, and be used statewide. The second is an antlerless gun or archery permit, which can be used only in zone one during gun season. The third bonus permit is a quota hunt permit, which can be used by hunters participating in a quota hunt.

It is important to remember that in order to purchase any bonus permit, you must first purchase your regular statewide deer permit. If you fill your statewide permit first, be sure to hold onto the attached stub when you use a bonus tag. This will prove that you are using your bonus tag legally.

Once you've successfully completed your hunt you may check in your deer over the phone this year by dialing 1-877-CHKGAME (245-4263). The new toll-free phone number allows hunters the option of dialing in their deer. Those who prefer to use a check station still have that option.

HAVE YOU SEEN A BLACK BEAR?

If you've seen a bear in Kentucky in 1998, you're one of a special few. However, bear sightings are becoming more frequent. While there are no solid estimates, the black bear population in Kentucky has been making a comeback in the last 10 years, according to wildlife biologist Steve Bonney. "Bear reports have been received this spring and summer in

"Bears are just looking for the easiest meal they can find to make up for the poor mast crop."

greater numbers than I can ever recall," says Bonney.

Over the July fourth holiday weekend, the fish and wildlife department received at least three different bear-related calls. Two black bears have already been killed this year — largely due to lack of understanding, say officials.

Bears are dormant during the winter and do not eat. When temperatures warm up, bears become more active and begin foraging for food. This period of activity is when humans begin to see bears more frequently.

This past year's mast crop, or acorns, beechnuts and other forest food sources, was poor. As a result, bears wandered in search of food and found sources such as garbage and dog food.

"Bears are just looking for the easiest meal they can find to make up for the poor mast crop," Bonney explains. Open garbage cans, trash that is easily accessible and dog food left outside provides just such a meal for a hungry black bear.

People usually have two questions when it comes to bears. The first is: "Is it going to eat my children?" The second question is: "Can I shoot it?" No, it's not going to eat your children and, short of immediate physical injury, do not shoot a bear, it is against the law.

Bonney advises people to treat bears with respect. If you see a bear in your yard, especially at night, just wait. It will go away. If it is rummaging through your trash can, the same rule applies. If left alone, a bear will go away. You may try hurrying it on its way by yelling, banging pots or turning on bright lights, but do not go near the bear.

Finally, enjoy the unique experience of seeing a bear, but don't encourage its visit. Keep garbage and dog food out of range of bears, especially at night and store it in a bear-proof container. Never feed bears. Feeding will make a bear used to people and can make it dangerous to itself and to humans.

Stars to come out in Charity Classic

Central Baptist Hospital Charity Golf Classic, August 20-23

For four days in August, Lexington's Kearney Hill Golf links play host to more than 60 of the world's best celebrity golfers. On Thursday, August 20 through Sunday, August 23, stars from the world of sports, politics and entertainment will compete in the first-ever Central Baptist Hospital Charity Classic.

This event is the seventh tour stop in 1998 for The Celebrity Players Tour (CPT) and follows the most exciting finish in the history of the Lake Tahoe golf championship. The CPT is the nation's premier celebrity golf association.

CPT members attending the Central Baptist Hospital Charity Classic include Johnny Bench, Vinnie Del Negro, The Gatlin Brothers, Bill Laimbeer, Ivan Lendl, Jim McMahon, John Brodie and celebrity golf's all-time winner, former Major League pitcher Rick Rhoden. The CPT field will be joined by notable sponsor invitees, including Rex Chapman, Jeff Sheppard, Andy Van Syke and many more.

While celebrities will compete for a $250,000 purse, local charities come out the winners of this event. Proceeds from the Classic will benefit the Baptist Healthcare Foundation.

The tournament will extend Central Baptist Hospital's mission to promote better health in our community through research, education and improved access to quality care," said William G. Sisson, president and chief executive officer of Central Baptist Hospital.

The Central Baptist Hospital Charity is the first CPT event to be held in Kentucky. It is the seventh of nine tour stops for CPT this year, and will be a medal-play, full-stroke event played under USGA Rules. Previous stops include Ft. Lauderdale; Dallas; Crystal River; Florida; Pittsburgh; Denver; and Lake Tahoe. The CPT will also visit Sacramento and Naples, Florida, later this season.

The event is hosted by the Lexington Urban Fayette County Government.

Tickets are available by calling (606) 225-6550 or can be purchased at participating Kroger stores.

$5,000 winner-take-all purse will go to the winner of the "Topless Late Model" feature, according to Martin.

"We have had a lot of calls from late model drivers from around the area who say they are going to be here," he said. "We are expecting at least 25 drivers and maybe more."

"It is going to be a good night for race fans to be here because we are going to have some good racing," he said.

The date for the final session of stock car racing is set for September 26 but, according to the track promoter, that date may be extended.

"We will race until the weather tells us not to," he said. "Right now, the final date on the schedule is September 26 but, after that, we may go to racing on Sunday evenings, after church."

THUNDER RIDGE NOTES

• Go-kart racing will come to Thunder Ridge this season with a tentative date of August 22 set for the opening of the new track.

"Work on the new track is going on right now. We will run on dates opposite of the one at Riverside," said Martin. "We can work together and not race at the same time."

The oval go-kart track will be located in front of the grandstand.

• Yet to come this season is four-wheel racing.

"We are also building a track for the four-wheelers," said Martin. "They will be racing in the mud this year and race the same day as the go-karts."

• Motor cross racing will also be part of the racing card at Thunder Ridge.

"We want to give the fans the best racing we can," Martin said. "We will charge just one price, and they can watch whichever event they want. We are just trying to get things going. There is a lot of racing left at Thunder Ridge this season, and the fans are in for some good racing."

Pit gates open at 3 p.m. this Saturday with the drivers' meeting scheduled for 7 p.m. and racing beginning afterward.

announcer when Jack Brickhouse passed away recently. Brickhouse was to television what Harry Caray was to radio. I remember watching the Cubs game over Channel 9 when I lived in Indiana. Brickhouse was a good announcer, but he wasn't a Harry Caray.

The race is still on to see who will break Maris' home run record of 61. Mark McGwire leads the majors with 47 round trippers with Cubs outfielder Sammy Sosa with 46. I don't think either one will reach it, but it gives fans something to follow seeing that about all the divisional races are finished this season.

The only real race is in the American League West Division where Texas has a half-game lead. • The Reds' brass say they are disputing each other and that all is rosy with the Reds' front office as John Smith and general manager Jim Bowden have had some disagreements of late. I look for some serious-minded ballclub to sweep Bowden away from the Reds.

• Willie Greene is gone. Like all traded Reds, he will start to blossom as a ball player and hit 30 home runs. Whew! When will Marge get back?

Until Wednesday, good sports everyone and be good sports! Take the kids to Sunday School and church this Sunday.

The Raiders could have been a 22-20 winner but the two point conversion was called back with the game ending in a tie.

FROM LAST WEEK

WINSTON CUP SERIES

Jeff Gordon won from the pole in the Bud at the Glen, his third straight victory. Mark Martin was second for the fourth straight week, followed by Mike Skinner, whose gas-mileage gamble almost paid off with a victory.

CRAFTSMAN TRUCKS

Terry Cook raced from fourth to first in the Stevens Beil/Genuine Car Parts 200 at Flemington (N.J.) Speedway. Cook raced hard with Stacy

J. Gordon

Compton midrace, then held off Ron Hornaday for the win. Points leader Jack Sprague crashed on lap nine and finished 29th. Hornaday and Joe Ruttman passed him in the points chase.

FEUD OF THE WEEK

Dick Trickle vs. Darrell Waltrip

The two old veterans, 56-year-old Trickle and 51-year-old Waltrip, tangled over some late-race doings at Indianapolis, and they remain unhappy with one another. NASCAR This Week writer Monte Dutton gives his opinion: "Good to see the old warriors still have some vinegar left."

Who's hot? Who's not WHO'S HOT?

In case you've been vacationing in Alaska or had your cable disconnected, it's Jeff Gordon.

WHO'S NOT? Jeremy Mayfield, the phenom of the first half, is leveling off as the stretch drive approaches.

YOUR TURN

Letters From Our Readers

Dear NASCAR This Week,

I am a 16-year old female and a big Ernie Irvan supporter. I was wondering: How do they determine who goes first when they qualify for a race? Is it by the points or by who finishes where at the end of the last race? I would really like to know.

Elizabeth Gmytryk

Wewahitchka, Fla.

Dear Elizabeth,

Qualifying order is determined by a random drawing at each race.

Dear NASCAR This Week,

I'm a big fan of both Busch and Winston Cup racing. But I have a question. I've learned that a lapped car that is in the way of the leaders can be flagged to move over. Well, this did not happen during the South Boston Busch Series race, July 25. For 10 to 15 laps, Joe [Bessey] stayed in front of Dale Earnhardt Jr., not giving way for him. Why didn't the officials flag Joe [Bessey] to move? Russ Bryant Bolivar, Tenn.

Dear Russ,

If a driver could still get back in contention by maintaining a position ahead of the leader, he is generally not given the "move over" flag (blue with a lateral yellow stripe). Like many NASCAR policies, it is a judgment call by officials, but the flag is generally used to alert drivers who are more than a lap down.

If you've got a question or comment, write: NASCAR This Week Your Turn, c/o The Gaston Gazette, 2500 E. Franklin Blvd., Gastonia, N.C. 28054

■ It's time for more kudos to Larry McReynolds and his Lowe's crew, which brought Mike Skinner home third and formulated a fuel strategy that very nearly won the Bud at the Glen.

McReynolds has experienced considerable success since joining the Skinner team.

Charley Pressley named crew chief at Morgan-McClure

By Monte Dutton

NASCAR This Week

WATKINS GLEN, N.Y. — It took less than a week for Charley Pressley to resurface.

Pressley, who resigned at Larry Hedrick Racing and was replaced by Tim Brewer, is the new crew chief at Morgan-McClure. Team owner Larry McClure said Pressley is already on the job, preparing Bobby Hamilton's Chevrolet for the Bud at the Glen.

The son of short-track legend Bob Pressley and brother of Winston Cup driver Robert Pressley, Charley Pressley has been a crew chief for five seasons. He is a native of Asheville, N.C., but will soon move to Abingdon, Va., where McClure's team is situated.

BIG TWO, LITTLE THREE: While Mark Martin and Jeff Burton have continued to run front in most every race, the summer has seen an accompanying decline in the performances of Jack Roush's other three Winston Cup teams.

Ted Musgrave, soon to be replaced by Kevin Lepage, hasn't finished higher than 15th since the Coca-Cola 600 at Charlotte on May 24. Chad Little's best finish since then was a 13th at Richmond.

Boris Said subbed for injured

And Johnny Benson, who seemed to be on the verge of becoming a force this spring, has had the biggest fall of all.

He was ninth in the Coca-Cola 600 and hasn't finished higher than 18th since.

NO WALLY: Despite two second-place finishes here, Wally Dallenbach Jr. did not have a ride for the Bud at the Glen.

Dallenbach recently completed a two-race stint with the No. 13 Ford co-owned by Bill Elliott and Dan Marino. Tom Hubert, also known for his road-racing prowess, drove that car here.

Getting fresh with vegetables

Sunday morning my niece, Paula, was baptized into the Christ United Methodist Church in Allen, Kentucky. With all her family in attendance, Paula made a public declaration of her life to Christ and came out of the baptismal looking better than before she received the sacrament.

Since it was a joyous occasion, Paula's mother, Bonnie "Suzie Homemaker" Spencer, prepared an elaborate meal to celebrate the event. With her own two hands (Lord knows she's bound to have extra hands hidden in her apron), Bonnie presented the following menu to 12 people in attendance: fried chicken, pork roast, mashed potatoes, creamed new potatoes, green beans, fried corn, corn on the cob, slaw, cornbread, rolls, tomatoes, cantaloupe, iced tea, pink lemonade, and pecan pie.

"When did you find time to fix all this?" I asked as I bit into a juicy, ripe tomato.

"Oh, I did it this morning before I left for church," Bonnie said as she sliced a fresh lemon and placed it in the appropriate Longaberger basket.

"Boy, you must have gotten up early!" I exclaimed. "Where did you get the tomatoes?"

"Oh, we grew those," her husband Paul offered.

"They're wonderful," my mother said. "And this corn is so fresh. Where did you buy it?"

"We grew that, too," Bonnie added as she cut the pie.

"Let me guess," I said sarcastically. "Cantaloupe came from your yard?"

"That's right," Paul laughed.

"So I suppose I'm to believe the grapes in the centerpiece came from your orchard. Right?"

Paul and Bonnie looked at one another curiously before Bonnie said, "It's not really an orchard is it Paul?"

"We have some vines on our back porch. That's where they came from."

And I guess you churned the butter, right?"

"Well, no. That's store bought. My churn broke late last night," Bonnie said indignantly.

"These new potatoes are wonderful." Paula's mother-in-law, Boots, declared.

"Thank you," Bonnie said. "I had Paul dig some extra ones up this morning because I was afraid I hadn't fixed enough."

As I watched to see if Bonnie's nose twitched like Samantha on "Bewitched," I stuffed my face hoping to trip Bonnie up and get her to confess that she didn't prepare the meal with her own hands and vegetables when I tasted the pie.

"Aha! You're slipping. This is store bought!" I exclaimed.

"How did you know?" Bonnie whimpered.

"I saw the box," I laughed.

At least they didn't wring the chicken's neck or kill the hog for the meat. If they did, I don't want to know.

News of the Weird

— Dayton, Ohio, police believe the wave of library vandalism, involving 40 incidents since 1996, ended in June with the conviction of electrical engineer Carl E. Lenhof, 49. Though he pleaded no contest to just three counts, police believe he is the man who frequently took books on homosexuality, the United Nations, and the Federal Reserve from library shelves in Dayton and neighboring towns and smeared them with feces before leaving them in the men's room and other places.

— The BBC reported in June that despite recent Pakistani government crackdowns, gangs operating around the shrine of Sha Dola in the city of Gujrat have been deliberately deforming infants handed over to the shrine for religious purposes so that they can be used by the gangs as high-sympathy, and unusually effective, beggars. The so-called "rat children" have distinctively smaller heads, which shrine personnel say is due to genetic defects, but which critics say are the result of clamping medieval iron rings on their heads to retard growth and brain function.

— NASA revealed in May that it had inadvertently allowed an astronaut impostor to sit at the Mission Control console at Alabama's Marshall Space Center during a shuttle flight in which actual astronauts were preparing to rescue a satellite from space. Jerry Allen Whittredge was arrested in Houston and charged with lying to NASA officials, but his lawyer said he is mentally incompetent to stand trial. Asked how NASA could not correctly identify its real astronauts, an official said merely that Whittredge made a credible

Ted McGinley: Menace on the Internet

by Sally Stone

"I've always felt anyone who preyed on children was a monster," Ted McGinley says. "And, as a father, I've become aware of how important it is for parents to learn how to protect their children from such predators. They operate almost as if they're invisible — and they are, in many ways, at least to most adults. That makes them especially dangerous, since they can seduce the children without anyone else in the family knowing what's going on."

On August 19, the USA Network will air "Every Mother's Worst Fear" starring Cheryl Ladd as the mother of a teenager who is kidnapped by a psychopath she met in an Internet chat room, and who plans to sell her to the highest bidder. Jordan Ladd, Cheryl's real-life daughter, plays the vulnerable teenager. Ted plays the cyber-space predator, Scamman.

McGinley's television credits include roles in "Love Boat," "Happy Days," "Dynasty," (his character was married to Sammy Jo, played by Heather Locklear), and, of course, Jefferson D'Arcy in "Married...With Children." He admits that for much of his television and movie career — both feature and TV films — "I've been playing variations of the All American guy. Even when I play rotten characters, some were rotters you could, maybe, get to like in time. Or maybe not. But you rarely felt threatened by them. So, this character," he adds,

"was really a departure from much of what I've done."

Asked how he felt when he saw himself on screen as Scamman, McGinley says, "I would have liked to show him as sick as you can imagine someone like him is. But while you can do that in feature films, that's a line you don't cross in television. Still," he says, "I feel the audience will see him pretty much as I did — a frightening, dangerous man who is all the more dangerous because he doesn't look like a monster. At least, on the outside."

McGinley adds, "You know, we tend to feel protective of our children if we see someone approach them who is dirty, disheveled, unfriendly, and seems irrational. But all too often we don't allow ourselves to believe that there's any kind of threat from someone who is clean, well-spoken, well-dressed, and friendly. Someone who looks you right in the eye, as if to say, 'hey, I'm your friend and I'm your children's friend. You can trust me.' But the fact is, you can't trust anyone you don't really know, especially where your kids are concerned."

There has been a veritable epidemic of net predation in recent years, with lonely people succumbing to romantic overtures from chat room "buddies," sometimes with tragic results. Lonely and vulnerable youngsters have also been drawn in by those who take advantage of their insecurities. They're often lured to meetings and kidnapped. As McGinley says, "You can imagine what can happen to these kids in the hands of these monsters."

What was it like to work with Cheryl Ladd and her daughter, Jordan?

"Great," says McGinley. "Cheryl is, of course, a wonderful actress. So is Jordan. I have to tell you that she's a remarkably talented actress and very often both Cheryl and I were very uncomfortable with the way Jordan portrayed the pain and terror that I cause her in the film."

What message does he feel "Every Mother's Worst Fear" sends to parents?

"Know what goes on when your child sits down at the computer," Ted says. "My sons are still too young for that, but my wife and I will make sure we know what they're doing when they start using the computer. While I feel it's important to raise your children so that one day they can be self-confident, independent people, I also feel that while they're under your care as parents, you are responsible for protecting them."

Ted has two new features coming up — "Dick," a political comedy, and "Je M'Appelle Crawford." He's married to actress Gigi Rice whom he met when Burt Reynolds invited him to do a play at his Jupiter, Florida theater. Gigi was also in the play, "...and the first time I saw her," says Ted, "I knew I loved her. She later told me she felt the same way, and before we knew it, we were married."

And on every anniversary, Gigi and Ted raise a glass to Burt, whom they consider their personal Cupid.

Thieves Thinking Large

Sometime between March and May, thieves stole an 18-ton steel bridge that connected an isolated cottage to a main road near Bytow, Poland. And in May, in Liverpool, England, thieves stole about 250 feet worth of an entire street (5,000 cobblestones). And in May, thieves stole the entire left field fence of the Capitola-Soquel (Calif.) Little League field.

Affirmative Action, South African Style

The Sunday Times of London reported in April that former prominent London male fashion model Chris Reid had just officially been accepted in the South African town of Port St. Johns as the first-ever white witch doctor. Reid, currently known as Ntombhe Mhlophe and whose "fashion" now consists of animal skins, had just finished a four-month apprenticeship in the art, which is said to retain importance for nearly 90 percent of black South Africans.

Insufficiently Attentive People

In February, Timothy Devine, 37, thought he had merely been struck in the ear while in a Boston park trying to purchase marijuana and that he could walk off the pain, but he decided to go to Quincy Hospital, whose attendants confirmed his emerging suspicion that he might have been shot in the head. And in May in Sacramento, Calif., a 19-year-old man was convicted of four counts of attempted murder, based in part on the testimony of one victim who said he was not aware for several days afterward that he had been shot in the stomach and another who said he thought at first he had been hit in the nose by a rock until a doctor told him a bullet had entered through an ear and exited through a nostril.

Awesome!

— In March, a 20-year-old man was charged with attempted murder in Prince Albert, Saskatchewan, for stabbing a 29-year-old man, an acquaintance, in the head. The victim walked out of his apartment after the stabbing, fully conscious and speaking, despite the fact that the butcher knife was still embedded in his skull. He survived.

— In May, according to Pasadena, Calif., Fire Department Chief Joe Nestor, about 1,000 swifts (a small migratory bird similar to a swallow) flew down the chimney of a couple's home and filled their house. There was no authoritative explanation for that, but the explanation in Augusta, Ga., for the thousands of bees that quickly covered Betty Robinson's 1984 Buick in April was the new brand of air freshener she was using in the car. And in May in Weymouth, England, about 20,000 bees covered Jane Clark's house, and furthermore, Clark, trapped inside, could not get the town council to help her because, said a spokesman, bees are a protected species. (After two days, the bees left.)

— In New York City in March, Adonis Gomez, 2, playing on the sofa in a third-floor apartment, bounced out the window but landed safely in the lap of Barbara Jones, 31, who was sitting in a wheelchair on the sidewalk. And a month earlier, in Brooklyn, Bishime Owens, 2, was thrown out an eighth-floor window by his grandmother (who has a history of mental illness) but was slowed by tree branches and landed in a flower bed so that his only injury was a broken arm.

— Golf Imitates Miniature Golf: In May at Beaver Brook Golf Course in Haydenville, Mass., Todd Obuchowski was credited with a hole-in-one on a par-3 hole after his tee shot went over the green and onto a highway, hit a passing Toyota driven by Nancy Bachand, ricocheted back to the green, and rolled into the cup. At least eight golfers witnessed the shot.

— Just Like in the Movies: In Aalesund, Norway, in May, Kristin Nalvik Loendal, 9, riding her bike down a steep hill and failing to stop at an intersection at the bottom, swerved into the path of an oncoming car and was knocked into the air. The driver of the car stopped to help the girl but couldn't find her. As he discovered several hours later, she had landed in the bed of a truck going in the opposite direction and sustained only bumps and bruises.

Civil War veterans will be honored

In preparation for this year's annual Magoffin County Founder's Day Celebration, which will honor Civil War veterans, the Sons of the Confederate Veterans, Licking Station Camp #1793 met Tuesday to plan the celebration.

Prestonsburg Community College instructor and Civil War historian and author Robert Perry was the guest speaker at the meeting.

Dispute leads to shooting

A Magoffin County man was shot Sunday in an apparent property dispute and his neighbor has been charged in the shooting.

Bobby L. Minix, 45, was reportedly injured by fragments from a bullet that was fired into the building he was in at the time.

Minix reportedly had been involved in an argument with Gary Rice, 52, concerning adjoining property that the two owned.

Reportedly, Rice was warning Minix to stay away from his property. He then allegedly fired a rifle into the structure. — The Salyersville Independent

Sewer grant passes hurdle

A $500,000 federal grant for the extension of Salyersville sewer lines received final approval from the U.S. House of Representatives recently.

The grant will enable the city of Salyersville to make substantial upgrades to its current system and put into place line extensions that will serve approximately 240 homes in Stringtown, the Coal Branch Road area, the Burning Fork area, and parts of Route 7 to the Lakeville Road intersection. — The Salyersville Independent

Mini-Mart robbers leave trail of blood, police say

The Mini-Mart at Lovely was robbed Saturday night. Police said the thieves knocked out a window and made off with all the cigarettes in the store except for two brands, worth about $400.

The business was formerly owned by Fred Chamberlain, who was shot and killed earlier this year at his home on Emily Creek. That case remains unsolved.

Entry was gained through a window beside the door. Police found blood on the glass, as well as the countertops in the store, and a trail of blood was found leading tall. Police are still searching for a suspect in that case. — The Big Sandy News

Louisa man's ear bitten off during altercation

A Louisa man faces a charge of second-degree assault after he allegedly bit a chunk of another man's ear off during a fight at a convenience store on Thursday.

Police think the fight between Lonnie Ratliff, 21, of Louisa and David Kazee, 23, also of Louisa, was spawned by an incident of road rage.

Police said Ratliff claimed that Kazee was tailgating him and bumped his vehicle on Ky. 707. According to witnesses, Ratliff caught up with Kazee at a BP station off U.S. 23 in Burnbaugh, just across the Lawrence/Boyd county line, and the two began arguing in the store.

The fight moved outside to the parking lot, where Ratliff allegedly bit a "large portion" of Kazee's ear off, and bit him a second time in the side.

After a lengthy search, police found the missing piece of ear.

Kazee went to King's Daughters' Medical Center where he was treated and released. Ratliff faces assault charges in the case. — The Big Sandy News

Sheriff's office busts indoor pot operation

Marijuana eradication season continued in Lawrence County Friday as an anonymous tip and a trail of marijuana leaves led members of the sheriff's department to their second bust in less than two weeks.

Friday morning, the sheriff's office received a call about an indoor marijuana growing operation at a home near Irish Creek, Lawrence County Sheriff Bobby Jo Workman said.

When officers arrived at the home, they found marijuana leaves on the porch, leading into the house and into a cellar with a locked door.

Workman said the home had indoor growing lights in both the cellar and attic, and had grown a total of around 40 plants. Also, several harvested buds from marijuana plants were found in a refrigerator in the home and several growing lights were confiscated.

On July 27, the sheriff's department confiscated what is believed to be the second-largest marijuana haul ever in the county when they took 2,029 plants from the woods off Raccoon Road near Blaine. Some of the plants found there had grown to over 12 feet high, who has represented the Ezel School District for several years, was forced to resign due to the Kentucky Education Reform Act, which prohibits persons from serving on the board if family members are hired as teachers.

ARH employees walk away from plane crash

Morgan County ARH Hospital administrator Dennis Chaney of West Liberty and pilot David Lang of Lexington escaped serious injury Wednesday afternoon of last week when their plane ran off the end of the runway while attempting to land at the West Liberty Airport.

While still airborne, the single-engine Piper Archer struck the front corner of the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Jon Paul Turner, flipped over, struck a utility pole, clipped the top out of a tree, and landed on its top after plowing through a playhouse in the Turner's back yard.

Both men walked away from the crash. Chaney sustained cuts on his head and leg and was hospitalized overnight for observation. Lang had only a cut on his finger.

No one inside the residence was hurt. — The Licking Valley Courier

School board chairman resigns

Jack Howard, chairman of the Morgan County School Board, resigned from the board Monday.

Rogers announces $293,436 grant for water line in Knott

U.S. Rep. Harold "Hal" Rogers announced last week that the Appalachian Regional Commission (ARC) has awarded a $293,436 grant to the City of Hindman. The money will help the city build water line extensions to serve the Bear Branch and Ball Branch areas of Knott County.

The grant will help support the construction of 3.4 miles of water line extensions. The City of Hindman will build two miles of water line to serve 54 homes in the Ball Branch area. The Bear Branch extension will consist of 1.4 miles of water line to serve 55 homes. — The Troublesome Creek Times

Elliott buys land, hopes for prison

Elliott County Fiscal Court paid $250,000 for a 56.4 acre farm, anticipating that it will be the site of a new state prison.

Coal severance tax money was used to pay Mickey and Lou Simmons for the property sandwiched between Ky. 7 and the Little Sandy River near Newfoundland.

The state currently is evaluating several locations to build one or two medium-security correctional centers with 1,790 beds.

The General Assembly allocated $3 million to begin planning new prison space and for feasibility studies in Elliott and Knott counties.

"But it's not limited to those two counties," said Chris Kellogg, state Finance and Administration Cabinet spokeswoman. It could take several months before any decisions are announced, she said.

Sewer grant passes hurdle

A $500,000 federal grant for the extension of Salyersville sewer lines received final approval from the U.S. House of Representatives recently.

The grant will enable the city of Salyersville to make substantial upgrades to its current system and put into place line extensions that will serve approximately 240 homes in Stringtown, the Coal Branch Road area, the Burning Fork area, and parts of Route 7 to the Lakeville Road intersection. — The Salyersville Independent

Belfry principal named new Pike schools chief

The Pike County Board of Education Tuesday night approved a four-year $85,000 annual salary for new superintendent Frank Welch.

Welch, 63, was appointed Monday evening in a special session, passing veteran Pike County Educator Ronald Thompson and former Nicholas County superintendent Ceber Gilbert to earn the spot as county schools chief. — Appalachian News-Express

Status of board members in doubt

The status of at least two of the Pike County School System's board members remains in doubt.

indictments against a Pikeville teen-ager charged with the brutal stabbing deaths of his mother and twin sister, and a man who allegedly stabbed his live-in girlfriend to death later that month.

Jurors sent the cases against Aaron Jason Justice, 16, of Pikeville, and Charles Franklin Layne Jr., 38, also of Pikeville to trial.

On June 16, Justice allegedly stabbed his mother and twin sister multiple times with a medium-sized pocketknife outside the family's mobile home at Island Creek.

Layne is charged with the June 30 stabbing death of Micki Shawn Fronto at the home the couple shared at Justice Court in Pikeville. Police said Layne stabbed Fronto more than 30 times. — Appalachian News-Express

City, county telemarketing deal still in negotiations

The "last leg" of a joint effort between Pikeville and Pike County officials to recruit a Nebraska telemarketing firm to locate in downtown Pikeville is growing larger.

City and county officials have been in negotiations with Interactive Telemarketing Services for more than a year to entice the company to establish a call center in the old Watson's building on Main Street.

Telemarketing firms contract with other companies to make telephone calls. — Appalachian News-Express

DONNA'S DAY: CREATIVE FAMILY FUN

by Donna Erickson

READING, WRITING AND SUMMER FUN

While traveling or just hanging around the house this summer, kids and adults can build their writing and reading skills together. The following word games and activities can be a fun way to spend idle time, especially when you share the learning with family or friends. All you need is a pencil, paper, some creativity and a cool glass of refreshing lemonade.

"THIS IS ME" POSTER: On a large sheet of paper or poster board, write your name in block letters going down the left margin. After each letter, list two or three things about yourself that begin with that letter. For example, if your name is Lisa, after "L" you might write, "Love — I love my family and they love me." After "I" you may write, "Ice cream is my favorite food." Or, you might decide to simply write a single word after each letter to describe yourself and draw a picture next to the word. Encourage family members to share additional attributes or characteristics about each person and add those to the lists.

WORDS IN A WORD: Here's a challenging word game that can be READATHON: Invite friends over for a readathon. Participants can bring stories, books, poems, articles or compositions they wrote themselves and "perform" through a dramatic reading.

BEDTIME ABCS: In the evening, play a rousing game of Scrabble or Boggle. Both are word games that require quick reading and spelling skills. Keep the dictionary handy to check spelling!

Donna Erickson's new book, "Donna's Day: Fun Activities that Bring the Family Together" (HarperCollins), is available in bookstores nationwide.

Dear Jonathan & Jeremy,

Airplanes fly because they are pushed up into the sky — pushed up from under their wings. The thing that's pushing is air.

This is one of those times that the universe wants things to be in balance.

The pressure of air under the wing is higher than the pressure on top of the wing. Working to balance the air pressure, the higher pressure pushes up toward the weaker air pressure. While doing that, it also happens to push up the whole airplane.

experiment #1

WHAT YOU NEED: Help and permission from a grown-up - empty soda pop can - big bowl of ice and water - tongs

WHAT TO DO:

Put 3 tablespoons of water into the can. Ask your grown-up to bring the water in the can to a boil by using the stove.

After the water is at a full, rolling boil, the grown-up should pick up the can with the tongs and quickly turn it upside down, plunging the can into the ice water. You'll want to do a couple of cans because this is way dramatic.

WHAT IS GOING ON:

When the hot air inside the can cooled, its air pressure dropped. The higher air pressure outside the can pushed in the walls of the can, crushing and collapsing it.

SO WHAT: Airplane wings harness the power of air pressure pushing to push airplanes up into the sky.

WHAT YOU NEED: Sheet of paper - tape - pencil - canister vacuum cleaner

WHAT TO DO:

Fold the paper in half and then tape the open end so that you end up with a shape like the one above — flat on the bottom and curved on top. Put in the pencil as in the drawing to the left. Find where the air blows out from the vac and lift the pencil up into that stream of moving air.

When the air flows over the top of the wing, the wing will swing upward.

SO WHAT:

Airplane wings are the same shape as your paper wing. The curved top is longer than the flat bottom. So air on the top has to move faster than the air on the flat and shorter bottom of the wing. The faster air moves, the lower its air pressure. The higher air pressure below the flat bottom pushes up on the wing bottom. That pushes the plane up into the sky!
